2. O Jehovah] Here the Jews are introduced, offering their humble requests to God in their present distress.—(v) Versions.

3, 4. From thy terrible] The prophet again addresses Sennacherib and the Assyrians, and declares, that the wealth which they had amassed should become a prey to others.—(v) Sept. Syr.

5, 6. Jehovah is exalted] Here a chorus of Jews is introduced, acknowledging the mercy and power of God, and celebrating the wisdom and piety of their king Hezekiah.—(v) Syr.

7—9. The mighty] We have here a description of the distress and despair of the Jews, upon the king of Assyria's marching against Jerusalem, 2 Kings xviii. 14—16.

He hath broken the covenant; despised
And of men he maketh no account.
- 9 The land mourneth, it languisheth;
Lebanon is ashamed, it withereth away:
Sharon is become like a wilderness,
And Bashan and Carmel are stripped and waste.
- 10 Now will I arise, saith Jehovah;
Now will I lift up myself; now will I be exalted.
- 11 Ye conceive chaff, and bring forth stubble.
And 'my spirit' like fire shall consume you.

As thorns cut up, they shall be consumed in the fire.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

CHAP. XXXIV. and XXXV. God's awful judgments on the enemies of his people, the Edomites; the desolation of their land, and the certainty of it; with a prophecy of the flourishing state of Israel, implying their restoration, the coming and miracles of the Saviour, and the conversion of men to God.

DRAW near, ye nations, and hearken; 1
And attend unto me, ye peoples!
Let the earth hear, and the fulness thereof;
The world, and all that spring from it.
For the wrath of Jehovah is upon all nations, 2
And his fury upon all their hosts;
He hath devoted them—given them up to slaughter.
And their slain shall be cast out; [cend, 3
And from their carcases a stench shall as-
And the mountains melt down with their blood. [away;
And all the host of heaven shall waste 4
And the heavens shall be rolled up as a scroll:
And all their hosts shall wither and fall,
As the withered foliage from the vine,
And as the blighted fruit from the fig-tree.
For my sword is 'made bare' in the heavens; 5
Behold! upon Edom shall it descend;
And on a people by me justly devoted.
The sword of Jehovah is filled with blood; 6
It is made fat with the fattest flesh:

11. My spirit] See note, Heb. Bib. and Chald.

13-19. Hear, ye that are] God now calls all nations to be witnesses of his power, and faithfulness towards his people, in saving them. The prophet then describes the dreadful apprehensions of the wicked in those times of distress and imminent danger; finely contrasted with the confidence and security of the righteous.

17. King in his beauty] Not clothed in sackcloth, but rayed in his royal robes, splendid and glorious.—That is afar off] Be no longer confined to Jerusalem, but the siege being ended, and the enemy destroyed, any part of the land may be visited at pleasure; or any foreign land.

18. Where is the scribe] The person who wrote down the names of such as were to pay tribute. The receiver denotes him appointed to collect the tribute. He that numbered the towers, the commander of the enemy's forces, who surveyed the fortifications of the city.

20. (v) Chald.

21. Confluent streams] Rivers and streams are in part the defence of cities; but Jehovah would be to Jerusalem like such a mass of water as neither small nor large vessel should be able to pass.

23. Thy sails are] The prophet addresses the enemy. He considers the Assyrian to be like an old ship, with its sails loose, its mast broken, and ready to be overwhelmed with the sea breaking upon it.

CHAP. XXXIV. 1. Draw near] The subject is of such importance, that the prophet calls the attention of all man kind to it.

3. Slain—cast out] That is, shall remain unburied.

5. Is made bare] So the Chaldee, which Lowth adopts.

6. Is filled with blood] Compare Deut. xxxii. 42. Here the slaughter of the Edomites is compared to a great sacrifice, Levit. vii. 1, &c. and Ezek. xxxix. 16.

- With the blood of lambs and of goats ;
 With the fat of the kidneys of rains :
 For Jehovah hath a sacrifice in Bozrah,
 And a great slaughter in the land of Edom, 7 And the wild-goats shall fall down with them,
 And the bullocks, together with the bulls :
 And their land shall be drunken with their blood, [fat.
 And their very dust shall be enriched with 8 For it is the day of Jehovah's vengeance ;
 The year of recompense to the Advocate of Zion.
 9 And her streams shall be turned into pitch,
 And her dust into sulphur ;
 And her land shall become burning pitch.
 10 It shall not be quenched by night or by day ;
 Her smoke shall ascend up for ever ;
 Through every generation she shall lie waste ; [ever.
 None shall pass through her for ever and

 And the owl and the raven shall dwell in For he shall stretch over her the line of desolation,
 And let fall the plummet of emptiness.
 12 As to her nobles, there shall be none,
 Whom they may call to rule over them ;
 For all her princes shall utterly fail,
 13 And thorns shall spring up in her palaces ;
 The nettle and the bramble, in her fortresses : [pents ;
 And she shall become a habitation for ser-
 A court for the daughters of the ostrich.
 14 Various kinds of wild beasts shall meet together,
 And the satyr shall call to his fellow ;
 There also the screech-owl shall pitch,
 And find for herself a place of rest.
 15 There the raven shall make her nest, and lay eggs, [her shadow ;
 And hatch and gather her brood under
 There also shall vultures be assembled ;
 Every one of them shall join her mate.
 16 Consult ye the book of Jehovah and read :

7. Wild-goats] I so render here, as the goat kind was appointed for sacrifice, and as, in my opinion, the word was used to denote both a species of goats and the rhinoceros.

9. Turned into pitch] No image can be more dreadful than this. It is most probably derived from what happened to the cities of the plain, Sodom and Gomorrah, Gen. xix. 24—29. Jude 7.

16. Consult ye the book] That is, this prophecy ; and compare it with the event, and you will find every part exactly fulfilled.—(v) Sept. MSS.

CHAR. XXXV. 1. The desert] While the land of Edom was for ever to lie waste, that of Judea, now waste, was to be again cultivated.

3. Strengthen] He addresses the ministers or teachers of Israel. Comfort ye and encourage God's people who are now ready to faint with the assurance of the salvation which he will work for them.

5. Then shall the eyes] Those who were really or wilfully blind and deaf, shall be constrained to acknowledge God's power and grace ; and the aged, lame, and infirm shall

Not one of these shall be missed ;
 Not a female shall want her own mate ;
 For the "mouth of Jehovah" hath commanded,
 And his spirit itself hath gathered them.
 And he hath cast the lot for them,
 And his hand hath divided for them by line :
 They shall possess the land perpetually ;
 To every generation they shall dwell therein.

CHAPTER XXXV.

THE desert and the waste shall be glad ; 1
 And the wilderness shall rejoice and flourish :
 Like the rose it shall abundantly flourish, 2
 And shall even exult with joy and singing :
 The glory of Lebanon shall be given unto it ;
 The beauty of Carmel and of Sharon ;
 These shall see the glory of Jehovah,
 And behold the majesty of our God.
 Strengthen ye the feeble hands, 3
 And confirm ye the tottering knees.
 Say ye to the faint-hearted, Be ye strong ; 4
 Be not afraid ; behold your God : [God :
 Vengeance will come ; the retribution of
 He himself will come and save you.
 Then shall the eyes of the blind be opened, 5
 And the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped :
 Then shall the lame bound like the hart, 6
 And the tongue of the dumb shall sing :
 For in the desert shall waters burst forth,
 And streams shall flow in the wilderness :
 And the glowing sand shall become a pool, 7
 And the thirsty soil springs of waters :
 In the haunt of serpents shall spring up
 The grass, with the reed and the bulrush.
 And "a highway shall be there, 8
 And it shall be called the way of holiness :
 No unclean person shall pass through it :
 But God shall be with them, walking in the
 And the foolish shall not err therein. [way,
 No lion shall be there ; [thither ; 9
 Nor shall any ravenous beast come up
 Neither shall one such be found there :
 But the redeemed shall walk therein.
 Yea, the ransomed of Jehovah shall return ; 10

leap for joy, when God works this deliverance, Matt. xi. 4, 5.

7. Glowing sand] This word is Arabic, as well as Hebrew, expressing in both languages the same thing ; the glowing sandy plain, which in hot countries at a distance has the appearance of water.

8. But God] The noun is substituted for the pronoun, to give more clearly the sense, compare ver. 4, where it is said he was to come and save them. By the foolish is meant men of no experience, men un instructed ; but even these through divine guidance shall not err from the right and good way.—(v) And a way] Syr. MSS.

9. No lion] Beasts of prey haunt the wilderness which lies between Babylon and Judea ; but the prophet assures God's ransomed people, that in the way of holiness, they should be perfectly safe.

10. Come to Zion] God engages to bring them back to their own land, and to the enjoyment of all their former privileges. In this whole chapter, the literal sense is but the vehicle of a more sublime and spiritual one ; and the people

They shall come to Zion with triumph;
 Perpetual joy shall crown their heads.
 Joy and gladness shall they obtain,
 And sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Account of Senacherib's invasion; the reproachful language of Rab-shakeh, which is told to Hezekiah.

- 1 IN the fourteenth year of king Hezekiah, Senacherib, king of Assyria, came up against all the fenced cities of Judah, and took
- 2 them. And the king of Assyria sent Rab-shakeh from Lachish, to king Hezekiah, with a great host against Jerusalem: and he stopped by the conduit of the upper-pool, which is in the highway of the fuller's
- 3 field. Then came out to him Eliakim, the son of Hilkiah, who was over the household, and Shebna, the scribe, and Joah, the son of Asaph, the recorder. And Rab-shakeh said to them, Speak ye now to Hezekiah,
- 4 That thus saith the great king, the king of Assyria, What confidence is this which thou exercisest? With thy lips "thou sayest" that
- 5 thou hast wisdom and power to make war. Now in whom dost thou trust, that thou
- 6 rebellest against me? Now, behold, thou trustest to the staff of a bruised reed, to Egypt, on which if a man lean, it will go
- 7 into his hand, and pierce it: so is Pharaoh, king of Egypt, to all who trust in him. But
- 8 if "ye say" to me, We trust in Jehovah our God: is it not he, whose high-places and whose altars Hezekiah hath taken away,
- 9 and hath said to Judah and Jerusalem, Ye shall worship before this altar "in Jerusalem?" Now, therefore, I pray thee, give
- 10 pledges to my lord, the king of Assyria, and I will deliver to thee two thousand horses, if thou be able, on thy part, to set riders
- 11 upon them. How, then, wilt thou dare to face one captain, the least of my master's servants; although thou put thy trust in
- 12 Egypt for chariots and for horsemen? Am I now come up, without Jehovah, against this "land," to destroy it? Jehovah said to me, Go up against this land, and destroy it.
- 13 Then said Eliakim, the son of Hilkiah and Shebna, and Joah, to Rab-shakeh, Speak, we pray thee, to thy servants in the Syrian language; for we understand it: and talk
- not to us in the Jewish tongue, in the hearing of the people who are on the wall. But
- Rab-shakeh said "to them," Hath my master sent to thy master, and to thee, to speak these words? and not also to the men who are stationed on the wall, who will be compelled with you to eat their own dung, and
- drink their own urine? Then Rab-shakeh stood and cried with a loud voice, in the Jewish tongue, and spoke, saying, Hear the word of the great king, the king of Assyria: Thus saith the king, Let not Hezekiah deceive you; for he will not be able to deliver you "out of his hand:" Nor let Hezekiah induce you to trust in Jehovah, saying, Jehovah will surely rescue us, and this city shall not be delivered into the hand of the king of Assyria. Hearken not to Hezekiah: 16 for thus saith the king of Assyria, Make a present to me, and come out to me; and ye shall eat every man of his own vine, and every one of his own fig-tree, and drink every one waters of his own cistern: Until 17 I come, and take you away to a land, like your own land, a land of corn and wine, a land of bread and vineyards, "a land of the purest olive, and of honey; and ye shall live, and not die:" But hearken not to Hezekiah, 18 when he persuadeth you, saying, Jehovah will deliver us. Hath any of the gods of the nations delivered, in any case, his land out of the hand of the king of Assyria? Where are the gods of Hamath, and of Ar- 19 pad? where are the gods of Sepharvaim "Hena, and Ivah?" have they delivered Samaria out of my hand? Who among all the 20 gods of the countries are they that have delivered their country out of my hand, that Jehovah should deliver Jerusalem out of my hand? But the "people" were silent, and 21 answered him not a word: for the king's commandment was, saying, Answer him not.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Hezekiah sendeth to Isaiah, who comforteth him; Senacherib's letter; and Isaiah's prediction concerning his return to his own country.

THEN came Eliakim, the son of Hilkiah, 22 who was over the household, and Shebna, the scribe, and Joah, the son of Asaph, the recorder, to Hezekiah, with their garments rent, and told him the words of Rab-shakeh.

And when king Hezekiah heard, he rent 1 his garments, and covered himself with sackcloth, and went into the house of Jehovah. And he sent Eliakim, who was over 2 the household, and Shebna, the scribe, and the elders of the priests, covered with sackcloth, to Isaiah, the prophet, the son of Amoz. And they said to him, Thus saith, 3 Hezekiah, This day is a day of trouble, and of reproof, and of calumny: for the children are come to the birth, and there is not strength to bring forth. It may be that Jehovah, 4 thy God, hath heard all the words of Rab-shakeh, whom the king of Assyria, his mas-

under the shadow of their deliverance from Babylon, were directed to regard the great salvation by Messiah.

CHAP. XXXVI. 1. In the fourteenth year] As this is only another copy of what we find 2 Kings xviii. a little abridged, the reader is referred there for notes. The various readings of this and the following chapters may be seen by comparing the other copy.

- ter, hath sent to reproach the living God ; and will reprove the words which Jehovah, thy God, hath heard ; intercede, therefore, by prayer for the remnant that are yet left.
- 5 The servants of king Hezekiah then went to Isaiah ; And Isaiah said to them, Thus shall ye say to your master ; Thus saith Jehovah, Be not afraid on account of the words which thou hast heard, with which the servants of the king of Assyria have blasphemed me. Behold, I will put another spirit in him, and he shall hear a rumour, and shall return to his own land ; and I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own land. When Rab-shakeh returned, he found the king of Assyria warring against Libnah ; for he had heard that he was departed from Lachish. And it being then reported to him, saying, Behold, Tirhakah, king of Ethiopia, is come out to fight against thee ; he again sent messengers to Hezekiah, saying, Thus shall ye speak to Hezekiah, king of Judah, saying, Let not thy God, in whom thou trustest, deceive thee, saying, Jerusalem shall not be delivered into the hand of the king of Assyria. Behold, thou hast heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all lands, by destroying them utterly : and shalt thou be delivered ?
- 12 Did the gods of the nations deliver those whom my fathers destroyed ; Gozan, and Haran, and Rezep, and the children of Edon who were in Thelaser ? Where is the king of Hamath, and the king of Arpad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim, of Hena, and Ivah ?
- 14 And Hezekiah received the letter from the hand of the messengers, and read it ; and Hezekiah went up to the house of Jehovah, and spread it before Jehovah. And Hezekiah prayed before Jehovah, and said,
- 16 O Jehovah, God of Israel, who dwellest between the cherubs, thou art God, thou alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth ; thou hast made the heavens and the earth.
- 17 Bow down, O Jehovah, thine ear, and hear ; open, O Jehovah, thine eyes, and see : and hear all the words of Senacherib, which he hath sent to reproach the living God :
- 18 Of a truth, O Jehovah, the kings of Assyria have destroyed those nations and their lands,
- 19 And have cast their gods into the fire ; for they were no gods, but the work of men's hands, wood and stone : therefore have they destroyed them. Now, therefore, O Jehovah, our God, I beseech thee, save thou us out of his hand, that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that thou, Jehovah, art the only God.
- 21 Then Isaiah, the son of Amoz, sent to Hezekiah, saying, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of Israel ; thy prayer to me, against Senacherib, the king of Assyria, I have heard. This is the word which Jehovah hath spoken concerning him.

The virgin-daughter of Zion despiseth thee, She laugheth thee to scorn ; [at thee. The daughter of Jerusalem shaketh her head Whom hast thou reproached and blasphemed ? [voice, And against whom hast thou exalted thy And hast lifted up thine eyes on high ? Even against the Holy One of Israel. By thy messengers thou hast reproached Jehovah, and said, With my numerous chariots I ascended The height of the mountains, the sides of Lebanon ; [trees ; And cut down his tall cedars, his choice fir- And I entered his extreme retreat, his rich forest.

I have digged and drunk foreign waters, 25 And with the soles of my feet dried up All the streams of fenced places. Hast thou not heard that of old I disposed this ? [it ? And that from ancient times I determined Now have I brought it to pass, that thou shouldst be, [cities. To reduce into heaps of ruin the strongest Hence were their inhabitants of small power ; 27 They were dismayed and confounded ; They were as grass of the field, as the green As the grass on the house-tops ; [herb ; As the blighted corn, before its full growth. But thy counsels, and all thine enterprises, 28 And thy rage against me, I have known. Because thy rage against me, 29 And thine insolence have reached mine ear ; Therefore I will put my hook in thy nose, And my bridle in thy jaws, [camest. And turn thee back by the way in which thou And this shall be a sign to thee, Hezekiah ; 30 Eat this year that which groweth of itself, And the next year, what springeth from the same ; And in the third year, sow ye, and reap, And plant vineyards, and eat of their fruits. For again shall the escaped remnant of 31 Judah Strike root downward, and bear fruit upward. For from Jerusalem shall go forth a remnant, [Zion : And those who have escaped from mount The zeal of Jehovah of hosts will do this. Therefore, thus saith Jehovah, as to the 33 king of Assyria, He shall not come into this city, nor shoot an arrow there, Nor come before it with shield, nor raise a mound against it. He shall return by the way in which he came ; 34

Into this city he shall not come, saith Jehovah.
 35 For I will defend and save this city, [vah.
 For my own sake, and for my servant David's sake.
 36 And on that night, an angel of Jehovah went out, and smote in the camp of the Assyrians, a hundred and eighty-five thousand; and when the rest arose in the morning, 37 behold, they were all dead corpses. Then Senacherib, king of Assyria, departed, and 38 returned and dwelt at Nineveh. And as he was worshipping in the house of Nisroch, his god, Adrammelech and Sharezer, his sons, smote him with the sword; and they escaped into the land of Armenia. And Esarhaddon, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Hezekiah having received a message to prepare for death, by prayer hath his life prolonged; his song of thanksgiving.

1 In those days, Hezekiah was sick of a deadly disease. And the prophet Isaiah, the son of Amoz, came to him, and said to him, Thus saith Jehovah, Set thy house in order; for thou shalt die, and live no longer.
 2 Then Hezekiah turned his face to the wall, and prayed to Jehovah, saying, I beseech thee, O Jehovah, remember how I have walked before thee in truth, and with an upright heart, and have done what is good in thine eyes. And Hezekiah wept much.
 4 "Now, before Isaiah had gone out into the middle court," the word of Jehovah came to him, saying, Go back and tell Hezekiah, the chief of my people, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of David thy fore-father, I have heard thy prayer, I have seen thy tears: behold, "I will heal thee: on the third day thou shalt go up to the house of Jehovah."
 6 And I will add to thy days fifteen years; and I will deliver thee and this city from the hand of the king of Assyria; and I will defend this "city, for mine own sake, and for my servant David's sake. And Hezekiah said, by what sign shall I know, that I shall go up into the house of Jehovah? And 7 Isaiah said, This shall be a sign unto thee, from Jehovah, that Jehovah will do the thing which he hath spoken. Behold, (saith he, 8 I bring back the shadow of the degrees, by which the sun is gone down on the degrees of Ahaz, ten degrees backward. And the sun returned backward ten degrees, on the degrees by which it had gone down. "And 21 Isaiah said, Let them take a lump of figs: and they bruised, and applied them to the boil; and he recovered."

THE WRITING OF HEZEKIAH, KING OF JUDAH, WHEN HE HAD BEEN SICK, AND WAS RECOVERED FROM HIS SICKNESS.

I said, In the meridian of my days, 10 I shall enter the gates of hades; I am deprived of the residue of my years! I shall no more, said I, see Jehovah, 11 Jehovah in the land of the living: I shall behold men no more; No more be with the inhabitants of the world. [from me; My dwelling is plucked up and removed 12 It is rolled up like the shepherd's tent; My life is nearly cut off as the web from the thrum; In the course of the day thou wilt finish me. I roared out until the morning, like the lion; 13 He did so break to pieces all my bones." Like the swallow or crane did I twitter; 14 I made a moaning like the dove. Mine eyes fail with looking upward: O Lord, I am distressed; be surety for me. What shall I say? 15 He promised to me, and hath performed it. All my years I will go to his house, On account of this bitterness of my soul. "Yea this, O Jehovah, shall be declared of 16 thee; That thou hast revived my spirit— [life." Hast restored my health, and prolonged my Behold, my bitter grief is changed to peace; 17 And thou hast rescued my soul from perdition; [back; Yea, thou hast cast all my sins behind thy CHAP. XXXVIII. 2. Turned his face to the wall] The corner of the room is the place of honour among the Arabs; and on one or more sides they have sofas, on which they repose. Hezekiah, on receiving the awful message, turned himself on the sofa, and prayed to the God of his salvation.

4, 5. The words added from the other copy seem to be necessary.

8. The sun is gone] In the history of this miracle in the book of Kings. (2 Kings xx. 9—11.) there is no mention at all made of the sun, but only of the going backward of the shadow: which might be effected by a supernatural refraction.

10. In the meridian] So the versions render, and so the word signifies in the Arabic.

11. See Jehovah] 'To see Jehovah,' is an elliptical phrase, and signifies, 'to enjoy his favour,' to taste that he is good, Ps. xxvii. 12.

12. My dwelling] Most modern critics give this sense, as plucking up cannot with any propriety apply to age. See

Gesen. in verb.—It is rolled up] In the first part of the verse he compares his life to a tent plucked up and the curtains rolled together; in the latter to a weaver's web nearly finished, and ready to be severed from the loom.

13. Roared out—like the lion] So the Chaldee; and the roaring of the lion is often applied to the deep groaning of men in great distress, Ps. xxii. 2; xxxii. 3; xxxviii. 9; Job iii. 24. I omit the repetition of the line concluding the preceding verse, with one MS.

14. Become surety for me] Or afford me thine effectual aid; and kindly support me.

15. Hath performed it] The circumstances justify this version. God had promised him life; and had so far fulfilled it as to have saved him from his deadly disease.—I will go to his house] Compare Ps. xlii. 4.

16. Yea this] The Sept. is followed as giving the most apposite sense.

17. From perdition] Both the Sept. and Vulg. render to this purpose.

- 16 Verily the grave cannot give thanks to thee;
Death cannot celebrate thee;
They that go down to the pit cannot hope for thy truth : [do this day ;
- 19 The living, the living shall praise thee as I
The father to the children shall make known thy truth.
- 20 Jehovah hath saved me ; therefore my songs
Will we sing to the stringed instruments,
All the days of our life, in the house of Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

Hezekiah's vanity ; the captivity of Judah foretold.

- 1 ABOUT this time Merodach-baladan, the son of Baladad, king of Babylon, sent letters and ambassadors" with a present unto Hezekiah : for he had heard that Hezekiah
- 2 had been sick. And Hezekiah rejoiced at their arrival, and showed them all his store-houses, the silver, and the gold, and the spices, and the precious ointment, and his armoury, and all that he had in his treasures : there was nothing in his house, nor in all his dominion, which Hezekiah showed them not.
- 3 Then came Isaiah, the prophet, to king Hezekiah, and said to him, What said these men ? and whence came they to thee ? And Hezekiah said, They are come from a far country, from Babylon. And he said, What have they seen in thy house ? And Hezekiah answered, All things which are in my house have they seen ; there is nothing among my treasures which I have not showed
- 5 them. And Isaiah said to Hezekiah, Hear the word of Jehovah, Behold, the days come that all which is in thy house, and what thy fathers have laid up in store unto this day, shall be carried to Babylon : nothing shall
- 7 be left, saith Jehovah. And of thy sons who shall issue from thee, whom thou shalt beget, shall they take away ; and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon. Then said Hezekiah to Isaiah, Good is the word of Jehovah which thou hast spoken : only, said he, let there be peace and truth in my days.

CHAPTER XL.

Deliverance from the captivity foretold, as typical of the spiritual deliverance by Messiah, the power and glory of Jehovah and the vanity of idols.

- COMFORT ye, comfort my people, saith your I God : [her,
- Speak comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry to 2
That the period of her warfare is fulfilled ;
That the expiation of her iniquity is accepted ; [hovah,
- For she hath received from the hand of Je-
A full measure of punishment for all her sins.
- A voice crieth in the wilderness ; 3
Prepare ye the way of Jehovah !
Make straight in the desert a highway for Every valley shall be exalted, [our God. 4
And every mountain and hill brought low ;
And the crooked shall be made straight,
And the rough places a smooth plain :
And the glory of Jehovah shall be revealed, 5
And all flesh shall see the 'salvation of our God :"
- For the mouth of Jehovah hath spoken it.
A voice saith, Proclaim, 6
And what, said I, shall I proclaim ?
Proclaim that all flesh is but grass,
And all its 'glory' as the flower of the field :

CHAP. XXXIX. See notes, 2 Kings xx. 14—19.

CHAP. XL. 1. Comfort ye] The prophet in the foregoing chapter had delivered a very explicit declaration of the impending dissolution of the kingdom, and of the captivity of the royal house of David, and of the people under the kings of Babylon. As the subject of his subsequent prophecies was to be chiefly of the consolatory kind, he opens them with giving a promise of the restoration of the kingdom, and the return of the people from that captivity, and then adverts to Messiah, the son of David, and to his kingdom. He often passes from the one kingdom to the other ; but the latter is the all-engrossing subject.

2. A full measure] The word מלל conveys only the sense given ; that God had punished his people in such a degree as was sufficient to answer his purposes and designs.

3. A voice crieth] The prophet hears the voice of some messenger crying to others, 'Prepare,' &c. When the Jews were brought from Egypt, Jehovah led them through the desert ; and when they came from Babylon, they had a similar desert to pass. This messenger who announced the approach of Jehovah conducting his people from Babylon, as of old from Egypt, was intended to represent the forerunner of Messiah, the Baptist. Compare Matt. iii. 3 ; Mark i. 3 ; and Luke iii. 4.

5. Salvation of our God] This addition, of the Sept. and Luke i. 10, is necessary, as without it the verb wants its objects.

6, 8. A voice saith] Bishop Lowth conceived that the import of these verses is, that the people, the flesh, is of a vain temporary nature ; that all its glory fadeth, and is soon gone ; but that the word of God endureth for ever. What is this,
but a plain opposition of the flesh to the spirit ; of the carnal Israel to the spiritual ; of the temporary Mosaic economy, to the eternal christian dispensation. Peter understood the words in the same sense, 1 Pet. i. 23, 24.

9. Ascend] It was the custom of the women to celebrate in songs and with dances any joyful event, as we learn from Exod. xv. 20, 21 ; Judg. xi. 34 ; and 1 Sam. xviii. 6, 7.

10. With might] So Michaelis renders.—Recompense with] He will come as a powerful and triumphant king, to bestow rewards and favours on his own people.

11. Nursing ewes] Compare Ps. lxxviii. 71, and note,

- And the reward he giveth is before him.
 He shall feed his flock like a shepherd ;
 He shall gather up the lambs in his arm,
 And shall carry them in his bosom ;
 He shall gently lead along the nursing-ewes.

 Or what likeness will ye prepare for him ?

 That Jehovah is the everlasting God,
 The Creator of the bounds of the earth ;
 That he neither fainteth, nor is wearied ;
 And that his understanding is unsearchable !
 He giveth vigour to the faint ; 29
 And to the feeble he increaseth strength.
 The young men shall faint, and be wearied ; 30
 And chosen youth shall stumble and fall :
 But they who wait on Jehovah shall gain 31
 new strength ;
 They shall mount up as on eagles' wings ;
 They shall run, and not be wearied ;
 They shall walk onward, and not faint.

CHAPTER XLI.

God reasons with his church, in respect to his mercies, promises, and the vanity of idols.

with Gen. xxxiii. 13, 14. No image could represent more forcibly God's tender regard to, and care of, his people, John x. 11.

12—17. Who hath] In this paragraph the prophet represents the greatness, wisdom, power, and glory of God to be such that all creatures are as nothing in comparison with him.

16. And Lebanon] This intimates that some other offering was necessary.

18—20. To whom] This appeal to idolators, on their folly in attempting to make an image of God, is admirable, and calculated to make a strong impression on every reflecting mind.

27—31. Wherefore sayest] The prophet now reproves the Israelites for their want of confidence in this powerful and faithful God ; and assures them that however natural strength may fail, they who wait on, and rely on Jehovah, shall find his aid sufficient for them.

CHAP. XLI. 2. A just man] One who should execute justice on oppressors, and who should deliver the oppressed.
 Cyrus is meant.—(a) Vulg.

4. The first] That is, I Jehovah, who am the first being, and have given existence to all others, and shall exist with the last of mankind, am he that doeth all these things.—

The ends of the earth, and were terrified.
They drew near ; they came together ;

Him that striketh on the anvil,
He saith of the sodder that it is good ;
He fixeth it with nails that it may not be moved.

Be not dismayed, for I am thy God.
I will strengthen thee, yea, I will assist thee,
Yea, I will uphold thee with my just right hand.

Shall be ashamed and confounded ;
And the men who contended with thee,
Shall become as nothing, and utterly perish.
- 12 Thou shalt seek them, but not find them,
Even the men that strove with thee ;
They shall become as nothing, as mere naught,
Even the men that opposed thee in battle.

That holdeth thee by thy right hand ;
That saith to thee, Fear not ; I am thy helper. [Israel ;

A new corn-drag armed with pointed teeth :
Thou shalt thresh and beat small the mountains ;
And the hills shalt thou make as chaff.
- 16 Thou shalt fan them, and the wind shall disperse them ;
And the tempest shall scatter them abroad ;
But thou shalt rejoice in Jehovah ;
In the Holy One of Israel thou shalt exult.
- 17 The poor and needy seek water, but find none ;
Their tongue is parched with thirst :
- I Jehovah will attend to them ;
I, the God of Israel, will not forsake them.
I will open in the high-places, rivers, 18
And in the midst of the valleys, fountains ;
I will make the desert a water-pool,
And the dry land springs of water.
In the wilderness I will make to grow the 19 cedar,
The acacia, the myrtle, and the wild olive :
I will plant in the desert, the fir-tree,
The pine, and the box together :
That they may see, and may know, 20
And may consider, and understand at once,
That the hand of Jehovah hath done this,
And the Holy One of Israel hath created it.
Draw near, ye mighty ones, saith Jeho- 21

Approach, ye strong ones, saith the king of

What shall first happen, let them declare
That we may consider and know the event.
Or declare to us things to come hereafter ;
Tell us the events of future times ; 23
Then shall we know that ye are gods.
Yea, either do good, or do evil, [afraid.

From the rising of the sun he shall call on
He shall "trample" on princes like mortar ;
Even as the potter treadeth down the clay.
Who hath declared this from the begin- 26
That we might know it ? [ning, And beforehand, that we may say, It is right ?
Truly there is not one that foretold it ;
There is not one that hath declared it ;
Yea, not one that hath heard your words.
I first say to Zion, Behold ! behold them ! 27
And to Jerusalem I give a joyful messenger.
And I looked, but there was no man ; 28
Even among "the idols" none gave counsel ;
When I inquired of them none could answer.
Lo, they are all of them vain ; their works 29
nothing ;
Wind and emptiness are their molten images.

5-7. The extremities] Instead of rejecting their vain idols, they exert themselves and show their zeal, by making new ones, which might save them.

14. Thou dead Israel] They were dead in a civil sense, having no existence as an independent people and banished from their own land. In this light they are considered by Ezekiel, xxxvii. 12.

17-20. The poor and needy] By these are meant the Israelites in captivity.

21-24. Draw near, ye mighty ones] For the text, see 689

note Fam. Bib. The address is to the idols. The whole is a fine irony on the folly and madness of idolatry.

25. I raise up one] This is generally understood to mean Cyrus, who by his father was a Persian, and Persia lay east of Babylon ; but by his mother a Median, and Media lay to the north.—(v) Chald.

27. I first say] God is introduced as asserting his own claim to prescience, and as foretelling what shall come to pass ; and in the next verses the prophet speaks as looking in vain to idols for any thing like this. 28. (v) Sept.

CHAPTER XLII.

A prophecy of the person and office of Messiah; praise to God; the success of the Gospel; the unbelief and rejection of the Jews.

- 1 BEHOLD! my servant, whom I will uphold;
Mine elect, in whom my soul delighteth;
My spirit have I put upon him;
He shall publish judgment to the nations.
- 2 He shall not cry aloud, nor raise a clamour,
Nor cause his voice to be heard in the street.
- 3 The bruised reed he shall not break,
And the dimly burning flax he shall not quench [it.
He shall publish judgment so as to establish
- 4 His power shall not be abated or broken,
Until he hath established judgment in the earth;
And distant regions shall wait for his law.
- 5 Thus saith the Lord God Jehovah,
Who created the heavens, and stretched them out; [duce;
Who spread abroad the earth with its pro-
Who giveth breath to the people upon it,
And spirit to them that walk thereon:
- 6 I, Jehovah, have called thee to a righteous work;
And I will hold thy hand and preserve thee,
And give thee for a covenant-ratifier to the people,
And for a light to enlighten the nations:
- 7 To open the eyes of the blind;
To bring the prisoner from confinement;
And from prison those that sit in darkness.
- 8 I am Jehovah, that is my name,
And my glory I will not give to another,
Nor my praise to the graven images.
- 9 Former things, lo! they are come to pass;
And new events do I now declare:
Before they spring forth, I publish them to you.
- 10 Sing to Jehovah a new song;
His praise from the ends of the earth;
Ye that go down to the sea, with its fulness;

Ye distant regions, and they that dwell therein.

Let the wilderness and its cities cry aloud; 11
The villages in which Kedar dwelleth;
Let the inhabitants of the rocky country sing; [tains.

Let them shout from the top of the mountain:
Let them give glory to Jehovah, 12
And to distant regions declare his praise.

Jehovah shall go forth as a mighty man; 13
Like a warrior he shall rouse up his zeal;
He shall cry aloud, yea, he shall shout;
He shall exert his strength against his foes.

I have for a long time been silent; 14
Shall I ever be silent and contain myself?
I will cry out like a woman in travail,
I will breathe short, and draw in my breath at once.

I will lay waste the mountains and hills, 15
And burn up all the grass upon them:
I will also make the rivers dry deserts,
And I will dry up the water-pools.

I will bring the blind by a way they knew 16
not, [them;

And in paths they knew not I will lead
I will make darkness light before them,
And the rugged ways shall be a smooth plain. [forsake them.

These things will I do for them and not They shall be turned back, and greatly 17
ashamed,

Who put their trust in graven images;
Who say to molten images, Ye are our

Who is more blind than my servant? [see! 19
Or deaf than he to whom I sent my messengers?

Who blind as he perfectly instructed,
Or 'deaf' as the servant of Jehovah?

Thou verily seest, but wilt not regard; 20
Thine ears are open, but thou wilt not hear.

Yet Jehovah loveth him for his righteous- 21
ness' sake;

He will exalt and make honourable the law.
But this is a people spoiled and plundered: 22

CHAP. XLII. 1. Behold my servant] See Matt. xii. 18—21.—He shall publish] The term judgment is taken in a great latitude of signification. It certainly means in this place the law to be published by Messiah: the institution of the gospel.

3. So as to establish it] Literally 'unto truth,' which the Sept. and Matthew render, 'unto victory,' that is, as to overcome all opposition, which is, to establish it. I have thus rendered, because this sense is expressed and amplified in the next verse.—Burning flax] He shall not add affliction to the afflicted, but support and comfort them.

4. His power] So Rabbi Mier, as cited by Capellus; and without it the verbs want their subject.—His law] The law of Christ, the doctrine which he came to promulgate.

6. A righteous work] The great work of our Lord was to display God's righteousness in the whole of his moral government; both in the exercise of his justice and of his mercy.—A covenant-ratifier] To fulfil and confirm the covenant made with Abraham, Gen. xxii. 18.

10—12. Sing to Jehovah] The prophet calls on all nations to praise God for his great mercy in giving a Saviour; both those afar off, and those near. Among the latter he specifies the Kederene Arabs, who inhabited Idumea, a rocky country, and part of stony Arabia.

18, 19. Hear, ye deaf] The prophet admonishes the Israelites. God had given them his own word, and sent to them his prophets, yet they had loved and served idols. Who therefore so blind and stupid as they? But their blindness was wilful.—(v) Syr. 1 MS.

21. Jehovah loveth him] The verb wants its object; and most of our commentators supply 'him, or people, or servant.' For the sense given to the verb, see Gen. xxxiv. 19.—The law] The Israelites, by their conduct, had dishonoured and brought it into contempt; but the prophet assures them that God will restore its authority, and make it appear what it is in reality, honourable. This he has done by our Lord, who fulfilled all righteousness—was the substance of the typical law, and obeyed the precept, and endured the penalty of the moral law.

- All their chosen youth are taken in the toils,
And are close confined in prison;
They are become a spoil, and none delivereth;
A prey, and none saith, Restore.
- 23 Who among you will give ear to this?
Will attend and listen for the future?
- 24 Who hath given up Jacob for a prey,
And Israel to plunderers? [sinned];
Was it not Jehovah, against whom they
In whose ways they would not walk,
And whose law they would not obey?
- 25 Therefore he poured out upon them
The fury of his wrath, and the violence of war;
And it kindled a flame round about them:
Yet they did not regard it
And it burned them, yet they did not consider it.

CHAPTER XLIII.

God will not forsake Israel as a body, but will be gracious to them; he renews his reproofs for their ingratitude and neglect of his service.

- 1 YER now, thus saith Jehovah, [Israel:
Thy Creator, O Jacob; and thy Maker, O
Fear not, for I have redeemed thee;
I have called thee by thy name; thou art
mine. [with thee;
- 2 When thou passest through waters, I am
And through rivers, they shall not overflow thee; [not be burned;
When thou walkest through fire, thou shalt
And the flame shall not take hold of thee.
- 3 For, I Jehovah, am thy God;
The Holy One of Israel, thy Saviour:
I have given Egypt for thy ransom;
Ethiopia and Seba, in thy stead.
- 4 Because thou hast been precious in my sight, [thee:
Thou hast been honoured, and I have loved
Therefore will I give men instead of thee;
And the peoples instead of thy life.
- 5 Fear thou not, for I am with thee:
From the east I will bring thy children,
And from the west I will gather thee
together:
- 6 I will say to the north, Give up;
And to the south, Keep not back.
Bring my sons from countries afar off,
And my daughters from the ends of the earth:
- 7 Every one that is called by my name,

- Whom for my own glory I have created;
Whom I have formed, yea whom I made.
Bring forth the people who are blind, 6
Although they have eyes;
And deaf, although they have ears.
Let all the nations be gathered together, 9
And let the peoples be assembled.
Who among them can declare this;
And tell us what first shall come to pass?
Let them produce their witnesses that they may be justified:
Or let them hear and say, This is true.
Ye are my witnesses, saith Jehovah; 10
My servants, whom, I have chosen:
That ye may know, and believe me,
And understand that I am the true God.
Before me no God was formed;
And after me shall not any exist.
I, even I only, am Jehovah; 11
And besides me there is no Saviour.
I declared my purpose, and have saved: 12
I have made it known, and no strange god among you: [I am God.
Ye are my witnesses, saith Jehovah, that Yea, before time was, I am God, [and: 13
And there is none that can rescue out of my
I will work, and who can hinder me?
Thus saith Jehovah, your Redeemer, the 14
Holy One of Israel;
For your sake have I sent unto Babylon;
And I will bring down all her strong bars,
And the Chaldeans exulting in their ships:
I am Jehovah, your Holy One; 15
The Creator of Israel, your King.
Thus saith Jehovah, who made a way 16
in the sea,
And a path in the mighty waters;
Who brought forth the rider and the horse, 17
The army, even the mighty host;
Together they lay down, they rose no more;
They were extinguished—quenched like tow.
Remember no more the former things, 18
And things of ancient times regard not:
Behold! I am about to do a new thing; 19
Now it shall spring forth, will ye not regard it?
Yea, I will make in the wilderness a way;
In the desert send forth streams of water.
The wild beasts of the field shall glorify me; 20
The dragons and daughters of the ostrich;
Because I have given waters in the desert,
And streams of water in the wilderness;

22. But this is For their violation of the law they have been expelled their country and made a prey to their enemies. The prophet charges their guilt on them with great propriety, that they might be brought to repentance.

CHAR. XLIII. 1. Thy Creator] Who made thee his own nation, and in the constitution of thy government showed thee peculiar favour.

3. For thy ransom] This may mean that God had often saved, and would still save them at the expense of other nations. Comp. ch. xiv. 14.

8, 9. The people who are blind] What is here said refers to the Gentiles, Rom. i. 20. The prophet challenges them to bring proof of the divinity of their idols.

10—13. My witnesses] That is, the witnesses of my divinity.

14. Exulting in their ships] Babylon was anciently a great naval power, being open to the Persian gulf by the Euphrates; and by the royal river it was joined to the Tigris.

16—21. A way in the sea] The subject of the exodus from Egypt is introduced with great elegance; but the Jews should forget it, for joy on their deliverance from Babylon.

- To give drink to my people, my chosen.
 21 This people have I formed for myself;
 They shall show forth my praise.
 22 But thou hast not called on me, O Jacob;
 "Nor" hast thou laboured for me, O Israel.
 23 Thou broughtest not to me the lamb of thy burnt-offering;
 Nor didst thou honour me with thy sacrifices.
 I have not burdened thee with oblations;
 Nor wearied thee with requiring incense:

The promise of the spirit, and the effects of it described; the vanity of idols, and folly of those who made them; Cyrus named as the deliverer of the Jews.

- 1 But hear now, O Jacob, my servant,
 And Israel whom I have chosen:
 2 Thus saith Jehovah, who made and formed
 thee,
 And from the womb hath helped thee:
 Fear thou not, O my servant Jacob,
 And Jeshurun, whom I have chosen.
 3 For I will pour out waters on the thirsty
 land:
 And flowing streams on the dry ground:
 I will pour out my spirit upon thy seed,
 And my blessing upon thine offspring.
 4 And they shall spring up as the herbage;
 As willows beside the streams of water.
 5 One shall say, I belong to Jehovah;

22—24. Hast not called] God reminds them how unworthy they were of any of his favours. They had not honoured him with the offerings which he had required; but had burdened him with their sins and crimes.—(v) Sept.
 Vulg.

25. Remind me] If my charge be not just, prove it to be so; let any one judge between you and me.

27. The high priest] That he is intended is manifest by the next hemistich; for thy teachers, or interpreters, signifies the priests, whose office it was to teach. The chief priest is called father to denote his dignity and rank. Comp.
 Judg. xvii. 10; xviii. 19; and 2 Kings ii. 12; xiii. 14.

 were made by fire, or by staining upon the hand or some other part of the body. The slave was marked with the

 All they who form a graven image, do 9 a vain thing,
 And their most desirable works cannot profit.
 Yea these bear witness unto them,
 As they can neither see nor know:
 That they may be ashamed, who form a god, 10
 And set up a graven image that cannot profit.
 Behold! all his associates shall be ashamed; 11
 For the artificers themselves are but men:

 Yet shall they fear and be ashamed together.

 ator, with the name or ensign of his god. And the Christians seem to have imitated this practice, by what Procopius says on this place of Isaiah: 'Because many marked their wrists, or their arms, with the name of Christ.'

9. Most desirable works] Those idols formed of the richest materials, and executed in the finest style.

10. That they may] With Lowth I join יבשר to this verse, and follow the Syr. Sept. and Arab. in reading the verbs in the plural.

11. Are but men] The preposition is only intensive; and thus without attributing an unusual sense, a clear and coherent sense is obtained.

12—20. The smith] The sacred writers are generally large and eloquent upon the subject of idolatry: they treat it with great severity, and set forth the absurdity of it in the strongest light.

- 14 He heweth down cedars for his use ;
He taketh the pine and the terebinth,
And prepareth for himself the trees of the forest. [eth it ;
He planteth an ash, and the rain nourish-15 That it may be for the use of man, for fuel :
And he taketh thereof, and warmeth himself ;
Yea, he kindleth it, and baketh bread :
He also formeth a god, and worshippeth it ;
He maketh a graven image, and to it boweth down.
- 16 A part of it he burneth in the fire ; [eth :
And with a part he dresseth flesh and eat-
He roasteth meat, and is satisfied ;
He also warmeth himself and saith ;
Ah ! I am warmed ; I feel the flame ;
- 17 Yet of the remainder he maketh a god,
His graven image, and to it he boweth,
And worshippeth and prayeth to it, and saith,
Deliver me, for thou art my god.
- 18 They know not, nor do they understand ;
Truly their eyes are closed, they cannot see,
And their heart, that they cannot perceive :
- 19 And none considereth in his heart,
Nor hath knowledge or understanding to say,
A part of it I have burned in the fire ;
On its embers I have also baked bread ;
I have roasted flesh and have eaten,
And shall I make the remainder an abomination ?
Shall I bow down to the stock of a tree ?
- 20 He feedeth on ashes ; a deluded heart
leadeth him astray,
So that he cannot deliver his soul, nor say,
Is there not a lie in my right hand ?
- 21 Remember these things, O Jacob,
And thou Israel ; for thou art my servant :
I formed thee ; a servant for me art thou ;
O Israel by me thou shalt not be forgotten.
- 22 I have blotted out thy transgression as a cloud,
And thy sins as the thick cloud ;
Return to me ; for I have redeemed thee.
- 23 Sing, O ye heavens, for Jehovah hath done it ;
Shout, ye lower parts of the earth ;
Burst forth into a song, O ye mountains ;
Thou forest, and every tree therein !
For Jehovah hath redeemed Jacob,
And glorified himself in Israel.
- 24 Thus saith Jehovah, thy Redeemer ;
Even he that formed thee from the womb :
I Jehovah am he who maketh all things :
Who stretcheth out the heavens alone ;
- Who spreadeth out the earth by myself :
He, who frustrateth the signs of impostors, 25
And maketh diviners mad ;
Who turneth the wise men backward,
And maketh foolish their knowledge :
Who establisheth the word of his servant, 26
And performeth the counsel of his messengers : [habited ;
Who saith to Jerusalem, Thou shalt be in-
And to the cities of Judah, Ye shall be rebuilt ;
And her desolate places I will restore :
Who saith to the deep, Be thou wasted ; 27
And I will make dry (Babylon) thy rivers :
Who saith of Cyrus, He is my shepherd ! 28
And he shall perform all my pleasure ;
Even saying to Jerusalem, Thou shalt be rebuilt ; [be laid.
And to the temple, Thy foundation shall

CHAPTER XLV.

The commission given to Cyrus against Babylon, in order to deliver and restore the Jews ; an account of his success, with suitable admonitions.

- THUS saith Jehovah of his anointed ; 1
Of Cyrus, whose right hand I hold fast,
That I may subdue nations before him,
And ungird the loins of kings :
That I may open before him the valves :
And the gates shall not be shut.
I myself will march on before thee, 2
And will make the crooked places straight ;
The valves of brass will I break asunder,
And the bars of iron will I hew down.
And I will give to thee treasures of dark- 3
ness,
And stores deeply hidden in secret places :
That thou mayest know, that I Jehovah,
That calleth thee by thy name, am the God of Israel.
For the sake of Jacob, my servant, 4
And of Israel, my chosen one,
I have even called thee by thy name : [not.
I have surnamed thee, yet me thou knowest
I am Jehovah, and there is none else ; 5
There is no God besides me :
I girded thee, though thou dost not know me : [sun,
That they may know, from the rising of the 6
And from the west, that there is none besides me :
I am Jehovah, and there is none else ;
I form the light, and create darkness ; 7
I make peace, and create evil :

20. He feedeth on] He feedeth on that which affordeth no nourishment : a proverbial expression for using ineffectual means, and bestowing labour to no purpose, chap. xii. 1.
23—28. Sing, O ye] The prophet sees the accomplishment of God's designs ; and calls on the heavens and the earth to rejoice.

27. Make dry, O Babylon] Cyrus took Babylon by laying the bed of the Euphrates dry, and leading his army into the city by night, through the empty channel of the river. This remarkable circumstance, in which the event so exactly corresponded with the prophecy, was also noted by Jeremiah, Jer. l. 38 ; li. 36.

CHAP. XLV. 1. Of his anointed] He is called anointed, to denote his office as king. By this term the Jews would understand that he was to be a king. God describes him as his instrument in all his successes and achievements.

I, Jehovah, do all these things.
 6 Drop down from on high, ye heavens ;
 Let the skies also pour down righteousness :
 Let the earth open, and produce salvation,
 And let righteousness spring up together :
 I, Jehovah, have created it.
 9 Wo to him that striveth with his Maker !
 The potsherd with the moulder of clay.
 Shall clay say to the potter, What makest thou ?
 And 'to the workman,' thou hast no hands !
 10 Wo to him that saith to a father, What begettest thou ? [forth ?
 And to a mother, What dost thou bring 11 Thus saith Jehovah, the Holy One of Israel ; [come :
 He 'who formeth' the things which are to
 'Do ye ask' me concerning my children,
 And direct me as to the works of my hands ?
 12 I made the earth and created man,
 My hands have stretched out the heavens ;
 And to all their host I have given command :
 13 I have raised him up in righteousness,
 And all his ways I will make straight.
 He shall build my city, and release my captives ; [hosts.
 Not for price, nor reward, saith Jehovah of 14 Thus saith Jehovah, [Cush,
 The wealth of Egypt, and merchandise of
 And the Sabeans, men tall of stature,
 Shall come over to thee, and shall be thine :
 They shall follow thee, and in chains pass

 To thee they shall bow down, and be sup-
 They shall say, Verily, God is with thee ;
 And there is none else, no other 'God :' 15 Verily, thou art a God that hidest thyself,
 O God of Israel, the Saviour !
 16 They are ashamed, yea, they are confounded,
 "His adversaries," all of them together ;
 The makers of idols depart in confusion.

But Israel shall be saved by Jehovah, 17
 With an everlasting salvation :
 Ye shall not be ashamed nor confounded,
 Even to the ages of eternity.
 For thus saith Jehovah, 18
 Who created the heavens ; He is God :
 Who formed the earth and made it ;
 He who hath established it :
 Neither did he create it that it should be empty,
 But formed it to be inhabited ;
 I am Jehovah, and there is none besides :
 I have not spoken in secret places ; 19
 In the dark recesses of the earth ;
 I have not said to the seed of Jacob,
 Seek ye me in vain :
 I am Jehovah, who speak righteousness ;
 I declare future events, in plain terms.
 Assemble yourselves together and come ; 20
 Gather together, ye escaped of the nations.
 Ignorant are they who carry about carved
 wood ;
 Who pray to a god that cannot save.
 Publish it abroad ; let them draw near ; 21
 Yea, let them consult together :
 Who hath made this known long before ?
 Who hath declared it from the first ?
 Is it not I, Jehovah, besides whom there is no God ? [sides me.
 A just God and a Saviour ; there is none be-Look to me and be saved, all ye ends of the 22
 earth ;
 For I am God, and there is none else.
 By myself I have sworn, saith Jehovah ; 23
 Truth is gone forth from my mouth ;
 The word which shall not be revoked :
 Surely to me shall every knee bow ;
 "To God" every tongue shall swear, saying,
 Only in Jehovah is righteousness and 24 strength.
 To him 'they shall come,' and be ashamed,
 Even all that are incensed against him ;

8. Drop down] Comp. Ps. lxxxv. 10—14. These images may perhaps be primarily understood, as designed to set forth the happy state of God's people restored to their country ; but they must chiefly refer to the blessings of the great redemption by Messiah.

9. Wo to him] The prophet answers or prevents the cavils of the unbelieving Jews, in permitting them to be oppressed by their enemies, and in promising them deliverance instead of preventing their captivity, Rom. ix. 20, 21.—(v) Houbig.

10. Saith to a father] As it would be highly absurd for a child to quarrel with its parents because it was born an infant, and not a man ; so is it for any to quarrel with the conduct of the great parent of the universe.

11. Do ye ask me] That is, any of my people. Do ye inquire what I am about to do with you, and pretend to direct me how I am to treat the work of my hands ?—(v) Sept.

14. Wealth of Egypt] On the rebuilding of the temple, some of the surrounding nations sent gifts to the God of Israel ; but the spirit of the passage was only fulfilled in the admission of the Gentiles into the church. Conip. lxxviii. 31, and 1 Cor. xiv. 25.—(v) Sept.

15—17. Hidest thyself] That is, as to thy counsels and designs. This is the language of the prophet, admiring him or those discoveries which he had made ; and in the following verses, while he predicts the downfall of idolatry, he foretells the spiritual and great salvation which God would effect for his chosen.—(a) Sept.

19. In secret places] This is said in opposition to the manner in which the heathen oracles gave their answers ; which were generally delivered from some deep and obscure cavern.—Seek ye me in vain] So did the heathens seek to their gods.

20, 21. Assemble] The prophet addresses those Gentiles who had renounced their idols and become worshippers of the only true God.

22. Look to me] Jehovah being the only God and Saviour, in great mercy invites all nations to look to him with hope and confidence, that they might be saved.

23. Truth is gone] So the term signifies in this place, because it is said to go forth from the mouth, and is clearly parallel with the word in the next line. The Sept. so distinguish the members of the sentence ; preserving the elegance of the construction, and the clearness of the sense.—To God every] The reading of the Sept. is adopted, supported by the authority of the apostle, Rom. xiv. 11.

24. Is righteousness] Considering what is said by the 25 But in Jehovah all the seed of Israel

Shall be justified, and shall glory.

The ruin of Babylon and her idols ; God's love and faithfulness to his people ; idols not to be compared with him.

The images of their gods are laid on the beasts ;
And on their cattle is the burden of them ;
A grievous weight to the weary beast.
- 2 They crouched, they bowed down together :
They could not deliver their own charge ;
Even they themselves are gone into captivity.
- 3 Hearken unto me, O house of Jacob ;
All ye the remnant of the house of Israel :
Ye have been borne by me from the birth ;
Ye have been carried from the womb.
- 4 And even to your old age, I am the same ;
And even to hoary hairs I will carry you.
I have made, and I will bear you ;
I will carry and will deliver you.

Or compare me, that we may be alike ?

I will give in Zion salvation to Israel my

CHAPTER XLVII.

God's judgments on Babylon, for her oppression, pride, and arrogance.

- DESCEND, and sit in the dust, 1
O virgin daughter of Babylon ;
Sit on the ground, without a throne,
O daughter of the Chaldeans :
For thou shalt no longer be called
The tender and the delicate.
- Take the mill and grind the corn : 2
Uncover thy locks, disclose thy flowing hair ; Make bare thy legs ; wade through the rivers,
Thy nakedness shall be uncovered ; 3
Yea, thy shame shall be seen :
I myself will take vengeance upon thee ;
I will suffer no man to intercede with me.
- As for our Redeemer, Jehovah of hosts, 4
The Holy One of Israel, is his name.
Sit thou in silence, go into darkness, 5
Daughter of the Chaldeans ;
For thou shalt no longer be called
The lady of the kingdoms.
- I was enraged against my people ; 6
And I profaned my heritage ;
I gave them up into thy hand ;
Thou didst not show mercy unto them :
On the aged thou madest very heavy thy yoke. [ever :
And thou saidst, I shall be a lady for 7
Thou didst not lay these things to heart ;

speaker that he is a just God and a Saviour, &c. it is clear that the whole is descriptive of the person and work of the Lord Jesus.—To him they All his adversaries, those who reject him and abide in unbelief, shall be exposed to shame ; while all the seed of Israel, all believers of whatever people, shall be justified, and glory in his holy and blessed name, Rom. ix. 6 ; xi. 16 ; Gal. vi. 16. (v) Vers. MSS.

CHAP. XLVI. 1. Bel—Nebo The former was the chief idol of the Babylonians, called by profane writers Jupiter Belus. He seems to have been the same as the Baal of the Canaanites. Nebo, an idol which gave oracles, as the name is supposed to signify.

2. They crouched That is, both the beasts and the idols which they carried.—Their own charge Their own worshippers.

8. Show yourselves men Consider the vanity of idols, ye transgressors among my people.

11. The eagle This rendering is adopted because we are certain that the ensign of Cyrus was a golden eagle, and because that the eagle is the chief of the class of rapacious birds, Ezek. xvii. 2.—Man of my counsel That is, appointed to execute it.—(v) Versions, MSS.

13. Bring near my I am ready to fulfil my promises ; soon will it appear that I am a righteous and faithful God. —In Zion The salvation, being after their return from Babylon, implies that their surrounding foes should not prevail against them.

CHAP. XLVII. 1. Virgin-daughter Babylon is called the daughter of the Chaldeans, because built and enlarged by them.

2. Take the mill This represents the slavery of the Chaldeans. It was the work of female slaves to grind the corn. See Exod. xi. 5 ; xii. 29.

3. To intercede The meaning is, that God would on no account spare her.

6. Didst show them God employs one wicked nation to scourge another. The inflicter of the punishment may perhaps be as culpable as the sufferer. When he has fulfilled the work to which the divine vengeance has ordained him, he will become himself the object of it.

- Thou didst not think on what might befall thee."
- 8 But hear now this, O thou voluptuous,
Thou that sittest in security;
Thou that sayest in thy heart, I am,
And there is none besides me;
I shall not sit solitary as a widow;
I shall not know the loss of children.
- 9 Yet these two things shall come upon thee,
In a moment, on the same day,
'The loss of children and widowhood;
'On a sudden' shall they come upon thee,
Notwithstanding the multitude of thy sorceries,

And the great abundance of thine enchantment.]
- 10 But thou hast trusted in thy wickedness,
And saidst, No one seeth me: [thee;
Thy wisdom and knowledge have perverted
So that thou hast said in thy heart, I am,
And there is none besides me.
- 11 Therefore calamity shall come upon thee,
Thou shalt not know how to remove it;
And mischief shall befall thee;—
Thou shalt not be able to expiate it;
And desolation shall come upon thee suddenly,
Of which thou shalt have no apprehension.
- 12 Persist now in thine enchantments;
And in the multitude of thy sorceries,
In which thou hast laboured from thy youth,
If peradventure thou mayest be profited;
If thou mayest be strengthened by them.
- 13 Thou art wearied with thy many counsels:
Let them stand up now and save thee;
The observers of the heavens, the star-gazers,
They that prognosticate at every new moon,
What events shall come upon thee.
- 14 Lo! they shall be as stubble; the fire shall burn them: [flame;
They shall not deliver themselves from the

Every one wandereth, that he may escape;
Nor is there any of them who can save thee.

7. Might befall thee] Hebrew, 'on thy latter end.' The sense is preferred.—(v) Sept. Syr.

9. On a sudden] This is the reading of the Sept. and Syr. By widowhood is meant that she should be deprived of her king, as well as her people. It is well known that the Chaldeans were much addicted to astrology, and other superstitious arts, and in the knowledge of these they greatly prided themselves.

14. Shall be as stubble] The star-gazers and other prognosticators should not be able to save themselves, but should fall in the common destruction.

CHAP. XLVIII. 1. From the waters of Judah] Comp. Deut. xxxiii. 28, and Ps. lxxviii. 27.—Swear by the name] By thus acknowledging him to be God, the searcher of the heart; yet many did this without believing what they said.

2. From the holy city] They boasted that they were the

CHAPTER XLVIII.

The people reprov'd for their obstinacy; God's salvation a motive to obedience; their deliverance again foretold.

- HEAR this, O house of Jacob;
Ye who are called by the name of Israel
Ye that flow from the waters of Judah;
Ye that swear by the name of Jehovah,
And acknowledge the God of Israel;
But not in truth nor in righteousness:
From the holy city they take their name, 2
And on the God of Israel lean for support:
Jehovah of hosts is his name.

Lest thou shouldst say, Lo! I knew them.

citizens of Jerusalem, and they expected that Jehovah, on account of his temple, would always preserve it.

6. What things] The relative is understood as it frequently is; and with the Syriac and the manuscripts, read לכל. God appeals to themselves in respect to what they had heard and seen done.—New things] New events respecting the desolation of their country, their captivity, and their deliverance by Cyrus.

8. Thine ear was not opened] That is, nothing relating to this subject was revealed to thee. So the phrase signifies, 1 Sam. ix. 15, and 2 Sam. vii. 27.

10. But not as silver] Silver requires a considerable degree of heat as well as proper fluxes to purify it completely; but God had not exposed his people to the fire of his anger in so great a degree, but in wrath had remembered mercy.

11. I do it] What? God had cast them into the fur-

CHAPTER XLIX.

The Messiah, rejected by the Jews, is sent to the Gentiles; promises made to them; God's love to his church, its deliverance and great enlargement.

HEARKEN to me, O ye distant lands; 1
And attend, ye peoples, from afar:
Jehovah from the womb hath called me;
From my birth he hath mentioned my name.
My mouth he hath made as a sharp sword; 2
In the shadow of his hand he hath hid me:
Yea, he hath made me a polished shaft;
In his quiver he laid me up in store.
And he said unto me, Thou art my servant; 3
ISRAEL, in whom I will be glorified.
And I said, I have laboured in vain; 4
For nought and vanity have I spent my strength:
Nevertheless my cause is with Jehovah,
And the reward of my work with my God.
And now "thus" saith Jehovah, [servant; 5
Who formed me from the womb to be his
To bring back again Jacob unto him,
And that Israel unto him may be gathered:
(Therefore am I glorious in the eyes of Jehovah,
And my God is become my strength:)
It is a small thing, said he unto me, 6
That thou shouldst be my servant,
To raise up the stems of Jacob,
And to restore the branches of Israel:
I will even give thee for a light to the Gentiles,
To be my salvation to the end of the earth.
Thus saith Jehovah, 7
The Redeemer of Israel, his Holy One;
To him whose person is despised;
To him, whom the nation abhorreth;
To him who is the subject of rulers:

nance of affliction, and for his own sake he will do as he said, bring them out of it.—(a) Sept. 1 MS.

14. He, loved] Or he whom; so Symmachus, who has given the genuine construction of the text.—(v) MSS.

16. Draw near to me] God is the speaker in the three first lines of this verse, as he is unquestionably in the preceding verses.—And now Jehovah] Having spoken in the name and person of Jehovah, the prophet in this hemistich assures the Jews that Jehovah had sent him, and by his Spirit inspired him to declare these things.

18. Thy recompense] As צדקה, sin, is often used for the punishment of sin, so צדקה is used for the reward or recompense of righteousness: compare Gen. xxx. 33.

19. As that of its bowels] So the interlinear version; and many others adopt it. The common rendering, gravel, is unsupported by any authority.—(v) Sept.

21. They thirsted not] The prophet predicts the love and care of God towards his people, in their return from Babylon, by alluding to the miracles wrought for their fathers. Compare ch. lxi. 17, 18.

22. No peace, saith] To those who do not obey the divine command to depart out of Babylon. Let not such expect peace and prosperity.

CHAP. XLIX. 1. Hearken to me, O ye distant] Here Messiah is introduced in person, declaring the full extent of his commission, which is not only to restore the Israelites, but to be a light to enlighten the Gentiles, to call them to the knowledge and obedience of the true God.

2. Sharp sword] Compare Rev. i. 16; Heb. iv. 12. The Messiah is called Israel, (prince with God,) to denote his powerful and prevailing intercession, as founded on his sacrifice, for mankind.

4. Laboured in vain] That is, he did not see those fruits which might in all reason be expected, but he knew that his work would be both acceptable and amply rewarded in the end.—5. (a) Versions, MSS.

6. It is a small thing] A light or mean thing that so glorious a person should be sent to one inconsiderable nation; no, my design, saith Jehovah, is to give thee to instruct mankind, and save all nations.

7. Whose person is despised] He was, in fact, abhorred

 And thy land which is laid in ruins,
 Shall even now be straightened with inhabitants ; [away.
 And they that devoured thee shall be far
 The sons, of those of whom thou art become 20
 Shall yet say in thine ears [reaved,
 This place is become too strait for me ;
 Make room for me that I may dwell.
 And thou shalt say in thy heart, 21
 Who hath begotten me these ?
 I was bereaved of my children and solitary ;
 An exile and outcast ; who hath nursed up these ? [these ?
 Lo ! I was left alone ; where then were
 Thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; 22
 Lo ! I will lift up my hand to the nations ;
 And to the peoples will I exalt my signal ;
 And they shall bring thy sons in their bosom,
 And thy daughters shall be borne on the shoulder :
 And kings shall be thy foster-fathers, 23
 And their queens thy nursing mother ;
 They shall bow down to thee to the earth ;
 And they shall lick up the dust of thy feet.
 And thou shalt know that I am Jehovah ;
 And they that trust in me shall not be ashamed.
 Shall the spoil be taken from the mighty ? 24
 Or the prey "seized by the terrible" be rescued-
 Yea, thus saith Jehovah ; [cued ? 25
 Even the prey of the mighty shall be retaken ;
 And the spoil of the terrible shall be taken :
 For I will contend with them that contend with thee,
 And I myself will save thy children.
 And I will gorge thine oppressors with their 26 own flesh, [they shall be drunk :
 And with their own blood, as with new wine,

by the Jewish nation, and crucified. He was the subject of rulers, paying tribute to Cæsar, Matt. xvii. 24, 25 ; and yielding obedience to the rulers of Israel, and teaching his disciples to do so, Matt. xxiii. 2.—Kings shall see] The time will come, when even kings shall regard thee, as the prophet, priest, and king of the church.

8—12. In an acceptable] If this be spoken to Messiah, as he only is given for a covenant-ratifier to the people, the whole paragraph must regard the conversion of the Gentiles.

9, 10. Feed beside] The good shepherd having recovered the lost sheep, will take care of them, and lead them to green pastures, and to springs of water.

11, 12. A way] Every impediment shall be removed ; and from all lands God's people shall be gathered.—Sinim] Michaelis contends that 𐤑𐤍, Ezek. xxx. 15, 16, signifies Syene ; and he supposes that the land of Sinim signifies the land beyond it.

13—21. Sing, O ye heavens] The desponding language of Zion, and the answer given ; the great increase and vast enlargement of the church, however they might apply to the Jewish, in a much greater degree apply to the Christian church.—15. (v) Sept. Vulg. Arab.

16. On the palms] See note on chap. xlv. 5.

17. Thy builders] The Vulg. and Targum render to this purpose, which gives the best sense.—Thy destroyers] The version of the Sept. supports the construction of the text, which is followed—Shall be thine offspring] Those nations which have oppressed thee shall, when converted, regard thee with as much affection as thy own offspring do.

18. (a) Sept.

19—21. Thy waste] These verses refer both to the restoration of the Jews, and the calling of the Gentiles into the church.

22, 23. To the nations] Many Persian kings showed favour to the Jews, and restored them, and aided them in rebuilding their holy city and temple ; but this has been more fully accomplished under the gospel.

24. Shall the spoil] This may be considered as the language of some of the Jews. In the following verses the God of Israel replies, that he will do what he hath spoken.—(v) Syr. Vulg.

And all flesh shall know, that I Jehovah am thy Saviour, [rael.
And thy Redeemer, the mighty One of Is-

CHAPTER L

The Jews put away for their sin and unbelief; an exhortation to trust in God.

- 1 THUS saith Jehovah :
Where is the bill of your mother's divorce,
By which I put her away? [I sold you?
Or who is he among my creditors to whom Behold! for your iniquities are ye sold;
And for your sins is your mother put away.
- 2 Wherefore came I, and there was no man?
Wherefore called I, and none answered?
Is my hand enfeebled that it cannot redeem?
And have I no power to deliver?
Behold! at my rebuke I make dry the sea;
I make also the rivers a wilderness:
Their fish 'is dried up' for want of water,
And dieth away for thirst.
- 3 I clothe the heavens with blackness,
And sackcloth I make their covering.
- 4 The Lord Jehovah hath given to me
The tongue of the learned,
That I might know how to speak
A seasonable word to the weary.
He wakeneth morning after morning;
He wakeneth mine ear, to attend 'as a learner."
- 5 The Lord Jehovah hath opened mine ear,
And I was not rebellious;
Neither did I withdraw myself backward.
- 6 I gave my back to the smiters,
And my cheeks to them that plucked off
the hair:
My face I hid not from shame and spitting.
- 7 For the Lord Jehovah ever helpeth me;
Therefore I am not confounded:
Therefore have I set my face as a flint;
And I know that I shall not be ashamed.
- 8 He who justifieth me, is near at hand:

CHAP. L. 1. Bill of your] God had espoused the seed of Abraham, and they had become his, as it were, by a marriage contract. By mother, is meant the Jewish church and state, to which the people stood related, as children to a mother. God had, however, for their sins, given them a bill of divorce, and put them away; but could not the husband receive again his repudiated wife? Could not those slaves be redeemed?

2. Wherefore came I] Jehovah came to his people by his prophets, and yet there were comparatively none who received his word and obeyed it.—Is my hand] These questions, and what follows, show, that nothing is impossible for God to effect.—(v) Sept. 1 MS.

4—9. Tongue of the] If what is here said may be applied to Isaiah, it may also with more justice and propriety be applied to him who spoke as never man spoke.—(v) Versions.

5. Withdraw myself] He did not shrink from the office committed to him, nor from the duties of it, however arduous.

6. I gave my back] Compare Matt. xxvii. 26.—From shame] Matt. xxvii. 67. and Numb. xii. 14, and note.

Who will contend with me? let us stand forth together: [against me.
Who is mine adversary? let him come Behold! the Lord Jehovah ever helpeth me. 9
Who is he that shall condemn me?
Lo! all of them shall wax old as a garment;
The moth-worm shall consume them.
Who is there among you that feareth Jeho- 10
vah?
Let him hearken unto the voice of his servant :
That walketh in darkness, and hath no light?
Let him trust in the name of Jehovah,
And rest for support on his God.
Behold! all ye who kindle a fire; 11
Who heap the fuel round about :
Walk ye in the light of your fire,
And of the fuel which ye have kindled.
This shall ye have at my hand ;
Ye shall lie down in sorrow.

CHAPTER LI.

From what God did to Abraham, the Jews are encouraged to trust his promises, especially those relating to Messiah: assuring them that then they should be saved.

- HEARKEN to me, ye that follow righte- 1
ousness ;
Ye that seek Jehovah :
Look to the rock, whence ye were hewn ;
To the hollow pit, whence ye were digged.
Look to Abraham, your father, 2
And to Sarah that brought you forth :
Verily I called him, being a single person ;
And I blessed him, and I multiplied him.
Thus also shall Jehovah comfort Zion ; 3
He shall comfort all her desolate places :
And he shall make her wilderness like Eden, [vah :
And her desert like the garden of Jeho-
Joy and gladness shall be found in her ;
Thanksgiving, and the voice of melody.
Attend to me, 'O ye peoples ;' 4
And give ear to me, 'O ye nations :'

They treated him with every mark of scorn and contempt.

7. Ever helpeth me] The future is used in an intensive (frequentative) sense, implying that God was wont to help him at all times.—My face as a flint] Compare Ezek. iii. 8, 9. However Messiah might be treated, yet would he not shrink, but finally triumph.

8, 9. Justifieth me] Our Lord was assured that though men might condemn him, yet the father would accept his person and work, Rom. viii. 33—35.

10. Who is there] Now the humble and lowly are encouraged.

11. Kindle a fire] The fire of their own kindling, is an image designed to express, in general, human devices, and mere worldly policy, exclusive of faith and trust in God.

CHAP. LI. 1—3. Ye that follow] The few Jews who returned to their own land wonderfully increased and prospered in it; and on their rejection for crucifying the Lord of glory, the few believers soon became an innumerable company.

4. Ye peoples] So the Syr. and MSS. and the address is not to the Jews but to the Gentiles.

- For the law from me shall proceed ;
And my judgment I will make to break
For a light to the peoples. [forth,
- 5 My righteousness is near—my salvation
goeth forth ;
And mine arm shall judge the peoples :
To me shall distant lands look in hope,
And on mine arm shall they rely.
- 6 Raise your eyes to the heavens above,
And look down to the earth beneath :
Verily the heavens shall dissolve as smoke,
And the earth wax old, like a garment,
And its inhabitants perish as a gnat ;
But my salvation shall endure for ever,
And my righteousness shall not decay.
- 7 Harken to me, ye that know righteousness ;
The people in whose heart is my law :
Fear not the reproach of mortals ;
Neither be ye terrified by their revilings :
- 8 For as a moth-worm a garment, they shall be consumed, [voured :
And as a moth the wool, they shall be de-But my righteousness shall endure for ever,
And my salvation through all generations.

O arm of Jehovah ! [nerations.
Awake, as in the days of old, the ancient ge-
Art not thou the same that smote Rahab,
That wounded the crocodile ?
- 10 Art not thou the same that dried up the sea,
The waters of the great deep ?
That made the depths of the sea a path,
For the redeemed to pass through ?
- 11 Thus shall the ransomed of Jehovah return,
And come to Zion with the shout of triumph,
And everlasting joy shall crown their heads ;
Joy and gladness shall they obtain,
And sorrow and sighing shall flee away.
- 12 I, even I, am he that comforteth you :
Who art thou, that thou shouldst be afraid of a mortal that shall die ;
And of the son of man that shall become as grass ?
- 13 And shouldst forget Jehovah, thy Maker,
Who stretched out the heavens,
And laid the foundations of the earth ;
- And shouldst every day be in continual fear,
Because of the fury of the oppressor,
As if he were just ready to destroy :
And where now is the fury of the oppressor ?
He hasteneth on, who shall set free the cap- 14
That he may not die in the prison, [tive,
And that his bread may not fail.
For I am Jehovah, thy God, 15
That stilleth the sea when its waves roar ;
Jehovah of hosts is his name.
I have put my words in thy mouth, 16
And with the shadow of my hand covered thee ; [earth,
And I will plant the heavens and found the
And say to Zion, Thou art my people.
Awake, awake ; rise up, O Jerusalem ! 17
Who hast drunk from the hand of Jehovah
The cup of his fury :
The dregs of the cup of trembling [out.
Thou hast drunk—thou hast wrung them
There is not one to lead her of all the sons 18
Whom she hath brought forth ;
Not one to support her by the hand,
Of all the sons whom she hath nursed up.
These two things have befallen thee ; 19
Who shall bemoan thee ? [sword ;
Desolation and destruction ; famine and
Who shall comfort thee ? [street ;
Thy sons lie confounded, at the head of every 20
They are cast down, as a wild ox by the toils ;
They are filled with the fury of Jehovah ;
With the rebuke of thy God.
Wherefore, hear thou this, thou afflicted ; 21
And thou drunken, but not with wine.
Thus saith thy Lord Jehovah ; 22
And thy God, who defendeth his people :
Lo, I take from thy hand the cup of trembling ;
The dregs of the cup of my fury ;
Thou shalt drink of it again no more.
But I will put it into the hand of thine 23
oppressors,
Who say to thee, Bow down, that we may pass over thee ;
And thou hast laid thy back, as the ground ;
And as the street, to them that pass along.

5. My righteousness] The display of it by fulfilling my promise.

6. As a gnat] Compare Exod. viii. 17, and note.

9—11. Awake, awake] God's people now address him, to exert his power for their deliverance.—Wounded the crocodile] Rahab is given as a name to Egypt, on account of its pride ; and the crocodile as the symbol of Pharaoh ; Ps. lxxiv. 13, 14 ; lxxxvii. 4 ; Is. xxvii. 1.

12—16. Of a mortal] Jehovah shows how groundless the fears of Zion were, and that her oppressors would soon be no more.

14. He hasteneth on] In the literal sense Cyrus is intended, and in the spiritual, Messiah.

16. I have put my words] God is said to put his word not only in the mouth of his prophets, but of his people ;

Comp. ch. lix. 21, and Deut. xxx. 14.—And I will plant] Or firmly fix, &c. These words denote a change in the state of Zion, a kind of new creation, a new heaven, and a new earth. Compare ch. lxxv. 17 ; lxxvi. 22.

17—20. Awake] In this paragraph the prophet describes affectingly what Jerusalem had suffered, and how weak and unwise her people were, there being none to lead or to support her.

19. Two things] Lowth supposes the two things are desolation by famine and destruction by the sword ; of which form of construction there are many instances.

21. And thou drunken] The bold image of the cup of God's wrath, often employed by the sacred writers, (see note on chap. i. 22,) is no where handled with greater force and sublimity than in this passage of Isaiah ver. 17—23.

CHAPTER LII.

The happy state of God's redeemed people; their abundant joy on hearing the proclamation of mercy and freedom.

- 1 AWAKE, awake; put on thy glory, O Zion: [Ilem, Put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem—
The holy city!
For no more shall enter into thee,
The uncircumcised, and the polluted.
- 2 Shake thyself from the dust; rise up;
Sit on high, O Jerusalem:
Loose thyself from the bands of thy neck,
O captive daughter of Zion! [For nought:]
- 3 For thus saith Jehovah: Ye were sold
And not with silver shall ye be redeemed.
- 4 For thus saith the Lord Jehovah;
My people went down to Egypt, at first to sojourn there; [them—
And the Assyrian, at the last hath oppressed
- 5 And now, what have I here saith Jehovah?
Seeing my people are taken away for nought,
And they who rule over them, boast of it;
And my name every day is always despised.
- 6 Therefore shall my people know my name;
They shall know in that day that I am He;
Jehovah, who promised; here am I.
- 7 How beautiful appear on the mountains
The feet of him that bringeth good tidings,
Of him that proclaimeth peace!
Of him that bringeth good tidings of good,
And that proclaimeth salvation!—
That saith to Zion, Thy God reigneth!
- 8 The watchmen shall lift up their voice;
With their voice together they shall sing:
For with their own eyes shall they see,
That Jehovah restoreth Zion.
- 9 Burst forth into joy; sing together,
Ye waste places of Jerusalem!
For Jehovah hath comforted his people;

CHAP. LII. 1. Thy glory] That ו signifies glory, praise, as well as strength, is evident from the version of the Sept. and Arab.; and here it is used for what is glorious or splendid, and being connected with שׁוֹבֵב, can have no other sense.

2. Sit on high] Zion's daughter was represented as laid low, chap. li. 23; but now she is called to shake herself from the dust, to loose herself from her bonds, and as a free woman, as one possessed of dignity, to sit on the seat of honour.

3—6. Sold for nought] Jehovah suffered his people to be oppressed formerly in Egypt, but redeemed them, and brought them forth with joy; and will he not do the same for them again, for the glory of his own name?

7. How beautiful] This is the language of the prophet, describing how acceptable the very feet of the bearer of the glad tidings would be, though covered with sweat and dust. If this was literally true, on the return of the Jews from Babylon, how much more is it in respect to the gospel? Rom. x. 15.

8. With their own] This is the sense of 'seeing eye with eye.' The Targum thus paraphrases, 'For with their own eyes, they shall see what great things the Lord will do, when he shall bring back his majesty to Zion.' On Numb. xiv. 14, the Targum explains eye with eye, to mean their own eyes.

9, 10. Burst forth] These verses contain the song which the watchmen, the prophets, and ministers shall then sing. — v. 3 MSS.

11. Depart] The prophet, as if present, when the decree

He hath redeemed 'Israel.'

- Jehovah hath made bare his holy arm, 10
In the sight of all the nations:
And all the ends of the earth have seen
The salvation of our God.
Depart, depart, go ye out thence; 11
Touch no polluted thing:
Go ye out from the midst of her; be ye clean,
Ye who bear the vessels of Jehovah!
Verily not in haste shall ye go forth; 12
And not by flight shall ye march along:
For Jehovah shall march in your front;
And the God of Israel shall bring up your rear.

CHAPTER LIII.

A prophecy of the person of our Lord; the unbelief of the Jews; the sufferings of our Lord for the sins of men; the rewards promised to him.

- BEHOLD, my servant shall prosper, 13
He shall be raised, exalted, and be very high.
For as many were astonished at him; 14
His visage being more marred than that of any man,
And his form more than that of the sons of men: [der:
So shall many nations look on him with won- 15
Before him kings shall shut their mouths:
For what had not been told them, they shall see: [sider.
And what they had not heard shall they con-
"O Jehovah," who hath believed our report; 1
And to whom hath the arm of Jehovah been revealed?
For he groweth up in their sight as a sucker; 2
And like a root from a thirsty soil:
He hath no form nor beauty, that we should regard him; [him.
And no appearance that we should desire for their restoration was issued, cries to them, Depart! depart ye, and especially ye sons of Aaron, and Levites.

12. Not in haste] This shows that they should not be delivered in the manner their fathers were from Egypt.

13. Behold my servant] These verses are joined to the next chapter, as clearly belonging to it, as they refer to the same glorious but suffering person. Jehovah styles him his servant, and declares his honour and future exaltation.

14. For as many] The unbelieving Jews shall be astonished, and reject him with abhorrence; crucifying and disfiguring his countenance and form; yet shall the Gentiles look upon him with wonder, believing on him as the Saviour of the world.

15. Look on him] So the Sept. render.—Kings shall] Comp. Job xxix. 9—11. This implies their high regard for him, and supports the version of the Sept. in the preceding hemistich.

CHAP. LIII. 1. Who hath] This is the language of the prophet. 'But who hath believed what I have, and what I am about to report concerning him?' In this view our Lord refers to these words, John xii. 38, &c.; and Paul, Rom. x. 16.

2. Groweth up] That is, as any common shoot, so that he shall not be noticed.—Like a root] Which liveth and putteth forth branches, though fixed in so unfavourable a soil. Comp. ch. xi. 1.—No form nor beauty] He had not what the world calls form and beauty, the attire, the splendour, and the outward show, with which wealth and rank are attended.

- 3 He is despised and rejected of men ;
A man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief,
Like one that hideth "his face" from us !
He was despised, and we esteemed him not.
- 4 Surely our infirmities he hath borne,
And our sorrows he hath carried them ;
Yet we accounted him as one stricken,
As one smitten of God, and afflicted.
- 5 But he was wounded for our transgressions ;
He was bruised for our iniquities : [him,
The chastisement making our peace was on
And by his wounds we are healed.
- 6 We all of us, like sheep, have gone astray ;
We have turned aside, each to his own way,
And Jehovah hath caused to light on him
The punishment of the iniquities of us all.
- 7 It was exacted, and he was made answerable—
Yet he opened not his mouth : [ble ;
As a lamb he was led to the slaughter,
And as a sheep before her shearers, is dumb,
So he opened not his mouth.
- 8 In his low estate, his judgment was taken away, [describe ?
And the men of his generation who can
He was cut off from the land of the living ;
For the transgression of my people 'he was smitten to death."
- 9 And his grave is appointed with the wicked ;
But with the rich man is his sepulchre.
Although he had done no wrong,
Neither was guile found in his mouth ;
- 10 Yet it pleased Jehovah to crush him "with pain."
When his soul shall be made a sin-offering,

He shall see his seed, he shall prolong his days,
And the pleasure of Jehovah shall prosper
in his hands. [be satisfied,
He shall see of the travail of his soul, and 11
By the knowledge of himself, the righteous one,
My servant, shall justify many ; [borne.
For the punishment of their iniquities he hath 'Therefore I will give him the great as a 12 portion ,
And the mighty, he shall possess as a spoil,
Because he poured out his soul unto death ;
And was numbered with the transgressors :
Yea, he bore the sins of many,
And made intercession for the transgressors.

CHAPTER LIV.

The blessings and increase of the church by the calling of the Gentiles ; the support and preservation thereof.

SING for joy, thou barren, that didst not 1 bear ;
Burst forth into joyful shouting, and exult,
Thou that didst not travail with child ;
For more are the children of the desolate,
'Than of the married woman, saith Jehovah.
Enlarge the place of thy tent ; 2
And let thy dwelling-curtains be extended :
Spare not ; lengthen thy cords, and firmly fix thy stakes. [thou break forth ;
For on the right hand, and on the left, shalt 3
And thy seed shall inherit the nations,
And shall inhabit the desolate cities.
Fear not ; for thou shalt not be ashamed ; 4

3. Like one that] Mourners covered up the lower part of their faces and hands, as we learn from 2 Sam. xv. 30; Ezek. xxiv. 17. I follow the Sept. and Vulg. and the context supports this rendering.

5. But he was wounded] This is said in opposition to what many thought. They conceived that he was a deceiver of the people and a blasphemer of God, and on this account justly condemned and crucified. No, says the prophet, he was wounded for our transgressions, &c.

6. To light on him] Or to rush upon him. It cannot have the sense of interceding in this connexion; nor does laid on him, give the full force of it. The marginal version, which Purver follows, is, 'caused to meet on him,' &c.—The punishment] This gives the full force of the term; and it is so rendered in the common version, Levit. xxvi. 41—43. and punishment, 1 Sam. xxviii. 10. See also 2 Kings vii. 9.

7. It was exacted] The verb נָשָׂא signifies to demand what is due from a debtor, Deut. xv. 2, 3. To exact service, Exod. iii. 7; v. 6, &c. This sense best suits here; it was exacted, the punishment due to the iniquities of man; and he was made answerable, as the surety is for the debtor.—Opened not] When he was made answerable before the Sanhedrim, and before Pilate, he made no defence; but submitted to what he knew to be the will of his Father, and to that death for which he was born. Compare Matt. xxvi. 57—63, and xxvii. 12—14; Mark xiv. 53—56, and xv. 3—6.—As a lamb] In the Sept. and Acts viii. 32, the words lamb and sheep have by some mistake changed places; and ought to be corrected according to the text here.

8. In his low estate] This is the version of the Sept. and Acts viii. 33. 'Judgment was taken away,' signifies that in his trial no regard was paid to justice, or that his integrity availed him nothing. Without the shadow of a proof of any crime he was condemned.—And the men] Literally, his generation, &c. Compare Matt. xi. 10. with Luke vii. 31, where this generation, in the former, is the same with the men of this generation, in the latter.—Was smitten to death] So the Sept. and the text is clearly defective.

9. Appointed with the wicked] In the two first lines Kennicott supposes the words נָשָׂא וְנִמְנָם, as he reads, have changed places, either by accident, or else by design. He has proved that many such transpositions have occurred. See his Diss. Lowth takes another method to reconcile the event and prophecy, and his version I have now adopted. See his note.—It pleased Jehovah] While the prophet describes the innocence of Messiah, he asserts the fact, that it pleased Jehovah thus to afflict and overwhelm him.

10. When his soul] Or his life, or himself; for נַפְשׁ signifies each of these; nor would any of these terms make any difference in the sense. The good shepherd laid down his life for the sheep: John x. 11. Gave himself for our sins; Gal. i. 4. From this verse to the conclusion Jehovah is evidently the speaker, and he promises that the sacrifice of the Messiah shall not be in vain.—(v) Vulg.

11. Of the travail] His sufferings, like the pains of child bearing, shall produce the fruit intended, so that he shall be satisfied.—By the knowledge] In support of this version, compare Gen. xvi. 5; my wrong, means the 'wrong done to me.' And Jerem. li. 35, it is rendered, 'the violence done to me.'—The righteous one.—This is in apposition with 'my servant,' and preserves the construction.

12. As a portion, the great] The version implies that he shall have dominion over the great and mighty, or over multitudes, and over the most powerful nations; and that he shall possess this dominion as the reward of his own sufferings.

CHAP. LIV. 1. Thou barren] The Jewish church had been married as it were to Jehovah, but its spiritual children were but few; but the Gentiles had been like a barren woman, a woman desolate; yet after Messiah's sufferings, they should become fruitful, and have a spiritual seed numerous as the stars of heaven.

2. Let thy curtains] This allusion to the manner in which

For the shame of thy youth thou shalt forget;
Nor remember more the reproach of thy

CHAP. LV. & LVI. The blessings of the gospel exhibited, and men invited to believe on the Saviour; the happy state of such as do believe; persons of all nations are admitted to the church.

Ho! every one that thirsteth, come to the 1 waters!
Ye that have no silver, come, buy and eat!
Yea, come, buy ye without silver;
And without price, wine and milk.
Why do ye spend silver for what is not bread, 2
And your labour for what satisfieth not?

And your soul shall feast on the best things.

Hearken, and your soul shall live;
And I will make with you a perpetual cove-

Behold! I give him for a witness to the 4 peoples;
A leader, and a lawgiver to the nations.
A nation whom thou knowest not, thou 5

Abraham and other patriarchs dwelt in tents, is beautiful, and highly poetic. Each tent must be made larger, and more tents must be fixed to receive and contain the increasing spiritual seed.

4. Thy widowhood] Seeker considers, that 'the shame of thy youth' refers to the bondage in Egypt, and widowhood to the captivity in Babylon. Comp. Gen. xli. 51; John xi. 16.

5. Thy maker is] This is mentioned both to show the love of God, and to assure them that he could and would fulfil his promises.

6. For as a woman] The Jews had the right of giving their wives a bill of divorce, and such women were forsaken and grieved in spirit; but the husband had the right, in certain cases, of recalling and restoring to them all their rights and privileges. So would God do to them.

7-10. In a little anger] These verses forcibly represent the design of God in suffering his people to be carried into captivity; and the great mercy reserved for the gospel-church.

8. (o) For a moment, Sept. Syr. 2 MSS.

9. (v) Vers. MSS.

11, 12. Distressed] It is a common idiom of the Hebrew to express the opposite of what is intended by the negative particle. 'Not good,' means 'evil,' and 'not right,' 'wrong.'—With sapphires] These seem to be general images to express beauty, strength, and solidity, and were never intended to be understood, as if they had each of them some precise moral or spiritual meaning. Compare Rev. xxi. 18-21. —(v) Sept.

13, 14. All thy children] This is true as it respects the gospel-church in a particular manner; all her children are taught of God. Compare Jer. xxxi. 34; John vi. 45; with Cor. ii. 10.

15. Lo! him] The term signifies to turn from what is just, to do injury to another. Comp. Ps. lix. 3, and lvi. 7.

17. In judgment] That is, thou shalt obtain thy cause.

CHAP. LV. 1. Ho! every one] Without distinction, whether rich or poor, Jew or Gentile.—Waters—wine—milk] By these natural blessings, the spiritual blessings of grace and salvation are exhibited. Compare ch. xxv. 6; Luke xiv. 10-24.—Buy ye without silver] That is, take, possess, and enjoy.

2. Is not bread] Why do you spend your property, and your strength, in seeking salvation elsewhere? It is impossible for you to succeed.

3. The mercies] This line is parallel with the preceding, and explains it. The covenant made with David, Ps. lxxxiv. 28, regarded the person of our Lord, who was to spring from him, and in whom the kingdom of peace and mercy was to be perpetual, Acts xiii. 34.

5. Thou knowest not] That is, if it be referred to the church, it may mean, nations literally unknown shall become God's people under the reign of Jesus.—(o) Behold] Sept. Syr.

O all ye beasts of the field, come away ; 9
Come to devour, all ye beasts of the forest !
His watchmen are blind ; they are all igno- 10

They are all dumb dogs, they cannot bark :
Dreamers, sluggards, loving to slumber.
Yea, these dogs have an insatiate appetite ; 11
They never know when to be satisfied.

6—9. Seek ye Jehovah] This call to repentance, after exhibiting the free blessings of the gospel, is similar to our Lord's address. Matt. iv. 17 ; Acts viii. 19.

10—13. Watereth] The beautiful comparison of the course of nature, with the operation of divine truth and grace, cannot fail to strike every reader of taste. Compare chap. xxxv. 1, 2 ; xli. 19.

CHAP. LVI. 1. My salvation is near] The time was fast approaching when God would fulfil his many promises.

3. Eunuch say] Eunuchs were excluded from the Jewish church, Deuter. xxiii. 1. In the gospel church, this should be no bar to admittance. Compare Acts viii. 27, &c. with Matt. xix. 12.

5. A memorial] Compare 2 Sam. xviii. 18. God promises, that the names of pious eunuchs should be preserved in his church, as on monuments.

7. House of prayer] Our Lord referred to this promise, Matt. xxi. 13.

9. O all ye beasts] Here begins a new prophecy, and which refers to the priests and rulers, and their oppressions, insatiable avarice, and intemperance.

10. Dumb dogs] It was their duty to teach and admonish the people ; but their ignorance, drunkenness, and other vices utterly disqualified them for the discharge of their duty.

CHAP. LVII. 1. From evil] Such are in mercy removed before divine judgment begins.

2. The perfect man] Read with Durrel מַשְׁכָּבִי as two words, by which the construction is preserved, and the obscurity removed. Compare Ps. lxxiii. 4. where a similar error obtains in the text.—(v) Vulg. 2 MSS.

3—5 Sons of the sorceress] That is, persons given up to sorcery, and other wicked practices.—Enflaming themselves] Seized as with an idol-mania, and gratifying every desire in the impure worship of Baal and Molech. Comp. 2 Kings xxi. and xxii. 10, &c.

6. Among the smooth stones] Smooth consecrated stones were objects of ancient superstition. Arnobius says, that when he was a heathen, 'If he saw a smooth stone besmeared with oil, he kissed it, and by prayer sought blessings from it, as if some divine power resided in it.'

8. Behind the door] That is, the image of their tutelary gods, or something dedicated to them; in direct opposition to the law of God, Deut. vi. 9; xi. 20.

9. As a present to a king] That is, the king of Assyria, or Egypt, Hos. xii. 1.

11. Respecting whom] Hast thou been led to serve idols through fear of the people, who account them gods?

12. My righteousness] In calling thee to a just account, and then will it appear how criminal thy deeds have been.—(v) Versions.

13. Thy associates] Thy idolatrous allies. Both they and their worshippers will be found vain supports.

14. Then will I say] So most modern critics read in the first person, and considers God as the speaker, as is evident from the following verses. Compare ch. xl. 3, and note.

15. To give vigour] It is probable that the prophet designedly used the same word in two different, though related senses.—(v) Sept. Syr.

17. His covetousness] Covetousness was a prevailing sin in Israel, therefore they were afflicted, but grew worse rather than better by the correction.

18—23. Mourners] Such among them as sighed and cried for the sins and calamities which they beheld.

CHAPTER LVIII.

Hypocrisy of the Jews in their fasting ; promises to the penitent, and such as keep the sabbath.

- 1 Cry aloud ; spare not ;
Raise thy voice like a trumpet,
And declare to my people their transgression,
And to the house of Jacob their sin.

Afflicted our souls, and thou dost not regard ?
Behold ! on your fast-day ye enjoy pleasure ;
And all your demands of labour ye exact.
- 4 Behold, ye fast for strife and contention,
And to smite with the fist the poor,
Wherefore fast ye unto me in this manner,
To make your voice to be heard on high ?

That a man should afflict his soul for a day ?
That he should bow down his head as a bulrush,

Shall this indeed be called a fast,
And a day acceptable to Jehovah ?

CHAP. LVIII. 1—4. Cry aloud] How common is it in every age, to regard the form of religion, while its spirit and its power are neglected.

5—7. Is such then] Can it be expected that God should regard such outward services, while men's hearts are far from him. It is a humble, contrite spirit that he requireth, and good works flowing from it that he will accept.

8—10. Then shall thy light] A happy change shall be made in thy circumstances ; darkness shall become light, affliction and pain be turned to prosperity and peace.

10. (v) Syr. MSS.

11. Yea, he shall renew] Our translators have rendered, 'make fat thy bones,' a sense which the verb never has.

Thou shalt cry, and he shall say, Lo I am here ! [yoke ;
If thou remove from the midst of thee the
The pointing of the finger and the false speech ; [gry,
If thou bring forth 'thy bread' to the hun- 10
And satisfy the afflicted soul ;
Then shall thy light rise in obscurity,
And thy darkness shall be as the noon day.
And Jehovah shall guide thee continually, 11
And satisfy thy soul in the severest draught ;
Yea, he shall renew thy strength : [den,
And thou shalt be like a well-watered gar-
And like a spring whose waters never fail.
And thy offspring shall build the ancient 12
ruins ; [up ;
The foundations of old times they shall raise
And thou shalt be called the repairer of breaches ;
The restorer of frequented paths.

CHAPTER LIX.

The nature and consequences of sin ; salvation from it only from God.

- BEHOLD, Jehovah's hand is not shortened, 1
So that he cannot save ;
Nor is his ear heavy, so that he cannot hear.
But your iniquities have separated between 2
you and your God : [from you,
And your sins have made him hide his face
So that he will not hear.
For your hands are polluted with blood, 3
And your fingers with iniquity ;
Your lips speak falsehood,
And your tongue muttereth wickedness.
No one preferreth his suit in justice, 4
And no one judgeth in truth :
They trust in vanity and speak lies :
They conceive mischief, and bring forth iniquity.
They hatch the eggs of the basilisk ; 5

The reading proposed and adopted is supported by chap. xl. 29.

13. Cease from labouring] Hebrew, 'turn away thy foot,' &c. Compare Deut. xi. 10, and note, and ch. xxxii. 20.

14. (v) Versions.

CHAP. LIX. 4. His suit in justice] In this view the sense is, that unfounded and unjust claims were made on individuals, and those who decided, paid no regard to truth, the judges accepted persons, and for a bribe condemned the innocent.

5—8. Hatch the eggs] These are proverbial phrases, and denote their wicked and evil devices ; and their oppressive and unjust conduct.

- And they weave the web of the spider:
He that eateth of their eggs shall die,
And from what is crushed, a viper breaketh forth.
- 6 Their webs shall not become garments;
Nor with their works shall they cover them:
Their works are works of iniquity, [selves,
And the deed of violence is in their hands.
- 7 Their feet run to what is evil,
And they haste to shed innocent blood:
Their thoughts are thoughts of iniquity;
Devastation and ruin are in their paths.
- 8 The way of peace they know not,
And there is no judgment in their tracks:
They have made to themselves crooked paths:
Whoever goeth in them, knoweth not peace;
- 9 Therefore is judgment far distant from us;
Neither doth justice overtake us:
We look for light but behold darkness;
For brightness, but we walk in obscurity.
- 10 We grope for the wall, like the blind;
And we wander, as those deprived of sight:
We stumble at mid-day, as in the twilight;
We are in profound darkness, as the dead.
- 11 We all of us groan like the bears;
And like doves make a continual moan:
We look for judgment, and there is none;
For salvation, and it is far distant from us.
- 12 For our trespasses are multiplied before thee,
And our sins testify against us;
For our transgressions cleave fast unto us;
And our iniquities we acknowledge,
- 13 In rebelling and lying against Jehovah,
And turning backward from following our God:
In speaking injury and conceiving revolt,
And meditating from the heart lying words.
- 14 And judgment is turned away backwards;
And justice standeth aloof:
For truth hath stumbled in the open street;
And rectitude hath not been able to enter.
- 15 And truth is found no more;
And he that shunneth evil becometh a prey:
And Jehovah saw, and was displeased,
Because there was no judgment.
- 16 Yea, he saw that there was no man,
And wondered that there was no intercessor:

10. Profound darkness] So Michaelis and others render, and it expresses the sense intended.

12. Testify] Afford evidence sufficient to convict and condemn us. In the next verse the prophet specifies some of their open and flagrant crimes.

16. His own arm] There being no one found to intercede for, or possessed of power to afford any relief, God himself interposes; awakes up his zeal, and, like a mighty warrior, goes forth to conquer his enemies, and save his people.

19. Spirit of Jehovah] There is, however, great uncertainty as to the sense of these two lines; as they admit of various renderings. The Syriac only gives the sense of 'enemy' to צַדִּיק, the other versions consider it in connection with נָהָר, 'river,' and render, 'for he will come as an impetuous river, which the wind of Jehovah, or a mighty strong wind driveth along. Some suppose that 'the enemy'

The coming and covenant of the Redeemer; the glory of the new church, after a short season of affliction.

AND the Redeemer shall come to Zion, 20
And turn away iniquity from Jacob, saith Jehovah.

From this time forth, even for ever.
Arise, be enlightened, for thy light is 1

And the glory of Jehovah is risen upon
For behold darkness shall cover the earth, 2
And thick darkness, the nations:
But upon thee shall Jehovah arise,
And his glory upon thee shall be conspicuous.
And the nations shall walk in thy light, 3
And kings in the brightness of thy sun-rising.
Lift up thine eyes round about and see; 4
All of them are assembled, they come unto Thy sons shall come from afar; [thee;

signifies Cyrus, who was to be God's instrument in punishing the Babylonians, and delivering the Israelites.

20, 21. The Redeemer] I do not perceive what sense these verses can have, unless they obviously and literally refer to the coming and salvation of our Lord, who gave his spirit to his disciples, and put his words in their mouths, and which are continued among his people to this day. In this view these verses naturally introduce the address to Zion in the following chapter.

CHAP. LX. 1. Arise, be enlightened] The prophet sees, as it were, 'the sun of righteousness' shining with beams of truth and grace; and he calls on all that enjoy the blessings of his instruction and communication, to make a suitable improvement, and shine by their graces to his glory.

2. Darkness shall] Before this event occurs there shall be great darkness, wars, persecutions, and distresses; but amidst all this, shall this 'glory of Jehovah be revealed.'

- And thy daughters 'shall be carried' at the side. [joy;
- 5 Then shalt thou 'fear,' and overflow with
And thy heart shall tremble and be enlarged,

The dromedaries of Midian and Ephah ;
All of them from Sheba shall come :
Gold and frankincense shall they bear,
And shall sing the praises of Jehovah.

And the ships of Tarshish among the first,
To bring thy sons from afar,
Their silver and their gold with them ;
On account of the name of Jehovah, thy God,
The Holy One of Israel, for he hath glorified thee.
- 10 And strangers shall build up thy walls,
And kings shall minister unto thee :
For in my wrath I smote thee,
But in my favour I will have mercy on thee.
- 11 Thy gates shall be open continually ;
By day or by night they shall not be shut :
That they may bring to thee the wealth of nations,
And that their kings with pomp may come.
- 12 For that nation, and that kingdom,
Which will not serve thee, shall perish ;
Yea, those nations shall be utterly made waste.
- 13 The glory of Lebanon shall come unto thee ;
The fir-tree, the pine, and the box together,
To adorn the place of my sanctuary,
And that I may glorify the place of my feet.
- 14 And the sons of those who afflicted thee,
They shall come bending before thee ;
And all they who scornfully rejected thee,
Shall do obeisance at the soles of thy feet :
And they shall call thee, The city of Jehovah ;

The Zion of the Holy One of Israel.
Instead of being forsaken, and hated, 15
So that no one passed through thee ;
I will make thee an everlasting boast ;
A subject of joy for perpetual generations.

Violence shall no more be heard in thy land ; 18
Destruction and calamity in thy borders :
But thou shalt call thy walls, salvation,
And thy gates, praise.
The sun shall be no more thy light by day ; 19
Nor by night shall the moon give light to
thee ;
But Jehovah shall be thine everlasting light.
And thy God shall be thy glory.
Thy sun shall no more go down, nor thy 20
moon wane ;
For Jehovah shall be thine everlasting light,
And the days of thy mourning shall be ended.
And thy people shall be all righteous ; 21
For ever shall they inherit the land :
For they are the branch of my planting.
The work of my hands, that I may be glorified.
The little one shall become a thousand ; 22
And the small one a strong nation :
I Jehovah, in due time, will hasten it.

CHAPTER LXI.

The office of the Saviour, and the duty and blessings of believers.

THE Spirit of Jehovah is upon me ; 1
For Jehovah hath anointed me, to publish glad tidings to the meek ; [hearted ;
He hath sent me to bind up the broken-
To proclaim to the captives liberty,
And to those in bonds a full release :
To proclaim the acceptable year of Jehovah, 2
And the day of the vengeance of our God ;

4. Carried at] 'To be nursed at the side' is certainly improper, as it is opposed to nature. The reading of the Sept. Chald. is adopted as conformable to the custom of the east.

5—7. Thou fear] This reading of many MSS. is obviously preferable to the text, and is parallel with tremble in the next line.—I will make glorious] I will make it appear so, and be esteemed accordingly.

8. Who are these] The prophet saw in vision people unknown, nations most remote hastening to Zion, with the speed of a driven cloud, or like doves that fly to their cotes from some bird of prey.

9—14. Name of Jehovah] Vitringa applies this to the future restoration of Israel, when he supposes the Gentiles shall conduct the Jews to their own land. Considering the prophetic imagery, the whole may apply to the gospel church, the peace, light, joy and glory of which is in other places celebrated in like bold and figurative language.

15—22. Instead of being] What is here said of the church seems to me to be yet unfulfilled ; and I would apply it to that period when the Jews, together with the fulness of the Gentiles, shall be brought in, and when God shall eminently reign upon earth by the power of his truth and spirit. Some of the expressions are applied to the heavenly state, Rev. xxi. 23, and xxii. 5, and they must, as referring to the church on earth, imply a state of great light, holiness, and happiness.

CHAP. LXI. 1. The spirit] Comp. Luke iv. 18, where our Lord asserted 'that this scripture was that day fulfilled.'

2. Acceptable year] This is a manifest allusion to the proclaiming of the year of jubilee by sound of trumpet. See Levit. xxv. 9, &c. This was a year of general release ; of

- To comfort all those who mourn ;
3 To impart gladness to the mourners in Zion ;
 To give them an ornament instead of ashes ;
 The oil of joy instead of mourning ;
 The robe of praise instead of a fainting spirit ;
 And they shall be called Trees of righteous-
 The plantation of Jehovah, for his glory.
4 And "thy offspring" shall build the ancient ruins ;
 They shall raise up the former desolations,
 And repair the cities which were laid waste ;
 The desolations of past generations.
5 And strangers shall stand and feed your flocks ;
 And the sons of the alien shall become
 Your husbandmen, and your vine-dressers.
6 But ye shall be called, The priests of Jehovah ;
 And be named, The ministers of our God.
 The riches of the nations shall ye eat,
 And in their glory shall ye make your boast.
7 For your shame ye shall have double honour ;
 And for confusion, "ye shall rejoice in your"
 For in "your" land ye shall possess double Everlasting joy shall be unto you. [felicity ;
8 For I Jehovah love judgment ;
 I hate robbery and "iniquity :"
 And I will give them in faithfulness their reward,
 And make an everlasting covenant with 9 And their seed shall be known among the nations,
 And their offspring in the midst of the people—
 All who see them shall acknowledge
 That they are a seed blessed of Jehovah.
10 I will greatly rejoice in Jehovah ;
 My soul shall exult in my God :
 For he clothed me with garments of salvation,
 "And" covered me with the robe of righteousness—
 As a bridegroom decketh himself with ornaments,
 And as a bride adorneth herself with jewels.
11 Surely as the earth pusheth forth her shoots,

And as a garden causeth her seed to grow ;
 So will Jehovah make righteousness shoot forth,
 And praise, in the sight of all the nations.

CHAPTER LXII.

The prophet's prayer for Zion, and the duty of her watchmen.

For the sake of Zion, I will not be silent ; 1
 And for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest ;
 Until her righteousness go forth as brightness ;
 And her salvation like a flaming torch.
 And the nations shall see thy righteousness, 2
 And all the kings thereof, thy glory :
 And thou shalt be called by a new name,
 Which the mouth of Jehovah shall fix upon thee. [hand of Jehovah ;
 And thou shalt be a glorious crown in the 3
 A royal diadem in the hand of thy God.
 Thou shalt not any more be called, For- 4
 saken ; [late.
 Nor of thy land shall it be said, It is deso-
 But thou shalt be called, MY DELIGHT,
 And thy land, THE MARRIED LAND.
 For Jehovah shall delight in thee,
 And thy land shall be joined in marriage.
 For as a young man marieth a virgin, 5
 So shall thy sons marry thee ;
 And as a bridegroom rejoiceth in his bride,
 So shall thy God rejoice in thee.
 On thy walls, Jerusalem, have I set watch- 6
 men ;
 Nor shall they ever be silent, day or night.
 O ye who proclaim the name of Jehovah !
 Keep not silence, nor let him rest in silence, 7
 Until he establish, and until he make,
 Jerusalem a praise in the earth.
 Jehovah hath sworn by his own right hand, 8
 And by his own most powerful arm,
 I will no more give thy corn to be food for thy foes ;
 Nor shall the sons of the stranger
 Drink thy wine, for which thou hast laboured.
 But they that reap the corn shall eat it, 9
 And shall praise the name of Jehovah ;
 And they that gather the vintage debts and obligations ; of bond-men and women ; of lands and possessions, which had been sold from the families and tribes to which they belonged.

3. To impart gladness A word has been dropped from the text, and grat, gladness, was most probably the word, as it occurs in contrast with לֵבָא, in the next line but one.—Ornament As the ashes were thrown on the head in mourning, the antithesis implies that the ornament was some chaplet or wreath for the head, as a token of joy.

4—9. And thy offspring If we consider this as addressed to Zion, we learn that her sons should be many, and the land should be again cultivated, and strangers or Gentiles should become the servants of God, and be joined to his people. (a) Ch. lviii. 12, 4 MSS.

7. For your shame The Syriac is followed in rendering in the second person ; and giving that sense to שְׁמָךְ which the antithesis requires, a more consistent sense is obtained. What is here promised Jehovah in the two next verses engages to do,

10. I will greatly Zion now speaks, and expresseth her joy in the Lord.

CHAR. LXII. 1. Her salvation While this may literally be applied to the deliverance from Babylon, it has a nobler reference to the great salvation of our Lord.

4. My delight In opposition to 'forsaken,' and 'married land,' in opposition to 'desolate,' meaning it shall be inhabited, and possessed.

5. Thy sons 'Thy sons marrying thee,' only signifies, shall possess, and have authority in their own land, as the husband has in respect to his wife.

6, 7. Set watchmen The image in this place is taken from the temple service ; in which there was appointed a constant watch, day and night, by the Levites, 1 Chron. ix. 33. Compare Ps. cxxiv. Mal. ii. 12.

9. In my holy courts Compare Deut. xii. 17, 18. Being delivered, and enjoying their own privileges, they should observe the law.

- Shall drink it in my holy courts.
 10 Pass ye, pass ye through the gates ;
 Prepare the way for the people ! [stones !
 Cast up, cast up, the highway ; clear it from Lift up on high a standard for the nations !
 11 Behold, Jehovah hath proclaimed,
 Even unto the extremity of the earth ;
 Say ye to the daughter of Zion,
 Behold ! thy Saviour cometh :
 Behold, he hath a recompense with him,
 And the reward he giveth is before him.
 12 And they shall be called, The holy people,
 The redeemed of Jehovah ;
 And thou shalt be called, The much desired,
 The city that shall not be forsaken.

CHAPTERS LXIII. LXIV.

The Saviour's victories ; and his mercy towards his church.

- 1 C. Who is this that cometh from Edom,
 With garments deeply dyed from Bozrah ?
 This that is glorious in his apparel,
 Marching on in the greatness of his strength ?
 M. I, who publish righteousness, mighty to save.
 2 C. Wherefore is thine apparel red,
 And thy garments as one treading the wine-vat ?
 3 M. I have trodden the wine-vat alone ;
 And of the peoples there was none with me.
 And I trod them down in mine anger ;
 And I trampled them in mine indignation :
 And their blood was sprinkled on my garments ;
 And I have stained all mine apparel.
 4 For the day of vengeance was in my heart ;
 And the year of my redeemed was come.
 5 And I looked, and there was no one to help ;
 And I wondered that there was none to uphold :
 Hence mine own arm wrought salvation for
 And mine indignation itself sustained me.
 6 And I trod down the peoples in mine anger,
 And I "crushed" them in mine indignation ;
 And I spilled their blood on the ground.
 7 The mercies of Jehovah will I record ;
 The praise of Jehovah, according to all
 That Jehovah hath bestowed upon us ;

And his great goodness to the house of Israel,
 Which he hath bestowed upon them,
 Through his compassion and great kindness.
 For he said, Surely they are my people, 8
 Children that will not prove false ;
 So he was their Saviour in all their distresses :
 He was "not" opposed to them ; 9
 But the angel of his presence saved them ;
 In his love and in his pity he redeemed them, [old.
 And bore and carried them all the days of
 But they rebelled and grieved his holy 10 Spirit ; [them.
 And he turned their enemy ; he fought against Then he remembered past days, Moses and 11
 his people ;
 How he had brought them up from the sea
 Together with the shepherd of his flock ;
 How he had put within him his Holy Spirit ;
 Leading them by the right hand of Moses, 12
 With his own glorious arm ;
 Cleaving the waters before them,
 To make himself an everlasting name :
 Conducting them through the abysses, 13
 As a horse in the plain, so that they stumbled not.
 As the herd descendeth to rest in the valley, 14
 The Spirit of Jehovah caused them to rest ;
 So didst thou lead thy people,
 To make thyself a most glorious name.
 Look down from the heavens, and see, 15
 From thy holy and glorious habitation :
 Where is thy zeal and thy mighty power ;
 The yearning of thy bowels and thy compassions ?
 "In respect to us" are they restrained ?
 Verily, thou art our father, 16
 Though Abraham would not regard us,
 And Israel would not acknowledge us :
 Thou, Jehovah, art our father ;
 Our Redeemer from of old is thy name.
 Why dost thou suffer us to err from thy 17 ways ?
 To harden our hearts from the fear of thee ?
 O return, for thy servant's sake, the tribes of thy heritage.

10. Pass ye] This is addressed to the citizens of Zion, who are exhorted to repair the highways, and to invite the nations, and to raise a standard for them.

11. Thy saviour] So all the versions render, and what follows justifies them.

12. The holy people] The former verse most naturally signifies the person of our Lord ; and the 'holy people' here, his disciples.—The much desired] This can only be true of the spiritual church, which is often compared to a city, the city of the great king ; and this shall never be forsaken.

CHAP. LXIII. 1—6. Who is this] The very remarkable passage with which this chapter begins, seems to be in a manner detached from the rest, and to stand singly by itself, having no immediate connexion with what goes before, or with what follows. Expositors refer this to the glorious person of Messiah ; and to the vengeance which he took on his enemies and his crucifiers. Nor can it be an objection to this, that Bozrah, the capital of Idumea, is mentioned ; as the Edomites, the old enemies of the church, may naturally represent the enemies of Messiah, the Jews.

6. Spilled their blood] Our translators rendered נצחם their blood in the third verse, but here their strength ; but the sense given is that which the best critics adopt. (v) Cyr. Chald. MSS.

7. The mercies of] The remaining part of this chapter, with the whole chapter following, contains a penitential confession and supplication of the Israelites in their state of dispersion.

9. He was not] So the versions, Keri and MSS. read. 'He was not opposed,' or was not an 'adversary, but a friend ; as the negative often signifies.—Angel of his] Compare Exod. xviii. 20—23 ; xxxiii. 13. Deut. i. 31.

15. In respect to us] Hast thou forgotten that we are thy children, however degenerate and unworthy ? So the Sept. and Syr.

16. Art our Father] They claim God's relation to them,

- 18 Is it a small thing that they have possessed thy holy "mount?" [tuary?]

- 10 Thy holy cities are become a wilderness; Zion is become a desert; Jerusalem desolate.
- Our holy and beautiful temple, 11
Where our fathers praised thee, is consumed with fire:
And all our desirable things are a desolation.

Wilt thou be silent, and still grievously afflict

CHAPTER LXV.

The calling of the Gentiles, and the rejection of the Jews for their unbelief; judgments for the wicked, and blessings for the good; the new Jerusalem.

- I AM sought of those that asked not for 1
me;
I am found of those that sought me not:
I have said, Behold me, behold me!
To a nation that called not on my name.
I have stretched out my hands all the day 2
to a rebellious people, [vices;
Who walk in an evil way, after their de-
To a people who provoke me to my face; 3
Who are continually sacrificing in the garden,
And burning incense on their tile-roofs:
Who dwell in sepulchres, and lodge in ca- 4
Who eat the flesh of the swine, [verns;
And broth of abominable meat is in their vessels:
Who yet say, Stand thou aloof from me; 5
Approach me not; for I am holier than thou.
These raise up a smoke in my nostrils;
A fire that burneth all the day long.
Behold, these things are written before me; 6
I will no longer be silent, but will recompense, [quities,
Yea, recompense into their bosom their ini-
And the iniquities of their fathers together, 7
saith Jehovah;
Who have burned incense on the mountains,
And dishonoured me on the hills:
Therefore will I measure into their bosom,
The recompense of their former works.
Thus saith Jehovah: 8
As the new wine is found in the cluster, and expect from him more compassion than from their illustrious fathers Abraham and Jacob. 18 (v) Sept.

19. As those thou rulest not] As if thou hadst wholly abandoned us, and given us up to our own ways, as thou hast the heathen; and even permitted idolaters to reign over us.

CHAP. LXIV. 2. As the fire] That is, let the mountains flow down as assuredly as the fire kindleth the dry fuel, or as the fire maketh the waters to boil.

3. When thou didst] There is probably an allusion to God's descent on Sinai, Ex. xix. 1, &c. Comp. Ps. lxxviii. 7.

4. Things which eye] So the apostle, 1 Cor. ii. 9, as to the sense; for the text here is corrupted. The true reading seems to have been שְׂכַר לֹא שָׁכַר parallel with רִאיוֹן.

The clause, "nor have entered into the heart of man," is wholly omitted here, and yet it is a purely Hebrew phrase. Compare ch. lxx. 17, Jer. iii. 16; vii. 31; xix. 5; xxxii. 35. Ezek. xiv. 3. In the last line I render the verb in the future, will do, which admits the sense the apostle has given; for prepared signifies what God had determined in his own wisdom to do, and which the apostle asserts he had then revealed to them by his spirit. The common text Lowth renders,

'For never have men heard, nor perceived by the ear; Nor hath eye seen, a God beside thee, Who doeth such things for those that trust in him.'

5. Because of our deeds] This is Lowth's correction. In the two next verses, the prophet gives the reasons of his doubts on account of past sins, and of the little appearance of any change.

8. Thou art our Father] Here the people plead God's covenant relation to them; he had formed them as a church, and will he destroy them? (v) Chald. MSS.

CHAP. LXV. 1. I am sought] This chapter contains a defence of God's proceedings in regard to the Jews, with reference to their complaint in the chapter preceding.

3, 4. In gardens—on tile roofs] These are instances of heathenish superstition, and idolatrous practices, to which the Jews were immoderately addicted before the Babylonish captivity.

5—7. Stand thou aloof from me] This exactly suits the spirit of the pharisees, and what follows may refer to the punishment inflicted by the Romans.

8—10. Thus saith Jehovah] Some of Israel, in the general ruin, are to be preserved.

- And one saith, Destroy it not ; for a blessing is in it :
 So will I do for the sake of my servants,
 That I may not utterly destroy them all.
 9 For I will bring forth a seed from Jacob,
 And from Judah, an inheritor of my mountain ;
 Yea, my chosen people shall inherit it,
 And my servants shall dwell therein.
 10 And Sharon shall become a fold of flocks,
 And the valley of Achor, a resting-place for herds,
 To my people who have sought after me.
 11 But ye who have forsaken Jehovah,
 Who have prepared a table for Gad,
 And filled up a libation for Meni ;
 12 Verily you will I number for the sword,
 And all of you shall bow down for the slaughter :
 Because when I called, ye answered not ;
 When I spoke, ye hearkened not ;
 But ye did evil before mine eyes,
 And chose that in which I delighted not.
 13 Wherefore, thus saith the Lord Jehovah :
 Lo, my servants shall eat, but ye shall hunger ; [thirsty ;
 My servants shall drink, but ye shall be Lo, my servants shall rejoice, but ye shall be ashamed :
 14 Lo, my servants shall sing for joy of heart ;
 But ye shall cry out for anguish of heart ;
 And ye shall howl through distress of spirit.
 [chosen ;
 15 And your name shall be for a curse to my
 For the Lord Jehovah shall slay you
 And his servants shall be called by another name. [earth,
 16 Then whoso blesseth himself upon the Shall bless himself by the God of truth :
 And whoso sweareth upon the earth
 Shall swear by the God of truth :
 Because the former provocations are forgotten, [eyes.
 And because they are hidden from mine 17 For lo, I create new heavens and a new earth, [bered,
 And the former ones shall not be remembered.
 Neither shall they again be brought to mind.

11. A table for Gad] Gad means good fortune, and Meni the moon. Jerom explains the custom of idolaters, as is here stated. 'It is an ancient custom, in all cities, and especially in Egypt, and in Alexandria, for idolaters to prepare on the first day of the year a table, and place on it feast-cheer of every kind, and a cup of mead, or sweet wine, in gratitude for the fertility of the past year, and to supplicate for the same in the coming year.'

12—15. Number for the sword] You who worship the moon, by which months are numbered, will I number for the sword ; but while every kind of evil and misery shall come on you, my believing people shall be safe and happy. — Call by another name] They shall be called christians, and not Jews.

16. Then whoso] When the above events take place, he that blesseth or prayeth for himself, shall not name idols, but the God of truth.

17. For lo, I create] The new heaven and earth cannot

But ye shall rejoice and exult for ever, in 18
 what I create :

For behold I create Jerusalem an exultation,
 And her people the subject of rejoicing :
 And I will exult in Jerusalem and rejoice 19
 in my people, [therein,

And there shall not be heard any more
 The voice of weeping, nor the voice of crying.

No more shall be there an infant short-lived, 20
 Nor an old man who hath not filled his days :
 For he that dieth a hundred years old,
 Shall be considered only as a boy ; [old,
 And the sinner that dieth a hundred years
 Shall be regarded as one accursed.

And they shall build houses and inhabit 21
 them,

And plant vineyards, and eat the fruit thereof.
 They shall not build, and another inhabit ; 22
 They shall not plant, and another eat :

For as the days of a tree, are the days of my people,

And the work of their hands shall they enjoy.

My chosen shall not labour in vain ; 23

They shall not generate a short-lived race :

For they shall be a seed blessed of Jehovah ;

They and their offspring with them.

And it shall be, that before they call, I will 24
 answer ;

And while they are yet speaking, I will hear.

The wolf and the lamb shall feed together ; 25

And the lion shall eat straw like the ox :

But as for the serpent, dust shall be his food.

They shall not hurt, nor destroy,

In all my holy mountain, saith Jehovah.

CHAPTER LXVI.

God will be served in spirit, not by ceremonies ; the humble are comforted ; the judgments pronounced against the wicked and impenitent.

Thus saith Jehovah, [my footstool : 1

The heavens are my throne, and the earth

Where is this house, which ye build for me ?

And where is this place of my rest ?

For all these things my hand hath made, 2

And all these things are mine, saith Jehovah.

But this man will I regard, him that is humble, ble.

here refer to the future world, as is evident from what follows, ver. 21, 22 ; but by this is meant the gospel dispensation, and the wonderful change which it should effect in the world, Heb. xii. 26, 27.

20. Infant short-lived] While sorrow is to be banished, long life is to be granted like those who lived before the flood. We must understand this as signifying only that temperance and virtue shall secure the divine blessing, and men shall not be cut off by the sword of judgment. Compare Deut. xxviii. 30.

24. Before they call] I will remove evils before they complain of them ; and be ready to bestow blessings while they are requesting them. Compare with the next verse, ch. xi. 6.

CHAP. LXVI. 1. Where is this house] This chapter is a continuation of the subject of the foregoing. And at the very time when the judgments, denounced in ver. 6th and 12th of the preceding chapter, were hanging over their heads,

- And of a contrite spirit, and trembleth at my word.
- 3 He that slayeth an ox, killeth a man ;
He that sacrificeth a lamb, beheadeth a dog ;
He that maketh an oblation it is of swine's blood ;
He that burneth incense, blesseth an idol ;
Yea, they have chosen their own ways ;
And in their abominations their soul delighteth.
- 4 I will also choose out their calamities ;
And what they dread I will bring upon them :
Because I called, and no one answered ;
I spoke and they would not hearken ;
But they did evil before mine eyes,
And chose that in which I delighted not.
- 5 Hear the word of Jehovah,
Ye who tremble at his word ;
Say ye to your brethren, who hate you,
And who thrust you out for my name's sake :
Jehovah will be glorified, and will appear
To your joy, but they shall be confounded.
- 6 The noise of a tumult from the city !
A cry is heard from the temple !
It is the voice of Jehovah.
Rendering a recompense to his enemies.
- 7 Before she was in travail, she brought forth ; [of a male child.
Before her pangs came, she was delivered
- 8 Who hath heard such a thing as this ?
Who hath seen the like of these things ?
Is a country brought forth in one day ?
Or is a nation born in an instant ?
When Zion travailed she also brought forth her children.
- 9 Shall I bring to the birth,
And not cause to bring forth, saith Jehovah ?
Shall I who beget restrain the birth, saith thy God ?
- 10 Rejoice with Jerusalem, and exult with her,
All ye who love her ;
Be exceedingly joyful on account of her,
All ye who mourn over her.

they were rebuilding, by Herod's munificence, the temple in a most magnificent manner. God admonishes them, that the Most High dwelleth not in temples made with hands ; and that a mere external worship would never be accepted by him. These two chapters manifestly relate to the calling of the Gentiles, the establishment of the Christian dispensation, and the reprobation of the apostate Jews, and their destruction executed by the Romans.

3. He that slayeth an ox] These are instances of extreme wickedness joined with hypocrisy, Ezek. xxiii. 39. Matt. xxiii. 14.

5. Hear the word] This is addressed to those who believed on the Saviour, and whose names were cast out as evil, and themselves persecuted by their unbelieving brethren, John ix. 22—35 ; xvi. 2.

6. The noise of a tumult] The prophet at once brings us to hear, and see the destruction of the sinners in Zion. The city is confusion, the enemy having invaded it ; the temple, the last resort, is also forced, and a cry of destruction is every where heard. Compare with this our Lord's prediction, Matt. xxiv. 1—23. Luke xxi. 5, &c.

7—11. Before she was] Zion is represented as bringing forth a spiritual seed suddenly. This doubtless was intended

- That ye may suck, and be satisfied, 11
From the breast of her consolations ;
That ye may draw out and be delighted,
From the abundance of her glory.
For thus saith Jehovah : 12
Lo, I spread over her prosperity as a river ;
And the wealth of nations as a flowing stream : [side ;
And ye shall suck, and be carried at the
And on the knees shall ye be dandled.
As one whom his mother comforteth, so will 13
I comfort you ;
For in Jerusalem shall ye be comforted.
And ye shall see it, and your heart rejoice ; 14
And your bones shall flourish as the herbage :
And Jehovah's hand shall be known to his servants,
And his indignation towards his enemies.
For behold ! Jehovah will come 'as' a fire, 15
And his chariots as the whirlwind :
And he shall breathe forth his anger in great heat,
And his rebuke in flames of fire.
For by fire shall Jehovah execute judgment, 16
And by his sword also, upon all flesh ;
And many shall be the slain of Jehovah.
They who sanctify and purify themselves, 17
In the gardens, after the rites of Achad ;
In the midst of those who eat swine's flesh,
And the mouse, which are an abomination ;
Together shall they perish, saith Jehovah.
For I know their deeds and their devices : 18
And I come to gather all nations and tongues ;
And they shall come, and shall see my glory.
And I will appoint unto them a sign ; 19
And of those escaped I will send to the nations :
To Tarshish, Pul, Lud, and 'Meschec' ;
To Tubal, and Javan, the far distant coasts :
To those who have never heard my name,
And who have never seen my glory :
And they shall declare my glory among the nations.

to show the spread and triumph of the gospel in the world ; and that this would be effected chiefly by the peculiar aid and power of God.

12—16. I spread over her] Jehovah here promises prosperity to his servants, and abundant spiritual consolation.

15 (v) Sept.

17. Rites of Achad] The Syrians worshipped a god called Adad. The name of Adad, says Macrobius, signifies One ; as likewise does the word Achad in Isaiah.—Swine's flesh] Animals which, according to the law, were unclean and forbidden, they partook of in the worship of this idol.—Shall they perish] These apostate Jews shall be cut off, and the objects of their worship utterly destroyed.

18. Shall see my glory] As all nations are to be assembled, to see this glory, it can only mean the display of his grace and love by the gospel among all nations.

19. A sign] By this is meant, a miracle, a wonder, and includes all the miracles which were wrought by our Lord and his apostles. These are often called signs. Compare Acts ii. 19, 22, 43 ; iv. 30 ; xiv. 3 ; Rom. xv. 19 ; 2 Cor. xii. 12 ; Heb. ii. 4.—Send to the nations] So our Lord commissioned his apostles to go and preach the gospel among all nations for a testimony to them. (v) Sept. MSS.

20 And they shall bring all your brethren,
From all nations, for an offering to Jehovah ;
On horses, and in chariots, and in counes ;
On mules, and on dromedaries ;
To my holy mount, saith Jehovah,
As the sons of Israel brought the offering,
In pure vessels, to the house of Jehovah.
21 And of them will I take, for Priests, and Levites, saith Jehovah.
22 For like as the new heavens, and the new earth which I make,
Abide ever before me, saith Jehovah ;

So shall abide your seed and your name.
And it shall be from new moon to new 23
moon,
And from sabbath to sabbath ;
All flesh shall come to worship before me,
saith Jehovah.
And they shall go forth, and shall see 24
The carcases of the men, who revolted from
For their worm shall not die, [me.
And their fire shall not be quenched ;
And they shall be an abhorrence to all flesh.

20—24. And they shall bring] If we understand this as regarding the believing seed of Abraham, it signifies, in the style of the old dispensation, that the Gentiles shall be called and sanctified, and offer themselves to the service of God, and be accepted, and that their name and seed shall ever abide, Rom. xv. 16.

J E R E M I A H.

INTRODUCTION.

JEREMIAH was of the sacerdotal race, being one of the priests that dwelt at Anathoth, in the land of Benjamin, Josh. xxi. 18. He was called to the prophetic office when very young, about the thirteenth year of Josiah's reign, and exercised it for about forty-two years with great faithfulness and zeal. He prophesied through the wicked and turbulent reigns of Jehoahaz, Jehoiakim, Jeroniah, and Zedekiah, and endured every kind of insult and persecution ; and when Jerusalem was destroyed, and Gedaliah slain, he was carried down to Egypt, where he prophesied, and according to the tradition of the Jews, was put to death by his own wicked countrymen. The general subjects of his prophecies are the idolatry and other sins of the Jews—the judgments impending, interspersed with several intimations of the Messiah. The style of Jeremiah is beautiful and tender to a high degree ; especially when he has occasion to excite the softer passions of grief and pity, which is not seldom the case in the first parts of the prophecy. It is likewise on many occasions very elegant and sublime, especially towards the end, (ch. xlv—li.) where this prophet approaches even to the majesty of Isaiah. From chap. 20 to 46, a new order has been followed, and they thus stand.

CHAPTER I.

This chapter contains the prophet's commission, and promises of Divine assistance.

1 THE WORDS OF JEREMIAH, THE SON OF HILKIAH, ONE OF THE PRIESTS WHO DWELT AT ANATHOTH, IN THE LAND OF BENJAMIN ; 2 TO WHOM THE WORD OF JEHOVAH CAME IN THE DAYS OF JOSIAH, THE SON OF AMON, KING OF JUDAH, IN THE THIRTEENTH YEAR
3 OF HIS REIGN : AND CAME IN THE DAYS OF JEHOIAKIM, THE SON OF JOSIAH, KING OF JUDAH, UNTIL THE COMPLETION OF THE ELEVENTH YEAR OF ZEDEKIAH, THE SON OF JOSIAH, KING OF JUDAH, UNTIL THE CARRY-ING AWAY OF JERUSALEM INTO CAPTIVITY IN THE FIFTH MONTH.
4 Then the word of Jehovah came to me, saying, [thee :
5 Before I formed thee in the womb, I knew

And before thou wast born I hallowed thee
I appointed thee a prophet to the nations.
And I said, Alas ! O Lord Jehovah, 6
I know not how to speak ; for I am a child.
And Jehovah said to me, Say not I am a 7 child : [go ;
But to whomsoever I send thee, thou shalt
And all that I command thee thou shalt
Be not afraid because of them ; [speak. 8
For I am with thee to deliver thee, saith Jehovah. And Jehovah put forth his hand 9 and touched my mouth, and said to me,
Lo, I have put my words in thy mouth.
See, I have this day given thee power 10
Over the nations, and over the kingdoms,
To root up and pull down ; to build and plant.
And the word of Jehovah came to me, 11
What seest thou, Jeremiah ?
And I said, I see a rod of an almond-tree.

CHAP. I. 1—3. These verses are the title of the following prophecies.

5. I hallowed thee] Set thee apart in my purpose to this office. Compare Gal. i. 15, 16.—To the nations] Not only to Israel and Judah, but to the surrounding nations.

6—9. I am a child] Conscious of his youth and of his own unfitness for this office, he, like Moses, formed excuses, and had rather have continued to discharge the ordinary duties of a priest ; but Jehovah put his word in his mouth, and promised to deliver him from his enemies.

10. To root up] A prophet is said to do, what he predicts shall be done.

11, 12. A rod of an almond] The almond tree is one of the first trees that blossoms in the spring. Hence as a de.

- 12 And Jehovah said to me, Thou hast rightly seen :
For I will hasten to perform my word.
- 13 And the word of Jehovah came again to Saying, What seest thou, Jeremiah ? [me, And I said, I see a pot sending forth steam ; And its mouth is turned from the north.
- 14 And Jehovah said unto me,
From the north shall the evil issue forth Upon all the inhabitants of the land.
- 15 For lo, I will call for all the families Of the kingdoms of the north, saith Jehovah : And they shall come, and each set his throne
At the entering in of the gates of Jerusalem, And upon all the walls thereof round about, And over all the cities of Judah.
- 16 And I will utter my judgment against them, On account of all their wickedness ; For they have forsaken me, and burned incense to other gods, [hands, And have worshipped the works of their

CHAPTER II.

God expostulates with his people, reminding them of his mercies, and of their sins and idolatries, as the causes of all their calamities.

- 1 AND the word of Jehovah came to me, saying ; [ing ;
- 2 Go and cry in the ears of Jerusalem, say— Thus saith Jehovah, I remember in thy behalf,
The kindness done to thee in thy youth, nominative verb, the word signifies to be prompt, to hasten, to watch ; and by this emblem God intimates that he would speedily perform his word.

13. (a) 2 MSS.

14. From the north] This explains the representation in the former verse. The steam was designed to show whence calamities would come upon Israel.

15. Each his throne] To set up a throne in or over any place denotes taking full possession of it, and exercising authority and dominion there. See ch. xliii. 10 ; xlix. 38.

16—19. Have forsaken me] The duty of the prophet is stated, and God engages to support and strengthen him in the discharge of it.

CHAP. II. 2. My kindness in] The text is ambiguous, and may signify either the people's kindness and love to God, or his to them. With most modern critics, the latter is preferred, first, because the kindness was wholly on God's part, as Moses repeatedly testified to them ; and secondly, because in what follows, the prophet reprehends the idolatry and sins of their fathers.—In thy youth] That is, at their coming out of Egypt, which is called their birth, Isa. xlv.

- The love shown in thine espousals,
When thou followedst me in the wilderness,
Through a land that was not cultivated.
- Then Israel was a hallowed thing to Jeho- 3
And as the first-fruits of his increase ; [vah,
All that devour him shall be deemed guilty ;
Evil shall come upon them, said Jehovah.
- Hear the word of Jehovah, O house of 4

What wrong dealing did your fathers find in
That they departed far from me,
And walked after vanity and became vain ?
And they said not, Where is Jehovah, 6
Who brought us up from the land of Egypt ;
Who conducted us through the wilderness ;
Through a land of waste, and desolate ;
Through a land of drought, and death-shade ;
Through a land which no man passed through,
And where no human being dwelt ?
- I brought you also unto a land of plenty, 7
To eat the fruit thereof, and the good thereof ;
But when ye were come in, ye defiled my
land,
And mine heritage ye made an abomination.
- The priests said not, Where is Jehovah ? 8
And they versed in the law knew not me ;
The pastors also rebelled against me,
And the prophets prophesied in the name of Baal, [profit.

2 ; Hosea ii. 3 ; and their youth, Isa. liv. 6 ; Hosea ii. 15. The covenant made at Horeb is meant by espousals. Compare Deut. iv. 20, 23, 34. Ezek. xvi. 8.

3. All that devour him] As the first-fruits, according to the law, were sacred to God, so were the Israelites ; and as none but priests could eat of the first-fruits, without being guilty, so none could devour Israel without incurring guilt, and bringing down vengeance.

9. I will yet plead with] Both by my prophets and my judgments. The pleading by the prophet follows.

10. Chittites—Kedar] See note, Isa. xxiii. 1. The countries of the Chittites denote Italy and other provinces of Europe, which was west of Judea, and Kedar in Arabia, east ; the sense is, ' look to the west or east,' and observe, &c.

11. Changed their gods] Is it usual for heathens to forsake the idols which they have been accustomed to worship ?—But my people] They are more foolish than heathens ; they have renounced me for stocks and stones.

12. The heavens are] With the Sept. the verbis are considered as the third person and not as the imperative. Compare Isa. i. 2.

- 13 For my people have done two evil things ;
 Me they have forsaken, a fount of living
 waters,
 And have hewed out for themselves cisterns,
 Broken cisterns, which can hold no water.
- 14 Was Israel a servant—a house-born slave?
 Wherefore is he become a spoil ?
- 15 Against him young lions have roared ;
 They have given forth their terrible voice ;
 They have made his land a desolation ;
 His cities are destroyed—without inhabitant.
- 16 The sons also of Noph and Tahpanhes,
 They shall bruise the crown of thy head.
- 17 Shall not this be done unto thee, [God, Because thou hast forsaken Jehovah thy

 Or what doest thou in the way to Assyria,
 To drink the waters of the river ?
- 19 Thine own wickedness shall correct thee ;
 And thy backsliding shall reprove thee :
 Hence know and see, that it is a thing evil and bitter,
 That thou hast forsaken Jehovah, thy God,
 And that the fear of me is not in thee,
 Saith the Lord Jehovah of hosts.
- 20 Surely of old time 'thou didst break' thy yoke,
 'Thou didst burst' thy bonds, and didst say,
 I will no more be in subjection :
 Yea on every high hill, and under every

 Yet how do I find thee changed ! [vine.

 None will weary themselves in seeking her ;
 When her heat is over, they shall find her.
 Keep back thy foot from being unshod, 25
 And thy throat from thirst :

 And their priests, and their prophets :

 And to a stone, Thou hast brought me forth.
 For they have turned to me the back and not the face ; [say,

 Can a virgin forget her ornaments ? a bride 32
 her attire ?
 Yet my people have many days forgotten me.
 Why directest thou thy way to seek love ? 33
 Truly thou hast taught thy neighbours thy
 Also in thy skirts is found blood, [ways. 34

13. Cisterns] Nothing can more forcibly paint the folly of forsaking God, and seeking aid from idols than these comparisons.

14. Was Israel] Was this his original condition ? Was he not rather a son ? Did not God call him, and treat him as the first-born ?—Wherefore is he] On what account is he become a slave, and a spoil ? He has procured this by his conduct.

16. The sons also of Noph] These are supposed to be the cities of Memphis and Daphne. The prophet now applies to Judah what he had said concerning Israel. As Salmeser ever had treated the latter, so the sons of Noph, &c., would treat the former. This was fulfilled, when Josiah was slain, 2 Kings xxiii. 33, 34.

17. He led thee] This seems to refer to Josiah's attempt to reform the church and state of Israel, which for a short time appeared hopeful ; but soon did the people relapse to their idolatry and other vices.

18. To drink the waters] To seek aid from Egypt and Assyria, and form alliances with them, as if this would be the means of safety.

20. Will I humble myself] This version arises from reading ארצה, which both the Sept. and Vulg. seem to have read.

23. In the valley] Most probably the prophet refers to the valley of Hinnom, the scene of so much wickedness. See ch. vii. 31, and Isa. lvi. 5, 6.

24. Strong desire] These animals at certain seasons seek the males, but their passion is soon over ; but the passion of the Jews for idols never seemed to abate.

25. Being unshod] It is probable that this signifies, 'Do not expose thyself, like a harlot, to idols : give not up thyself to sin in this manner, lest the greatest calamities should overtake thee.'

26—28. As a thief is] Sensible that his guilt will bring on the sentence of the law, so will these idolaters be ashamed when they find that their idols cannot help them.—(v) Vers.

29—31. Plead against me] They charged God with being the author of their calamities, and that they were underserved.—We will stray] For this sense of רדד, see Michaelis's Supple. It is that of the Chaldee and Vulgate, and seems more suitable here than, 'we are lords.'

32. Yet my people] Who are betrothed to me, have long forgotten me. They act contrary to what is usual.

- Even the life-blood of poor innocents ;
I have not found it in a digged hole,
But exposed upon every oak.
- 35 Yet hast thou said, Because I am innocent,

Behold I will enter into judgment with Because thou sayest, I have not sinned.
- 36 Why makest thou thyself exceedingly vile,
By repeating over again thy ways ?

As thou hast been ashamed of Assyria.

Shall it be retained perpetually ? [couldst.

CHAPTER III.

The idolatry of Judah equal to that of Israel ; both called to repent with promises of mercy ; the miseries arising from sin ; salvation from God.

- 6 Jehovah also said unto me in the days of Josiah, the king ; Hast thou seen what revolting Israel hath done ? She hath gone upon every high mountain, and to the foot of every green tree, and she hath played the harlot there. And I said after she had done all 7 these things, Return unto me ; but she returned not. And her faithless sister Judah saw it ;

But when she saw that because of all the 8 idolatries which revolting Israel had committed, I had put her away, and given her a bill of divorce, yet her faithless sister Judah was not afraid, but went and played the harlot also herself. And when through all her 9 fornication, she had polluted the land, and committed adultery with stone and with wood ; Yet for all this did not her faithless 10 sister Judah return to me with her whole heart, but only feignedly, said Jehovah.
Therefore said Jehovah unto me, revolting 11
Israel hath justified herself more than faithless Judah. Go and proclaim these words 12 towards the north, and say,

Return, O revolting Israel, saith Jehovah,
And I will not look on you with displea-
For I am merciful, saith Jehovah, [sure ;
Neither will I reserve anger for ever.
Only acknowledge thine iniquity, [rebelled, 13
That against Jehovah, thy God, thou hast
And hast "corrupted" thy ways with strangers, under every green tree, [vah.
And hast not obeyed my voice, saith Jeho-Return, O revolting children, saith Jehovah, 14
For I have acted as a husband unto you :
And I will take you one of a city
And two of a tribe, and bring you to Zion.
And I will give you pastors after my heart, 15
Who shall feed you with knowledge and wisdom. [plied,
And it shall be, when ye shall have multi- 16
And shall have increased in the land,
In those days, saith Jehovah, they shall no more say,

The ark of the covenant of Jehovah,
Neither shall it enter into their mind,
Nor shall they remember it, or care about it,
Nor shall it be made any more.
At that time, they shall call Jerusalem the 17 throne of Jehovah ;
And all nations shall be gathered unto it,
Unto Jerusalem, to the name of Jehovah ;
Neither shall they walk any more
After the stubbornness of their evil heart.

34. A digged hole] This alludes to the command given, Levit. xvii. 13; and thus all the ancient versions.—Exposed upon] So all the versions, except Chald. and Vulg. Compare Ezek. xiv. 7. Every place was polluted with human blood shed to appease and conciliate their idols.

CHAP. III. 1. It is said] There is clearly a reference to Deut. xxiv. 2-4.—Yet return to me] This shows the kindness of God, and his readiness to receive returning and penitent offenders.

2. Waiting like the Arabian] Who waits and watches to plunder, so dost thou wait for opportunities of committing spiritual fornication.

6-11. In the days of Josiah] Here begins an entire new prophecy, which extends to the end of the chapter. It was probably delivered soon after the former; or at least in the eighteenth year of Josiah's reign, when there was the appearance of some reformation; but the prophet declares that the people were insincere.—Justified herself] That is, hath appeared righteous in comparison with Judah, Luke xviii. 14.

12. Look on you] Hebrew, 'I will not let my countenance fall on you,' Gen. iv. 5.

13-16. Acknowledge thine] This call to repentance, enforced by kind and gracious promises of acceptance and deliverance, must have supported the hope of some among the captives.—Nor shall it be made] Having promised to restore them on their repentance, and to multiply them in their own land, it is mentioned that they should not remember or make again the ark of the covenant, which would be destroyed with the temple. In the second temple this was wanting, as well as other things which were the glory of the first.—(v) Chald.

17. The throne of] Jerusalem itself should be regarded as the seat of Jehovah's power and majesty, and various nations should pay homage to him there, which was fulfilled by the attention of the Persian kings and others.

18. Come from the north] This shows that some of the ten tribes did return from captivity. The history in Ezra and Nehemiah relates to the Judahites; but Michaelis conjectures, that Galilee and other parts of the land were re-peopled by some of the ten tribes.

23. Surely the hills] The people acknowledge that the hills, the places sacred to idolatrous worship, and the tumultuous rites with which that worship was accompanied, (see 1 Kings xviii. 26—28,) were mere impostures, deceiving and disappointing those that trusted in them; whereas Jehovah was indeed the author of salvation to his people.

CHAPTER V

The judgments of God for the people's ignorance, idolatry, contempt of God's word, deceit, fraud, violence, and adherence to false prophets.

 Who know not the way of Jehovah,
 Nor understand the judgment of their God.
 I will betake myself unto the great men, 5

breathe it die. Hence God brings it for a curse and a judgment on his people.

15. For a voice] Dan and Ephraim were tribes bordering on the kingdom of Judah northwards ; and 'a voice declaring from Dan,' &c. signifies a messenger bringing the afflicting tidings which follow, and which are to be proclaimed to the neighbouring nations.

19. I am pained] The versions read in the first person.—Even to the inclosures] The involucre, the pericardium of the heart. The passion of grief is described as affecting first the bowels, then the involucre of the heart, and lastly the heart itself ; and being too big to be contained, it breaks forth in this strong language.

23—26. I beheld the earth] Here is delineated a most striking and interesting picture of a ruined country. The earth is brought back as it were to its primitive state of chaos and confusion.

27. Make a full end] The meaning is, that one calamity shall succeed another. In the next verse the order of the Sept. is followed, which is unquestionably the proper one.

28. (v) Sept.

29. Mountain-caverns] Many of these existed in Judea, and in times of danger the people fled to them for safety.

30. When thou art] In what way wilt thou try to repair thy losses ? See note Isa. iii. 16.

CHAP. V. 1. Broad places] The market places and other areas where the people assembled.

2. As Jehovah liveth] This was the usual form of an oath ; yet were they so wicked as to swear by Jehovah falsely.

- For they know the way of Jehovah,
And understand the judgment of their God.

And their apostasies are increased.

When I had fed them to the full,
Then they committed fornication,
And assembled in the harlot's house.

And it shall be, when ye shall say, 19
Why doeth Jehovah, our God, all these

Then shalt thou say unto them,

So are their houses full of fraud:
Therefore are they grown great and rich;
They have become fat and shine: 28
Yea, they exceed the deeds of the wicked;
But the cause they have not maintained—

6. A lion from] These wild beasts are intended to signify the king of Babylon and his forces.

7—9. Pardon thee] The vices of the people were most gross; no regard was paid to chastity in either single or married life; and how could such a people expect forgiveness?

10. Her wild vine] For this sense, see Michaelis's Lex. She had become the degenerate plant of a strange vine; her branches belonged not to Jehovah.

11—14. They have dealt] While guilty of every crime, they flattered themselves with impunity, and treated God's prophets with contempt, but God declares that his words would not be found to be wind.

15—19. A nation from afar] The Chaldeans were an ancient, and now a very powerful nation; they had subdued many other nations, and become famed for their valour. Hence what follows would be the natural result of their invasion of the land of Judea.

20—24. Declare ye this] While they acknowledge the power of God, yet they feared him not; nor were mindful of the favours which he had so liberally bestowed on them.

25—31. Have turned away] From this it should seem that they had been visited with unfruitful seasons; and that the rich and powerful were guilty of all kinds of injustice and oppression. All orders were become wicked and disobedient; the priests and the prophets, the rulers and the subjects.

- The cause of the orphan, so as to succeed ;

Hath been wrought in the land.

And the priests have concurred with them ;
And my people like to have it so :
But what will ye do in the end thereof ?

Lest I make thee desolate—a land not in-

CHAP. VI. 1. Ye sons of Benjamin] Jerusalem was in the lot of the tribe of Benjamin, Josh. xviii. 28. Tekoa, according to Jerom, was a little town about twelve miles from Jerusalem ; and Beth-haccerem, another little town on the same side, but nearer Jerusalem.

2. The resting-place] This version arises from giving the verb למנוח another sense, which it is allowed to have in many places. Compare Ps. lxxix. 7, and xlvi. 2, &c.

3. Shepherds with] The shepherds and their flocks were no doubt the Babylonian chiefs with their troops besieging Jerusalem.

4, 5. Arise, and let us] In the first line they receive their commission ; and in this they express their readiness to execute it.

9. To the boughs] This reading of the Syr. is more suitable to the comparison ; for it is to the branch that the

And ye shall find rest to your souls :
But they said, We will not walk in it.
Also I set over you watchmen, saying, 17
Hearken ye to the sound of the trumpet :
But they said, We will not hearken.

gatherer turns again his hand to gather any grapes which he may find. This line is an address to the Chaldeans, to leave nothing, but to collect all that they could in Jerusalem.

10. Is closed] Hebrew, “uncircumcised,” as if covered with skin ; so that they cannot hearken, which means that they will not.

11. I have filled the cup of my wrath] The Sept. is followed, which here preserves the genuine text ; and it is evident that Jehovah is the speaker. The expression is elliptical, and refers to the cup of wrath.

16, 17. We will not walk] The advice here given was as gracious as it was wise ; but the people rejected it with disdain.

18. Consider the evil] This reading of 3 MSS. affords a good and suitable sense ; and it is not found in any other place, that ערה congregation, is applied to the Gentiles.

CHAPTER VII.

- Because to my words they have not hearkened,
 Nor to my law, but have even rejected it.
 20 For what end cometh incense to me from Sheba,
 And the aromatic reed from a far country?
 Your burnt-offerings are not acceptable,
 Nor are your sacrifices pleasant unto me.

 I will lay stumbling blocks before this people,

 They are cruel, and will show no mercy;
 Their voice shall roar like the sea;
 And upon horses shall they ride,
 Set in array, as men prepared for battle,
 Against thee, O daughter of Zion.

 And I called to you, but ye answered not;

19—21. My words] Their sins are here stated, rejecting the word of Jehovah, and yet presenting their offerings and incense.—26. (v) Syr.

27. A prover, a tryer] So Michaelis, Dimock, and others render. The terms בִּיחַן and בִּיחַן may admit the sense given, as Michaelis has shown; and the versions of the Sept. and Syr. support it. There is an allusion to the trying and proving of metals.

28. Brass and iron] Not gold or silver, but become like the basest metals.

29. The lead is spent] Pliny informs us that lead was anciently used in refining silver, and separating it from other metals or alloys. God had used various ways to try and purify his people, but all in vain. Hence they are called reprobated, rejected or refused silver, as not being of any value.

CHAP. VII. 1, 2. The word which] A new prophecy begins with this chapter, and is continued on to the end of chap. x. The date is not precisely marked, but the pro-pheticity is, that it was delivered not long after the preceding one.

3. I will cause you to dwell] Jeremiah stood at the gate of the temple; but 'this place' may signify not the temple only, but the city, and even the holy land. On condition of their repentance, he promises that he would make them dwell or abide in their own country, and not cast them off.

4. Are these] This is most probably the language of the false prophets, who were pointing out the various buildings of the temple, and who pretended that God would not, on account of this temple, forsake or give up his people, Matt. xxiv. 1, 2.

8—10. Behold ye place] They trusted to their false prophets; and though practising every abomination, expected Jehovah to save them.—(v) Syr.

11—15. A den of robbers] Do you consider that I can accept or save men who are guilty of such things; and who even make my house a scene of plunder. Learn from what I have done to Shiloh, what you have to expect.

- 14 Hence will I do to the house, called by my

As I cast out all your brethren, the whole seed of Ephraim.
16 And as to thee, pray not for this people ;

them, [thee.
Nor intercede with me ; for I will not hear

manded them, [Egypt,

24 But they hearkened not, nor inclined their
But walked after their own counsels,
And after the imaginations of their evil heart,
And drew backward, and not forward.

16—20. Pray not for this God knew that they were incorrigible. They discovered a zeal and ardour in the cause of idols which shames the coldness and indifference of God's servants.

18. Queen of the heavens Some think the sun, and others the moon to be meant ; and the Sept. has hosts. We have also in many MSS. work, or frame of, &c. ; but the text is best supported.

22. Concerning burnt-offerings There has been thought a difficulty in these words not easy to be removed ; as God did give orders and commands to the Israelites both concerning burnt-offerings and sacrifices of every kind, at mount Horeb. The easiest way in this and in other places, is to consider as as signifying 'not only.' Compare Hos. vi. 6, with 1 Sam. xv. 22.

24. And drew backward The metaphor is taken from refractory oxen, which, when put to the yoke, pull back their necks, and will not draw as they are directed. See Hos. iv. 16.

- From the day that your fathers came up 25
Out of the land of Egypt, even to this day,

Shave off thy locks, and cast them away, 29
And raise a lamentation upon the plains ;

And dismissed the generation of his wrath.

And they have built the high-places of To- 31
phet,
Which is in the valley of Ben-Hinnom,
To burn their sons and daughters in the fire ;
Which I forbade, and altogether condemned.
Therefore, lo the days are coming, saith Je- 32
hovah,
That it shall no more be called Tophet,
Or the valley of Ben-Hinnom, but the valley of slaughter : [be left.
And they shall bury in Tophet, till no room
And the carcasses of this people shall be for 33 meat
To the fowls of the air, and to the wild beasts ;
And none shall scare them away. [Judah,
And I will cause to cease from the cities of 34
And from the streets of Jerusalem,
The voice of joy, and the voice of mirth ;
The voice of the bridegroom and of the bride ;
For the land shall become a desolation.
At that time, saith Jehovah, 1

25. Daily rising Like the day-labourer, Jehovah was so intent on their instruction and improvement ; but the prophets spent their strength nearly in vain.

29. Generation of his wrath That is, destined for their sins to suffer his wrath ; as they are called elsewhere the people of his curse. In the former lines Zion is addressed, and called like a Nazarene to bewail the sins and miseries of her people.—(a) 1 MS.

31. Which I forbade From his own holy nature and his great mercy, it was impossible that God should command, or in the least approve of human victims for sacrifice. The sense is preferred to the idiom. Compare Deut. xii. 31.

32—34. The days are coming These verses seem to refer to the dreadful slaughter which would be made of the inhabitants, and intimate that the slain should remain unburied.

CHAP. VIII. 1—3. At that time I join these verses to the 7th chapter, as they are clearly connected with it, and properly form the close of it.

- They shall cast forth out of their graves
The bones of the kings of Judah,
And the bones of the princes thereof;
The bones of the priests and of the prophets;
The bones of the inhabitants of Jerusalem.
- 2 And they shall expose them to the sun and
And to all the host of the heavens, [moon,
Which they loved, and which they served,
And after which they went, and which they
And to which they bowed down : {sought,
They shall not be gathered, nor be buried;
They shall be as dung on the face of the ground.
- 3 And death shall be chosen rather than life,
By all the remnant of this evil family,
In all places whither I have driven them,
Saith Jehovah of hosts.

CHAPTER VIII.

The people are upbraided with their impenitence; their judgment shewed; their calamities lamented and bewailed.

- 4 Thou shalt also say to them, Thus saith
Jehovah:
Shall they fall, and never rise again?
Shall they turn away, and never return?
- 5 Why then hath this people revolted,
Jerusalem with a perpetual apostasy?
They have taken fast hold of deceit;
They have refused to return. [aright;

By their graven images and foreign vanities?)
The harvest is past, the summer is ended; 20

4. Shall they fall? They do not follow the maxims of common prudence; if a man fall, will he not endeavour to arise, and be glad of any assistance? But you fall by iniquity, yet never think of arising by repentance; you turn away from God, and though he kindly calls upon you to return, you still persist in your revolt.

6. Every revolter. The text as corrected by Blaney is adopted, which consists in dividing the letters differently, which both the sense and the nature of the language render necessary.

7. Know not the judgment. The birds know and observe the seasons, but my people do not observe my providence, nor think of their duty to return to me.

8. The false pen. The scribes were not only copyers of the law, but expounders of it. Perhaps the same error then obtained which our Saviour reprehended. By their traditions they made void the law of God.

9—13. The wise are ashamed. They experience the folly of their counsels; and while rejecting God's word, they bring on themselves and their country destruction.

14. Wherefore do we? The people are introduced as speaking, and particularly those who dwell in country places, who were exposed to the incursions of the enemy.

18. When I would comfort. This may be regarded as the language of Zion, on the captivity of her people; the very thought of this made her heart to faint.

19. Lo, the crying voice. The prophet describes the people as now carried to a far distant land, and he hears their 'crying voice.' Is not Jehovah in Zion? They complain as if he had abandoned Zion and was no longer her king, to rule, to defend and protect her. To this God replies, 'Why do they expect me to help them, when they have forsaken me, and served idols?' This reply is evidently a parenthetical sentence, and in the next verse, the complaint of the people is continued.

20. The harvest is. The time in which we looked for

 For the slain of the daughter of my people.

 and other vices.

 That I might leave my people, and go from Because they are all of them adulterers ;

help is passed ; no aid has come from our allies ; we are not saved ; all our hopes are vain.

21, 22. For the wound of] This is the language of the prophet, who sensibly felt the miseries of his people ; and who asks, 'Is there no balm,' &c. That is, is her wound incurable ? Is there no physician to be found ? If there be both balm and a physician, why is not Zion healed ?
 The fault is her own, she has rejected the means of healing and safety.

CHAP. IX. 1. Oh, that my head] How pathetic is this language ; the prophet longs to ease his sorrows by a flood of tears. With the Hebrew and the old version, this verse is joined to the 5th chapter, as properly concluding it.

2. Oh that I had] God often speaks of himself as dwelling in Zion ; and here speaking after the manner of men, he wishes that he were far removed from his people, that he might not see their corrupt practices. The conclusion of the next verse proves that Jehovah is the speaker.

3. By falsehood] This is the construction which the Sept., Syr., and Arab, adopt, and which most moderns follow.

- For these things shall I not visit, saith Je- 9
 hovah ? [avenged ?
 On such a nation as this shall I not be

 And will give them water of hemlock to

 And I will scatter them among nations, 16 Whom neither they nor their fathers have

 And I will send after them the sword,
 Until I shall have made an end of them.

 That our eyes may drop down tears, [us,
 And our eye-lids pour forth waters.
 Surely the sound of wailing is heard from 19

 How are we spoiled ! we are greatly con-

4, 5. Guard against] This shows the truth of the preceding verse, that falsehood was become general, that there was no honour nor honesty among them.

6. Gain to gain] The reading of the Sept. is so apposite, that it is adopted as most probably the genuine text. See note, Hebrew Bible.

9—11. For these things] The measure of their iniquity was now full, and it was proper for God to visit them ; and on his so doing, they had need to raise a grievous cry, as Jerusalem was to become, together with the land, a desolation.—(v) Versions, MSS.

12—16. If he is the wise] If they had attended to the law, or to the threatenings of Moses, and to the language of the prophets, they might have been so wise as to understand the reason of their calamities ; but such was their ignorance and unbelief, that they expected peace when sudden destruction was at hand.

17—22. Mourning-women] See 2 Chron. xxxv. 35, Amos v. 16.—And the carcases] For the text and version, see note Fam. Bible.

When there is no one to gather it.

Nor let the mighty man glory in his might,
Nor let the rich man glory in his riches :

Those that dwell in the wilderness :
For all these nations are uncircumcised,
And all the house of Israel is uncircumcised in heart.

CHAPTER X.

Idols are not to be compared with Jehovah, the true God ; the temple destroyed, and the foolish pastors, and the wicked flock are scattered.

26. Who cut round the hair ! This is a description of the Arabs of the desert, who uniformly cut short and round the hair, most probably in honour of some god whom they served. Compare Levit. xix. 27 ; xxi. 5.

CHAP. X. 2. At the signs of the heavens The Chaldeans, among whom the Jews were destined to live in captivity, were particularly addicted to astrology, and attributed to the heavenly bodies a considerable influence over human affairs. This superstition has prevailed down to the present day.

3—6. The sacred rites Their laws and ordinances respecting the worship and service of idols ; their rites and ceremonies, are all vanity and vice. Compare Ps. cxv. 4—7. Is. xl. 19, 20 ; xlv. 9—20.

7. He shall approach This line is considered elliptical ; and the ancient versions supply, honour, glory, or kingdom. It seems however more natural and suitable to the context to consider יארה as the third person future, from ארה, to come or approach unto God in the way of worship and supplication. So the verb is used, ch. iii. 22.

9. Beaten silver They used the finest and best of every thing to decorate and render their idols beautiful and splendid.

11. [In this manner shall ye speak unto them ; the gods that have not made the heavens and the earth, shall perish from off the earth, and from under these heavens.] This verse is omitted in one MS., and the authenticity of it may be justly questioned, on account of the singularity of its being written in Chaldee, and also because it breaks in upon and interrupts the course of the argument. It was probably a marginal gloss, and designed as an answer to idolaters, among whom the Jews lived in Babylon.

14—16. Every man is stupid Every one who worships

CHAPTERS XI. XII.

God's covenant, and their violation of it ; evils coming upon them ; and on the men of Anathoth, for conspiring against Jeremiah ; his prayer against them, and their ruin.

- 1 THE WORD WHICH CAME TO JEREMIAH FROM JEHOVAH, SAYING,
- 2 HEAR ye the words of this covenant. And thou shalt speak them to the men of Judah, 3 and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem ; And 4 thou shalt say unto them, Cursed is the man who will not hearken to the words of this covenant, which I commanded your fathers in the day that I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, out of the iron furnace, saying, Hearken ye unto my voice, and do all which I command you : so shall ye be my people, and I will be your God 5

That I may perform the oath which I swore unto your fathers, to give them a land flowing with milk and honey, as at this day.
Then answered I, and said, So be it, O Je- 6 hovah. And Jehovah said unto me, Proclaim all these words in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem, saying, Hear ye the words of this covenant, and do them.
For I earnestly admonished your fathers in 7
the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, and all along unto this day, urgently admonishing, and saying, Hearken ye unto my voice. But they hearkened not, 8 nor inclined their ear, but went every one after the lusts of his wicked heart : therefore have I brought upon them all the denunciations of this covenant, which I commanded them to perform ; but they performed them not.

Also Jehovah said unto me, [dah, 9
A conspiracy is found among the men of Ju-
And among the inhabitants of Jerusalem.
They are turned to the sins of their fore- 10 fathers,
Who refused to hearken to my words ;
They have gone after other gods, to serve them ; [dah,
The house of Israel, and the house of Ju-Have broken my covenant which I made with their fathers.

Therefore thus saith Jehovah : 11
Behold ! I am about to bring evil upon them,
Which they shall not be able to escape ;
And though they cry to me, I will not hear them. [Jerusalem shall go,
And the cities of Judah and inhabitants of 12
And cry to the gods to whom they burn incense,
But these can by no means save them,
In the time of their calamity.
For as the number of thy cities were thy 13
gods, O Judah ; [lem,
And as the number of the streets of Jerusa-Ye have set up altars to a shameful thing ;

any graven or molten image ; yea, the makers of them are ashamed, when they reflect that they are lifeless. How finely does the prophet contrast with these the God of Jacob.

17. Gather up thine effects] This is addressed to Zion, and intimates that she must quit her strong-hold, and soon go into captivity.

19—22. Ho is me] In this and the following verses, the prophet seems by anticipation to suggest motives of patience and consolation to his country, in regard to the evils that were coming upon her.

2, 3. I know, O Jehovah] The sense of this verse is, that every event is under the control of providence, and that man cannot escape the miseries which God in his wisdom and justice brings upon him. Hence Zion pleaded for moderation in the divine chastisements.

25. Pour out thy wrath] I follow the more correct text of Ps. lxxix. 6, 7.

CHAP. XI. 1—8. The words of this covenant] The prophesy contained in this and the following chapter may not improbably be assigned to the reign of Josiah ; only to the latter end of it, when the people, who in the 18th year of that prince had solemnly engaged to perform the obligations of the divine covenant, may in course of time be supposed to have relapsed into their former disregard and neglect.
The prophet is therefore sent to recall them to their duty, by proclaiming anew the terms of the covenant, and rebuking them sharply for their hereditary disobedience.

9—14. A conspiracy is found] So far from adhering to the covenant made, they appeared to have combined and conspired against God by their general defection to idols.

Yet let me speak with thee of thy judgments.
Wherefore doth the way of the wicked prosper ?
At ease are all who deal very treacherously.
Thou plantedst them, and they have taken 2 root ;
They grow, yea, they bring forth fruit ;
Thou art ever near in their mouth,
But afar off from their reins.
But thou, O Jehovah, hast known me ; 3 Thou hast seen and proved my heart to be
with thee ;

I have given the dearly beloved of my soul
Into the hand of her enemies.
My heritage is to me as a lion of the forest ; 8
Against me she hath exerted her voice ;
Therefore have I hated her.
As a fierce hyena is my heritage to me ; 9
Come ye ravenous birds that are round about her,

15. My beloved to do] It is probable that this was the language usual when a husband spoke to or of his wife ; and as God had espoused the seed of Abraham, he uses the same term, though they had violated the covenant.—Shall vows] The reading of the Sept. is adopted, which clears the sense of this otherwise obscure passage. Vows and holy flesh, mean sacrifices offered in consequence of vows.

16. An olive-tree] Compare Ps. lxxx. 8—11. This refers to their first settlement in Canaan, when they were devoted to Jehovah, and prospered.—With a clamorous noise] So Michaelis, Blayney, and others render. The term רעידת occurs only here and Ezek. i. 24, and in the latter place it is explained to mean, 'like the noise of an host.' The Chaldean army is meant, which should make a noise, when about to consume this olive-tree.

18—23. This is the language of the prophet, complaining of their attempts against his life.

19. A tame lamb] So both the Vulg. and Sept. most probably reading אלום, as Dimock conjectured.—The tree with its fruit] Schultens has proved that the Arabs frequently use the word to denote the fruit of trees and plants.

22. I will execute] I omit with the Sept. the first line of this verse, as the mere repetition of some scribble ; and as interrupting the denunciation, which is, 'For this cause, thus saith Jehovah of hosts.'

CHAP. XII. 1. Righteous art] The prophet is satisfied that should he plead with God, respecting his dispensations, God would be found righteous ; yet still he resolves to speak and reason in respect to his judgments.

3. To be with thee] Thus our marginal versions. The prophet contrasts the affections of his own heart, with the hypocrisy and enmity of the hearts of his enemies.

4. He shall not see our] The most natural sense of these words is, to consider them as referring to the prophet. The men of Anathoth say, 'He shall not see our last end ;' he shall not live to see those calamities come upon us which he has predicted.

5. If thou hast run] God here addresses the prophet, and the sense of the comparisons is, that what he suffered from the threats and malice of the men of Anathoth, was nothing in comparison of what he would suffer from the princes and leading men of Jerusalem. God next cautions him against confidence even in his own relatives.

7—14. Forsaken my house] That house which they had polluted he would forsake ; and his heritage he would give up to spoilers.

- Assemble all ye wild-beasts; come to devour.
 10 Many pastors have destroyed my vineyard;
 They have trodden under foot my portion;
 They have made my pleasant portion a desert.
 11 They have laid it waste with desolation;
 On account of desolation it mourneth;
 The whole land is made desolate,
 Yet there is no man that layeth it to heart.
 12 On all the plains in the desert come spoilers;
 Surely the sword of Jehovah devoureth
 From one end of the land to the other;
 And there is no peace to any flesh.
 13 They have sown wheat and shall reap thorns;
 'Their inheritance' shall yield them no profit;
 Ye shall even be ashamed of your crops,
 Because of the fierce wrath of Jehovah.
 14 'Surely' thus saith Jehovah, [inheritance, Against all my evil neighbours who smite the
 Which I caused my people Israel to inherit;
 Behold! I will pluck them out of their land,
 And the house of Judah will I pluck from among them. [out,
 15 And it shall be, when I have plucked them
 That I will again have compassion on them,
 And will bring them back again, [land,
 Each to his possession, and each to his own 16 And it shall come to pass, [ple,
 If they will indeed learn the ways of my people
 To swear by my Name, As Jehovah liveth; Like as they taught my people to swear by Baal,
 Then shall they be built amidst my people.
 17 But if they will not hear I will pluck up that nation, [vah.
 Plucking up so as to destroy it, saith Jeho-

CHAPTER XIII.

Under the emblem of a linen girdle, the ruin of the land by the Chaldeans is shown; their various sins are vehemently reprehended.

- 1 Thus said Jehovah unto me, Go, and get thee a linen girdle, and put it upon thy 2 loins, but put it not in water. And I got the girdle according to the word of Jeho-3 vah, and I put it upon my loins. And the word of Jehovah came unto me a second 4 time, saying, 'Take the girdle which thou hast gotten, which is upon thy loins, and arise, go to the Euphrates, and hide it there in a hole of the rock. So I went, and hid it near the Euphrates, as Jehovah had commanded me. And it came to pass after many days, that Jehovah said unto me, Arise, go to the Euphrates, and take thence the girdle, which I commanded thee to hide there. And I went to the Euphrates, and digged, and took the girdle from the place where I had hidden it;

 and behold, the girdle was marred, so that it was good for nothing. And the word of Jehovah came unto me, saying Thus saith
 Jehovah:

So will I mar the excellency of Judah,
 And the excellency of Jerusalem exceedingly.
 This wicked people who refuse to obey my 10
 word,

Who walk after the lusts of their own heart,
 Who have gone after strange gods,
 To serve them, and to bow down unto them;
 Even they shall be as this girdle, that is of no use [man,

For as the girdle cleaveth to the loins of a 11

 And for a name, and for a praise, and for a
 But they would not hearken. [glory

Thou shalt also speak unto them this word, 12
 Thus saith Jehovah, the God of Israel; Every vessel shall be filled with wine. And they will say unto thee, Do we not indeed know assuredly that every vessel shall be filled with wine? Then shalt thou say to 13 them, Thus saith Jehovah, [land, Behold, I will fill all the inhabitants of this
 And the kings that sit on David's throne,
 And the priests, and the prophets,
 And all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, with drunkenness;

And I will dash them one against another, 14
 The fathers and children together, saith Je-
 I will not pity, neither will I spare, [hovah;
 Nor will show mercy so as not to destroy
 them.

9. As a fierce hyena] So the Sept. have rendered; and the word has this sense in the Arabic. It is known that the hyena does dig up the dead bodies from the grave; and hence the next lines specify both ravenous birds and beasts as coming to devour flesh. The learned reader may see Michaelis in verb.

10, 11. On account of desolation] See note, Fam. Bib. The pastors denote governors and princes, who by their oppressions destroyed and laid waste the vineyard. In the next verse they are called spoilers.

13. Their inheritance] So the versions, which gives a full and clear sense. The labours of the husbandmen should be vain, as others would eat the produce.

14-17. Exit neighbours] On the fall of Israel and Judah, the neighbouring nations took and possessed different parts of their land; but God here promises a restoration to his people, and denounces against those nations judgments, unless they learned the ways of his people, that is embraced their God and his law,—(a) Sept. 2 MSS.

CHAP. XIII. 1. Get thee a linen] This chapter contains a single and distinct prophecy, which under two symbols, a linen girdle left to rot, and all vessels being filled with wine, foretells the utter destruction that was destined to fall upon the whole Jewish nation, including the individuals of every rank and denomination.

1. Go to the Euphrates] As this was far distant from Judea, it is most probable that this was a vision. The same supposition of a vision must be admitted in other cases also, particularly ch. xxv. 15-29, for it would be a downright absurdity to believe, that Jeremiah actually went round with a cup in his hand to all those kings and nations there enumerated, and made them drink of its contents.

10, 11. This wicked people] We have now the application of the emblem which the prophet had used. I render the Apadosis conditionally, as the conclusion of the eleventh verse requires.

12-14. Shall be filled with wine] With the wine of God's wrath.

- 15 Hear ye, and attend; be not lifted up;
Surely Jehovah hath spoken.
- 16 Give ye glory to Jehovah, your God,
Before he cause darkness, [tains;
And your feet stumble on the gloomy mountain-
And lest while ye are looking for light,
He turn it into darkness and death-shade.

A grievous famine; Jehovah will not be entreated; the utter rejection of the Jews for their manifold sins; the prophet complaining is encouraged by a gracious promise.

THE WORD OF JEHOVAH WHICH CAME TO 1
JEREMIAH.

Because of the drought Judah mourneth, 2
And the gates thereof languish;
They are in deep mourning for the land;
And the cry of Jerusalem is gone up.
The nobles have sent their little ones for 3 water;
They came to the pits; they found no water;
They returned with their vessels empty;
They were ashamed and confounded;
They covered their heads.
Because the ground is crumbled to dust, 4 Forasmuch as there hath been no rain on the
The husbandmen were ashamed; [land
They covered their heads.
When the hind also had calved in the fields, 5
She forsook the kid, because there was no grass.
And the wild asses stood on the plains; 6
They snuffed up the wind like dragons;
Their eyes were wasted; for there was no
grass.
Though our iniquities testify against us, 7
O Jehovah, do thou act for thy name's sake:
For our apostasies have been many;
We have sinned against thee.
O hope of Israel, his Saviour in time of dis- 8
tress, [land?
Wherefore wilt thou be as a stranger in the
And as a traveller turning aside only to lodge?

16. He turn it] The text has here evidently suffered, as the various readings prove; but from other places and the old versions it may happily be corrected. The version adopted gives the sense of the prophet. See Blayney and Houbigant.

17. Because of your pride] For the text followed, see note Fam. Bib.

18. King and queen] By these are most probably meant Jehoia-kim and his consort. See ch. xxii. 18.

19. Carried away captive] He speaks as if the enemy were at the door, and as if all his designs were accomplished.

21. What wilt thou say] This is said to Zion or the community of the people.—Teachest them] The wicked thou hast not only suffered, but placed over thee; hence punishment shall come upon thee.

22. Wherefore have] The prophet gives the answer; it is on account of the abundance of her iniquity that Zion was treated as a captive female, stripped and exposed to shame.

23. Can the Cushite] Bochart has proved that the Cushites were Arabians; and Blayney agrees with him, observing that they dwell on the banks of the Red sea, and bordered on Egypt and Philistia. See ch. xli. 9. Is. xx. 3—5, and 2 Chron. xxi. 16.—Do what is good] The sense is, that evil habits are a second nature, and not easily conquered.

24—27. This is thy lot] This is what Jehovah has appointed for thee to suffer, on account of thy idolatry and great wickedness.

CHAP. XIV. 1. The word of Jehovah] It is probable that this prophecy was delivered in the beginning of Jehoia-kim's reign, not long after the foregoing, since the subject-matter will equally fall in with this season as with the other.

2. Because of the drought] For critical reasons, see note Fam. Bib. The plural number is adopted, most probably to denote that the usual showers were withheld, not for one season only, but for a continued succession of them; as was the case in the reign of King Ahab, 1 Kings xvii. 1.

3, 4. The nobles] These two verses show that the drought was extreme; and of course that great distress prevailed.

5. She forsook] This is supplied as understood in the text. Want led these affectionate animals to desert their young, in order to seek food for themselves.

6. Wild asses stood] Oppressed with intolerable heat and thirst, they inhaled the breeze like large serpents, which, according to Bochart and others, often erect their heads, and open their mouths for hours for the same purpose.

8, 9. O hope of Israel] The prophet complains that Jehovah seemed unconcerned about what was occurring, as

- 9 Wherefore wilt thou be 'as one asleep?'
As a man that hath no power to save?
Seeing thou art in the midst of us, O Jehovah,
[not.
And we are called by thy name, desert us
- 10 Thus said Jehovah concerning this people,
They have so loved to wander; [ple,
Their feet have they not restrained,
Therefore Jehovah accepteth them not:
Now will he remember their iniquity,
And will take an account of their sins.
- 11 Therefore said Jehovah unto me,
Pray not for this people, for their good.
- 12 When they fast, I will not hearken to their

- 13 Then said I, Alas! O Lord Jehovah!
Behold the prophets say unto them,
Ye shall not see the sword, nor have famine;
But true peace will I give you in this place.
- 14 Then said Jehovah unto me;
The prophets prophesy falsely in my name:
I have not sent them, nor commanded them,
Neither have I spoken unto them;
A false vision and divination and vanity,
And the guile of their heart they prophesy
- 15 Therefore thus saith Jehovah; [to you.
As to the prophets who prophesy in my name, [selves,
And I sent them not, but who say of them-
Sword and famine shall not be in this land;
By sword and famine shall they be consumed.
- 16 These prophets, and the people to whom they prophesy, [lem,
Shall be cast forth in the streets of Jerusa-
Because of the famine and the sword;
And they shall have none to bury them;
They, their wives, their sons and daughters;
And I will pour their wickedness upon them.
- 17 And thou shalt say unto them this word;
Let mine eyes shed down tears night and
And let them not cease; [day,
Because a great hurt hath been inflicted
On the virgin daughter of my people;
- A blow which is exceedingly painful.
If I go out into the fields, 18
Then behold those that are slain by the sword!
And when I enter into the city, [mine!

I would not regard this people; [depart.

Then shalt thou say unto them, Thus saith

And they that are for famine, unto famine;
And they that are for captivity unto captivity.
And I appoint to them four kinds, saith Je- 3

To devour and to destroy their carcases.

And because of what he did in Jerusalem.

if he were a stranger in the land, or a mere traveller passing through it.—As one asleep] So the Sept. renders. The sense is, Jehovah acted as if asleep, and as if he had no power to save.

11. For their good] Or for their prosperity and happiness in the land. It is only in this sense the prophet is forbid to pray for them. He might, and doubtless did pray for their souls.

13. True peace] That is, firm and durable prosperity. The false prophets thus flattered the hopes and desires of the wicked.

16. These prophets] The last two words of the preceding verse are joined to this, with Dathe, as more suitable to the Hebrew idiom.

17, 18. Let mine eyes run] The prophet laments the past and present miseries of his country, the slaughter made by the Egyptians, 2 Kings xxiii. 29, and 2 Chron. xxv. 20, and the drought and consequent famine.

19—22. Hast thou altogether] These questions do not imply that God had, or that the prophet believed he had utterly rejected Judah; but if he had not, why did he smite them and treat them so severely? He humbles himself when he thinks on their sins, and pleads for mercy.

CHAP. XV. 1. I would not regard] Hebrew, 'My soul would not be towards this people.' The sense is given in equivalent terms, but more agreeable to the English idiom.

2. They that are for death] This is forcible language, and could not be heard without some effect, unless by a people who were totally hardened, and dead to all fear.

3. Four kinds] That is, of judgments, as it follows. Nothing could be more distressing to a people who paid such

She is ashamed and confounded;

I sat alone, for thou filledst me with wrath.

attention to the rites of sepulture, than to be informed that they would be wholly devoured by wild beasts and birds.

5. To seek thy welfare] So I conceive the connexion requires that we should render לַשְׁאֵל, to seek, or ask about it in any manner.

6. Weary of forbearing] This is the sense of the Syriac and Sept.

8. Their mother city] For this sense of מִצְרַיִם, see 2 Sam. xx. 19. The 'chosen one' signifies Nehuchadnezzar.—An hostile attack] This sense of נִשְׁבַּח is adopted as most suitable to the connexion. See Gesen.

9. She that hath borne seven] That is, sons, shall not have protection from them. She shall be cut off; her sun goeth down while it is yet day, and any of her posterity that may have escaped, shall fall by the sword of the victorious enemy.

10. Wo unto me] The prophet here complains of his lot, and like Job laments that his mother ever bore him; as he seemed to be destined to endless strife and contention with his unbelieving countrymen.

11. Shall not I turn it for good] God promises that he would overrule what he suffered for his good, that he would conciliate the enemy in the most trying times, which we find he actually did. Compare ch. xxxix. 11—14.

12. Shall the iron] Here God addresses the people, and the sense of this language is, that the iron, or strength of Judea, was not able to break the northern iron and the brass, or military strength of Chaldea. The next verses express the same truth in plain terms.

13 (o) All. Syr. Chald.

15. By the continued] Our old versions are followed in this rendering, as it is supported by the ancient. The prophet seems to fear lest he shall fall among others.

16. And I embraced them] Compare Ezek. iii. 1—3. —Thy command] To me to go and proclaim thy word.

18. Wilt thou be to me] This is the version of Michaelis, and it would be profane for the prophet to speak of God as a liar. Compare Mic. i. 14; Isa. lviii. 11; and Job vi. 15—20. The sense evidently is, Wilt thou disappoint my hopes and expectations?

19. When I shall bid thee] It is necessary to render in this manner, to give the full force of the future in this connexion.—The precious from] That is, preach sound doctrine, distinguishing truth from error, and applying truth as the test of men's characters.

CHAP. XVI. 1. The word of Jehovah] The prophecy which begins here is continued on to the 18th verse of the next chapter. Nor is there any reason to suspect its being

To the sons and to the daughters,
Those that are born in this place; [them,
And concerning their mothers that bare
And their fathers that begat them in this 4 They shall die of mortal diseases; [land;
They shall not be lamented nor buried;
They shall be for dung on the face of the ground; [sumed;
For by sword and famine shall they be con-
And their carcasses shall be for meat
To the fowls of the air, and to the wild beasts.
5 Verily thus said Jehovah;
Enter not into the house of mourning, Neither go to lament nor to condole with
them;
For I withdraw my peace from this people,
Saith Jehovah, kindness and compassion.
6 And they shall die great and small in this
land;
They shall not be buried nor lamented;
No one shall cut himself for them,
Nor any one make himself bald for them.
7 Neither shall they break bread among them,
For a mourner to comfort him over the dead; [tions,
Nor give them to drink of the cup of consolati-
For one's father, or for one's mother.
8 Also enter not into the house of feasting,
To sit down with them to eat and to drink.
9 For thus saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel;
Behold, I will cause to cease from this place,
Before your eyes, and in your days,
The voice of joy and the voice of gladness,
The voice of the bridegroom and of the bride.
10 And it shall be when thou shalt have declared unto this people all these things;
and they shall say unto thee, Wherefore hath Jehovah pronounced against us all this great evil? and what is our iniquity, and what our sin, which we have committed 11 against Jehovah, our God? Then shalt thou say unto them, [Jehovah, Because your fathers forsook me, saith
And followed after other gods,
And served them, and worshipped them,
And forsook me, and did not keep my law:
12 And ye have done worse than your fathers;
For behold! ye, every one of you, follow

The lusts of your own wicked heart,
And unto me ye have not hearkened.
Therefore I will cast you out from this land, 13

fathers; [night;
And there shall ye serve other gods day and
And there I will show you no favour.

And afterwards I will send for many hunters, [tain,

rocks.

THE sin of Judah is written with a pen of iron;
With the point of a diamond it is engraved,

out of its proper place, but that it may have been delivered, as well as those of the preceding chapter, towards the beginning of Jehoiakim's evil reign.

5-7. The house of mourning] Compare Amos vi. 7. These rites of mourning were common.

8, 9. House of feasting] This was to intimate that all joy should cease, both from the city and the land.

10-13. All this great evil] It is stated for what causes these calamities should come on them, so that they should be carried captives to a foreign land, and dwell among idolaters.

14, 15. The days shall come] Here is a promise of their restoration, for the encouragement of such as loved Zion, and the land of their fathers.

16-18. Fishers—hunters] To fish is to take them in a net, and to hunt is to take and destroy the game; so God would employ many fishers and hunters to ensnare, catch, and destroy the sinners in Zion.

19, 20. O Jehovah, my strength] The prophet, shocked at the apostasy of Israel, and concerned for God's honour, looks forward to the time when, as he predicts, even the Gentiles themselves shall become sensible of the absurdity of their hereditary idolatry, and be converted to the acknowledgment of the true God.

21. At this time] The time alluded to is undoubtedly that, when the gospel was to be preached to and embraced by the Gentiles; when God promises that he would make such a display of his mighty power, as should amply convince them of the truth of his existence and divinity.

CHAP. XVII. 1, 2. Written with a pen] Idolatry was

- Upon the tablet of their heart,
And upon the horns of their altars :
- 2 While their children remember their altars and grove idols,
Among the green trees upon the high hills.
- 3 O my mountain, thy substance in the field,
And all thy stores will I give up for a spoil ;
Thy high-places for sin through all thy borders.
- 4 And I will "remove thee" from the inheritance
Which I have given unto thee ;
And I will cause to serve thine enemies,
In a land which thou hast not known ;
Because a fire is kindled in mine anger,
Which shall burn continually.
- 5 Thus saith Jehovah ;
Accursed is the man who trusteth in man,
And maketh flesh his arm of support,
And whose heart departeth from Jehovah.
- 6 For he shall be as the blasted tree of the waste,
Which doth not perceive when good cometh ;
But endures the scorching heats of the desert ;
Of a barren land that cannot be inhabited.
- 7 Blessed is the man who trusteth in Jehovah,
And the object of whose trust Jehovah is.
- 8 For he shall be as a tree planted by the waters,
Which sendeth forth its roots by the stream,
And doth not perceive when heat cometh ;
But its foliage is continually green,
And in a year of drouth it is unconcerned,
Neither doth it cease from bearing fruit.
- 9 The heart is wily above all things ;
It is very wicked ; who can know it ?
- 10 I Jehovah search the heart, and try the reins,
To give to every man according to his ways,
And according to the fruit of his doings.
- 11 As the bird that hatcheth what it did not lay,
So is he who getteth riches, and not by
In the midst of his days he shall leave them,
Or in his latter end shall be a criminal.
- 12 A glorious high-raised throne from the

All who forsake thee shall be ashamed,

And shall be recorded in the earth as revolters :
Because they have forsaken Jehovah,

Save me, and I shall be saved : for thou art
Behold, these say unto me, [my praise. 15
Where is the word of Jehovah ? let it come now.
I have not withdrawn from following thee ; 16
But the fatal day I have not desired ;
Thou knowest what hath issued from my lips
Hath been spoken as before thy face.
Be not thou a terror unto me ; 17
Thou art my refuge in the day of adversity
Let those who persecute me be made 18

But let not me be made ashamed, [mayed.
Let them be dismayed, but let not me be dis-
Thus said Jehovah unto me ; Go and 19 stand in the gate of the people, through which the kings of Judah come in, and through which they go out, and in all the gates of Jerusalem : And thou shalt say unto 20 them, Hear ye the word of Jehovah, O ye kings of Judah, and all Judah, and all ye inhabitants of Jerusalem, that pass through these gates. Thus saith Jehovah, Take heed 21 unto yourselves, and carry no burden on the sabbath-day, nor bring one in through the gates of Jerusalem : Neither bring ye forth 22 any burden out of your houses on the sabbath-day, neither transact ye any manner of business ; but keep ye holy the sabbath-day ;
according as I commanded your fathers .
But they hearkened not, nor inclined their 23
ear, but stiffened their neck, so as not to hear, and so as not to receive instruction.
And it shall be, if ye will indeed hearken 24 unto me, saith Jehovah, so as not to bring in any burden through the gates of this city on the sabbath-day, but to keep holy the sabbath-day, without transacting thereon any manner of business : then shall there 25 enter in at the gates of this city kings and princes sitting upon the throne of David, riding in chariots, and upon horses, they, and their chieftains, men of Judah, and inhabitants of Jerusalem ; and this city shall be fixed in their affections and memory, as firmly as if engraved on a tablet of brass, or any other durable substance.

This was directly opposed to the divine command, Deuter.
xi. 18—20. Compare Prov. iii. 3 ; vii. 3.

3. O my mountain] This denotes Judah, as the same term is applied figuratively, to denote great princes or kingdoms. Compare Isa. xli. 15, and Jer. li. 25.

4 (v) Syr.

5. Flesh his arm] Weak, frail man ; relying on him, as if he could at all times be his help and salvation, without any regard to God.

6. A blasted tree] Celsius renders, Juniper, which Dathe adopts. The following verses prove that a tree of the waste is meant, but one deprived of its foliage.

8. Neither doth it cease] How appropriate is this comparison ! While confidence in man is ever disappointed, that which is placed in God is happily realized, in the enjoyment of peace and prosperity.

11. As the bird that] It is evident from 1 Sam. xxvi. 20, that the חור is a bird that frequents the mountains ; and of little value ; so that the 'partridge' cannot be meant.
Nor is it known that the partridge does sit on the eggs of other birds. The comparison implies that as the young when hatched will soon desert their supposititious dam, so the riches acquired by oppression and plunder, will at length depart or the possessor be taken off by the hand of justice.—A criminal] See 2 Sam. iii. 33, and note.

16. I have not withdrawn] So Gesenius explains, and Michaelis agrees with him.

19—27. Thus said Jehovah] From this address respect-

26 established for ever. And there shall come from the cities of Judah, and from the environs of Jerusalem, and from the land of Benjamin, and from the plain, and from the hill country, and from the south, persons bringing burnt-offerings, and sacrifices, and meat-offerings, and incense, and bringing offerings of praise unto the house of 27 Jehovah. But if ye will not hearken unto me, to keep holy the sabbath-day, and not to carry any burden, and go through the gates of Jerusalem on the sabbath-day; then will I kindle a fire in the gates thereof, and it shall consume the palaces of Jerusalem, and it shall not be extinguished.

CHAPTER XVIII.

By the type of a potter, God's dominion over nations showed; his judgments on Judah.

- 1 THE word which came to Jeremiah from Jehovah, saying, Arise, and go down to the potter's house, and there I will cause thee 2 to hear my words. So I went down to the potter's house, and behold he was at work 3 upon the wheels. And the vessel which he was making of clay, was marred by the hand 4 of the potter; and he began anew, and made it another vessel, as it seemed meet to 5 the potter to make. Then came the word of Jehovah unto me, saying,
- 6 Cannot I do after the manner of this potter, [vah. With you, O house of Israel, saith Jehovah. Behold, as the clay is in the hand of the potter, So are ye in my hand, O house of Israel.
- 7 When I shall speak of a nation or kingdom, Of plucking up, casting down, and destroying;
- 8 And that nation of which I have spoken Shall turn from its wickedness; [do to it. I also will repent of the evil I proposed to
- 9 And when I shall speak of a nation or kingdom, Of building up, and of planting; [dom,
- 10 And it shall do what is evil in my sight, And will not hearken unto my voice :

ing the sabbath, it is evident that the law commanding it to be kept holy, was grossly violated; that day was made a day of business, and proved the wickedness of the people.

CHAP. XVIII. 1. The word which] The prophecies and transactions contained in this and the two following chapters must be referred to some part of the three first years of Jehoiaakim's reign.

3. Upon the wheel] Blayney adheres to the text, 'upon the stones,' and supposes that one stone was fixed, but the other turned upon a spindle, and on this the clay was placed. This might be so, but as the reading is doubtful, the common version is adopted.

6. Cannot I do] However human pride and presumption may oppose, this is a truth which cannot possibly be refuted.

12. Of this there is] The reason assigned is singular, that such were their habits and resolutions, they could not think of any reformation

14. Will one leave the snow of Lebanon] The version

Which I said that I would do for its benefit.

And now, I pray, speak to the men of 11 Judah,

Return ye now every man from his evil way,

And amend your ways and your doings.

But they said, Of this there is no hope ; 12

For after our own imaginations will we go,

And each practise the lusts of his evil heart.

Therefore thus saith Jehovah ; 13

Inquire now among the nations,

Who hath heard such things as these ?

A very horrible deed the virgin of Israel hath done.

As with an east wind I will scatter them be- 17

I will show them the back, and not the face,

In the day of their destruction.

Then said they, Come and let us devise 18 measures against Jeremiah : for the law shall not fail from the priest, nor counsel from the wise man, nor the word from the prophet :

Come and let us smite him on the tongue,

and let us not regard any of his words.

Give heed unto me, O Jehovah, 19

And listen to the voice of my adversaries.

Shall evil be rendered for good ? 20

Surely they have digged a pit for my soul.

Remember how I have stood before thee,

To intercede for their welfare,

To turn away thine anger from them.

given of this obscure verse is both literal and plain. The meaning seems to be, Will a man leave the cool refreshing snow-water of Lebanon, for a dry barren rock, yielding no water? Will a man forsake the cool flowing stream, to seek water at a distance? Will he neglect what is best, and easily attained, for what is worse, and must be acquired with difficulty? Yet such had been the conduct of Israel.

17. The east wind] See Isa. xxvii. 8; Hos. xiii. 15.

18. Smite him on the tongue] That is, on the offending part; which may possibly carry this general import only, 'let us punish him so as effectually to silence him.'

19—23. Give heed unto me] The prophet reflecting how undeserved this evil treatment was, and conscious that he had sought their safety, both by his public ministry, and his private intercessions, imprecates judgments on them as incorrigible offenders. We ought to remember that these imprecations respect only this life, and not the eternal state of men.

- 21 Therefore give up their sons unto famine,
And let them be pierced by means of the sword;
Let their women be childless and widows,
And let their men be killed by pestilence;
Their young men slain by the sword in battle.
- 22 Let an outcry be heard from their houses,
When thou shalt bring a troop suddenly upon them;
Because they have digged a pit to catch me,
And snares have they privily laid for my feet.
- 23 But thou, O Jehovah, hast known
Their whole counsel against my life:
Accept no atonement for their iniquity,
And blot not out their sin from before thee:
But let them be overthrown in thy presence;
In the time of thy wrath proceed against them.

CHAPTER XIX.

By the type of breaking a potter's vessel, is foreshown the destruction of Jerusalem for the sins of the people; the doom of Pashur.

- 1 Thus said Jehovah unto me; Go, and get a potter's earthen vessel, and take some of the elders of the people, and of the elders of the priests. And thou shalt go forth unto the valley of Ben-Hinnom, which lieth before the gate Harsith, and shalt proclaim there the words which I shall speak unto thee. And thou shalt say, Hear the word of Jehovah, O ye kings of Judah, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem. Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel; Behold, I am about to bring evil upon this place, which whosoever heareth, both his ears shall ring: Because they have forsaken me, and have alienated this place, and have burned incense in it to strange gods, whom they have not known; they, and their fathers, and the kings of Judah; and have filled this place with the blood of innocents: And have erected the high-places of Baal, to burn their sons in the fire for burnt-offerings to Baal, which I most strictly forbid, and altogether condemned. Therefore behold the days are coming, saith Jehovah, that this place shall no more be called Tophet, or the valley of Ben-Hinnom, but the valley of slaughter. For I will defeat the counsel of Judah and of Jerusalem in this place: and I will cause them to fall by the sword before their enemies, and by the hand of them that seek their lives; and their dead bodies will I give for meat unto the fowls of the air, and unto the wild beasts: And I will make this city an object of astonishment and of hissing: every one that passeth by shall be astonished, and shall hiss because of all its plagues. And I will cause them to eat the flesh of their sons, and the flesh of their daughters; and they shall eat every one the flesh of his companion during the siege and the distress, with which their enemies and those that seek their lives shall straiten them. Then shalt thou break the vessel in the sight of the men that go with thee; and thou shalt say to them, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, So will I break this people, and this city as he breaketh the potter's vessel, which cannot be made whole again; and men shall bury in Tophet, until there be no room to bury. Thus will I do unto this place, saith Jehovah, and to the inhabitants thereof, even so as to make this city like Tophet. And the houses of Jerusalem, and the houses of the kings of Judah, shall be as the place, Tophet, unclean; together with all the houses, on whose roofs they have burned incense unto all the host of heaven, pouring out also oblations unto strange gods.

And Jeremiah came from Tophet, whither Jehovah had sent him to prophesy; and stood in the court of the house of Jehovah, and said to all the people, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel; behold, I am about to bring upon this city, and upon all the cities belonging to it, all the evil which I have denounced against it; because they have stiffened their neck, so as not to hearken to my words.

WHEN Pashur the son of Immer, the priest, (who was also the commanding officer in the house of Jehovah,) heard Jeremiah prophesying these things: Then Pashur smote Jeremiah, the prophet, and committed him to the prison which was in the higher gate of Benjamin, which was near the house of Jehovah. And it came to pass the next day, when Pashur released Jeremiah from prison, that Jeremiah said unto him, Jehovah hath called thy name not Pashur, but

21. Be pierced by] For this sense of כָּרַךְ, see Michaelis, in verb., and Prov. xxi. 7.

CHAR. XIX. 2. The gate of Harsith] As it is not certain that this was the east gate, I have rendered as a proper name. It is most probable that it was the gate called Dung-gate, Nehem. iii. 13, 14, as the Chaldee explains it.

5. Which I most strictly forbid] Compare ch. vii. 31, and note. I have preferred the sense to the idiom.

7. Valley of slaughter] In consequence of the victory which the Chaldeans would obtain over the Jews. They should be slain there in such numbers, that room should be wanted to bury them.

9. The flesh of their sons] Compare Levit. xxi. 29. Deuter. xxviii. 53, and Lament. iv. 10.

14, 15. Jeremiah came] It was necessary not only to show the elders of the people and of the priests, what God was about to do, but to inform the people in general, that they might have no excuse.

CHAR. XX. 1. The commanding officer] David distributed the priests into twenty-four courses, and the head of each course was the Governor within the temple, 1 Chron. xxiv. 5. The course of Immer was the 16th, and Pashur the head of it. These persons I look upon to be the same with those, who in the New Testament are styled ἀρχιερεῖς,

- 4 Magor-missabib. For thus saith Jehovah, Behold, I am about to make thee a terror to thyself, and to all thy friends; and they shall fall by the sword of their enemies, thine eyes also looking on; and all Judah will I give into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall carry them captive unto Babylon, and shall smite them with the sword.
- 5 And I will give all the strength of this city, and all its industry, and all that is valuable in it, and all the treasures of the kings of Judah, will I give into the hand of their enemies, and they shall spoil them, and take
- 6 them, and carry them to Babylon. And thou Pashur, and all that dwell in thy house, ye shall go into captivity; and thou shalt enter Babylon, and there thou shalt die; and there thou shalt be buried, thou and all thy friends, to whom thou hast prophesied falsely.

CHAPTER XX.

Jeremiah complains on account of the difficulties and persecutions he experienced in the discharge of his office.

- 7 Thou didst persuade me Jehovah, and I was persuaded; [vail; Thou wast stronger than I, and didst pre- I am every day the subject of laughter; Every one "of them" holdeth me in derision.
- 8 For whensoever I speak, [tion, If I cry out of violence, or proclaim devastation the word of Jehovah is turned against me, Into reproach and disgrace continually. [it,
- 9 But when I say, I will not make mention of Neither will I speak any more in his name; Then it becomes in my heart as a burning Being pent up within my bones; [fire, I am weary with refraining, and cannot be silent.
- 10 Surely I have heard the babbling of many: Report ye terror around, and we will report it: All my familiar friends watch for my halting; Perhaps, say they, he may be allured aside,

'chief priests,' being next in dignity and power to the high-priest.

3. Magor-missabib This word signifies, 'Terror all around.' And God's calling him by that name implies that he would render him such as he called him. So when God called Abram by the new name of Abraham, he assigns the reason; 'For a father of many nations have I made thee,' Gen. xvii. 5.

5. Strength of this city This means 'the men of war,' which constitute the strength of a city or state; as 'industry,' does the industrious artisans and mechanics; and 'all that is valuable,' the honourable and respectable members of the community, not included in the two former classes.

7. Thou didst persuade The sense given to פָּרַח is now adopted by the best critics. The prophet seems to refer to those promises which God made when he called him to the arduous office. Compare ch. i. 7, 8; xvii. 19; xv. 19—21.—(a) Chald.

9. I will not make Jeremiah was discouraged by the opposition made to him; and if a divine impulse had not urged him on, would have ceased to speak any more in God's name.

So that we may prevail against him, And may take our revenge of him. But Jehovah is with me, as a terrible hero; 11 My persecutors shall therefore stumble, And they shall never prevail; They shall be greatly ashamed, because they have not prospered; [gotten. With everlasting shame that shall not be forgotten. And, O Jehovah of hosts, who triest the 12 righteous, Who discernest the reins and the heart, I shall see thy vengeance upon them, For unto thee have I laid open my cause. Sing ye to Jehovah, praise ye Jehovah, 13 For he hath delivered the soul of the poor one

From the hand of evil-doers, when I said, Accursed be the day on which I was born; 14 Nor be the day blessed on which my mother bare me; [father Accursed the man who announced to my 15 Saying, there is a male child born to thee; Thus making him exceedingly glad. And let that man be as the cities, [not; 16 Which Jehovah overthrew and repented Even hearing an outcry in the morning, And an alarm at the time of noon: Why did not one slay me in the womb, 17 So that my mother might have been my grave, [ever? The womb of her that conceived me, for Wherefore, came I forth from the womb, 18 To experience affliction and sorrow, That my days should be spent in shame?

CHAPTER XXII.

Exhortation to repentance; the judgment of Shallum and of Jeconiah.

Thus said Jehovah; Go down to the 1 house of the king of Judah, and thou shalt speak there this word, and shalt say,

Hear the word of Jehovah, O king of Judah, that sittest upon the throne of David; thou and thy servants, and thy people, that enter in through these gates: thus saith Je- 3

10. Report ye terror His enemies, to intimidate, raised and spread reports of the dangers that awaited him, that he would soon be cut off; and even his friends thought that he would soon be silenced.

11. A terrible hero One that will strike terror into his opponents, and surely prevail against them.

13. Sing ye to Jehovah With Michaelis, I begin a new paragraph with this verse, and consider it as expressive of his gratitude for deliverance from the state of mind so forcibly expressed in the following verses.

15, 16. Be the man This is the strong language of grief and despair; and only signifies that he had reason to wish that he had not been born; and that the person who announced his birth had not existed, or existed only in perpetual fear.

17. Why did not one I have, with Dathe and others, given an unusual sense to נָחַם, but the exigence of the place requires it.

CHAP. XXI. or XXII. 1. The 21st chapter is evidently out of its place. From the two first verses of it, we learn that it was delivered in answer to a message sent by Zedekiah, when the king of Babylon was advancing against him.

- hovah, Execute judgment and righteousness, and deliver the spoiled from the hand of the oppressor; and the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, defraud ye not, nor injure by violence, neither shed innocent blood in this place. For if ye shall do according to this word, then shall there enter by the gates of this house, kings sitting upon the throne of David, riding in chariots, and upon horses, each one attended by his servants and people. But if ye will not hearken to these words, by myself have I sworn, saith Jehovah, surely this house shall become a desolation. For thus hath Jehovah said, concerning the house of the king of Judah; through me thou art become as Gilead, and as the summit of Lebanon; yet will I assuredly make thee a desert, and as cities which are not inhabited.
- 7 And I will commission against thee destroyers, every man with his weapons; and they shall cut down thy choice cedars, and shall cast them into the fire. And many nations shall pass by this city, and they shall say one to another, Why hath Jehovah done thus to this great city? Then shall this answer be given to them, Because they forsook the covenant of Jehovah their God, and worshipped other gods and served them.
- 10 Weep not for the dead, nor bemoan him; weep bitterly for him that is gone away, for he shall no more return, nor see his native land. For thus saith Jehovah concerning Shallum, the son of Josiah, king of Judah, who reigned instead of Josiah, his father, who went forth from this place; he shall not return thither any more: but in the place to which he was led captive, there shall he die, and shall no more see this land.
- 13 Wo to him that buildeth his house by injustice, And his upper apartments, by wrong; That maketh his neighbour serve for nothing,
- And payeth him not for his work; That saith, I will build for myself A spacious house, and lofty apartments; Cutting out also for himself windows, And ceiling with cedar, and painting with vermilion. Shalt thou indeed continue to reign, Because thou viest with others in cedar? Did not thy father eat and drink, And execute judgment and justice? And then did he enjoy prosperity. He judged the cause of the poor and needy; Did he not then prosper by owning me? saith Jehovah. But thine eyes and thy heart Are only upon the objects of thy evil desire, And intent on shedding innocent blood, And practising oppression and extortion. Therefore thus saith Jehovah, Concerning Jehoiakim, son of Josiah, king of Judah, They shall not lament for him, saying, Ah! my brother! nor for the queen, Ah, sister! They shall not lament for him, saying, Ah Lord! nor for her, Ah, her glory! With the burial of an ass shall he be buried, 19 Drawn forth and cast beyond the gates of Jerusalem. Go up to Lebanon, and cry aloud, 20 And upon Bashan raise thy voice, And cry aloud from the borders: Surely all who loved thee are destroyed. I spoke unto thee in thy tranquillity, But thou saidst, I will not hearken; Such hath been thy manner from thy youth; For thou hast not hearkened to my voice. A blast shall carry off all thy pastors, 21 And they who love thee shall go into captivity. Surely thou shalt then be ashamed, [vity, And confounded because of all thy wickedness. O inhabitant of Lebanon [ness. 21 Who hast built thy nest in the cedars, which was in the ninth year of his reign. All the prophecies delivered in the reign of Jehoiakim, and the eight first years of the reign of Zedekiah, ought to precede this, and with Blayney I have transposed accordingly.

6. Through me thou] Gilead was the richest and most fertile part of Judea, and in Lebanon was the highest mountains in Israel; the latter, therefore, represents the royal family advanced to the highest rank and dignity, and the former, the wealth and prosperity of the country. Yet for their sins, this country would be made desolate, and the royal family, the cedars of Lebanon, cut down.

10 Weep bitterly for him] The next verse informs us that the person who was gone away was Shallum. It is most probable that Shallum was his name before he ascended the throne, and that he then assumed that of Jehoahaz, as his brothers Eliakim and Mattaniah assumed the names of Jehoiakim and Zedekiah, 2 Kings xxiii. 34, and xxiv. 17. From 1 Chron. iii. 15; the sons of Josiah are said to be Johanan, Jehoiakim, Zedekiah, and Shallum. It is probable the first died, as he is no more mentioned; and if the age of Zedekiah, 2 Kings xxiv. 18, be right, it is certain that Shallum could not be the youngest son of Josiah, so that the names, 1 Chron. iii. 15, should be Johanan, Jehoiakim, Shallum, Zedekiah.

13. Wo to him that] From this and the following verse it is probable that Jehoiakim was a tyrannical prince, and greatly oppressed the people; requiring their service while enlarging and ornamenting his palace, and giving them nothing.

15. Thou viest with] The verb is rendered 'to contend' ch. xii. 5; and in Syriac has yet this sense. There is no authority for 'enclose thyself.'

17—19. Shedding innocent blood] Perhaps this refers both to wanton injustice, and to the offering of human victims to the gods which he and the people worshipped. With the burial of an ass] From Ezek. xix. 8, 9, it is clear that Jehoiakim was taken prisoner, and delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon, who confined him in close custody, and he dying, perhaps from his wound, Nebuchadnezzar, to manifest his abhorrence and to intimidate his successor, ordered his dead body to be cast before the walls of Jerusalem. Compare ch. xxxvi. 30.

20—22. Go up to Lebanon] God commissioned the prophet to go to the highest places, and address the people; and assure them, that their governors, called pastors, should soon perish.

23. (v) Sept.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Wicked rulers to be punished, and the scattered flock to be restored; false prophets severely reprehended and threatened.

1 Ho to the shepherds who destroy and scatter
The sheep of my pasture, saith Jehovah !
2 Thus, therefore, saith Jehovah, God of Israel ;
As to the shepherds who feed my people,
Ye have scattered my flock, and driven them
And ye have taken no care of them ; [away,
Behold ! I will soon visit upon you
The evil of your doings, saith Jehovah,
3 But I will gather the remnant of my flock,
From all countries whither I had driven
them,
And will bring them back to their own fold,
And they shall be fruitful and shall increase.

24-26. This reading is found 1 Chron. iii. 16, 17, and Matt. i. 12. When he was raised to the throne he was called Jeconiah. For the fulfilment of what is here said, see 2 Kings xxiv. 8-16.

30. This man childless This is said of him as king ; so that though he had sons yet not one of them ever sat on the throne of David. On the return of the people from Babylon, if Zerubbabel were his descendant, yet he was not a king, but a governor appointed by the king of Persia.

CHAP. XXII. or XXIII. 1. Ho to the shepherds With the Sept. and Syr., I consider מְרִיד as a particle of calling and not of commination.

3 From all countries This may have been partially fulfilled by the return of the Jews from captivity ; but in the fullest sense it respects 'the gathering together in one, the children of God scattered abroad,' John xi. 52.

And I will set over them shepherds to feed 4 them : [mayed,

CONCERNING THE PROPHETS.

My heart is broken within me ; all my 9
bones shake ; [come,
I am as one drunk, as a man wine hath over-
On account of Jehovah, and of his holy words.
Surely the land is filled with adulterers ; 10
Surely because of these the land mourneth ;
The pastures of the desert are dried up ;
Their course is evil, and their power not stable.

For both prophet and priest are profane ; 11
Yea, in my house I find their wickedness,
saith Jehovah.

Hence shall their way be as slippery places ; 12
To darkness they shall be driven, and fall
Surely I will bring evil upon them, [therein :
The year of their visitation, saith Jehovah.
As in the prophets of Samaria, I saw folly ; 13
For they prophesied in the name of Baal,
And caused my people Israel to err ;
So in the prophets of Jerusalem I see a hor- 14
rible thing ; [hood ;
Committing adultery, and walking in false-
They also strengthen the hands of evil-doers,
So that none will turn from his wickedness,

5. A righteous branch That is our Lord, whom the prophets represent as the branch, Isa. iv. 2 ; liii. 2 ; Zech. iii. 8.

6. Jehovah our There is no reason to desert the usual reading here, but we must consider this passage as revealing the same glorious person, the Messiah, as that of Isa. ix. 6.

7, 8. The days come On the coming of the righteous Branch, and the salvation which he should effect, the deliverance from Egypt should be forgotten as a thing of no comparative moment.—(v) Sept. Arab.

10. Because of these Both the Sept. and Syr. thus render, and rightly ; for swearing has nothing to do in the case. This variation arises from reading with different points.

- They are all of them become to me as Sodom,
And the inhabitants thereof as Gomorrah.
- 15 Therefore thus saith Jehovah of hosts,
Concerning the prophets;
Behold, I will feed them with wormwood,
And give them water of hemlock to drink;
Because from the prophets of Jerusalem
Profaneness hath gone forth into all the land.
- 16 Thus saith Jehovah of hosts,
Hearken not to the words of the prophets,
Who, prophesying unto you vain things,
Utter a vision of their own heart, [vah;
And not speaking from the mouth of Jeho-
- 17 Saying unto them that despise them,
Jehovah hath said, Ye shall have peace;
And while each followeth the lusts of his heart,
They say, No evil shall come upon you.
- 18 For who hath stood in the council of Jeho-
So as to perceive and hear his word? [vah,
Who hath listened to his word and heard it?
- 19 Lo, a whirlwind of Jehovah in fury goeth forth,
A whirlwind pregnant with devastation;
On the head of the wicked shall it grievously fall.
- 20 The anger of Jehovah shall not turn back.
'Till he hath performed and completed
All the purposes of his heart:
In the latter days ye shall understand this perfectly.
- 21 I sent not these prophets, yet they ran;
I spoke not to them, yet they prophesied.
- 22 But if they had stood in my council,
And caused my people to hear my words,
Then would they have turned them from their evil way,
And from the wickedness of their doings.
- 23 Am I a God at hand, saith Jehovah,
And not a God afar off?
- 24 Can any one hide himself in secret places,
So that I shall not see him? saith Jehovah.
Do not I fill heaven and earth? saith Jehovah.
- 25 I have heard what the prophets have said,
That prophesy falsely in my name,
Saying, I have dreamed, I have dreamed.
- 26 How long shall this be in the heart?
The prophets are prophets of falsehood,
And prophets of the deceit of their own heart:

16. Not speaking from] The first word of the next verse is joined to this, as what both the sense and construction requires. Instead of waiting for some divine communication, they run unsent, and uttered the visions of their own evil hearts.

18. In the council] Had these prophets been admitted to the privy council of heaven, they would have known the divine determinations, and would have been able to make them known to others.

19. A whirlwind pregnant] One that should sweep away every thing before it, and excite anguish like that of a woman in travail.

23, 24. Am I God at hand] God asserts his own perfections, that as he is near to every one, so he is also in the most distant places. There is no place where the workers of iniquity can be concealed, however they may desire it.

Who intend to make my people forget my 27
name,
By their dreams which they tell one to another, [Baal.
As their fathers forgot my name through The prophet that hath a dream, let him tell 28
the dream; [my word truly.
But he that hath my word, let him speak
What is chaff to the wheat? saith Jehovah.
Is not my word like a fire? saith Jehovah, 29
Or a hammer that breaketh the rock in pieces?
Therefore I am against the prophets, saith 30
Jehovah,
That steal my words each from his neighbour.
Lo, I am against the prophets, saith Jehovah, 31
That smooth their tongues, and say, He saith. [saith Jehovah,
Lo, I am against prophets of false dreams, 32
Who also relate them, and make my people
By their lies and vain assertions; [err;
But I sent them not, nor commanded them,
Nor shall they profit this people, saith Jehovah.

And when this people shall ask thee, 33
Or a prophet or a priest, saying,
What is the burden of Jehovah? [den,
Then thou shalt say to them, Ye are the burden And I will cast you off, saith Jehovah.
And the prophet, or priest, or one of the 3
people,
That shall say, The burden of Jehovah;
I will even punish that man and his house.
Thus shall ye say every one to his neigh- 3
bour, And every one to his brother, [bour,
What hath Jehovah answered?
Or, What hath Jehovah spoken? [no more.
But the burden of Jehovah ye shall mention 3
For every man's burden shall be his own word;
For ye have perverted the words of the living God, Jehovah of hosts our God.
Thus shalt thou say to the prophet, 3
What hath Jehovah answered thee?
Or, What hath Jehovah spoken?
But if ye will say, The burden of Jehovah; 3
Therefore thus saith Jehovah, [Jehovah, Because ye say this word, The burden of Although I have sent unto you, saying,
Ye shall not say, The burden of Jehovah;

25—32. I have dreamed] God sometimes revealed his will in dreams and visions, and these false prophets pretended that they had enjoyed prophetic dreams. Jehovah shows that their claims were unfounded by their design, which was, to make his people forget his name, and attach them to Baal. What they said was but chaff in respect to the wheat, the genuine word of God.

33. Ye are the burden] This appropriate version arises from a different division of the same letters; and this reading is supported by all the versions. It seems the false prophets and their adherents ridiculed the word of God, denouncing his judgments, and in contempt called it 'the burden of Jehovah;' and hence God threatens them for this sin, and declares that their own word, by which they deceived the people, should become a burden to them.

- 39 Therefore behold ! I will surely take you up,
And cast you out, with the city I gave
To you and your fathers, from my presence.
40 And I will bring upon you everlasting reproach,
And everlasting shame that shall not be for-

CHAPTER XXV.

The Jews are reproved for their disobedience to the prophets ; the seventy years' captivity foretold ; the destruction of Babylon predicted.

- 1 THE word which came unto Jeremiah concerning all the people of Judah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, king of Judah, (the same was the first year of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon,)
- 2 Which Jeremiah the prophet spoke unto all the people of Judah, and to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying, From the thirteenth year of Josiah, son of Ammon, king of Judah, even unto this day, (this is the three and twentieth year,) the word of Jehovah hath come unto me, and I have spoken unto you most urgently, but ye have not
- 3 hearkened : (Also Jehovah hath sent unto you all his servants the prophets, early and constantly, but ye have not hearkened nor inclined your ear to hear,) saying, Return, I pray you, every one from his evil way, and from the wickedness of your doings, and dwell ye in the land, which Jehovah gave to you and to your fathers for ever and ever.
- 4 And go not after strange gods to serve them, and to worship them ; and provoke me not to anger with the work of your hands ; and
- 5 I will not hurt you. But ye have not hearkened unto me, saith Jehovah, that ye might provoke me to anger with the work of your hands, to your own hurt.
- 6 Therefore thus saith Jehovah of hosts ;
- 7 Because ye have not hearkened unto my words, behold, I will send, and will take all the families of the north, saith Jehovah, and Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, my servant, and bring them against this land, and against the inhabitants thereof, and against all these nations round about, and will utterly destroy them, and make them an astonishment and a hissing, and perpetual desolations. And I will take from them the voice of joy, and the voice of mirth, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, the sound of millstones, and the light of a candle. And this whole land shall become a desolation, and an astonishment ; and these nations shall serve the king of Babylon seventy years. And it shall come to pass when seventy years are accomplished, I will visit upon the king of Babylon, and upon this nation, saith Jehovah, their iniquity, and upon the land of Chaldea, and I will make it perpetual desolations. And I will bring upon that land all my words which I have spoken concerning it ; all that is written in this book, which Jeremiah hath prophesied concerning the nations. For of them, even of these, shall many nations and great kings exact service ; and I will render to them according to their works, and according to the operation of their hands.

Surely thus said Jehovah God of Israel, unto me ; Take the cup of the wine of this wrath from my hand, and tender it to all the nations to drink, unto whom I shall send thee ; And let them drink, and stagger, and be mad, because of the sword which I will send among them ; (So I took the cup at the hand of Jehovah, and tendered it to all the nations to drink, unto whom Jehovah had sent me ; To Jerusalem, and to the cities of Judah, and to the kings thereof, and to the princes thereof, CHAP. XXIII. or XXV. 1. Which came to Jeremiah] This chapter seems to come next in succession to ch. xxii., xxiii. It is dated in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, and most probably belonged to the earliest part of that year.—The same was the first year] That is, according to the Jewish mode of computing his reign from the time of his being associated with his father in the empire, before he set out on his Syrian expedition. But the Babylonians do not reckon his reign to have begun till two years after, upon his father's death.

3. Most urgently] That is, I have imitated the labourer in the discharge of my office ; I have constantly proclaimed and urged the word of Jehovah. This is the sense of the idiomatical words.

4-7. His servants, the] God employed many to instruct them, to call them to repentance ; yet the people persisted in their idolatry.

10. The voice of mirth] This verse describes a complete desolation. Gloomy shall be the silence of the morning, and melancholy the shadows of the evening. Compare Rev. xviii. 22, 23.

11. Seventy years] When they terminated we are told, Ezra i. 1, in the first year of Cyrus, king of Persia ; but when they commenced is more disputed ; for we read of three carryings away into that captivity ; the first in the third and fourth of Jehoiakim, when Daniel and his three companions were carried to Babylon, Dan. i. 1, 2. The second seven years after, in Jeconiah's reign, 2 Kings xxiv. 15, 16. The last and most general, in the 11th year of Zedekiah. It is most probable that the seventy years must be reckoned from the second ; for Jeremiah writing to those then in captivity tells them, That when seventy years should be accomplished, God would bring them back, ch. xxix. 1-3. This is confirmed by Ezekiel, ch. xl. 1, where the fourteenth year after the taking of the city is expressly said to be, the twenty-fifth year of their captivity. Compare Dan. ix. 2.

12-14. I will visit upon] For the accomplishment of what is here said, see Isa. xlii., and notes.—(r) Syr.

15. Take the cup] This must be either a vision, or perhaps only a course of figurative expression, signifying that Jeremiah was to foretell, and did accordingly foretell, that these nations should drink of the cup of God's anger.

17. So I took the cup] The words of Jehovah are broken off at the end of ver. 16, and not resumed till the latter part of ver. 26, where Jehovah again continues his directions thus, ' and the king of Sheshach shall drink after them.' All the intermediate part contains an account of Jeremiah's executing the divine commission, and is to be included within a parenthesis.

CHAPTER XXVI.

The danger of Jeremiah for delivering God's message faithfully.

In the beginning of the reign of Jehoia- kim, the son of Josiah, king of Judah, came this word from Jehovah, saying,

Thus saith Jehovah, Stand in the court of the house of Jehovah, and speak unto all the cities of Judah, those that come to worship in the house of Jehovah, all the words which I have charged thee to speak unto them ; abate not a word : if so be they will :

19. To all the intermingled people] Blayney joins these words to this verse, and understands with Jerom, foreigners resident in Egypt, or allied by marriage, to be meant.

23. Dedan—Tema—Buz] These I suppose to be the inhabitants of the peninsula of Arabia, especially those situated towards the bottom or narrow part of it. See note on ch. ix. 26. —Who cut short their hair] Compare ch. ix. 26, and note.

24. Even to all the kings] Arabia Felix seems to be intended ; as Arabia Deserta is by the desert, in which dwelt a mingled race, descended from various ancestors.

25. Zimri] Zimran was one of the sons of Abraham by Keturah ; all of whom he sent away eastward of Canaan to settle, or to the land of Kedem, Gen. xxv. 2, 6.—Edom] Compare ch. xlix. 34, &c.—Media, and kings of the north] From this it should seem that these distant nations suffered commotions and distresses from the Babylonian empire.

26. King of Sheshach] Here the speech of Jehovah is resumed, which was broken off at the end of ver. 16. That 'Sheshach' means Babylon, appears clearly from ch. li. 41. Why Babylon is thus called is very uncertain.

30. Shall roar] Jehovah is often represented as a lion ready to devour, to express more forcibly the effects of his anger.

31—33. A noise reacheth] The prophet hears the confusion into which the nations are thrown, and sees the sword spreading slaughter and death around, and the slain left unburied.

34. And ye shall be broken] The Syriac is followed especially as it is supported by the Chaldee. A verb and not a noun is clearly wanted, to make the comparison proper and coherent.

CHAP. XXIV. or XXVI. 1. In the beginning of the] In a reign which lasted eleven years, as did both Jehoiakim's and Zedekiah's, the 'beginning' need not be restrained to the first year of it ; but supposing the whole divided into three equal parts, a beginning, a middle, and an end, the first of these may comprehend and denote the three first years, and some part of the fourth also. Compare ch. xxviii. 1.

hearken, and turn every one from his evil way : that I may repent of the evil which I purpose to do unto them, because of the 4 evil of their doings. And thou shalt say unto them, Thus saith Jehovah ; If ye will not hearken unto me, to walk in my law,
 5 which I have set before you, To hearken unto the words of my servants, the prophets, whom I send unto you, early and constantly,
 6 even as ye have not hearkened ; Then will I make this house like Shiloh, and this city will I make a curse among all nations of the earth.

7 And the priests, and the prophets, and all the people heard Jeremiah speaking these words in the house of Jehovah. And it came to pass, when Jeremiah had done speaking all that Jehovah had commanded him to speak to all the people, that the priests, and the prophets, and all the people apprehended him, saying, Thou shalt surely 9 die. Wherefore hast thou prophesied in the name of Jehovah, saying, This house shall be like Shiloh, and this city shall be made desolate without an inhabitant ? And all the people were assembled together against Jeremiah in the house of Jehovah. When 10 the princes of Judah heard these things, they went up from the king's house, to the house of Jehovah, and sat in the entrance of the new gate of the house of Jehovah.
 11 Then spoke the priests and the prophets unto the princes and to all the people, saying, This man is worthy to die : because he hath prophesied concerning this city, according 12 as ye have heard with your ears. Then spoke Jeremiah unto all the princes and to all the people, saying, Jehovah hath sent me to prophesy concerning this house and concerning this city all the words which ye 13 have heard. But now amend ye your ways and your doings, and hearken unto the voice of Jehovah, your God ; and Jehovah will repent of the evil which he hath denounced 14 against you. And as for me, behold I am in your power ; do to me as it is good and right in your eyes. Only know assuredly 15 that if ye put me to death, surely ye will bring innocent blood upon yourselves, and upon this city, and upon the inhabitants thereof : for of a truth, Jehovah hath sent me unto you, to speak all these words in your ears. Then said the princes and all 16 the people unto the priests and to the prophets, This man is not worthy of death ; for he hath spoken to us in the name of Jehovah, our God. Certain also of the elders of 17 the land rose up and spoke to all the assembly of the people, saying, Micah, the Morasthite, prophesied in the days of Hezekiah, king of Judah, and spoke to all the people of Judah, saying, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, Zion shall be plowed up as a field, and Jerusalem shall become heaps, and the mountain of the house shall be like the heights of the forest. Did Hezekiah, king of Judah, and all Judah proceed to put him to death ? Did he not fear Jehovah, and en- 19 treat the favour of Jehovah, so that Jehovah repented of the evil which he had pronounced against them ? But we are doing great mischief to ourselves.

But there was also a man that prophesied 20 in the name of Jehovah, Urijah, the son of Shemaiah, of Kirjath-jearim ; and he prophesied against this city, and against this land, according to all the words of Jeremiah. And when Jehoiakim, the king, and all his 21 great men, and all the princes, heard his words, then the king sought to put him to death : but Urijah heard, and was afraid, and fled, and went into Egypt. But Jehoi- 22 akim, the king, sent men to Egypt, Elnathan, the son of Achbor, and others with him ; And they brought Urijah forth out of 23 Egypt, and brought him to king Jehoiakim, who slew him with the sword, and cast his dead body into the burying-places of the children of the people. Howbeit the hand 24 of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, was with 2-6. This house like Shiloh] God forsook the tabernacle of Shiloh, Ps. lxxviii. 60 ; and would in like manner forsake the temple at Jerusalem.

7. Priests and the prophets] The prophets, as is manifest from many passages in scripture, were an order of men among the Jews devoted to sacred literature, and qualified by their attainments in religious knowledge to advise and instruct the people who came to consult them in cases of doubt and difficulty, 1 Sam. xix. 20. 2 Kings ii. 3 ; vi. 1. It is not to be supposed that these were all of them, or at all times divinely inspired, but ordinarily gave their advice as men versed in the law and in the other scriptures. When prophecy ceased, the scribes, so often mentioned in the gospels, appear to have been a like order, who, by their skill in the sacred scriptures, taught the people without any claims to supernatural gifts.

10. Sat in the entrance] These princes were doubtless the judges, and sat as a court to decide respecting the conduct of Jeremiah ; but from the 12th to the 16th and 17th verses, it appears that the people, either generally, or by their representatives, had a voice in this court, and they aided in delivering the prophet.

13. Amend your ways] The language and conduct of Jeremiah were becoming his holy character. He asserted his divine commission, calls them to repentance, and assures them of his own innocence.

16-19. Not worthy of death] They acquit him of any capital crime, and appeal to the conduct of pious Hezekiah towards Micah as a precedent. Compare Micah iii. 12.

20-24. But there was also] Some ascribe what follows to an opposite party, who, by a contrary precedent to the foregoing, urged the condemnation of Jeremiah. But it is most probable that the elders concluded their speeches, ver. 19, and that the writer of the narrative goes on to observe in his own person, that notwithstanding the precedent of Micah, there had been a later precedent in the present reign, which might have operated very unfavourably to the cause of Jeremiah, but for the influence and authority of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, which was exerted to save him.

23. Cast his dead body] The king's design was to brand his memory as far as he could, by such an ignominious treatment of his remains.

Jeremiah, that he should not be delivered into the hand of the people to put him to death.

CHAPTER XXXV.

By the obedience of the Rechabites, the disobedience of the Jews is reprehended and condemned.

- 1 THE word which came unto Jeremiah from Jehovah, in the days of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, king of Judah, saying,
- 2 Go unto the house of the Rechabites, and speak unto them, and bring them into the house of Jehovah, into one of the chambers, and give them wine to drink. Then I took
- 3 Jaazaniah, the son of Jeremiah, the son of Habaziniyah, and his brethren, and all his sons, and the whole house of the Rechabites.
- 4 And I brought them into the house of Jehovah, into the chamber of the sons of Hanan, the son of Igdaiah, a man of God, which was by the chamber of the princes, which was above the chamber of Maaseiah, the son of Shallum, the keeper of the door. And I set before the sons of the house of the Rechabites pots full of wine and cups; and I
- 5 said unto them, Drink ye wine. But they said, We will not drink wine: for Jonadab, the son of Rechab, our father, charged us, saying, Ye shall not drink wine, ye, nor
- 6 your sons for ever: Neither shall ye build house, nor sow seed, nor plant vineyard, nor have any: but ye shall dwell in tents all your days, that ye may live many days
- 7 in the land where ye are strangers. And we have obeyed the voice of Jonadab, the son of Rechab, our father, in all that he charged us, so as not to drink wine all our days, we, our wives, our sons, and our
- 8 daughters; Nor to build houses for us to dwell in; neither have we vineyard, nor
- 9 field, nor seed; But we have dwelt in tents, and obeyed and done according to all that
- 10 Jonadab, our father, commanded us. But it came to pass, when Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, was coming up against the land, that we said, Come, and let us enter into Jerusalem for fear of the army of the Chaldeans, and for fear of the army of the Syrians, and let us dwell in Jerusalem.

CHAP. XXV. or XXXV. 1. In the days of Jehoiakim] All the intermediate prophecies from ch. xxvi. according to the Hebrew arrangement, belong clearly to the reign of Zedekiah; and consequently are posterior to this chapter and the next, which are dated in the reign of Jehoiakim, together with ch. xlv. which is closely connected with the latter of these two chapters. The Rechabites appear to have retired within the walls of Jerusalem, on the approach of Nebuchadnezzar and his army, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim.

2. The Rechabites] The Rechabites, as may be collected from ver. 7, were not of the children of Israel, but strangers of another race that dwelt among them: From 1 Chron. ii. 55, they appear to have been Kenites, a people originally settled in that part of Arabia Petraea, which was called the land of Midian; and most probably the descendants of Jethro, the father-in-law of Moses, or of Hobab, who is

Then came the word of Jehovah to Jeremiah, saying, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, 12 God of Israel; Go and say unto the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem Will ye not receive instruction so as to hearken to my words? saith Jehovah. The 14 command of Jonadab, the son of Rechab, which he gave in charge to his sons not to drink wine, hath been performed; for they have drunk no wine unto this day, but have obeyed the command of their father: I also have spoken unto you, most urgently, but ye have not hearkened unto me. And I 15 have sent unto you all my servants, the prophets, early and constantly, saying, Return, I pray you, every one from his evil way, and amend your doings, and go not after strange gods, to serve them; and dwell in the land which I have given to you and to your fathers: but ye have not inclined your ear, nor hearkened unto me. Because the sons of 16 Jonadab, the son of Rechab, have fulfilled the commandment of their father, which he commanded them, but this people hath not hearkened unto me: Therefore thus saith 17 Jehovah, God of hosts, the God of Israel; Behold, I am about to bring upon Judah, and upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, all the evil which I have denounced against them; because I have spoken unto them, and they have not hearkened; and I have called unto them, and they have not answered

And unto the house of the Rechabites 18 said Jeremiah; Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel; Because ye have hearkened unto the commandment of Jonadab, your father, and have observed all his directions, and have done according to all that he hath charged you; Therefore thus saith Jehovah 19 of hosts, God of Israel, There shall not want a man in the line of Jonadab, the son of Rechab, standing before me continually.

CHAPTERS XXXVI. XLV.

Baruch writeth Jeremiah's prophecy and readeth it; the king burneth the roll; his judgment; another copy is written.

AND it came to pass in the fourth year 1 of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, king of called a Kenite. Compare Numb. x. 29—32, with Judges i. 16; iv. 11. Jonadab here mentioned, is the person to whom Jehu showed so much respect, 2 Kings x. 15. He appears to have been zealous for the purity of his people's morals, and on this ground to have recommended abstinence from wine.

3—11. The whole house of the Rechabites] This was done in the temple for the greater publicity, and that the people might hear how these men had faithfully adhered to the precept of their forefathers. Compare with verse 11, the 2 Kings xxiv. 2.

14. The command of Jonadab] So the Sept. read the singular. This removes the anomaly.

19. Standing before me] This promises the preservation of this family, and that some of them should ever be found among the worshippers of the true God, 1 Kings x. viii.

CHAP. XXVI. XXVII. or XXXVI. XLV. 1—10. In

- Judah, that this word came unto Jeremiah, from Jehovah, saying,
- 2 Take thee a book-roll, and write upon it all the words which I have spoken unto thee concerning Israel, and concerning Judah, and concerning all the nations, from the day that I began to speak unto thee, from the days of Josiah, even unto this day.
- 3 It may be that the house of Judah will attend to all the evil which I purpose to inflict upon them, so as to return every one from his evil way, that I may forgive their iniquity and their sin.
- 4 And Jeremiah called Baruch, the son of Neriah; and Baruch wrote from the mouth of Jeremiah all the words of Jehovah, which he had spoken unto him, upon a book-roll.
- 5 And Jeremiah commanded Baruch, saying, I am confined, I cannot go into the house of Jehovah:
- 6 But go thou, and read in the roll, which thou hast written from my mouth, the words of Jehovah in the hearing of the people, in the house of Jehovah, upon a fast-day; and also in the hearing of all Judah, that come out of their cities, shalt thou read them.
- 7 It may be that they will prostrate themselves in supplication before Jehovah, and will return every one from his evil way: for great is the anger and the indignation which Jehovah hath denounced against this people.
- 8 And Baruch, the son of Neriah, did according to all that Jeremiah the prophet commanded him, reading in the book the words of Jehovah, in the house of Jehovah.
- 9 For it came to pass in the fifth year of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, king of Judah, in the ninth month, that all the people in Jerusalem, and all the people that came out of the cities of Judah, proclaimed a fast before Jehovah, in Jerusalem.
- 10 Then read Baruch in the book the words of Jeremiah, in the house of Jehovah, in the chamber of Gemariah, the son of Shaphan, the scribe, in the higher court, at the entrance of the new gate of the house of Jehovah, in the hearing of all the people.
- 11 And Micaiah, the son of Gemariah, the son of Shaphan, heard all the words of Jehovah from out of the book. And he went down to the king's house, into the scribe's chamber; and, lo! all the princes were sitting there, Elishama, the scribe, and Delaiah, the son of Shemaiah, and Elnathan, the son of Achbor, and Gemariah, the son of Shaphan, and Zedekiah, the son of Hananiah, and all the princes.

12 Then Micaiah declared unto them all the words which he had heard, when Baruch read in the book, in the hearing of the people.

13 And all the princes sent Jehudi, the son of Nethaniah, the son of Shelemiah, the son of Cushi, unto Baruch, saying, The roll wherein thou hast been reading in the hearing of the people, take in thy hand, and go.

14 And Baruch, the son of Neriah, took the roll in his hand, and came unto them.

15 And they said unto him, Sit down now, and read it in our hearing.

16 And Baruch read it in their hearing.

17 And it came to pass, when they had heard all the words, they looked with consternation upon one another; and said unto Baruch, We will surely inform the king of all these matters.

18 And they asked Baruch, saying, Tell us now, How didst thou write all these words from his mouth?

19 And Baruch said unto them, With his mouth he repeated unto me all these words, and I wrote them in a book after him.

20 Then said the princes unto Baruch, Go hide thyself, thou and Jeremiah, and let no man know where ye be.

And they went in unto the king, into the court; but they laid up the roll in the chamber of Elishama the scribe; and they declared all the matters in the hearing of the king.

21 And the king sent Jehudi to fetch the roll; and he took it out of the chamber of Elishama, the scribe; and Jehudi read it in the hearing of the king, and in the hearing of all the princes who stood beside the king.

22 And the king was sitting in the winter apartment, in the ninth month, and there was set before him a hearth with burning coals.

23 And it came to pass, when Jehudi had read three or four sections, he cut it with the scribe's

the fourth year] Jeremiah was ordered to write out a copy of all his predictions, and to read, or cause them to be read to the people, that some impression might be made upon them.

I am confined] Some from this suppose that Jeremiah was in prison, but the history affords no ground for this opinion. He might be confined by sickness, and many other causes; and we may be assured that he had a just cause.

In the fifth year] Some time elapsed before a fit opportunity of reading the roll occurred. This fast in the ninth month is supposed to have been kept on account of Nebuchadnezzar having taken Jerusalem at that time in the preceding year.

Chamber of Gemariah] It is supposed that this chamber was either close to or over the gateway of the eastern gate, and that from thence the crowd in the court might hear what Baruch read.

12—19. All the princes] The privy counsellors of the king. What Baruch had read, was by some regarded as injurious to the state, perhaps as treason; yet the princes seem to have feared the prophet, and did not wish to expose him to the fury of their wicked king.

18. In a book after him] There is no authority for rendering ברך with ink. It is a participle, after him. I wrote, says Baruch, exactly as he suggested, neither more nor less.

22. In the winter apartment] Compare Amos iii. 15.—A hearth with] A pan with charcoal burning seems to be meant. See and compare Mark xiv. 54; John xviii. 18.

23. Sections] Or columns, the king's patience was soon exhausted, and his wrath kindled, so that he showed his unbelief and contempt of the prophet's words by burning his roll, even against the request of three of his counsellors.

knife, and cast it into the fire that was on 24 the hearth, until all the roll was consumed in the fire that was on the hearth. But neither were the king, nor any of his servants, that heard all these words, afraid, 25 nor rent they their garments. And although Elnathan, and Delaiah, and Gemariah, interceded with the king not to burn the roll, yet he would not hearken un-26 to them. And the king ordered Jerahmeel, the king's son, and Serziah, the son of Azriel, and Shelemiah, the son of Abdeel, to apprehend Baruch, the scribe, and Jeremi-27 nah, the prophet: but Jehovah hid them.
 Then came the word of Jehovah to Jeremi-nah, (after that the king had burned the roll, and the words which Baruch had written from the mouth of Jeremiah,) saying, 28 Take thee again another roll, and write upon it all the former words which were in the first roll, that Jehoiakim, king of Judah, hath 29 burned. And to Jehoiakim, king of Judah, thou shalt say, Thus saith Jehovah, Thou hast burned this roll, saying, Why hast thou written thereon, saying, The king of Babylon shall surely come, and shall destroy this land, and shall cause to cease from it man 30 and beast. Therefore thus saith Jehovah, concerning Jehoiakim, king of Judah, He shall not have one to sit upon the throne of David; and his dead body shall be cast forth to the heat by day, and to the frost by night.
 31 And I will visit upon him, and upon his seed, and upon his servants, their iniquity; and I will bring upon them, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and upon the men of Judah, all the evil which I have denounced against them, but they hearkened
 not.
 32 Then took Jeremiah another roll, and gave it to Baruch, the son of Neriah, the scribe; and he wrote thereon from the mouth of Jeremiah, all the words of the book, which Jehoiakim, king of Judah, had burned in the fire; and there was a further addition made unto them of many words of the same sort.

26. But Jehovah hid them] God in his providence, so ordered that the messengers could not find them; and soon after other things engaged the attention of the king, so that he let the prophet and his servant alone.

27—32. Came the word of Jehovah] The king had burnt the roll, but God's word was not destroyed; it must have its effect, and the judgments denounced will most assuredly come. Another roll must be written, and other denunciations added against this wicked king.

CHAP. XXVII. or XLV. 1—5. This chapter, though in the common order so far removed from the preceding, is clearly connected with it. Baruch seems to have been much alarmed at the apparent danger he was in; and to encourage him, God by his prophet assures him, that in the overthrow of the state, he should enjoy his life for a prey.

CHAP. XXVIII. or XXIV. 1. Two baskets of figs] We cannot be mistaken in placing this chapter at the very beginning of Zedekiah's reign, within the first year at least, since the vision is dated from after the carrying away of

CHAPTER XLV.

THE word which Jeremiah, the prophet, 1 spoke unto Baruch, the son of Neriah, after he had written these words in a book, from the mouth of Jeremiah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, king of Judah, saying,

Thus hath Jehovah, God of Israel, spo- 2
 ken concerning thee, O Baruch; Thou hast 3 said, Wo now unto me! for Jehovah hath added grief to my sorrow; I am wearied with my sighing, and have found no rest.
 Thus shalt thou say unto him, Thus hath 4
 Jehovah said; Behold, what I have builded,
 I will pull down; and what I have planted,
 I will pluck up, even the whole land itself:
 And seekest thou great things for thyself? 5 Seek them not; for, behold, I will bring evil upon all flesh, saith Jehovah; but I will give thee thy life as spoil in all places whither thou goest.

CHAPTER XXIV.

By the emblem of good and bad figs, is foreshown the return of some from captivity, and the ruin of Zedekiah and the rest.

JEHOVAH showed me, and behold, two 1 baskets of figs offered according to law, before the temple of Jehovah, after that Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, had carried away captive Jeconiah, the son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, and the princes of Judah, and the artificers, and the armourers, from Jerusalem, and had conducted them to Babylon:
 One basket of figs, exceedingly good, like the 2 figs of the early sort; and the other basket of figs exceedingly bad, which could not be eaten for badness. And Jehovah said unto 3 me, What seest thou, Jeremiah? And I said, Figs: the good figs exceedingly good, and the bad exceedingly bad, which cannot be eaten for badness. Then came the word of Jehovah 4 unto me, saying, Thus saith Jehovah, God 5 of Israel; Like these good figs, so will I distinguish the captives of Judah, whom I have sent out of this place into the land of Chaldea, with kindness. And I will set my eyes 6

Jeconiah and the people with him into captivity, as from an event which happened but a little before, 2 Kings xxiv. 10—20.—Offered according] This is the sense of the term מוערים. The baskets of figs were brought as an offering of first-fruits as the law directed, Numb. xviii. 12, 13.

2. Like figs of the early sort] Dr. Shaw speaks of three sorts of figs; the first of which he calls the bocore, (being those here spoken of,) which come to maturity towards the middle or latter end of June; the second the hernez, or summer fig, which ripens seldom before August; and the third which he calls the winter fig. The first were most esteemed.—Exceedingly bad] These are most probably the last, which had been gathered before ripe, and were not therefore fit to be used.

5, 6. So will I distinguish] This was designed to support those good men who had been removed; and this promise was fulfilled to them. They were preserved, and some were brought back to their own land.

upon them for good, and I will bring them again to this land; and I will build them up, and not pull down; and I will plant them, and not pluck up. And I will give them a heart to know me, that I am Jehovah; and they shall be my people, and I will be their God; when they shall return unto me with their whole heart. But as the bad figs, which cannot be eaten for badness, surely thus saith Jehovah, So will I make Zedekiah, king of Judah, and his princes, and the residue of Jerusalem, those that are left in this land, and those that settle in the land of Egypt: And I will deliver them up to vexation and affliction in all kingdoms of the earth; to be a reproach, and a proverb, and a taunt, and a curse, in all places whither I shall drive them. And I will send among them the sword, and the famine, and the pestilence, until they be consumed from off the land, which I gave unto them, and to their fathers.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Jeremiah's letter to the captives in Babylon; a second, showing the awful end of two false prophets, Ahab and Zedekiah.

1 Now these are the words of the letter, which Jeremiah, the prophet, sent from Jerusalem, unto the residue of the elders of the captivity, and to the priests, and to the prophets, and to all the people, whom Nebuchadnezzar had carried away captive from Jerusalem to Babylon. After the departure of Jeconiah, the king, and the queen, and the eunuchs, and the princes, of Judah and Jerusalem, and the artificers, and the armourers, from Jerusalem, By the hand of Elasah, the son of Shaphan, and Gemariah, the son of Hilkiah, (whom Zedekiah, king of Judah, sent unto Babylon, to Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon,) saying,
4 Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel, unto all the captivity, whom I have caused to be carried away captive from Jerusalem unto Babylon; Build ye houses, and inhabit; and plant gardens, and eat the fruit of them. Take ye wives, and beget sons and daughters; and take wives for your sons, and give your daughters unto husbands, that they may bear sons and daughters; and increase ye there, and be not diminished. And seek ye the peace of the city whither I have caused you to be carried away captive, for in the peace thereof shall ye have peace. For thus saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel; Let not your prophets that are in the midst of you, nor your diviners, impose upon you, neither hearken ye to your dealers in dreams, whom ye cause to dream. For they prophesy falsely unto you in my name; I have not sent them, saith Jehovah. For thus saith Jehovah, Surely when seventy years have been completed at Babylon, I will visit you, and I will perform towards you my good promise, in bringing you again to this place. For I know the purposes which I have purposed respecting you, saith Jehovah. For they are purposes of peace, and not of evil; to give to you in the latter end, your hope. And ye shall call upon me, and shall go and pray unto me, and I will hearken unto you. And ye shall seek me, and shall find me, when ye shall have sought me with your whole heart. And I will be found of you saith Jehovah: and I will reverse your captivity, and I will gather you from all the nations, and from all the places whither I have driven you, saith Jehovah; and I will bring you again to the place whence I caused you to be carried away captive.

But thus hath Jehovah spoken concerning the king that sitteth upon the throne of David, and concerning all the people that dwell in this city, your brethren that went not forth with you into captivity: Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, Behold, I am about to send upon them the sword, and the famine, and the pestilence, and I will make them like the vilest figs, which cannot be eaten for badness. And I will persecute them with sword, and with famine, and with pestilence; and I will give them up to vexation in all kingdoms of the earth, for a curse, and for an astonishment, and for a hissing, and for a reproach among all nations, whither I have driven them: Because they have not hearkened unto my words, saith Jehovah, when I sent unto them my servants the prophets, early and constantly even as ye have not hearkened, saith Jehovah. Hearken ye therefore to the word of Jehovah, all ye of the captivity, whom I have sent from Jerusalem to Babylon.

8—10. Zedekiah king] The captivity of a part of the people did not lead him and others to repent of their sins; and hence their punishment is denounced.

CHAP. XXIX. 1. The words of the letter] This letter is contained in what follows from the 4th to the 24th verse; and the remaining part is clearly another letter, written after that. The messengers mentioned in the third verse, had returned and brought from Babylon the letter of Shemaiah, the substance of which we have in verses 26—29. This was the opinion of Grotius. There is one transposition in the text, the 15th verse ought to precede the 21st according to the Greek version.

5—14. Build ye houses] The false prophets at Babylon prophesied that the captives of Judah would soon be restored. God, by Jeremiah, assures them again that the captivity should endure for seventy years, and that after that period, he would visit them in mercy, and bring them back to their own land.

16—20. That went not forth with you] In this paragraph, the prophet shows that both prince and people were to be given up to every kind of calamity, for their continued disobedience to the divine admonitions. This is mentioned to induce the captives to adopt the measures, and follow the advice given in the former part of the letter.

15 Whereas ye have said, Jehovah hath 21 raised up for us prophets in Babylon : Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel, concerning Ahab, the son of Kolaiah, and concerning Zedekiah, the son of Maaseiah, who prophesy unto you in my name falsely ; Behold, I will deliver them into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon ; and he 22 shall slay them before your eyes : And from them shall be taken a curse among all the captives of Judah, that are at Babylon, saying, Jehovah, make thee like Zedekiah, and like Ahab, whom the king of Babylon roasted 23 in the fire : Because they have practised vil-lany in Israel, and have committed adultery with their neighbours' wives, and have spoken a word in my name falsely, which I commanded them not ; for I know and am a witness, saith Jehovah.

24 And these are the words of the letter which he sent a second time to Babylon.
 Also to Shemaiah, the Nehelamite, shalt 25 thou speak, saying, Thus hath Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel, spoken, saying, Because thou hast sent letters in thy name unto all the people that are at Jerusalem, and to Zephaniah, the son of Maaseiah, the 26 priest, and to all the priests, saying, Jehovah hath made thee priest in the room of Jehoiada, the priest, that ye should be officers in the house of Jehovah, in the case of any one that is mad, and giveth himself out for a prophet, and that thou shouldst commit him to the house of correction, and to close 27 confinement. Now therefore why hast thou not rebuked Jeremiah, the Anathothite, who giveth himself out for a prophet among you ?
 28 Forasmuch as he hath sent to us at Babylon, saying, The term is long ; build ye houses, and inhabit ; and plant gardens, and eat of 29 the fruit of them. (And Zephaniah, the priest, read this letter in the ears of Jere-30 miah, the prophet.) Therefore hath the word of Jehovah come unto Jeremiah, saying, Send unto all the captivity, saying, Thus hath Jehovah spoken concerning She- 31 maiah, the Nehelamite ; Because that Shemaiah hath prophesied unto you, when I sent him not, but he hath caused you to trust in a falsehood : Therefore thus saith Jeho- 32 vah, Behold, I will punish Shemaiah, the Nehelamite, and his seed, there shall not be one of his line dwelling among his people ; neither shall he behold the good which I will do unto my people, saith Jehovah ; because he hath spoken prevarication concerning Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXX.

The return of the Jews promised ; Jacob comforted, and the covenant fulfilled.

THE word which came to Jeremiah, from 1
 Jehovah, saying,

Thus hath Jehovah, God of Israel, spo- 2
 ken, saying, Write thee all the words that I have spoken unto thee in a book. For, 3 behold, the days are coming, saith Jehovah, when I will reverse the captivity of my people, Israel and Judah, saith Jehovah ; and I will bring them back to the land which I gave to their fathers, and they shall possess it.

And these are the words which Jehovah 4 hath spoken concerning Israel and concerning Judah.

Surely thus saith Jehovah, 5
 A voice of trembling have we heard ;
 There is terror, and no peace.

Ask now, and see, if a male can bring forth ? 6
 Wherefore have I seen every man,
 His hands on his loins, as one that travaileth,
 And all faces are changed into paleness ? [it ;
 Alas ! for that day is great, there is none like 7
 It is even the time of Jacob's trouble,
 But he shall be saved out of it.

And in that day, saith Jehovah of hosts, 8
 I will break his yoke from off thy neck,
 And his bonds will I burst asunder ;
 And strangers shall no more enslave him.
 And they shall serve Jehovah their God, 9

15, 21—23. Hath raised up] Jeremiah, if the 9th verse be in its proper place, had heard what the false prophets Ahab and Zedekiah said to the people ; and he concludes his first letter with foretelling their destruction.—Roasted in the fire] It is not improbable that these pretended prophets, having excited disturbances among the people, were taken and slain, and their bodies burnt ; or that they were treated as it was intended to treat Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, Dan. iii. 20—21.

24. And these are the words] I have supplied what I am confident was once in the text. What follows shows that Shemaiah having heard or read the letter which Jeremiah had sent to Babylon, pretended that Jehovah had removed Jehoiada, that Zephaniah, as next to the high-priest, might with others punish all false prophets, or confine them ; and he presses him to treat Jeremiah in this manner, on account of the letter which he had sent to Babylon. Seraiah is said to have been the chief, or high-priest, and Zephaniah the second, when Jerusalem was taken, iii. 24 ; but we read nothing of Jehoiada. Zephaniah reading Shemaiah's letter to Jeremiah, he foretells his destruction, and that of his whole race.

CHAP. XXX. 1—4. Write in a book] That the interesting predictions may be preserved. There are many prophecies in various parts of the Old Testament, which announce the future restoration of Israel to their own land, and the complete re-establishment of both their civil and religious constitution. There is no particular date annexed to this prophecy, whereby to ascertain the precise time of its delivery. But it may not unreasonably be presumed to have followed immediately after the preceding one.

5, 6. Terror and no peace] The prophet adverts to the state of the people on the approach of the Chaldean army, and to the preferences of the false prophets. Men, even the stoutest and most valiant, cry out, like a woman in labour : their countenances show their inward anguish ; their paleness manifests their fear and terror.

7. It is even the time] There had not been such a day to them as that in which their city and temple were destroyed, and themselves led into captivity ; but they shall not be utterly destroyed, but saved out of it, and brought back to their own land.

8. No more enslave him] If we apply what is here said to the Chaldeans, this must signify that they, as strangers,

- And David their king, whom I will raise up

 O my servant Jacob, saith Jehovah;
 And be not thou dismayed, O Israel;

 Though I make a full end of all nations
 Among which I have scattered thee,
 Yet I will not make a full end of thee:
 But I will correct thee in moderation,
 And will not altogether destroy thee.
 12 Surely thus saith Jehovah,
 Thy bruise is desperate, thy wound grievous;
 13 None lendeth a helping hand for thy cure;
 No healing medicines are applied to thee
 14 All thy lovers have forgotten thee;
 They seek not after thee; [thee;
 For with an enemy's stroke I have smitten
 With a chastisement the most severe,
 Because of the multitude of thine iniquities,
 And of the number of thine offences.
 15 Why cryest thou because of thy bruise?
 Thy bruise is incurable;
 Because of the multitude of thine iniquities,
 And of the number of thine offences,
 I have done these things unto thee.
 16 Yet shall they that devour thee be devoured,
 And all thine enemies shall go into captivity;
 And they that spoil thee shall be a spoil,
 And they that plunder thee I will give up to plunder.
 17 For I will restore soundness unto thee,
 And heal thee of thy wounds, saith Jehovah;
 Although they have called thee An outcast,

 All the purposes of his heart. [perfectly.
 In the latter days ye shall understand this
 At that time, saith Jehovah, I
 I will be a God to all the families of Israel,
 And they shall be my people.

CHAPTER XXXI.

The restoration of Israel; the new covenant; and the stability of its promises.

THUS saith Jehovah, [sword, 2
 The people, those who escaped from the Found favour in the wilderness;
 Israel marched on towards his rest.
 From of old Jehovah appeared for me, saying, 3
 With an everlasting love have I loved thee;
 Hence with loving-kindness did I draw thee.
 Again I will build thee, and thou shalt be 4
 O virgin of Israel; [built,
 Thou shalt yet be adorned with thy tabrets,
 And go forth in the dances of the joyful.
 Yet again shalt thou plant vineyards 5
 Upon the mountains of Samaria;

should not, on Jacob's deliverance, have it in their power to enslave them any more, but should themselves be a conquered people.

9. David their king] That David is one of the names of Messiah, is generally admitted; and he is so called, both as to the meaning of the name, (Beloved,) and in honour of his progenitor. Comp. Isa. lv. 3, 4. Ezek. xxxiv. 23; xxxvii. 24. Hos. iii. 5. The Jews after their captivity were preserved in their own land till Messiah came, and all those who received him, and obeyed him, became his spiritual subjects.

11. Altogether destroyed] God engages that however he may correct his people, he will not utterly destroy them as he would their enemies.

12-17. Thy bruise is desperate] The prophet in the name of Jehovah describes the afflicted state of Judah, and the cause of it. She was as a person wounded, to whom no one applies a proper remedy; but the wound is left to putrefy; and this came upon her for her many offences.

18. And the palace] Some suppose the temple to be intended; but it is more probable that as city may signify any of the cities of Judah as well as Jerusalem, so palace may mean any of the more splendid mansions of the rich and great.

21. For who is he that] The connexion limits this to the ruler, respecting whom God had said, that he would draw him, that he might come near to him. For who is he that hath engaged with his heart, without divine influence, thus to obey and serve God? Compare John vi. 44, 45.

23, 24. The whirlwind] Compare ch. xxiii. 19, 20, and notes, &c.

CHAP. XXXI. 3. From of old Jehovah] This is the language of Israel, thankfully acknowledging the kindness and favour of Jehovah towards them in ancient times; to which Jehovah replies, in the next lines; and having asserted his everlasting love, proceeds to state what he would yet do for his people. From verse 26th it is clear that the prophet was in some kind of trance; yet I conceive the chief part of what is said refers to the return from Babylon, which was followed by the new covenant, which Paul applies to the gospel.

4-6. With thy tabrets] That it was usual for the women

 Yet shall they speak this word in the land

 And in its cities, when I reverse their captiof Israel to go forth with tabrets and dancing in times of public rejoicing and prosperity. See Exod. xv. 20. Judg. xi. 34. 1 Sam. xviii. 6. These times were now to be renewed.

7. Among the chief—Hath saved] The Sept. and Chald. are followed in translating in the third person preterit, and not in the imperative, for this gives us the reason and ground of the praise and exultation before mentioned.

9. Behold, with weeping] It is probable that הנה was repeated at the beginning of this verse.—And amidst] When the people should be restored they should exercise repentance, and especially enjoy and manifest a spirit of prayer. Compare Ps. cxxvi. 5, 6. Isa. xliii. 19, 20.

10—14. He that scattered] These kind declarations could not fail to support the hope of God's people in their lowest state; nor was their hope frustrated.

15—17. (o) For her children] These words are wanting in the Sept., Syr., and Malt., and are clearly repeated without any necessity. Ramah was a city of Benjamin, near which Rachel, the mother of Joseph and Benjamin was buried; who is here in a beautiful figure of poetry represented as come forth out of her grave, and lamenting bitterly for the loss of her children, none of whom presented themselves to her view, being all either slain or gone into exile. The evangelist Matthew, ii. 17, 18, hath applied this to the massacre of the children at Bethlehem, as illustrating the sorrow which that tragic scene occasioned.

18—20. Lamenting himself] What is here said, is not meant of the ten tribes, but of all of Israel who returned from captivity; and as Ephraim had been first carried into captivity for his sin and idolatry, so he is mentioned as exercising true repentance.—Smote on my thigh] Smiting upon the thigh was an indication of inward sorrow and compunction. See Ezek. xxi. 12.—Speak with him] Or of him, &c. So the preposition here signifies. This tender parent cannot speak with or of his undutiful child, but instantly his bowels are moved for him; like the father of the prodigal son, he is ready to pardon his faults, and to embrace him.

21. Set thee up way-marks] These words are a call to Israel to prepare for their return to their own land.

22. Wilt thou hesitate] Turn this way and that in thy mind, that is, hesitate from the difficulties of accomplishing so long a journey, and from contending with the enemies which may attack thee.—A woman shall put] The Jews are addressed in the first line as a backsliding daughter, hesitating through fear; and in the next, God promises that he will create a new thing, that is, work some miracle; and this new thing, this miracle, is contained in this last line, which I take to mean, that Israel, weak as a woman, and hesitating through fear, God would enable to surmount all difficulties, and to put to flight those who impeded her return, or her re-establishment. The sense given is agree-

Jehovah bless thee, habitation of righteous-
O mountain of the most Holy One. [ness,
24 Judah shall dwell in it, and in all its cities;
Husbandmen together with such as tend 25 For I have refreshed the thirsty soul, [herds.
And every pined soul have I satisfied.
26 Upon this I awoke, and I perceived;—
And my sleep had been sweet unto me.
27 Behold! the days come, saith Jehovah,
That I will increase with men and cattle
The house of Israel, and the house of Judah.
28 And it shall be that as I have watched over them, [throw,
To pluck up, and pull down, and over-
And to destroy, and to afflict;
So will I also watch over them,
To rebuild, and to replant, saith Jehovah.
29 In those days they shall no more say,
The fathers have eaten a sour grape,
And the children's teeth are set on edge;
30 But every man shall die for his own iniquity;
Every man that hath eaten the sour grape,
Even his teeth shall be set on edge.
31 Behold! the days come, saith Jehovah,
That I will make with the house of Israel,
And with the house of Judah, a new covenant; [their fathers, 32 Not like the covenant that I made with
In the day that I took them by the hand,
To bring them out of the land of Egypt;
Which covenant of mine they violated,
And "I regarded" them not, saith Jehovah.
33 But this is the covenant which I will make
With the house of Israel;
After those days, saith Jehovah,
I will put my law into their inward parts,
And upon their hearts I will write it;
And I will be their God, and they shall be my people.
34 And they shall not teach any more,
One his neighbour, and another his brother, Saying, Know Jehovah; for they shall all know me,

From the lowest to the greatest, saith Je-
For I will pardon their iniquity, [hovah;
And their sin I will remember no more
Thus saith Jehovah, [day, 35
Who hath appointed the sun for a light by The ordinances of the moon and stars for a light by night; [roar;
Who maketh still the sea when its waves
Jehovah of hosts is his name: me,
If these ordinances shall depart from before 36
Then shall the seed of Israel also cease
From being a nation before me perpetually.
Thus saith Jehovah, 37
If the heavens above can be measured,
Or the foundations of the earth below searched out;
Then will I cast off all the seed of Israel,
For all that they have done, saith Jehovah.
Behold! the days come, saith Jehovah, 38
That the city shall be rebuilt through Jehovah, from the tower of Hananeel, unto the corner-gate; And the measuring-line shall 39 yet go straight on, over the hill Gareb, and encompass Gotha, And the whole valley of 40 dead bodies and of ashes, and all the fields unto the brook Kedron, as far as to the angle of the horse-gate eastward; holy to Jehovah it shall not be plucked up, nor thrown down any more for ever.

CHAPTERS XXVII. XXVIII

Under the type of bands and yokes, Jeremiah foretells the subjugation of the neighbouring kings by Nebuchadnezzar; false prophets reprove; the death of Hananiah foretold.

In the beginning of the reign of "Zede- 1 kiah," the son of Josiah, king of Judah, came this command unto Jeremiah, from Jehovah, to say,

Thus said Jehovah to me, Make thee 2 bands and yokes, and thou shalt put them upon thy neck; And thou shalt send them 3 to the king of Edom, and to the king of Moab, and to the king of the Ammonites, able to the idiom and context; and in fact is the new thing a miracle—that the weaker should prevail over the stronger.

23. Mountain of the most holy] The text is ambiguous, and admits either the version given, or that of the common one.

27. With men and cattle] The ense is preferred to the idiom here; for 'sowing with the seed of men, and with the seed of beast,' is neither elegant in our language, nor proper; we do not use the verb 'to sow' in any other sense than to scatter grain, seeds, &c.

29, 39. Fathers have eaten] That is, the fathers have sinned, and the children are punished.

32. And I regarded them not] This is the version of the Sept. and of the Apostle, Heb. viii. 9, and is supported by the Syr. here.

33, 31. I will put my law] The Sept. and Paul have 'laws,' but the other versions read in the singular. This refers to the more abundant knowledge of the divine will,
in consequence of the appearance and teaching of our Lord, and the more plentiful effusion of the spirit. This covenant, as applied to the Jews in general, must be understood in this sense; but as it regards those who believed, it had,
and still has, a literal accomplishment.—They shall not teach] This must not be understood too strictly, as if there would be no need of ordinary means of instruction; for God works by such means; but the sense is that they would be less necessary, in consequence of the clearer light of the christian dispensation, and that knowledge would much more prevail in the world.

35—37. Maketh still the sea] The sense of 'dividing' is unsupported.—From being a nation] From being a distinct people, and however separated in place, yet bound together as a nation. Hitherto this hath been wonderfully fulfilled.
Though they have been cast off as a church, they are preserved as a people; and the whole seed has not been rejected.

39—40. Rebuilt through] Some render, 'the city of Jehovah,' considering the 'v' as used only as the sign of the genitive; but as this is not common, I consider it as meaning through his aid, kindness, and providence. In this paragraph, there can be no doubt that the city of Jerusalem, rebuilt after the captivity in Babylon, is intended.

CHAP. XXXII. XXXIII. or XXXVII. XXXVIII. 1—3.
Reign of Zedekiah] Had we no other authority, the conclusion of the third verse proves that we have in the common text a palpable error, Jehoiakim for Zedekiah; for Jehoia-kim had been slain, and his son Jehoiachin advanced to the throne, and carried captive to Babylon before Zedekiah, and to the king of Tyre, and to the king of Sidon, by the hand of the ambassadors, that are come to Jerusalem, to Zedekiah, king of Judah. And thou shalt charge them with a message unto their masters, saying, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel, Thus shall ye say unto your masters; I have made the earth, with man and beast which are upon the face of the earth, by my great power, and by my out-stretched arm; and I will give it unto whomsoever it seemeth meet unto me. And now I have given all these lands into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, my servant, and the beasts of the field also have I given unto him, to serve him. And all nations shall serve him, and his son, and his son's son, until the time of his own land come, when many nations and great kings shall exact service of him. And it shall be that the nation and kingdom which will not serve him, Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and will not submit its neck to the yoke of the king of Babylon, with sword and with famine, and with pestilence, will I punish that nation, saith Jehovah, until I have consumed them by his hand. Therefore hearken ye not to your prophets, and to your diviners, and to your dealers in dreams, and to your astrologers, and to your sorcerers, that speak unto you, saying, Ye shall not serve the king of Babylon: for they prophesy falsehood unto you, so as to remove you far from your own land, and that I should drive you out, and that ye should perish. But the nation which shall bring its neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and shall serve him, I will even leave them undisturbed in their own land, saith Jehovah, and they shall cultivate it, and shall dwell therein. And I spoke to Zedekiah, king of Judah, according to all these words, saying, Bring your necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him and his people, and live. Why will ye die, thou and thy people, by sword and by famine, and by pestilence, according as Jehovah hath spoken concerning the nation which will not serve the king of Babylon. And hearken ye not unto the words of the prophets that speak unto you, saying, Ye shall not serve the king of Babylon; for they prophesy falsehood unto you. For I have not sent them, saith Jehovah, but they prophesy in my name falsely, that I might drive you out, and that ye might perish, ye, and the prophets who prophesy unto you.

Also to the priests, and to all the people, I spoke I, saying, Thus saith Jehovah, Hearken not unto the words of your prophets, that prophesy unto you saying, Behold, the vessels of the house of Jehovah shall be brought back again from Babylon, now shortly: for they prophesy unto you falsehood. Hearken ye not unto them; serve the king of Babylon, and live: wherefore should this city become a desolation? But if they be prophets, and if the word of Jehovah be with them, let them now intercede with Jehovah of hosts, that the vessels which are left in the house of Jehovah, and in the house of the king of Judah, and in Jerusalem, may not go to Babylon. For thus saith Jehovah of hosts, concerning the pillars, and concerning the sea, and concerning the bases, and concerning the residue of the vessels that are left in this city, Which Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, took not, when he carried away captive, Jeconiah, the son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, from Jerusalem to Babylon, and all the nobles of Judah and Jerusalem: Surely thus saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel, concerning the vessels that are left in the house of Jehovah, and in the house of the king of Judah, and in Jerusalem; They shall be carried to Babylon, and there they shall be until the day that I shall visit them, saith Jehovah; when I will bring them up, and restore them to this place.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

AND it came to pass in the same year, in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah, king of Judah, in the fourth year, in the fifth month, that Hananiah, the son of Azur, the prophet, who was of Gibeon, spoke unto me in the house of Jehovah, in the presence of the priests and of all the people, saying, Thus hath Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel, spoken, saying, I have broken the who was only thus called when he began to reign.—(v) Syr. Arab, 3 MSS.

7. The time of his own land come] There was a time when Babylon should fall, and her king and people be reduced to bondage. This had been often foretold, and was fast approaching, notwithstanding the present prosperity of their state.

8—11. The nation and kingdom] Opposition to the present power of Babylon would be unwise and destructive; and the small states had only to submit, and to become tributaries, in order to obtain security.

12—15. Spoke to Zedekiah] Not to hearken to the proposals made by the ambassadors, nor to the false prophets who urged him to revolt against the king of Babylon; as this would be attended with desolation and ruin.

16—22. Vessels of the house of Jehovah] Nebuchadnezzar had taken many of the choice vessels of the temple to Babylon, on his taking the city, when he made Zedekiah king; and the false prophets pretended, that these, together with those taken as captives would soon be restored; but Jeremiah strongly urges them to prevent by their prayers and intercessions, those left in the city from being taken.

CHAP. XXXIII. or XXXVIII. 1. In the beginning of] See note, ch. xxvi. 1.

3 yoke of the king of Babylon. Within two full years will I bring again to this place all the vessels of the house of Jehovah, which Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, took from this place, and carried them to Babylon.

4 And Jeconiah, the son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, and all the captives of Judah, that went to Babylon, will I bring again to this place, saith Jehovah; for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon.

5 Then Jeremiah, the prophet, spoke unto Hananiah, the prophet, in the presence of the priests, and in the presence of all the people that stood in the house of Jehovah.

6 And Jeremiah, the prophet, said Amen; so let Jehovah do; let Jehovah confirm thy words which thou hast prophesied, in bringing back the vessels of the house of Jehovah, and all the captives from Babylon unto this place. Nevertheless, hear now this word which I speak in thy hearing, and in the hearing of all the people. The prophets, who have been before me and before thee from ancient time, have also prophesied concerning many nations, and concerning great kingdoms, of war, and of calamity, and of pestilence. Whatsoever prophet shall prophesy of peace, by the word of the prophet coming to pass shall the prophet be discerned, whom Jehovah hath sent indeed.

10 Then Hananiah, the prophet, took the yoke from off the prophet Jeremiah's neck, and broke it. And Hananiah spoke in the presence of all the people, saying, Thus saith Jehovah, After this manner will I break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, from off the neck of all the nations within the space of two full years. And the prophet Jeremiah went his way.

12 Then came the word of Jehovah to Jeremiah, after that Hananiah, the prophet, had broken the yoke from off the neck of 13 Jeremiah, the prophet, saying, Go and tell Hananiah, saying, Thus saith Jehovah, Thou hast broken yokes of wood, but thou shalt make instead of them yokes of iron.

14 For thus saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel; A yoke of iron have I put upon the neck of all these nations, that they may serve Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon; and they shall serve him; and also the beasts of the field have I given unto him.

The prophet Jeremiah also said unto 15 Hananiah, the prophet, Hear now, Hananiah; Jehovah hath not sent thee; but thou hast made this people to trust in a lie. Therefore thus saith Jehovah, Behold, I am about to cast thee from off the face of the ground; this year thou shalt die, because thou hast spoken rebellion against Jehovah. And 17 Hananiah, the prophet, died in the same year, in the seventh month.

CHAPTER XXI.

Zedekiah inquireth the event of the war; a distressing siege foretold.

THE word which came to Jeremiah, from 1 Jehovah, when king Zedekiah sent unto him Pashur, the son of Melchijah, and Zephaniah, the son of Maasseiah, the priest, saying,

Entreat, we pray thee, Jehovah for us, because Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, maketh war against us; if so be that Jehovah will deal with us according to all his wondrous works, and he may go up from us.

And Jeremiah said unto them, Thus shall 3 ye say to Zedekiah; Thus saith Jehovah, 4 God of Israel, Behold, I will turn aside the weapons of war, which are in your hand, wherewith ye fight against the king of Babylon, and against the Chaldeans, that besiege you from without the wall, and I will assemble them into the midst of this city. And I myself will fight against you with an outstretched 5 hand, and with a strong arm, and with anger, and with fury, and with great wrath. And 6 I will smite the inhabitants of this city, both man and beast; of a great pestilence shall they die. And after this, saith Jehovah, 7 Zedekiah, king of Judah, and his servants, and the people, even those that are left in this city from the pestilence, from the sword, and from the famine, I will deliver into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and into the hand of their enemies, and into

2-4. Within two full years] Nothing could be more agreeable to the wishes of the people than this pretended prophecy: for they considered Jeconiah as their lawful king, and Zedekiah, his uncle, as only the viceroy of the king of Babylon. It equally gratified their wishes to be informed that the sacred vessels should be restored.

5-9. Jeremiah saith Amen] This showed that Jeremiah sincerely sought the peace and welfare of the state; and he was ready to allow the pretensions of Hananiah to the character of a true prophet, in case his prediction were accomplished according to what God had said, Deut. xviii. 22.

10-11. Took the yoke from off] This action of Hananiah shows his boldness, and probably his great enthusiasm; having thought on the subject until he was persuaded that it would be as he had said.

12-14. The word of Jehovah] God now assures the prophet that Hananiah had spoken falsely, and that as he had broken a yoke of wood, one of iron should be substituted in its stead, and that all the nations around should still be in subjection to the king of Babylon. He then foretells the death of Hananiah, which accordingly came to pass.

CHAP. XXXIV. or XXI. 1. When Zedekiah the king] This chapter contains the first of those prophecies, which were delivered by Jeremiah subsequent to the revolt of Zedekiah, and the breaking out of the war thereupon, and which are continued on to the taking of Jerusalem, related in ch. xxxix., in the following order, ch. xxi. xxxiv. xxxvii. xxxiii. xxxviii. xxxix.

2. Entreat, we pray thee] The verb דרש signifies to seek or apply to God by prayer and supplication, as well as to inquire any thing of him. See Isa. lv. 6, and the former sense is most suitable in this place.

3-7. I will turn aside] This answer is clear and explicit, yet they obstinately persisted in their revolt, relying

- the hand of those that seek their life; and he shall smite them with the edge of the sword; he shall have no pity on them, neither shall he spare, nor shall he show mercy.
- 8 And unto this people shalt thou say, Thus saith Jehovah, Behold, I set before you the way of life, and the way of death.
- 9 He that abideth in this city shall die by sword, and by famine, and by pestilence; but he that goeth out, and surrendereth himself to the Chaldeans that lay siege round about you, he shall even live, and his life
- 10 shall be unto him as spoil. For I have set my face against this city for evil, and not for good, saith Jehovah; into the hand of the king of Babylon shall it be delivered, and he shall burn it with fire.
- 11 And with regard to the house of the king
- 12 of Judah, hear ye the word of Jehovah. O house of David, thus saith Jehovah, Execute judgment early, and deliver him that is spoiled out of the hand of the oppressor, lest my wrath go forth like fire, and it be kindled, and there be none to quench, because of the evil of your doings. Behold, I am against thee, O thou inhabitant of the deeply levelled rock, saith Jehovah; ye who say, Who shall make a breach upon us? Or who shall enter into our habitations?
- 14 And I will punish you according to the fruit of your doings, saith Jehovah; and I will kindle a fire in the "forest thereof," and it shall burn all around it.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

A prophecy of Zedekiah's captivity; and a severe reproof of the king and princes for their breach of the covenant made with the people.

- 1 THE word which came unto Jeremiah, from Jehovah, when Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and all his army, and all the kingdoms of the earth that were under his dominion, and all the peoples, made war against Jerusalem, and against all the cities thereof, saying,
- 2 Thus saith Jehovah, God of Israel, Go and speak to Zedekiah, and thou shalt say unto him, Thus saith Jehovah, Behold, I will deliver this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall burn it with fire. And thou shalt not escape out of his hand, but shalt surely be taken, and into his hand shalt thou be delivered; and thine eyes shall behold the eyes of the king of Babylon, and he shall speak with thee mouth to mouth, and thou shalt go to Babylon. Nevertheless, hear the word of Jehovah, O Zedekiah, king of Judah; Thus hath Jehovah spoken concerning thee, Thou shalt not die by the sword. In peace shalt thou die, and according to the burnings of thine ancestors, the former kings that were before thee, so shall they burn for thee: and they shall lament for thee, (saying,) Ah Lord! for I have spoken the word, saith Jehovah. And Jeremiah, the prophet, spoke unto Zedekiah, king of Judah, all these words in Jerusalem, when the forces of the king of Babylon were making war against Jerusalem, and against all the cities of Judah that remained, against Lachish, and against Azekah; for these remained of the cities of Judah, fortified cities.

The word which came to Jeremiah, from Jehovah, after that king Zedekiah had entered into covenant with all the people that were in Jerusalem, to proclaim liberty unto them; That every one should let his bond-man, and every one his bond-woman, that was a Hebrew man, or Hebrew woman, go free, and not exact service of them, every one of a Jew his brother.

And all the princes hearkened, and all the people, who entered into covenant to let every one his bond-man, and every one his bond woman, go free, and not to exact service of them any more, they hearkened, I say, and let them go. But they returned afterwards, and took back the bond-men and the bond-women, whom they had let go free; and compelled them to serve as bond-men and bond-women. Then came the word of Jehovah to Jeremiah, from Jehovah, saying, Thus saith Jehovah, God of Israel, I made a covenant with your fathers, in the day that I brought them forth out of on two things, the strength of the city, and the powerful assistance of the king of Egypt.

8—10. The way of life] The only way to save your lives, is to depart from this devoted city, and to go over to the Chaldeans.

13. Deeply levelled rock] The address is certainly continued on to the house of David, whose place of residence was mount Zion, called the city of David. This was a very high and steep rocky mountain on every side, and in the opinion of the Jebusites, deemed impregnable, 2 Sam. v. 6, 7, and both he and his successors improved considerably its natural strength.—14. (v) Your city.] Syr. Chald.

CHAP. XXXV. or XXXIV. 1. Made war against Jerusalem] This chapter contains two distinct prophecies. The first of which is dated at the time when Nebuchadnezzar was engaged in carrying on the siege of Jerusalem, and of the cities of Lachish and Azekah, most probably towards the latter end of the ninth year of Zedekiah, the siege having been begun in the tenth month of that year. The second prophecy was delivered some time after, when the Chaldeans had broken off the siege, and marched off to meet the Egyptian army, which made a show of coming to the relief of Jerusalem.

5. The burnings of thy fathers] See 2 Chron. xvi. 14; xxi. 19, from whence it appears to have been customary for the Jews to burn a large quantity of spices at the interment of their kings; an honour not refused to Zedekiah, though he died in captivity.—Saying, Ah, Lord] Compare ch. xxii. 18.

8, 9. Into covenant with] Compare Exod. xxi. 2. Deut. xv. 12—13, &c. What was Zedekiah's design, whether he acted from some remorse of conscience, or out of policy, that the people might be roused to make a more brave defence, does not appear.

the land of Egypt, out of the house of bond 14 men, saying, At the end of seven years ye shall let go every man his brother, an Hebrew, who shall have been sold unto thee; when he shall have served thee six years, then thou shalt let him go free from thee. But your fathers hearkened not unto me, nor 15 inclined their ear. And when ye had turned at this time, and had done what was right in mine eyes, in proclaiming liberty, every one to his neighbour, and had entered into a covenant before me in the house which is 16 called by my name: Then ye returned, and profaned my name, and took back every one his bond-man, and every one his bond-woman, whom ye had let go free to do their own pleasure; and ye have compelled them to be bond-men and bond-women unto you.
 17 Therefore, thus saith Jehovah, Ye have not hearkened unto me, in proclaiming liberty every one to his brother, and every one to his neighbour; behold, I proclaim liberty in regard to you, saith Jehovah, unto the sword, and to the pestilence, and to the famine; and I will give you up to vexation
 18 in all kingdoms of the earth. And I will give the men that have transgressed my covenant, who have not fulfilled the terms of the covenant which they made in the presence of the calf, which they cut in twain,
 19 and passed between the parts thereof; The princes of Judah, and the princes of Jerusalem, and the eunuchs, and the priests, and all the people of the land, that passed
 20 between the parts of the calf; I will even give them into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them that seek their life; and their dead bodies shall be for meat unto the fowls of the air, and to the beasts
 21 of the earth. And Zedekiah, king of Judah, and his princes, will I give into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them that seek their life, even into the hand of the king of Babylon's army, which are 22 gone up from you. Behold, I will give the command, saith Jehovah, and will cause them to return to this city; and they shall fight against it, and take it, and burn it with fire; and the cities of Judah will I make a desolation without an inhabitant.

17. Liberty to the sword] This turn on the word 'liberty,' is at once beautiful and highly alarming.

18. Cut in twain] Compare Gen. xv. 9—18, and note. The meaning of this rite was that they consented to be treated in like manner, if they violated the terms of the covenant.

CHAP. XXXVI. or XXXVII. 1—3. Jehucal] In the beginning of this chapter certain preliminary facts are related, tending to fix the time and occasion of Zedekiah's second message to Jeremiah, ver. 1—5. In the first message, Pashur was one of those sent.

6—10. That sent you to me] The advance of Pharaoh's

CHAPTER XXXVII.

The siege being raised by the approach of the Egyptians, Zedekiah sendeth to Jeremiah, who foretelleth the return of the Chaldeans; he is beaten and committed to prison.

Now king Zedekiah, the son of Josiah, 1 reigned instead of Jeconiah, the son of Jehoiakim, whom Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, made king in the land of Judah. But neither he, nor his servants, nor the 2 people of the land, regarded the words of Jehovah, which he spoke by the prophet Jeremiah. And Zedekiah, the king, sent 3 Jehucal, the son of Shelemiah, and Zephaniah, the son of Maaseiah, the priest, to Jeremiah, the prophet, saying, Pray now to Jehovah, our God, for us. For Jeremiah 4 came in, and went out among the people, and they had not cast him into prison. 5 Pharaoh's army was come forth out of Egypt, and the Chaldeans who laid siege to Jerusalem, when they heard the report of them, marched off from before Jerusalem.

Then came the word of Jehovah unto 6 Jeremiah, the prophet, saying, Thus saith 7 Jehovah, God of Israel; Thus shall ye say to the king of Judah that sent you to me, to seek me; Behold, Pharaoh's army, which is come forth to your assistance, shall return to their own land, to Egypt. And the Chal- 8 deans shall come again, and fight against this city, and they shall take it, and burn it with fire. Thus saith Jehovah, Deceive not 9 yourselves, saying, The Chaldeans shall surely go away from us; for they shall not go. But, although ye had smitten the 10 whole army of the Chaldeans, that fight against you, and there remained of them wounded men, every one in his tent, they should rise up, and burn this city with fire.

And it came to pass, when the army of 11 the Chaldeans were marched off from before Jerusalem, because of Pharaoh's army, that Jeremiah went forth out of Jerusalem, To go into the land of Benjamin, to the 12 possession which he had among the people. And as he was in the gate of Benjamin, 13 a captain of the ward was there, whose name was Irijah, the son of Shelemiah, the son of Hananiah; and he laid hold on Jeremiah, saying, Thou art going over to the Chaldeans. And Jeremiah said, It is false, 14

army had inspired both the king and people with the hope of final deliverance; but it seems that the Egyptians retreated to their own country without hazarding any engagement.

11—15. To the possession which he had] See note F. Bib. To suppose that Jeremiah was withdrawing among others, for any bad purpose, is improbable; but he might desire to visit his paternal property in Anathoth, and probably to collect some of the produce for his support in Jerusalem.—Irijah] He was the grandson of Hananiah, whose death Jeremiah had predicted, and might on this account seize and treat the prophet with more severity.

I am not going over to the Chaldeans. But he hearkened not to him. And Irijah laid hold on Jeremiah, and brought him unto 15 the princes. And the princes were incensed against Jeremiah; and smote him and committed him to prison in the house of Jonathan, the scribe; for they made that a prison.
 16 When Jeremiah had entered into the dungeon, and into the cells, and had abode there many days; then Zedekiah, the king, sent, and took him; and the king asked him in his house privately, and said, Is there
 17 any word from Jehovah? And Jeremiah said, There is: for he hath said, Into the hand of the king of Babylon shalt thou 18 be delivered. And Jeremiah said unto king Zedekiah, What offence have I committed against thee, or against thy servants, or against this people, that ye have cast me 19 into prison? And where are your prophets, that prophesied unto you, saying, The king of Babylon shall not come against you, nor 20 against this land? But now hear, I pray thee, O my Lord, the king; let my supplications, I pray thee, fall down before thee, and cause 21 me not to return to the house of Jonathan, the scribe, nor let me die there. And Zedekiah, the king, commanded, and they committed Jeremiah into the court of the prison, and allowed him a loaf of bread every day, out of the bakers' street, until all the bread in the city were spent. And Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison.

CHAPTER XXXII.

Jeremiah still confined in prison; the prophecy of the captivity is confirmed; a gracious promise of a return.

- 1 THE word which came to Jeremiah, from Jehovah, in the tenth year of Zedekiah, king of Judah: the same was the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar:
- 2 And at that time the army of the Chaldeans laid close siege to Jerusalem, and Jeremiah, the prophet, was confined in the court of the prison, which belonged to the

16. The dungeon and into the cells] From comparing this place with ch. xxxviii. 6, it seems likely that 'the dungeon' was a deep pit, sunk perpendicularly like a well, in the middle of the open court or quadrangle around which the great houses were built; and that in the sides of it, near the bottom, were scooped niches, like the cabins of a ship, for the separate lodgement of the unfortunate persons who were let down there. Hence also it may be, that the same word בור is frequently put for the grave; the ancient repositories of the dead being often constructed with niches in the same manner, in which the bodies were placed separately.

17—21. Hand of the king of Babylon] The prophet still faithfully addresses the king, and assures him that he should be made prisoner. The king seems to have had some respect for him, and on this occasion showed him some favour; he changed his prison for a more comfortable one.

CHAP. XXXVII. or XXXII. 1—5. Zedekiah, king of Judah] The date of the following transaction and prophecy is ascertained at the beginning of this chapter to have been in the tenth year of Zedekiah's reign, whilst the Chaldeans house of the king of Judah. For Zedekiah, 3 king of Judah, had put him in confinement, saying, Wherefore hast thou prophesied saying, Thus saith Jehovah, Behold, I am about to give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it? And 4 Zedekiah, king of Judah, shall not escape out of the hand of the Chaldeans, but shall surely be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall speak with him mouth to mouth, and his eyes shall behold his eyes. And he shall transport Zedekiah to Babylon, and there shall he be until I visit him, saith Jehovah. When ye shall fight against the Chaldeans, ye shall not prosper.

And Jeremiah said, The word of Jehovah 6 came unto me, saying, Behold, Hanameel, 7 the son of Shallum, thine uncle, will come unto thee, saying, Buy thee my field which is in Anathoth, for by the law of redemption it belongeth to thee to buy it. And Hana- 8 meel, my uncle's son, came unto me, according to the word of Jehovah, to the court of the prison, and said unto me, Buy, I pray thee, my field which is in Anathoth, which is in the land of Benjamin; for by law, the inheritance and the redemption belongeth to thee; buy it for thyself. Then I knew that this was the word of Jehovah. I bought, 9 therefore, the field, which was in Anathoth, of Hanameel, my uncle's son, and I paid him the money, seven shekels of gold, and ten of silver. And I had a deed drawn up 10 and sealed, and I caused witnesses to witness, and I weighed the money in scales. And 11 I took the purchase deed, that which was sealed, (containing) the assignment and the limitations, and that which was open. And I 12 delivered the purchase deed to Baruch, the son of Neriah, the son of Maaseiah, in the presence of Hanameel, my uncle's son, and in the presence of the witnesses who were written in the purchase deed, and in the presence of all the Jews, who sat in the court of the invested the city, and Jeremiah was confined in the court of the prison. These circumstances show that it must have been after that the Egyptians had retreated back to their own land, and the Chaldeans had renewed the siege a second time.

7. By the law of redemption] Compare Lev. xxv. 24, &c.

9. Seven shekels] It is not probable that a field should be bought for about forty shillings. The literal version is seven shekels, — and ten of silver. If we suppose the word gold dropped, the sum paid will be more agreeable to the nature of things. This would amount to near 14*l.* which, considering that the land was not to be enjoyed until after the captivity was its full value.

10. Deed drawn up] This version arises from reading the verb in hiphil, which appears to be necessary.

12. Who were written] Read the participle in the passive, as 16 MSS. and some editions, the Syr. Chald. and Vulg. read. This transaction showed the confidence of the prophet in his own predictions, and was designed to comfort those pious individuals who might be taken captive to Babylon.

13 prison. And I charged Baruch in their 14 presence, saying, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel, Take these writings, this purchase deed, both the sealed, and this open deed, and deposit them in an earthen 15 vessel, that they may endure many days. For thus saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel, Yet again shall houses and fields and vineyards be recovered in this land.
 16 Then prayed I unto Jehovah, after I had delivered the purchase deed to Baruch, the 17 son of Neriah, saying, Ah, Lord Jehovah!
 Behold, thou hast made the heavens and the earth, by thy great power, and by thy outstretched arm; there can be nothing 18 too hard for thee; Who showest mercy unto thousands, and recompense the iniquity of the fathers into the bosom of their children that come after them; the greatest, the mighty God, whose name is Jehovah 19 of hosts: Great in counsel, and manifold in operation, whose eyes are open upon all the ways of the children of men, to give to every one according to his ways, and according to 20 the fruit of his doings: Who hast displayed signs and wonders in the land of Egypt, even unto this day, and in Israel, and among men; and hast made thyself a name, 21 as at this day: And hast brought forth thy people Israel out of the land of Egypt, with signs and with wonders, and with a strong hand, and with an outstretched arm, and 22 with great terribleness; And hast given unto them this land, which thou sworest unto their fathers to give them, a land flowing 23 with milk and honey: And they have entered in, and possessed it; but they have not obeyed thy voice, nor walked according to thy law; all that thou commandest them to do, they have not done; therefore hast thou caused all this evil to befall them.
 24 Behold, the mounts are advanced unto the city to take it, and the city is given into the hand of the Chaldeans, that war against it,
 by means of the sword, and of the famine,
 and of the pestilence; and what thou hast spoken is come to pass; and, behold, thou 25 seest. Yet hast thou said unto me, O Lord Jehovah, Buy thee the field for money, and cause witnesses to attest; whereas the city is given into the hand of the Chaldeans.
 26 Then came the word of Jehovah unto 27 Jeremiah, saying, Behold, I, Jehovah, am the God of all flesh; can any thing be too 28 hard for me? Therefore, thus saith Jehovah,

Behold, I will give this city into the hand of the Chaldeans, and into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and he shall take it. And the Chaldeans, that war 29 against this city, shall enter, and shall set this city on fire, and shall burn it, and the houses, upon the roofs of which they have burned incense to Baal, and have poured out libations unto strange gods, so as to provoke me to anger. For the sons of Is- 30 rael, and the sons of Judah, have been doing only that which is evil in my sight from their youth: surely the sons of Israel have been but provoking me to anger with the work of their own hands, saith Jehovah.
 For mine anger and mine indignation hath 31 this city excited, from the day that they built it, even unto this day, to remove it from before me, Because of all the wickedness of 32
 the sons of Israel, and of the sons of Judah, which they have committed, to provoke me to anger, they, their kings, their princes, their priests, and their prophets, and the men of Judah, and inhabitants of Jerusalem.
 For they have turned unto me the back, and 33 not the face; and when I taught them early and constantly, they none of them hearkened so as to receive instruction. And they have 34 set up their abominations in the house which is called by my name, to defile it. And 35 they have erected the high-places of Baal,
 which are in the valley of Ben-Hinnom, to cause their sons and their daughters to pass through unto Molech, which I strictly forbid, and altogether condemned; practising this abomination for to bring guilt upon Judah.

But now after this, thus saith Jehovah, 36 God of Israel, concerning this city, of which ye say, It is delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon by sword, and by famine, and by pestilence: Behold, I will gather 37 them out of all the countries whither I have driven them in mine anger, and in mine indignation, and in great wrath; and I will bring them again unto this place, and I will cause them to dwell securely. And they 38 shall be my people, and I will be their God. And I will give them one heart and 39 one way, to fear me continually, for the good of them, and of their children that come after them. And I will make an ever- 40 lasting covenant with them, that I will not turn from their posterity, to do good unto them; and my fear will I put into their

6—23. Made the heavens] Jeremiah acknowledges God's power as displayed in creation, as a ground of hope even in the darkest seasons. He then calls to mind what he had done in delivering Israel from Egypt; and confesses that the present distresses were a just recompense of their sins.

24. Mounts are advanced] In modern terms the lines and ramparts of the enemy were advanced to the city, and they were ready to enter it, as it follows.

27. Be too hard for me.] God assures the prophet that he was able and would do what he had revealed, both in a way of judgment and of mercy.

35. It hath I strictly forbid] Compare ch. xix. 5, and note.

40. Their posterity] So the textual word is rendered, 1 Kings xxi. 21. Literally, 'those that come after them.'

- heart, that they shall not depart from me.
 41 And I will rejoice over them in doing them good, and I will plant them in this land assuredly, with all my heart, and with all my 42 soul. For thus saith Jehovah, As I have brought upon this people all this great evil, so will I bring upon them all the good 43 which I speak concerning them. And the fields shall be bought in this land, of which ye say, It is desolate, without man or beast; it is given into the hand of the Chaldeans.
 44 Fields shall men buy with money, drawing up writings also, and sealing, and causing witnesses to attest, in the land of Benjamin, and in the environs of Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah, and in the cities of the hill country, and in the cities of the plain, and in the cities of the south; for I will reverse their captivity, saith Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

A return from captivity promised; a settled government, and in due time, Christ, the Branch of righteousness.

- 1 THE word of Jehovah came also to Jeremiah a second time, whilst he was still confined in the court of the prison, saying,
 2 Thus saith Jehovah, who made 'the earth,' [blish it; Who formed it in order that he might establish Jehovah is his name.
 3 Call unto me, and I will answer thee, And I will show thee great things, And hidden things which thou knowest not.
 4 For thus saith Jehovah, God of Israel, Concerning the houses of this city, And the houses of the kings of Judah, Which are thrown down by the mounts and the sword, [them;
 5 Of those who are come to fight against The Chaldeans who shall fill them with the dead bodies of men: [my wrath, Whom I have smitten in mine anger and in And on account of all whose wickedness I have hidden my face from this city.
 6 Yet lo, I bring health and cure, and will heal them, [truth. And display to them abundant peace and 7 And I will reverse the captivity of Judah And the captivity of Israel;

And I will build them up as at the first.
 And I will purify them from all their iniquity 8 Whereby they have sinned against me; And I will pardon all their iniquities Whereby they have sinned against me, And whereby they have transgressed against me. [joy, And through me they shall be for a name of A praise and glory, among all nations of the earth, [them; Who shall hear of the good that I do unto And they shall fear and tremble for all the good,
 And all the prosperity that I procure for them. Thus saith Jehovah, [ye say, 10 Yet shall be heard in this place, of which It is desolate, without man and without beast; [saalem, In the cities of Judah and streets of Jerusalem That are altogether desolate without man, Even without an inhabitant, and without beast,
 The voice of joy and the noise of mirth, 11 The voice of the bridegroom and of the bride! [of hosts, The voice of those who say, Praise Jehovah For Jehovah is good—for his mercy endureth for ever; Of such as bring the thank-offering Unto the house of Jehovah; For I will restore the captivity of the land as at first, saith Jehovah.
 Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, 12 Yet again shall there be in this place That is desolate without man and beast, And in all the cities thereof, A habitation of shepherds, folding flocks. In the cities on the hills, and in the cities on 13 the plain, [of Benjamin, And in the cities of the south, and in the land And in the places about Jerusalem, And in the cities of Judah, the flocks shall yet pass Under the hand of him that numbereth them, saith Jehovah.
 Behold, the days come, saith Jehovah, 14 That I will perform that good thing Which I have promised to the house of Israel, And to the house of Judah, in those days.

CHAP. XXXVIII. or XXXIII. 2. Made the earth With other critics the reading of the Sept. and Arab. is adopted as more common.

4. By the mounts I have adhered to the usual sense of מַסְלֵלוֹת, as denoting the mounts raised by the besiegers, in order to attack the besieged on the walls and ramparts of the city, and from which missile and destructive things appear to have been east, as well as affording means to scale the walls, and then enter the city.

6—9. I bring health and cure Amidst the threatened desolation, God kindly promises hereafter to effect a wonderful deliverance for Zion and her citizens; not a national only, but a spiritual, pardoning their iniquities, and purifying them so that they should be the praise of the whole earth.

10—13. Yet again in this place Some complained of the desolation threatened, and in despair concluded, that the land would abide in that state, without man and without beast; but the prophet assures such that it should again be filled with inhabitants, and with flocks and herds; and that the temple service should be restored, and psalms sung to Jehovah's name.

14—16. That good thing The good thing promised is what follows, 'making to grow up to David, the branch of righteousness,' &c. There is a difference between this and the parallel place, ch. xxiii. 5, 6. As there are variations in the terms used, and in the form and construction, the text is followed, only adding what must have been omitted. שְׁמִי, his name, and reading לוֹ לְהַלֵּל for לוֹ.

15 For in those days and at that time,
I will cause to grow up unto David,

THE BRANCH OF RIGHTEOUSNESS,

And he shall execute judgment and justice
in the land.

16 In those days, Judah shall be saved,
And Jerusalem shall dwell in security;
And this "is his name" whereby he shall be JEHOVAH OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS, [called,

17 Surely thus saith Jehovah,
There shall not fail unto David a man,
Sitting on the throne of the house of Israel;
18 Nor shall there fail to the priests, the Levites,

A man offering before me burnt-offerings,
And burning part of the wheaten-offering;
And performing sacrifice continually.

19 The word of Jehovah, which came to 20 Jeremiah, saying, Thus saith Jehovah;

If ye can make void my covenant of the day,
And my covenant of the night,
So that there should not be day and night
in succession; [vane, be made void,

21 Then shall my covenant with David, my servant, That he shall not have a son reigning on his throne! [shall not minister to me.

And with the Levites, the priests, that they 22 As the hosts of heaven cannot be numbered,
Neither the sand of the sea measured;
So will I multiply the seed of David, my servant,

And of the Levites, who minister unto me.

23 The word of Jehovah came also to Jeremiah, saying, [speak,

24 Hast thou not observed what this people
The two families which Jehovah had chosen,
Them he hath even cast off!

And they have treated my people with scorn,
As if they should be no more a nation before
them.

25 Thus saith Jehovah, [more—
If my covenant as to day and night be no
If the ordinances of heaven and earth I abo-

26 Then will I cast off the seed of Jacob, [lish;
And that of David, my servant,
So as not to take of his seed to be rulers
Over the seed of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob:

Surely I will reverse their captivity, and have mercy on them.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Jeremiah is put into a dungeon; Ebed-melech intercedes for him, and getteth him out; his counsel to the king.

AND Shephatiah, the son of Mattan, and 1 Gedaliah, the son of Pashur, and Jucal, the son of Shelemiah, and Pashur, the son of Mal-chijah heard the words which Jeremiah used to speak unto all the people, saying, Thus 2 saith Jehovah, He that remaineth in this city shall die by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence: but he that goeth forth to the Chaldeans shall live; and his life shall be unto him as spoil, and he shall 3 live. Thus saith Jehovah, This city shall surely be delivered into the hand of the army of the king of Babylon, who shall take it.
Then said the princes unto the king, Let 4 this man, we pray thee, be put to death, for-asmuch as he weakeneth the hands of the men of war that remain in this city, and the hands of all the people, in speaking unto them according to these words: surely this man is not one that seeketh the welfare of his people, but the hurt. And Zedekiah, 5 the king, said, Behold, he is in your power;
for the king can do nothing against you.
Then took they Jeremiah, and cast him 6 into the dungeon of Malchijah, the king's son, which was in the court of the prison;
and they let Jeremiah down with cords:
and in the dungeon there was no water, but mire: and Jeremiah sunk in the mire.

And Ebed-melech, the Cushite, an eunuch 7 who was then in the king's house, heard that they had cast Jeremiah into the dungeon; and the king was sitting in the gate of Benjamin. Then Ebed-melech went forth out 8 of the king's house, and spoke to the king, saying, My lord, the king, these men have 9 done evil in all that they have done unto Jeremiah the prophet, whom they have caused to be thrown into the dungeon: for he will die in the place for hunger, when there is no longer any bread in the city.

16. (a) 3 MSS. chap. xxiii, 6.

17, 18. Not fail unto David] This must not be understood too strictly, but explained as denoting that the kingdom of David, and the priesthood, should be continued. After the captivity, Zerubbabel was of the line of David, and most probably on the female side, most of the high-priests, who, until the time when Herod the Great, seem to have had the chief direction of Jewish affairs. In this way both the kingdom and priesthood were continued, until our Lord came, in whom they have been, and will be perpetuated. While the temporal kingdom and typical priesthood have ceased, the spiritual one and the real priesthood have endured.

24. The two families] Some by this understand the houses of Israel and of Judah; and some confine it to the families of Aaron and David. Those who thus spoke, must have been the weak or the wicked; either such as could not believe, or such as made a banter of divine promises.

CHAP. XXXIX. or XXXVIII. 1. Jeremiah used to speak] This chapter (to which should be subjoined the four last verses of ch. xxxix. on account of their obvious connexion) contains the last transaction in which Jeremiah was prophetically concerned before the taking of Jerusalem.

5. For the king can] The king had already shown great respect to the prophet; but the princes had determined to confine, if not destroy him, and Zedekiah speaks this in some degree of resentment against them.

6. The king's son] Compare ch. xxxvii. 26.—In the dungeon] Compare ch. xxxvii. 16. and note.

7—13. And Ebed-melech] The conduct of this eunuch, and the readiness of the king to grant his request, show that they both in some degree believed his word. His accusing the conduct of the princes, and the king's acquiescence, show that the turn given to verse 5 is the true one.

- 10 Then the king commanded Ebed-melech, the Cushite, saying, Take hence along with thee thirty men, and take up Jeremiah, the prophet, out of the dungeon, before he die.
- 11 And Ebed-melech took the men along with him; and went into the king's house, under the store-room, and took thence torn rags, and worn-out rags, and let them down by
- 12 cords into the dungeon of Jeremiah. And Ebed-melech, the Cushite, said to Jeremiah, Put now these torn and worn-out rags, under thine arm-holds, under the cords.
- 13 And Jeremiah did so. And they drew up Jeremiah with cords, and took him up out of the dungeon: and Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison.
- 14 And king Zedekiah sent, and took Jeremiah, the prophet, unto him, into the chief entrance, which is in the house of Jehovah. And the king said unto Jeremiah; I am about to ask thee a question; hide not any
- 15 thing from me. And Jeremiah said unto Zedekiah, When I have told thee, wilt thou not surely put me to death? and when I shall have given thee counsel, thou wilt not hearken unto me. Then king Zedekiah
- 16 swore unto Jeremiah, in secret, saying, As Jehovah liveth, who made us this soul, I will not put thee to death, nor will I deliver thee into the hand of these men, that seek
- 17 thy life. And Jeremiah said unto Zedekiah, Thus saith Jehovah, "of hosts, God of Israel, If thou wilt indeed go forth unto the princes of the king of Babylon, then shall thy soul live, and this city shall not be burned with fire; but thou shalt live, thou and thy
- 18 family. But if thou wilt not go forth unto the princes of the king of Babylon, then shall this city be delivered into the hand of the Chaldeans, and they shall burn it with fire; and thou thyself shalt not escape out
- 19 of their hand. And king Zedekiah said unto Jeremiah, I am afraid of the Jews, who are gone over to the Chaldeans, lest they deliver me into their hand, and they
- 20 insult me. And Jeremiah said, They will not deliver thee. Hearken, I beseech thee, unto the voice of Jehovah, in what I speak unto thee, that it may go well with thee, and that thy soul may live. But if thou refuse 21 to go forth, this is the thing that Jehovah hath revealed unto me: Even, behold, all 22 the women that are left in the house of the king of Judah shall be brought forth unto the princes of the king of Babylon, and these shall say, Thy familiar friends have set thee on, and prevailed over thee; they have set thy foot fast in the mire, and are turned away back. And all thy wives, and thy 23 children, shall they bring out to the Chaldeans; and thou thyself shalt not escape out of their hand, but by the hand of the king of Babylon shalt thou be taken, and thou shalt cause this city to be burnt with fire. Then said Zedekiah unto Jeremiah, 24 Let no man know of these words, and thou shalt not die. But if the princes shall hear 25 that I have conversed with thee, and shall come unto thee, and shall say unto thee, Tell us, we pray thee, what thou hast spoken unto the king, conceal it not from us, and we will not put thee to death; and what the king hath said unto thee: then shalt thou say unto them, I offered humbly my supplica- 26 tion before the king, that he would not cause me to return to the house of Jonathan to die there. Accordingly all the princes 27 came to Jeremiah, and questioned him; and he told them according to all these words, which the king had commanded. And they said no more, for the conversation was not heard. And Jeremiah remained 28 in the court of the prison, until the day that Jerusalem was taken, and he was there when Jerusalem was taken.

And the word of Jehovah came unto Je- 15 remiah, whilst he was confined in the court of the prison, saying, Go, and speak unto 16 Ebed-melech, the Cushite, saying, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel, Be- hold! I am about to bring my words upon this city for evil, and not for good; and they shall be performed before thee in that day. But I will deliver thee in that day, 17 saith Jehovah; and thou shalt not be given

14. Chief entrance] Or principal entrance, as the margin renders. This was most probably that ascent out of the king's house into the temple, mentioned 1 Kings x. 5; for it is scarcely probable, that Jeremiah being in prison in the court of the palace, the king should take him out along with him to some entrance of the temple for the sake of privacy, as that was constantly filled with the priests and people.

15. Thou wilt not hearken] The progress of the siege seems to have affected the king, and he was now anxious to learn the event; yet the prophet was assured that he would not hearken to his advice.

16—23. As Jehovah liveth] The king having given a solemn pledge to the prophet, he foretells what was about to happen. If the king surrendered, the city would be preserved, but if not, it would be taken and burnt, and his children and wives be made captives. The king seems to have been moved, but through, the obstinacy of the leading men, was induced to persist, until wrath came upon the city to the uttermost.

17. (o) God. MSS. Chald. Syr. Vulg.

24—28. Let no man know] This shows that the king really feared the princes, and was apprehensive of some attempts upon his life, if they should know what he had said. It is probable that Jeremiah, in the course of conversation, might request not to be cast again into the dungeon, or sent to the house of Jonathan, (compare ch. xxxvii. 15,) and that the king laid hold on this as an answer to the princes on their hearing of this interview. In this case, the answer of the prophet was true, though not the whole truth.

15—18. He was confined in the] This remark justifies Blayney, whom I have followed in joining these verses to the preceding chapter. They contain the same truth as what our Lord has taught us, that what is done to his people, he considers as done to himself, Matt. xxv. 10.

into the hand of the men of whom thou art afraid. But I will surely rescue thee, and thou shalt not fall by the sword; but thy life shall be unto thee as spoil; because thou hast trusted in me, saith Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

Jerusalem is taken; Zedekiah has his eyes put out and sent to Babylon; the city is destroyed, and the people led away captive.

- 1 IN the ninth year of Zedekiah, king of Judah, in the tenth month, came Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and all his army unto Jerusalem, and they laid siege to it.
- 2 In the eleventh year of Zedekiah, in the fourth month, on the ninth day of the month,
- 3 the city was broken into. And all the princes of the king of Babylon entered, and posted themselves in the gate of the centre; Nergal-Sharetzar, Samgar-Nebo, Sarsechim, chief eunuch, Nergal-Sharetzar, a chief magi, and all the rest of the princes of the
- 4 king of Babylon. And it came to pass, when Zedekiah, king of Judah, and all the men of war, saw them, they fled, and went forth out of the city by night, by the way of the king's garden, through the gate between the two walls: and they went forth
- 5 towards the plain. And the army of the Chaldeans pursued them, and overtook Zedekiah, in the plains of Jericho; and they took him, and brought him up to Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, at Riblah, in the land of Hamath: and he pronounced judgment upon him. And the king of Babylon
- 6 slew the sons of Zedekiah, at Riblah, before his eyes, and all the nobles of Judah did the
- 7 king of Babylon slay. And he put out the eyes of Zedekiah, and bound him with fetters of brass, to carry him to Babylon. And the house of the king, and the houses of the people, did the Chaldeans burn with fire, and they broke down the walls of Jerusalem.
- 8 And the residue of the people that remained in the city, and the deserters who had come over to him, even the residue of the people, those that remained, Nebuzaradan, captain of the guards, transported to Babylon. But 10 the meanest of the people who had no property, Nebuzaradan, captain of the guards, left in the land of Judah, and gave them at the same time vineyards and fields.

And Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, 11 had given a charge concerning Jeremiah, to Nebuzaradan, captain of the guards, saying, Take him, and treat him kindly, and do him 12 no manner of harm; but according as he shall say unto thee, so deal thou with him. So Nebuzaradan, captain of the guards, 13 sent, and Nebushasban, chief eunuch, and Nergal Sharetzar, a chief magi, and all the commanders of the king of Babylon; they sent, and took Jeremiah out of the court of the prison, and delivered him to Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, to conduct him home; and he dwelt among the people.

CHAPTERS XL. XLI.

Jeremiah being set free, goeth to Gedaliah; the dispersed Jews return to him; Ishmael's conspiracy; Gedaliah slain, the captives recovered.

THE word which came to Jeremiah, from 1 Jehovah, after that Nebuzaradan, captain of the guards, had taken him, and let him go from Ramah; for he had been bound with chains among all the captivity of Jerusalem and Judah, who were carried away captive to Babylon.

And the captain of the guards took Jeremiah, and said unto him, Jehovah, thy God, hath denounced this calamity against this place. And Jehovah hath come and done 2 according as he spoke; because ye had sinned against Jehovah, and not obeyed his voice; therefore hath this thing befallen you. And now, behold, I have loosed thee 3 this day from the chains which were upon thy hands. If it seem good unto thee to come with me to Babylon, come; and I 4

CHAP. XL. or XXXIX. 3. Gate of the centre] The city of Jerusalem stood upon two hills, Zion to the south, and Acra to the north, with a deep valley between them. 'The gate of the centre,' as the term seems plainly to import, was a gate of communication in the middle of the valley between the two parts of the city, sometimes called the higher and the lower city. The Chaldeans entered the city on the north side by a breach in the walls, and immediately rushing forward, and posting themselves in this gate, in the very heart or centre of the city, they became thereby masters at will of the whole. Zedekiah with his troops, perceiving this, fled out of the opposite gate on the south side.—Nergal-Sharetzar] So Dathe and Michaelis divide and render these words, which are allowed to be difficult.

5. He pronounced judgment] The readings given are the true ones. Compare 2 Chron. xxxvi. 13. Ezek. xvii. 16.

17. He put out Zedekiah's eyes] Thus two prophecies were fulfilled, that he should not die by the sword, ch. xxiv. 4; and that of Ezekiel, that he should not see Babylon, Ezek. xii. 13.

9. Residue of the people] Two sorts of persons are here distinguished, first, The residue of the people that remained in the city, when it was taken; second, Those who had deserted during the siege; and these together are included under one general name, 'even the residue of the people, those that remained.' Compare ch. lii. 15.

12. Treat him kindly] The Hebrew, 'set thine eyes upon him.' The sense is preferred to the idiom.

CHAP. XLI. XLII. or XL. XLI. 1. Had taken him and let him go] It does not appear that Nebuzaradan was at Jerusalem when it was taken; but I think from the 13th verse of the foregoing chapter, he sent to the other chiefs to take care of Jeremiah, or if we suppose that he was at Jerusalem, he might depart after Zedekiah, and having conducted him to Riblah, then return to Ramah, and send for the prophet to be brought to him there, that he might grant him a full release; and it appears that he was conducted there like other captives.

3. Hath come and done] God is frequently said to come in person to execute his purposes. See Exod. xx. 24. And indeed the word visit implies coming, either to show mercy or to inflict punishment.

will treat thee kindly; but if it seem evil unto thee to come with me to Babylon, forbear; behold, the whole land is before thee, according as it seemeth good, and according as it seemeth right in thine eyes, to go, 5 go thither; And while he made no reply, he said, Abide, therefore, with Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, whom the king of Babylon hath made governor over the cities of Judah, and dwell with him among the people: or else, whithersoever it seemeth right in thine eyes to go, go. And the captain of the guards gave him provisions, and a gratuity, and dismissed him. 6 And Jeremiah went unto Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, to Mizpeh, and dwelt with him among the people that were left in the land. 7 Now when all the captains of the forces, which were in the open country, they, and their men, heard that the king of Babylon had made Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, governor over the land, and that he had committed to his charge men, and women, and children, even certain of the poor of the land, of those who were not carried away 8 captive to Babylon: Then they came to Gedaliah, in Mizpeh, even Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, and Johanan, and Jonathan, the sons of Kareah, and Seraiah, the son of Tanhumeth, and the sons of Ephai, the Netophathite, and Jezaniah, the son of "Hoshaiah," the Maachathite, they, and their 9 men. And Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, swore unto them, and to their men, saying, Fear not to serve the Chaldeans; dwell in the land, and serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be well with you. As for me, behold, I will reside at Mizpeh, to stand before the Chaldeans, who shall come to us; but do ye gather in wine, and summer fruits, and oil, and put into your vessels; and dwell in your cities, which ye have occupied. 11 Also when all the Jews that were in Moab, and among the Ammonites, and in Edom, and that were in all the countries, heard that the king of Babylon had given a remnant to Judah, and that he had made Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, governor over them; Then all the 12 Jews returned from all the places whither they had been driven, and came to the land of Judah, unto Gedaliah, to Mizpeh; and they gathered in wine and summer fruits in great abundance.

And Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all 13 the captains of the forces that were in the open country, came unto Gedaliah, to Mizpeh; and they said unto him, Art thou well 14 aware that Baalis, the king of the Ammonites, hath sent Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, to take away thy life? But Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, believed them not. And Johanan, the son of Kareah, spoke to 15 Gedaliah, in private, at Mizpeh, saying, Let me go, I pray thee, and smite Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, and no one shall know. Wherefore should he take away thy life, and all Judah be dispersed, those that are gathered unto thee, and the remnant of Judah perish? But Gedaliah, the son of 16 Ahikam, said unto Johanan, the son of Kareah, By no means do this thing; surely thou speakest falsely of Ishmael.

CHAPTER XLI.

AND it came to pass in the seventh 1 month, that Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, the son of Elishama, of the seed royal, and great officers of the king, even ten men, with him, came unto Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, to Mizpeh; and they eat bread there together in Mizpeh. Then Ishmael, 2 the son of Nethaniah, arose, and the ten men that were with him, and they smote Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, with the sword, and slew him, whom the king of Babylon had made governor over the land. And all the Jews that were 3 with him, with Gedaliah, in Mizpeh, and the Chaldeans that were found there, the men of war, did Ishmael smite. And it 4 came to pass, the second day after he had murdered Gedaliah, whilst no one knew it. That there came men from Shechem, and 5 from Shiloh, and from Samaria, four-score persons, having their beards shaven, and their clothes rent, and having cut themselves, with an oblation and incense in their hand, to bring to the house of Jehovah. And Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, went 6 out to meet them from Mizpeh, weeping all along as he went; and it came to pass when

5. And while he made no reply] So many render, and that וַיִּשְׁמַע may have this sense is certain. The common version is not clear.

8. The son of Hoshaiah] As a Maachathite was a descendant from Maacah, it is clear the name of his immediate father has been dropped.

14. Dost thou certainly know] They seem to have had some just grounds to suspect Ishmael; and anxious to secure Gedaliah, they give him this information. He perhaps thought, that considering the desolation of the country that no one could think of adding to its miseries, by such a horrid crime. He would not, therefore, believe the report.

CHAP. XLII. or XLI. 5. Beards shaven.] All these signs of mourning and great affliction (see Job i. 20, and notes on ch. xvi. 6) seem to have been manifested on account of the calamity which had befallen the city and temple.—To the house of Jehovah] Though the temple was destroyed, it may be presumed that the people continued to offer up sacrifices and offerings on the spot where it stood, as long as they remained in the land; for we find this began to be their practice soon after their return, before the temple was rebuilt. See Ezra iii. 2, 3, &c.

6. Weeping as he went] How artful, as well as wicked, was this wretch, that he could put on the forms of mourning, when meditating only murder and death.

- he met them, that he said unto them, Come ye to Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam. And it came to pass, when they had come into the midst of the city, that Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, slew and cast them into the pit, he, and the men that were with him.
- But ten men were found among them, that said unto Ishmael, Slay us not, for we have hidden stores in the fields, wheat, and barley, and oil, and honey. He forbore therefore, and slew them not among their brethren. Now the pit, into which Ishmael cast all the dead bodies of the men whom he had smitten along with Gedaliah, the same which king Asa had made on account of Baasha, king of Israel, Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, filled with the slain. And Ishmael took captive all the residue of the people that were in Mizpeh, the king's daughters, and all the people that remained in Mizpeh, whom Nebuzaradan, captain of the guards, had committed to the charge of Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam; even Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, took them captive, and set forth to pass over to the Ammonites.
- But when Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, heard of all the evil that Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, had done, They took all the men, and went to fight with Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, and came up with him at the great waters that are in Gibeon. And it came to pass, when all the people that were with Ishmael, saw Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces, that were with him, they rejoiced. And all the people that Ishmael had taken captive from Mizpeh, faced about, and came back again to Johanan, the son of Kareah. But Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, escaped from Johanan, with eight men, and went to the Ammonites. Then took Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, all the remnant of the people, whom he had recovered from Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, from Mizpeh, after the murder that had been committed upon Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, strong men, men of war, and women, and children, and eunuchs, whom he had brought back from Gibeon; And they went, and dwelt in Geruth-Chimham, which is near Bethlehem, in order to proceed to go into Egypt, Out of the reach of the Chaldeans; for they were afraid of them, because that Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, had slain Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, whom the king of Babylon had made governor over the land.

CHAPTERS XLII. XLIII.

Jeremiah consulted; his answer to Johanan; their hypocrisy reproved; their disobedience in going down to Egypt.

THEN all the captains of the forces, and Johanan, the son of Kareah, and Jezaniah, the son of Hoshaiah, and all the people, from the least even unto the greatest, came near, And said unto Jeremiah, the prophet, Let, we beseech thee, our supplication come before thee, and pray for us unto Jehovah, thy God, in behalf of all this remnant, (for we remain a few out of many, as thine eyes do see us,) That Jehovah thy God may show us the way wherein we should walk, and the thing which we should do. And Jeremiah, the prophet, said unto them, I have heard; behold, I will pray unto Jehovah, your God, according to your words; and it shall be, that whatsoever thing Jehovah shall answer you, I will declare to you; I will not keep any thing from you. And they said to Jeremiah, Let Jehovah be a true and faithful witness between us, if, according to whatsoever Jehovah, thy God, shall send thee to say to us, we do not so act. Whether good or bad, we will obey the voice of Jehovah, our God, to whom we send thee; that it may be well with us, when we shall have obeyed the voice of Jehovah, our God.

And it came to pass, at the end of ten days, that the word of Jehovah came unto Jeremiah. Then called he for Johanan, the son of Kareah, and for all the captains of the forces that were with him, and for all the people, from the least even unto the greatest, and said unto them. Thus saith Jehovah, God of Israel, unto whom ye sent me to present your supplication before him: If ye will indeed remain in this land, then will I build you up, and will not pull down; and I will plant you, and will not pluck up; for I repent of the evil that I have done unto you. Be not afraid of the king of Babylon, of whom ye are afraid; be not afraid of

8. Slay us not] This shows that little had been left in the land; and that even Ishmael, for the sake of the booty mentioned, was willing to spare their lives.

9. Now the pit] A large pit for receiving rain water, which Asa, who built and fortified Mizpeh at the time he was at war with Baasha, king of Israel, (1 Kings xv. 22,) caused to be made in the midst of the city, in order that the people might not be in want of so necessary an article in case of a siege. Each private family seems also to have had one of these pits or reservoirs for its own use; 'Drink ye every one of the waters of his own cistern'; בִּירֵי, 'his pit,' or reservoir, says Rabshakeh, to the people of Jerusalem, Isa. xxxvi. 16.

12. Waters of Gibeon] Called the pool or lake of Gibeon, 2 Sam. ii. 13.

CHAP. XLII. XLIV. or XLII. XLIII. 1-6. Then all the captains] From this application to the prophet, we are ready to conclude that the people left were now humbled, and would assuredly obey the command of God; they appear to be sincere, and solemnly promise to do so.

10. If ye will indeed remain] I have followed the old versions, as our translators did, in considering the true text him, saith Jehovah; for I will be with you, to save you, and to deliver you out of his hand. And I will show mercies unto you; and he shall have mercy upon you, and shall settle you in your own land. But if ye say, We will not remain in this land, so as not to hearken unto the voice of Jehovah, your God, saying, No; for we will go into the land of Egypt, that we may not see war, nor hear the sound of the trumpet, nor hunger for bread; and we will reside there: Even now, therefore, hear the word of Jehovah, O remnant of Judah; Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel, If ye will altogether set your faces to enter into Egypt, and will go to sojourn there, Then it shall be that the sword of which ye are afraid, shall overtake you there in the land of Egypt; and the famine, of which ye are afraid, shall there follow close after you into Egypt; and there ye shall die. And it shall be that all the men, who have set their faces to go into Egypt to sojourn there, shall die by sword, and by famine, and by pestilence; and there shall not one of them remain, or escape from the evil that I bring upon them. For thus saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel; As mine anger and my wrath hath been poured out upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so shall my wrath be poured out upon you, when ye shall enter into Egypt; and ye shall be an execration, and an astonishment, and a curse, and a reproach, and ye shall not see this place any more. The word of Jehovah concerning you, O remnant of Judah is, Go ye not into Egypt; ye shall assuredly know that I have testified it to you this day. Surely ye have practised deceit against your own souls: for ye sent me unto Jehovah, your God, saying, Pray for us unto Jehovah, our God, and according to all that Jehovah, our God, shall say, so declare unto us, and we will do. And I have declared unto you this day, but ye have not hearkened unto the voice of Jehovah, your God, nor to any thing for which he hath sent me unto you. Now, therefore, ye shall assuredly know, that by sword, and by famine, and by pestilence, shall ye die in the place, whither ye have chosen to go to sojourn.

CHAPTER XLIII.

AND it came to pass when Jeremiah had made an end of speaking unto all the people, all the words of Jehovah, their God, with which Jehovah, their God, had sent him unto them, all these words; That 'Jezaniah,' the son of Hoshaiah, and Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the proud men, said, speaking unto Jeremiah, Thou speakest falsehood; Jehovah, our God, hath not sent thee to say, Ye shall not go into Egypt, to sojourn there. But Baruch, the son of Neriah, setteth thee on against us, to deliver us into the hand of the Chaldeans, to slay us, and to carry us away captive to Babylon. So Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces, and all the people, obeyed not the voice of Jehovah, to remain in the land of Judah. But Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces, took all the remnant of Judah, who were returned from all the nations, whither they had been driven, to dwell in the land of Judah; The men and the women, and the children, and the king's daughters, and every person whom Nebuzaradan, captain of the guards, had left with Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, and Jeremiah, the prophet, and Baruch, the son of Neriah; And they went into the land of Egypt; for they obeyed not the voice of Jehovah: and they came as far as Taphanhes.

Then came the word of Jehovah, unto Jeremiah, in Taphanhes, saying, Take in thy hand great stones, and hide them in the clay, in the brick-kiln, which is at the entrance of the house of Pharaoh, in Taphanhes, in the sight of some men of Judah. And thou shalt say unto them, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel; Behold, I will send and take Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, my servant, and I will set his throne above these stones which I have hid, and he shall spread forth his foot-skin over them. And he shall come, and smite the

to be שבת חשב; for it is difficult to make any sense of the text.

12. Shall settle you] This version arises from reading with different points, and is supported by the Syr. and Vulg. and the sense of the passage requires it; for the persons addressed are supposed not to have left their own land; the king of Babylon therefore might more probably be said to let them remain, or to confirm their settlement there, than to bring them back to a place which they had never quitted.

19. The word of Jehovah] Blayney justly considers דבר as a noun, and not as a verb; and this makes the sense and construction more easy and plain.

20—22. Practised deceit] The prophet most probably, from the looks of his hearers, perceived that what he had said was far from being acceptable. Hence he charges them with their sin, and denounces divine judgments.

CHAP. XLIV. or XLIII. 2. Jezaniah] He is so called often before; and as the Syriac has this name here, Azariah is the mere blunder of scribes.—The proud men] Their pride was the effect of their unbelief; and they could easily find a pretence for their conduct, by charging the prophet with speaking falsehood in the name of Jehovah. No evidence of his divine mission, no proof from what had occurred could convince these men.

10. His footskin] So Michaelis, who from the Arabic shows that שפיר signifies corium orbiculare, which was spread on the ground, over or upon which the throne was placed. Some of the ancients render 'tent,' others, 'arms,' and Blayney, 'his splendour.'

land of Egypt, those that are for death, with death; and those that are for captivity, with captivity; and those that are for the sword, 12 with the sword. And I will kindle a fire in the houses of the gods of Egypt; and he shall burn them, and shall carry them away captive; and he shall clothe himself with the land of Egypt, as a shepherd clotheth himself with his garment; and he shall go 13 forth from thence in peace. And he shall break in pieces the images of the house of the sun, which is in the land of Egypt; and the houses of the gods of Egypt he shall burn with fire.

CHAPTER XLIV.

Jeremiah describes the sins of Judah; he predicts the destruction of those in Egypt for the like sins; the destruction of Egypt foretold.

- 1 THE word which came to Jeremiah, concerning all the Jews that dwelt in the land of Egypt, that dwelt at Migdol, and at Taphanhes, and at Noph, and in the country of Pathros, saying:
- 2 Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel, Ye have seen all the evil that I have brought upon Jerusalem, and upon all the
- 3 cities of Judah; For, behold they are a desolation this day, and there is no inhabitant in them, because of their wickedness which they have committed to provoke me to anger, in going to burn incense for to serve strange gods, whom they knew not; they,
- 4 ye, and your fathers. I sent also unto you all my servants, the prophets, early and constantly, saying, Do not, I pray you, this abominable thing which I hate. But they
- 5 hearkened not, nor inclined their ear, to turn from their wickedness, so as not to burn incense unto strange gods. Therefore
- 6 hath my wrath and mine anger been poured out, and hath been kindled against the cities of Judah, and against the streets of Jerusalem; and they are become a desolation and
- 7 a waste, as at this day. And now thus saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel; Wherefore do ye commit great evil against your own souls, to the cutting off among you of man and woman, child and suckling, out of the midst of Judah, without leaving a remnant of you; In provoking me to anger 8 with the works of your own hands, in burning incense to strange gods in the land of Egypt, whither ye are gone to dwell; that there may be a cutting of you off, and that ye may become a curse and a reproach among all nations of the earth? Have ye 9 forgotten the wickednesses of your fathers, and the wickednesses of the kings of Judah, and the wickednesses of the princes thereof, and your own wickedness, and the wickednesses of your wives, which they have committed in the land of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem? They have not been 10 contrite unto this day, neither have they feared, neither have they walked in my law, nor in my statutes, which I set before you, and before your fathers. Therefore thus 11 saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel, Behold, I set my face against you for harm, even to cut off all Judah. And I will take the rem- 12 nant of Judah, that have set their faces to go into the land of Egypt to sojourn there, and they shall all be consumed in the land of Egypt; they shall fall by the sword, and by famine shall they be consumed, from the least even unto the greatest; by the sword and by famine shall they die; and they shall become an execration, and an astonishment, and a curse, and a reproach. And I will 13 punish them that dwell in the land of Egypt, as I have punished Jerusalem, with sword, and with famine, and with pestilence. And 14 none of the remnant of Judah shall escape or remain, who are come to sojourn here in the land of Egypt, and to return into the land of Judah, on which they set their heart to return to dwell there; for only a few that escape shall return.

Then all the men, who knew that their 15 wives had burned incense unto strange gods, and all the women that stood by, a great company, even all the people that dwelt in the land of Egypt, in Pathros, answered Jeremiah, saying, As for the word which 16 thou hast spoken unto us in the name of Jehovah, we will not hearken unto thee. But we will surely perform what is gone 17 forth out of our mouth, in burning incense unto the queen of the heavens, and pouring

13. House of the sun] Called by the Greeks from this, Heliopolis. The Egyptians celebrated a grand festival annually in honour of the sun, who had a temple there. But בית שמש seems rather to mean the temple itself, in which the images of their deity were erected.

CHAP. XLV. or XLIV. 1. At Migdol] The city of Magdolos is placed by Antoninus at the entrance of Egypt from Palestine. Its situation in the neighbourhood of Taphanhes, or Daphnæ, and its distance from Judea, favour the supposition of its being the Migdol here spoken of.

3. They, ye and your fathers] The last words seem explanatory of whom the prophet was speaking, namely, says he, both ye and your fathers.

9. Of the princes thereof] It is very evident that the present reading, נשי, 'his wives,' must be wrong. That the wickednesses of the princes or subordinate magistrates should follow the mention of the wickednesses of the kings, is very natural; see ver. 17, 21.—(v) Sept.

14. And none of the] It is evident from ver. 28, that some Jews were to escape the general destruction in Egypt, and to return into their own country, although but a few; and the same thing is implied in the latter sentence of this verse. But the former part of this verse excludes out of the number of escapers every individual of those that were called properly 'the remnant of Judah,' those that had set their faces to enter Egypt to sojourn there in opposition to the express command of God. The few then who were destined to escape, and to return back to the land of Judah,

- out libations unto her; like as we did, we and our fathers, our kings, and our princes, in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, when we had plenty of bread, and were prosperous, and saw no adversity.
- 18 But from the time we left off to burn incense unto the queen of the heavens, and to pour out libations unto her, we have been in want of every thing, and have been consumed by the sword and by famine. And when we burned incense unto the queen of the heavens, pouring out libations also unto her, did we, exclusively of our men, make cakes for her, worshipping her, and pouring out libations unto her?
- 20 Then spoke Jeremiah unto all the people, to the men, and to the women, even to all the people, who had returned him an answer, saying, The incense which ye have burned in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, ye, and your fathers, your kings, and your princes, and the people of the land with them, hath not Jehovah remembered, or hath it been acceptable unto him? But Jehovah could no longer bear, because of the wickedness of your doings, because of the abominations which ye have committed; therefore is your land become a desolation, and an astonishment, and a curse, so as to be without an inhabitant at this day. Because ye have burned incense, and because ye have sinned against Jehovah, and have not obeyed the voice of Jehovah, nor walked according to his law, and to his statutes, and to his testimonies; therefore hath this calamity befallen you as at this day.
- 24 Moreover Jeremiah said unto all the people, and to all the women, Hear ye the word of Jehovah, all Judah that are in the land of Egypt: Thus hath Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel, spoken, saying, As for you and your women, they have even spoken with your mouths, and with your hands have they fulfilled, saying, We will surely perform our vows, which we have vowed, to burn incense to the queen of the heavens, and to pour out libations unto her; they will surely make good your vows, they will surely accomplish your vows. Therefore hear ye the word of Jehovah, all Judah that dwell in the land of Egypt; Behold, I have sworn by my great name, saith Jehovah, that my name shall no more be called upon by the mouth of any man of Judah, saying, As Jehovah liveth, throughout all the land of Egypt. Behold, I will watch over them for evil, and not for good; and they shall be consumed, every man of Judah, which is in the land of Egypt, by the sword and by famine, until there be an end of them. And they who escape from the sword, that shall return out of the land of Egypt, into the land of Judah shall be few in number; and all the remnant of Judah, that are come into the land of Egypt, to sojourn there, shall know whose word shall stand good, mine, or theirs. And this shall be the sign unto you, that it is I that punish you in this place, to the end that ye may know that my words shall be surely established in respect to you, to your hurt: Behold, I will deliver Pharaoh-Hophra, king of Egypt, into the hand of his enemies, and into the hand of them that seek his life; like as I have delivered Zedekiah, king of Judah, into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, his enemy, and who sought his life.

CHAPTER XLVI

The overthrow of Pharaoh's army; Nebuchadnezzar's conquest of Egypt; Jacob comforted under his chastisement.

THE WORD OF JEHOVAH WHICH CAME TO JEREMIAH CONCERNING THE NATIONS.

CONCERNING EGYPT.

Concerning the army of Pharaoh-necho, king of Egypt, which was by the river Euphrates at Carchemish, in the fourth year of Jehoiaquim, son of Josiah, king of Judah.

were to be such as had come into the land of Egypt in a less offensive manner, and chanced to be there when the storm burst upon them.

19. Exclusively of our men] By the law of Moses, the men had an independent power of binding themselves by any religious vow or obligation; but the vows of the women were not binding, without the knowledge and consent of their fathers and husbands, Num. xxx. 1—16. Accordingly that thing is said to 'ascend' or 'come unto, or upon the heart' of any one, which he approves or delights in. Thus 'all that came into Solomon's heart,' 2 Chron. vii. 11, means all that was agreeable to him, or that he liked to do. Compare ch. vii. 31, and note.

21. Or hath it been acceptable] That is said to be 'near,' or 'according to the heart' of any one, which is pleasing or acceptable to him, Ruth ii. 13. 2 Sam. xix. 7. Accordingly that thing is said to 'ascend' or 'come unto, or upon the heart' of any one, which he approves or delights in. Thus 'all that came into Solomon's heart,' 2 Chron. vii. 11, means all that was agreeable to him, or that he liked to do. Compare ch. vii. 31, and note.

25. As for ye and your women] The different genders have not been sufficiently attended to in the explications that have been hitherto given of this verse. Though the women were the immediate actors in the idolatrous vows and service, the men would still be considered as having a principal share in the guilt, forasmuch as they made the acts of the women their own, by not preventing what without their allowance could not have been carried into effect. See note on ver. 19.

30. Pharaoh-Hophra] This prince is the same that is called by profane authors 'Apries;' and his unfortunate end, in exact conformity with this prediction, is related by Herodotus, lib. ii. c. 169.

CHAP. XLVI. 1. The word of Jehovah] This verse is a general title to the collection of prophecies contained in this and the five following chapters. The nations spoken of are the same of whom an enumeration is made, ch. xxxv. 19—26. These prophecies were not delivered all at the same time. To some the date is annexed; in others it is left uncertain.

2. Concerning Egypt] We have in this chapter two distinct prophecies. This verse points out the time of the first. The time of the second is not mentioned, but refers to the same event as Ezek. ch. xxix. 32.

- 3 Order ye the buckler and the shield,
And approach ye to the battle.
- 4 Harness the horses, and mount ye horsemen,
And stand forth with your helmets;
Make bright the spears, put on coats of mail.
- 5 Wherefore have I seen these dismayed?
Turned back, even their mighty ones beaten down?
They are fled away, they looked not back.
Fear is on every side, saith Jehovah:
- 6 Let not the swift flee away;
Neither let the mighty escape;
In the north, by the side of the Euphrates,
They have stumbled and fallen.
- 7 Who is he that riseth up like a river,
Whose waters rush along like floods?
- 8 Egypt riseth up like a river,
And like floods his waters rush along.
He saith, I will arise, I will cover the land,
I will destroy the city and its inhabitants.
- 9 Mount ye the horses, and deal furiously;
The chariots, and let the warriors go forth;
Cush and Phut who handle the shield,
And the Ludites expert in using the bow.
- 10 But this is the day of the Lord,
A day of vengeance from Jehovah of hosts,
To avenge himself of his enemies;
And the sword shall devour them,
It shall also be satiated and drunk with their blood; [fice
For the Lord Jehovah of hosts hath a sacri-
In the north country, by the river Euphrates.
- 11 Go up to Gilead, and take balm,
O virgin daughter of Egypt;
In vain hast thou multiplied medicines;
There is no cure for thee.
- 12 The nations have heard of thy disgrace,
And thine outcry hath filled the earth:
For warrior against warrior have stumbled;
They are both of them fallen together.
- 13 The word which Jehovah spoke to Jeremiah, the prophet, concerning the coming of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, to smite the land of Egypt. [Migdol;
- 14 Declare ye in Egypt, and publish in Publish ye also in Noph and Taphanhes;

Say ye, Stand firm and prepare thyself,
For the sword shall devour those around
thee.

Wherefore is thy mighty one overthrown? 15
He stood not, for Jehovah pushed him down;
He hath caused many to stumble, yea to fall; 16
They said therefore one to another,
Arise, and let us return to our people,
And to the land of our nativity,
Because of the sword of the oppressor.
They cried there, O Pharaoh, king of Egypt, 17
A tumult prevented the appointed meeting.
As I live, saith the king, whose name is 18
Jehovah of hosts,
Surely like Tabor, among the mountains,
And like Carmel, by the sea, shall one come.
Get ready thy utensils for removing, 19
O daughter that dwellest in Egypt;
For Noph shall become a desolation,
And be destroyed without inhabitant.
Like a very beautiful heifer is Egypt; [her. 20
But a gad-fly from the north cometh against Her hired men amidst her are as fatted 21 steers;
Yet even these have turned their backs;
They have fled together, they made no stand; [come;
Because the day of their destruction had
The time of their visitation was upon them.
Her voice shall sound like that of a serpent, 22
When they march on with force and with axes; [trees.
When they come against her as sellers of Cut down her forest, saith Jehovah, 23
Although it cannot be searched out;
For they exceed in multitude the locusts,
Which are beyond all computation.
The daughter of Egypt is confounded; 24
She is given into the hand of the northern people.
Jehovah of hosts, God of Israel, hath said, 25
Behold! I will punish Ammon of No,
And Pharaoh and Egypt, with her gods and kings;
Even Pharaoh, and all that trust in him.
And I will deliver them up into the hand 26

3-12. Order ye the buckler] Few parts of the prophets excel this in style, energy, and poetic colouring. In the third and fourth verses the mighty preparations of the Egyptians for war are described; which occasion the prophet, who foresees the defeat, to express his astonishment at an event so contrary to what might have been expected; but he accounts for it by ascribing it to the disposition of the Almighty, who had spread terror all around.

9. Cush—Phut—Ludites] Compare Gen. x. 6; where the two first are mentioned as the sons of Mizraim, the father of the Egyptians.

13. To smite the land of Egypt] The event here foretold came to pass in the twenty-seventh year of Jehoiakim's captivity, (that is, the sixteenth year after the destruction of Jerusalem,) as may be collected from Ezek. xxix. 17.

16. He hath caused] That is, Jehovah, mentioned in the preceding verse. So the Greek translators render, and construe the text. Hence the allies of Egypt encourage each other to return to their own lands, as they could afford no effectual assistance.

17. O Pharaoh, king of Egypt] The common version is obscure, and so are the old ones. I have adopted the clear rendering of Blayney. Those mentioned in the preceding verse send a message to Pharaoh, alleging what had prevented their joining him at the time and place appointed.

18. Like Tabor—Carmel] Tabor and Carmel were two of the most considerable mountains in the land of Israel. Carmel formed the principal headland all along the sea-coast. Nebuchadnezzar is compared to these, on account of his superiority over all others.

20. A gad-fly] This sense is best supported, and agrees with the comparison in the former line.

21, 22. Her hired men] These should possess no courage to face the enemy, but should fly and leave Egypt to her fate. Hence her voice shall be indistinct, and only heard as that of a serpent.

23-26. Cut down] This charge given to the enemy is faithfully executed, so that none escaped ruin. For the two last verses compare ch. xxx. 10, 11.

- Of those that seek to take away their lives;
Into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of
And into the hand of his servants; [Babylon,
Yet shall it afterwards be inhabited,
As in the days of old, saith Jehovah.
- 27 But fear thou not, O my servant Jacob,
Neither be thou dismayed, O Israel; [afar,
For, behold! I will bring thee safe from
And thy seed from the land of their captivity;
And Jacob shall return and be at rest;
He shall be secure and none make him
28 Fear thou not, O my servant Jacob, [afraid.
Saith Jehovah, for I will be with thee;
Though I make a full end of all nations
Whither I have driven thee;
Yet I will not make a full end of thee;
I will correct thee with moderation,
And will not altogether destroy thee.

CHAPTER XLVII.

The destruction of the Philistines foretold.

- 1 THE word of Jehovah, which came to Jeremiah, the prophet, concerning the Philistines, before that Pharaoh smote Gaza.
- 2 Thus saith Jehovah,
Behold! waters are coming from the north,
And shall become an overflowing torrent.
And shall overflow the land, and all therein;
The city, and those that dwell in it;
And the men shall cry aloud,
And every inhabitant of the land shall wail.
- 3 At the noise of the hoofs of his galloping steeds; [of their wheels,
At the rushing of his chariots, the rumbling
The fathers look not back to their children;
Through terror their hands became useless.
- 4 Because of the day that is coming
To lay waste all the Philistines;
To cut off from Tyre and from Sidon
Every helper that remaineth;
For Jehovah will lay waste the Philistines,
The remnant of the country of Caphtor.
- 5 Baldness is coming upon Gaza;
Askelon shall be put to silence.

CHAP. XLVII. 1. Smote Gaza] Among the other nations who were doomed to suffer by the hostilities of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, the Philistines are enumerated ch. xxv. 20, and the calamities foretold in this present chapter most probably befell them during the long siege of Tyre, when Nebuchadnezzar ravaged their country, in order, as it is said, ver. 4, to cut off from Tyre and Sidon all chance of assistance from that quarter. By this he secured his rear.

2. Waters from the north] The troops of Nebuchadnezzar, which like a restless torrent should bear down whatever opposed them.

4. Country of Caphtor] From Deut. ii. 23, we learn that the Caphtorites expelled the Avites and dwelt in the country about Gaza.

5. Put to silence] This was one sign of excessive grief. Compare Job ii. 13.—Remnant of their valley] The Sept. read as a proper name, 'Anakites,' and this is not improbable. Compare Josh. xi. 22.

6. Ho! thou sword] The Babylonish monarch seems to be here addressed by this title, as the Assyrian was by that of the rod of God's anger; Isa. x. 5, such conquerors

- O thou remnant of their valley,
How long wilt thou cut thyself for grief?
Ho! thou sword of Jehovah,
How long will it be ere thou be at rest?
Retire into the sheath; rest, and be still.
- 6 How can it rest and be still,
7 When Jehovah hath given it a charge?
Against Askelon, and against the sea-coast,
There hath he appointed it to destroy.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

The judgment of Moab for her many offences, yet she should be restored.

CONCERNING MOAB

- THUS saith Jehovah of hosts, God of Is- 1
Wo unto Nebo! for it is spoiled; [rael; Kiriathaim is confounded, and is taken;
Misgab is confounded and broken down.
Heshbon shall no more be the praise of 2
Moab;
They have devised evil against her, saying,
Come and let us cut her off from being a nation. [lence;
Thou also, O Madmena, shall be put to si-
The sword shall follow after thee.
- A loud cry is heard from Horonaim; 3
Desolation and great destruction.
Moab is utterly destroyed; 4
Her little ones make their cry to be heard.
Surely at the ascent of Luhith 5
They shall ascend with continual weeping;
Surely at the descent of Horonaim,
They cause to be heard a cry of destruction.
- Flee ye, and endeavour to save your lives, 6
Though ye be as a leafless tree in the desert.
For because thou trustest in thy acquisi- 7
tions, [taken.
And in thy treasures, thou also shalt be
And Chemosh shall go into captivity;
His priests and his princes together.
- And a spoiler shall come to every city, 8
And there shall not a city escape; [stroyed,
The valley shall perish, and the plain be de-According as Jehovah hath spoken.

being the appointed executioners of the divine judgments. Compare Ezek. xiv. 17; xxi. 3.

CHAP. XLVIII. 1. Concerning Moab] The following prophecies concerning the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, and other neighbouring nations, are supposed to have been fulfilled about the same time with that concerning the Philistines in the preceding chapter, namely, during the siege of Tyre. Many passages and expressions will be found in this chapter similar to Isa. xv. and xvi.—Misgab] Or high fortress; but perhaps it was so called on account of its situation.

2. Heshbon shall no] So Michaelis; and unless we admit Heshbon as part of the hemistich, there is no subject of praise mentioned.

5. At the ascent of Luhith] At Luhith the hill country of Moab appears to have begun, and here the people are represented as mounting the hill successively in their flight before the enemy, weeping as they follow one after another. At Horonaim they again descended into the plain. Compare Isa. xv. 5, and note.

6. A leafless tree] Compare ch. xvii. 6, and note. This is a proper emblem of one robbed of all his fortune, and just able to escape with life by fleeing into the desert.

- 9 Give wings to Moab, that she may flee away;
And let her cities become a desolation,
So that there be no inhabitant in them.
- 10 Cursed is he that doeth Jehovah's work remissly; [blood.
Cursed is he that keepeth his sword from
- 11 Moab hath been at ease from his youth,
And he hath settled upon his lees,
And not been drawn off from vessel to vessel;
Neither hath he gone into captivity;
Therefore hath his taste remained in him,
And his flavour hath not been changed.
- 12 Yet behold, the days are coming, saith Jehovah, [off,
That I will send those who will draw him
And empty his vessels, and break his bottles.
- 13 And Moab shall be ashamed of Chemosh,
As the house of Israel is ashamed of Bethel, their confidence.
- 14 How can ye then say, We are mighty,
And men of strength for the war?
- 15 The spoiler of Moab and her cities hath gone up, [slay,
And his chosen men are gone down to Saith the king, whose name is Jehovah of hosts,
- 16 The calamity of Moab approacheth near,
And his affliction rapidly hasteth on. [him;
- 17 Bemoan him, all ye that are round about
And all ye that know his name, say,
How is the strong sceptre, the beautiful rod broken? [ground.
- 18 Come down from thy glory, sit on the dry
O daughter, that inhabitest Dibon; [thee,
For the spoiler of Moab ascendeth against
And he shall destroy thy strong-holds.
- 19 Stand by the way side, and look out,
O thou that inhabitest Aroer;
Ask him that fleeth, and her that escapeth,
And say, What hath been done?
- 20 Moab is confounded; for he is broken down;
Howl ye, and cry aloud;
Publish ye in Arnon, that Moab is spoiled.
- 21 Judgment is come upon the plain country,
On Holon, on Jahazah, and on Mephaath;
- 22 And on Dibon and Nebo, and Beth-diblahthaim;
- And Kiriathaim and Beth-gamul, and Beth-meon;
And upon Kiriath, and upon Bozrah, 24
And upon all the cities of the land of Moab,
Those that are far off, and those that are near.
The horn of Moab is cut off, 25
And his arm is broken, saith Jehovah.
Make ye him altogether drunken, [self; 26
Because against Jehovah he magnified him
And clap ye at Moab, while he is vomiting;
And let him also be an object of derision.
For was not Israel the object of thy derision? 27
Was he indeed found among thieves,
That thou didst insult him with thy words?
Leave the cities, and dwell in the rock, 28
O inhabitants of Moab, and be like a dove,
That nesteth beside the pit's mouth.
We have heard of the pride of Moab: 29
His haughtiness is exceedingly great;
His pride, arrogance, and elation of heart.
I know, saith Jehovah, his fierce wrath; 30
But he is not able to do what he intends.
Therefore for Moab I will wail; 31
Even for all Moab I will cry out;
For the men of Kir-hares will I mourn.
With the weeping of Jazer will I weep for 32
thee; [sea;
Vine of Sibmah, thy shoots have passed the Unto Jazer have they extended; [fallen.
On thy fruits and vintage a spoiler hath
And joy and gladness are taken away 33
From the fruitful field, from the land of Moab; [cease;
And wine from the presses I have made to The treader treadeth not; the shouting is no shouting.
From Heshbon to Eleale, a cry is heard; 34
Unto Jahaz have they sent forth their voice,
From Zoar to Horonaim like a prime heifer;
For the waters of Nimrim shall be desolate.
And I will make to cease in Moab, saith 35
Jehovah,
Him that ascendeth to the high place,
And that burneth incense to his gods.
Hence shall my heart sound like pipes for 36
Moab; [of Kir-hares;
My heart shall sound like pipes for the men

11. Settled on his lees] Compare Isa. xxv. 6, and note. By this allegory Moab is represented as having enjoyed singular advantages from having constantly remained in his own country, ever since he became a people.

13. Of Bethel] That is, the calf set up there for an object of divine worship, to which the Israelites trusted for protection, 1 Kings xii. 28, 29. Hos. x. 6.

15. Hath gone up] The conqueror of Moab is here represented as having gained an eminence above her, and from thence sending down the choice of his troops to massacre there below.

18. Come down from thy glory] From sitting on a throne and sit as a mourner or captive on the dry ground.

19—25. Stand by the way] These verses paint the consternation of the Moabites, and strongly represent the desolation of the whole country. Judgment fell on every place.

26. Make ye him] The versions read the verb in the plural; and the image is common, to be drunk with wine of God's wrath, but it is here heightened by the circumstance, that Moab should be so filled as to vomit it up.

29, 30. Pride of Moab] Compare Isa. xvi. 6, where the sense is nearly the same.—But he is not able] The Hebrew is, 'not so his sufficiency, not so his doing.' The common version is neither literal nor clear. Having mentioned the praise of Moab, the prophet observes that his conduct would answer to his fancied sufficiency and ability.

31—34. Therefore for Moab] Compare Isa. xvii. 8—12, and notes. Though these passages are parallel in sense, they differ in some terms, and in the form of arrangement; yet Jeremiah must have had the prediction of his predecessor in mind.—(v) Vulg.

35—39. And I will make to cease] The prophet describes the altars of their idols as deserted, and upon all persons tokens of deep mourning for the public calamities.

- Because the riches acquired are perished.
 37 Surely every head is made bald,
 And every beard is shorn ;
 And upon all hands are cuttings for grief,
 And upon all loins are sackcloths.
 38 Upon all the house-tops of Moab,
 And in her streets, all is lamentation ;
 For I have broken Moab like a vessel,
 In which no one hath pleasure, saith Jehovah. [out !
 39 How is he broken down, have they howled
 How hath Moab turned the back in disgrace !
 And Moab shall be an object of derision,
 And of terror to all that are round about him.
 40 For thus hath Jehovah said,
 Behold like an eagle shall one fly,
 And spread forth his wings over Moab ;
 41 The cities are taken, the fortresses surprised ;
 And the heart of the brave of Moab shall then be,
 As the heart of a woman in her pangs.
 42 And Moab shall be destroyed from being a
 people,
 Because he exalted himself against Jehovah.
 43 The terror, the pit, and the snare are upon
 O inhabitant of Moab, saith Jehovah. [thee, 44 He that fleeth from the terror shall fall into the pit ; [caught in the snare ;
 And he that getteth out of the pit, shall be
 For I will bring upon her, even upon Moab,
 The year of their visitation, saith Jehovah.
 45 The fugitives stood under the shade of Heshbon But a fire went forth from Heshbon, [bon ;
 And a flame from the midst of Sihon,
 And hath consumed the quarters of Moab,
 And the crown of the sons of tumult.
 46 Wo unto thee, O Moab !
 Thou art undone, O people of Chemosh !
 For they have taken thy sons into captivity ;
 Thy daughters also are gone into captivity.
 47 But I will reverse the captivity of Moab,
 In the latter days, saith Jehovah.

CHAPTER XLIX.

The judgment of Ammon, Edom, Damascus, Kedar, Hazar, and Elam.

I CONCERNING THE AMMONITES, THUS saith Jehovah,

40. Shall one fly The Babylonish commander is meant, who with rapidity should overrun the land, and take and destroy the cities.

45, 46. But a fire went Compare Numb. xxi. 28, 29, and xxiv. 17, and notes. There are some variations in the prophet, which might be intentionally made.

CHAP. XLIX. 1. Concerning the Ammonites Besides Jeremiah, this downfall of the Ammonites is foretold also by Ezekiel xxv. 2—7. Amos i. 13—15. Zeph. ii. 8—11. For the presumptive date of the delivery of this prophecy, see note on ch. xlvii. 1, and for the time of its completion, see note on ch. xlviii. 1.—Why then doth Milcom possess the land of Gad It is probable from hence, that when the king of Assyria carried away captive the Gadites and their brethren who dwelt beyond Jordan, 2 Kings xv. 29. 1 Chron. v. 26, the Ammonites took possession of their vacant country, to which they had no pretensions of right.—Milcom So the versions render, and not their king ! This was the name of their chief idol, 1 Kings xi. 5.

- Hath Israel no sons ? Hath he no heir ?
 Why then doth Milcom possess the land of Gad ?
 And his people dwell in the cities thereof ?
 Therefore behold the days come, saith Je- 2
 hovah,
 That I will cause to be heard in Rabbah
 Of the Ammonites, the alarm of war ;
 And she shall become a heap of desolation,
 And her daughters shall be destroyed by fire :
 And Israel shall possess the possessions of those
 Who have possessed his, saith Jehovah.
 Howl, O Heshbon, for Ai is spoiled ; 3
 Cry aloud, ye daughters of Rabbah ;
 Gird ye on sackcloth and lament,
 And run to and fro among the fences ;
 For Milcom shall go into captivity,
 His priests and his princes together.
 Wherefore dost thou glory in valleys ? 4
 Be thy valley fruitful, O revolting daughter,
 Who glorieth in her treasures,
 "And who saith," Who shall come unto me ?
 Behold, I will bring a terror upon thee, 5
 Saith the Lord Jehovah of hosts,
 From all those that are round about thee ;
 And ye shall be driven every one before it ;
 And none shall rally again him that fled.
 But after this I will reverse the captivity 6
 Of the Ammonites, saith Jehovah.

CONCERNING EDM, 7

- Thus saith Jehovah of hosts,
 Is there no more any wisdom in Teman ?
 Is counsel perished from the prudent ?
 Hath their wisdom passed away ?
 Flee, turn your backs, go deep to dwell, 8
 O ye inhabitants of Dedan ;
 For the calamity of Esau have I brought on
 him,
 Even the time of his visitation.
 If grape gatherers come unto thee, 9
 They shall not leave any gleanings ;
 If thieves by night,
 They shall plunder enough to suffice them.
 For I have laid Esau bare ; 10
 I have exposed his hiding-places,
 So that he cannot conceal himself ;

2. Israel shall possess This was accomplished under Judas Maccabeus. 1 Mac. 5, 6. Compare Zeph. ii. 9.

3. Ai is spoiled Ai must be a different city from that taken by Joshua, ch. viii. which lay on the west side of Jordan ; for all the country of Ammon lay on the east.—Milcom shall go Here the same is said of Milcom, as was of Chemosh, ch. xlviii. 7, which shows that Milcom is properly used as the name of the Ammonitish idol.

4—6. Be thy valley That is, admitting the fruitfulness of thy valley, and the abundance of thy resources, yet the enemy shall plunder thee, but not wholly destroy thee.—(a) The versions.

7. Concerning Edom The destruction of Edom, or Idumea, is likewise foretold by Ezekiel xxv. 12—14 ; xxxv. 2, &c. Joel iii. 19. Amos i. 11, 12, and by the prophet Obadiah.

8. Go deep to dwell The meaning of this is, that they should go into those deep caverns to hide themselves from the enemy, whither the people of those parts used to retire

- His seed is spoiled, and his brethren,
And his neighbours, and he is no more !
- 11 Leave thy orphans, I will preserve them alive,
And let thy widows put their trust in me.
- 12 Surely thus hath Jehovah said,
Behold, they whose right it was not to drink,
Have indeed drunk of the cup ;
And shalt thou altogether go unpunished ?
Thou shalt not go unpunished,
But thou shalt assuredly drink of it.
- 13 For I have sworn by myself, saith Jehovah,
That an astonishment, a reproach, a waste,
And an execration, shall Bozrah become ;
And all her cities shall be perpetual wastes.
- 14 I have heard a report from Jehovah,
That an ambassador is sent to the nations,
saying,
Assemble yourselves, and come against her ;
And arise ye to the battle.
- 15 Behold, I have made thee small among nations ; [thee].

That occupiest the height of a hill ; [eagle,

vah.
- 17 And Edom shall become an astonishment,
And every passenger shall be astonished at
her,
And shall hiss because of all her plagues.
- 18 As in the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah,
And the neighbouring cities, saith Jehovah,
There shall not a man dwell there,
Nor shall the son of man sojourn in her.
- 19 Behold, as a lion from the swelling of Jordan, [tation ;

Which he hath taken against Edom ;
And his purposes which he hath purposed

Surely their abode shall be astonished at
At the noise of their fall the earth trembleth ; 21
It crieth, at the Red-sea the sound is heard.
Behold, he shall mount and fly like an 22

CONCERNING DAMASCUS. 23 Hamath is confounded together with Ar-phad,
Because they have heard evil tidings ;
They are dissolved with fear as the sea,
Which can never be at rest.
Damascus hath become feeble ; 24
She hath turned herself to flee,
And fear hath seized on her ;
Distress hath laid hold on her,
And pangs as a woman in travail.
Why is nothing left of a city so celebrated ? 25
Of a city which was full of joy ?
Hence her young men shall fall in her streets, 26
And all her men of war shall be cut off
In that day, saith Jehovah of hosts.
And I will kindle a fire in the wall of Da- 27
mascus, [hadad.
And it shall consume the palaces of Ben-king of Babylon, smote.

Kedem.

on the like occasions. See Judg. vi. 2. 1 Sam. xiii. 6. Isa. ii. 10, 19.

11. Leave thy orphans] There is some difficulty as to the sense of this verse, considered in reference to the context. Edom is addressed, and, as a descendant of Abraham, is invited to commit his orphans and widows to the care and mercy of Jehovah ; for their fathers and husbands should perish.

12. Right not to drink] This must be understood comparatively ; for it cannot be said, that the Jewish people did not deserve to be punished ; but in comparison with the Edomites, and other neighbouring nations, they were less deserving of the evil that befell them. Compare Prov. xi. 31. 1 Pet. iv. 17, 18.

16. Clefts of the rock] Either caverns, or prominences of rocks, which afforded protection in danger, seem to be meant.

19. Behold as a lion] As the swelling and overflowing of the Jordan, forced the wild beasts out of the thickets on its banks, and drove them to infest the neighbouring plains ; so should an enemy come and destroy Edom. He is compared to a lion, which comes swiftly, and rushes on its prey. See note Heb. Bib.—Who is like me] Who hath power like me ? Who can prescribe to me what I shall do ? Is there any shepherd or ruler that can resist my will ? God having determined to subvert Edom, by these questions intimates that their opposition would be vain ; for the least of the flock, or of the troops of the enemy should drag them away.

23. Concerning Damascus] Isaiah had before uttered a prophecy concerning it of a calamitous import, ch. xvii. which had been fulfilled by Tiglath-Pileser's taking it, and carrying the people captives to Kir, 2 Kings xvi. 9. Amos also had foretold the same event, ch. i. 3—5. But it had recovered itself after the fall of the Assyrian empire, and is here doomed to suffer again the like calamities from the resentment of Nebuchadnezzar, probably about the same time with the other neighbouring nations, 2 Kings xviii. 34 ; xix. 13. Isa. x. 9.

24. Pangs as a] It seems clear both from the grammar and metre, that the words מַחֲמָה וּמַחֲמָה have been transposed in the text, as it stands at present. Compare ch. i. 43.

25. Of a city which was] Neither the Vulg. nor Syr. nor Chald. have the prenominal affix. They render as if they had read מְשֻׁמֵּשׁ ; and the sense requires this ; for what can be meant by a city of my joy.

28. Concerning Kedar] As by Kedar all the descendants of Ishmael are probably here designed ; so all the other

Their curtains, and all their utensils;
And their camels shall they take for themselves, [side.
And shall bring on them terror on every
- 30 Flee, get afar off; dwell in deep solitude,
O ye inhabitants of Hazor, saith Jehovah;
For Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon,
Hath taken counsel against you,
And hath purposed a purpose against you.
- 31 Arise ye, go up against a nation at ease,
That dwelleth in security, saith Jehovah,
Which have neither gates nor bars;
They dwell apart by themselves.
- 32 And their camels shall be for plunder,
And the abundance of their cattle for spoil,
And I will scatter them into every quarter,
Even those who cut short the hair;
And from all sides I will bring their calamity,
saith Jehovah.
- 33 And Hazor shall be a dwelling for dragons,
A desolation even to eternity;
There shall not a man dwell there,
Nor shall a son of man sojourn therein.
- 34 The word of Jehovah which came to Jeremiah, the prophet, concerning Elam, in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah, king of Judah, saying,
- 35 Thus saith Jehovah of hosts,
Behold, I will break the bow of Elam,
The principal part of their strength.
- 36 And I will bring against Elam four winds,
From the four extremities of the heavens;
And will scatter them before all those winds:
And there shall be no nation,
Whither the outcasts of Elam shall not come.
- 37 And I will terrify Elam before their ene-and before them that seek their life; [nies;
And I will bring evil upon them,
The fierceness of mine anger, saith Jehovah;
And I will send after them the sword,
Until I have utterly consumed them.
- 38 And I will set my throne in Elam,
And destroy thence king and princes, saith
- 39 But in the latter days, it shall be, [Jehovah,
That I will reverse the captivity of Elam,
Saith Jehovah of hosts.

CHAPTER L

The judgment of Babylon, with promises of deliverance to Israel.

- THE word which Jehovah spoke concern- 1
ing Babylon, and concerning the land of Chaldea, by Jeremiah, the prophet.
Declare among the nations, and pub- 2 lish; [not;
And lift up a standard, publish and conceal
Say ye, Babylon is taken, Bel is confounded, Merodach is broken, her idols are confounded.
Her abominations are broken to pieces.
For from the north a nation is come against 3
her,
Which shall make her land a desolation,
So that none shall dwell therein;
Both man and beast are fled, are gone.
In those days, and at that time, saith Je- 4
The children of Israel shall come, [hovah,
They, and the children of Judah together;
They shall go, weeping as they go along,
And shall seek Jehovah, their God.
They shall inquire for the way to Zion, 5
With their faces thitherward, saying,
Come, and let us join ourselves to Jehovah,
In a perpetual covenant, not to be forgotten.
Lost sheep have my people been; [tains; 6
Their shepherds led them astray on the moun-
Turning aside from mountain to hill,
They went on and forgot their resting-place.
All that found them devoured them; 7
And their adversaries said, We offend not,
Because they have sinned against Jehovah,
The lawful fold and hope of their fathers.
Remove ye out of the midst of Babylon, 8
And go forth out of the land of Chaldea,
And be like he-goats before the flocks.
For lo, I will raise up and bring against 9
Babylon,
An assembly of great nations from the north
And they shall array themselves against her,
And by them shall she be taken; [rior;
Their arrows are like those of a skillful war-
They shall not return empty.
And Chaldea shall be for a spoil. 10 branches of the family of Joktan may likewise be included under the general name of Hazor.

29. Tents and flocks] These were the riches of the Arabs of the desert at that period, as they have ever been.

31. Arise ye] This is addressed to the Babylonians, the commissioned instruments of divine wrath; and what follows shows the habits of these shepherds of the wilderness. They dwell in tents, not in towns.

31. Concerning Elam] Elam we find to have been an independent, and even powerful kingdom in the days of Abram, Gen. xiv. 1. Elam seems to have been, as the name itself would lead us to suppose, the country called by heathen writers Elymais, which Pliny, in conformity with Daniel viii. 2, describes as separated from Susiana by the Eulaus, or Ulay.

35. The bow of Elam] Isaiah speaks of the Elamites in this manner, ch. xxii. 6. 'And Elam bare the quiver.' Strabo also says the mountainous part of Elymais bred chiefly archers.

39. I will set my throne] That is, God would give his commissioned instrument power over Elam.

CHAP. L. 2. Bel is confounded] Compare Is. xlv. 1. and note.—Merodach] We know nothing of this idol. Some have thought that it may have been the representative of some deceased king. We find the name of it as part of the name of the king who sent ambassadors to Hezekiah, Is. xxxix. 1.

3—6. Weeping as they go] While the Babylonians are in their turn to suffer, God's Israel are to be brought to repentance, and restored to their own land.

7. The lawful fold] I agree with Blayney in thinking that the allegory is still kept up, and that צדק ניה denotes that the lawful fold, where they were secure and safe.

8—16. Remove ye out] This address to Israel introduces naturally the following description of the approach of the Medes and Persians, and of their success. The Chaldeans are reproached for destroying God's heritage; and as they had done to others, so it should be done to them.

- All that spoil her shall be satisfied, saith Jehovah.
- 11 When ye have rejoiced, when ye have exulted, O ye destroyers of mine inheritance ; When ye have grown fat as the treading heifer, And have neighed like high-mettled steeds ;
- 12 Your mother shall be greatly confounded ; She that bare you shall be greatly ashamed ; Behold, she shall be the last of the nations, A desert, a dry land, and a wilderness,
- 13 Through the wrath of Jehovah it shall not abide, But shall become altogether a desolation ; All that pass by Babylon shall be astonished, [ties.
- And shall hiss on account of all her calamities.
- 14 Array yourselves against Babylon round about, All ye that are accustomed to bend the bow ; Shoot at her, spare not the arrows, Because she hath sinned against Jehovah.
- 15 Shout ye that are round about over her ; She hath surrendered, her battlements are Her walls are thrown down ; [fallen ; Because it is the avenging of Jehovah, Take ye vengeance upon her ; As she hath done so do ye unto her.
- 16 Cut off the sower from Babylon, [time ; And him that useth the sickle in harvest Because of the sword of the destroyer, They shall turn every one to his own people, And they shall flee every one to his own land.
- 17 A scattered sheep is Israel ; lions dispersed him ; First the king of Assyria hath devoured him, And this latter hath picked him to the bone, Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon.
- 18 Therefore thus saith Jehovah, God of Israel, Lo, I will punish the king of Babylon, and his land, As I have punished the king of Assyria ;
- 19 But I will bring back Israel to his own fold, And he shall feed on Carmel and in Bashan ; And on mount Ephraim, and in Gilead Shall his appetite be satisfied in those days.
- 20 And at that time, saith Jehovah, Shall the iniquity of Israel be sought for, And there shall be none, And the sin of Judah, and none shall be found ; [served.
- For I will pardon them whom I have re-
- 21 Against the land of bitterness go up ; Punish it and its inhabitants, O sword ; And utterly destroy their posterity, saith Jehovah, [thee.
- And do according to all I have commanded 22 There is a sound of battle in the land, Even of a great destruction. 23 How is the hammer of the whole earth Cut off and broken to pieces ! How is Babylon an astonishment among nations ! [caught, I laid a snare for thee, and thou also wert 24 O Babylon, when thou wast not aware ; Thou wast found, and wast also taken, Because thou didst contend against Jehovah.
- Jehovah hath opened his armoury, 25 And brought forth the weapons of his anger ; For this is the work of the Lord, Of Jehovah of hosts, in the land of Chaldea. Come against her from the remotest parts ; 26 Open ye her storehouses for corn ; Tread her as heaps and utterly destroy her ; Let nothing of her remain. [slaughter ; Slay all her steers ; let them go down for 27 Wo to them ! for their day is come, The time of their visitation.
- The voice of them that have fled and escaped out of the land of Babylon, to declare in Zion the vengeance of Jehovah, our God, the vengeance of his temple.
- Call together the archers against Babylon, 29 All those accustomed to bend the bow ; Encamp against her round about ; Let none that belong to her escape ; Recompense her according to her work ; According to all that she hath done, do to her : [Jehovah, the Holy One of Israel. Because she hath acted proudly against Jehovah, Therefore shall her young men fall in her 30 streets ; [day, saith Jehovah. And all her warriors shall be cut off in that Behold, I am against thee, O proud one, 31 Saith the Lord Jehovah of hosts ; [tion. For thy day is come, the time of thy visitation, And the proud one shall stumble and fall, 32 And there shall be none to raise him up ; And I will kindle a fire in his cities, And it shall devour all round about him.
- Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, 33 Oppressed have been the children of Israel, And the children of Judah together ; All that took them captive held them fast ; They refused to let them go.

17—20. A scattered sheep] The Assyrians and Babylonians had treated those whom they had vanquished with great severity ; and God, for the sake of his people, determined to punish them, and in their turn did punish them, but his people he pardoned and saved.

21. Land of bitterness] Or of rebellions, as some render ; I prefer the former, and suppose that Chaldea is so called, on account of her bitter treatment of the Israelites. Our translators have rendered this and another word as proper names, without any support except the Chaldee. By reading כרר as a noun, every difficulty is removed. See note Hebrew Bible.

22—23. There is a sound of] The prophet sees the enemy encountering with, and vanquishing the Babylonians, taking the city, and destroying the people. With astonishment he says, How is the hammer of the 'whole earth,' &c. The Israelites regarded her ruin as an event indicative of divine vengeance for the destruction of the temple.

33—40. Oppressed have been] Cyrus was raised up, and

- 34 Their Redeemer is strong, Jehovah of hosts is his name :
He will surely maintain their cause,
So as to cause a commotion in the earth,
And make the inhabitants of Babylon tremble. [Jehovah,
- 35 A sword shall be on the Chaldeans, saith
And on all the inhabitants of Babylon ;
Upon her princes and upon her wise men.
- 36 A sword on her impostors, and they shall dote ; [fear ;
A sword on her mighty ones, and they shall
- 37 A sword on her horses, and on her chariots,
And on the mingled race which are amidst
And they shall become like women ; [her,
A sword on her treasures, and they shall be a spoil ; [dried up ;
- 38 A draught on her waters, and they shall be Because it is the land of graven images,
And of idols do they make their boast.
- 39 Therefore shall wolves dwell with jackals ;
The daughters of the ostrich shall dwell in
And it shall not be restored for ever, [her,
Nor inhabited from generation to generation.
- 40 As when God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah,
And the neighbouring cities, saith Jehovah,
There shall not a man dwell there,
Nor shall a son of man sojourn therein.
- 41 Lo, a people come from the north, a great nation, [roused up ;
And many kings' from remote lands are
- 42 They hold fast the bow and the spear ;
They are cruel, and will show no mercy ;
Their voice shall roar like the sea,
And upon horses shall they ride,
In orderly array, as men for battle, Against thee, O daughter of Babylon.
- 43 The king of Babylon heard the report of
And his hands have become feeble ; [them, Anguish seized him, pangs as one in travail.
- 44 Behold, as a lion from the swelling of Jordan,
He shall come against the strong habitation ;
Surely I will cause him suddenly to run upon it ; [fend" it ?
And who is the chosen one, who can "de-
Who is like me ? or who can prescribe to me ?

And who that shepherd that can stand before me ?

Therefore hear ye the counsel of Jehovah, 45
Which he hath taken against Babylon ;
And his purposes which he hath purposed
Against the inhabitants of Chaldea ;
Surely the least of the flock shall drag them away ; [them.
Surely their abode shall be astonished at
At the sound Babylon is taken, the earth is 46 moved ;
And the cry is heard among the nations.

CHAPTER LI.

God's severe judgments on Babylon, in revenge of Israel.

THUS saith Jehovah, 1
Behold I will raise up against Babylon,
And against those that dwell in her,
Who rise up against me, a destroying wind.
And I will send against Babylon winnowers, 2
And they shall winnow her, and empty her
land ;
For they shall be against her round about,
In the day of her calamity. [bow
Against the archer let the archer bend his 3
And not raise up himself in his coat of mail ;
And spare ye not her young men ;
Destroy ye utterly her whole army.
Thus they shall fall slain in the land of 4
Chaldea,
Even those thrust through, in her streets.
For Israel is not forsaken, nor Judah, 5
Of his God, Jehovah of hosts ;
But their land is filled with trespass Against the Holy One of Israel.
Flee ye out of the midst of Babylon, 6
And save ye every man his life,
That ye be not cut off in her punishment.
For it is the time of Jehovah's vengeance ;
He will render unto her a recompense.
Babylon is a golden cup in Jehovah's hand, 7
Making the whole earth drunk ;
Of the wine thereof nations have drunk ;
Therefore shall nations glory, saying,
Babylon is suddenly fallen and perished ; 8
Howl ye over her, take balm for her pain,
If so be she may be healed. [not healed ;
We would have healed Babylon, but she is 9 sent to deliver God's Israel. With this paragraph compare

Is. xlv. 24—28, and xlv. 1—4, and xiv. 19—22.

41—46. Come from the north] The valour of the Medes and Persians, and especially that of their cavalry, is strongly represented. Comp. chap. xlix. 19, 20.

41. (v) Sept.

CHAP. LI. 2. Winnowers] Having compared God's judgment to a destroying wind, he describes the instruments of it as winnowers, separating the chaff and consuming it.

3. Against the archer] Read דרך for ירך ; and I suppose that the archers of the enemy are directed to attack those of Babylon. The second line is parallel to this in sense, if the posture of him that stoops to bend the bow be considered. For in using the large and strong steel bows, which could not be bent by the force of the arms, they rested one end upon the ground, and pressing the other with the foot or knee, they drew back the arrow with their hands as far as ever they could, in order that it might fly with greater force.

5. But their land] This refers to the land of Babylon, the measure of whose iniquities was now full. In this land, Israel and Judah were not forsaken.

6. Punishment] This sense of נָּ is here necessary, as it is governed by the verb, cut off, and what follows, supports it.

7. A golden cup] In what sense Babylon is called a cup, may be seen by comparing chap. xxv. 15. She was a splendid instrument of vengeance ordained by God against the neighbouring nations ; and as all these had suffered by her, all are represented as ready to glory over her, or to rejoice when her turn of suffering came.

9. We would have] The nations that had been subject to Babylon, are evidently the speakers here ; they had endeavoured, they say, to support her sinking cause, but all

- Leave her, and let each go to his own land ;
For her judgment reacheth to the heavens,
And is raised even to the skies.

I will surely fill thee with men, as with locusts,
And they shall raise a shout against thee.

By his understanding stretched out the heavens.

And I will stretch out my hand over thee,

And will make thee a burning mountain :
And they shall not take of thee 26
A stone for a corner, or a stone for foundations ; [hovah.
But thou shalt be desolate for ever, saith Je-

With their captains, and with their rulers,
And all the land under their dominion.
And the land shall tremble and be in pain, 29
For Jehovah's purpose as to Babylon standeth sure,
To make the land of Babylon a desolation,
So that there shall be no inhabitant.

in vain ; and therefore as the case was desperate, they advise every one to shift for himself.

10, 11. Jehovah hath] The Jews are here the speakers, who with the other conquered people, acknowledge that this was the work of Jehovah.

12—19. Set up a standard] The enemy is ordered to commence the siege of Babylon ; and Jehovah gives this order, who does what he speaks.

20—24. O battle-axe] Either Cyrus, or the army which he commanded, is doubtless meant.

25. Destroying mountain] Any nation or prince, that rises in power above others, may be called, metaphorically,

'a mountain ;' and the Babylonish nation is accordingly here to be understood by 'the destroying mountain.' 'The rocks,' from whence it was to be rolled, were its strong-holds.

27. Ararat, Minni] The two former of these Bochart reasonably concludes to be the greater and lesser Armenia ; and the latter to be a part of Phrygia, near the Hellespont. — Like the bristled locust] Locusts are said to have the appearance of horses and horsemen, Joel ii. 4 ; Rev. ix. 7. Bochart speaks of the head and face of the locust as resembling those of a horse.

31. Courier shall] That is, they shall run from different parts, and so fall in with one another, all carrying the same intelligence to the same person, that the city was taken on the side every one came from.

32. That the passages] These were most probably the entrances into the city from the river side.—That the reeds] These may refer to some slighter kind of fortifications on the banks of the river made of reeds, which the enemy set on fire.

34—36. Hath devoured] The Jew speaks and complains of the tyranny of the king of Babylon; but Jehovah assures him that vengeance shall be taken of Babylon. What is said, I will drain her sea, was literally fulfilled by Cyrus.

37—43. Become heaps] The prophet describes the noisy mirth and drunkenness of the Babylonians, which occasioned their ruin. Compare Dan. v. 3, &c.

41. Hath swallowed up] Meaning the offerings made him out of the spoils of the conquered countries, and more particularly the sacred vessels out of the temple of Jerusalem, 2 Chron. xxxvi. 7. Dan. i. 2.

46. Year after year] Babylon was subject to many civil disorders and commotions; some of her provinces frequently revolting.

50. Remember, Jerusalem] The sense is preferred. Compare chap. iii. 16; vii. 31; xlv. 21. The ransomed Jews are addressed.

55. Boisterous noise] When cities are populous, they are of course noisy. See Is. xxii. 2. Silence is therefore a mark of depopulation, Rev. xviii. 22, 23.

son of Maaseiah, when he went on the behalf of Zedekiah, king of Judah, to Babylon, in the fourth year of his reign ; for Seraiah carried a present.
- 60 And Jeremiah wrote all the evil that was to come upon Babylon, in one book, all these words that are written concerning
- 61 Babylon. And Jeremiah said to Seraiah, When thou comest to Babylon, then thou shalt see, and read all these words: and
- 62 thou shalt say, O Jehovah, thou hast spoken concerning this place, of cutting it off, so that there shall not be in it an inhabitant, either man or beast ; but there shall be per-
- 63 petual desolation. And it shall be, when thou hast made an end of reading this book, thou shalt bind a stone to it, and shalt cast it into the middle of Euphrates: and thou shalt say, Thus shall Babylon sink, and not rise again, because of the evil which I bring upon her.

THUS FAR THE WORDS OF JEREMIAH.

CHAPTER LII.

An account of Zedekiah's rebellion, Jerusalem taken and destroyed ; brass of the temple and other utensils carried to Babylon.

- 1 ZEDEKIAH was twenty and one years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem : and his mother's name was Hamital, the daughter of Jeremiah, of Libnah. And he did that which was evil in the sight of Jehovah, according to all that Jehoiaquim had done. For it was so because of the anger of Jehovah against Judah and Jerusalem, until he had cast them out of his sight. Zedekiah also rebelled against the king of Babylon.

58. The broad wall] Historians have related that the breadth of the walls of Babylon would admit chariots to be driven side by side upon them, and that their height was above two hundred feet.

59. On behalf of Zedekiah] The common version is unsupported by the history, or by the text. The Greek version is 'from him or by his order ; for we have no reason to suppose that Zedekiah went in person to Babylon at that time.—For Seraiah] In these words is specified the business on which Seraiah was sent. He was employed to carry the present, or customary tribute, which Zedekiah was obliged to pay to the king of Babylon in acknowledgment of his subjection and vassalage. For the text and version, see note Fam. Bih.

61. Bind a stone] This action, with the words which accompanied it, was to assure the Israelites of the certainty of the prediction, Rev. xviii. 21.—Thus far the words] These words seem to notify that the following chapter is not to be attributed to Jeremiah.

CHAP. LII. 1. Zedekiah was] This chapter was confessedly added by some one after Jeremiah's time, probably

And it came to pass in the ninth year of 4 his reign, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, that Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, came, he and all his forces, against Jerusalem, and encamped against it, and built forts against it round about. And the city was besieged 5 until the eleventh year of Zedekiah's reign,
In the fourth month, the ninth day of the 6 month ; when the famine was great in the city, and there was no bread for the people of the land. And the city was broken into ; 7 and all the men of war fled, and went out of the city by night, by the way of the gate between the two walls, which is by the king's garden ; (whilst the Chaldeans were before the city round about :) and they went towards the plain. But the forces of Chal- 8 dea pursued after the king, and overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho ; and all his troops were scattered from him. And 9 they took the king, and brought him up to the king of Babylon, at Riblah, in the land of Hamath : and he pronounced judgment upon him. And the king of Babylon slew 10 the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes ; and he slew also all the princes of Judah, in Riblah. And he put out the eyes of Zede- 11 kiah, and bound him with fetters of brass ; and the king of Babylon carried him to Babylon, and put him in prison till the day of his death.

And in the fifth month, on the tenth day 12 of the month, (it was the nineteenth year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon,) came Nebuzaradan, captain of the guards, one that stood in the presence of the king of Babylon, to Jerusalem. And he 13 burned the house of Jehovah, and the king's house, and all the houses of Jerusalem, even every great house, burned he with fire.
And all the army of the Chaldeans, that 14 was with the captain of the guards, broke down all the walls of Jerusalem round about. And some of the poor of the people, 15

by Ezra, after the return of the Jews from Babylon. It contains a brief history of the captivity, nearly the same word for word, as is related in the second book of Kings, chap. xxiv. 18—20, and chap. xxv. together with some few additions.

3. Because of the anger] The historian assigns a reason for what went before, namely, why Zedekiah succeeded Jehoiaquim both in the throne and in wickedness. This happened, it is said, 'because of the anger of Jehovah ;' not that Jehovah instigated either them or any man else to do wickedly ; but the thing was of his special order and appointment, for the punishment of a wicked people, that men of such perverse and evil dispositions were advanced to be their kings.

12. On the tenth day] In the parallel place, 2 Kings xxv. 8, we read on the seventh, instead of on the tenth. This difference some attempt to reconcile by supposing that one may speak of the day Nebuzaradan set out from Riblah, and the other of the day that he arrived at Jerusalem ; or else that he came on the seventh, but did not set fire to the buildings till the tenth.

and the rest of the people that were left in the city, and the deserters that had gone over to the king of Babylon, even the remains of the multitude, did Nebuzaradan, captain of the guards, carry away captive. 16 But some of the poor of the land did Nebuzaradan, captain of the guards, leave for vine-dressers and for husbandmen. And the pillars of brass that were in the house of Jehovah, and the bases, and the brazen sea, that was in the house of Jehovah, the Chaldeans broke, and carried all the brass of them 18 to Babylon. The caldrons also, and the shovels, and the snuffers, and the bowls, and the spoons, and all the vessels of brass, which they used in ministering, did they 19 take away. And the basins, and the censers, and the bowls, and the caldrons, and the candlesticks, and the spoons, and the cups, whatsoever was of gold, the gold, and whatsoever was of silver, the silver, did the captain of the guards take 20 away. The two pillars, the one sea, and the twelve brazen oxen, that were underneath, the bases which king Solomon had made for the house of Jehovah, the brass from all these vessels was without weight. 21 For the pillars, eighteen cubits in height, was the one pillar, and a line of twelve cubits measured it round; and the thickness of it was four fingers, being hollow. 22 And the chapter upon it was of brass; and the height of the one chapter was five cubits; and there was wreathen work, and pomegranates upon the chapter all round, the whole of brass; and in like manner, the 23 other pillar had also pomegranates. And the pomegranates were ninety and six towards every wind; all the pomegranates, a hundred upon the wreathen work round 24 about. And the captain of the guards took Seraiah, the chief-priest, and Zephaniah, the second priest, and the three keepers of the door; And out of the city he took an 25 eunuch, who had the charge over the men of war, and "five" of the king's ministers, who were found in the city, and the principal scribe of the host, who mustered the people of the land, and sixty of the people of the land, who were found in the midst of the city; Even Nebuzaradan, captain of the 26 guards, took them, and brought them to the king of Babylon, at Riblah. And the king 27 of Babylon smote them, and put them to death in Riblah, in the land of Hamath; and carried Judah away captive out of their own land.

This is the people whom Nebuchadnezzar carried away captive, in the seventh year, three thousand and twenty-three Jews. In the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar, 29 he carried away captive from Jerusalem, eight hundred and thirty-two persons. In 30 the three and twentieth year of Nebuchadnezzar, Nebuzaradan, captain of the guards, carried away captive Jews, seven hundred and forty-five persons. All the persons were four thousand and six hundred.

And in the thirty-seventh year of the 31 captivity of Jehoiachin, king of Judah, in the twelfth month, on the twenty-seventh day of the month, Evil-merodach, king of Babylon, in the year that he began to reign, released Jehoiachin, king of Judah, out of prison; And he spoke kindly to him, and 32 set his throne above the throne of the kings who were with him in Babylon; And he 33 changed his prison garments: and he ate bread continually before him all the days of his life. And his allowance was a con- 34 tinual allowance given him by the king; an appointed rate for every day, all the days of his life.

21. Eighteen cubits] The common text, 2 Chron. iii. 15, makes them thirty-five cubits, which Blayney supposes was the height of both, which I conceive inadmissible; and as the writer clearly intended to describe what was the height of each, I have therefore followed the more correct reading of this and the other place.

23. Ninety-six] In 1 Kings vii. 42; and 2 Chron. iv. 13, it is said there were four hundred pomegranates for the two networks or wreaths, two rows of pomegranates for each network or wreath. The mode of expression here is different, but amounts to exactly the same. For in each row must have been four angular pomegranates, that could not be said to be opposite to any one of the four winds, consequently sixteen angular ones in the four rows; which sixteen being added to three hundred and eighty-four, make up the number of pomegranates, in all four hundred.

25. (v) 2 Kings xxv. 19.

28—30. These verses are not in the parallel place, 2 Kings xxv. nor in the common edition of the Sept. but they are found in the other versions. They contain an account of three lesser deportations of the Jews to Babylon. Some were carried away in the first year of his reign, Dan. i. 3—6; and many in the eighth year, 2 Kings xxiv. 12—16; and Jerusalem was taken in his nineteenth year. Those mentioned here were carried away in the seventh, eighteenth, and twenty-third year of his reign, and could not be the same as mentioned above. Besides vast numbers of Jews were carried away in those other periods.

LAMENTATIONS OF JEREMIAH.

INTRODUCTION.

Never, says an unquestionable judge, was there a more rich and elegant variety of beautiful images and adjuncts arranged together within so small a compass, nor more happily chosen and applied. The prophet's peculiar talent lay in working up and expressing the passions of grief and pity; and unhappily for him, as a man and a citizen, he met with a subject but too well calculated to give full scope for his genius.

The Lamentations of Jeremiah are very properly distributed into five Chapters, each of them containing a distinct elegy, consisting of twenty-two periods, according to the number of letters in the Hebrew alphabet; although it is in the four first Chapters only that the several periods begin, acrostic-wise, with the different letters following each other in alphabetical order. The fourth Chapter resembles the three former in metre, but the periods are only couplets. In the fifth Chapter the periods are couplets, but of a considerably shorter measure.

CHAPTER I.

Miseries of Jerusalem; she acknowledges her sins, and implores forgiveness.

"AND it came to pass after that Israel had been carried away captive, and Jerusalem had become desolate, that Jeremiah sat weeping, and lamented with this lamentation over Jerusalem, and said,"

1 κ How doth she sit solitary, the city once full of people!

She that was great among nations, is become as a widow!

She that was a princess over provinces, is made tributary!

2 ς She weepeth sore in the night, and her tears are on her cheeks;

She hath none to comfort her, from among all her lovers;

All her friends have dealt treacherously, they are her enemies.

3 ι Judah is gone into exile, because of affliction and of great servitude;

She dwelleth among the nations, she findeth no rest;

All her pursuers have overtaken her in the straits.

4 τ The ways of Zion mourn, because none come to the feast;

All her gates are desolate; her priests sigh; Her virgins are afflicted, and she is in bitterness.

5 η Her adversaries are chief, her enemies have prospered,

Because Jehovah hath afflicted her, for her many offences;

Her children are gone into captivity before the enemy.

1 And from the daughter of Zion is all her beauty departed;

Her princes are become as harts that find no pasture;

And they are gone without strength before the pursuer.

1 Jerusalem remembered in the days of her affliction and misery

All her desirable things that she had in the days of old;

When her people fell into the hand of an enemy, and she had no helper;

Her adversaries saw, and laughed at her destruction.

2 Jerusalem hath sinned greatly, therefore is she removed;

All that honoured her, despise her, because they have seen her shame;

Even she herself sigheth and turneth backward.

3 Her pollution was in her skirts, yet she remembered not her last end;

Hence she is brought down wonderfully, and hath no comforter:

See, O Jehovah, how the enemy hath increased my affliction.

4 An adversary hath spread his hand over all her desirable things;

Surely she hath seen nations enter into her sanctuary,

Whom thou didst forbid to enter even into thy congregation.

5 All her people sigh; they seek bread;

CHAP. I. 1. Great among nations] See what is said of David's conquests and sovereignty over the neighbouring states, 2 Sam. viii. 1—14; x. 6—19, of the extent of his son Solomon's dominions, 1 Kings iv. 21, 24, of the power of Judah in the reign of Jehoshaphat, 2 Chron. xvii. 10, 11, and also in that of Uzziah, 2 Chron. xxvi. 6, 7, 8.

2. All her friends] Several of the neighbouring princes sent their ambassadors to Zedekiah, Jer. xxvii. 3, &c. to engage him, as appears from the context, to join them in a confederacy against the power of the king of Babylon. But they not only universally failed and deserted Judah in the time of need, but most of them turned against her, and took a malignant pleasure in aggravating her misfortunes. See Jer. xlviii. 27. Ps. cxxxviii. 7, Ezek. xxv. 3—15.

3. Gone into exile] Great multitudes of the people fled on the approach of the Chaldeans, to the neighbouring nations, especially to Egypt.

5. Are chief] Or the head over her. For the sins of his people, God so ordered it, Deut. xxviii. 13—44.

7. All her desirable things] This is a natural and an affecting circumstance. While we possess good things, we rarely set a proper value on them; but when deprived of them, we remember them, and the remembrance adds to our grief, Job xxix. and xxx.

10. Whom thou didst forbid] The sense is given, and not the idiom. Compare Deut. xxiii. 3.

12. Is it nothing to you? Does it not move you? This abrupt address I consider as admirably expressing the grief

- They have given their valuable things for food to sustain life;
 See, O Jehovah, and consider how vile I am become!
- 12 Is it nothing to you? all ye that pass by look and consider,
 If there be any sorrow like to my sorrow, which is caused to me,
 Whom Jehovah hath afflicted in the day of his fierce anger!
- 13 From on high he sent fire, and it penetrateth into my bones.
 He spread a net for my feet; he turned me backward;
 He hath made me desolate, languishing all the day long.
- 14 The yoke of my transgression is bound by his own hand;
 His yoke he hath twisted on my neck, he hath cast down my strength;
- 15 Jehovah hath given me into the hands of those whom I cannot resist.
 Jehovah hath trodden down my brave men in the midst of me;
 He called an assembly against me, to crush my young men;
 Jehovah hath trodden as in a wine vat, the virgin daughter of Judah.
- 16 For these things do I weep, mine eye poureth down water,
 Because a comforter, a restorer of my life is far from me;
 My children are desolate, because the enemy hath prevailed.
- 17 Zion spreadeth forth her hands, but she hath no comforter;
 Jehovah hath given up Jacob to his surrounding enemies;
 Jerusalem is become as one set apart for unclean among them.
- 18 Righteous is Jehovah, for I rebelled against his command;
 Hear, I pray you, all ye people, and consider my sorrow;
 My virgins, and my young men, are gone into captivity.
- 19 I called upon my lovers, but they proved false to me;
 My priests and my elders have expired in the city,
 While they sought food for themselves to support their life.

- Behold, O Jehovah, how I am distressed; 20
 my bowels are troubled;
 My heart is turned within me; because I have greatly rebelled, Abroad a sword bereaveth, at home as it were death only.
- They heard how I sighed, but there was 21
 none to comfort me;
 All mine enemies heard of my trouble, they were glad that thou hadst done it;
 Thou bringest the day that thou hast named, when they shall be even as I.
- Let all their wickedness come before thee, 22
 and deal with them,
 As thou hast dealt with me for all my transgressions.
- For my sighings are many, and my heart is faint.

CHAPTER II.

The prophet laments the misery of Jerusalem, and directs her to seek for mercy.

- How doth Jehovah cloud with his 1
 anger the daughter of Zion!
 He hath cast down from heaven to earth the glory of Israel;
 And remembered not his footstool in the day of his anger.
- Jehovah swallowed without pity the abodes 2
 of Jacob;
 He threw down in his wrath, the strongholds of the daughter of Judah;
 He brought them to the ground, he profaned the kingdom and its princes.
- He cut off in his fierce anger every horn 3
 of Israel;
 He turned back his right hand from the face of the enemy;
 And burned against Jacob as a flaming fire that devoureth around.
- He bent his bow as an enemy; he stood 4
 with his hand as an adversary,
 And slew every youth, all that were desirable to the age;
 On the tent of the daughter of Zion, he poured out his fury as fire.
- Jehovah was as an enemy; he hath swal- 5
 lowed up Israel:
 He hath swallowed up all his palaces, he hath destroyed his strongholds,
 And increased in the daughter of Judah mourning and lamentation.

of Zion. Is it possible that any can see my distress and be unaffected? All ye travellers, look and consider.

15. Trodden down] As the grapes were crushed, and the juice flowed out, so had Jehovah made the blood of the daughter of Zion to stream forth. Compare Isa. lxiii. 2, 3. Rev. xiv. 20; xix. 15.

20. As it were death only] Meaning the pestilence. Death is personified, and the prophet sees him ravaging the city.

21. The day that thou hast named] That day when the exulting enemy should in like manner be vanquished; that day which the prophet had so repeatedly foretold.

CHAP. II. 1. His footstool in the] The ark of the covenant is called God's footstool, 1 Chron. xxviii. 2. Ps. xcix. 5; cxxxii. 7. And for this obvious reason, that when the glory of God appeared sitting as it were enthroned upon the mercy-seat between the cherubim, the ark below was as it were a base, or footstool to the throne. See Exod. xxv. 21, 22.

3. He turned his right hand] That is, the right hand of Israel was turned away, so that he could do nothing to stop the ravages of the enemy.

- 6 † And he hath removed his hedge as that of a garden, he destroyed his congregation; Jehovah hath made to be forgotten in Zion the solemn feast and the sabbath; And hath despised in his indignant anger the king and the priest.
- 7 † Jehovah hath rejected his altar, his sanctuary is accursed; He hath delivered up to the enemy the walls of his palace; They made a noise in the house of Jehovah, as on a solemn feast day.
- 8 † Jehovah purposed to destroy the wall of the daughter of Zion; He stretched out a line, he withdrew not his hand from destroying; He made the rampart and wall to mourn; they languished together.
- 9 † Her gates are sunk to the ground; he hath destroyed and broken her bars; Her king and princes are among the nations; the law is no more; Her prophets also have found no vision from Jehovah.
- 10 † They sit on the ground, the elders of Zion's daughter are silent; They put dust on their heads, they girded on sackcloth; The virgins of Jerusalem hang down their heads to the ground.
- 11 † Mine eyes are wasted with tears, my bowels are troubled; My liver is poured on the ground for the breach of the daughter of my people; While infants and sucklings faint away in the streets of the city.
- 12 † To their mothers they say, 'Where is corn and wine?' While they swooned as one wounded in the streets of the city, While their soul departeth in their mother's bosom.
- 13 † What shall I testify to thee? what liken to thee, O daughter of Jerusalem! To what compare thee, that I may comfort thee, O virgin daughter of Zion? Surely great as the sea is thy breach, who can heal thee?
- 14 † Thy prophets have predicted to thee vain and absurd things; They have not exposed 'to thee' thy iniquity so as to reverse thy captivity; They have predicted to thee burdens of vanity, when thou wast cast out.
- 15 † All travellers smite their hands on account of thee; They hiss and shake their head at the daughter of Jerusalem, saying, Is this the city called, Perfect in beauty, the joy of the whole earth?
- 16 † Jehovah hath done what he purposed, he hath fulfilled his word; What he had appointed in days of old he hath destroyed without pity, And made the enemy to rejoice over thee, and exalted the horn of thy foes.
- 17 † All thine enemies have opened their mouths against thee; They hissed and gnashed their teeth; they said, We have swallowed her up; Surely this is the day that we expected; we have found and seen it.
- 18 † Their heart cried to Jehovah; O wall of the daughter of Zion, Let tears run down like a torrent, by day and by night; Give thyself no rest; let not the daughter of thine eye stand still.
- 19 † Arise, cry out in the night, at the beginning of the watches; Pour out thy heart like water, before the face of Jehovah; Lift up thy hands to him for the life of thy young children, Who faint away for hunger at the head of every street, saying,
- 20 † Behold, O Jehovah, and consider with whom thou didst thus. Shall women eat the fruit of the womb, their little nurslings?
- 21 † Shall the priest and prophet be slain in the sanctuary of Jehovah?
- 22 † The boy and old man have lain on the ground in the streets; My virgins and my young men are fallen by the sword;

6. He hath removed his] God's protection is often expressed by this metaphor, and the withdrawing of his protection is meant by breaking down the hedge that he had made. Compare Ps. lxxx. 12. Isa. v. 2-5.

7-10. Rejected his altar] Suffered the enemy to overthrow it, and enter, and burn his palace and sanctuary. How affecting this description of the desolation of the temple and circumstances of it.

11. My liver is poured on] Grief and distress for what he saw, dissolved, as it were, his liver into bile. It is known that grief does promote a redundancy of vitiated bile, and this is what is meant.

12. Their soul departeth] The words cannot mean, 'pouring forth their desire,' but expiring in the bosom of their mothers for want of bread. This follows swooning as one wounded. How distressing to mothers to witness such a sight!

14. The prophets have] The false prophets encouraged them to resistance, by the hope of deliverance, which proved the occasion of their ruin.—(v) Syr.

15, 16. All travellers] Those opposed to God's Israel must be meant; their enemies.—Perfect in beauty] Compare Ps. xlviii. 9; 1. 2. It was at least a pardonable partiality in the Jews, which led them to bestow these encomiums upon their capital, and to suppose that all strangers would be equally delighted with its beauty as they themselves were.

18. O wall of the] The text is followed as this may be the language of Zion's enemies, and then she is called on to weep for the ruin of her rampart, and wall of defence.—Daughter of] By this seems to be meant the tears, in perfect consistency with other Hebrew metaphors.

19-22. Arise, cry out] This address to the people, exhorting them to pray fervently for divine aid amidst their

In the day of thine anger, thou slewest and killedst them without pity.

22 n Thou caldest as on a set day terrors to surround me;

So that in the day of Jehovah's anger none escaped or remained;

They whom I had fostered and brought up, were all mine enemies.

CHAPTER III.

The prophet mourns the state of the people, recommends submission, patience, and trust in the divine mercy, from a review of past mercies.

- 1 κ I am the man that hath seen affliction by the rod of his wrath;
- 2 κ Me he hath led, and caused to walk in darkness and not in light;
- 3 κ Surely against me he again turned his hand all the day.
- 4 ζ He wasteth away my flesh and my skin, he hath broken my bones;
- 5 ζ He hath built around, and compassed me with misery and travail;
- 6 ζ In dark places he hath caused me to dwell, as those dead of old.
- 7 ι He hath hedged me about that I cannot go forth, he hath made my chains heavy;
- 8 ι Also when I call and cry aloud, he shutteth out my prayer;
- 9 ι He hath blocked up my way with hewn stone, he hath made my path crooked.
- 10 γ A bear lying in wait, was he unto me, a lion in lurking places;
- 11 γ He turned full upon me and tore me, he made me desolate;
- 12 γ He bent his bow and set me up as a butt for the arrow.
- 13 η He caused the arrows of his quiver to enter into my reins;
- 14 η I was a derision unto all my people, their music all the day long;
- 15 η He hath filled me with bitterness, he hath made me drunk with a bitter potion.
- 16 ι He hath also broken my teeth with grit, he hath laid me low in ashes;

calamities, is most pertinent, and this was the most likely method to obtain some mitigation of their uncommon sufferings. The Sept. Chald. and Arab. read 'fruit of the womb.'

CHAP. III. 1. I am the man] The prophet reminds his countrymen that he has seen or experienced affliction as much as any of them, that the distress and trouble he had painfully felt, was equal to that of any of his fellow-citizens.

3. Again turned his hand] Not only once smote me, but hath done so again and again. He repeated his blows all the day long.

5. With misery] I conceive the first terms are military, the prophet considering himself as a city besieged, and God as the besieger, building ramparts around to assail him; but these very ramparts are misery and travail.

8. Shutteth out] Does not regard me, nor return any answer to my requests. This peculiarly afflicted the prophet's mind.

11. Turned full upon me] So Blayney, who has given the sense though not the idiom. The former line supports the version given.

And my soul was far removed from peace, 17 I forgot prosperity;

Then I said Jehovah hath destroyed my 18 strength and my hope.

The remembrance of my affliction and 19 misery is wormwood and gall;

My soul cannot but remember them, and 20 sinketh within me.

This I revolve in my mind, therefore shall 21 I have hope;

That the mercies of Jehovah are not 22 exhausted, that they fail not;

His compassions are new every morning; 23 great is thy faithfulness.

Jehovah is my portion, saith my soul, 24 therefore will I hope in him.

Jehovah is good to him that waiteth for 25 him, to the soul that seeketh him,

He is good, hence let him hope and quietly 26 wait for the salvation of Jehovah;

He is good to a man that beareth the 27 yoke in his youth.

Let him alone and be silent, when it is 28 laid upon him;

Let him put his mouth in the dust, if so be 29 there may be hope;

Let him give his cheek to the smiter, let 30 him be filled full with reproach.

For Jehovah will not cast off for ever; 31

But though he afflict, he will also pity, according to the multitude of his mercies;

For he doth not afflict willingly, nor 33 grieve the children of men.

To crush under his feet all the prisoners 34 of the land!

To turn aside the judgment of a man in 35 the sight of a superior;

To subvert a man in his cause, Jehovah 36 by no means approveth.

Who is he that speaketh, and it cometh to 37 pass, when Jehovah commandeth not?

At the command of the Most High doth 38 not good and evil proceed?

Why should a living man complain, a man 39 for the punishment of his sin?

14. Their music] He was the subject of their mirth; they played on him as on some musical instrument.

21. This I revolve] Here the prophet begins to suggest motives of patience and consolation.

26. He is good] The construction requires that טוב should be referred to Jehovah, and so in the next verse.

28. When it is] That is, the yoke. By which is meant submission to the will of God, both as it is expressed in his word, and by his providence, even in afflictive dispensations.

30. Give his cheek] Compare Matt. v. 39.

31—33. For Jehovah] In these verses the grounds of submission and patience are stated, as an encouragement to the discharge of the duty.

34—36. To crush under] In these verses certain acts of injustice are specified, of which men are guilty, but of which God cannot approve, and much less imitate in his conduct towards men.

37—39. Who is he that] Here God's sovereignty is asserted, and good and evil, prosperity and adversity, are noticed as coming from his hand; and in case of the latter,

- 40 Let us search and try our ways, and let us return to Jehovah ;
- 41 Let us lift up our hearts with our hands, to God in the heavens, saying,
- 42 We have transgressed and rebelled ; thou hast not pardoned.
- 43 Thou hast covered with anger and chased us, thou hast killed without pity ;
- 44 Thou hast covered thyself with a cloud, that prayer may not pass through.
- 45 An offscouring and refuse thou hast made us in the midst of peoples.
- 49 Mine eye trickleth down without intermission, and ceaseth not ;
- 50 Until Jehovah look down and regard from the heavens ;
- 51 Mine eye distresseth my mind because of all the daughters of my city.
- 46 All our enemies have opened their mouth against us ;
- 47 The terror and snare are upon us, desolation and destruction.
- 48 Mine eye poureth down streams of water for the destruction of the daughter of my people.
- 52 They that are mine enemies without cause, chased me greatly as a bird ;
- 53 They cut off my life in the pit, they lifted a stone upon me ;
- 54 Waters flowed over my head ; I said, I am cut off ;
- 55 I called on thy name, O Jehovah, out of the pit beneath ;
- 56 Thou heardest my voice, saying, Hide not thine ear at my cry for relief ;
- 57 Thou drewest near in the day I called on thee, thou saidst, Fear not.
- 58 Thou pleadest, O Jehovah, the causes of my soul, thou redeemedst my life ;
- 59 Thou hast seen, O Jehovah, the wrong done to me ; maintain thou my right :
- 60 Thou hast seen all their revenge, all their devices against me.
- 61 Thou hast heard their reproach, O Jehovah, all their devices against me,
- 62 The speeches of my adversaries and their muttering against me all the day.
- At their sitting down and rising up, behold, I am their music.
- Thou wilt render to them a recompense, O Jehovah, after the work of their hands ;
- Thou wilt give them up to obduracy of heart ; thy curse will come upon them.
- Thou wilt pursue with anger and destroy them, from under thy heavens, O Jehovah.

CHAPTER IV.

The state of Zion bewailed, her sins confessed, and Edom threatened.

- How is the gold tarnished ! the most fine gold changed !
- The hallowed stones scattered at the top of every street !
- The precious sons of Zion, of worth equal to the purest gold,
- How are they esteemed as earthen pitchers, the work of the potter's hands !
- The sea-monsters draw out the breast ; they suckle their young ones ;
- But the daughter of my people became cruel as the ostriches of the desert.
- The tongue of the suckling clave to the roof of its mouth for thirst ;
- Children asked for bread, and no one broke it unto them.
- Those that fed on dainties lay forlorn in the streets ;
- Those that were brought up in scarlet, embraced dunghills.
- The punishment of the daughter of my people was greater than that of Sodom, Which was overthrown as in a moment, without the hands of men.
- Her nobles were purer than snow ; they were whiter than milk ;
- They were more ruddy in body than rubies ; their veining was that of sapphires.
- Now their visage is more dark than blackness, they are not known in the streets.
- Their skin cleaveth to their bones ; it is withered and become like a stick.
- Much better are those slain by the sword, than those slain by famine ;

no living man has any just ground to complain, for he receives not according to his sins.

40—51, Let us search] The prophet now points out the method of reconciliation to Jehovah, by reformation and prayer ; and complains of the afflictions he endured, arising from those of his people.

52, They that are] Here the prophet begins to celebrate the deliverance he had experienced from former dangers and difficulties, from whence he is led to trust, that the same good providence will again be his support and avenge him of his present persecutors.

53, In the pit] See Jerem. xxxviii. 6, &c.

54, Waters flowed over] A metaphor taken from a person ready to be drowned, to denote imminent danger and distress. See Ps. lxxix. 1, 2, cxxiv. 4, 5.

59, Thou hast seen] Here the prophet adverts to his present sufferings and ill usage.

64—66, Thou wilt render] He assures himself that God would be his support, and render to his unjust and causeless foes, a due recompense.

CHAP. IV. 1. How is the gold] This refers to the temple, as appears from the next line. The house of Jehovah was as gold among the other parts of Jerusalem ; but now, alas ! it was tarnished ; the hallowed stones of it were a heap of rubbish.

3. Cruel as the ostriches] Compare Job xxxix. 14—16, and notes. Distress made even mothers treat their offspring as if they had no affection for them, as it follows.

5. Embraced dunghills] They were deprived of all their enjoyments, and instead of the carpets on which they had been accustomed to repose, they were reduced to lie on dunghills.

6. Without the hands of men] Hebrew, 'no hands rested on her,' that is, no human hands were employed in her overthrow ; it was done by the hand of God alone.

7. Her nobles] From the use of נָדִיב, Gen. xlix. 26, as

- For those pierced pass away, but these for want of the fruits of the fields.
- 10 The hands of compassionate women have boiled their own children;
They were food for them in the destruction of the daughter of my people.
- 11 Jehovah accomplished his fury, he poured out the fierceness of his anger;
And kindled a fire in Zion that hath consumed its foundations.
- 12 The kings of the earth did not believe, nor any of the inhabitants of the world,
That an adversary or enemy should have entered the gates of Jerusalem.
- 13 This is for the sins of her prophets, the iniquities of her priests,
Who shed in the midst of her the blood of the righteous.
- 14 They wandered as if blind in the streets, they were stained with blood,
So that their very garments could not be touched.
- 15 Depart, ye unclean, men cried to them; depart, depart, touch not;
When they fled and wandered, men said among the nations, they shall not sojourn.
- 16 The face of Jehovah dispersed them, he will no more look on them;
As they respected not the face of priests, and to elders showed no favour.
- 17 As for us, our eyes failed with looking for our help;
In vain on our watch-tower did we watch for a nation that could not save.
- 18 They hunted our steps, that we could not pass along in our streets;
Our end drew near; our days are fulfilled; our end is come,
- 19 Our pursuers were swifter than the eagles of the heavens;

applied to Joseph, it is here employed, not as denoting those who had taken the vow of Nazariteship, but all those distinguished by their wealth and their rank.

9. For those pierced] That is, with the sword, pass away, or die speedily, but those who die for want, die a most lingering death, and perhaps one of the most distressing and miserable.

10. Compassionate women] Compare ch. ii. 20; Deuter. xxviii. 5, and 2 Kings vi. 29.

12. Did not believe] Jerusalem was so strong by nature and art, and had such a powerful protector, that among the neighbouring nations, it was considered impregnable.

13. This is for the sins] The prophet assigns the cause of Jerusalem being given up to desolation.

14. Wandered as if blind] They wandered about the streets as the blind were accustomed to do, but not to beg bread, but to shed blood.

15. Among the nations] Whither some of these sinners fled, on the taking of the city. As they had been so guilty of shedding blood, even heathens refused them an asylum; they said, 'they shall not sojourn,' that is, with us.

16. Respected not the face] That is, of those priests and elders who faithfully served God, and who were anxious to promote his glory; called righteous in the 13th verse.

17. Watch for a nation] The Egyptians are meant.

18, 19. They hunted] The Chaldeans are intended, who during the siege adopted every method to annoy and destroy them.

20. The breath of our] Zedekiah's fate is here alluded to.

- On the mountains they have chased us, in the wilderness they laid in wait for us.
- 1 The breath of our nostrils, Jehovah's 20 anointed, was taken in their pits.
Under whose shadow we said we should live among the nations.
- 2 Rejoice and be glad, O daughter of Edom, 21 that dwellest in the land of Uz;
To thee also shall the cup pass; thou shalt be made drunk and naked.
- 3 Thy punishment is at an end, O daughter 22 of Zion, he will no more expose thee;
He will visit thy iniquity, O daughter of Edom, he will expose thy sins.

CHAPTER V.

A humble prayer, representing their great misery; confession of their sin, and petitions for deliverance.

- REMEMBER, O Jehovah, what hath be- 1 fallen us!
- Look down, and consider our reproach.
Our inheritance is transferred to strangers; 2
Our houses to foreigners.
We are become orphans without father; 3
Our mothers are widows.
We have drunk our water for money;
Our wood cometh for price.
The yoke is on our neck, we are pursued, 5
We labour, and no rest is allowed us.
Unto Egypt we have submitted ourselves, 6
And to Assyria, to be satisfied with bread.
Our fathers have sinned, and are no more; 7
And we bear the punishment of their iniqui-Servants have dominion over us, [ties. 8
Nor is there any to deliver out of their hand.
At the peril of our lives we get our bread, 9
Because of the sword in the wilderness.
Our skin is become dry as an oven, 10
Through the stormy blasts of famine.

to, upon whose being taken prisoner, all the hopes, which the people had entertained of living safe under his protection, fell of course to the ground. To live among the nations probably means to exist in a national capacity, or as one among them.

21, 22. Rejoice and be glad] An ironical mode of address, like that, Eccles. xi. 9. The Edomites, we find, had with a malicious joy exulted over the ruin of their brethren the Jews. See Ps. cxxxvii. 7. Obad. 10—12.

CHAP. V. 2, 3. To strangers] To the Chaldeans, who now had the right and the possession of the land of promise.

4. Water for money] Perhaps this alludes both to the state of some left in Judea, and to those carried away captive, who were obliged to buy both their wood and water, which shows a state of great misery.

5. The yoke is on] Symmachus thus renders, and this sense depends only on the vowel which we read.

6. Unto Egypt] So the Vulg. renders, as if he had read למִצְרַיִם, &c. Those who had escaped the general massacre, were obliged for support to become servants or slaves to one or the other of the people mentioned.

7. We bear the] Compare 2 Kings xxi. 11—16; xxiii. 26, 27, &c. They do not say this to excuse themselves, but to lament the sins of their fathers as well as their own.

9. Peril of our lives] This seems to refer to the few who remained in the land, and who were exposed to the sword of the Arabs, who dwelt in the wilderness.

10. Stormy blasts of famine] Both in this place and Ps. xi. 6, the ancient interpreters give it the sense of

- 11 The women in Zion have they ravished ;
The virgins in the cities of Judah.
12 Princes were hung up by the hand ;
The persons of elders were not honoured.
13 They took young men to grind at the mill,
And boys fell under burdens of wood.
14 The elders have ceased from the gate ;
The young men from their music.
15 The joy of our heart hath ceased ;
Our dance is turned into mourning.
16 The crown of our head is fallen ;
Wo unto us ! because we have sinned.

Because of this our heart is faint ; 17
Because of these things our eyes are dim ;
Because of mount Zion, which is desolate, 18
So that jackals walk upon it.
But thou, O Jehovah, abidest for ever ; 19
Thy throne from generation to generation.
Wherefore wilt thou wholly forget us ? 20
Wilt thou forsake us for so long a time ?

storms and tempests. In the latter of these passages it seems not improbable, that by רוח ולעפוף the hot scorching wind may be alluded to, which produces such fatal effects in the desert. In this place the violent operations of hunger may be called its 'stormy blasts,' from the effects thereby produced in emaciating the body, and drying the skin, as if the blasts of a hot wind had passed over it.

11—15. The women] The prophet describes in affecting language the miseries of the people when Jerusalem was taken, women ravished, princes and elders murdered and hung up, the youth slain, and all made solitary.

16—18. The crown of] Now they were stripped of what was their glory ; and Zion now only awakened commiseration for its fallen and desolate condition.

19—22. But thou, O Jehovah] This was the comfort of the prophet, that Jehovah was unchangeable, that his throne cannot be subverted ; and from this he prays that he would remember them, and turn them to him, and save them.

EZEKIEL.

INTRODUCTION.

We learn from chapter i. 4. that Ezekiel was a descendant of Aaron ; and as he dates his prophecies from the captivity of Jehoiachin, it is probable that he was carried away captive at the same period. The king of Chaldaea planted his Jewish captives at Tel-abib, and other places on the river Chebar ; which flows into the east side of the Euphrates, at Circesium, or Carchemish, near two hundred miles northward of Babylon. This was the scene of Ezekiel's prophecies, which were continued through a course of twenty-two years : here he was present in body, though in visionary representation he was sometimes taken to Jerusalem. While the people in Judea were given up to every vice and delusion, the exiles on the river Chebar continued rebellious and idolatrous. In vain did their great prophet Ezekiel endeavour to attract and win them by the charms of his flowing and insinuating eloquence ; in vain did he assume a more vehement tone, to awe and alarm them by heightened scenes of calamity and terror.

CHAPTER I.

The time of Ezekiel's prophecy ; his vision of the four cherubs, the four wheels and the glory of Jehovah.

- 1 Now it came to pass in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, in the fifth day of the month, as I was among the captives by the river Chebar, that the heavens were opened, 2 and I saw visions of God. In the fifth day of the month, (which was the fifth year of 3 king Jehoiachin's captivity.) The word of Jehovah came expressly unto Ezekiel, the son of Buzi, the priest, in the land of the Chaldeans, by the river Chebar ; and the hand of Jehovah was there upon him.
4 And I looked, and behold, a whirlwind came from the north, a great cloud, and a fire infoldding itself, and a brightness was round about it ; and in the midst thereof there was as the colour of amber, even in the midst of the fire. Also in the midst thereof 5 appeared the likeness of four animals. And this was their appearance ; they had the stature of a man. And every one had four 6 faces, and every one had four wings. And 7 as to their feet, they were straight feet ; the sole of their feet was like a calf's foot, and they sparkled like the colour of burnished brass. And they had the hands of a man under their wings, on their four sides ; thus 8 they four had their faces and their wings.

CHAP. I. 1. In the thirtieth year] The prophet most probably dates from the era of Nabopolassar, an era followed by Ptolemy, and other writers on the affairs of Babylon and the Persians. In the next verse Ezekiel mentions the time according to the Jewish mode of reckoning, to be the fifth year of Jehoiachin's captivity.—Chebar] Ammianus calls this river Aboras, and Ptolemy, Chaboras. It falls into the Euphrates near Carchemish.

2. The fifth year] This was of course the fifth year of Zedekiah, who succeeded Jehoiachin : and as the city and temple were destroyed in the eleventh year of Zedekiah, 2 Kings xxv. 2, it follows that this vision appeared to Ezekiel six years before that event.

3. And the hand of Jehovah] For the hand of Jehovah to be upon any one, signifies, that Jehovah by him exerts his power to punish, as Acts xiii. 11, or to endue him with such energy that he may do or speak whatever God wills.

4. From the north] That is supposed to denote the calamities which were to burst on Jerusalem from her northern enemies, the Chaldeans.—Colour of amber] Bochart shows that χλωρον (the word in the Sept.) signifies amber, crystal, and a metal compounded of gold and silver, or gold and brass ; and thinks that the last, called χαλκολίθαιος, Rev. i. 15, best suits this place.

5. The stature of a man] That is, of the body of a man ; they were erect, and not horizontal after the manner of beasts.

7. Straight feet] Their feet were not like those of men,

9 Their wings were joined one to another; they turned not when they went; they went 10 every one straight forward. As for the likeness of their faces, they four had the face of a man, and a lion on the right side: and they four had the face of an ox, and the face of an eagle on the left side.
 11 And their wings were parted above; two wings of every one were joined, and two 12 covered their bodies. And they went every one straight forward: whither the spirit was to go, they went; and they turned 13 not when they went. As for the likeness of the animals, their appearance was as burning coals of fire, as the appearance of lamps which went up and down among the animals; and the fire was bright, and out of the fire went forth lightning.
 14 And the animals ran, and returned as the appearance of a flash of lightning.
 15 Now as I beheld the animals, behold one wheel upon the earth by the animals with its 16 four sides. The appearance of the wheels and their work, was as the colour of a beryl: and they four had one likeness: and their appearance and their work was, as it were, a 17 wheel in the middle of a wheel. When they went, they went upon their four sides: and 18 they turned not about when they went. As for their fellows and strakes, 'I beheld them;' and their strakes were full of eyes round 19 about them four. And when the animals went, the wheels went by them: and when the animals were lifted up from the earth, 20 the wheels were lifted up. Whithersoever the spirit was to go, they went,^o and the wheels were lifted up beside them: for the 21 spirit of the animals was in the wheels. When those went, these went; and when those stood, these stood; and when those were lifted up from the earth, the wheels were lifted up beside them; for the spirit of the animals was in the wheels.

And there was the likeness of the expanse 22 over the heads of the animals, which was as the colour of the terrible ice, stretched forth over their heads above. And under the 23 expanse their wings were straight, the one towards another: every one had two, which covered on this side, and every one had two, which covered on that side, their bodies. And when they went, I heard the sound of 24 their wings, like the sound of great waters, as the voice of the Almighty; the sound of their speech was as the sound of a host: and when they stood, they let down their wings. And there was a voice from the 25 expanse which was over their heads.^o

And above the expanse which was over 26 their heads, was the likeness of a throne, as the appearance of a sapphire-stone; and upon the likeness of the throne was the likeness as the appearance of a man above upon it. And I saw as the colour of am- 27 ber, as the appearance of fire round about within it; from the appearance of his loins even upward, and from the appearance of his loins even downward, I saw as it were the appearance of fire, and a brightness was round about him. As the appearance 28 of the bow which is in the cloud in the day of rain, so was the appearance of the brightness round about. This was the appearance of the glory of Jehovah. And when I saw it I fell upon my face.

CHAPTERS II. III.

CHAP. II. III. Ezekiel's commission; the instruction and the roll of prophecy given unto him, which he eateth; his duty stated; the divine glory speaketh.

THEN I heard the voice of one who spoke, I horizontal, but like those of a calf, straight down to the soles.

9. They turned not when] This circumstance is repeated verse 12—17, and chap. x. 11, and is explained by its opposite, 'they went straight forwards.' In whatever way they moved, they kept the same relative position.

10. They four had the face] These living creatures are called cherubs, chap. ix. 3; and x. throughout. They cannot represent Jehovah, as Parkhurst contends, because John describes them as paying worship to him, Rev. iv. 8, and v. 8, 9. They cannot always represent angels alone; because they were redeemed by the blood of the Lamb, and are distinguished from angels, Rev. v. 6—11. As the elders represent the ministers of the church, so the four living creatures, in the Apocalypse, most probably represent the glorified state of the redeemed in heaven; who will serve God with reason, with strength of affection, with perseverance, and with swift obedience; qualities which seem to be signified by the emblem here described. Angels may have occasionally assumed this form; Gen. iii. 24; and they may have been represented under this form in the Holy of Holies; as it expresses their own nature, and that of those who will be like angels, ἰσαγγέλους, in heaven, Luke xx. 36.—(o) Thus were their faces] Sept.

12. The spirit was to go] These living creatures were animated by one spirit; and they obeyed his will as soon as made known to them.

14. They ran and returned] The Syriac has the negative,

'they ran and turned not;' but the text is consistent with verse 9; for though they ran and returned, it was always in a fixed relative position.

15. Upon the earth] Not lifted up, see verse 19.—With its four faces] One wheel intersected another at right angles, like the two colures; and the four spherical portions thus formed seemed to be called the four faces, or sides. See verses 16, 17. The Jews call this vision כרכב, or the chariot.

16. A beryl] A gem of a bluish green; and probably called in the text tarshish, from the place whence it came.

17. They turned not] The wheels are supposed to express the revolutions of God's providence; which are regular, though they appear intricate.

18. Their fellows and strakes] That is, the circumference of the wheels and the iron with which they appeared to be bound.—I beheld them] This reading is adopted by most critics. If the vau be genuine before בבד, the common version cannot be supported. What attracted his notice was, that they were full of eyes. Compare chap. x. 12; Rev. iv. 6. The eyes are thought to denote God's all-seeing providence.—20. (o) Thither the spirit went. Sept. Syr.

23. Terrible ice] Not in its common state, but when it astonishes by its magnitude and splendour.

25. Over their heads] I omit with the Sept. Syr. Arab. the three last words, as being clearly a mere repetition of the close of the preceding verse.

26—28. Of a man above it] The representation of the and said unto me, Son of man, stand upon 2 thy feet, and I will speak unto thee. And the spirit entered into me, when he spoke unto me, and set me upon my feet, and I 3 heard him that spoke unto me. And he said unto me, Son of man, I send thee to the children of Israel, to a rebellious nation that hath rebelled against me: they and their fathers have transgressed against me, even 4 unto this very day. Although they are impudent and stiff-hearted men, I send thee unto them; and thou shalt say unto them, 5 Thus saith the Lord Jehovah. And they, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear, (for they are a rebellious house,) yet shall know that there hath been a prophet among them.

 6 And thou, son of man, be not afraid of them, and of their words be not afraid, though they be stubborn and oppose thee, and thou dwell among scorpions: of their words be not afraid, nor be dismayed at their looks, though they be a rebellious 7 house. But thou shalt speak my words unto them, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear: for they are a rebellious 8 house. And thou, son of man, hear what I say unto thee; Be not thou rebellious, like that rebellious house: open thy mouth, and eat that which I give thee.
 9 And when I looked, behold, a hand was put forth unto me; and, lo, a roll of a book 10 was therein; And he spread it before me:
 and it was written within and without: and there was written therein, Lamentations, and mourning, and woe.
 11 MOREOVER Jehovah said unto me, Son of man, eat that which is presented, eat this roll, and go speak unto the house of Israel.
 2 So I opened my mouth, and he caused me 3 to eat that roll. For he said to me, Son of man, Let thy stomach receive, and thy belly be filled with this roll which I give thee.
 Then I ate it; and it was in my mouth as honey for sweetness.

ever-blessed Jehovah, who at length assumed human nature.

CHAP. II. 1. Son of man] This phrase is peculiar to the prophets Ezekiel and Daniel, and according to the Syriac idiom, means only the same as man. Our Lord spoke of himself in the third person, as the 'son of man,' to denote his having assumed human nature, and that he was the person of whom Daniel prophesied.—Stand on thy feet] He had fallen prostrate in the eastern manner, chap. i. 28.

2. The spirit entered] The term רִיחַ, spirit, here seems to denote the power of God, strengthening him, so that he was able to listen to and to do what was said. Comp. Luke i. 35, and 1 Kings xviii. 12, and 2 Kings ii. 16, &c.

3. Children of Israel] The Sept. and Arab. have house for sons; and sometimes sons for house. The terms are synonymous, and deserve no more notice.

5. Hath been a prophet] One to warn them, so that they can have no pretext for their sin: and divine justice will be vindicated in their punishment.

6. Though they be stubborn] For the sense given, see the Syr. and Gesen. in verb.

And he said unto me, Son of man, go, get thee unto the house of Israel, and speak my words unto them. For thou art not sent to 5 a people of a strange speech, and of a hard language, but to the house of Israel; Not 6 to many people of a strange speech, and of a hard language, whose words thou canst not understand. Surely, had I sent thee to them, they would have hearkened unto thee.
 But the house of Israel will not hearken 7 unto thee, for they will not hearken unto me: for all the house of Israel are impudent and hard-hearted. Behold, I have 8 made thy face firm against their faces; and thy forehead firm against their foreheads.
 As an adamant firmer than flint, have I 9 made thy forehead; fear them not; nor be dismayed at their looks, though they be a rebellious house.

Moreover he said unto me, Son of man, 10
 all my words which I shall speak unto thee receive in thy heart, and hear with thine ears. And go, get thee to them of the cap- 11 tivity, unto the children of thy people, and speak unto them, and tell them, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear.

Then the spirit took me up, and I heard 12 behind me a sound, as of a great shaking, saying, Blessed be the glory of Jehovah, from his place. I heard also the sound of 13 the wings of the animals, which touched one another, and the sound of the wheels beside them, and the sound of a great shaking. So 14 the spirit lifted me up, and took me away, and I went in bitterness, in the heat of my spirit; and the hand of Jehovah was strong upon me.

Then I came to them of the captivity at 15
 Telabib, who dwelt by the river Chebar, and I dwelt where they dwelt; I even dwelt there astonished among them seven days.
 And it came to pass at the end of seven 16 days, that the word of Jehovah came unto me saying, Son of man, I have made thee a 17

8. Open thy mouth] Jarchi observes that this is figurative, and signifies, Attend and listen, and receive what I give thee.

CHAP. III. 1—3. Let thy stomach] Kimchi justly observes, that by this it was intimated that he was to lay up in his memory, and assiduously revolve in his thoughts what God said unto him.—As honey] Perhaps it was sweet, from the pleasure of being so honourably employed.

6. Surely had I sent thee] So the versions. The negative particle is interpolated. Compare Matt. xii. 58—42.

8. Thy face firm] So as not to be ashamed or cast down before them, however they might treat him. Compare Jer. i. 18.

12. Took me up] It is probable that he was conveyed to another place, and that as he went he heard as follows.—The glory of Jehovah] By the whole choir of his attendant angels, who were then in the place where his glory dwelt.

14. In bitterness] Because of the calamities which he was commissioned to foretell; and in the heat, &c. because of the rebellious conduct of the people.

15. And I dwelt where] So the Keri, and the verb is watchman unto the house of Israel : therefore hear the word from my mouth, and 18 warn them from me. When I say unto the wicked, Thou shalt surely die; and thou warnest him not, nor speakest to warn the wicked from his wicked way, to save his life; that wicked man shall die for his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thy hand.

 19 Yet if thou warn the wicked, and he turn not from his wickedness, nor from his evil way, he shall die for his iniquity; but thou hast delivered thy soul. Again, When the righteous turneth from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, and I lay a stumbling-block before him, "and" he dieth, because thou hast not warned him; he shall die for his sin, and his righteousness which he hath done shall not be remembered, but 21 his blood will I require at thy hand. Nevertheless if thou warn the righteous, that the righteous sin not, and he do not sin, he shall surely live, because he is warned; also thou hast delivered thy soul.
 22 And the hand of Jehovah was there upon me; and he said unto me, Arise, go forth into the plain, and I will there talk with thee.
 23 Then I arose, and went forth into the plain: and behold, the glory of Jehovah stood there, as the glory which I saw by the river
 24 Chebar: and I fell on my face. Then the spirit entered into me, and set me upon my feet; and he spoke, and said unto me, Go shut thyself within thy house. And thou,
 25 O son of man, behold, hands shall be put upon thee, and thou shalt be bound therewith, and thou shalt not go out among them:
 26 And I will make thy tongue cleave to the roof of thy mouth, so that thou shalt be dumb, and shalt not be to them a reprover:
 27 for they are a rebellious house. But when I speak with thee, I will open thy mouth: and thou shalt say unto them, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; He that heareth, let him hear: and he that forbeareth, let him forbear: for they are a rebellious house.

CHAPTER IV.

The prophet draws on a tile Jerusalem, as besieged by the Chaldeans; by lying on his side, and by eating and drinking by weight and measure, shows the distress of the people.

THEN Jehovah said, Thou also, son of 1. man, take thee a tile, and lay it before thee, and engrave upon it the city Jerusalem: And lay siege against it, and build a tower 2 against it, and cast a mount against it; set a camp also against it, and place battering-rams against it round about. Moreover take 3 unto thee a plate of iron, and set it for a wall of iron between thee and the city: and set thy face against it, and it shall be besieged, and thou shalt distress it. This shall be a sign to the house of Israel. Lie 4 thou also upon thy left side, and lay the punishment of the iniquity of the house of Israel upon it: according to the number of the days that thou shalt lie upon it thou shalt bear the punishment of their iniquity. For I have laid upon thee the years of the 5 punishment of their iniquity, according to the number of the days, three hundred and ninety days: so shalt thou bear the punishment of the iniquity of the house of Israel. And when thou hast accomplished them, lie 6 again on thy right side, and thou shalt bear the punishment of the iniquity of the house of Judah forty days: each day for a year have I appointed thee. Therefore thou shalt 7 set thy face towards the siege of Jerusalem, and thine arm shall be uncovered, and thou shalt prophesy against it. And, 8 behold, I will put hands upon thee, and thou shalt not turn thyself from one side to another till thou hast ended the days of thy siege.

Also take thou for thyself wheat and bar-used in its secondary sense, to dwell, to abide.—Astonished] Doubtless at what he saw and heard.

18. Surely die] An immature death, if not a violent one.

19. Delivered thy soul] That is, thyself; thou wilt be free from blame. Compare chap. iv. 14. The opposite to this clause is, 'His blood will I require at thy hand; thou shalt be deemed guilty of his blood.'

20. A stumbling-block] Such a temptation or occasion of sin as in the course of providence often occurs; and which we may and ought to avoid. This mode of speaking often occurs. Chap. vii. 19; xiv. 3—7; xviii. 30; xxi. 20; xlv. 12.—(a) Syr. Arab.

21. Warn the righteous] I follow the versions, and 1 MS. which is certainly right; as two objective cases to the same verb is ungrammatical.

25. Hands shall be put] The verb is used impersonally, and is equivalent to the passive form. See Schroeder.

26. Shalt be dumb] That is, for some time God would withhold revelations from him, and he should not even reprove them. This was to be a sign unto them, to intimate that they were incorrigible.

CHAP. IV. 2. And lay siege] This prediction was given, when all was peaceful, at least four years before Jerusalem was besieged, and when no human sagacity could possibly conjecture such an event.

4. Lie thou] In his own house, chap. iii. 24. This was to be his posture, not without intermission, but in the exercise of his prophetic office during that part of each day when the people were likely to observe his conduct.—Lay the punishment] Declare that you thus represent the punishment, &c.

5. Three hundred] This number of years, see verse 6, will take us back with sufficient exactness, from the year in which Jerusalem was sacked by Nebuchadnezzar to the first year of Jeroboam's reign, when national idolatry began in Israel.

6. Judah forty days] Reckon near fifteen years and six months in the reign of Manasseh, two years in that of Amon, three months in that of Jehoahaz, eleven years in that of Jehoiaquin, three months and ten days in that of Jehoiachin, and eleven years in that of Zedekiah; and there arises a period of forty years, during which gross idolatry was practised in the kingdom of Judah.

7. Uncovered] Disengaged from the upper garment worn in the east; and thus ready for action. See Is. lii. 10.

8. I will put hands] God is said to do what was done in consequence of his command. See on chap. iii. 25.

ley, and beans, and lentiles, and panic, and spelt, and put them in one vessel, and make of them food for thyself, according to the number of thy days that thou shalt lie on thy side; three hundred and ninety days 10 shalt thou eat thereof. And thy food which thou shalt eat shall be by weight, twenty shekels a day: from time to time shalt thou 11 eat it. Thou shalt also drink water by measure, the sixth part of a hin: from time to 12 time shalt thou drink. Thou shalt also eat a barley-cake; and with human dung thou 13 shalt bake it in their sight. And Jehovah said, Even thus shall the children of Israel eat their polluted food among the nations whither 14 I will drive them. Then said I, Ah, Lord Jehovah! lo, my soul hath not been polluted: for of that which dieth of itself, or was torn in pieces, I have not eaten from my youth up; neither hath abominable food come 15 into my mouth. Then he said unto me, Behold, I have given thee cow's dung for man's dung, and thou shalt prepare thy food there- 16 with. Moreover he said unto me, Son of man, lo, I will break the staff of bread in Jerusalem: and they shall eat bread by weight, and with care; and they shall drink water 17 by measure, and with astonishment: That they may want bread and water, and be astonished one with another, and pine away for their iniquity.

CHAPTER V.

The prophet being commanded to shave his head, and divide the hair, showed thereby the miseries of the Jews, for their rebellion, by famine, sword, and dispersion.

1 AND thou, son of man, take thee a sharp instrument, take thee a barber's razor, and shave thy head, and thy beard: then take thee balances to weigh, and divide the hair. 2 A third part thou shalt burn with fire, in the midst of the city, when the days of the siege are fulfilled: and thou shalt take a third part, and smite about it with the instrument: and a third part thou shalt scatter in the wind; and I will draw out a sword after 3 them. Thou shalt also take thereof a few

9. Lentiles and panic] They all serve to make a kind of bread, and they were mixed together in one vessel, to denote the coarse food which should be used in the siege.

10. Twenty shekels] Not ten ounces Troy weight. The Romans allowed a pound of bread to prisoners each day; so that the quantity allowed the prophet was only just sufficient to maintain life. The same may be said of the quantity of water. A hin was only about ten pints; and the sixth part of this was not a pint and a half. According to the humane Howard, three times this quantity is what a healthy man requires.

12. Human dung] The dung of oxen and camels was, and still is, commonly used in the east, as fuel for preparing their food. The command to use human dung, expressed extreme necessity.

16. The staff of bread] Compare Levit. xxvi. 26. It is so called, because that man leaneth on bread for his chief support. We may do without other things, but bread is necessary.

in number, and bind them in thy skirts. Then shalt thou take some of these again, 4 and cast them into the midst of the fire, and burn them in the fire; for from these shall come forth a fire into all the house of Israel.

Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; This is 5 Jerusalem: in the midst of the nations I have set her, and countries are round about her. And she hath wickedly rebelled against 6 my judgments more than the nations, and against my statutes more than the countries which are round about her; for they have refused my judgments, and as to my statutes, they have not walked according to them. Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah, Be- 7 cause ye have been more rebellious than the nations which are round about you, and have not walked according to my statutes, nor have kept my judgments, but have done according to the judgments of the nations that are round about you: Therefore thus 8 saith the Lord Jehovah; Behold, I, even I, am against you, and will execute judgments in the midst of you in the sight of the nations. And I will do among you that which 9 I have not done, and whereunto I will not do any more the like, because of all your abominations. Therefore the fathers shall 10 eat the sons in the midst of you, and the sons shall eat their fathers; and I will execute judgments upon you, and all that remain of you will I scatter towards all the winds. Therefore, as I live, saith the Lord Jeho- 11 vah; Surely, because ye have defiled my sanctuary with all your detestable things, and with all your abominations, even I also will diminish you, mine eye shall not spare, nor will I have any pity.

A third part of you shall die with the pestilence, or shall be consumed with famine in the midst of you; and a third part shall fall by the sword round about you; and a third part I will scatter towards all the winds, and I will draw out a sword after them. Thus shall mine anger be 13 accomplished, and I will cause my fury

CHAP. V. 3. In the midst of the city] That is, of the city which the prophet had engraven on the tile.—Days of the siege] That is, of the typical siege before described.—Thy skirts] This denotes the few that were left in the land by Nebuzar-adan. Jer. xlii. 4.

4. And from it shalt] In consequence of Ishmael's conspiracy against Gedaliah, destruction shall spread itself among the small residue of the Jews. See Jer. xlii. xliii. xlv.

6. Wickedly rebelled] I derive from מרד, to rebel; and consider לרשע as used adverbially in the same manner as לבטח, confidently, or לצדק, righteously.—More than the nations] That is, more than they have rebelled against their judgments and ordinances.

9. Do any more the like] The national punishment of the Jews, comprehending what they suffered from Nebuchadnezzar, Titus, and Adrian, has been remarkably signal.

10. Eat the sons] Compare 2 Kings ii. 20; Jerem. xix. 9; Lam. ii. 20; iv. 10.

to rest upon them, and I will be comforted :
and they shall know that I, Jehovah, have spoken it in my jealousy, when I have ac-14 complished my fury upon them. Moreover I will make you a desolation, and a reproach among the nations which are round about you, in the sight of all that pass by.
15 'And you shall be' a reproach, and a reviling, and an instruction, and an astonishment, unto the nations which are round about you, when I shall execute judgments upon you in anger, and in fury, and in fu-16 rious rebukes. I, Jehovah, have spoken it :
When I shall send upon you the evil arrows of famine, which shall be for your destruction, and which I will send to destroy you :
And I will increase the famine upon you, 17 and will break your staff of bread : Thus will I send upon you famine and evil beasts, and they shall bereave you : and pestilence and blood shall pass through you ; and I will bring the sword upon you. I, Jehovah, have spoken it.

CHAPTER VI.

The judgment of Israel for their idolatry ; a remnant shall be spared ; the faithful are exhorted to lament their calamities.

1 AND the word of Jehovah came unto me,
2 saying, Son of man, set thy face towards the mountains of Israel, and prophesy against 3 them, and say, Ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord Jehovah ; Thus saith the Lord Jehovah, to the mountains and to the hills, to the streams and to the valleys ;
Lo, I, even I, will bring a sword upon you, 4 and I will destroy your high places. And your altars shall be desolate, and your sun-images shall be broken : and I will cast 5 down your slain before your idols. And I will lay the carcasses of the children of Israel before your idols ; and I will scatter your 6 bones round about your altars. In all your dwelling-places the cities shall be laid waste, and the high-places shall be desolate ; that your altars may be laid waste and destroyed, and your idols may be broken and cease, and your sun-images may be cut down, and your works may be abolished. And the 7 slain shall fall in the midst of you, and ye shall know that I am Jehovah.

Yet will I leave a remnant, that ye may 8 have some who shall escape the sword among the nations, when ye shall be scattered through the countries. And those of 9 you that escape shall remember me among the nations whither they shall be carried captives, when I have broken their heart, which straying departed from me, and their eyes, which went astray after their idols ;
and they shall loathe themselves for the evils which they have committed, in all their abominations. And they shall know that I, Je- 10 hovah, have not said in vain that I would do this evil unto them.

Thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; Smite with 11
thy hand, and stamp with thy foot, and say, Alas, for all the evil abominations of the house of Israel ! for by sword, by famine, and by pestilence, shall they fall. He that 12 is far off, shall die by the pestilence ; and he that is near shall fall by the sword ; and he that remaineth and is 'preserved,' shall die by the famine : thus will I accomplish my fury upon them. Then shall 'they who sur- 13 vive know' that I am Jehovah, when their slain shall be among their idols round about their altars, upon every high hill, on all the tops of the mountains, and under every green tree, and under every thick oak, the place where they offered sweet savour to all their idols. When I shall stretch out my 14 hand upon them, and make the land a desolation and an astonishment, more than the desert towards Diblath, in all their habitations : they shall even know that I am Jehovah.

CHAPTER VII.

Israel's final desolation ; the distressed state of those that escape, who are destined to be made captives.

MOREOVER the word of Jehovah came 1 unto me saying, Also thou son of man, thus 2 saith the Lord Jehovah, concerning the land
of Israel ;
An end cometh, the end "cometh,"

13. And I will be comforted] Their sins were so provoking, and God's anger so kindled against them, that he could not rest or enjoy comfort (speaking after the manner of men) until he had thus punished them.—15. (v) Versions.

16. The evil arrows of famine] This is poetical and sublime. Famine might be inflicted various ways ; by locusts, hail, showers, blasts, drought.

CHAP. VI. 2. Mountains of Israel] Israel being carried captive, Judah is called Israel ; and perhaps possessed a great part of the country.

3—5. Mountains and hills] That is, all the places where they had erected altars, and worshipped idols. This was following the custom of the heathens.

6. In all your dwelling] This seems to be addressed to the people of this land. Wherever they should go, they would only find ruined and desolate cities.

9. When I have broken] When I have subdued their rebellious heart, and made them sensible of their sin in worshipping idols, and rejecting me ; when they are brought to repentance. Compare Ps. xxxiv. 18 ; li. 18.

13. Then shall they] To give the sense clearly, I have added what is understood. The places where they had practised idolatry, should be filled with slaughtered carcasses.—(v) Syr. So ver. 12.

14. More than the desert] I have adopted the version of the Syriac, and with many critics consider Diblath, the same as Diblathaim, Num. xxxiii. 46 ; Jer. xlv. 22 ; which was situated on the borders of that desert which Moses describes Deuter. viii. 15.

CHAP. VII. 2, 3. An end cometh] Having prophesied against the mountains of Israel, Ezekiel now asserts that an end cometh on the whole land ; that the enemy would ra-vage every part of it. The readings adopted are necessary.

—(a) Versions.

- Upon the four corners of the land.
 3 Now "cometh" the end upon thee ;
 And I will send mine anger upon thee,
 And will judge thee according to thy ways,
 And recompense to thee all thine abominations.
 4 And mine eye shall not spare, nor will I pity ;
 But thy ways will I recompense unto thee,
 And thine abominations that have been in
 And ye shall know that I am Jehovah. [thee ;
 5 Thus saith the Lord Jehovah,
 Lo, evil cometh after evil :
 6 An end cometh, the end cometh ;
 Lo, "the end" cometh unto thee :
 7 The morning cometh upon thee ;
 O inhabitant of the land, the time cometh :
 Near is the day of tumult, and not of festive noise.
 8 Now will I soon pour my fury upon thee,
 And accomplish against thee mine anger,
 And will judge thee according to thy ways,
 And recompense to thee all thine abominations. [pity :
 9 And mine eye shall not spare, nor will I
 According to thy ways will I recompense thee, [thee ;
 And thine abominations that have been in
 And ye shall know that I Jehovah smite you.
 10 Behold the day ! behold, it cometh !
 The morning hath gone forth.
 The rod hath blossomed, pride hath flourished ; [ness.
 11 Violence hath risen up to a rod of wicked-
 None of them, neither of their multitude,
 Nor of their concourse shall remain ;
 Nor shall there be wailing for them.
 12 The time cometh, the day draweth near :
 Let not the buyer rejoice ;
 Nor let the seller lament himself :
 For hot anger is upon all the multitude thereof. [sold, 13 For the sellers shall not return to what is Although they should still be among the living.
- For the vision is against all her multitude :
 It shall not be unfulfilled, "saith Jehovah ;"
 Neither shall any one strengthen himself
 By the iniquity of his life.
 Blow ye the trumpet, and let all be ready · 14
 Yet none goeth forth to the battle ;
 For hot anger is on all the multitude thereof.
 The sword is without, and pestilence and fa- 15

 He that is in the field shall die by the sword,
 And him that is in the city, famine and pestilence shall devour. [escape,
 But those of them that are to escape, shall 16
 And be on the mountains as "moaning" doves,
 All of them groaning, each for his iniquity.
 All hands shall become feeble, 17
 And all knees shall be weak as water.
 They shall gird themselves with sackcloth, 18
 And horror shall cover them ;
 And shame shall be upon all their faces,
 And baldness upon all their heads.
 Their silver they shall cast into the streets, '9
 And their gold shall be as an unclean thing :
 Their silver and gold cannot deliver them,
 In the day of the wrath of Jehovah :
 Neither can they satisfy their appetites,
 Nor can these fill their own bowels :
 For their iniquity is their stumbling-block.
 For their beautiful ornaments they set for 20
 pride,
 And the images of their abominations,
 And their detestable things they made therewith : [thing.
 Hence I will make them as an unclean
 And I will give them into the hand of stran- 21
 gers for a prey,
 And to the wicked of the earth for a spoil,
 And they shall defile them.
 For I will turn my face from them ; 22
 And men shall defile my secret place ;
 Even robbers shall enter into it and defile it.
 Make thou a chain ; 23
 For the land is full of bloody judgment,

4. That have been in thee] The relative אשר is understood before בְּתוֹכָךְ, in thee, or in the midst of thee. By this construction the sense of the verb, 'recompense,' is transferred to this hemistich, and the two lines are parallel.

6. Lo the end cometh] I have admitted the reading of 2 MSS. in preference to the textual, as 'the end awaketh,' has no real sense, no such phrase occurring elsewhere.

7. Festive noise] The text is here doubtful. I retain the common reading, but render equivalently ; as דָּרִים is clearly in opposition with 'the day of tumult,' it must signify festive noise spread abroad, as arising from any happy occurrences.

10. The rod hath] The rod of oppression and wickedness prevailed.

11. None of them] With Jarchi I understand the former, 'their multitude,' to mean the common people, the mob ; and the latter, 'their concourse,' or as the margin renders, 'their tumultuous ones,' to signify, the better sort, the more wealthy and powerful. None of either should be free from punishment.

12. Buyer rejoice] That is, in his possession, for it will soon be taken from him ; nor the seller lament, for had he not sold, he would have been stripped of his property.

13. Shall not return] Though they should be alive at the year of Jubilee, they should not return to possess again the sold land.—By the iniquity] By his oppression, and the wealth which he acquires, he shall not escape ; nor shall he have courage to resist the enemy, as it follows in the next verse.—(a) MSS.

16. Moaning doves] So the Sept. Theodotion, and Houbigant. The cooing of the dove is plaintive, and may fitly represent the moans of the dispersed and suffering Israelites.

17. Weak as water] Jerom supposes that fear would so prevail, as to increase the natural discharge of water. Compare Gen. xlix. 4.

19. These satisfy] Their silver and their gold shall not remove the distresses of famine during the siege : because they have employed them to adorn their idols, the iniquitous causes of their fall. See verse 20, and chap. xvi. 17, xiv. 3, xlv. 12.

20. Beautiful ornaments] Jewels of gold and silver and other things made of gold and silver, they devoted to decorate their senseless idols.

23. Make thou] To denote that the people will be led away captive in chains.

- And the city is full of violence.
 24 Therefore will I bring cruel nations,
 And they shall possess their houses : [cease,
 And I will make the pride of the strong to
 And their holy places shall be defiled.
 25 Destruction cometh,
 And they shall seek peace, but find none
 26 Calamity shall come upon calamity,
 And rumour shall be upon rumour ;
 And they shall seek a vision from the prophet:
 But the law shall perish from the priest,
 And counsel from the elders.
 27 The king shall lament himself,
 And the prince shall be clothed with astonishment ; [shall be troubled.
 And the hands of the people of the land
 I will do unto them according to their way,
 And after their judgments will I judge them ;
 And they shall know that I am Jehovah.

CHAPTER VIII.

Ezekiel's vision of jealousy ; the chambers of imagery, &c.

- 1 AND it came to pass in the sixth year, in the sixth month, in the fifth day of the month, as I sat in my house, and the elders of Judah sat before me, that the hand of the 2 Lord Jehovah fell there upon me. Then I beheld, and lo, a likeness as the appearance of 'a man,' from the appearance of his loins and downward, as if fire ; and from his loins and upward, as the appearance of brightness, 3 as the colour of amber. And he put forth the form of a hand, and took me by a lock of my head ; and the spirit lifted me up between the earth and the heavens, and brought me in the visions of God to Jerusalem, to the door of the inner-gate which looketh towards the north, where was the seat of the 4 idol of jealousy.* And, lo, the glory of the God of Israel was there, according to the vision which I saw in the plain.
 5 Then said he unto me, Son of man, raise thine eyes now the way towards the north.
 So I raised mine eyes the way towards the north, and lo, northward, at the gate of the altar, this idol of jealousy in the entry. He 6 said also unto me, Son of man, seest thou what they do ? even the great abominations which the house of Israel commit here, that I should go far from my sanctuary ? but thou shalt yet again see greater abominations.

 And he brought me to the door of the court, 7 and I looked, and lo, a hole in the wall.
 Then said he unto me, Son of man, dig now 8 in the wall : and when I had digged in the wall, behold, a door. And he said unto me, 9 Go in, and see the wicked abominations, which they do here. So I went in, and saw ; 10 and lo, every form of creeping things, and of abominable beasts, and all the idols of the house of Israel, engraved upon the wall round about. And there stood up seventy 11 men of the elders of the house of Israel and Jaazaniah standing amidst those who stood before them ; and every man had his censor in his hand, and a thick cloud of incense went up. Then said he unto me, Son 12 of man hast thou, seen what the elders of the house of Israel do in the dark, every man in the chambers of his imagery ? for they say, Jehovah seeth us not ; Jehovah hath forsaken the earth.

He said also unto me, Thou shalt yet 13 again see greater abominations which these do. Then he brought me to the door of the 14 gate of Jehovah's house, which was towards the north ; and, behold, women sat there weeping for Tamuz. Then said he unto 15 me, Hast thou seen this, O son of man ?
 Thou shalt yet again see greater abominations than these. And he brought me into 16 the inner-court of Jehovah's house, and behold, at the door of the temple of Jehovah, between the porch and the altar, were about five and twenty men, with their backs towards the temple of Jehovah, and their faces eastward : and they bowed eastward to the sun.

24. Of the strong] The Sept. read כֹּחַ, their strength, of which Secker approved, and supposed the temple to be meant ; but none of the other versions support this reading. It would, however, afford a better parallelism.

26. Seek a vision] Seek to know how long these calamities shall continue. Distress shall lead them to consult the prophets, whose messages they had despised.

CHAP. VIII. 2. Appearance of a man] This reading is admitted, because of what follows his loins. To talk of his loins, when nothing but the appearance of fire had been mentioned, is assuredly incongruous.—(v) Septuagint.

3. Visions of God] By mental representation : for it seems most probable that every thing to chap. xi. 24, passed while the prophet was in a trance. Chap. xi. 25, Ezekiel relates his vision to the elders who sat before him.—Idol of jealousy] What was the form of this idol we are not informed. Lightfoot thinks it was Molech ; and Jerom, Baal. Comp. Deut. xxxii. 21, and 2 Chron. xxxvi. 14.—(o) Which maketh jealousy] Versions.

5. Gate of the altar] Probably so called from the time of Ahaz ; who placed the brazen altar to the north of the altar built according to the model of that which he had seen at Damascus, 2 Kings xvi. 14.

6. That I should] The text is ambiguous, and may be rendered 'so as to go far from my sanctuary : ' and thus rendered, it signifies that the Israelites should be dispersed. Comp. Jerom. xii. 7.

8. Dig now in the wall] That is to make the hole larger, that he might see into the apartments of the Levites, and observe the objects which they were worshipping.

10—12. Of creeping things] In these verses we have a description of the worship of Egypt. In that country the people worshipped beasts, birds, and various kinds of reptiles.

14. Weeping for Tamuz] He was the same as the Greeks and Latins called Adonis, the paramour of Venus. The Adonia, or feasts in honour of Adonis, were observed with the most impure rites, which Milton has described. Par. Lost, i. 453.

16. Between the porch] That is, the porch to the east of the outer court, and the altar of burnt-offerings. Compare 1 Kings vi. 3, and Joel ii. 7.—Backs towards the temple] This expressed their contempt of Jehovah.

- 17 Then he said unto me, Hast thou seen this, O son of man? Is it a light thing to the house of Judah, that they commit the abominations which they commit here? For they have filled the land with violence, and have repeatedly provoked me to anger; and lo, they send forth a scornful noise through their nostrils. Therefore will I act in fury: mine eye shall not spare, nor will I have pity: and though they cry in mine ears with a loud voice, yet will I not hear them.

CHAPTER IX.

A pious remnant to be preserved; the rest to be destroyed for their wickedness.

- 1 HE cried also in mine ears, with a loud voice, saying, Draw near, ye that have charge over the city, even every man with his destroying weapon in his hand. And behold, six men came from the way of the higher-gate, which looketh towards the north, and every man his slaughter-weapon in his hand; and one man among them was clothed with linen, with a writer's inkhorn by his side: and they went in, and stood beside the brazen altar. And the glory of the God of Israel went up from the cherub, upon which it was, to the threshold of the house. And he called to the man clothed with linen, who had the writer's inkhorn by his side; And Jehovah said unto him, Go through the midst of the city, through the midst of Jerusalem, and set a mark upon the foreheads of the men that sigh and that cry out, for all the abominations that are done in the midst thereof.
- 2 And to the others he said in my hearing, Go ye after him through the city, and smite: let not your eye spare, nor have ye pity: Slay utterly old and young, and virgins and little children and women: but come not near any one upon whom is the mark; and begin at my sanctuary. Then they began at the elders who were before the house. And he said unto them, Pollute the house, and fill the courts with the slain: go ye forth. And they went forth, and slew in the city. And it came to pass, while they were smiting them, that I was left, and I fell upon my face, and cried, and said, Ah! Lord Jehovah! wilt thou destroy all the residue of Israel, in pouring out thy fury upon Jerusalem? Then said he unto me, The iniquity of the house of Israel and Judah is exceedingly great, and the land is full of blood, and the city full of perverseness: for they say, Jehovah hath forsaken the earth; and Jehovah seeth not. Therefore, as for me, mine eye shall not spare, nor will I have pity, but I will recompense their way upon their head. And behold, the man clothed with linen, who had the inkhorn by his side, returned answer, saying, I have done as thou didst command me.

CHAPTER X.

The vision of the coals of fire to be scattered over the city; and the vision of the cherubs.

THEN I looked, and lo, in the expanse which was above the head of the cherubs, there appeared over them as it were a sapphire-stone, as the appearance of the likeness of a throne. And Jehovah spoke unto the man clothed with linen, and said, Go in between the wheels which are under the cherub, and fill thy hands with coals of fire from between the cherubs and scatter them over the city. And he went in before mine eyes. (Now the cherubs stood on the right side of the house, when the man went in; and the cloud filled the inner-court. And the glory of Jehovah had gone up from the cherub, over the threshold of the house; and the house was filled with the cloud, and the court was full of the brightness of Jehovah's glory. And the sound of the cherub's wings was heard even to the outer-court, as the voice of the Almighty God

17. Provoked me] By their transgressions and abominable idolatries; and hence the measure of their punishment was to be complete.

CHAP. IX. 1. He cried also] That is, God who had hitherto spoken to him. Compare ch. viii. 4.—Draw near] In the vision the prophet saw some as having the charge of the city, and six of these came forth to destroy; these represented the Babylonians.

2. Inkhorn by] According to Shaw, the people of the east wear it suspended from the girdle. This person was 'clothed with linen,' the dress of the priests, Levit. vi. 3. In the same dress the angel appeared to Daniel, chap. x. 5; xii. 6, 7.

3. The cherub] The prophet in the vision was in 'the most holy place, where the glory of God resided over the mercy seat, upon the cherubs. These are represented as his chariot, and from above them the glory ascended, chap. x. 2, 4.

4. And set a mark] The Jews have wearied themselves to find out what this mark was. Whatever it was, it was designed to denote their preservation and safety.

6. Slay utterly old] All those who are without the mark, and who of course were impenitent.

8. Ah! Lord Jehovah] The sight of the slaughter affected the prophet, and he was afraid that the whole of his people would be cut off. Jehovah replies that the greatness of their wickedness had brought this upon them; but to comfort him, the person commissioned to mark the pious, returned, and stated that he had done as commanded.

CHAP. X. 2. Under the cherub] Compare ch. ix. 3, and Ps. xviii. 11. The wheels were below the cherubs, and the firmament was above them.—Scatter them over the city] This was to signify that Jerusalem should be burnt by the Chaldeans.

3. The right side] The right side is the south: for the east is the front, or forepart, according to the Hebrews. The cherubs had moved from the situation mentioned, ch. viii. 3, 4.

5. As the voice of the Almighty] Michaelis supposed that thunder was intended. Compare Ps. xxix. 3—9. So also Symmachus and Theodotion explained.

6 when he speaketh.) And it came to pass, when he commanded the man clothed with linen, saying, Take fire from between the wheels, from between the cherubs; then he 7 went in, and stood beside the wheels. And one cherub stretched forth his hand from between the cherubs to the fire that was between the cherubs, and took thereof, and put into the hands of him that was clothed with linen; who took it, and went out.
 8 And the cherubs appeared to have the form of a man's hand under their wings.
 9 And when I looked, behold, the four wheels by the cherubs, one wheel by one cherub, and another wheel by another cherub: and the appearance of the wheels was as the colour of a beryl stone. And as for their appearances, they four had one likeness; as if a wheel had been in the midst of a 11 wheel. When they went, they went upon their four sides; they turned not about when they went; but to the place whither the head looked, to that they went; they 12 turned not about when they went. And their whole body, and their backs, and their hands, and their wings, and the wheels, were full of eyes round about, even their 13 four wheels. As for the wheels, one cried unto them in my hearing, 'O wheel.' And every one had four faces: the first face was the face of an ox, and the second face was the face of a man, and the third the face of a lion, and the fourth the face of an 15 eagle. And the cherubs were lifted up. (These are the animals which I saw by the 16 river Chebar.) And when the cherubs went the wheels went by them: and when the cherubs lifted up their wings, to mount up from the earth, the wheels also turned not 17 from beside them. When they stood, these stood; and when they were lifted up these were lifted up also: for the spirit of the 18 animals was in them. Then the glory of Jehovah departed from off the threshold of the house, and stood over the cherubs.
 19 And the cherubs raised their wings, and mounted up from the earth, before mine eyes: when they went out, the wheels also were beside them, and they stood at the door of the east gate of Jehovah's house; and the glory of the God of Israel was over them above. These are the animals which I saw under the God of Israel by the river Chebar: and I knew that they were cherubs. Every one had four faces apiece, and every one four wings; and the likeness of the hands of a man was under their wings. And as for the likeness of their faces they were the faces which I saw by the river Chebar, their appearances and themselves: they went every one straight forward.

CHAPTER XI.

The presumption of the princes of Israel, and their punishment; the mercy designed for those already gone into captivity.

MOREOVER the spirit raised me up, and I brought me unto the east gate of Jehovah's house, which looketh eastward: and behold, at the door of the gate five and twenty men; among whom I saw Jaazaniah, the son of Azur, and Pelatiah, the son of Benaiah, princes of the people. Then said he unto me, Son of man, these are the men that devise iniquity, and give wicked counsel in this city: Who say, It is not near; let us build houses: this city is the caldron, and we are the flesh. Therefore prophesy against them, prophesy, O son of man. And the spirit of Jehovah fell upon me, and said unto me, Speak; Thus saith Jehovah; Thus have ye said, O house of Israel: for I know the things that come into your mind, every one of them. Ye have multiplied your slain in this city, and ye have filled the streets thereof with the slain. Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah, your slain whom ye have laid in the midst of it, they are the flesh, and this city is the caldron: but I will bring you forth out of the midst of it. Ye have feared the sword; and I will bring a sword upon you, saith the Lord Jehovah. And I will bring you forth out of the midst thereof, and will deliver you into the hands of strangers, and will execute judgments upon you. Ye shall fall by the sword; on 10

8. And the cherubs] The common text is here unquestionably erroneous. That of the Sept. and Syr. versions is followed.

13. O wheel] The wheels were animated, therefore addressed; because capable of obeying the great chariot-eer, ch. i. 20.

14. Face of an ox] This must be intended by כרוב here, as is clear from ch. i. 10. Houbigant suspected that the term had been inserted by mistake for בקר.

20. And I knew] Either from having heard or read of those which were in the most holy place, or from some divine communication.

22. Their appearances and themselves] They were not only the same in appearance, but they were the same in reality.

CHAP. XI. 1. Twenty-five men] That these were persons of rank and authority is evident from the next verse.

3. It is not near] That is, the time when Jerusalem shall be destroyed; let us therefore repair and rebuild its decayed houses; for 'this city shall be the caldron, &c.' that is, we will share all fates with it; we will either be preserved or perish with it. This metaphor is taken from the manner of preparing the Jewish sacrifices. 1 Sam. ii. 13, 14.

5. Thus have ye said] Ye have advanced the assertion mentioned, ver. 3. 'You have rightly said what you say: The city is the caldron, and we are the flesh,' shall be fulfilled, but not as you understand it. Many of you will perish in the city. For those it will be the caldron, and they will be the flesh boiled in it. But yourselves shall not be the flesh in the caldron: but you shall be taken out, and elsewhere cut in pieces.

7—12. I will bring you forth] How exactly this was fulfilled we learn from Jer. lii. 27.

the border of Israel I will judge you; and 11 ye shall know that I am Jehovah. 'This city shall not be your caldron, nor shall ye be the flesh in the midst thereof; on the 12 border of Israel I will judge you; And ye shall know that I am Jehovah; because ye have not walked according to my statutes, nor have executed my judgments, but have done according to the manner of the nations which are round about you.
 13 And it came to pass, when I prophesied, that Pelatiah, the son of Benaiah, died. Then I fell down upon my face, and cried with a loud voice, and said, Ah, Lord Jehovah!
 wilt thou make a full end of the residue
 14 of Israel? And the word of Jehovah 15 came unto me, saying, Son of man, "thy brethren, 'thy fellow-captives'" and all the house of Israel universally, are they to whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said, Remove ye far from Jehovah: unto 16 us is this land given in possession. Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Although I have cast them far off among the nations, and although I have scattered them among the countries, yet will I be to them for a little while a sanctuary in the countries whither they are come.
 17 Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah, I will even gather you from the people, and assemble you out of the countries where ye have been scattered, and I 18 will give you the land of Israel. And they shall come thither, and shall take away thence all the detestable things thereof, and 19 all the abominations thereof. And I will give them one heart, and a new spirit I will put within "them"; and I will take away the heart of stone from their flesh, and will 20 give them a heart of flesh: That they may walk according to my statutes, and keep mine ordinances, and do them; and they shall be my people, and I will be their God.
 21 But as for those whose heart goeth after 'all" their detestable things and their abominations, I will recompense their way upon their own heads, saith the Lord Jehovah.

Then the cherubs raised their wings, and 22
 the wheels were beside them; and the glory of the God of Israel was over them above.
 And the glory of Jehovah went up from the 23 midst of the city, and stood upon the mount which is by the east side of the city. And 24 the spirit took me up, and brought me into Chaldea, to those of the captivity, in a vision by the spirit of God. And the vision which I had seen went up from me. Then 25
 I spoke unto them of the captivity all the things which Jehovah had showed me.

CHAPTER XII.

The prophet representeth the captivity of Zedekiah; his eating and drinking with fear and trembling, sheweth the desolation of the Jews.

THE word of Jehovah also came unto 1 me, saying, Son of man, thou dwellest in 2 the midst of a rebellious house; they have eyes to see, and see not; they have ears to hear, and hear not: for they are a rebellious house. Therefore, thou son of man, 3 prepare thyself utensils for removing, and remove by day in their sight; and thou shalt remove from thy place to another place before their eyes; it may be they will consider, though they be a rebellious house.
 Then shalt thou carry forth thy utensils as 4 utensils for removing before their eyes; and thou shalt carry forth in the evening before their eyes, as they carry forth who go into captivity. Dig thou through the wall before 5 their eyes, and carry forth thereby. Before 6 their eyes shalt thou bear the utensils upon thy shoulders; in the twilight thou shalt carry forth; thou shalt cover thy face and shalt not see the ground: for I have made thee a sign unto the house of Israel. And 7 I did so, as I was commanded: I carried forth my utensils, by day, as utensils for

13. When I prophesied] When he appeared to himself to prophecy, he beheld Pelatiah expire, as an instance of what God would do to the rest.

15. Remove ye far from] They of Jerusalem reproach those who had surrendered themselves with Jeconiah, and were now in captivity, as if they had willingly removed from Jehovah; they even boast as if they were better, because they possessed the land.—(v) Thy brethren Sept.
 MSS. (v) Sept. Syr.

16. For a little while a sanctuary] Jehovah promises that he would be to those captives as a sanctuary, that is, a refuge and protection.

17—20. I will assemble you] These promises were designed to support the hope of the righteous.

19. (v) Vers. MSS.

21. After all their] I read with Houbigant, Dimock, and others לֵב for בָּל, as nothing is more certain than that this is the true reading.—(v) Vulg.

23. On the mount] On the mount of Olives, 2 Sam. xvi.
 36. Zech. xiv. 14. When the glory of Jehovah left the temple, it seemed to abide on that mount; and from this it was the opinion of the Jews, that the Messiah would frequent that mount, as we find he actually did, Luke xxi.

37; xxii. 39. As this glory of Jehovah departed to this mount, after having denounced the destruction of the temple and city, so Christ from the same mount denounced a like destruction, Luke xix. 37; xli. 44.

CHAP. XII. 2. Dwellest in the midst] He was among them of the captivity in Chaldea; and these seem to have disbelieved the prophecies that Jerusalem should be smitten and burnt, and its inhabitants scattered abroad, ch. iv. 2;
 ix. 5.

3. Utensils for removing] Whatever was necessary for a long journey. They not only took provision, but every thing requisite for cooking, sleeping, &c.—Removing by day] This represented that the greater part of the Jews would be openly sent away captives; while 'removing by night and digging through the wall,' represented Zedekiah and his soldiers as endeavouring secretly to escape. Compare 2 Kings xxv. 4, and ver. 11, 12.

6. Made thee a sign] A type and figure of what should actually happen. See ver. 12. Covering the face was a token of shame and grief.

7. And I did so] This repetition is in the true spirit of the ancients.

removing; and in the evening I digged through the wall with my hand; I carried forth in the twilight, I bore upon my shoulder before their eyes.

- 8 And in the morning came the word of 9 Jehovah unto me, saying, Son of man, hath not the house of Israel, the rebellious house,
10 said unto thee, What doest thou? Say thou unto them, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah, This heavy prediction is against the prince, against Jerusalem, and the whole house of Israel that are in the midst 'there-11 of." Say, I am your sign: like as I have done, so shall it be done unto them: they shall remove, they shall go into captivity.
12 And the prince that is among them shall bear upon his shoulder, in the twilight 'he shall dig," he shall carry forth through the wall to carry out thereby; he shall cover his face, that he see not the ground with 13 his eyes. I will also spread my net upon him, and he shall be taken in my snare, and I will bring him to Babylon to the land of the Chaldeans; yet shall he not see it,
14 though he shall die there. And all that are about him to help him, and all his bands, will I scatter towards every wind; and I will draw 15 out a sword after them. And they shall know that I am Jehovah, when I shall scatter them among the nations, and dis-
16 perse them in the countries. But I will leave a few of them from the sword, from the famine, and from the pestilence; that they may declare all their abominations among the nations whither they come; and they shall know that I am Jehovah.
17 Moreover the word of Jehovah came to 18 me, saying, Son of man, eat thy bread with quaking, and drink thy water with trem-
19 bling and with anxiety; And say unto the people of the land, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah, concerning the inhabitants of Jerusalem, in the land of Israel; They shall eat their bread with anxiety, and drink their water with astonishment, that their land may be desolate from all that is therein, because of the violence of those that dwell therein. And the inhabited cities shall be 20 laid waste, and the land shall become a desolation; and ye shall know that I am Jehovah.

And the word of Jehovah came unto me, 21 saying, Son of man, what is that proverb 22 that ye have concerning the land of Israel, saying, The days are prolonged, and every vision faileth? Therefore say unto them, 23 Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; I will make this proverb to cease, and they shall no more use it as a proverb in Israel; but say unto them, the days draw near, and the fulfilment of every vision. For there shall 24 be no more any vain vision nor flattering divination within the house of Israel. For 25 I am Jehovah, I will speak the word, and when I speak it shall come to pass; it shall be no more prolonged: for in your days, O rebellious house, will I speak the word, and will perform it, saith the Lord Jehovah.

Moreover the word of Jehovah came to 26 me, saying, Son of man, behold, the house of Israel say, The vision which he seeth is for many days to come, and he prophesieth of times afar off. Therefore say unto them, 28 Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; There shall none of my words be prolonged any more, but the word which I shall speak, shall be performed, saith the Lord Jehovah.

CHAPTER XIII.

Reproof of the false prophets, and of the flattering prophetesses.

THE word of Jehovah also came unto 1 me, saying, Son of man, prophesy against 2 the prophets of Israel that prophesy, and say thou unto them that prophesy out of their own hearts, Hear ye the word of Jehovah; 3 Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Wo unto the foolish prophets, that follow their own spirit, and have seen nothing! O Israel, 4 thy prophets are like the jackals among ruined places. Ye have not gone up into 5 the breaches, nor made up the wall for the house of Israel to stand in the battle, in the day of Jehovah. They have seen vanity 6

9. Hath not the? That is, I know that they have said, 'What doest thou.'

10. (v) Sept.

12. He shall dig] Compare Jerem. xxxix. 4; lli. 7. Michaelis conjectures that the gate through which the king fled, might have been walled up during the siege.—Cover his face] Agreeably to the custom of the Israelites, 2 Sam. xv. 30.—(v) Sept. Syr. Arab.

13. He shall not see it] This singular prediction was fulfilled; for his eyes were put out at Riblah, 2 Kings xxv. 7.

16. That they may declare] That they may confess that the judgments inflicted were deserved, on account of all their abominations.

17—20. The word of Jehovah] The action of the prophet was to denote the distress that would come upon all the country.

22. The days are prolonged] That is, God is wont to exercise forbearance; he will not immediately punish. God answers that what he said should speedily be accomplished.

26—28. The word of] In the paragraph 21—25, there is a reference to the visions of all the prophets; but these verses refer particularly to those of Ezekiel.

CHAP. XIII. 2. Out of their own hearts] Those who were not inspired nor sent of God. Compare Nehem. vi. 8. 'Thou feignest this from thy own heart.'

4. Among ruined places] The jackal, as well as the common fox, frequents ruined places, and makes his haunt there. As the jackals enter the vineyards and gardens, and feed on the produce, so these false prophets destroyed by their lies the people, called God's vineyard, Jerem. xii. 10.

5. Into the breaches] A metaphor taken from a besieged place, in whose wall breaches had been made. These prophets had not sought the safety of the people, by exhorting them to amend their ways and turn to Jehovah.

and lying divination, saying, Jehovah saith; whereas Jehovah hath not sent them; yet they even hope that their word shall be established.

- 7 Have ye not seen a vain vision, and have ye not spoken a lying divination, whereas ye say, Jehovah speaketh, although I have not spoken? Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Because ye have spoken vanity, and seen lies, therefore, behold, I am against you, saith the Lord Jehovah. And my hand shall be against the prophets that see vanity, and that divine a lie: they shall not be in the assembly of my people, neither shall they be written in the record of the house of Israel, nor shall they enter into the land of Israel; and ye shall know that I am the Lord Jehovah. Because, even because they have seduced my people, saying, Peace; and there was no peace; and one built up a wall, and, lo, others daubed it with untempered mortar: Say unto them who daub it with untempered mortar, that it shall fall: there shall be an overflowing shower; and ye, O great hail-stones, shall fall; and a stormy wind shall rend it. Lo, when the wall is fallen, shall it not be said unto you, Where is the daubing wherewith ye have daubed it? Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah; I will even rend it with a stormy wind in my fury; and there shall be an overflowing shower in mine anger, and great hailstones in my fury, to make a full end of it. Thus will I break down the wall that ye have daubed with untempered mortar, and will bring it down to the ground, so that the foundation thereof shall be discovered; and it shall fall, and ye shall be consumed in the midst thereof: and ye shall know that I am Jehovah. Thus will I accomplish my wrath upon the wall, and upon them that have daubed it with untempered mortar; and I will say unto them, The wall is no more, neither they that daubed it; Even the prophets of Israel who prophesy concerning Jerusalem, and who see visions of peace for her, and there is no peace, saith the Lord Jehovah.

9. In the assembly of] That is, they shall perish, and shall have no posterity enrolled in the genealogical tables.

10. One built up] They built up Jerusalem for their defence. Michaelis renders יָבִיט a wall of loose stones, which the false prophets daubed with unprepared mortar.

11. Overflowing shower] These terms express the judgments which were coming upon them by the Chaldeans. They should come like an overwhelming tempest.

15. Upon the wall] Upon Jerusalem, and upon her false prophets. The next verse explains the metaphor, 16-17.

17. Set thy face] This denotes to apply oneself to any thing involving both the exercise of the mind and the body, 2 Kings xii. 18. Jerem. xlii. 15-17. Luke ix. 51-53.—Daughters] Because some women were inspired, as Deborah, Hannah, and Huldah; others arrogated this honour to themselves, against whom the prophet was to denounce the divine judgments.

Likewise, thou son of man, set thy face 17 against the daughters of thy people, who prophesy out of their own heart; and prophesy thou against them, And say, Thus 18 saith the Lord Jehovah; Wo to the women who apply cushions to all arm-holes, and make coverings upon the head of every stature, to hunt souls! Will ye hunt the souls of my people, and will ye save alive the souls that listen to you? And will ye pollute me 19 among my people for handfuls of barley and for pieces of bread; to slay the souls that should not die, and to save the souls alive that should not live, by your lying to my people that hearken to a lie? Therefore 20 thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Lo, I am against your cushions with which ye there hunt souls and ensnare them; and I will tear them from your arms, and will let go the souls, even the souls that ye hunt and ensnare. Your coverings also will I tear, 21 and deliver my people out of your hand, and they shall be no more in your hand to be hunted; and ye shall know that I am Jehovah. Because ye have grieved the 22 heart of the righteous by falsehood, whom I have not grieved; and strengthened the hands of the wicked, that he should not return from his evil way, that I should save his life: Therefore ye shall no more see 23 vanity, nor divine divinations: for I will deliver my people out of your hand: and ye shall know that I am Jehovah.

CHAPTER XIV.

The hypocrisy of many exposed, and the calamities which should come upon them.

THEN some of the elders of Israel came 1 unto me, and sat before me. And the 2 word of Jehovah came unto me, saying, Son of man, these men have set up their 3 idols in their heart, and put the stumbling-block of their iniquity before their face: should I be inquired of at all by them? Therefore speak unto them, and say unto 4 them, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Every man of the house of Israel that setteth up his idols in his heart, and putteth the stum-

18. Apply cushions] This was both literally and figuratively true. They taught persons to recline at ease on their couches, and to partake of banquets; they soothed, and made them very easy to their own ruin.—To hunt souls] To destroy men, to expose them to God's vengeance by lulling them into security. Compare 1 Sam. xxiv. 12.—That listen to you] There seems to be an opposition between the souls which they hunted, the persons whom they sought to destroy, and those to whom they promised life, such as hearkened unto them.

19. Handfuls of barley] For the least possible reward they prophesied peace to the wicked, and denounced judgments on the righteous.

22. Grieved the heart] This and the next verse illustrate and explain the preceding.

CHAP. XIV. 3. Set up their] They are not only strongly inclined to idols, but have actually placed them in their houses before their face, in order to worship them.

bling-block of his iniquity before his face, and cometh to the prophet, I, Jehovah, will answer him that cometh according to the multitude of his idols ; That the house of Israel may be taken by their own heart, because they are all estranged from me, through their idols.

Therefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; Repent, and turn from your idols, and turn away your faces from all your abominations. Forevery man of the house of Israel, or of the stranger that sojourneth in Israel, who separateth himself from me, and setteth up his idols in his heart, and putteth the stumbling-block of his iniquity before his face, and cometh to a prophet to inquire of him concerning me ; I, Jehovah, will myself answer him : And I will set my face against that man, and will make him a sign and a proverb ; and I will cut him off from the midst of my people ; and ye shall know that I am Jehovah. And when a prophet is deceived as to the thing of which he hath spoken, I, Jehovah, have permitted that prophet to be deceived ; and I will stretch out my hand against him, and will destroy him from the midst of my people Israel. And they shall bear the punishment of their iniquity ; the punishment of the prophet's iniquity shall be even as the punishment of his iniquity that seeketh unto him ; That the house of Israel may go no more astray from me, neither be polluted any more with all their transgressions ; but that they may be my people, and I may be their God, saith the Lord Jehovah.

The word of Jehovah also came to me, saying, Son of man, when a land sinneth against me by trespassing grievously, and I shall stretch out my hand upon it, and shall break the staff of the bread thereof, and shall send famine upon it, and shall cut off from it man and beast : Though these three men were in it, Noah, Daniel, and Job, they should but deliver their own souls by their righteousness, saith the Lord

Jehovah. If I cause noisome beasts to pass through a land, and they spoil it, and it be desolate, so that no man passeth through because of the beasts : Though these three men were in it, as I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, they should deliver neither sons nor daughters ; they only should be delivered, but the land should be desolate. Or if I bring a sword upon that land, and say, Sword, pass through the land ; so that I cut off from it man and beast : Though these three men were in it, as I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, they should deliver neither sons nor daughters, but they only should be delivered. Or if I send a pestilence into that land, and pour out my fury upon it in blood, to cut off from it man and beast : Though Noah, Daniel, and Job were in it, as I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, they should deliver neither son nor daughter ; they should but deliver their own souls by their righteousness. Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; How much more when I send my four grievous judgments against Jerusalem, the sword, and the famine, and the noisome beast, and the pestilence, to cut off from it man and beast ? Yet, behold, there- in shall be left a remnant that shall be brought forth, both sons and daughters : lo, they shall come forth unto you, and ye shall see their way and their doings : and ye shall be comforted concerning the evil which I have brought upon Jerusalem, even concerning all that I have brought upon her. And they shall comfort you, when ye see their way and their doings : and ye shall know that I have not done without cause all that I have done against her, saith the Lord Jehovah.

CHAPTER XV.

By the unfitness of the vine-branch for any work, is shown the rejection of Jerusalem.

THE word of Jehovah also came unto me, saying, Son of man, What is vine-wood better than the wood of a branch which is

4. According to the] I will answer him as such an idolater deserves to be answered.

5. That the house] May be caught or surprised in their own consciences, when they know that I am acquainted with all their secret crimes and idolatries.

6. Turn your faces] That is, from those stumbling-blocks of their iniquity, which they had put before their faces, verse 3.

7. Every man] Whether among the captives, or of those who yet remained in their own land, whether native Israelites, or one of those proselyted to them ; God would deal with such a man as it follows.

9. And when a prophet] A false prophet, who, influenced by the hope of gain, promised to the wicked peace and safety, which God in his providence permitted as a punishment, as it is explained in what follows.

12-14. The word of Jehovah] When the inhabitants of a land have filled up the measure of their iniquities, the few righteous shall not deliver it ; no, not such men as Noah, Daniel, and Job.

19. Upon it in blood] According to Grotius, this signifies every kind of immature death.

21. How much more] If it is just with respect to other countries, that the good alone should escape punishment ; how much more with respect to Jerusalem, after such repeated instructions and admonitions ?

22. Be comforted] When ye see their spirit and conduct, or when ye learn it by their confession of their past idolatries, ye shall be comforted with the thought that I have spared any ; for ye shall know that I have not thus dealt with them without cause.

CHAP. XV. 2-5. Son of man] Ezekiel foretells the subversion of Jerusalem, by a great variety of similitudes, as by drawing the picture of a siege, chap. iv. ; by shaving off his hair, and cutting one part of it to pieces, and burning another, chap. v. ; by the caldron in which flesh was boiled, chap. xi. ; by providing ' utensils for removing,' chap. xii., and here by ' the wood of the vine.'—What is the vine wood] The vine is the noblest of all trees, as long as it brings forth fruit ; but if it is

- 3 among the trees of the forest? Shall wood be taken of it to make any work? or will men take a pin of it to hang any vessel thereon? Behold, it is cast into the fire for fuel; the fire devoureth both the ends of it, and the midst of it is burned. Is it proper for any work? Behold, when it is whole, it is made into no work: how much less when the fire hath devoured it, and it is burnt, shall it be made into any work?
- 6 Thus therefore saith the Lord Jehovah; As the wood of the vine among the trees of the forest, which I have given to the fire for fuel, so will I give the inhabitants of Jerusalem. And I will set my face against them; they shall go out from one fire, and another fire shall devour them; and ye shall know that I am Jehovah, when I set my face against them. And I will make the land desolate, because they have grievously trespassed, saith the Lord Jehovah.

CHAPTER XVI.

Under the emblem of an exposed female infant, which a good man finds, nurses, educates, and at length marries, but whose kindness is requited by ingratitude, and the most shameful unfaithfulness, is shown the sin of Israel, and the love of God.

- 1 THE word of Jehovah also came unto me, saying, Son of man, cause Jerusalem to know her abominations, And say, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah unto Jerusalem; Thy origin and thy nativity is of the land of Canaan; thy father was an Amorite, and thy mother an Hethite. And as for thy nativity, in the day when thou wast born thy naval was not cut, neither wast thou washed in water to cleanse thee; thou wast not salted at all, nor swaddled at all. No eye pitied thee, to do any of these things unto thee, and to have compassion on thee; but thou wast cast out in the open field, to the loathing of thy life, on the day in which thou wast born. And when I passed by thee, and saw thee polluted in thine own blood, I said unto thee when thou wast in thy blood, Live, yea, I said unto thee when thou wast in thy blood, Live. I have caused thee to increase as the growth of the field, and thou didst increase, and grew great, and thou becamest most excellent; thy breasts were formed, and thy hair grew, whereas thou wast naked and bare. But I then passed by thee, and saw thee, and lo, thy time was a time of love; for I spread my skirt over thee, and covered thy nakedness: yea, I swore unto thee, and entered into a covenant with thee, saith the Lord Jehovah, and thou becamest mine. Then I washed thee with water; yea, I thoroughly washed away thy blood from thee, and I anointed thee with oil; And clothed thee with broidered work, and shod thee with seal-skin, and wrapped thee about with fine linen, and covered thee with silk, And adorned thee with ornaments, and put bracelets upon thy hands, and a chain on thy neck. And I put a jewel in thy nostrils, 12 and ear-rings in thine ears, and a beautiful crown upon thy head. Thus wast thou adorned with gold and silver; and thy raiment was of fine linen, and of silk, and of broidered work; fine flour, and honey, and oil, didst thou eat: and thou wast exceedingly beautiful, and thou didst prosper into a queen. And thy renown went forth 14 among the nations for thy beauty; for it was perfect through the comeliness which I had put upon thee, saith the Lord Jehovah.

But thou hast trusted in thy beauty, and didst play the harlot because of thy renown, and gavest up thyself to thy harlotries with every one that passed by, which should not have been done. Thou hast also taken of thy garments and hast decked thy high-places with divers colours, and played the harlot thereupon, whither thou shouldst not have come, nor should this have been done. Thou hast also taken thy goodly jewels of my gold and of my silver, which I cut down, its soft wood cannot be worked.—It is only fit for fuel.

6—8. Appointed for the fire] Here we have the application of the similitude. The inhabitants of Jerusalem became as an unfruitful vine, and like it appointed to be consumed; so that if they escaped one fire, yet they should fall into another.

CHAP. XVI. 3. Thy origin] Literally, 'thy diggings.' Compare Isa. li. 1, for a similar metaphor.—Of Canaan] Thou art so corrupt, that it would suppose thee descended from the Canaanites, and not from holy Abraham. It is usual in scripture, to call those the sons of such whose practices they imitated, Matt. iii. 7; xxiii. 33; John viii. 44.

4. Thy naval was not cut] The Chaldee paraphrast refers this to the state of Israel in Egypt, where they were exposed to danger, and ready to perish, &c.—Not salted] From this it appears that it was then usual to lave newborn children in water in which salt was dissolved; and Galen asserts that salt rendered the skin of the infant harder. The next verse shows the wretched condition of this outcast.

5. Loathing of thy life] Life in such a state was not desirable. Some render person, and others soul. The term נפש may be used for the pronoun.

6. I said unto thee, Live] Some omit the repetition of this clause, on the authority of some versions. Others regard it as more emphatical.

7. As the growth of the field] Their increase in Egypt was very great; and to this the prophet refers.

8. Was a time of love] God visited them in Egypt, and displayed the richest love and kindness towards them. He delivered them, and at Horeb entered into covenant with them, so that they became his acknowledged and professed people.

9—14. Then I washed thee] These verses represent the people of Israel, as a lady decked in all the usual ornaments, Isa. iii. 21, &c.

15. Which should not] The Sept. Alex. and Chald. are followed, which give a sense the most suitable.

16. Whither thou shouldst] Again the Sept. is followed, with which the Syr. agrees.

17. Images of men] Thus showing the most shameful profligacy. See note, Hosea ix. 10.

gave thee, and hast made to thyself images of men, and hast played the harlot with 18 them; And thou hast taken thy broidered garments, and covered them; and hast set 19 mine oil and mine incense before them. My food also which I gave thee, fine flour, and oil, and honey, wherewith I fed thee, thou hast even set these before them for a sweet savour. And it hath come to pass, saith the 20 Lord Jehovah, That thou hast taken thy sons and thy daughters, whom thou hast born unto me, and these hast thou sacrificed unto them to be devoured. Are these thy 21 harlotries a small matter, That thou hast slain my children; and hast delivered them up to cause them to pass through the fire unto 22 them? Also in all thine abominations and thy harlotries thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, when thou wast naked and bare, 23 and wast wallowing in thy blood. And it came to pass after all thy wickedness, (wo, 24 wo, unto thee! saith the Lord Jehovah.) That thou hast also built unto thee an arched place, and hast made thee a raised place in 25 every street. Thou hast built thy raised place at every head of the way, and hast made thy beauty to be abhorred, and hast admitted every passenger to cohabit with thee, and hast multiplied thy harlotries.
26 Thou hast also played the harlot with the Egyptians, thy neighbours, great of flesh; and hast multiplied thy harlotries, to pro-
27 voke me to anger. Therefore, behold, I stretched out my hand against thee, and diminished thine appointed portion, and delivered thee unto the will of those that hated thee, the daughters of the Philistines who were 28 ashamed of thy wicked way. Thou hast played the harlot also with the Assyrians, without being satisfied; yea, thou hast played the harlot with them, and yet thou couldest not be 29 satisfied. Thou hast moreover multiplied thy harlotries in the land of Canaan unto Chaldea; and yet thou wast not satisfied 30 therewith. How weak is thy heart, saith the Lord Jehovah, in that thou doest all these things, the work of a woman playing the harlot, and bearing rule: In that thou 31 buildest thine arched place at the head of every way, and makest thy raised place in every street; and hast not been as one playing the harlot, in that thou scornest hire; But as a wife that committeth adultery, who 32 taketh strangers instead of her husband! To 33 all harlots men give a reward; but thou hast given thy rewards to all thy lovers, and hast hired them, that they may come unto thee on every side for thy harlotries, And 31 the contrary is in thee from other women in thy harlotries, and after thy manner none playeth the harlot; in that thou givest a reward and no reward is given unto thee; therefore thou art contrary.

Wherefore, O harlot, hear the word of 35 Jehovah: Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; 36 Because thou gavest thyself to impurity, and thy nakedness was discovered in thy harlotries with thy lovers, and with all thine abominable idols, and in the blood of thy children, whom thou hast given unto them: Therefore, behold, I will assemble all thy 37 lovers, to whom thou hast been pleasing, and all those whom thou hast loved, with all those whom thou hast hated; I will even assemble them unto thee round about, and will uncover thy nakedness unto them, that they may see all thy nakedness. And I 38 will judge thee with the judgments of adulteresses, and of them that shed blood; and I will give thee to drink the blood of fury and of jealousy. And I will also give thee 39 into their hand, and they shall destroy thine arched place, and shall cast down thy raised places: they shall also strip thee of thy raiment, and shall take thy goodly jewels, and shall leave thee naked and bare. They 40 shall also cause a company to come up against thee, and they shall stone thee with stones, and cleave thee asunder with their swords. And they shall burn thy 41

19, 20, And it hath come] The Sept. and Arab. thus divide and point; and if ירר be retained this is obviously right.

21. Hast slain my children] This verse explains the preceding. Here 'slaying, and causing to pass through the fire,' is equivalent to their sacrificing them.

24. An arched place] This answers to the Latin fornix, a low obscure place where harlots dwell; as 'high place' does to lupanar because, impure practices were frequent in high places dedicated to the worship of idols.

26. Egyptians] They were especially addicted to the worship of idols of every kind.

27. Thine appointed portion] That is, of food and raiment, which God, as her husband, had assigned for her support.—Philistines] God often gave them into the hand of the Philistines as a punishment for their idolatry; as under the Judges, x. 7; xiii. 1; and 1 Sam. iv. 2; and also under their kings, 2 Chron. xxi. 16, 17; xxviii. 18.

28. With the Assyrians] Not content with the idols of Egypt, they adopted those of a people far removed from them.

29. Unto Chaldea] They had borrowed from every neighbouring nation their gods and sinful rites.

30—34.] How weak is Michaelis from the Arabic, 'How ardently doest thou desire thy lovers,' &c. The paragraph shows this woman to be unrestrained in her spiritual fornication and adultery.

37. Thy nakedness] This is explained ver. 39; that Jerusalem should be given into the hand of her enemies.

38. Of adulteresses] Adultery and idolatry, which is spiritual adultery, were both capital offences by the law: Levit. xx. 10; Deut. xvii. 2—7.—That shed blood] This also was a capital offence, Exod. xxi. 12, and of this offence Jerusalem had been guilty. Comp. ver. 21, 36.—Blood of fury] This alludes to the waters of jealousy which the husband gave to the suspected wife; but instead of water, God would give Jerusalem blood to drink; that is, would drench her with blood.

40. Stone thee] This was the punishment of the adulteress, John viii. 5; and there seems also to be a reference to the military engines which were employed in the siege of Jerusalem.

houses with fire, and execute judgments upon thee in the sight of many women; and I will cause thee to cease from playing the harlot, neither shalt thou give hire any more.

42 So will I make my fury towards thee to rest, and my jealousy shall depart from thee, and I will be quiet, and will be no more angry. Because thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, but hast provoked me, in all these things: behold, therefore, I will so recompense thy way upon thy head, saith the Lord Jehovah, that thou shalt not again practise this wickedness in all thine abominations.

44 Behold, every one that useth proverbs, shall use this proverb against thee, saying,

45 As is the mother, so is her daughter. Thou art the daughter of thy mother that loathed her husband and her children; and thou art the sister of thy sisters, that loathed their husbands and their children: your mother was a Hethite, and your father an Amorite.

46 And thine elder sister was Samaria, she and her daughters that dwelt at thy left hand: and thy younger sister, that dwelt at thy right hand, was Sodom and her daughters.

47 Yet hast thou not walked according to their ways, nor done according to their abominations: (that was loathed as a small thing:) but thou wast corrupted more than they in all thy ways.

49 As I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, Sodom thy sister hath not done, she nor her daughters, as thou hast done, and thy daughters.

49 Behold, this was the iniquity of thy sister Sodom, pride, fulness of bread, and secure prosperity had she and her daughters; yet she did not strengthen the hand of the poor

50 and needy. And they were haughty, and committed abomination before me; therefore I took them away as 'thou hast seen.'

51 Neither hath Samaria committed half of thy sins; but thou hast multiplied thine abominations more than they, and hast justified thy sisters by all thine abominations 52 which thou hast done. Do thou also bear thy confusion, who hast pleaded for thy sisters by thy sins which thou hast committed more abominably than they: they are justified more than thou: therefore be thou also ashamed and bear thy confusion, in that thou hast justified thy sisters.

Yet I will bring again their captivity, even 53 the captivity of Sodom and her daughters, and the captivity of Samaria, and her daughters; and I will bring again thy captivity in the midst of them: That thou mayest 54 bear thy confusion, and mayest be founded because of all that thou hast done, in that thou hast comforted them. And thy 55 sisters, Sodom and her daughters, shall return to their former estate, and Samaria and her daughters shall return to their former estate; and thou and thy daughters shall return to your former estate. Although 56 thy sister Sodom was not mentioned by thy mouth in the day of thy pride; Before thy 57 wickedness was discovered, as in the time of thy reproach from the daughters of Syria, and from all that were round about her, from the daughters of the Philistines, who despised thee round about. As to thy wickedness 58 and thine abominations, thou hast borne them, saith Jehovah. For thus saith the 59 Lord Jehovah; I will even do with thee as thou hast done, who hast despised the oath so as to break the covenant. Nevertheless 60 I will remember my covenant with thee in the days of thy youth, and I will establish with thee an everlasting covenant. Then 61 thou shalt remember thy ways, and be founded, when thou shalt receive thy sisters, thine elder, and thy younger sisters: and I will give them unto thee for daughters, but not by the covenant now made with thee. For I will establish my covenant with 62 thee, and thou shalt know that I am Jehovah. That thou mayest remember, and be 63 ashamed, and never open thy mouth any more because of thy confusion, when I am pacified toward thee for all that thou hast done, saith the Lord Jehovah.

42. And I will be quiet] The phrase signifies I will make my fury to rest upon, ver. 13, and xxiv. 13. And here it means not reconciliation, but the satisfaction which arises from vengeance, together with a subsequent neglect. So Jerom explains.

43. This wickedness] The words have this sense, Judg. xx. 6, and in other places.

45. Of thy mother] The Canaanites who inhabited the land before them he calls their mother, who rejected and loathed the true God, and sacrificed their children to idols, as the Israelites also did in imitation of them.

46. Elder sister] Samaria was the metropolis of a powerful kingdom. In determining the points, suppose the face to the east, as was the custom of the Jews, and the right hand will be the south, and the left the north, and in this manner were Samaria and Sodom situated in respect to Jerusalem.

49. Secure prosperity] Prosperity with quietness, so uninterrupted that she was in her own thoughts free from all danger; but how awful the judgment which awaited her!

50. (v) Vulg. Arab. 1 MS.

52. Thy sisters by thy] Thou hast shown that they are less guilty than thyself; and deserved to be spared more than thee, as the next verse proves.

53. Captivity of Sodom] The Moabites and Ammonites, descended from Sodom, are called by this name. So the Moabites are called the remnant of Adama: Is. lxx. 9.

56. 57. Although thy sister] The exemplary punishment of Sodom, was not duly considered, and spoken of, by thee in the time of thy prosperity and self-confidence; before thy humiliation showed thy wickedness, and defeats and distresses were brought on thee by the Syrian and Philistines.

60. I will remember] They had broken their covenant with him, but he mercifully engages to keep his towards them.

61. Receive thy sisters] Who restored with thee, shall join themselves to thee; which was fulfilled under the Macchabees, and especially by the preaching of the gospel, to which I think the next verses refer.—Because thy] The words added are clearly implied, as the Chaldee explains.

CHAPTER XVII.

Under the emblems of two eagles and a vine, is shown the punishment of Jerusalem; and by a cedar, her future celebrity.

- 1 AND the word of Jehovah came unto me,
2 saying, Son of man, put forth an enigma,
and speak a parable unto the house of Israel;
3 And say, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah;
A great eagle with great wings, with long feathers full of plumage, which had divers colours, came to Lebanon, and 4 took the highest branch of the cedar: He cropped off the top of its young twigs, and carried it into a land of traffick; he set it in 5 a city of merchants. He took also a shoot of the land, and planted it in a fruitful field;
he placed it by great waters, and set it by 6 the willows. And it grew, and became a spreading vine of low stature, whose branches turned towards him, and its roots were under him: so it became a vine, and brought 7 forth branches, and shot forth sprigs. There was also another great eagle with great wings and much plumage: and behold, this vine bent its roots towards him, and shot 8 forth its branches towards him, that he might water it from the beds of his plantation. It was planted in a good soil by great waters, that it might bring forth branches, and bear fruit; that it might become a goodly vine.
9 Say thou, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Shall it prosper? shall not one pull up its roots, and cut off its fruit, that it wither? all its newly spreading leaves shall wither, yet not by a mighty arm, nor much people shall he 10 pluck up its roots. Yea, behold, being planted, shall it prosper? Shall it not utterly wither, when the east-wind toucheth it? in the beds where it groweth shall it wither.
11 Moreover the word of Jehovah came unto 12 me, saying, Say now to the rebellious house, Know ye not what these things mean? tell them, Behold, the king of Babylon came to Jerusalem, and took her king and her princes, and led them with him to

Babylon: And took of the king's seed, and 13 made a covenant with him, and took an oath of him: he took also the mighty of the land:
That the kingdom might be low, that it 14 might not lift itself up, but that by keeping his covenant it might stand. But he rebelled 15 against him by sending his ambassadors into Egypt, that they might give him horses and much people. Shall he prosper? shall he escape that doeth such things? or shall he break the covenant, and be delivered?
As I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, surely 16 in the place where the king dwelleth that made him king, whose oath he hath despised, and whose covenant he hath broken, even in the midst of Babylon shall he die. Nei- 17 ther shall Pharaoh with his mighty army and great company make him successful in the war, when mounts are cast up, and forts are built to cut off many persons: Be- 18 cause he hath despised the oath by breaking the covenant, (when, lo, he had given his hand,) and hath done all these things he shall not escape. Therefore thus saith 19 the Lord Jehovah; As I live, surely mine oath that he hath despised, and my covenant that he hath broken, I will even recompense upon his own head. And I will 20 spread my net upon him, and he shall be taken in my snare, and I will bring him to Babylon, and will plead with him there for his trespass which he hath trespassed against me. And all his fugitives with all his bands 21 shall fall by the sword; and they that remain shall be scattered towards every wind:
and ye shall know that I, Jehovah, have spoken it.

Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; I will 22 also take of the highest branch of a lofty cedar, and will set it; I will crop off from the top of its young twigs a tender one, and will plant it upon a mountain high and eminent: In a lofty mountain of Israel will I 23 plant it: and it shall bring forth boughs, and bear fruit, and be a goodly cedar: and

CHAP. XVII. 2. An enigma] This is explained in the next word to signify a parable.

3. A great eagle] Nebuchadnezzar: fitly represented by the eagle. The highest branch denotes Jehoiachin. Compare ver. 12, and 2 Kings xxiv. 12.

4. He set it in] Nebuchadnezzar took Jehoiachin to Babylon, which was then a city of great traffic.

5. He took also a shoot] As the vine is propagated by suckers, צֶמַח must here signify generally produce, or as rendered, a shoot of the produce, &c. By this shoot Zedekiah is meant. After the removal of Jehoiachin, he was appointed to rule in Jerusalem, 2 Kings xxiv. 17, over Judah, here called 'a fruitful land.'—By the willows] The term has this sense in the Arabic, and thus most have rendered.

6. Of low stature] This represents the low tributary state of Zedekiah, and what follows, points out his duty towards Nebuchadnezzar, towards whom its branches turned, and under whom were its roots.

7. Another great eagle] The king of Egypt, to whom Zedekiah looked for help and assistance against the king of Babylon.—Beds of its] That is, where it was planted.

9. One pull up] Impersonal verbs must often be rendered in the passive; but as there is a reference to Nebuchadnezzar the first great eagle, I have rendered, 'shall not one pull up; &c.—Yet not by a mighty] Coverdale rendered, Shall not its roots be plucked out, its fruit broken off, its green branches withered and fade away? Yea, without either strong arm, or many people, shall it be plucked up by the roots.

10. In the beds] This vine was to be blasted and plucked up from its own soil, as we find it was; for Zedekiah was vanquished, and taken in his own land.

12—15. What these things mean] The prophet now explains the preceding allegory, and with great force reprehends the sin of Zedekiah.

17—21. Make him successful] So as to deliver him from the king of Babylon. What follows was literally accomplished. Compare chap. xii. 13—16.

22—24. Highest branch of] Though the royal house of David was to be punished, it was not to be destroyed. One was to spring from it whose dominion was to be universal: and his power irresistible. Like the tall cedar he was to afford shade and shelter for all. What is said can agree to under it shall dwell every fowl of every wing ; in the shadow of its branches shall they dwell. And all the trees of the field shall know that I, Jehovah, have brought low the high tree, have raised high the low tree, have dried up the green tree, and have made the dry tree to flourish. I, Jehovah, have spoken and will do it.

CHAPTER XVIII.

God reproves the proverb of sour grapes, displays his own justice, and exhorts to repentance.

- 1 THE word of Jehovah came to me again, saying, What mean ye, that ye use this proverb concerning the land of Israel, saying, The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge? As I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all persons are mine ; as the person of the father, so also the person of the son is mine : the person that sinneth shall die.
- 5 But if a man be just, and do judgment and justice, If he have not eaten upon the mountains, nor raised his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel, nor hath defiled his neighbour's wife ; if he come not near to a woman removed, And do not oppress any : if he restore to the debtor his pledge, spoil none by violence, give his food to the hungry, and cover the naked with a garment ; Give not forth upon usury, and take not increase, withdraw his hand from iniquity, execute true judgment between man and man, Walk in my statutes, and keep my judgments, to deal truly, he is just, he shall surely live, saith the Lord Jehovah.
- 10 But if he beget a son who is a robber, a shedder of blood, and who doeth the like to any one of these things, And who doeth not any of those duties ; but hath even eaten upon the mountains, and defiled his neighbour's wife, Hath oppressed the poor and needy, hath spoiled by violence, hath not restored the pledge, and hath raised his eyes to the idols, hath committed abomination, Hath given forth upon usury, and hath taken increase, shall he live? He shall not live. he hath done all these abominations ; he shall surely die ; his blood shall be upon him.

Now, lo, if he beget a son, that seeth all the sins which his father committed, and considereth, and doeth not such like ; Hath not eaten upon the mountains, nor raised his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel, hath not defiled his neighbour's wife, Nor oppressed any, hath not taken a pledge, nor spoiled by violence, but hath given his food to the hungry, and hath covered the naked with a garment, Hath turned away his hand from the poor, hath not taken usury nor increase, hath executed my judgments, hath walked in my statutes ; he shall not die for the iniquity of his father, he shall surely live. As for his father, because he cruelly oppressed, spoiled his brother by violence, and did that which is not good among his people, lo, he shall die for his iniquity.

Yet say ye, Why? doth not the son bear the iniquity of the father? When the son hath done judgment and justice, and hath kept all my statutes, and hath done them, he shall surely live. The person that sinneth shall die. The son shall not bear the iniquity of the father ; neither shall the father bear the iniquity of the son : the righteousness of the righteous shall be upon him and the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon him. But when the wicked shall turn from all his sins which he hath committed, and keep all my statutes, and shall do judgment and justice, he shall surely live, he shall not die. As to all his transgressions which he hath committed, they shall not be remembered against him : by his righteousness which he hath done, he shall live. Have I indeed any pleasure in the death of the wicked, saith the Lord Jehovah? and not that he should return from his ways and no one but our Lord ; for no king arose after the captivity of the house of David, who possessed any such power.

CHAP. XVIII. 2. Eaten sour grapes] The Chaldee explains the proverb rightly : ' the fathers have sinned, and the sons are smitten.'

3. To use this proverb] In the destruction by the Babylonians, the good were to escape, chap. ix. 4, 6 : but they were only to deliver themselves, chap. xiv. 14, 20, 21.

4. Behold all persons] The Hebrew is, souls ; but this is often used for the whole man. See Gen. ii. 7, and note there.

5-9. If a man be just] The duties and virtues here mentioned, are all of a civil kind, and might be, and often were, practised without any genuine religious principle. By practising them a man was just or righteous as far as respected such civil laws ; and God, as the king of Israel, engages to preserve him in safety.

6. If he have not eaten] That is, of the sacrifices offered there to idols, nor raised his eyes in prayer and adoration of them.

6, 7. To a woman] Comp. Lev. xx. 18.—Do not oppress] Exod. xxii. 21 ; Lev. xix. Deut. xv. 7, and Exod. xxii. 25.

9. He shall surely live] Grotius explains this to mean,— he shall be preserved from the sword, from pestilence, and famine.

10-13. Beget a son] If instead of obeying the civil laws of his country, he, on the contrary, violate them, and do such evils, ' he shall surely die ; his blood shall be upon him,' that is, his blood shall be shed for his crimes, or he shall be judicially put to death.

14-18. If he beget a son] This is a case opposed to the preceding. Such a son as is here described, shall not suffer for the iniquities of his father. He shall be preserved when God brings judgment on his father.

17. Hath turned away] In opposition to lifting it up against him, and thereby oppressing him.

19. Yet ye say, why?] Why sayest thou that the son shall not die for the iniquity of the father? Is not this contrary to what we experience? God replies, that now every man shall bear his own burden.

21. Turn from all his sins] If a man become a penitent, he shall escape the judgments which his previous offences have deserved, and on account of his righteousness, or present observance of the law, he shall be spared.

- 24 live? But when the righteous turneth from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, and doeth according to all the abominations which the wicked man doeth, shall he live? All his righteousness that he hath done shall not be remembered: for his trespass which he hath trespassed, and for his sin which he hath sinned, for them shall he die.
- 25 Yet ye say, The way of the Lord is not equal. Hear now, O house of Israel; Is not my way equal? Are not your ways unequal? When the righteous man turneth away from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, he shall die on account thereof; for his iniquity which he hath committed, shall he die. Also when the wicked man turneth from his wickedness which he hath committed, and doeth judgment and justice, he shall preserve his own life. Because he considereth, and turneth from all his transgressions which he hath committed, he shall surely live, he shall not die. Yet saith the house of Israel, The way of the Lord is not equal. O house of Israel are not my ways equal? Are not your ways unequal? Therefore I will judge you, O house of Israel, every one according to his ways, saith the Lord Jehovah. Repent, and turn from all your transgressions; and let not iniquity be the cause of your falling. Cast away from you all your transgressions, whereby ye have transgressed; and make you a new heart and a new spirit; for why will ye die, O house of Israel? For I have no pleasure in the death of him that dieth, saith the Lord Jehovah: wherefore turn and live.

CHAPTER XIX.

A lamentation for the princes of Israel under the parable of lion's whelps taken in a pit; and for Jerusalem, under the parable of a wasted vine.

- 1 MOREOVER take thou up a lamentation for the princes of Israel, and say,
- 2 What was thy mother? A lioness; She lay down among young lions; In the midst of stout young lions, She nourished her own whelps.
- 3 And she brought up one of her whelps;

He became a stout young lion, [men.
And learned to seize the prey, to devour
The nations also heard concerning him; 4
And he was taken in their pit; [Egypt.
They brought him in chains to the land of
When she saw that he was become weak, 5
And that her expectation had perished,
She then took another of her whelps,
And appointed him to be a stout young lion,
And he went up and down among the lions; 6
He became a stout young lion,
And learned to seize the prey, to devour men.
And he brought evil on their palaces, 7
And he laid waste their cities;
And desolate was the land and all therein,
From the voice of his roaring.
Then the nations set themselves against him, 8
On every side from the provinces;
And they spread their net over him;
He was taken in the pit which they had made.
And they put him in ward in chains, 9
And brought him to the king of Babylon,
And he brought him into strong-holds;
That his voice might no more be heard
Upon the mountains of Israel. [nate,

Thy mother was like a vine or pomegra- 10
Planted near to the waters;
She was fruitful, and full of branches,
By reason of these many waters.
And she had strong rods, 11
For the sceptres of those that bear rule;
And her stature was high among the thick boughs, [branches.
And she appeared high among many
But she hath been plucked up in fury; 12
She hath been cast down to the ground,
And the east wind hath dried up her fruit;
Her strong rods have been broken and dried
The fire hath consumed them. [up;
And now she is planted in the desert, 13
In a dry and thirsty land.
And a fire hath gone forth out of a rod, 14
One of her branches, which hath devoured her fruit; [to rule;
And there is not in her a strong rod, a sceptre
This is the lamentation, and it shall be for a lamentation.

24. But when the righteous] However long a man may have obeyed the law, when he comes to be a violator of it, an idolater, a robber, an adulterer, &c. his past obedience, or righteousness, shall not save him; but he shall suffer for his delinquency.

25. Not equal] They complained that God did not dispense rewards and punishments according to their conduct. He declares that he will treat all according to their deeds; even all should experience here that there was a God that judgeth in the earth.

30. Turn from] I conceive we have here a call to true repentance. Instead of accusing God's ways as unjust, he calls on them to think on the sins and injustice of their own, lest they should stumble, and fall and perish.

31. Make you a new heart] Pray to God to make you a new heart as David did, Ps. li. 10: for when God commands that which is impossible for us to do, he directs us to seek to him to do it for us; and hence in other places he promises to give a new heart, &c. Chap. xxxvi. 26.

CHAP. XIX. 2. A lioness] Grotius supposed that the prophet refers to Gen. xlix. 9. The sense is, that Judea had been like a lioness among the beasts of the forest, she had enjoyed strength and sovereignty.

3. One of her whelps] Jehoahaz is meant, whom Pharaoh Necho put into bonds, and took to Egypt, 2 Kings xxiii. 33, 34.

5-7. Another of her whelps] Jehoikim, or Eliakim succeeded Jehoahaz, 2 Kings xxiii. 34. For some time he possessed power and consequence under the influence of Pharaoh; but on the approach of Nabuchadnezzar became his tributary. For three years he remained faithful, but then relying on assistance from Egypt, rebelled and brought all the surrounding nations against him. 2 Kings xxiv. 2.

8-10. Put him in ward] The history in 2 Kings xxiv. 3, and 2 Chron. xxxiv. 6, &c. is the best commentary on the prophet.

10-14. Like a vine] Under another emblem the prophet sets forth the once happy and flourishing state of his coun-

CHAPTER XX.

God refuseth to be consulted by the elders of Israel; relates their offences, and promises their restoration.

- 1 Now it came to pass in the seventh year, in the fifth month, the tenth day of the month, that some of the elders of Israel came to inquire of Jehovah, and sat before me. Then came the word of Jehovah unto me, saying, Son of man, speak unto the elders of Israel, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Are ye come to inquire of me? As I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, I will not be inquired of by you.
- 4 Wilt thou not judge them, wilt thou not judge them, son of man? cause them to know the abominations of their fathers: And say unto them, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; In the day when I chose Israel, and swore unto the offspring of the house of Jacob, and made myself known to them in the land of Egypt, when I swore unto them, saying, I am Jehovah, your God: In that day when I swore unto them, to bring them out of the land of Egypt, into a land that I had searched out for them, flowing with milk and honey, which is the glory of all lands: I then said to them, Cast ye away every man the abominations of his eyes, and defile not yourselves with the idols of Egypt: I am Jehovah your God. But they rebelled against me, and would not hearken unto me: they did not every man cast away the abominations of their eyes, neither did they forsake the idols of Egypt. Then I said, I will pour out my fury upon them, to accomplish my anger against them in the midst of the land of Egypt. But I wrought for my name's sake, that it should not be polluted in the sight of the nations, among whom they were, in whose sight I made myself known unto them, by bringing them out of the land of Egypt,
- 10 And I brought them out of the land of Egypt, and led them into the desert. And I gave them my statutes, and my judgments I made known unto them, which if a man do, he shall even live by them. Moreover also I gave them my sabbaths, that they might be a sign between me and them; that they might know that I Jehovah sanctified them. But the house of Israel rebelled against me in the desert: they walked not by my statutes, and they despised my judgments, which if a man do, he shall even live by them; and my sabbaths they greatly polluted. Then I said that I would pour out my fury upon them in the desert, that I would consume them. But I wrought for my name's sake, that it should not be polluted in the sight of the nations, in whose sight I brought them out. Yet also I swore unto them in the desert, that I would not bring them into the land which I had given them, flowing with milk and honey, which is the glory of all lands; Because they despised my judgments, and walked not by my statutes; and they greatly polluted my sabbaths: for their heart went after their idols. Nevertheless mine eye spared them that I did not destroy them, nor did I make a full end of them in the desert.

But I said to their sons in the desert, Walk not by the statutes of your fathers, neither keep their judgments, nor pollute yourselves with their idols: I am Jehovah, your God; walk by my statutes, and keep my judgments, and do them; And hallow my sabbaths; and they shall be a sign between me and you, that ye may know that I am Jehovah, your God. But the sons rebelled against me; they walked not by my statutes, neither kept they my judgments to do them, which, if a man do, he shall even live by them; and they polluted my sabbaths. Then I said that I would pour out my fury upon them, that I would accomplish my anger against them in the desert. Nevertheless I kept back my hand, and wrought for my name's sake, that it should not be polluted in the sight of the nations in whose sight I had brought them forth.

I swore unto them also in the desert, that I would scatter them among the nations, and disperse them through the countries; Because they had not executed my judgments, but had despised my statutes, and had polluted my sabbaths, and their eyes had been after their father's idols. Wherefore I gave them up also to observe statutes that were not good, and judgments whereby they try. It was fertile, full of inhabitants, enjoyed its own kings and laws; it was like a fruitful vine; but now, alas! it was a tree of the desert, withered and perishing. The last verse refers to Zedekiah.

CHAP. XX. 1. To inquire of Jehovah] We are not told what their inquiry was; but from what is said, it must have been about something improper, if not sinful.

4. Wilt thou not judge them] Wilt thou not argue with them, reprove and condemn them, for their many idolatries and sins.

5-9. In the day when] Their forefathers were rebellious and idolatrous in Egypt; yet God spared and delivered them for his own name's sake.

10-17. Led them into the desert] In the desert God gave them his good and holy laws, and instituted his ordinances, and thereby sanctified or separated them from other nations; but they rebelled and went after their idols; and for this, though he spared them as a people, he doomed them to die in the desert.

18-22.] I said to their sons] From this we learn that the sons were not better than the fathers; even they followed strange gods, and violated the law given unto them; yet did Jehovah spare them.

23-26. I swore unto them also] Though God spared them, he foretold in the desert that a time would come, when they should be led into captivity for their idolatries. See Levit. xxvi. 33, and Deuter. xxix. 1, &c.

25. Gave them up to observe] The text is elliptical, and 26 could not live; And to pollute themselves by their offerings, in that they caused to pass through the fire every first-born son, that I might make them desolate, to the end that they might know that I am Jehovah.

27 Therefore, speak to the house of Israel, Son of man, and say to them, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Moreover in this your fathers dishonoured me, in that they grievously transgressed against me: For when I had brought them into the land which I had sworn that I would give to them, then they saw every high hill, and every thick tree, and they offered there their sacrifices, and there they presented their provoking oblation: and there they placed their sweet savour, and there they poured out their drink-offerings.

29 Then I said unto them, What is the high-place to which ye go? Yea, its name, Bamah, [HIGH-PLACE,] is proclaimed unto this day.

30 Therefore say to the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Are ye polluted after the manner of your fathers? And do ye go astray after their abominations? For in that ye offer your gifts, in that ye make your sons to pass through the fire, ye pollute yourselves with all your idols, even unto this day: and shall I be inquired of by you, O house of Israel? As I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, I will not be inquired of by you.

32 And that which cometh into your mind shall not be at all, that which ye say, We will be as the nations, as the families of the countries, serving wood and stone. As I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, surely with a mighty hand, and with a stretched-out arm, and with fury poured out, will I reign over you.

34 And I will bring you forth from the people, and will gather you from the countries wherein ye are scattered, with a mighty hand, and with a stretched-out arm, and with fury poured out. And I will bring you into the desert of the peoples, and there will I plead with you face to face. Like as I pleaded with your fathers in the desert, "when I brought them out" of the land of Egypt, so will I plead with you, saith the Lord Jehovah. And I will cause you to pass under the rod, and I will bring you into the discipline of the covenant: And I will separate from among you the rebels, even those that transgress against me: I will bring them forth out of the country where they sojourn; but they shall not enter into the land of Israel: and ye shall know that I am Jehovah.

As for you, O house of Israel, thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Go ye, serve ye every one his idols; yet hereafter ye shall surely hearken unto me, and ye shall pollute my holy name no more with your gifts, and with your idols. For in my holy mountain, in a lofty mountain of Israel, saith the Lord Jehovah, there shall all the house of Israel serve me, even all of them in the land: there will I accept them, and there will I require your heave-offerings, and the first fruits of your oblations, in all your holy things. In your sweet savour I will accept you, when I bring you out from the peoples, and gather you out of the countries wherein ye have been scattered; and I will be sanctified among you in the sight of the nations. And ye shall know that I am Jehovah, when I shall bring you into the land of Israel, into the country which I swore that I would give to your fathers. And there shall ye remember your ways, and all your doings, by which ye have been defiled; and ye shall loathe yourselves for all the evils which ye have committed. And ye shall know that I am Jehovah, when I deal with you for my name's sake; not according to your wicked ways, nor according to your corrupt doings, O ye house of Israel, saith the Lord Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXI.

Ezekiel prophesieth against Judea and Jerusalem; the sharp bright sword appointed to go forth against the whole kingdom, and against the Ammonites.

MOREOVER the word of Jehovah came unto me, saying, Son of man, set thy face towards the south, and drop thy word towards the south field; And say to the forest of the south, Hear the word of Jehovah; Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Behold, I will kindle a fire in thee, and it shall de-לכזר, or some synonymous verb, ought to be supplied.—Statutes not good] Or such as were very evil. The figure often occurs. See Prov. xvi. 29; xvii. 26; Rom. i. 28. The following verse explains this in the sense given.

27—31. Fathers dishonoured me] God reminds those who consulted him of the idolatries of their fathers, in their own land. The name of the high place was proclaimed, and to it they sought, instead of going to God's sanctuary.

32—33. Shall not be at all] They purposed to renounce the God of their fathers, and to follow altogether the idols of the nations around them; but he declares that he would show himself their God by punishing them.

35. Desert of the peoples] Michaelis explains this to be the desert in the neighbourhood of the Chaldeans, and the other nations among whom the Israelites were placed. The reading of the Sept. Arab. in the next verse is necessary to the sense of the author.

37. Discipline of the covenant] So the text most properly signifies, and so the Syriac renders. God would correct them, and teach them, as the nature of his covenant with them implied.

38. Shall not enter] Many suppose that the rebels are those Jews who fled to Egypt, after the murder of Gedaliah. Some of these were to be carried into Chaldea with the captive Egyptians, Jerem. xliii. 11; though the greater part were to be utterly destroyed, Jerem. xlv. 12.

39—41. As for you] God, in allusion to what they had purposed, v. 32, here addresses them, and foretells, that however idolatrous they might now be, they should be brought to repentance, and acknowledge their past offences, and his mercy towards them, on their restoration.

45—49. Towards the south] Ezekiel was in the northern part of Chaldea; and therefore Judea was to the south of him. Judea is represented under the image of a icrest;

vour in thee every green tree, and every dry tree: the flaming flame shall not be quenched, and all faces shall be burnt therein, from 46 the south to the north. And all flesh shall see that I, Jehovah, have kindled it: it shall 49 not be quenched. Then said I, Ah, Lord Jehovah! they say of me, Doth he not speak parables?

1 Also the word of Jehovah came unto me,
2 saying, Son of man, set thy face towards Jerusalem, and drop thy word towards the holy places, and prophesy against the land
3 of Israel, And say to the land of Israel, Thus saith Jehovah; Behold, I am against thee, and will draw forth my sword out of its sheath, and will cut off from thee the 4 righteous and the wicked. Seeing then that I will cut off from thee the righteous and the wicked, therefore shall my sword go forth out of its sheath against all flesh, from 5 the south to the north: And all flesh shall know that I, Jehovah, have drawn forth my sword out of its sheath; it shall not return
6 any more. Thou, therefore, son of man, sigh with the breaking of thy loins; and with 7 bitterness sigh before their eyes. And it shall be, when they say unto thee, Wherefore sighest thou? that thou shalt answer, On account of the rumour that cometh: and every heart shall melt, and all hands shall be feeble, and every spirit shall faint, and all knees shall be weak as water: behold, it cometh, and shall be brought to pass, saith the Lord Jehovah.

8 Again the word of Jehovah came unto me, saying, Son of man, prophesy and say,
9 Thus saith Jehovah; Say a sword, a sword
10 is sharpened, and also furbished: It is sharpened, that it may make a great slaughter: it is furbished that it may glitter: alas! the sceptre of my son is destroyed: it despiseth
11 every tree. And it is given to be furbished, that it may be handled. This sword is sharpened, and it is furbished, to give it into the 12 hand of the slayer. Cry and howl, son of man: for it shall be upon my people, it shall be upon all the princes of Israel: terrors by reason of the sword shall be upon my people: smite therefore upon thy thigh. For 13 it is tried; and what if it despise the sceptre? This shall not remain, saith the Lord Jehovah. Thou therefore, son of man, prophesy 14 and smite the palms of thy hands together, and bring the sword twice, yea, bring it thrice; it is the sword of the slain: it is the sword of great slaughter, which entereth into their chambers. That their heart may 15 melt, and their overthrow may be multiplied, I have set the destroying sword against all their gates. Ah! thou that art made bright, 16 and furbished for slaughter, get thee different ways; go to the right hand, or to the left, whithersoever thine edge is directed. I will 17 also smite the palms of my hands together, and I will cause my fury to rest 'upon thee!' I, Jehovah, have said it.

Moreover the word of Jehovah came unto 18 me, saying, Also, thou son of man, appoint 19 thee two ways, by which the sword of the king of Babylon may come: from one country both of them shall go forth: and choose thou a place, choose it at the head of the way to the city. Appoint a way by which the sword 20 may come towards Rabbah of the Ammonites, and towards Judah, against Jerusalem the fenced city. For the king of Babylon 21 stood at the parting of the way, at the head of the two ways; to use divination he mingled his arrows, he consulted with images, he looked in the liver. Towards his right 22 hand fell the divination against Jerusalem, to appoint battering-rams, to open the mouth 'with clamour,' to raise the voice with shouting, to appoint battering-rams against the gates, to cast a mount, and to build a tower. But it shall appear to them 23 as a false divination, to them who had sworn oaths: but he will call to remembrance the iniquity, that they may be taken. There- 24 fore thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Because your iniquity is remembered, in that your transgressions are discovered, so that your sins appear in all your doings; because that ye are remembered, ye shall be taken with the hand.

And thou profane, wicked prince of Israel, 25

but in this forest a fire is to be kindled, and every tree burned.

CHAP. XXI. 1-7. Also the word] What the prophet had before expressed under the image of a forest, he now expresses literally. The sword of the enemy was to be unsheathed, and the righteous and the wicked, the green and dry tree, were alike to fall by it.

10. The sceptre of my son] Most of the versions render 'sceptre;' and 'my son,' may mean the people of Israel, as it does Exod. iv. 22, 23; Hosea xi. 1.—It despiseth] That is, the sword, which is given into the hand of the slayer.

13. For it is tried] The sword has been proved to be effectual for the purpose intended; and what if it destroy not only the common branches, but even the root of the sceptre. Will not this be just vengeance?—It shall not remain] That is, the 'sceptre' shall not remain; the regal succession shall end in Zedekiah.

11-17. Smite the palms] This action often denotes grief, 807

rage, or astonishment, see chap. vi. 11; xxii. 13; Numb. xxiv. 10; but many think that it here and ver. 17, denotes encouragement to the victorious Chaldeans. The following verses support this opinion, as the sword is to destroy on all hands.—17. (a) Sept.

19-22. Appoint thee] The king was to march on in his own land, until he came to the desert; and these two ways should claim his attention, one leading to the capital of the Ammonites, and the other direct to Jerusalem. Here he should divine by arrows, and by consulting his idols, and inspecting the liver of the sacrifices, in order to determine which way he should advance. Accordingly the decision was to go direct to Jerusalem.—22. (a) Sept.

23. As a false divination] The Jews will not believe that he will advance and destroy their city; but the prophet adds that he will come and punish those who had violated their oath of subjection to him.

25-27. Thou profane] The prophet speaks with bold-whose day is come, the time when "thy" iniquity shall have an end. Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Remove the diadem, and take off the crown: is not this, even this, he that hath abased the exalted, and exalted the abased? I will overturn, overturn, overturn it: and this kingdom of Judah shall be no more, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him.

And thou, son of man, prophesy and say. Thus saith the Lord Jehovah, concerning the Ammonites, and concerning their reproach. Then shalt thou say, O sword, sword, drawn for slaughter, furbished to consume, because of thy glittering: While they see vanity concerning thee, while they divine a lie concerning thee, that I may bring thee upon the necks of those that are slain, of the wicked, whose day is come, the time when their iniquity shall have an end. Hath he caused it to return into its sheath? In the place where thou wast created, in the land of thy origin I will judge thee. And I will pour upon thee mine indignation, I will blow in the fire of my wrath upon thee, and deliver thee into the hand of brutish men, skilful to destroy. Thou shalt be for fuel to the fire, thy blood shall be in the midst of the land; thou shalt be no more remembered: for I, Jehovah, have spoken it.

CHAPTER XXII.

The sins of Jerusalem; her punishment; the general corruption of the prophets, priests, princes, and people.

1 MOREOVER the word of Jehovah came unto me, saying, Now, thou son of man, wilt thou not judge, wilt thou not judge the bloody city, and show her all her abominations? Thus saith the Lord Jehovah? The city sheddeth blood in the midst of it, that her time of punishment may come; and maketh idols to defile herself with them.

4 By the blood which thou hast shed, thou art become guilty, and by the idols which thou hast made, thou hast defiled thyself; and thou hast caused thy days to draw near, and hast brought on "the time" of thy years. Therefore have I made thee a reproach unto the nations, and a derision unto all countries. Those that are near, and those that are far from thee, shall deride thee, O thou whose name is polluted, who aboundeth in tumult. Behold, the princes of Israel, every one according to his power, were in thee shedding blood. In thee they have despised father and mother: in the midst of thee they have treated with violence the stranger: in thee they have oppressed the fatherless and the widow. Mine holy things thou hast despised, and my sabbaths thou hast profaned. In thee are men who slander that they may shed blood: and in thee have they eaten upon the mountains: in the midst of thee have they committed shameful deeds, in thee have they cohabited with their father's wife; in thee have they humbled a woman removed. And one hath committed abomination with his neighbour's wife; and another hath wickedly defiled his daughter-in-law; and in thee another hath humbled his sister, his father's daughter. In thee have they taken a reward to shed blood. Thou hast taken usury and increase, and thou hast gained of thy neighbours by violence, and hast forgotten me, saith the Lord Jehovah. Behold, therefore, I have smitten my hands together, at thy dishonest gain which thou hast made, and at thy blood which hath been in the midst of thee. Can thy heart endure, or can thy hands be strong, in the days when I shall deal with thee? I, Jehovah, have spoken it, and will do it. I will even disperse thee among the nations, and scatter thee in the countries, and will consume thy pollution out of thee. And thee "I will take for an inheritance," in the sight of the nations, and thou shalt know that I am Jehovah.

Also the word of Jehovah came unto me, 17 saying, Son of man, the house of Israel is become to me as dross; they are all as brass, and tin, and iron, and lead in the midst of the furnace; they are as the dross of silver. Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah; 19 because ye are all become dross, therefore behold! I will gather you into the midst of Jerusalem. As men gather silver, and 20 brass, and iron, and lead, and tin, into the ness of the person and the character of Zedekiah; a prince who merited the fate that awaited him. He was to lose the crown and the kingdom, and no longer have the power of practising the iniquity of oppression and idolatry. The royal power was to cease until the coming of one whose right to the throne of David should be unquestionable. This regards Messiah. Compare Gen. xlix. 10.

25. (a) Arab.

23-32. Concerning the Ammonites] Though for the present the king of Babylon had turned against Jerusalem, the prophet assures them that their day of punishment would soon come.

CHAP. XXII. 2. Wilt thou not judge] Compare ch. xx. 4. Some manuscripts do not repeat the verb, nor is it repeated in the Syriac and Arabic versions.

808

4. Time of thy years] The time of punishment is meant, as the whole context proves.-(v) Versions.

6. According to his power] Every one of these men oppressed as many as he could.

7-12. In thee they] These verses show the high degree of depravity which now prevailed; no regard was paid even to the common decencies of life. Every part of the law was violated, by those whose office it was to have executed it.

16. Thee I will take] Jerom is followed in the version given; and the Sept have rendered in like manner.

17-22. Word of Jehovah] These verses represent God's design in his judgments to be to remove the dross, and to preserve the pure metal. This purifying process had become necessary from the general wickedness of the nation; as is manifest in the following verses midst of the furnace, to blow the fire upon it to melt it; so I will gather you in mine anger, and in my fury, and I will blow upon you and melt you. Yea, I will gather you, and blow upon you, with the fire of my wrath, and ye shall be melted in the midst thereof. As silver is melted in the midst of the furnace, so shall ye be melted in the midst thereof; and ye shall know that I, Jehovah, have poured out my fury upon you.

23 Again the word of Jehovah came unto me, saying, Son of man, say unto her, Thou art the land 'not watered with showers,' nor rained upon in the day of indignation.

25 There is a conspiracy of her prophets in the midst of her; they are like a roaring lion tearing the prey; they have devoured persons; they have taken treasure and precious things; they have multiplied her widows in the midst of her. Her priests have violated my law, and have polluted my sanctuary: they have not distinguished between the holy and polluted; neither have they made known the difference between the unclean and the clean; and they have suffered my sabbaths to be violated, and I am profaned among them. Her princes in the midst of her, are like wolves tearing the prey! they are intent to shed blood, and to destroy souls, that they may get gain. And her prophets have daubed for them with untempered mortar, seeing vanity, and divining lies unto them, saying, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah, when Jehovah hath not spoken. The people of the land have done violence, and have exercised robbery, and have oppressed the poor and needy: yea, they have done violence to the stranger without measure. And I sought for a man among them, that should make up the fence, and that should stand in the breach before me for the land, that I should not destroy it: but I found none.

31 Therefore have I poured out mine indignation upon them; I have consumed them with the fire of my wrath: their own way have I recompensed upon their heads, saith the Lord Jehovah.

21. Nor rained upon] As a mark of the divine displeasure, Hag. i. 7—12.—(r) Sept.

25. A conspiracy] The prophets, those who had been educated in the schools of the prophets, had conspired to do evil; they had confederated for wicked purposes, instances of which follow.

26—31. Her priests] These were bound by their office to observe and enforce the law; but gross ignorance and criminal negligence prevailed among them. The princes were wolves; every order in society was depraved; the whole body politic was diseased.

CHAP. XXIII. 2. Daughters of one mother] They had the same origin.

3. There did they first] I have preferred the sense to a literal version, with other translators. The people of Israel began their idolatry in Egypt.

4. Aholah and Aholibah] These names are expressive of the two kingdoms of Israel and Judah. Aholah, her tent.

CHAPTER XXIII.

The idolatries of Samaria and Judah are represented by the harlotries and adulteries of two women; the judgments to be executed upon them.

MOREOVER the word of Jehovah came unto me, saying, Son of man, there were two women, the daughters of one mother: And they played the harlot in Egypt; in their youth they played the harlot: there did they first give up themselves to harlotry. And their names were Aholah, [HER TABERNACLE,] the elder, and Aholibah, [MY TABERNACLE IS IN HER,] her sister: and they were mine, and they bare sons and daughters. Moreover as to their names, Samaria is Aholah, and Jerusalem is Aholibah. And Aholah played the harlot when she was mine: and she doted on her lovers, on the Assyrians her neighbours, Who were clothed in blue, captains and rulers, all of them desirable young men, horsemen riding upon horses. And she committed her harlotries with them, with all the choice young men of Assyria, and with all on whom she doted: with all their idols she defiled herself. Neither forsook she her harlotries brought from Egypt; for in her youth they lay with her, and enjoyed her first embrace, and poured her harlotries upon her. Wherefore I delivered her into the hand of her lovers, into the hands of the Assyrians, upon whom she doted. These uncovered her nakedness; they took her sons and her daughters, and slew her with the sword; and she became infamous among women, when they executed judgment upon her.

And her sister, Aholibah, saw this, yet was she more corrupt in her inordinate love than she, and in her harlotries, than the harlotries of her sister. She doted on the Assyrians, her neighbours, captains and rulers clothed most gorgeously, horsemen riding upon horses, all of them desirable young men. Then I saw that she was defiled, that they both took one way. And she increased her harlotries; for she saw men portrayed upon the wall, images of the Chaldeans portrayed with vermillion, or tabernacle; idolatrous Samaria pitching her own tabernacle in opposition to God's dwelling-place at Jerusalem. For Aholibah signifies, my tabernacle is in her; because God had made Judah the seat of his own worship.

5—10. And Aholah] Samaria formed alliances with the Assyrians, and imitated their idolatries, though she professed regard to Jehovah. On this account God gave her up into the hands of her lovers, who exposed her to shame and contempt.

11—20. And her sister.] The plagues and judgments inflicted on Samaria did not lead Judah to repentance.

14, 15. She saw men portrayed] Some think that idols are meant, which were formed and adorned like the Chaldeans; for most of the gods of the nations were only deified men. Others consider that the Babylonian princes are intended, who first allured the Jews to form alliances with them, and then induced them to worship their gods.

15 Girded with girdles upon their loins, having various coloured turbans on their heads, all of them in appearance leaders after the manner of the Babylonians of Chaldea, the land of their nativity : And as soon as she cast her eyes on them she doted on them, and sent messengers unto them into Chaldea. And the Babylonians came unto her into the bed of love, and they defiled her with their harlotry ; and she was polluted with them, so that her mind was alienated from them. And she discovered her harlotries, and she discovered her nakedness ; and my mind was alienated from her, like as my mind had been alienated from her sister. For she multiplied her harlotries in calling to remembrance the days of her youth, wherein she had played the harlot in the land of Egypt. For she doted on cohabiting with those whose lust was as that of the ass, or as of horses.

21 Now since thou hast repeated the wickedness of thy youth, when the Egyptians embraced thee, and cohabited with thee, in thy youth ; Therefore, O Aholibah, thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; Behold, I will raise up thy lovers against thee, from whom thy mind is alienated, and I will bring them against thee on every side ; The Babylonians and all the Chaldeans, Pekod, and Shoa, and Koa, and all the Assyrians with them : all of them desirable young men, captains and rulers, leaders and renowned, all of them riding on horses. And they shall come against thee with scythed cars, chariots, and other carriages, and with a great company of people ; and they shall appoint against thee the buckler, and the shield, and the helmet round about : and I will set judgment before them, and they shall judge thee according to their judgments. And I will set my jealousy against thee, and they shall deal furiously with thee : they shall take away thy nose and thine ears : and thy posterity shall fall by the sword : they shall take thy sons and thy daughters ; and thy posterity shall be devoured by the fire.

26 They shall also strip thee of thy clothes, and shall take thy goodly jewels. Thus will I make thy great wickedness to cease from thee, and thy harlotry brought from the land of Egypt : so that thou shalt not raise thine eyes unto them, nor remember

Egypt any more. For thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; Behold, I will deliver thee into the hand of them whom thou hatest, into the hand of them from whom thy mind is alienated : And they shall deal with thee in hatred, and shall take all the fruit of thy labour, and shall leave thee naked and bare : and thy shameless harlotries shall be discovered, and thy great wickedness. I will do these things unto thee, because thou hast gone astray after the nations, and because thou hast been polluted with their idols. Thou hast walked in the way of thy sister ; therefore will I give her cup into thy hand. Thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; Thou shalt drink thy sister's cup, which is deep and large ; thou shalt be a laughing stock and a derision ; it containeth much. Thou shalt be filled with drunkenness and grief, with the cup of astonishment and desolation, with the cup of thy sister Samaria. Thou shalt even drink it and suck it out ; and thou shalt break the sherds thereof, and pluck off thine own breasts ; for I have spoken it, saith the Lord Jehovah. Wherefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; Because thou hast forgotten me, and cast me behind thy back, therefore bear thou also thy great wickedness and thy harlotries.

Moreover Jehovah said unto me, Son of man, wilt thou not judge Aholah and Aholibah ? Yea, declare unto them their abominations ; Because they have committed adultery, and blood is in their hands ; even with their idols have they committed adultery ; and also their sons, whom they bare unto me, have they caused to pass through the fire unto them, to be devoured. Moreover they did this unto me : they defiled my sanctuary on the same day, and my sabbaths they polluted ; For when they had slain their sons to their idols, then came they to my sanctuary on the same day, to pollute it ; and lo, thus they did in the midst of my house. And furthermore, ye sent for men to come from far ; unto whom a messenger was sent, and lo, they came : for whom thou didst wash thyself, paint thine eyes, and adorn thyself with ornaments, And didst sit on a stately bed, with a table prepared before it, whereupon thou didst place mine incense and mine oil. Also the voice of a great company at ease was with

17. Alienated from them] She loathed them through mere satiety ; but still turned to other idols, especially to those of Egypt.

19. Whose lust] They were as intent on their idols, as these animals, in their heat, were on their mates.

24—35. Come against thee] In these verses the prophet denounces the punishment of her harlotries and adulteries. To take away the nose and ears, was sometimes the punishment of adultery. See Virgil's Æn. vi. 492. As God had dealt with Samaria, so would he deal with Jerusalem.

37—39. Blood is in their hands] From these verses it is manifest that the Jews did actually shed the blood of their children, when they offered them to Molech, and other similar idols ; and when they had thus polluted themselves they went into God's temple as if they were his people.

41. Stately bed] According to the custom of the east, the prophet describes the temple of some idol, and Aholibah, decked as a bride, sitting there and presenting such offerings as should have been presented to Jehovah.

42—49. A voice of a great] The prophet saw the idol temple filled with worshippers, and among these many Sabeans, a people of Arabia. Aholibah received these, and her; and together with men of the common sort were brought Sabeans from the wilderness; who put bracelets upon their hands, and beautiful crowns upon their heads.

43 Then said I concerning her that was old in adulteries, Will they now practise harlotry

44 with her, even with her? Yet they went in to her, as they go in to a woman that playeth the harlot: so went they in unto Aholah and unto Aholibah, those wicked women.

45 Therefore righteous men shall judge them after the manner of adulteresses, and after the manner of women that shed blood; for they are adulteresses, and blood is in their

46 hands. For thus said the Lord Jehovah; I will bring up a company upon them, and will give them up to be removed and spoiled.

47 And the company shall stone them with stones, and despatch them with their swords; they shall slay their sons and their daughters, and burn up their houses with fire.

48 Thus will I cause wickedness to cease out of the land that all women may be taught not to do according to your wickedness.

49 And they shall recompense your wickedness upon you, and ye shall bear the sins of your idols; and ye shall know that I am the Lord Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Under the image of a boiling caldron is shown the destruction of Jerusalem; and by the sign of Ezekiel not mourning for the death of his wife is represented the calamity of the people to be beyond all sorrow.

1 AGAIN in the ninth year, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, the

2 word of Jehovah came unto me, saying, Son of man, write thee the name of the day, even of this same day: the king of Babylon set himself against Jerusalem on this same

3 day. And utter a parable unto the rebellious house, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Set on a caldron, set

4 it on, and also pour water into it: Gather the pieces thereof into it, even every good piece; and fill it with the thigh, and the 5 shoulder, and the choice joints. Take the choice of the flock, and pile also the bones joined them in their idolatrous worship. Both these states should be treated as adulteresses.

CHAP. XXIV. 2. Of this same day] The prophet was informed what was doing by Nebuchadnezzar, and commissioned to make it known. Compare 2 Kings xxv. 1; Jerem. xxxix. 1; lli. 4.

3. A caldron] When the reference to the mode of preparing the Jewish sacrifices is considered, this image is more dignified than some readers would at first imagine. See note chap. xi. 3.

4. Choice joints] So Vatable and Houbigant render. These good pieces or choice joints, the choice of the flock, denote the great men of Jerusalem.

5. Pile also the bones] The useless bones, ver. 10, which the coals would consume. This was to show how many of the common people would be destroyed by the Chaldeans.

6. To the bloody city] To the city resembling a caldron, whose scum is in it. The scum denotes wickedness,— under it; make it exceedingly hot, and boil well the bones of it therein.

Concerning this matter, thus saith the 6 Lord Jehovah; Wo to the bloody city, to the caldron whose scum is in it, and whose scum is not gone out of it! bring it out piece by piece; let no lot fall upon it. For her blood is in the midst of her; 7 she set it upon the top of a rock; she poured it not upon the ground, to cover it with dust: That I might cause fury to 8 come up that I might take vengeance, I have set her blood upon the top of a rock, that it should not be covered. Therefore 9 thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Wo to the bloody city! I will even make the pile for fire great. Heap on wood, kindle 10 the fire, consume the flesh, and prepare it as a compound, and let the bones be burnt: Then place it empty upon its coals, 11 that its brass may be hot, and may burn, and that its pollution may be dissolved in the midst of it, and its scum may be wasted away. She is exhausted with miseries, yet 12 her great scum hath not gone out of her: her scum is not wasted away by the fire. In 13 thy pollution is great wickedness. Because I would have cleansed thee and thou wouldst not be cleansed, so thou shalt not be cleansed from thy pollution until I have caused my 14 fury to rest upon thee. I, Jehovah, have spoken it. It shall come to pass, and I will do it; I will not go back, neither will I spare, nor will I repent; according to thy ways, and according to thy doings, shalt thou be judged, saith the Lord Jehovah.

Also the word of Jehovah came unto me, 15 saying, Son of man, behold, I take from 16 thee the desire of thine eyes by a mortal stroke; yet thou shalt not mourn nor weep, nor shall thy tears run down. Sigh thou 17 in silence; make no mourning for the dead, bind the ornament of thy head upon thee, and put on thy shoes upon thy feet, and cover not thy lips, and eat not the bread of mourners. And I spoke unto the people 18 in the morning; and in the evening my wife

Bring it out piece] That is, the choice pieces, all of which, without distinction, shall be the prey of the enemy.

7. On the top of a rock] She did not attempt to cover the blood which she had wickedly shed; alluding to Levit. xvii. 13. The Sept. reads in the first person.

8. That I might] As she had done, so God would do to her. Her blood should be shed, and exposed to all.

9—11. Bloody city] A great fire was to be kindled, the bones to be burnt, and the brass caldron itself to represent that not only the inhabitants, but the city should be destroyed.

12—14. Her great scum] Though Jerusalem had suffered much, yet she was not purified. Hence God threatens complete destruction.

16—18. The desire of thine eyes] How affecting the providence which was to befall the prophet; and yet he was not to appear to mourn under it. Events like these were designed to rouse the people to reflect on their impending ruin, and to repent of their multiplied offences.

died; and I did in the morning as I was commanded.

- 19 And the people said unto me, Wilt thou not tell us what these things are to us, that thou doest thus? Then I answered them, The word of Jehovah came unto me, saying,
- 21 Speak unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Behold! I will pollute my sanctuary, the excellency of your strength, the desire of your eyes, and that which your soul desireth may be spared; and your sons and your daughters whom ye have left shall
- 22 fall by the sword. And ye shall do as I have done: ye shall not cover your lips, nor eat
- 23 the bread of mourners. And your ornaments shall be upon your heads, and your shoes upon your feet: ye shall not mourn nor weep: but ye shall pine away for your
- 24 iniquities, and moan one to another. Thus Ezekiel shall be to you a sign: according to all that he hath done shall ye do, when this cometh; and ye shall know that I am the Lord Jehovah.
- 25 Also, thou son of man, shall it not be in the day when I take from them their strength, the joy of their glory, the desire of their eyes, and that on which their minds are set, "and" their sons and their daughters,
- 26 That one who escapeth in that day shall come unto thee, to cause thee to hear it with
- 27 thine ears? In that day shall thy mouth be opened to him who hath escaped, and thou shalt speak and be no more dumb: and thou shalt be a sign unto them; and they shall know that I am Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXV.

God denounces heavy judgments on the Ammonites, Moabites, Edomites, and Philistines for their treatment of his people.

- 1 The word of Jehovah came again unto me, saying, Son of man, set thy face against the Ammonites, and prophesy against them;
- 3 And say unto the Ammonites, Hear the word of the Lord Jehovah: Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Because thou saidst, Aha, against my sanctuary, when it was profaned; and against the land of Israel, when it was desolate; and against the house of Judah, when they went into captivity; Therefore, lo, I will deliver thee to the men of the east for a possession, and they shall set their palaces in thee, and make in thee their dwellings: they shall eat thy fruit, and they shall drink thy milk. And I will make Rabbah a stable for camels, and the Ammonites a couching-place for flocks: and ye shall know that I am Jehovah. For thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Because thou hast clapped thy hands, and stamped with thy feet, and rejoiced in heart with all thy despite against the land of Israel; Behold, therefore, I will stretch out my hand upon thee; and will deliver thee for a spoil to the nations; and I will cut thee off from among the people, and I will cause thee to perish from among the countries: I will destroy thee, and thou shalt know that I am Jehovah.

Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Because that Moab saith, Behold the house of Judah is like all the nations; Therefore, behold, I will open the side of Moab from his cities, even from his borders I will open the glory of the country, Beth-jeshimoth, Baal-meon, and Kiriathaim. Unto the men of the east together with the Ammonites, I will give it for a possession, that "Rabbah" of the Ammonites may not be remembered among the nations. And I will execute judgments 11 upon Moab; and they shall know that I am Jehovah.

Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Because Edom hath taken cruel vengeance on the house of Judah, and hath greatly offended, and avenged themselves upon them; Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah; I will stretch out my hand upon Edom, and will cut off from it man and beast; and I will make it desolate from Teman, and unto Dedan they shall fall by the sword. And I will lay my vengeance upon Edom by the hand of my people Israel: and they shall deal with Edom according to mine anger and according to my fury; and they shall know my vengeance, saith the Lord Jehovah.

Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Because 15 the Philistines have dealt in revenge, and have taken vengeance with a despiteful

19—24. Wilt thou not tell us] The prophet replies to their inquiry and declares that as he had done, so should they; that the temple for which they entertained so high a regard, which was so desirable in their eyes, and in which they had practised their idolatries, God would now profane and destroy, and yet they should not be allowed to manifest their grief on the occasion. 25. (a) Syr. Arab. MSS.

27. Mouth be opened] It should seem from this, that Ezekiel did not prophesy any more until Jerusalem was taken and destroyed. See chap. xxxiii. 31—33.

CHAP. XXV. 1. Son of man] What is said in this chapter implies that Jerusalem had been taken, and that this had excited joy among the surrounding nations. Hence the order of this chapter, according to the series of events, would come in after the 34th.

2—7. Set thy face] The Ammonites were to become a spoil to the conqueror.

8—11. That Moab] The Moabites discovered their hatred of Israel, and they are informed that their cities would be taken, and their very name blotted out as a nation.

10. (a) Syr.

12—14. Because Edom] They seemed to have cut off those fugitives who had escaped the sword of the Babylonians, and for this were themselves to be cut off; yea, the Israelites, after their restoration were to repay them. And we find that they were subdued by the Maccabees.

15—17. The Philistines] These had often contended with the Israelites, and sometimes had oppressed them; but after the time of David, were tributaries. They now hoped to regain their former power; but this hope was vain.

heart, for destruction, with the old hatred; 16 Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Behold, I will stretch out my hand upon the Philistines, and I will cut off the Cherethites, and destroy the remnant of the sea- 17 ports. And I will execute great vengeance upon them, with furious rebukes; and they shall know that I am Jehovah, when I shall lay my vengeance upon them.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Tyre is threatened; Nebuchadnezzar appointed to overturn her; mourning over her fall.

1 AND it came to pass in the "twelfth" year, in the first day of the month, that the word 2 of Jehovah came unto me, saying, Son of man, because that Tyre hath said against Jerusalem, Aha, she is broken; the merchandise of the people is turned unto me; 3 she that was full is become desolate; Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Behold, I am against thee, O Tyre, and will cause many nations to come up against thee, as the sea causeth his waves to come up. 4 And they shall destroy the walls of Tyre, and break down her towers; and I will scrape off her earth from her, and make her 5 like the top of a rock. She shall be a place for the spreading of nets in the midst of the sea: for I have spoken it saith the Lord Jehovah. And she shall become a spoil to 6 the nations: And her daughters who are in the field shall be slain by the sword, and they shall know that I am Jehovah. 7 For thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Behold! I will bring upon Tyre Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, a king of kings, from the north; with horses, and with chariots, and with horsemen, and with a company of much people. Thy daughters in 8 the field he shall slay with the sword: and he shall make a tower against thee, and cast up a mount against thee, and lift up the 9 buckler against thee. And he shall set his battering-rams against thy walls, and thy towers shall he break down with mattocks. 10 By the abundance of his horses their dust shall cover thee: at the sound of the horsemen, and of the carriages, and of the chariots, thy walls shall shake, when he shall enter into thy gates, as men enter into a city after a breach hath been made. With the hoofs 11 of his horses shall he tread on all thy streets; he shall slay thy people by the sword, and thy strong fortresses shall be brought down to the ground. And they shall spoil thy 12 substance, and make a prey of thy merchandise; and they shall destroy thy walls, and break down thy pleasant houses: and thy stones, and thy wood, and thy earth, shall they lay in the midst of the waters. And I 13 will cause the noise of thy songs to cease; and the sound of thy harps shall be no more heard. And I will make thee like the top 14 of a rock; thou shalt be a place for the spreading of nets; thou shalt be built no more: for I Jehovah have spoken it, saith the Lord Jehovah.

Thus saith the Lord Jehovah, to Tyre, 15 Shall not the isles shake at the sound of thy fall, when the wounded cry out, when great slaughter is made in the midst of thee? Shall not all the princes of the sea come 16 down from their thrones, and lay aside their mantles, and put off their embroidered garments? shall they not clothe themselves with trembling, and sit on the ground, and tremble every moment, and be astonished at thee? And shall they not utter a lamentation over thee, and say to thee, How art thou destroyed, that wast inhabited by seafaring men, the renowned city, which was strong in the sea, she and her inhabitants, who spread their terror on all the inhabitants "of the earth?" Now shall the isles 18 tremble in the day of thy fall; yea, the isles that are in the sea, shall be troubled at thy departure. For thus saith the Lord Jeho- 19 vah; When I shall make thee a desolate city, as the cities that are not inhabited; when I shall bring up the deep upon thee, and the great waters shall cover thee; When 20 I shall bring thee down with them that descend into the pit, to the people of old time; and shall set thee in the lower parts of the earth, in places desolate of old time, with them that descend to the pit, that thou be not inhabited; and I shall appoint glory

CHAP. XXVI. 1. Twelfth year] This reading is adopted, as this whole prophecy must have been delivered after what is said, chap. xxxiii. 21; and if that date be true, this must still be erroneous. There is much difference in the versions. (r) Sept. Syr.

2. Aha, she is broken] Tyre regarded Jerusalem as her rival in trade, and hence her joy on the destruction of that city.

3. As the sea] They shall be as loud, as numerous, as irresistible as the waves of the sea.

5. Spreading of nets] Maundrell observes that the present inhabitants of Tyre are only a few wretches, subsisting chiefly by fishing. The earth which industry had spread upon the rocks has long been removed; and Tyre abides as the prophet foretold it should be.

7—14. Nebuchadnezzar] According to Josephus, Nebuchadnezzar besieged old Tyre for thirteen years; and when he took it the inhabitants fled in their ships, and there was little spoil found in it. It was appointed to utter desolation. Old Tyre was never restored.

15—21. Shall not the isles] Tyre and Sidon had sent out many colonies, into various parts of the coasts and islands in the Mediterranean; and by trade and commerce they were connected with distant nations. The report of her fall would excite grief and fear in distant countries; so that the people would sit on the ground, as was usual in a season of solemn mourning.

17. (a) Syr.

20. Appoint glory] Give glory to Nebuchadnezzar, thy conqueror. Others refer this to the restoration of Israel, which should become again a powerful people, and their land be a happy and glorious land.

21 in the land of the living: I will make thee a terror, and thou shalt be no more: and thou shalt be sought for, but shalt not be found any more for ever, saith the Lord Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXVII.

The prophet describes the trade, wealth, and glory of Tyre; and then declares her great and final overthrow.

1 THE word of Jehovah came again unto me, saying, Now, thou son of man, take up
3 a lamentation for Tyre; And say unto Tyre, O thou that art situated at the entering in of the sea, who art a merchant of the people to many isles; Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; O Tyre, thou hast said I am perfect in beauty. Thy borders are in the midst of the seas, thy builders have perfected thy beauty. They have made all thy ship-boards of fir trees from Senir: they have taken cedars from Lebanon to make 6 masts for thee. Of the terebinths of Bashan have they made thine oars; thy benches have they made of ivory, inlaid in box, from the isles of the Chittites. Fine linen with embroidered work from Egypt was spread forth to be thy standard; blue and purple from the isles of Elisha were thy covering.
8 The inhabitants of Sidon and Arvad were thy rowers, thy wise men, O Tyre, that were in thee, were thy pilots: The ancients of Gebal and the wise men thereof were thy calkers. All the ships of the sea with their mariners were in thee to trade in thy market.
10 Thy of Persia, and of Lud, and of Phut, were thy warriors, in thine army: they hanged the shield and helmet in thee; they set forth 11 thy glory. The men of Arvad with thine army were upon thy walls round about, and the Gammadites were in thy towers: they hanged their quivers upon thy walls round about;
12 they have made thy beauty perfect. Tarshish was thy trafficker, by reason of the multitude of all thy substance; with silver, iron, tin, and lead, they traded in thy fairs. Javan, Tubal, and Meshech, these were thy 13 merchants in the persons of men, and with vessels of brass they furnished thy market. They of the house of Togormah 14 furnished thy fairs with horses and horsemen and mules. The men of Dedan were thy 15 merchants; many isles were the marts for thy manufactures: they returned thee for thy price, horns, ivory, and ebony. 'Edom' 16 was thy trafficker through the multitude of thy works; with rubies, purple, and embroidered work, and fine linen, and coral, and carbuncles they furnished thy fairs. Judah, and the land of Israel, were thy merchants: with wheat, myrrh, and panic, and honey, and oil, and balm, they furnished thy market. Damascus was thy trafficker through 18 the multitude of thy works, and the abundance of all thy substance; in the wine of Helbon, and in white wool. Dan also and 19 Javan from Uzal, were in thy fairs: they furnished wrought iron; cassia and sweet-reed were in thy market. Dedan was thy merchant in gorgeous apparel for horsemen. Arabia, and all the princes of Kedar, were 21 traffickers in thy manufactures: in lambs, and rams, and goats, in these they became thy merchants. The merchants of Sheba 22 and Raamah, they were thy merchants: with chief of all spices, and with all precious stones, and gold, they furnished thy fairs. Haran, and Canneh, and Eden were thy 23 merchants: Sheba, Asshur, and Chilmad were in thy markets. These were thy merchants in excellent wares; in mantles of blue and of embroidered work, and in chests of rich apparel, bound with cords, and made of cedar among thy merchandise. The ships 25 of Tarshish were thy chief traders in thy market; and thou wast replenished, and made very glorious in the midst of the seas.

CHAP. XXVII. 3. Perfect in beauty] Wanting nothing to induce the nations to seek thy friendship.

4. In the midst of the seas] This regards old Tyre, which was situated on an island, and not on the main land. See chap. xxvi. 5—19.

5. From Senir] This was a part of the ridge of Hermon, in the eastern half tribe of Manasseh. Deuter. iii. 9. and 1 Chron. v. 26.

6. Isles of the Chittites] From Italy, and from distant islands. Corsica was famous for the box-tree, in ancient times.

7. Fine linen] Egypt was famed for these articles, and the Tyrians bought and exported them.—Isles of Elisha] Peloponessus, called Helas, where was found the purple so much valued by the ancients.

8. Arvad] The island of Aradus, on the coast of Phœnicia. Compare Gen. x. 18.

9. Gebal] Bochart has made it probable that this is the place called by the Greeks Biblos, which was also on the coast of Phœnicia.—All the ships] Ships from all countries visited her harbour, for the purpose of trade.

10, 11. Were thy warriors] Tyre employed mercenaries from distant countries to defend her, and strengthen her against her enemies.—Gammadites] From the connexion one would suppose these were the inhabitants of some district in Phœnicia. There is doubt respecting the text.

12. Tarshish] From Spain the following metals were brought. Pliny asserts that Spain was famous for her silver mines.

13. Javan] Greece, Dan. viii. 21.—Tubal and Meshech] Sons of Japhet. See Gen. x. 12, and note.

14. Togormah] See Gen. x. 3. Michaelis prefers Armenia, which was much celebrated for its fine breed of horses.

15. Dedan] Supposed to be a city in the Persian Gulf.

16. Edom was] As the Syrian trade is mentioned after, under the name of Damascus, it is not probable that it would be mentioned here. On this account the various reading of the Sept. Syr. Arab. is adopted.

17. Wheat, myrrh] The land of Judah produced more than sufficed the people, and Tyre took of them what of these articles they could spare. In this way the Jews acquired their wealth.

18. The wine of Helbon] Supposed to be the same as Chalybeonian wine, which was produced at Damascus.

19. Dan and Javan] Michaelis supposes both these were cities of Arabia Felix. Javan may be pronounced Yeman, and Uzal was a city of that district, Gen. x. 27.

20—23. Dedan] The various tribes which inhabited

26 The rowers have brought thee into great waters: the east wind hath broken thee in 27 the midst of the seas. Thy substance and thy fairs, thy markets, thy sailors, and thy pilots, thy calkers, and the traders in thy market, and all thy warriors that are in thee, and all thy company that is in the midst of thee, shall fall into the midst of the seas in 28 the day of thy fall. At the sound of the cry
 29 of thy pilots, the suburbs shall shake. And all that handle the oar, the sailors, and all the pilots of the sea, shall come down from their ships, and shall stand upon the shore;
 30 And shall cause their voice to be heard for thee, and shall cry bitterly, and shall cast dust upon their heads; they shall wallow
 31 themselves in ashes: And they shall make themselves utterly bald for thee, and gird themselves with sackcloth, and they shall weep for thee with bitterness of heart and bitter
 32 mourning. And in their wailing they shall take up a lamentation for thee, and shall lament over thee, saying, What city is like Tyre, which is cut off in the midst of the sea?
 33 When thy wares went forth from the seaports, thou didst satisfy many people; with the multitude of thy substance, and of thy merchandise, thou didst enrich the kings of 34 the earth. Now thou art broken in the seas, and thy merchandise in the midst of the waters: and all thy company in the midst
 35 of thee are fallen. All the inhabitants of the isles are astonished at thee, and their kings are horribly afraid, they are troubled 36 in their countenance. The traffickers among the people hiss at thee; thou art become a terror, and thou shalt not be restored any more for ever.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

God's judgment on the prince of Tyre; a lamentation over his glory lost by sin; the judgment of Sidon, and the restoration of Israel.

1 THE word of Jehovah came again unto 2 me, saying, Son of man, say unto the prince of Tyre, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Because thy heart is lifted up, and thou hast said, I am a god, I sit in the seat of God, in the midst of the seas; yet thou art a man and not God, though thou set thy heart as the heart of God: Behold, thou art wiser 3 than Daniel: there is no secret which can be hidden from thee: By thy wisdom and 4 by thine understanding thou hast gotten thee substance, and hast gotten gold and silver in thy treasures: By the greatness of thy 5 wisdom and by thy traffick hast thou multiplied thy wealth, and thy heart is lifted up because of thy wealth: Therefore thus saith 6 the Lord Jehovah; Because thou hast set thy heart as the heart of God; Therefore,

 7 behold, I will bring upon thee strangers, the terrible of the nations: and they shall draw their swords against the beauty of thy wisdom, and they shall defile thy brightness. They shall bring thee down to the pit, and 8 thou shalt die the death of the slain in the midst of the seas. Wilt thou yet say, I am
 9 a god, before them that kill thee? whereas thou art a man, and no God, in the hand of them that kill thee. Thou shalt die the death
 10 of the uncircumcised by the hand of strangers: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord Jehovah.

Moreover the word of Jehovah came unto
 11 me, saying, Son of man take up a lamenta-
 12 tion for the king of Tyre, and say unto him, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah;
 Thou art 'like a signet' curiously engraved;
 Thou art full of wisdom, and perfect in beauty.

Thou hast been in Eden, the garden of God. 13
 Every precious stone was thy covering,
 The ruby, the topaz, and the diamond,
 The beryl, the onyx, and the jasper,
 The sapphire, the emerald, and the carbuncle.
 And of gold was the work of thy tabrets and pipes.

They were prepared in the day of thy birth.
 I made thee as an anointed covering cherub; 14
 Thou wast upon the holy mount of God;
 Thou didst walk to and fro amidst stones of fire.

Arabia Petra, as well as the other called Felix, frequented the Tyrian ports and markets.

26. The rowers] The statesmen have brought her into the greatest danger, and her enemy was ready to overwhelm her.

29. Stand upon the shore] The shore of the adjoining island, from which they viewed the conflagration of their city.

30—34. Their voice to be heard] They shall be greatly distressed at the sight of thy calamities and destruction; they shall most bitterly lament thy fall.

CHAP. XXVIII. 2. Prince of Tyre] He was called Ithobal. His pride and arrogance appear in what is here said. — I sit in the seat] I am raised to such power that none can equal me; and to such rank that none can approach me.

3. Wiser than Daniel] See chap. xiv. 14, and note. He thought himself to be so, and that no matter could be too abstruse for him.

6. As the heart of God] That is, in thy own imagination thou supposest thyself to be invincible, and secure against all enemies, as God is.

7. The terrible] The most warlike, who strike terror into nations; and by their swords they shall prove that thy wisdom and glory cannot save thee.

9. I am a god] Wilt thou pretend to divinity, when thou fallest into the hands of men, who will put thee to death? This is a cutting sarcasm on his pride.

12. A signet] Or having an image upon it. I have followed the versions, as no sense can be made of the text.

13. In Eden] Thou hast enjoyed every delight.—Thy covering] In the canopy of thy throne, or thy garments have been adorned with them.

14. As an anointed covering cherub] The prophet describes the prince of Tyre by images taken from the temple. The cherubs were a part of the ark, and therefore anointed, Exod. xxv. 18, 21; xxx. 26. Their wings covered the mercy-seat. The prophet pursues the image. Such was thy eminence, that thou wast placed like the cherubs in the temple of God, on his holy mountain, and dwelt as if amid the splendours of the high-priest's breast-plate. Thinking

15 Thou wast perfect in thy ways from the day of thy birth.

Until iniquity was found in thee.

16 Through the abundance of thy merchandise Thou art filled with violence and hast sinned;

Hence will I cast thee as profane from the mount of God:

And I will destroy thee, O covering cherub, From amidst the stones of fire.

17 Thy heart was lifted up because of thy beauty; [brightness:

Thou hast corrupted thy wisdom by thy I will cast thee down to the ground;

I will lay thee before kings, to be despised.

18 Through the multitude of thine iniquities.

Through the unrighteousness of thy traffick, Thou hast profaned thy sanctuary:

Hence will I bring forth a fire from thee to devour thee, [earth:

And I will bring thee to ashes upon the Before the eyes of all that look upon thee.

19 All that know thee among the people,

Shall be astonished concerning thee:

Thou shalt become an object of terror, And not be restored any more for ever.

20 Again the word of Jehovah came unto

21 me, saying, Son of man, set thy face against

22 Sidon, and prophesy against it; And say,

Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Behold, I am against thee, O Sidon; and I will be glorified in the midst of thee; and they shall know that I am Jehovah, when I execute judgments in her, and am sanctified in her.

23 For I will send upon her pestilence, and blood into her streets; and the wounded shall fall in the midst of her by the sword, which shall be upon her on every side; and they shall know that I am Jehovah.

24 And there shall be no more to the house of Israel, a pricking brier, or a grieving thorn of all that are round about them, that despised them; and they shall know that I am

25 the Lord Jehovah. Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; When I assemble the house of Israel from the people among whom they are scattered, then will I be sanctified through them in the sight of the nations, and they shall dwell in their own land which

I gave to my servant Jacob. And they shall dwell securely therein, and shall build houses and plant vineyards; yea, they shall dwell with confidence, when I have executed judgments upon all those that despised them round about; and they shall know that I am Jehovah, their God.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Pharaoh threatened for his treachery; desolation and restoration of Egypt after forty years; spoil of Egypt a reward to Nebuchadnezzar; Israel to be restored.

IN the tenth year, in the tenth month, on the twelfth day of the month, the word of Jehovah came unto me, saying, Son of man, set thy face against Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and prophesy against him, and against all Egypt; Speak, and say, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Behold, I am against thee, Pharaoh, king of Egypt, the great dragon that lieth in the midst of his rivers, that saith, My river is mine own, and I have made it for myself. And I will put hooks in thy jaws, and I will cause the fish of thy river to cleave to thy scales, and I will bring thee up out of the midst of thy rivers, and all the fish of thy rivers shall cleave to thy scales. And I will leave thee in the desert, thee and all the fish of thy rivers; thou shalt fall upon the open fields, thou shalt not be gathered together, nor assembled; I have given thee for food to the beasts of the field, and to the fowls of the air. And all the inhabitants of Egypt shall know that I am Jehovah, because they have been a staff of reed to the house of Israel. When they took hold of thee by the hand, thou wast crushed, and didst tear all their shoulder; and when they leaned upon thee, thou wast broken, and didst strain all their loins.

Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Behold, I will bring a sword upon thee, and cut off from thee man and beast. And the land of Egypt shall be desolate and waste; and they shall know that I am Jehovah. Because thou hast said, The river is mine, and I have made it. Therefore, lo, I am against thee, and against thy rivers, and I will make the land of Egypt utterly waste and desolate, from Migdol to Syene, even unto the himself to be more than mortal, is expressed by his being as Adam was in Paradise, or as the cherubs were in a place not to be approached.

16. Cast thee as profane] No supposed divinity shall protect thee, when the time of thy visitation cometh.

18. From thee to devour thee] That is, the city, as well as the king. Their counsels should be divided, and dissension should tend to destroy them.

21—23. Sidon] She was the mother-city of Tyre; and a similar fate awaited her.

24—26. A pricking brier] God would pardon his people, and restore them; and the contiguous nations should not be to them as the pricking brier, &c. Numb. xxxiii. 55.

CHAP. XXIX. 3. The great dragon] Or crocodile, which was among the ancients a symbol of Egypt, and appears so on Roman coins.—In the midst of his rivers] The Nile had seven mouths; rivers also emptied themselves into it, and channels were cut from it.

4, 5. Hooks in thy jaws] The metaphor is continued in these verses. The dragon or crocodile was to be caught, together with the other fish, and their flesh given to the wild beasts and birds.

6, 7. A staff of reed] The Egyptians promised support to the Israelites, but disappointed them; they even occasionally proved most injurious to them.

10. Migdol] This place is mentioned Exod. xiv. 2; Num. xxxiii. 7; Jerem. xlv. 1; and was situated to the north, as Syene was to the south; so that the whole land is threatened.

- 11 border of Ethiopia. There shall not pass through it the foot of man, and the foot of beast shall not pass through it; neither shall 12 it be inhabited forty years. And I will make the land of Egypt waste in the midst of the countries that are wasted, and her cities in the midst of cities that are made desolate, shall be waste forty years; and I will scatter the Egyptians through the nations, and will disperse them through the lands.
- 13 Yet thus saith the Lord Jehovah; At the end of forty years will I assemble the Egyptians from among the people whither they 14 are scattered. And I will reverse the captivity of Egypt, and will cause them to return into the land of Pathros, unto the land of their origin; and they shall be there a low 15 kingdom. It shall be the lowest of the kingdoms; neither shall it exalt itself any more above the nations; for I will diminish them, so that they shall no more rule over 16 the nations. And they shall be no more the confidence of the house of Israel, calling their iniquity to remembrance, when they turn after them; but they shall know that I am the Lord Jehovah.
- 17 And it came to pass in the seven and twentieth year, in the first month, on the first day of the month, that the word of Jehovah came 18 unto me, saying, Son of man, Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, caused his army to serve a great service against Tyre; every head was made bald, and every shoulder was made sore; yet neither he nor his army had any wages from Tyre, for the service
19 which he served against it; Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Behold, I will give the land of Egypt unto Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon; and he shall take her multitude, and share her spoil, and seize her plunder; and she shall be wages for his army. I have given him the land of Egypt 20 for his labour wherewith he served against it: because of that which they have done against me, saith the Lord Jehovah.

In that day will I cause the horn of the 21 house of Israel to grow forth, and I will give thee the opening of the mouth in the midst of them; and they shall know that I am Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXX.

The utter desolation of Egypt foretold; the army of Babylon strengthened to break the army of Egypt.

THE word of Jehovah came also unto me, 1 saying, Son of man, prophesy and say, Thus 2 saith the Lord Jehovah; Howl ye, alas for the day! Because the day is near, it is near: 3 the day of Jehovah shall be a day of clouds, it shall be the time of the nations. And the 4 sword shall come upon Egypt, and great pain shall be in Ethiopia, when the slain shall fall in Egypt, and they shall take away her multitude, and her foundations shall be destroyed. Ethiopia, and Phut, and Lud, 5 and all Arabia, and Chub, and the men of every land that is in league, shall fall with them by the sword.

Thus saith Jehovah; They that uphold 6 Egypt shall fall; and the pride of her strength shall come down: from Migdol to Syene, shall they fall in her by the sword, saith the Lord Jehovah. And they shall be 7 wasted in the midst of the lands that are wasted, and her cities shall be in the midst of the cities that are made desolate. And they 8 shall know that I am Jehovah, when I shall set a fire in Egypt, and when all her helpers shall be destroyed. In that day messengers 9 shall go forth in ships to make secure Ethiopia afraid, and great pain shall come upon them in the day of Egypt; for lo, it cometh.

11. Forty years] Jeremiah calls the king of Egypt, Pharaoh-Hophra, chap. xlv. 30, and Herodotus, Apries. He went to assist the king of Lybia, to reduce to subjection the Cyrenians, who had revolted; but in this war Pharaoh lost many of his troops, which so provoked the Egyptians against him, that a civil war with Amasis followed; which was succeeded by the conquest of it by Nebuchadnezzar, and that by another under Cyrus. These wars and desolations continued for forty years.

12. I will scatter] Berosus informs us that Nebuchadnezzar carried many of the Egyptians captives to Babylon; and he transplanted others to Pontus.

14. Unto Pathros] Bochart shows that this signifies the Thebais, or Upper Egypt. See Jerem. xlv. 1, &c. What is here said might occur on the conquest of it by Cyrus, as he restored the captive Jews, and some of other nations.

15. The lowest of the kingdoms] It shall be in general tributary, and in subjection to strangers. It has been so ever since; first to the Babylonians, then to the Persians, Macedonians, Romans, Saracens, Mamelucs, and Turks; and thus it continues.

16. Calling their iniquity] Causing God to remember and punish it. His own people shall cease to rely on Egypt, or to worship its idols.

17. Twenty-seventh year] If this date be correct, and both the Versions and MSS. support it, this is the last prophecy Ezekiel uttered; and is appended to the preceding, because it relates to the same kingdom. Prideaux argues that the Phœnician annals agree with this date. See Neb. xxxii. Cor.

18. Made bald] By the helmet, by labour or disease, as the shoulder was worn and galled by bearing burdens for so long a period.—Yet neither he] The Tyrians being masters at sea, took their most valuable property and escaped; so that when the city was taken, Nebuchadnezzar found nothing in it worthy of all his labour. Hence the spoil of Egypt was given to him.

21. The horn of the] The horn often denotes kingly power, or the royal race. Here it may refer to the power granted Daniel and others in Babylon, as well as refer to Zerubbabel, under whom the state began to be restored. These marks of favour encouraged the prophet in the execution of his office.

CHAP. XXX. 3. The time of the] The time appointed for Nebuchadnezzar to vanquish them.

5. Ethiopia, Phut, and Lud] See Gen. x. 1.—Arabia and Chub] This last occurs nowhere else. It is probable that the Egyptians employed the mercenaries of all the peoples mentioned.

9. Messengers shall go] Amidst the general confusion they shall send messengers in ships up the Nile to Ethiopia, as the most safe method of conveying intelligence; and the news they carry shall strike terror into the secure Ethiopians.—(o) From me] Sept. Arab.

- 10 Thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; I will also make the multitude of Egypt to cease, by the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon. He and his people with him, the terrible of the nations, shall be brought to make the land desolate : and they shall draw their swords against Egypt, and fill the land with the slain. And I will make the rivers dry, and sell the country into the hand of evil men ; and I will lay waste the country, and all that is therein, by the hand of strangers : I, Jehovah, have spoken it.
- 13 Thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; I will destroy the idols, and I will cause the images to cease out of Noph ; and there shall be no more a prince of the land of Egypt : and I will cause fear in the land of Egypt. And I will lay waste Pathros, and will set a fire in Zoan, and will execute judgments in No.
- 15 And I will pour my fury upon Sin, the strength of Egypt ; and I will cut off the multitude of No. And I will set a fire in Egypt : Sin shall be greatly pained, and No shall be broken up, and Noph shall be straitened by day. The young men of On and of Pi-beseth shall fall by the sword : and the "women" shall go into captivity. At Tahapanes also the day shall be darkened, when I break there the yokes of Egypt : and the pride of her strength shall cease in her : as for her, a cloud shall cover her, and her daughters shall go into captivity.
- 19 Thus will I execute judgments on Egypt : and they shall know that I am Jehovah.
- 20 Now it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the first month, on the seventh day of the month, that the word of Jehovah came unto me, saying, Son of man, I have broken the arm of Pharaoh, king of Egypt ; and lo, it shall not be bound up in applying medicines ; and a bandage shall not be put about it, to strengthen it for holding the sword.
- 22 Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; Behold, I am against Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and will break his arms, the strong, and the "outstretched" arm ; and I will cause the sword to fall out of his hand.
- 23 And I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and will disperse them among the
- 24 countries. And I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and will put my sword in his hand. But I will break the arms of Pharaoh, and he shall groan before him, with the groanings of a deadly wounded man. I will even strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and the arms of Pharaoh shall fall down. And they shall know that I am Jehovah, when I shall put my sword into the hand of the king of Babylon, and shall stretch it out upon the land of Egypt. And I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and disperse them among the countries ; and they shall know that I am Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXXI.

Pharaoh compared to a tall cedar of Lebanon ; his fall through pride, and the consequences of it.

Now it came to pass in the eleventh year, I in the third month, on the first day of the month, that the word of Jehovah came unto me, saying, Son of man, say to Pharaoh, 2 king of Egypt, and to his multitude ; Whom art thou like in thy greatness ? Lo, he is as a tall cedar in Lebanon, 3 With lovely, shadowing branches, and of high stature ; And his top was among the thick boughs. The waters made him great, 4 The deep raised him up on high ; It brought its streams about his plantation, And sent forth its rivulets to all the trees of the field. Therefore his height was exalted above all the 5 trees of the field ; And his boughs were multiplied, And his branches were lengthened, By abundance of water when he shot forth. In his boughs nested all the fowls of the air, 6 And under his branches all the wild beasts brought forth ; And under his shadow dwelt many nations. Thus he was beautiful in his greatness, 7 And in the length of his branches : For his root was by many waters. The cedars in the garden of God could not 8 hide him ; The fir trees were not like his boughs, Nor the plane-trees like his branches ; Not any tree in the garden of God

12. The rivers dry] The fertility of Egypt depended on the rise of the Nile ; and this threatening implies that with the calamity of war, would be that of famine.—Evil men] The haughty and cruel Babylonians. Comp. chap. vii. 24.

13—18. Destroy the idols] Cambyses destroyed them with an unsparring hand. All the strong cities shall be taken and plundered ; none shall escape.

17. (a) Sept. Arab.

21. I have broken] God speaks as if this was already done, because the event was certain. So Jerem. xlviii. 20. Isa. xxi. 9, a future event is spoken of as past.—The arm] Jeremiah uses the same image, chap. xlviii. 25. His arm shall not be set again, or in plain language, he shall not recover his lost power. See Isa. i. 6.

22—26. Break his arms] Read 2 Kings xxiv. 7, as the fulfilment of what is here said.—(v) Sept.

CHAP. XXXI. 3. Lo, he is as a tall] I consider אשור as an epithet in this place, with Lowth and other critics. The exigence of the place requires this unusual sense, or else that we should suppose the word a mistake for some other.

4. The deep raised] The subterraneous waters supplied its root with moisture.—Its streams] This alludes to the manner of watering the gardens in the east. Ps. i. 3, and Isa. i. 20.

5—9. His height was] Nothing can exceed the force and beauty of this picture of growing prosperity. Every circumstance is added to give it effect.

- Was like unto him in his beauty.
 9 I made him lovely by his many branches;
 So that all the trees of Eden, [him.
 Which were in the garden of God, envied

 In the day when he went down to hades,
 I caused the deep to mourn for him.
 And I restrained floods, and the great waters were stayed:
 And I clothed Lebanon in black for him,
 And for him all the trees of the field fainted.

 17 They also went down with him to hades,
 To them that were slain by the sword;

10. And his heart] The mixture of the true with the allegorical occurs in other instances; and though it detracts in some degree from the beauty of the allegory, yet it prevents our mistaking the sense of it.

11. Who hath exacted] Or, who hath treated him severely. See the verb in a like sense, chap. xx. 44; xxii. 14.

13. Upon his ruin] Even the fallen trunk and broken branches of this stately tree filled the land, and afforded shelter to birds and to beasts.

15. I caused the deep] Houbigant and others omit נסתר, which cannot be in any way reduced to grammar or propriety. Nothing can paint more forcibly the effect of the fall of Egypt on the contiguous nations.—(o) I covered, Sept.

16, 17. At the sound] This lofty tree goes down to hades

 To whom art thou like in "strength," in 18 glory

 Thou shalt lie in the midst of the uncircum-

 This is the lot of Pharaoh and all his multitude, saith the Lord Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXXII.

A lamentation for the fall of Egypt, by the sword of Babylon.

It came to pass also in the twelfth year, 1 in the twelfth month, on the first day of the month, that the word of Jehovah came unto me, saying, Son of man, take up a lamenta- 2
 tion for Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and say unto him,
 Thou art like a lion among the nations,
 And thou art like a crocodile in the seas:
 And thou breakest forth in thy rivers,
 And troublest the waters with thy feet,
 And thou foulest thy streams.
 Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; 3
 I will therefore spread out my net over thee.
 Amidst an assembly of many people:
 And they shall bring thee up in my drag.
 And I will leave them on the land, 4
 I will cast thee on the open field, [on thee,
 And cause all the fowls of the air to remain
 And fill the beasts of the whole earth with thee.
 And I will lay thy flesh upon the mountains, 5
 And fill up the valleys with thy height.
 I will water the earth with thy gore; 6
 Some of thy blood shall be on the mountains,
 And the streams shall be filled with thee.
 And I will cover the heavens, when I 7 quench thee.
 And I will clothe the stars thereof with black;
 I will cover the sun also with a cloud,
 And the moon shall not give her light.
 All the shining lights of the heavens 8
 I will clothe with black over thee;
 And I will set darkness upon thy land, together with his allies, and with his own seed or branches. This allegory is not equal to the fine one of Isaiah, chap. xiv, respecting the king of Babylon.—(v) Sept. Syr.

18. (v) Sept.

CHAP. XXXII. 2. In the seas] Comp. chap. xxix. 3. Any large collection of water is called seas in the scriptures. The next clause is parallel to this.—Breakest forth] Rises above the water to seize his prey.

3—6. My net over thee] This crocodile shall be caught, and slain, and its carcass so given as food for wild beasts; while its blood is to drench the earth, and even to fill the streams.

7, 8. Clothe the stars] It has often been noticed that these images represent the fall and destruction of kings, princes, and nations. See Isa. xiii. 10.

- Saith the Lord Jehovah.
 9 I will also grieve the hearts of many people,
 When I bring thy 'captives' among the nations,
 Into countries which thou hast not known.
 10 Yea, because of thee I will astonish many people,
 [thee,
 And their kings shall be horribly afraid for
 When I shall brandish my sword before them;
 And they shall tremble every moment,
 Every one for his life, in the day of thy fall.
 11 For thus saith the Lord Jehovah;
 The sword of the king of Babylon shall come upon thee.
 12 By the swords of the mighty ones,
 I will cause thy multitude to fall.
 The terrible of the nations, all of them :
 And they shall spoil the pride of Egypt,
 And all her multitude shall be destroyed.
 13 I will also cause all her beasts to perish
 From beside the great waters ;
 And the foot of man shall not again trouble them,
 Nor shall the hoofs of beasts trouble them.
 14 Then will I make their waters clear,
 And will cause their rivers to run as oil,
 Saith the Lord Jehovah ; [late,
 15 When I shall make the land of Egypt desolate
 And the land shall be deprived of its fulness,
 When I shall smite all that dwell therein ;
 And they shall know that I am Jehovah.
 16 This is the lamentation which they shall utter :
 the daughters of the nation shall utter it,
 for Egypt, and for all her multitude, shall they utter it,
 saith the Lord Jehovah.
 17 It came to pass also in the twelfth year, on the fifteenth day of the month, that the word 18 of Jehovah came unto me, saying, Son of man, wail for the multitude of Egypt, and cast them down, together with her, and the daughters of the famous nations, unto the lower parts of the earth, with them that go down into the pit,
 saying,
 19 Come down from the pleasant waters,
 And be thou laid with the uncircumcised.

They shall fall amidst those slain by the sword :
 She is delivered up to the sword : [sword :
 Draw her away and all her multitudes.
 The strongest of the mighty shall speak to 21
 him, [hades :
 Together with his helpers, from amidst
 They that have gone down, that lie uncircumcised,
 Among those slain by the sword.
 There is Ashur, and all her company : 22
 Their graves are round about her :
 All of them slain, fallen by the sword :
 Whose graves are set in the sides of the pit, 23
 And her company is round about her grave :
 All of them slain, fallen by the sword,
 Who caused "their" terror among the living.
 There is Elam and all her multitude, 24
 Round about her grave ;
 All of them slain, fallen by the sword,
 Who are gone down uncircumcised
 Into the lower parts of the earth,
 Who caused their terror among the living ;
 Yet have they borne their shame,
 With them that go down to the pit ;
 They are laid in the midst of the slain.

9. Thy captives] This reading of the Sept. is so apposite that I have adopted it with others. It is unusual to speak of bringing thy destruction among the nations, not to say wholly improper.

15. From beside] The banks of the Nile were very fertile, and abundance of cattle fed in the meadows ; but these should perish. The land should be so depopulated that the waters should not be fouled by man or beast.

19. Come down] This version arises from reading the text with other vowels than the Masorets have applied, and is that of the Sept. Alex. and Syr. The pleasant waters are those of the Nile, in which the Egyptians gloried.

20. She is delivered up] Egypt, and as one slain, draw her body away to the sepulchre.

21. Speak to him] To Pharaoh, as the head of Egypt. On his fall those who had departed into the unseen state should address him.

22. Their graves] I refer the affix קבריהם and זמורה, which nouns I consider to be of the common gender.

23. In the sides of the pit] Or, within the pit, or as some, 820

in the extreme parts of the pit.—Who caused their terror] Who excited terror in others, while they were 'among the living.' Hebrew, 'in the land of the living.' The Assyrian empire had been formidable, but had long ago perished.—(a) Sept. Arab.

24. Elam and all] Persia had been subdued by the force of Cyaxares and Nebuchadnezzar ; and the latter annexed it to the Babylonian empire.

26. Meshech, Tubal] Jackson, in his chronology, observes that this refers to the expulsion of the Scythians from Media by Cyaxares.

27. And these lie] I follow the Sept. and Syr. in omitting the negative particle. Some would preserve it, rendering interrogatively, 'and shall they not lie down with the mighty? Who are fallen, &c.' Instead of 'the uncircumcised,' the Sept. read בְּעִלְיָהֶם, 'of old,' and Dathe prefers this, whom Newcome follows. I have adhered to the text, because I conceive this verse clearly connected with the preceding, and not treating of a new subject.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Ezekiel admonished of his duty as a watchman ; God's ways are just ; mockers will be punished.

1 AGAIN the word of Jehovah came unto
 2 me, saying, Son of man, speak to the children of thy people, and say unto them, When I bring the sword upon a land, and the people of the land take a man out of their borders, and set him for their watchman, And he seeth the sword coming on the land, and bloweth the trumpet, and warneth the people, and they hear ; Whosoever heareth the sound of the trumpet, and taketh not warning ; and the sword cometh and taketh him away, his blood shall be put upon his own head : He heard the sound of the trumpet, and took not warning ; his blood shall be upon him : but he that taketh warning 6 shall save his own life. But if the watchman see the sword coming, and blow not the trumpet, and the people be not warned ; and the sword come, and take away any person from among them ; he is taken away for his iniquity, but his blood will I require at the watchman's hand.

So thou, Son of man, I have set thee a 7 watchman unto the house of Israel ; therefore hear the word from my mouth, and warn them from me. When I say unto the wicked, 8 O wicked man, thou shalt surely die ; and thou dost not speak to warn the wicked from his way ; that wicked man shall die for his iniquity ; but his blood will I require at thy hand. Yet if thou warn the wicked of his 9 way that he turn from it, and he turn not from his way, he shall die for his iniquity ; but thou hast delivered thy soul.

Thou also, Son of man, speak unto the 10 house of Israel ; Thus ye speak, saying, Surely our transgressions and our sins are upon us, and we pine away in them, how then shall we live ? Say unto them, As I live, 11 saith the Lord Jehovah, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked ; but in that the wicked turn from his way and live : turn ye, turn ye, from your evil ways ; for why will ye die, O house of Israel ?

Thou also, Son of man, say unto the chil- 12 dren of thy people, The righteousnessness of the righteous shall not deliver him in the day of his transgression : and as for the wickedness of the wicked, he shall not fall thereby in the day that he turneth from his wickedness ; neither shall the righteous be able to live for his righteousnessness in the day of his sin. When I say to the righteous, He shall surely 13 live ; and he trusteth to his own righteousnessness, and committeth iniquity, all his righteousnesses shall not be remembered, but for his iniquity which he hath committed, for it he shall die. Again, when I say unto the 14 wicked, Thou shalt surely die, and he turneth from his sin, and doeth judgment and justice ; And the wicked restoreth the pledge, 15 giveth that again which he had taken by violence, walketh in the statutes of life, without committing iniquity ; he shall surely

28. And thou also] This is addressed to the king of Egypt. Uncircumcised is used for all foreign nations, as distinguished from Israel.

29. Who in their might] That is, who in their strongest state were cut off, and laid, &c. It is generally supposed that Edom was subdued during the siege of Tyre.

30. Princes of the north] Probably the Syrian kings are intended, as the Sidonians are mentioned in connexion with them.

31. Comforted] See chap. xxxi. 16. It shall afford him some consolation that he only falls in the manner others have done.—(v) Sept. Syr. Arab.

CHAP. XXXIII. 1. The word of Jehovah] It is plain that this was delivered before Jerusalem was taken ; but how long before is uncertain.

2. Out of their borders] These were the proper stations for watchmen.

3—6. And he seeth] By thus acting, he performs the office of a faithful watchman, and if the people take not warning, it is their own fault, and should they be cut off, their blood will be upon their own heads. But should the watchman be unfaithful, and neglect to give the warning, then will the loss which this may occasion be required of him.

7—9. So thou, son of man] Compare chap. iii. 17—21, and see notes.

10, 11. We pine away in them] We experience the bitter consequences in famine, disease, and exile ; and how can we live ? How can such assurances as thou givest us be true ? Compare chap. xviii. 23—32.

12—20. The righteousness] See chap. xviii. 1—30, and notes. While an apostate shall meet with the reward of his apostasy, the penitent offender shall obtain pardon. The man who trusts to some supposed righteousness, and becomes guilty of open transgression, for this he shall die ; while he who takes the warning of God, and shows his repentance by his deeds, shall assuredly live.

16 live, he shall not die. All his sins which he hath committed shall not be remembered against him : he hath done judgment and justice ; he shall surely live. Yet the children of thy people say, The way of the Lord is not equal : but as for them, their way is not equal. When the righteous turneth away from his righteousness and committeth iniquity, he shall die because of it. 17 And when the wicked turneth from his wickedness, and doeth judgment and justice, he shall live because of them. Yet ye say, The way of the Lord is not equal. O ye house of Israel, I will judge you every one according to his own ways. 18 Now it came to pass in the twelfth year of our captivity, in the tenth month, on the fifth day of the month, that one who had escaped out of Jerusalem came unto me, saying, 19 The city is smitten. And the hand of Jehovah was upon me in the evening, before he that had escaped came ; and he had opened my mouth, until he came to me in the morning, and my mouth was opened, and I was no longer dumb. 20 And the word of Jehovah came unto me, 21 saying, Son of man, they that inhabit those wastes in the land of Israel speak, saying, Abraham was one, and he inherited the land ; but we are many ; unto us is the land 22 for an inheritance. Therefore say unto them, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; Ye eat with the blood, and raise your eyes towards your idols, and shed blood : and shall 23 ye possess the land ? Ye stand with your sword, ye commit abomination, and ye defile every one his neighbour's wife : and 24 shall ye possess the land ? Thus shalt thou say unto them, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; As I live, surely they that are in those wastes shall fall by the sword, and him that is in the open field will I give to the beasts to be devoured ; and they that are in the strong holds, and in the caves, shall die of the pestilence. For I will make the land a desolation and an astonishment, and the pride of its strength shall cease ; and the mountains of Israel shall be made desolate, that none shall pass over. Then shall they know 25 that I am Jehovah, when I make the land a desolation and an astonishment, because of all their abominations which they have committed.

Also, thou son of man, the children of thy 26 people are still speaking concerning thee, by the walls and in the doors of the houses, and speak one to another, every one to his neighbour, saying, Come, I pray you, and hear what is the word that goeth forth from Jehovah. And they come unto thee as my people 27 were wont to come, and they sit before thee as my people, and they hear thy words but they will not do them : for though with their mouth they show much love, yet their heart goeth after their gain. And lo, thou art 28 unto them as a very lovely song of one that hath a pleasant voice, and accompanied by an instrument, for they hear thy words, but they do them not. But when this cometh 29 to pass, (lo, it will come,) then shall they know that a prophet hath been among them.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

A reproof of the wicked shepherds ; judgments which must come upon them ; God's care of his flock ; the kingdom of Messiah foretold.

THE word of Jehovah came also unto me, 1 saying, Son of man, prophesy against the 2 shepherds of Israel, prophesy, and say unto them, O ye shepherds, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; Wo to the shepherds of Israel that feed themselves ! Should not the shepherds feed the flock ? Ye eat the fat, and 3 ye clothe you with the wool, and ye slay that which is fat : but ye feed not the flock. The 4 weak ye have not strengthened, and the sick ye have not healed, and that which was broken, ye have not bound up, and that which was driven away ye have not brought again, and ye have not sought that which was lost : but with force and with rigour have ye ruled them. And they were scattered because 5 there was no shepherd : and they became meat to all the beasts of the field, when they were scattered. My flock wandered 6 through all the mountains, and upon every

21. Twelfth year] The Syriac has the eleventh, which reading some prefer. I cannot determine which is right. Compare 2 Kings xxv. 3. 4.

24. Abraham was one] Yet God gave the land to him ; and will he not preserve us in it, when we are many ? The land had been laid waste ; and those that continued in it adopted this language. They supposed that when the Babylonians had departed, they would be suffered to remain in peace.

25, 26. Ye eat with the] They were not reformed by all that they had suffered, but still continued their impure practices.

27—29. In those wastes] What is here denounced occurred on the slaughter of Gedaliah. See Jerem. xli.

30. By the walls] Of their houses where they had benches, and where sometimes they received visits.—Come I pray] Whatever might induce them to listen to the prophet, whether the force of his eloquence, or the curiosity of knowing what would come to pass, they were still unreformed.

CHAR. XXXIV. 1. The word of Jehovah] It is probable that this prophecy immediately followed the preceding. At or before the coming of the messenger who brought the tidings that Jerusalem was taken, the prophet was commissioned to denounce judgments against the priests and governors, and to give the promise of returning to the people.

2. Shepherds] Not the priests and Levites only, but the king and other heads of the people are meant. They regarded their own interest, and not that of the flock.

3—6. Ye eat the fat] They ruled the flock with rigour, so that in effect the flock had none deserving the name of a shepherd.

high hill : yea, my flock was scattered upon all the face of the land, and none did search or seek after them.

- 7 Therefore, ye shepherds, hear the word
8 of Jehovah ; As I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, surely because my flock became a prey, and my flock became meat to every beast of the field, inasmuch as there was no shepherd, neither did my shepherds search after my flock, but the shepherds fed themselves, and fed not my flock ; Therefore, O ye shepherds, hear the word of Jehovah ;
10 Thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; Behold, I am against the shepherds ; and I will require my flock at their hand, and will cause them to cease from feeding the flock ; neither shall the shepherds feed themselves any more ; for I will deliver my flock from their mouth, that they may not be meat for them.
11 For thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; Behold, I, even I, will both search my sheep,
12 and seek them out : As a shepherd seeketh out his flock in the day when he is among his flock that are spread abroad ; so will I seek out my flock, and will deliver them out of all places where they have been scattered
13 in the cloudy and dark day. And I will bring them out from the people, and gather them from the countries : and will bring them to their own land, and feed them upon the mountains of Israel, by the rivers, and in all the dwelling-places of the land.
14 I will feed them in a good pasture, and upon the high mountains of Israel shall their fold be ; there shall they lie down in a good fold, and in a fat pasture shall they feed upon 15 the mountains of Israel. I will feed my flock, and I will cause them to lie down, 16 saith the Lord Jehovah. I will seek that which was lost, and bring again that which was driven away, and will bind up that which was broken, and will strengthen the sick ; and 'I will preserve' the fat and the strong, and will feed them with discretion.
17 And as for you, O my flock, thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; Behold, I will judge between cattle and cattle, even the rams and 18 the he-goats. Seemeth it a small thing unto you, that ye not only eat up the good pasture ; but that ye tread down with your feet the remainder of your pastures ; and that ye not only drink the clear waters ; but that ye foul with your feet what remaineth ? And 19 as for my flock, they eat that which ye have trodden with your feet ; and they drink that which ye have fouled with your feet.

Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah 20 unto them ; Behold I, even I, will judge between the fat cattle and the lean cattle. Because ye thrust with your side and with 21 your shoulder, and push all the diseased with your horns, till ye scatter them abroad ; Therefore will I save my flock, and they 22 shall be no more a prey ; and I will judge between cattle and cattle. And I will set up one shepherd over them, and he shall feed them, even my servant David ; he shall feed them, and he shall be their shepherd. And I, Jehovah, will be their God, and my 24 servant David a prince among them ; I, Jehovah, have spoken it. And I will make 25 with them a covenant of peace, and will cause the evil beasts to cease out of the land ; and they shall dwell safely in the desert, and sleep in the woods. And I will make 26 them, and the places round about my hill, a blessing ; and I will cause the shower to come down in its season ; there shall be fertilizing showers. And the trees of the field 27 shall yield their fruit, and the earth shall yield her increase ; and they shall be secure in their land, and shall know that I am Jehovah, when I have broken the bands of their yoke, and delivered them out of the hand of those that exacted service of them. And they shall be no more a prey to the 28 nations, neither shall the beast of the land devour them ; but they shall dwell securely, and none shall make them afraid. And I 29 will raise up for them a renowned plantation, and they shall be no more consumed by famine in the land, neither bear the reproach of the nations any more. Thus shall they 30 know that I, Jehovah their God, am with them, and that they, even the house of Israel, are my people, saith the Lord Jehovah. For ye are my flock, the flock of my pasture,* 31 and I am "Jehovah" your God, saith the Lord Jehovah.

7-10. Therefore ye] Because they had been thus cruel and negligent, God would cut them off.

11-16. Behold I, even I] In the 16th verse, the various reading is adopted, because it is supported by all the versions, and because the designed opposition between the conduct of the bad shepherd, who slew the fat, ver. 3, and God as a good shepherd, is thus properly preserved.—(v) Vers.

17. Between cattle and cattle] God now addresses the flock, and assures them that he will judge between the rams and he-goats that used violence towards the sheep. Some of the people oppressed and injured others. See ver. 20.

23. One shepherd] Grotius would apply this prediction to Zerubbabel, but the circumstances mentioned will by no means agree to him. What is said suits only the Messiah, who was to be the shepherd of Israel. Compare Isa. xl. 11, and John x. 1, &c.

25. A covenant of peace] This is the same covenant as is mentioned by Jeremiah, chap. xxxi. 31-34.

26. Fertilizing showers] Hebrew, 'showers of blessing.' I have given the sense, as the next verse proves. From this verse to the 31st, like Isa. xl. may under the image of a land peaceful, and abounding with the richest produce, be represented the spiritual state of those Jews who believed on and served the Lord Jesus. After the return of the Jews from Babylon, they became numerous, and the land was every where cultivated ; but the language of this passage seems to intimate higher objects.—(v) men, Sept. Arab.

CHAPTER XXXV.

The judgment of the Edomites for their hatred of Israel.

- 1 MOREOVER the word of Jehovah came 2 unto me, saying, Son of man, set thy face against mount Seir, and prophesy against it, 3 And say unto it, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Behold I am against thee, O mount Seir, and will stretch out my hand against thee, and I will make thee a desolation and 4 an astonishment. Thy cities I will lay waste, and thou shalt be desolate; and thou shalt 5 know that I am Jehovah. Because thou hast borne the old hatred, and hast shed the blood of the Israelites by the sword, in the time of their calamity, and in the time that 6 their iniquity was punished; Therefore, as I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, I will deal with thee in blood, and blood shall pursue thee; since thou hast not hated blood, blood 7 shall therefore pursue thee. Thus will I make mount Seir a desolation and an astonishment, and will cut off from it him that 8 passeth out and him that returneth. And I will fill "thy" mountains with "thy" slain:
as for thy hills and thy valleys, and all thy streams, they that are slain with the sword 9 shall fall therein. I will make thee perpetual desolations, and thy cities shall not be inhabited: and ye shall know that I am Jeho-10 vah. Because thou hast said, These two nations and these two countries shall be mine, and we will possess them: whereas 11 Jehovah was there: Therefore, as I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, I will even do according to thine anger, and according to thine envy, which thou hast exercised through thy hatred against them; and I will make myself known among them, when I shall 12 judge thee. And thou shalt know that I, Jehovah, have heard all thy blasphemies which thou hast spoken against the mountains of Israel, saying, They are laid desolate, unto us are they given to be devoured.
13 Thus with your mouth have ye boasted against me, and have multiplied your words against me: I have heard them, "saith the 14 Lord." Thus saith the Lord Jehovah;
When the whole land rejoiceth, I will pre-15 pare desolation for thee. As thou didst rejoice at the inheritance of the house of Israel, because it was desolate, so will I do unto thee: thou shalt be desolate, O mount Seir, and all Edom, even all of it: and they shall know that I am Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

The land of Israel comforted by the promise of many blessings; as Israel was rejected for sin, so they will be restored freely; the blessing of Christ's kingdom.

Also, thou son of man, prophesy unto the mountains of Israel, and say, Ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of Jehovah. Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Because the enemy hath said against you, Aha, even the ancient high-places are in our possession: Therefore prophesy and say, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Because they have made you desolate, and swallowed you up on every side, that ye might be a possession unto the residue of the nations, and ye are taken up in the lips of talkers, and in the defaming of the people; Therefore, ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord Jehovah;
Thus saith the Lord Jehovah to the mountains and to the hills, to the streams and to the valleys, to the desolate wastes, and to the forsaken cities, which are become a prey and a derision to the residue of the nations, that are round about; Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Surely in the fire of my jealousy have I spoken against the residue of the nations, and against all Edom, who have appointed my land to themselves for a possession, with the joy of their whole heart, and with a spiteful mind, to cast it out for a prey. Prophesy, therefore, concerning the land of Israel, and say unto the mountains and to the hills, to the streams and to the valleys, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Behold, I have spoken in my jealousy and in my fury, because ye have borne the reproach of the nations. Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah; I have sworn saying, Surely the nations that are round about you shall also bear their reproach.

But ye, O ye mountains of Israel, shall shoot forth your branches, and yield your fruit to my people Israel, who will soon return. For, behold, I am for you, and I will

CHAP. XXXV. 5. The old hatred] The ancient hatred of Esau towards Jacob is referred to. See chap. xxv. 15. — Iniquity was punished] Hebrew, 'has an end;' but as this is ambiguous, I have preferred the sense. The Edomites slew those Jews who were scattered; and as they had showed no pity, so God declares he would deal with them.

8. (r) Sept. Arab.

9. Not be inhabited] Thus the versions render, and many manuscripts yet so read, and the connexion requires it.

10. These two nations] Israel and Judah are meant. The Edomites hoped to obtain their land, and to rule over any that might remain. They forgot that Jehovah was there, that he had promised to preserve and to bring back his people.

12—15. Unto us are they] So they thought, but their thoughts were vain; for God had determined to do with them, as they had done to his people.

13. (a) Sept. Arab.

CHAP. XXXVI. 1. Ye 'mountains of Israel'] The prophets addressed inanimate objects, to awaken the attention of the people. So Moses, Deuter. xxxii. 1, and Isa. i. 2.

2. Ancient high places] The hills of Zion and Jerusalem seem to be meant. Others suppose the mountainous country of Judea to be intended.

3—7. Therefore prophesy] While describing the designs and spirit of the surrounding nations, the prophet assures them that they would be properly rewarded.

8—15. But ye, O mountains] These are again to be cultivated, and to yield their fruit; and on them will be found both men and cattle. They should be no more reproached.

turn unto you, and ye shall be tilled and 10 sown : And I will multiply men upon you, all the house of Israel, even all of it : and the cities shall be inhabited, and the waste
 11 places shall be built. And I will multiply upon you man and beast ; and they shall increase and bring forth : and I will cause you to be inhabited according to your ancient estate, and will do better unto you than at your beginning : and ye shall know that I
 12 am Jehovah. Yea, I will cause men to walk upon you, even my people Israel ; and they shall possess you, and ye shall be their inheritance, neither shall ye henceforth bereave 13 them of men any more. Thus saith the Lord Jehovah, Because they say of you, Thou land devorest up men, and thou bereavest thy 14 nation ; Therefore thou shalt devour men no more, neither bereave thy nation any 15 more, saith the Lord Jehovah. Neither will I cause men to hear in thee the reproach of the nations any more, neither shalt thou bear the reviling of the people any more, neither shalt thou bereave thy nation any more, saith the Lord Jehovah.
 16 The word of Jehovah came also unto me,
 17 saying, Son of man, when the house of Israel dwelt in their own land, they defiled it by their way and by their doings : their way was before me as the defilement of a removed 18 woman. Wherefore I poured my fury upon them for the blood which they had sined upon the land, and because they had polluted it with their idols. And I scattered 19 them among the nations, and they were dispersed through the countries : according to their way and according to their doings I
 20 judged them. And when they came unto the nations whither they went, they polluted my holy name, when they said to them, These are the people of Jehovah, and they are gone forth out of his land.
 21 But I have had pity on them for my holy name, which the house of Israel have polluted among the nations, whither they are 22 gone. Therefore say to the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; I do not this for your sakes, O house of Israel, but for my holy name's sake, which ye have profaned among the nations whither ye went.
 23 And I will sanctify my great name, which hath been polluted among the nations, which ye have polluted in the midst of them ; and the nations shall know that I am Jehovah, saith the Lord Jehovah, when I shall be sanctified by you before their eyes. For 24 I will take you from among the nations, and gather you out of all countries ; and I will bring you into your own land.

Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, 25 and ye shall be cleansed from all your defilements, and from all your idols will I cleanse you. A new heart I will also give you, and 26 a new spirit I will put within you : and I will take away the heart of stone from your flesh, and I will give you a heart of flesh. And my spirit I will put within you, and 27 cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments, and do them. And ye shall dwell in the land which I gave 28 to your fathers ; and ye shall be my people, and I will be your God. I will also save 29 you from all your defilements : and I will call for the corn, and will increase it, and will not send famine upon you. And I will multiply the fruit of the tree, and the increase of the field, that ye shall receive no more the reproach of famine among the nations. Then shall ye remember your evil ways, 31 and your doings that were not good ; and ye shall loathe yourselves for your iniquities and for your abominations. Not for your 32 sakes do I this, saith the Lord Jehovah, be it known unto you : be ashamed and confounded for your own ways, O house of Israel. Thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; In the 33 day when I shall cleanse you from all your iniquities ; and shall cause the cities to be inhabited, and the waste places to be built, And the desolate land to be tilled, whereas 34 it lay desolate in the sight of all that passed by : Then shall it be said, This land that 35 was desolate is become as the garden of Eden ; and the cities that were waste and desolate and ruined are become fenced, and are inhabited. Then the nations that are 36 left round about you shall know that I, Jehovah, have built the ruined places, and planted the land which was desolate : I, Jehovah, have spoken it, and will do it. Thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; I will yet be 37 sought by the house of Israel, to do this for for their barrenness ; the whole land should be fruitful, and covered with men as with a flock.

16-20. The word of Jehovah] God states the reason of his scattering his people.

21-24. But I have had pity] So as not wholly to destroy them ; but this has been out of regard to my own name. Hence God engages to sanctify his name, that is, he will show that it is holy, and that though he punish, he will yet be merciful, and will fulfil his promises to his people, and they shall sanctify his name also.

25-29. Sprinkle clean] There is an allusion in these words to the Mosaic rite of purification. See Num. xix ; but what follows justifies the inference that moral purity is intended. Compare chap. xi. 19, 20, and Jeremiah xxxi. 33.

29, 30. Call for the corn] See Levit. xxv. 18, 19, and xxvi. 3, 12, &c.

31. Your evil ways] Then they shall become true penitents ; and they shall acknowledge the undeserved kindness and mercy of God.

33-36. When I shall cleanse] The restoration of the people, the re-cultivation of the land, and its flourishing state shall excite the attention of surrounding nations.

37. I will yet be sought] This implies that he would be ready to hear their prayers, and to do for them what they desired ; and especially to increase and multiply them.

them; and I will increase them with men 38 like a flock. As the holy flock, as the flock of Jerusalem in her solemn feasts, so shall the waste cities be filled with flocks of men:
and they shall know that I am Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

By the resurrection of dry bones, the hope of the Israelites is revived; the union of Israel with Judah; promises of Christ's kingdom.

- 1 THE hand of Jehovah was upon me; and Jehovah carried me forth in the spirit, and set me in the midst of a valley which was
- 2 full of bones, And caused me to pass by them round about; and behold, there were very many on the face of the valley; and lo, they
- 3 were very dry. Then he said unto me, Son of man, can these bones live? And I answered, O Lord Jehovah, thou knowest.
- 4 Then he said unto me, Prophecy over these bones, and say unto them, O ye dry bones,
- 5 hear the word of Jehovah. Thus saith the Lord Jehovah unto these bones; Behold, I will cause breath to enter into you, and ye
- 6 shall live: And I will lay sinews upon you, and will bring up flesh upon you, and cover you with skin, and put breath in you, and ye shall live, and ye shall know that I am Jehovah.
- 7 So I prophesied as I was commanded: and as I prophesied, there was a noise; and behold, a shaking, and the bones drew near,
- 8 bone to its bone. And when I looked, lo, there were sinews upon them, and the flesh came up, and the skin covered them above:
- 9 but there was no breath in them. Then said he unto me, Prophecy to breath, prophecy, son of man, and say to breath, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Come from the four winds, O breath, and breathe upon
- 10 these slain that they may live. So I prophesied as he commanded me, and the breath came into them, and they lived, and stood on their feet, a very great army.

CHAP. XXXVII. 1. The hand of Jehovah] It is probable that the vision contained in this chapter immediately followed the preceding, as the subject is the same, the restoration of Israel.

3. Can these dry bones live] The prophet answers in a doubting manner, because he knew not the scope of the vision.

4—6. Prophecy] Of, or concerning these dry bones. What he was to say follows; and we see what was the purpose of God respecting them.

7. So I prophesied] The prophet obeyed the divine command, and soon beheld a wonderful change effected.

9, 10. Prophecy to breath] In the vision, though they appeared as men, they wanted breath; and on his prophesying, this came.—These slain] Probably Jews slain in the Babylonian wars, as the valley represented in the vision might be one near Jerusalem.

11—14. These bones are] That is, they represent the whole house of Israel, and particularly the state of their minds. They thought there was no ground to hope for restoration: but the prophet tells them God could and would effect this for them. This representation implies that the

Then he said unto me, Son of man, these 11 bones are the whole house of Israel: behold, they say, Our bones are dried, and 12 our hope is lost; as for us we are cut off. Therefore prophesy and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Behold, O my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel. And ye shall know that I am Jehovah when 13 I shall open your graves, O my people, and cause you to come up out of your graves, And will put my breath within you, and ye 14 shall live; and I will place you in your own land: then shall ye know that I, Jehovah, have spoken it, and have done it, saith Jehovah.

The word of Jehovah came also unto me, 15 saying, Moreover, son of man, take thee one 16 stick, and write upon it, For Judah and for the Israelites his companions: then take another stick, and write upon it, For Joseph, the stick of Ephraim, and all the house of Israel his companions: And join them one 17 to another into one stick; and let them become one in thy hand. And when the chil- 18 dren of thy people shall speak unto thee, saying, Wilt thou not show us what thou meanest by these? Say unto them, Thus 19 saith the Lord Jehovah; Behold, I will take the stick of Joseph, which was in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel his companions, and will put them with it, even with the stick of Judah, and make them one stick, and they shall be one in 'the hand of Judah.'

And the sticks whereon thou writest shall 20 be in thy hand before their eyes. And say 21 unto them, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Behold, I will take the Israelites from among the nations whither they are gone, and will gather them from every side, and bring them to their own land. And I will make them 22 one nation in the land, upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king over doctrine of the resurrection was then admitted; or it would not have been used for illustration.

15—19. The word of Jehovah] These sticks, and the symbolical action of joining them, are explained.

19. Which was in] Which was a sceptre in the hand of Ephraim, and of the other nine tribes, his companions.—In the hand of Judah] I prefer this reading with Cappellus and others, as it shows that some of the ten tribes did return with Judah, and were under Zerubbabel, as their prince; and many of them in various parts embraced the gospel, and by owning Jesus as the Christ, were one under him as king of the tribe of Judah.—(v) Sept. Arab.

20—23. And the sticks] These verses establish the explanation above given. Dathe contends that what is said respecting gathering the people from every land, must be understood conditionally. Liberty was granted to all the people of Israel to return to their own country; and if they did not it was their own fault.

22, 23. One nation] So indeed they became, and we read no more of Israel and Judah as separate kingdoms; nor are they ever reproached for worshipping idols after their return.

them all: and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two 23 kingdoms any more at all: Neither shall they defile themselves any more with their idols, nor with their abominations, nor with any of their transgressions: but I will save them from all their backslidings, wherein they have sinned, and will cleanse them: and they shall be my people, and I will be 24 their God. And David my servant shall be king over them: and they all shall have one shepherd: they shall also walk by my judgments, and observe my statutes, and do
25 them. And they shall dwell in the land which I gave to Jacob my servant, wherein your fathers dwelt; and they shall dwell therein, even they, and their children, and their children's children for ever: and my servant David shall be their prince for ever.
26 And I will make with them a covenant of peace; it shall be an everlasting covenant with them: and I will place them, and multiply them, and will set my sanctuary in the 27 midst of them for evermore. My tabernacle also shall be with them: yea, I will be their God, and they shall be my people.
28 And the nations shall know, that I, Jehovah, sanctify Israel, when my sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for evermore.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

The army and malice of Gog; God's judgment against him.

1 THE word of Jehovah came also unto
2 me, saying, Son of man, set thy face against Gog, of the land of Magog, prince of Rhos, Meshech, and Tubal, and prophesy against
3 him, And say, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Behold, I am against thee, O Gog, prince
4 of Rhos, Meshech, and Tubal. And I will turn thee back, and put hooks into thy jaws, and I will bring thee forth, and all thine
5 army, horses and horsemen, all of them clothed in gorgeous apparel, even a great company with bucklers and shields, all of 6 them handling swords: Persia, Ethiopia, and Libya with them; all of them with shields and helmets; Gomer, and all his bands; 6 the house of Togarmah from the north quarters, and all his bands, even many people with thee. Prepare, even prepare thyself, 7 thou, and all thy company that are assembled unto thee; and be thou a guard unto them. After many days thou shalt number them: 8 in the latter years thou shalt come into the land brought back from the sword, and gathered out of many people unto the mountains of Israel, which have been long desolate: but its inhabitants shall be brought forth from among the people, and they shall dwell securely all of them. Thou shalt go 9 up as a storm cometh, thou shalt be as a cloud to cover the land, thou and all thy bands, and many people with thee.

Thus, saith the Lord Jehovah; It shall 10 come to pass at the same time that things shall come into thy mind, and thou shalt think an evil thought. And thou shalt say, 11
I will go up to the land of unwalled villages; I will go to them that are at rest, that dwell safely, all of them dwelling without walls, and having neither bars nor gates, To take 12 a spoil, and to divide a prey; to turn thy hand upon the desolate places that become inhabited, and against a people gathered out of the nations, possessing cattle and goods, dwelling in the midst of the earth. Sheba, 13 and Dedan, and the merchants of Tarshish, with all the "villages" thereof, shall say unto thee, Art thou come to take a spoil? hast thou gathered thy company to divide a prey? to carry away silver and gold, to take away cattle and goods, to divide a great spoil?

Therefore, son of man, prophesy and say 14 unto Gog, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; In that day when my people Israel dwelleth securely, shalt not thou "rise up," And come 15 from thy place, from the north quarters, thou, and many people with thee, all of them riding upon horses, a great company, and a mighty host? Yea thou shalt come up against 16 my people Israel, as a cloud to cover the land; it shall be in the latter days, and I will bring thee against my land, that the nations may

24. And David my] A future king was predicted under this name, by Is. lv. 3, 4; Jerem. xxx. 9; Hos. iii. 5, and by Ezekiel, chap. xxxiv. 23, 24, and here. This king was to come after the captivity; and his reign is to endure for ever and ever. These things cannot be fulfilled in any of the race of David, unless Messiah.

CHAP. XXXVIII. 2. Against Gog] It is generally admitted that this relates to Scythia or Tartary, and that Gog was the common name of their kings, as Pharaoh was of those of Egypt. They ruled over Media for some time, and the Russians, Turks, &c. have sprung from them. If this prophecy followed that in the preceding chapter, and refer to times after the union of Israel and Judah, under David, or Messiah, their king, then it will relate to events under the Christian dispensation, and which are most probably yet to be accomplished. Compare Rev. xx. 8, 9. Or if by these people be meant the enemies of Messiah and his church, which is not improbable, then their malice, and attempts against them, are denoted. I am not able to explain it literally, from any events which history has recorded.

5. Persia, Ethiopia] These various nations were settled from the Indus to the Borysthenes. Ethiopia here is supposed to be the Chusean.—Gagar] Michaelis judges the Cimmerians, who inhabited Crim Tartary, to be meant. chap. xxvii. 13, 14.

7—9. Prepare] Here permission is given to him to make ready for the intended invasion of God's people.

8. Number them] The forces, as the Chaldee explains it. The verb נקד is often used in the sense given. In the latter years] Or in the end of the years, in the last ages of the world.

10—13. Things shall come] What these are, the following verse explains.—(v) Sept. Syr.

14—23. Son of man] When Gog with his host cometh up from the north, God's anger will be kindled, and in a dreadful manner shall this enemy perish.—(v) Sept.

know me, when I shall be sanctified in thee, O Gog, before their eyes.

- 17 Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Art not thou he of whom I have spoken in old time by my servants, the prophets of Israel, who prophesied in those days and years, that I would bring thee against them? And it shall come to pass in that day when Gog shall come against the land of Israel, saith the Lord Jehovah, that my fury shall come up in my anger and in my jealousy. In the fire of my wrath have I spoken, Surely in that day there shall be a great shaking in the land of Israel; So that the fishes of the sea, and the fowls of the air, and the beasts of the field, and all the reptiles that creep upon the earth, and all the men that are upon the face of the ground, shall shake at my presence; and the mountains shall be thrown down and the steep places shall fall, and every wall shall fall to the ground.
- 21 And I will call for a sword against him throughout all my mountains, saith the Lord Jehovah: every man's sword shall be against his brother. And I will plead against him with pestilence and with blood: and with an overflowing shower, and great hail-stones, fire and brimstone, I will rain upon him, and upon his bands, and upon the many people that are with him. Thus will I magnify myself, and sanctify myself; and I will be known in the sight of many nations; and they shall know that I am Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

God's judgment on Gog; his burial in Hamon-gog; Israel finally saved.

- 1 THEREFORE, thou son of man, prophesy against Gog, and say, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; Behold, I am against thee, O Gog, prince of Rhos, Meshech, and Tubal:
- 2 And I will turn thee and lead thee about when I cause thee to come up from the north quarters, and bring thee upon the mountains of Israel. And I will smite thy bow out of thy left hand, and will cause thine arrows to fall out of thy right hand. Thou shalt fall upon the mountains of Israel, thou, and all thy bands, and the 'many' people that are with thee; unto the ravenous birds of every sort, and to the beasts of the field have I given thee to be devoured. Thou shalt fall upon the face of the field: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord Jehovah. And I will send a fire on Magog, and among them that dwell securely in the maritime regions: and they shall know that I am Jehovah. So will I make my holy name known in the midst of my people Israel; neither will I cause my holy name to be polluted any more: and the nations shall know that I am Jehovah, the Holy One in Israel.

Behold! it cometh to pass, and shall be done, saith the Lord Jehovah; this is the day of which I have spoken. And they that dwell in the cities of Israel shall go forth, and shall set on fire and burn the armour, the shields and the bucklers, the bows and the arrows, and the hand-staves, and the spears; and they shall burn them with fire seven years: So that they shall take no wood from the field, neither cut down any from the forests; for they shall burn the armour with fire: and they shall spoil those that spoiled them, and plunder those that plundered them, saith the Lord Jehovah.

And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will give unto Gog a renowned place, a place of burial in Israel, the valley through which men pass to the east of the sea: and it shall stop the nostrils of those that pass: and there shall they bury Gog and all his multitude: and they shall call it THE VALLEY OF HAMON-GOG. And seven months shall the house of Israel be burying them, that they may cleanse the land; Yea, all the people of the land shall bury them; and it shall be renown to them in the day when I shall be glorified, saith the Lord Jehovah. And they shall set apart men whose constant employment shall be passing through

17. Art not thou he? There are many prophecies which foretell the destruction of the enemies of Israel, even from Moses; and does not this rather lead us to understand what is said here, as referring to the enemies of his people in general?

18, 19. Come up in mine anger The punctuation of the Syriac is followed, with many other critics. In this and ver. 20, an earthquake is described, which shall excite terror in whatever liveth.

21—23. Call for a sword God will give courage to his people to attack these invaders, and will aid them as he did of old, Compare Rev. xx. 8, 9.

CHAP. XXXIX. 2. Turn thee, and lead In this rendering the Sept. and Chald. are followed, and the Vulg. favours the same sense. See note Heb. Bib.

4. (a) Syr. MSS.

6. Magog The country of Gog; and on the maritime regions, whether on the Mediterranean, or the Red Sea, or the Euxine, or the Caspian.

7. Cause my holy name I will not give occasion to men to pollute it by their reproaches, as if I did abandon and destroy the people who serve me.

9. Shall go forth It should seem that these enemies are to be destroyed by a miracle, as the people are not said to go forth to fight, but to burn their armour.—Seven years It is doubtful whether this must not be interpreted, as meaning, 'for a long while,' or literally. It is scarcely possible to conceive that the armour of the vanquished could literally serve for fuel for so long a period; but the idea suggested is, that the slaughter would be immense.

11. A place of burial He will find a grave, where he hoped to find spoil. The valley must refer to the east of the sea of Genesareth.

12—16. And seven months The Jews were commanded to bury the dead, and as the touching a bone of the dead defiled them, it was necessary to cleanse the land, by burying all that could be found. To commemorate this overthrow a city should be called Hamonah. 'the multitude.'

the land, even passing through and burying those that remain upon the face of the land, to cleanse it : after the end of seven months 15 shall they search. And those that are appointed shall pass through the land ; and when any seeth a man's bone, then shall he set up a mark by it, till the buriers have 16 buried it in the valley of Hamon-gog. And also the name of a city shall be Hamonah. Thus shall they cleanse the land.
 17 And thou, son of man, thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; Say unto every winged bird, and to every beast of the field, Assemble yourselves, and come : gather yourselves from every side, to my sacrifice which I make for you, even a great sacrifice upon the mountains of Israel ; and ye shall eat
 18 flesh, and drink blood. Ye shall eat the flesh of the mighty, and drink the blood of the princes of the earth ; of rams, of bulls, and of he-goats ; of bulls all of them fatlings 19 of Bashan. And ye shall eat fat till ye be full, and drink blood till ye be drunken, of 20 my sacrifice which I make for you. Thus ye shall be filled at my table with horses and with their riders, with mighty men, and with all warriors, saith the Lord Jehovah.
 21 And I will set my glory among the nations ; and all the nations shall see my judgment which I have executed, and my hand which 22 I have laid upon them. So the house of Israel shall know that I am Jehovah their 23 God, from that day and forward. And "all" the nations shall know that the house of Israel went into captivity for their iniquity : because they trespassed against me, therefore hid I my face from them, and gave them into the hand of their enemies : and all of them
 24 fell by the sword. According to their pollution and according to their transgressions have I done unto them, and hid my face from them.
 25 Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; Now will I bring again the captivity of Jacob, and have mercy upon the whole house of Israel, and will be jealous for my holy name ;
 26 And they shall forget their reproach, and all their trespasses whereby they have trespassed against me, when they dwelt securely in their land, and none made them afraid ; When I 27 bring them back again from the people, and gather them from the lands of their enemies, and am sanctified in them in the sight of many nations, Then shall they know that I 28 am Jehovah their God, who caused them to be led into captivity among the nations ; and have gathered them into their own land. And none of them will I leave there any more, Neither hide my face any more from 29 them, when I have poured out my spirit upon the house of Israel, saith the Lord Jehovah.

CHAPTERS XL. XLI. XLII.

A vision of a new temple ; its outer wall about its courts ; the four gates ; the tables and chambers, &c. ; the temple, rooms for priests, &c.

IN the five and twentieth year of our 1 captivity, in the beginning of the year, in the tenth day of the month, in the fourteenth year after that the city was smitten, on the self-same day, the hand of Jehovah was upon me, and brought me thither : In the 2 visions of God he brought me into the land of Israel, and set me upon a very high mountain, by which was the frame of a city on the south. And he brought me thither, and 3 behold there was a man, whose appearance was as the appearance of brass, with a line of flax in his hand, and a measuring reed ; and he stood in the gate. And the man 4 said unto me, Son of man, behold with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears, and set thy heart upon all that I shall show thee ; for to the intent that I might show them unto thee art thou brought hither : declare all that thou seest to the house of Israel.

And behold a wall on the outside of the 5 house round about, and in the man's hand a measuring reed of six cubits long, by the cubit and a hand-breadth : and he measured the breadth of the building one reed ; and the height, one reed. Then came he to the 6 gate which looked towards the east, and went up the steps thereof, and measured the upper threshold of the gate, which was one reed

17—20. To my sacrifice] This bold imagery is founded on the custom of invitations to feasts after sacrifices, Gen. xxi. 54, and 1 Sam. xvi. 3 ; Zeph. i. 7. We have a reference to this passage, Rev. xix. 17, 18.

21—24. Set my glory] I will make it manifest, so that they shall fear me, and not dare to attack my people again. They shall learn that I gave up my people because of their sin, for a season, but not for ever.—(a) Sept. Arab.

25—29. Now will I bring] The prophet returns to what was pleasing to him, the future restoration of the people, who are not to be led captive any more. They shall be obedient, and eat the good of the land ; they shall be holy, for God will give them his sanctifying spirit in a richer abundance.

CHAP. XL. 2. A high mountain] So mount Moriah might be called ; but Michaelis thought that this might mean that Jerusalem and the true worship of God would be very much exalted, and made known to the world. See Is. ii. 2.

4. Son of man] The prophet is called to attend to what he saw, that he might describe it. The real design of this vision it is difficult to determine. I feel inclined to the opinion of Secker, that it should be understood literally, except the waters which issued from the threshold of this sanctuary. This vision of a new temple, in most respects like that of Solomon's, would give assurance to the captive Jews that they should be restored, and again worship God in his holy temple. See an accurate plan of this temple in Rosenmüller's Scholia upon Ezekiel.

5. Behold a wall] This wall surrounded the whole area of the courts and of the temple. According to the vision it was exactly square, each side of the wall measuring 3000 cubits, or 500 reeds. See chap. xliii. 15—20. This wall was three yards high, and three broad ; for it is of it he speaks, he measured the breadth of the building or wall, &c.

6—8. Then came he] He passed the large space called the court of the Gentiles, and did not measure it. See Rev. xi. 1 ; and went to the east gate which he measured, and its breadth was equal to the wall. On each side of this gate—

7 broad; and the other threshold of the gate one reed broad. And every chamber was one reed long, and one reed broad; and between 8 the chambers were five cubits; And the threshold of the gate by the porch of the gate 9 within was one reed. Then measured he the porch of the gate, eight cubits; and the posts thereof, two cubits; and the porch of 10 the gate was inward. And the chambers of the gate, eastward, were three on this side, and three on that side; they three were of one measure, and the pillars had one measure on 11 this side and on that side. And he measured the breadth of the entry of the gate, ten cubits; and the length of the entry of the gate, 12 thirteen cubits. The border also before the chambers was one cubit on this side, and the border was one cubit on that side; and the chambers were six cubits on this side, and 13 six cubits on that side. Then he measured the gate from the roof of one chamber to the roof of another: the breadth was twenty-five cubits; and door was over against door. 14 He measured also the pillars, sixty cubits; and they were by the pillars of the court of 15 the gate round about. And from the front of the gate of the entrance unto the front of the porch of the inner gate, were fifty cubits. 16 And there were narrow windows to the chambers, and to their pillars within the gate round about; and likewise to the porches were windows round about within: and upon each pillar were palm-trees. 17 Then he brought me into the outer court; and lo, there were rooms, and a pavement made for the court round about: thirty 18 rooms were upon the pavement. And the pavement towards the side of the gates, by the length of the gates, was the lower pavement. Then he measured the breadth from 19 the front of the lower gate, unto the front of the inner-court without, a hundred cubits eastward. 20 "Then he brought me" northwards, and the gate of the outward court that looked towards the north, he measured the length thereof, and the breadth thereof. And the 21 chambers thereof were three on this side and three on that side; and the pillars thereof and the porches thereof, were as the measure of the former gate: the length thereof was fifty cubits, and the breadth five and twenty cubits. And the windows thereof, 22 and the "pillars thereof," and their palm-trees, were as the measure of the gate that looketh toward the east: and they went up unto it by seven steps; and the porches thereof were in front. And there was a gate of 23 the inner-court over against the gate, towards the north, as towards the east; and he measured from gate to gate, a hundred cubits.

Then he led me towards the south; and 24 behold, a gate towards the south: and he measured the pillars thereof and the porches thereof, according to those measures. And 25 there were windows in it, and in the porches thereof round about, like those windows: the length was fifty cubits, and the breadth five and twenty cubits. And there were 26 seven steps in going up to it, and the porches thereof were in front: and it had palm trees, one on this side, and another on that side, upon the pillars thereof. And there was a 27 gate of the inner-court towards the south: and he measured from gate to gate towards the south, a hundred cubits.

And he brought me to the inner-court 28 by the south gate; and he measured the south gate according to these measures. And the chambers thereof, and the pillars 29 thereof, and the porches thereof were according to those measures: and there were windows in it and in the porches thereof round about: the length was fifty cubits, and the breadth five and twenty cubits. And the 30 porches round about were five and twenty cubits long, and five cubits broad. And the 31 porches thereof were towards the outer-way were porters' lodges each one reed square, or three yards; and between each lodge were walls five cubits thick.

The eighth verse is probably spurious; consisting only of the same words as end the 7th, and begin the 9th verses.—[He measured also the porch of the gate within, one reed.]

9. The porch of the gate] This portico looked inward, that is, into the first court, the court of the women, or of Israel. It was eight cubits or four yards wide.—And the pillars] These were side pillars of stone, which supported the lintels, and were each one cubit broad.

10, 11. And the chambers] The porters' lodges. These verses are only a recapitulation of the former.

12. The border] Something like a plinth, which projected from the wall as much as the pillars of the porch did.

13. Twenty-five] The chambers were each six cubits; to these twelve add ten, the width of the gateway, and three cubits for the breadth of the walls, on which the roof-beams rested, and the whole will be twenty-five cubits.

14. Sixty cubits] The pillars were arranged within the area of the court, on each side of the porch thirty cubits.

15. Front of the gate] The out porch was thirteen cubits, ver. 11; the length of the inner-porch or vestibule fifty.

16. Narrow windows] The flat pillars mentioned ver. 10, had windows with narrow openings outward, but widening within.

17. And lo, there] Newcome supposes that these rooms were on each side of the portico, extending the whole length of the building.—Upon the pavement] Or over the paved cloister, upon the higher pavement; as the lower was on a level with the gates, and as broad, as the length between the two gates, ver. 18.

19. Front of the lower] This contains the measure of the outer court, which was fifty yards square, or a hundred cubits.

20—23. Then he brought me] From the east, he who measured, proceeded to the north gate and measured it, which was of the same dimensions, and in other respects similar to the former. This gate led to the court of the priests, or to the sanctuary.—20. (a) Sept. 22. (v) Syr.

24—27. Towards the south] This gate was directly opposite the north; and led into the same court.

28—31. And he brought me] These ten verses contain court; and palm trees were upon the pillars thereof: and in the going up thereof were eight steps.

- 32 And he brought me into the inner-court towards the east: and he measured the gate according to these measures. And the chambers thereof, and the pillars thereof, and the porches thereof, were according to these measures: and there were windows in it and in the porches thereof round about: the length was fifty cubits, and the breadth 34 five and twenty cubits. And the porches thereof were towards the outer-court; and palm-trees were upon the pillars thereof, on this side, and on that side: and in the going up to it were eight steps.

- 35 And he brought me to the north gate, and measured it according to these measures; The chambers thereof, the pillars thereof, and the porches thereof, and there were windows to it round about: the length was fifty cubits, and the breadth five and 37 twenty cubits. And the porches thereof were towards the outer-court; and palm-trees were upon the pillars thereof, on this side, and on that side: and in the going up to it were eight steps. And as for the rooms and their entries "in the porch" of the gates, there they washed the burnt-offering. 39 And in the porch of the gate were two tables on this side, and two tables on that side, to slay thereon the burnt-offering and the sin-offering, and the trespass-offering. 40 And on the side without, at the going up to the entry of the north gate, were two tables; and on the other side, which was at the 41 porch of the gate, were two tables. Four tables were on this side, and four tables on that side, by the side of the gate; eight tables, whereupon they slew their sacrifices. 42 And the four tables for the burnt-offering were of hewn stone, their length was a cubit and a half, and their breadth was a cubit and a half, and their height one cubit: whereupon also they laid the instruments wherewith they slew the burnt- 43 offering and the other sacrifices. And there were edges of a hand-breadth, prepared within round about: and upon the tables was the flesh of the offering.

the same measures, &c. but refer to the inner porches, which were in all respects like the outer.—There they washed] See Lev. i. 11.—37. (v) Sept. Vulg. 33. (v) MSS.

39—43. Two tables] In the outer and in the inner porch of the north gate on each side were eight stone tables for slaughtering the sacrifices, and where were laid the slaughtering instruments.—Edges] So most of the versions; the Chaldee and Jarchi, hooks, but without any authority.

44. Two rooms] The next two verses refer to this, and support the reading of the Sept. and the conjecture of Houbigant. The rooms could not be for singers, when they were for the priests who had the charge of the altar, and the most holy place. (v) Sept.

47. The court] The court of the priests, which was

And "he brought me to" the inner-gate, 44 and lo, there were "two rooms" in the inner-court, one on the side of the north gate, and its prospect was towards the south: and one on the side of the east gate, and the prospect was towards the north. And 45 he said unto me, This room, whose prospect is towards the south, is for the priests, that keep the charge of the house. And 46 the room whose prospect is towards the north is for the priests, that keep the charge of the altar: these are the sons of Zadok, who come from among the sons of Levi, near to Jehovah, to minister unto him. So he measured the court, the length was a 47 hundred cubits, and the breadth was a hundred cubits, it was square; and the altar was before the temple.

CHAPTER XLI.

THEN he brought me to the porch of the 48 temple, and measured the pillars, five cubits on this side, and five cubits on that side; and the breadth of the gate was three cubits on this side, and three cubits on that side. The length of the porch was 49 twenty cubits, and the breadth "ten" cubits; and they went up to it by "ten" steps: and there were columns by the porch, one on this side, and another on that side.

Afterward he brought me to the temple, and he measured the pillars, six cubits was the breadth on this side, and six cubits was the breadth on that side, which was the breadth of the tabernacle. And 2 the breadth of the door-way was ten cubits; and the sides of the door-way were five cubits on this side, and five cubits on that side: and he measured the length thereof, forty cubits; and the breadth, twenty cubits.

Then went he inward, and measured the 3 pillars of the door, two cubits; and the door, six cubits; and the breadth of the door-way, "seven cubits on this side, and seven cubits on that side." So he mea- 4 sured the length thereof, twenty cubits; and the breadth, twenty cubits; according to the front of the temple: and he said unto me, This is the most holy place.

square, and of the same dimensions as that of the court of Israel, ver. 27.

48. Measured the pillars] It is probable they were similar in their use to the brass ones in Solomon's temple, 1 Kings vii. 15—21. These stood forward five cubits, and the breadth of the folding doors was three cubits each. Compare 1 Kings vi. 3, &c.—49. (v) (a) Sept.

CHAP. XLI. 1. Of the temple] Compare EXOD. xxvi. 16—23.

2. Door-way] Or entrance filled up by the folding gates.—The sides] The walls on each side the door-way were five cubits. This portico of the temple, or most holy place, was of the same dimensions as that of Solomon's temple. 1 Kings vi. 20.—3. (a) Sept. Arab.

- 5 Then he measured the wall of the house, six cubits; and the breadth of every side-cell, four cubits round about, round about the house. And the side-cells were one over another, three stories, thirty in rows; and they entered into the wall which adjoined the house for the side-cells round about, that they might have hold, but they had no hold in the wall of the house.
- 7 And there was a widening, and a winding stair-case to the side-cells: for the stair-case of the house still widened upward round about the house: therefore the breadth of the house widened upward and increased; from the lowest story they went to the highest by the middle one. I saw also the height of the house round about: the foundations of the side-cells were a full reed to each cell. The thickness of the wall which was for the side-cell without, was five cubits: and the space which was left was the place of the side-cells which belonged to the house. And between the rooms was the breadth of twenty cubits, round about the house on every side.
- 11 And the doors of the side-cells were towards the space which was left, one door towards the north, and another door towards the south: and the breadth of the space which was left was five cubits round about.
- 12 Now the building which was before the separate place at the side towards the west, was in breadth seventy cubits; and the wall of the building was five cubits thick round about, and the length thereof ninety cubits. So he measured "before" the house a hundred cubits long; even the separate place, and the building, with the walls thereof, a hundred cubits long. Also the breadth towards the front of the house, and of the separate place towards the east, a hundred cubits. And he measured the length of the building before the separate place and that which was behind it, and the galleries thereof on this side and on that side, a hundred cubits. And the inner
- 16 temple, and the porches of the court; The thresholds and the narrow windows and the galleries round about their three stories, over against every threshold, were overlaid with wood round about, from the ground up to the windows; and the windows were covered.

Upon the space above every door, and upon the inner house, and without, and by all the wall round about within and without "the house," Were made cherubs and palm-trees, so that a palm-tree was between a cherub and a cherub; and every cherub had two faces; And that the face of a man was towards a palm-tree on one side, and the face of a lion towards the palm-tree on the other side: it was made upon all the house round about. From the ground unto above the door were cherubs and palm-trees made on the wall of the temple. As to the temple, the posts were squared; and as to the front of the sanctuary, the appearance of the one was as the appearance of the other.

As to the altar of wood, its height was three cubits, and the length thereof two cubits; and the breadth thereof two cubits, and the corners thereof, and the "base" thereof, and the walls thereof were of wood. And he said unto me, This is the table that is before Jehovah.

And the temple and the sanctuary had two doors. And the doors had two leaves a piece, turning leaves: two leaves for one door, and two leaves for the other door. And there were made on them, on the doors of the temple, cherubs and palm-trees, like as were made upon the walls; and there were beams of wood upon the front of the porch without. And there were narrow windows and palm-trees on this side and on that side, on the sides of the porch, and on the side-chambers of the house; and also beams.

CHAPTER XLII.

THEN he led me forth into the outer-court, the way towards the north; and he brought me to the rooms which were before the separate place, and which were before the building towards the north. The length was a hundred cubits towards the north gate, and the breadth was fifty cubits. Before "the gates" which belonged to the in-

5—11. Wall of the house] Six cubits was the thickness of the temple wall, as it ran even with the lowest story of the chambers. In these verses there is much obscurity; but the description of the temple, 1 Kings vi. 5—10, affords some assistance towards understanding it. It appears that each story increased one cubit in dimensions, as the wall decreased in thickness; the lowest wall, called, ver. 8, the foundation, being a reed, or six cubits thick. The space left was five cubits, ver. 11, and answers to the galleries in the temple of Solomon.

12—20. The building] Or wall, as chap. xl. 5. This wall at the west end of the temple, measured seventy cubits from north to south. For the breadth of the temple, ver. 2, was twenty cubits; of the two side-cells, ver. 5, twelve cubits; of the two side-cells, eight cubits; of their outer walls, ver. 9, ten cubits; of the space which was left, or the gallery, ver. 11, ten cubits; and of their outer wall on each side ten, which together make seventy cubits.—The length was ninety cubits, including the walls, and rooms, &c. Like Solomon's temple this was ceiled with wood; and cherubs and palm-trees were carved therein.

13. (a) Sept. Arab. 17. (v) Houbigant.

22. The altar] The altar of incense is meant. Compare Exod. xxx. 1, 2. The Arabic version here has the length and breadth, one cubit.—(a) Sept.

CHAP. XLIII. 1, 2. Outer-court] Or that of the priests, not that of the people, is meant. A range of buildings as long as the gateway, separated these two courts, being fifty cubits, and the length northwards, one hundred.

3. (v) Sept.

ner-court, and before the pavement which belonged to the outer-court, were side-buildings against side-buildings in three stories. And before the rooms was a walk of ten cubits' breadth inward, and of a hundred cubits long; and their doors were towards the north. Now the upper rooms were shorter: for the galleries took from those more than from the lowest and the middlemost of the building. For they were in three stories, but had not pillars as the pillars of the courts: therefore they were straitened more than the lowest and the middlemost from the ground. And as to the wall that was without over against the rooms, towards the outer-court, which was before the rooms, the length thereof was fifty cubits. For the length of the rooms that were in the outer-court was fifty cubits: also of those opposite to them: in a hundred cubits. And from the bottom of these rooms was the entry on the east side, as one came to them from the outer-court.

In the breadth of the wall of the court towards the south, before the separate place and before the building, were rooms. And the way before them was like the appearance of the rooms which were towards the north, as long as they, and as broad as they: and all their goings out were both according to their fashions, and according to their doors. For in like manner were the doors of the rooms that were towards the south; there was a door in the head of the way, even the way before the wall which looked to the east, as one came to them. Then he said unto me, The north rooms and the south rooms, which are before the separate place, they are holy rooms, where the priests that approach to Jehovah shall eat the most holy things: there shall they lay the most holy things, the wheaten-offering, and the sin-offering, and the trespass-offering; for the place is holy. When the priests enter therein, then shall they not go out of the holy place into the outer-court, but there they shall lay their garments wherein they minister; for they are holy; and shall put on other garments, and shall approach to the place which belongeth to the people.

Now when he had made an end of measuring the inner-house, he brought me forth towards the gate whose prospect is towards the east, and measured it round about. He measured the east side with the measuring reed, five hundred cubits, with the measuring reed round about. He measured the north side, five hundred cubits, with the measuring reed round about. He measured the south side, five hundred cubits, with the measuring reed round about.

On the west side, he measured five hundred cubits with the measuring reed. He measured it on the four sides: it had a wall round about, five hundred cubits long, and five hundred broad, to make a separation between the sanctuary and the profane place.

CHAPTERS XLIII. XLIV.

The glory of God returns; exhortation to repentance and the keeping of the law; ordinances for the altar, for the priests, &c.

Then he led me to the gate, that looked towards the east. And, behold, the glory of the God of Israel came from the east: and the sound thereof was like the sound of many waters: and the earth shone with his glory. And the appearance which I saw, was as the appearance which I saw when he came to destroy the city: and the appearance of the chariot was as the appearance which I saw by the river Chebar; and I fell upon my face. And the glory of Jehovah came into the house by the way of the gate whose prospect was towards the east. Then the spirit took me up, and brought me into the inner-court; and, behold, the glory of Jehovah filled the house. And I heard one speaking unto me out of the house; and the man was standing by me. And he said unto me, Son of man, This is the place of my throne, and the

4. And of a hundred cubits] This was the length of the inclosing wall of the area in which the temple stood.—(v) Sept.

6. Had not pillars] To support the galleries, but the breadth of these was taken out of the middle and upper rooms themselves.

7—9. And as to the wall] As between these ranges of buildings there was the gateway, they must have extended beyond the wall which inclosed the temple.

8. (v) Sept. 10. (v) Sept. Arab.

10—12. Were rooms] The same range of rooms were on the south side as those before described on the north. They answered one to another.

13, 14. Holy rooms] None but the priests were allowed to go therein; and in them were to be deposited their holy garments. Compare Levit. vi. 4.

15—20. Five hundred cubits] So the Sept. and Arab. read, which most admit. These measures embrace the whole of the mount on which the temple stood, ch. xliii. 12.

13—19. (v) Sept. Arab.

CHAP. XLIII. 2. From the east] Compare chap. xi. 23, and x. 19. It had departed before the temple was destroyed, and was now returning. Before Solomon's prayer this glory entered into his temple, 1 Kings viii. 10, 11, and 2 Chron. v. 13, 14. After this we have no mention of it in the historical books. Isaiah had a vision of it, ch. vi.; and Ezekiel at the river Chebar; but we have no account of this glory appearing in the second temple, except in this vision. Nothing then seems to be hinted by it but God's favour to the people, unless we refer it to what Haggai said, chap. ii. 9.

3. When he came] Compare ii. 10; ix. 5, &c. This reading is preferred, though the text may be explained on the principle, that a prophet is said to do what he predicts. Jerem. i. 10.—(v) Versions.—(a) Vulg. MSS.

7. This is the place] Compare Isa. vi. 15. Perhaps this phrase is borrowed from the circumstance of the cherubs place of the soles of my feet, where I will dwell amidst the Israelites for ever, and the house of Israel shall no more defile my holy name, neither they, nor their kings, by their harlotry, and by the carcasses of their kings, "and" by their high-places:

- 8 In that they set their threshold by my threshold, and their post by my post, and there was only a wall between me and them; and they defiled my holy name by their abominations which they committed: wherefore I have consumed them in mine anger. Now let them put away far from me their harlotry, and the carcasses of their kings, and I will dwell in the midst of them for ever.
- 10 Thou son of man, show the house to the house of Israel, that they may be ashamed of their iniquities: and let them measure the pattern. And if they be ashamed of all that they have done, show them the form of the house, and the pattern thereof, and the goings out thereof, and the comings in thereof, and all the forms thereof, and all the statutes thereof, and all the laws thereof: and write it in their sight, that they may keep the whole form thereof, and all the ordinances thereof, and do them. This is the law of the house upon the top of the mountain: all the border thereof round about shall be most holy: behold, this is the law of the house.
- 13 And these are the measures of the altar by cubits; each cubit being a cubit and a hand-breadth; now the bottom shall be a cubit high, and a cubit broad, and the border thereof by the edge thereof round about shall be a span; and this shall be
- 14 the outer part of the altar. And from the bottom upon the ground to the lower ledge shall be two cubits, and the breadth one cubit; and from the lesser ledge to the greater ledge shall be four cubits, and the
- 15 breadth one cubit. And the hearth of the altar shall be four cubits: and from the hearth of the altar and upward shall be four
- 16 horns. And the hearth of the altar shall be twelve cubits long by twelve broad,
- 17 square in the four sides thereof. And the ledge shall be fourteen cubits long by fourteen broad on the four sides thereof; and the border about it shall be half a cubit; and the bottom thereof shall be a cubit about, and its ascent shall look towards the east.

Then he said unto me, Son of man, thus saith the Lord Jehovah; These are the statutes of the altar; in the day when it shall be made to offer burnt-offerings thereon, and to sprinkle blood thereon. Then shalt thou give to the priests, the Levites, that are of the seed of Zadok, who approach unto me, saith the Lord Jehovah, to minister unto me, a steer for a sin-offering. And thou shalt take of the blood thereof, and put it on the four horns, and on the four corners of the ledge, and upon the border round about: thus shalt thou cleanse and expiate it. And thou shalt take the steer of the sin-offering, and one shall burn it in the appointed place of the house, without the sanctuary. And on the second day thou shalt offer a kid of the goats, without blemish, for a sin-offering; and they shall cleanse the altar, as they did cleanse it with the steer. When thou hast made an end of cleansing it, thou shalt offer a steer, without blemish, and a ram out of the flock, without blemish. And thou shalt offer them before Jehovah, and the priests shall cast salt upon them, and shall offer them up for a burnt-offering unto Jehovah. Seven days shalt thou sacrifice every day a goat for a sin-offering: they shall also sacrifice a steer, and a ram out of the flock, without blemish. Seven days shall they expiate the altar and purify it; and they shall consecrate it. And when these days are completed, it shall be, that on the eighth day, and forward, the priests shall sacrifice upon the altar your burnt-offerings, and your feast-offerings; and I will accept you, saith the Lord Jehovah.

CHAPTER XLIV.

THEN he brought me back the way of the gate of the outward sanctuary which looked towards the east; and it was shut. Then said standing over the mercy-seat, which was God's throne.—For ever] This must be understood conditionally, if they and their kings defile, &c. See ver. 9.—Carcasses of their] Michaelis supposes that some monuments of their deceased kings were erected near the wall which surrounded the temple and the courts, and this was accounted a profanation. See 1 Kings xxi. 18—26.—(a) Sept. Syr.

8. Set their threshold] This refers to their idolatries practised in the court of the priests, and the parts of the temple adjoining the most holy place. See chap. viii. 16, &c. 2 Kings xvi. 14; xxi. 18—26.

10—12. Show the house] If thou perceive any evidence of repentance among them, describe to them this second temple, its dimensions and ordinances, that they may entertain hope of their restoration, and know what I require them to do when restored.—This is the law] The puntuition is that of all the old versions. The first law of this house is that the whole area shall be accounted by you most holy.

13—17. Of the altar] The altar of burnt-offering meant. The altar of burnt-offerings, described Exod. xxvi. 1; xxxviii. 1, was smaller than this; because it was to be removed with the tabernacle.

18—27. These are the statutes] The manner of purifying and consecrating this altar is in a few particulars different from what we read of the consecration of the altar made for the tabernacle, Exod. xxix. 36, &c.

CHAP. XLIV. 1. Outward sanctuary] This was called the outward sanctuary, because none but priests entered into it. The gate is to be understood of the inner gate which immediately communicated with the court of the priests.

Jehovah unto me, This gate shall be shut, it shall not be opened, and no man shall enter in by it; because Jehovah, the God of Israel, entered in by it, therefore it shall be shut. It is for the prince; the prince shall sit in it to eat food before Jehovah; he shall enter by the way of the porch of that gate, and by the same way he shall go out.

Then brought he me the way of the north gate before the house: and I looked, and, behold, the glory of Jehovah filled the house of Jehovah: and I fell upon my face. And Jehovah said unto me, Son of man, mark well, and behold with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears all that I say unto thee concerning all the statutes of the house of Jehovah, and all the laws thereof; and mark well the enterings in of the house, with all the goings out of the sanctuary. And thou shalt say to the rebellious house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: O ye house of Israel, let all your abominations suffice you, in that ye brought into my sanctuary strangers, uncircumcised in heart, and uncircumcised in flesh, to be in my sanctuary to pollute it, even my house, when ye offered my food, the fat and the blood; and ye broke my covenant with all your abominations. Neither did ye keep the charge of my holy place; but ye set for keepers of my charge in my sanctuary keepers for yourselves.

Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: No stranger uncircumcised in heart, nor uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into my sanctuary; of any strangers that are among the Israelites. But even the Levites who departed far from me, when Israel went astray, who went astray from me after their idols; they shall even bear their iniquity. Yet they shall be ministers in my sanctuary, having charge at the gates of the house, and ministering at the house: they shall slay the burnt-offering and the sacrifice for the people, and they shall stand before them to minister unto them. Because they ministered unto them before their idols, and were a stumbling-block of iniquity to the house of Israel; therefore have I sworn concerning them, saith the Lord Jehovah, and they shall bear their iniquity. And they shall not come near unto me, to do the office of a priest unto me, nor come near to any of my holy things, in the most holy place: but they shall bear their shame, and their abominations which they have committed. But I will make them keepers of the charge of the house, for all the service thereof, and for all that shall be done therein. But the priests, the Levites, the sons of Zadok, that kept the charge of my sanctuary when the Israelites went astray from me, they shall draw near to me to minister unto me, and they shall stand before me to offer unto me the fat and the blood, saith the Lord Jehovah. They shall enter into my sanctuary, and they shall draw near to my table, to minister unto me, and they shall keep my charge.

And it shall come to pass that when they enter in at the gates of the inner-court, they shall be clothed with linen garments; and no wool shall come upon them, while they minister in the gates of the inner-court, and within. They shall have beautiful linen turbans upon their heads, and linen drawers upon their loins; they shall not gird themselves with any thing that causeth sweat. And when they go forth into the outer court to the people, they shall put off their garments wherein they ministered, and lay them in the holy rooms, and they shall put on other garments; and they shall not sanctify the people with their garments. Neither shall they shave their heads, nor suffer their locks to grow long; they shall only poll their heads. Neither shall any priest drink wine, when they enter into the inner-court. Neither shall they take for their wives a widow, nor her that is put away: but they shall take virgins of the seed of the house of Israel, or a widow that is the widow of a priest. And they shall teach my people the difference between the holy and profane, and cause them to discern between the unclean and the clean. And in controversy they shall stand to judge; and they shall judge

2. It shall not be opened] Unless at some particular seasons. See ch. xliii. 4; xli. 1, 2.

3. For the prince] The governor or king, or any magistrate may be meant. The kings had a place answering to this. See 2 Chron. vi. 13; xxiii. 15; xxiv. 31.

7. Strangers] In the times prior to the captivity, no regard was had to the law in general; and that which prohibited strangers from the sanctuary was not enforced.

13-15. Even the Levites] Not only must the uncircumcised be restrained from this temple, but even those levitical priests who had practised idolatry should not be admitted to the privileges of their pious fathers. They shall only be door-keepers and servants to others.

15, 16. The sons of Zadok] From this it should seem that some of the posterity of Zadok, who was high-priest when the first temple was built, had preserved their integriety. These verses naturally refer to the times after the captivity.

17. In at the gates] Where they had chambers assigned to them for particular offices. See chap. xl. 35, 39.

18. Linen turbans] Compare Exod. xxxix. 28, and xxviii. 42. The turbans and drawers were to be of cotton; here of linen. Either kind might be meant as being white.

19. Put off their] Compare Levit. vi. 10; xvi. 23. As these garments were holy, they must only wear them in the sanctuary.

20-23. Shave their heads] See Levit. xxi. 5; x. 9; xxi. 14; Deut. xvii. 10, 11; xxxiii. 10. These precepts are only those which the priests had long neglected, and now again enforced by new considerations.

24. Stand to judge] See Deut. xvii. 8; xxi. 5, compared with 2 Chron. xix. 8.

it according to my judgments : and they shall keep my laws and my statutes at the appointed times ; and they shall hallow 25 my sabbaths. And they shall come at no dead person to defile themselves ; but for father, or for mother, or for son, or for daughter, for brother, or for sister that hath had no husband, they may defile themselves.
 26 And after he is cleansed, they shall reckon
 27 unto him seven days. And in the day when he goeth into the sanctuary, unto the inner-court, to minister in the sanctuary, he shall offer his sin-offering, saith the Lord Jehovah. And they shall have ^{no} inheritance : I am their inheritance : and ye shall give them no possession in Israel : I am their 29 possession. They shall eat the wheat-offering, and the sin-offering, and the trespass-offering ; and every devoted thing in 30 Israel shall be theirs. And the first fruits of all things, the first-born of all things and every heave-offering of all things, from all your heave-offerings, shall be the priest's : ye shall also give unto the priest the first of your dough, that he may cause a blessing 31 to rest on thy house. The priest shall not eat of any thing that dieth of itself, or that is torn, whether it be of fowl or of beast.

CHAPTERS XLV. XLVI.

The portions of the land for the sanctuary, city, and prince ; ordinances for the prince, and for the people, &c.

- 1 MOREOVER, when ye shall divide by lot the land for inheritance, ye shall offer an oblation unto Jehovah, a holy portion of the land : the length shall be five and twenty thousand cubits, and the breadth shall be ten thousand. This shall be a holy portion in all the borders thereof round about.
- 2 And of this there shall be for the sanctuary five hundred cubits in length, by five hundred in breadth, square round about ; and fifty cubits for the suburbs thereof round about.
- 3 Even of this measure shalt thou measure the length of five and twenty thousand, and the breadth of ten thousand : and in it shall be the sanctuary, even the 25—27. No dead body] See Levit. xxi. 1—3 ; and iv. 3, &c.

23—30. No inheritance] Compare Num. xviii. 20 ; Deut. x. 9 ; xviii. 2 ; Josh. xiii. 14—33. In lieu of an inheritance they had the tithes and offerings, which were presented to God. Surely all these particulars refer to the Levitical priesthood.—(v) Vulg.

CHAP. XLV. 1. Twenty-five thousand cubits] Dimock, Houbigant, and others consider cubits meant, as the last clause of the next verse suggests.—An oblation] As if the first fruits of the land.

2. Five hundred] This agrees with chap. xlii. 16—20, as the text is there corrected.—For the suburbs] A place not inclosed within the walls. The next verse is a repetition of the first and second.

4. This holy portion] That is, what remains after taking from it the ground for the sanctuary ; and the Levites were most holy place. This holy portion of the land shall be for the priests, the ministers of the sanctuary, who draw near to minister unto Jehovah ; and it shall be a place for their houses, and a holy place for the sanc-5 tuary. And five and twenty thousand in length, and ten thousand in breadth, shall be for the Levites, the ministers of the house for a possession for "cities to dwell in." And 6 ye shall appoint the possession of the city, five thousand in breadth, and in length five and twenty thousand, over against the oblation of the holy portion : it shall be for the whole house of Israel. And portions shall 7 be for the prince on this side, and on that side of the oblation of the holy portion, and of the possession of the city, before the oblations of the holy portions, and of the possession of the city, from the west side westward, and from the east side eastward : and the length shall be over against every one of the portions, from the west border unto the east border. As for the land it shall be 8 his possession in Israel : and my princes shall no more oppress my people ; and the rest of the land shall they give to the house of Israel according to their tribes.

Thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; Let past 9 offences suffice you, O princes of Israel :
 remove violence and spoil, and execute judgment and justice, take away your oppressions from my people, saith the Lord Jehovah. Ye shall have just balances, and a 10 just ephah, and a just bath. The ephah and the bath shall be of one measure ; that the bath may contain the tenth part of a homer, and the ephah the tenth part of a homer : the measure thereof shall be according to the homer. And the shekel shall be 15 twenty gerahs : and pieces of silver of twenty shekels, five and twenty shekels, and fifteen shekels shall be your maneh.

This is the heave-offering which ye shall 1 offer ; the sixth part of an ephah out of a homer of wheat, and the sixth part of an ephah out of a homer of barley. As to the 1 statute concerning oil, ye shall offer the tenth part of a bath out of a cor ; "a cor" is ten to have a portion equal to that of the priests and sanctuary together.—5. (v) Sept.

6. Of the city] This rectangle contained an area of about seventeen miles in circuit, which was more than four times the circuit of Jerusalem. Much land is therefore here allowed for the convenience of the inhabitants.

7, 8. And portions] The portion for the sanctuary was east of the city ; and of course that of the city west, and those of the prince adjoining both, extending to the boundaries of the holy land, east and west. See chap. xlvii. 21.

9—12. Let past offences] Think of your oppressions an injustice, and do not repeat them when you are restored. See Table of measures, &c.

13, 14. The sixth part] This was the sixtieth part of the whole ; and the tenth part of the bath, was the hundred part of the whole.—(v) Chald. Vulg.

- 15 baths; for a homer is ten baths: And one lamb out of the flock, ye shall offer out of two hundred, out of the watered pastures of Israel; for a wheaten-offering, and for a burnt-offering, and for feast-offerings, to make reconciliation for you, saith the Lord Jehovah. All the people of the land shall give this heave-offering with the prince in Israel. And it shall belong to the prince to give burnt-offerings, and wheaten-offerings, and drink-offerings, in the feasts, and in the new moons, and in the sabbaths, and in all the solemn assemblies of the house of Israel; he shall sacrifice the sin-offering, and the wheaten-offering, and the burnt-offering, and the feast-offerings, to make reconciliation for the house of Israel.
- 18 Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; In the first month, on the first day of the month, thou shalt take a steer without blemish, and shalt cleanse the sanctuary: And the priest shall take some of the blood of the sin-offering, and put it upon the posts of the house, and upon the four corners of the ledge of the altar, and upon the posts of the gate of the inner court. And in like manner shalt thou do on the seventh day of the month for every one that erreth, and for him that is simple: so shall ye make reconciliation for the house.
- 21 In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month, ye shall have the passover, a feast of seven days; every one shall eat unleavened bread. And upon that day shall the prince sacrifice for himself and for all the people of the land, a bullock for a sin-offering. And seven days of the feast he shall sacrifice a burnt-offering to Jehovah, seven bullocks, and seven rams, without blemish daily the seven days; and a kid of the goats daily for a sin-offering. And he shall sacrifice a wheaten-offering of an ephah for a bullock, and an ephah for a ram, and a hin of oil for an ephah. In the seventh month, on the fifteenth day of the month, shall he do the like during the feast for the seven days; according to the sin-offering, according to the burnt-offering, and according to the wheaten-offering, and according to the oil.

CHAPTER XLVI.

THUS saith the Lord Jehovah; The gate of the inner court that looketh towards the east shall be shut the six days of work; but on the sabbath it shall be opened, and on the day of the new moon it shall be opened. And the prince shall enter by the way of the porch of that gate without, and shall stand by the post of the gate; and the priests shall sacrifice his burnt-offering and his feast-offerings, and he shall worship at the threshold of the gate: then he shall go forth; but the gate shall not be shut until the evening. Likewise the people of the land shall worship at the door of this gate before Jehovah, on the sabbaths and on the new moons. And the burnt-offering which the prince shall bring unto Jehovah on the sabbath shall be six lambs without blemish, and a ram without blemish. And the wheaten-offering shall be an ephah for a ram, and the wheaten-offering for the lambs as he is disposed to give, and a hin of oil to an ephah. And in the day of the new moon, shall be a steer without blemish, and six lambs and a ram: they shall be without blemish. And he shall sacrifice as a wheaten-offering, an ephah for a steer, and an ephah for a ram, and for the lambs according as he is able, and a hin of oil to an ephah. And when the prince shall enter, he shall go in by the way of the porch of that gate, and he shall go forth by the way thereof.

But when the people of the land shall come before Jehovah on the solemn assemblies, he that entereth in by the way of the north gate to worship, shall go out by the way of the south gate; and he that entereth by the way of the south gate, shall go forth by the way of the north gate: he shall not return the way of the gate by which he entered, but shall go forth over against it. And he that is prince in the midst of them, shall enter when they enter; and shall go

15, 16. Out of two hundred] From the ambiguity of the preposition out of, it is doubtful whether what is mentioned in these two verses were to be given to the prince, or for, or with what he offered. I have adopted the last, because I think the heave-offering belonged, and was presented to Jehovah only, and secondly because the portion allotted to the prince was sufficient to enable him to offer what is prescribed.

18—20. In the first month] Compare chap. xliii. 18, &c. and compare Exod. xii. 2—18, with Ezra iii. 2.

21—24. Fourteenth day] See Exod. xii. 6—15; Num. xviii. 17—24. This was the feast of the passover, and of unleavened bread; and in the next verse that of booths is enjoined. However the divisions of the land may vary, still all is levitical.

CHAP. XLVI. 2. The prince shall enter] The gate here was that which opened into the sanctuary, where the priests offered the victims. The king was allowed only to come to the threshold, and to stand by the pillars of the gate, while the priests offered his sacrifices.

4. Six lambs] Moses only enjoined two, Num. xxviii. 9, and there is no mention in the Mosaic law of any ram being then offered.

5. As he is disposed] The wheaten-offering was specified in the law, Num. xxviii. 9; and in the next verse, Moses commanded two steers to be offered on the new moons.

8. The prince shall] It was granted to the prince to return by the same way in which he had entered; but the people must go out at the opposite gate.

9—15. But when the] The prince was not allowed to abide longer than the people, and it is remarkable, that while Ezekiel mentions the morning offering, nothing is said respecting the evening one. See Exod. xxix. 38—46.

- 11 forth when they go forth. And in the feasts and in the solemn assemblies the wheaten-offering shall be an ephah to a bullock, and an ephah to a ram, and for the lambs as he is able to give; and a hin
- 12 of oil to an ephah. And when the prince shall prepare a free-will-offering or feast-offerings for free-will-offerings unto Jehovah, the gate that looketh towards the east shall be opened for him, and he shall sacrifice his burnt-offering and his feast-offerings, as he did on the sabbath: then he shall go forth; and the gate shall be shut
- 13 after he goeth forth. And he shall sacrifice daily for a burnt-offering unto Jehovah a lamb of the first year, without blemish:
- 14 he shall sacrifice it every morning. And he shall sacrifice with it a wheaten-offering every morning; the sixth part of an ephah, and the third part of a hin of oil, to moisten the fine flour as a wheaten-offering unto Jehovah by a perpetual statute continually.
- 15 He shall sacrifice the lamb, and the wheaten-offering, and the oil, every morning for a continual burnt-offering.
- 16 Thus saith the Lord Jehovah; If the prince give a gift unto any of his sons, the inheritance thereof shall belong to his sons; and it shall be their possession by inheritance.
- 17 But if he give a gift of his inheritance to one of his servants, then it shall be his to the year of liberty, when it shall return to the prince: but his inheritance
- 18 given to his sons shall be theirs. Moreover the prince shall not take of the people's inheritance to force them out of their possession: but he shall give inheritance to his sons out of his own possession: that my people be not scattered every man from his possession.
- 19 Then he brought me through the entry, which was at the side of the gate, into the holy rooms belonging to the priests, which looked northwards: and, behold, a place
- 20 was there on the side westward. Then said he unto me, This is the place where the priests shall boil the trespass-offering and the sin-offering, where they shall bake the wheaten-offering; that they carry them not forth into the outer-court, to sanctify
- 21 the people. Then he brought me forth into the outer-court, and caused me to pass by the four corners of the court; and, behold, in every corner of the court there was a court. In the four corners of the court there were small courts forty cubits long, and thirty broad: these four corners were of one measure. And there was a row of building round about in them, even round about them four, and it was made with boiling places under the rows round about. Then said he unto me, These are the houses of them that boil; where the ministers of the house shall boil the sacrifice of the people.

CHAPTERS XLVII. XLVIII.

The vision of the holy waters and their virtue; the division of the land; the portions of the twelve tribes, the sanctuary, city, and prince; dimensions of the city.

AFTERWARD he brought me again unto the door of the house: and, behold, waters issued forth from under the threshold of the house eastward: for the front of the house stood towards the east, and the waters came down from under the right threshold of the house on the south of the altar. Then he brought me out by the way of the gate northward; and led me round by the way without unto the outer gate by the way that looked eastward: and, behold, waters ran on the right side. And when the man that had the line in his hand went forth eastward, he measured a thousand cubits; and caused me to pass through the waters, and the waters were to the ancles. Again he measured a thousand cubits, and caused me to pass through the waters; and the waters were to the knees. Again he measured a thousand cubits, and caused me to pass through the "waters"; and the waters were to the loins. Again he measured a thousand cubits, and it was a river which I could not pass through: for the waters were risen, waters to swim in, a river which could not be passed through. And he said unto me, Son of man, hast thou seen this? Then he brought me, and caused me to return by the brink of the river. Now as I returned, behold, on the bank of the river were very many trees on this side and on that side. Then said he unto me, These waters issue forth towards the east country, and go down into the desert, and go into 16—18. If the prince] A part of the royal portion might be given to any of the king's sons for an inheritance for ever; but the prince is not allowed to give in this manner to his servants; they must only enjoy it till the Jubilee.

19—24. Holy rooms] Where the priests performed various necessary things; and prepared that portion of the sacrifices which belonged to them.

CHAP. XLVII. 1. Door of the house] Or temple, the most holy place.—Waters issued] Dr. Lightfoot supposed that the waters of the fount Ethan, which were conveyed into the court of the priests by pipes, and there received into reservoirs, gave occasion to this representation. These waters came from under the right threshold, or south part, because the face is supposed to look eastward, when the points of the heavens are to be fixed.

2—5. He brought me] These waters flowed in great abundance; they are called 'living,' which in the style of the Hebrews means, such as arise from a spring. They increased in depth the more they spread; they became in the vision a large river.—4. (a) MSS.

6. To return by the] Towards the temple, from which he had gone with the person who had the measuring-reed.

- the sea ; they go forth into the salt-sea, and the waters shall be healed. And it shall come to pass, that every living thing which moveth, whithersoever the rivers shall come, shall live : and there shall be a very great multitude of fish ; because these waters shall come thither and shall heal, therefore every thing shall live whither the river shall come. And it shall come to pass, that fishers shall stand upon it : from En-ge-di even unto En-eglaim there shall be a place to spread forth nets ; and their fish shall be according to their kinds, as the fish of the great sea, very many. But the miry places thereof, and as to the pits thereof they shall not be healed : they shall be appointed for salt. And by the river upon the bank thereof, on this side and on that side, shall grow all trees for food, whose leaf shall not fade, neither shall the fruit thereof come to an end : every month they shall bring forth new fruit, because their waters issue forth from the sanctuary : and their fruit shall be for food, and their leaf for healing.
- 13 Thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; This shall be the border, whereby ye shall inherit the land according to the twelve tribes of Israel : 14 Joseph shall have two portions. And ye shall inherit it one as well as another : concerning which I swore that I would give it unto your fathers : and this land shall fall unto you for inheritance.
- 15 And this shall be the border of the land towards the north side, from the great sea towards the way of Hethlon, as men go to 16 Zedad ; Hamath, Berothah, Sibrain, which is between the border of Damascus and the border of Hamath ; Hazar-hatticon, which is by the coast of Hauran. And the border 17 from the sea shall be Hazarenan by the border of Damascus, and Ziphron northward, and the border of Hamath : This is the north side. And the east side ye shall 18 measure from Hauran, and from Damascus, and from Gilead, and from the land of Israel by the Jordan, from the border unto the east sea : This is the east side. And 19 the south side southward shall be from Tamar even to the waters of strife in Kadesh, as far as the river by the great sea : This is the border southward on the south side. The west side also shall be the great 20 sea from the border to the country over against the way that goeth to Hamath. This is the west side.

And ye shall divide this land among you, 21 among the tribes of Israel. And it shall 22 come to pass, that ye shall divide it by lot for an inheritance unto you, and to the strangers that sojourn among you, who shall beget children among you : and they shall be unto you as he that is born in the land among the Israelites : they shall have an inheritance with you among the tribes of Israel. And it shall come to pass, that in 23 what tribe the stranger sojourneth, there shall ye appoint him his inheritance, saith the Lord Jehovah.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

Now these are the names of the tribes. 1 From the north end towards the country by the way of Hethlon, as one goeth to Hamath, Hazar-enan, the border of Damascus northward, towards the country of Pa-

8. Into the salt sea] The sea of Sodom is thus called, Gen. xiv. 3; and the direction in which these waters flowed, shows that it was to this sea they went, the noxious qualities of which they corrected.

9. Shall live] Even in the sea of Sodom, which is so unfavourable to life, that it has been called the dead sea. This sea contains as much salt as the water can hold in solution, being one-fourth of its own weight. The living waters would alter the whole of this sea, and heal its waters, so that it should abound with fish.

10. From En-ge-di] This was in the desert of Judah, Jer. xv. 61, 62. Some place it towards the south-west point of the Red Sea.—En-eglaim] Jerom places this on the north of the dead sea, where the Jordan flows into it. Eglaim is mentioned, Isa. xv. 8, as a place on the borders of Moab.—The great sea] The Mediterranean.

11. The miry places] As the Jordan usually overflowed its banks, when the snows of Lebanon were melted, it is not improbable that the Dead Sea, by such a quantity of water being poured into it, also poured forth some of its waters into the neighbouring valleys, here called the miry places, and the pits ; and when by the heat these waters were exhaled, nothing would be left but salt.

12. Trees for food] These trees would be always fruitful, and their very leaves possess healing properties. This beautiful allegory can only mean that during the second temple, God would pour forth his spirit in connexion with the preaching of our Lord and his apostles, and that the gospel should gradually spread, and convey life and happiness to men. This last verse expresses the happiness of the good in this life, Jer. xvii. 7, 8; and their state in glory;

Rev. xxii. 1, 2. Compare this allegory with Joel iii. 18 ; Zec. xiv. 8 ; Isa. lv. 1 ; John vii. 38.

13. This shall be the border] Had all the tribes returned as they should have done, this division of the land ought to have been followed.—Joseph shall] Ephraim and Manasseh were to be treated as formerly, each having the honour of being a tribe in Israel.

14. One as well as another] Not as formerly, but they were all to have equal portions of the land. And he defines first the boundaries of the land.

15—17. Towards the north side] It was to extend from a point of the Mediterranean along the border of Damascus, by Hethlon, Hamath, Berothah, &c. There is little certainty respecting these places, only that they were in the north part of the land.

18. The east side] From Hauran, the capital of Auranitis, along the Jordan to the Dead Sea, formed the eastern border. No part beyond the Jordan is mentioned.

19, 20. The south side] From Tamar, called Hazzazon-Tamar, or En-ge-di, 2 Chron. xx. 2, to Kadesh, often mentioned as far as the river, called the river of Egypt. See Num. xxxiv. 5. Josh. xv. 4—47, and 1 Kings viii. 65. The Mediterranean formed the west side.

22. And to the strangers] To those of another people who come to dwell with you and become proselytes. This is different from the Mosaic statutes ; and how far it was observed after the captivity I know not. The Idumeans were incorporated with the Jews, and most probably many of the neighbouring nations, after their return.

CHAP. XLVIII. 1—7. From the north] These portions run across the land from the east to the west, in parallel

- math: and let his east side be the sea:
- 2 Dan one portion. And by the border of Dan, from the east side unto the west side,
- 3 Asher one. And by the border of Asher, from the east side even unto the west side,
- 4 Naphtali one. And by the border of Naphtali, from the east side unto the west side,
- 5 Manasseh one. And by the border of Manasseh, from the east side unto the west side,
- 6 Ephraim one. And by the border of Ephraim, from the east side even unto the west side,
- 7 Reuben one. And by the border of Reuben, from the east side even unto the west side, Judah one.
- 8 And by the border of Judah, from the east side unto the west side, shall be the oblation which ye shall offer, five and twenty thousand cubits in breadth, and in length as one of the portions, from the east side unto the west side: and the sanctuary
- 9 shall be in the midst of it. The oblation which ye shall offer unto Jehovah shall be five and twenty thousand in length, and
- 10 ten thousand in breadth. And of these shall be the holy oblation for the priests: towards the north five and twenty thousand in length, and towards the west ten thousand in breadth, and towards the east ten thousand in breadth, and towards the south five and twenty thousand in length: and the sanctuary of Jehovah shall be in the
- 11 midst thereof. It shall be for the priests that are sanctified of the sons of Zadok; who kept my charge, who went not astray when Israel went astray, as the Levites
- 12 went astray. And it shall be a most holy oblation for them, out of the oblation of the
- 13 land by the border of the Levites. And over against the border of the priests, the Levites shall have five and twenty thousand in length, and ten thousand in breadth: all the length shall be five and twenty thou-
- 14 sand, and the breadth ten thousand. And they shall not sell of it; neither shall any one exchange, nor transfer the first-fruits of the land: for they are holy unto Jehovah.
- 15 And the five thousand which are left in breadth, over against the five and twenty thousand, shall be a profane place for the city, for dwelling, and for suburbs; and
- 16 the city shall be in the midst thereof. And these shall be the measures thereof; the north side four thousand and five hundred, and the south side four thousand and five hundred, and the east side four thousand and five hundred, and the west side four thousand and five hundred. And the 17 suburbs of the city shall be towards the north two hundred and fifty, and towards the south two hundred and fifty, and towards the east two hundred and fifty, and towards the west two hundred and fifty. And the residue in length over against the 18 holy oblation shall be ten thousand eastward, and ten thousand westward; and it shall be over against the holy oblation; and the increase thereof shall be for food unto them that serve the city. And they that 19 serve the city shall serve it out of all the tribes of Israel. All the oblation shall be five 20 and twenty thousand by five and twenty thousand: ye shall offer the holy oblation four-square, together with the possession of the city.

And the residue shall be for the prince, 21 on this side and on that of the holy oblation, and of the possession of the city; over against the five and twenty thousand of the oblation towards the border of the land eastward, and westward over against the five and twenty thousand towards the border of the land westward, over against the portions shall be for the prince: and the holy oblation and the sanctuary of the house shall be in the midst thereof. Even 22 from the possession of the Levites, and from the possession of the city which shall be in the midst shall be for the prince; between the border of Judah and the border of Benjamin, shall be for the prince.

As for the rest of the tribes, from the 23 east side unto the west side, Benjamin one. And by the border of Benjamin, from the 24 east side unto the west side, Simeon one. And by the border of Simeon, from the 25 east side unto the west side, Issachar one. And by the border of Issachar, from the 26 east side unto the west side, Zebulun one. And by the border of Zebulun, from the 27 east side unto the west side, Gad one. And by the border of Gad, at the south 28 side southward, the border shall be even from Tamar, unto the waters of strife in Kadesh, as far as the river by the great sea. This is the land which ye shall divide by 29 lot unto the tribes of Israel for an inherit-lines; and in these verses he describes the tribes which lay to the north of the holy oblation, or portion for the temple, city, prince, priests and Levites.

8. By the border of] This was to adjoin the portion of Judah on the north, and to run parallel with it in length.

9. Unto Jehovah] For his sanctuary and priests. Compare chap. xlv. 1, &c.

10—20. The holy oblation] The best method of illustrating these verses is to give a representation of the land as divided according to Ezekiel. The square of the whole of the holy portion is 25,000 by 25,000 cubits, which was divided into three parts, one for the priests; one for the Levites, and one for the city, &c.

21, 22. For the prince] From the plan the portion for the prince consisted of one part on the east, and another on the west of the holy portion. See Poole and Rosenmüller.

23—29. As for the rest of] He now notices the five remaining tribes which lay to the south of the temple. I would say with Houbigant, that it is safer to determine that what is here said, was in some measure done, as some:

ance, and these are their portions, saith the Lord Jehovah.

- 30 And these are the goings out of the city ; on the north side shall be four thousand 31 and five hundred cubits by measure. And the gates of the city shall be called after the names of the tribes of Israel. Three gates northward ; one gate of Reuben, one 32 gate of Judah, one gate of Levi. And on the east side shall be four thousand and five hundred : and three gates ; one gate of Joseph, one gate of Benjamin, one gate of Dan. And on the south side shall be 33 four thousand and five hundred by measure : and three gates ; one gate of Simeon, one gate of Issachar, one gate of Zebulun. On the west side shall be four thousand 34 and five hundred, with their three gates ; one gate of Gad, one gate of Asher, one gate of Naphtali. It shall be round about 35 eighteen thousand cubits : and the name of the city from that day shall be, JEHOVAH SHAMMAH, (JEHOVAH IS THERE.)

of all the tribes did return, though we have no account of it, for there is a total want of information from the time of Ezra to the Maccabees.

30—35. These are the goings] The gates of the city, &c. See ver. 15. The city was to be a perfect square, each side measuring 4,500 cubits ; and each side of this square had three gates called after the tribes of Israel. See Rev. xxi.

16, &c.—Jehovah is there] Compare Isa. lx. 14. Jerem. xxxiii. 16. Jehovah came there in the person of Messiah ; and perhaps the whole of these two last chapters may have a reference to the gospel church, which consists of the true Israel, citizens of the new Jerusalem, and with whom Jehovah will be for ever.

DANIEL.

INTRODUCTION.

DANIEL is with great probability thought to have sprung from a younger branch of the royal family. He was carried when but young a captive to Babylon ; and from the comeliness of his person, and the endowments of his mind, he was chosen with others to be educated for attending the person of the king. He soon gained the friendship of the chief chamberlain, and his advancement was as rapid as his attainments in wisdom, learning, and piety were singular.

The book is generally divided into two parts, the first six chapters comprising the first ; and the latter six the second. The first part is in a great measure historical, and relates some surprising dreams and other events, which Daniel interpreted and explained. The second part is wholly prophetical, and refers to the most distant times. Nearly one half of this book is written in the Chaldee language, because it treats of the Chaldean affairs, and might be useful to that people.

CHAPTER I.

Jehoiakim's captivity ; Ashpenaz taketh Daniel and his companions ; their temperance, and great wisdom.

- 1 IN the third year of the reign of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, came Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, unto Jerusalem, and besieged it. And Jehovah gave Jehoiakim, king of Judah, into his hand, with a part of the vessels of the house of God, and he carried them into the land of Shinar, to the house of his god : and he brought the vessels into the treasure-house of his god.
3 Then the king commanded Ashpenaz, the chief of his officers, to bring some of the Israelites both of the seed royal, and of the nobles ; Young men in whom was no 4 blemish, but comely in appearance, and furnished with all wisdom, and skilful in knowledge, and understanding science even such as possessed ability to stand in the king's palace, and who might be taught the learning and the language of the Chal- 5 deans. And the king appointed for them a daily provision of his own food, and of the wine which he drank ; also that they should be so nourished for three years, and at the end thereof should stand before the king. Now 6 among those of the children of Judah were Daniel, Hananiah, Mishaël, and Azariah : Unto whom the chief of the officers gave 7

CHAP. I. 2. Gave Jehoiakim] Whether Nebuchadnezzar had stormed the city or not, we are not informed. It is probable that Jehoiakim capitulated, as he became tributary to the king of Babylon. This would be in the fourth year of his reign, and from this Vignoles and Blair date the beginning of the seventy years of the captivity, 605 years before Christ, and which ended 536, when the seventieth year would be current.—He carried them] The vessels, but not Jehoiakim ; for according to Jeremiah, xxii. 12, he was slain near Jerusalem ; but not till after the siege, in the eleventh year of his reign. See 2 Kings xxiv. 1, 2.—House of his God] The temple of Bel or Belus. At this time some of the younger branches of the royal family and of nobles were taken to Babylon, as a kind of hostages, and among these was Daniel and his companions.

4. The learning and language] The Chaldeans excelled in some branches of science, and particularly in astronomy. As Moses learned the wisdom of Egypt, so did Daniel that of Babylon, that he might be useful to his people.

6. Of the children of Judah] In opposition to those of the ten tribes, who were also now under the Chaldean government.

7. Chief of his officers] I have rendered by the general term officers, מְרִיבֵי, as it does not always denote eunuchs. Gen. xxxix. 1.—Gave names] It is difficult to assign a reason for the names imposed. Their Hebrew names had a names; and he called Daniel, Belteshazzar; and Hananiah, Shadrach; and Mishael, Meshach; and Azariah, Abed-nego.

- 8 But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the portion of the king's food, nor with the wine which he drank: therefore he requested of the chief of the officers that he might not defile himself. Now God had brought Daniel into favour and tender regard with the chief of the officers; And the chief of the officers said unto Daniel, I am afraid of my lord the king, who hath appointed your food and your drink: for if he should see your faces look worse than the young men who are of the same age, ye will bring my head into danger with the king. Then said Daniel to Melzar, whom the chief of the officers had set over Daniel, Hananiah, 12 Mishael, and Azariah, Prove thy servants, I beseech thee, ten days; and let them give us pulse to eat, and water to drink. Then let our countenances be inspected before thee, and the countenances of the young men who eat the portion of the king's food: and as thou shalt see, deal with thy servants. So he hearkened to them in this matter, and proved them ten days. And at the end of ten days their countenances appeared fairer and fatter in flesh than any of the young men who did eat the portion of the king's food. Thus Melzar took away the portion of their food, and the wine that they should drink; and he gave them pulse.
- 17 As to these four young men, God gave them knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom; and Daniel had understanding in all visions and dreams. And at the end of the days which the king had appointed for them to be brought in, the chief of the officers brought them in before Nebuchadnezzar. And the king conversed with them; and among them all there were found none like Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah: therefore they stood before the king. And in all matters of wisdom and understanding, concerning which the king inquired of them, he found them ten times superior to all the magicians and astrologers that were in all his realm. And Daniel continued even unto the first year of the king Cyrus.

CHAPTER II.

Nebuchadnezzar having dreamed a dream, it is made known to Daniel, who interpreteth the dream unto him.

AND in the second year of his own reign, Nebuchadnezzar dreamed dreams, wherewith his spirit was greatly troubled, and his sleep departed from him. Then the king gave a command to call the magicians, and the astrologers, and the sorcerers, and the Chaldeans to declare to him his dreams: and they came and stood before the king. And the king said unto them, I have dreamed a dream, and my spirit is troubled through anxiety to know the dream. Then spoke the Chaldeans to the king, in the Aramcan language, O king, live for ever: declare the dream to thy servants, and we will give the interpretation of it. The king answered, and said to the Chaldeans, This is what I have decreed that if ye do not make known unto me both the dream and its interpretation, ye shall be cut in pieces, and your houses shall be made heaps: But if ye show both the dream, and its interpretation, ye shall receive from me gifts, great rewards, and much honour: therefore show me the dream, and its interpretation. Again they answered, and said, Let the king declare the dream to his servants, and we will show the interpretation of it. The king answered, and said, I know for certain that ye would gain time, because ye perceive what I have decreed. But if ye do not make known to me the dream, this is the only decree for you since ye have prepared to speak before me only falsehood and lies until the time be changed:

reference to the God of Israel; but these Babylonian to the idols worshipped there. Belteshazzar, the priest of the treasure of Bel; Shadrach, the 'inspiration of the sun; Meshach, one devoted to Shach; and Abed-nego, the servant of Nego.

8—16. Not to defile himself] By eating what the law forbade. Thus he showed, as far as possible, his regard to the God of his fathers; and the event proved that his coarse fare did not diminish his vigour, but even contributed to increase it.

17. In visions and dreams] Not fortuitous or casual dreams, but such as were sent from heaven; for this was one way in which God imparted his will to men in old times, Gen. xxxvi. 5—11; xl. 5—23.

20. To all the magicians] The magicians were persons skilled in natural science, and of course raised above others; and those called 'astrologers,' were skilled in astronomy, which being abused to pretend to cast nativities, and foretell future events, has sunk into a term of contempt.

21. Daniel continued] He lived until the dissolution of the Babylonian empire by Cyrus, when the prophecy of Isa. xlv. 28, and xlv. 1, was fulfilled; and until the expiration of the Jewish captivity, when the seventy years of Jeremiah had ended; and even to the third year of Cyrus, chap. x. 1.

CHAP. II. 1. In the second year] See note Jerem. xxv. 1. Daniel residing at Babylon, reckons as they did, from the death of his father; but when speaking of him as going against Jerusalem, in the first chapter, he speaks of him according to the Jewish way of reckoning his reign.—Dreamed dreams] Dreams or a continued succession of various events: the following verb וַיִּחְלֶם is in hithpael, and denotes that his spirit was violently agitated, or in such consternation as to affect his body and disturb his rest.

2. To call the magicians] It is scarcely possible to distinguish these various pretenders to knowledge. The Chaldeans were addicted to various arts of divination.

5—9. This is what I have] The rendering of the Syriac and Michaelis is adopted. There is no proof that the king had forgot his dream; but he sought to try them first by their communicating the dream, and then the interpretation of it, as the following verses prove.

therefore declare to me the dream, and I shall know that ye can show me the interpretation of it.

- 10 The Chaldeans answered before the king, and said, There is not a man upon earth that can show this thing to the king, nor hath any king, lord, or ruler, asked such things of any magician, or astrologer, or 11 Chaldean. For the thing which the king requireth, is so difficult that there is no one who can declare it before the king, unless the gods, whose dwelling is not with flesh.
12 On hearing this the king was angry and much enraged, and gave command to destroy all the wise men of Babylon. And the decree went forth that the wise men should be slain; and they sought Daniel and his companions that they might be slain.
14 Then Daniel inquired with counsel and prudence of Arioch, the captain of the king's guard, who had gone forth to slay the wise
15 men of Babylon; And spoke and said to Arioch, the king's captain, Wherefore so hasty a decree from the king? Then Arioch 16 made the thing known to Daniel. And Daniel went up, and desired of the king that he would allow him time, and he would declare to the king the dream and its interpretation. Then Daniel went to his house, and made the thing known to Hananiah, Mishaël, and Azariah, his companions: That they should implore mercy of the God of heaven, concerning this secret; that they might not destroy Daniel and his companions with the rest of the wise men of Babylon.
19 Then was the secret revealed unto Daniel, in a vision of the night; wherefore
20 Daniel blessed the God of heaven, And spoke, and said, Blessed be the name of God for ever and For wisdom and might are his: [ever:
21 And he regulateth the times and the seasons: He removeth kings, and establisheth kings: He giveth wisdom unto the wise, [ing: And knowledge to those having under stand-
22 He revealeth deep and secret things: He knoweth what is in the darkness, And the light dwelleth with him.

10—13. The Chaldeans] Their reply to him shows their inability, by any art they possessed, to satisfy his demand. They properly considered that none but the gods could do this; but why could not their gods reveal it to them? They durst not pretend that they would. The king's rage shows how intent he was on the subject.

14. Then Daniel] The text will bear the turn given, and the next verse makes this necessary. Daniel had not gone with the wise men of Babylon to the king; but he was involved in the royal decree.

16—18. And Daniel went up] Daniel had confidence that Jehovah whom he served, both could and would make this dream known unto him; but while he sought from the king some time, he sought from God this secret.

19—23. Then was the secret] God heard his prayer,

I thank thee and praise thee, God of my 23 fathers,

Who hast given unto me wisdom and might, And hast now made known unto me what we asked of thee:

For what the king desired, thou hast made known unto us.

Therefore Daniel went in to Arioch, 24 whom the king had appointed to destroy the wise men of Babylon: he went and thus said to him; Destroy not the wise men of Babylon: bring me in before the king, and I will declare to the king his dream and its interpretation. Then Arioch speedily brought Daniel before the king, and thus said unto him; I have found a man of the captives of Judah, who will make known unto the king his dream and its interpretation. The king spoke and said to 26 Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, Art thou able to make known unto me the dream which I have seen, and the interpretation of it? Daniel answered before 27 the king, and said, The secret which the king asked, the wise men, the astrologers, the magicians, the soothsayers, could not show unto the king; But there is a God in 28 heaven, that revealeth secrets, and maketh known to king Nebuchadnezzar what shall be in the latter days. Thy dream, and the visions of thy head upon thy bed, were these; As for thee, O king, thy thoughts 29 arose upon thy bed, as to what should be hereafter: and he that revealeth secrets hath made known to thee what shall come to pass. But as for me, this secret was 30 not revealed to me because that I have more wisdom than any living, but that the interpretation might be made known to the king, and that thou mightest know the thoughts of thy heart.

Thou, O king, sawest, and behold a great 31 image. This image, which was so great and splendid, arose before thee, and its aspect was terrible. The head of this image 32 was of fine gold, the breast and the arms of silver, the belly and the thighs of brass, The legs of iron, and the feet part of iron 33 and part of clay. Thou sawest until a 34 stone was cut out without hands, which and to make himself known among the Chaldeans, he discovered the dream; for which favour Daniel gave thanks to Jehovah as governor and disposer of all events.

24—30. Daniel went in] When Daniel had paid his acknowledgments to God, he went to Arioch, and was introduced to the king. He answers the king's question with great wisdom and piety, and leads him to the knowledge of the true God, who only could reveal such a secret.

31—36. A great image] Cities and states, as appears from medals and coins, were anciently represented by figures of men and women; or by various animals. Hence this image was a fit emblem of the successive empires to which it related.

struck the image upon the feet of iron and 35 clay, and broke them in pieces. Then the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver and the gold were broken in pieces together, and were like the chaff of the summer thrashing-floors; and the wind carried them away, so that no place was found for them; but the stone which struck the image became a great mountain, and filled the whole 36 earth. This is the dream: and the interpretation thereof we will declare before the king.
 37 Thou, O king, art a king of kings: for the God of heaven hath given to thee a king-38 dom, power, and strength, and glory. And wheresoever the children of men dwell, the beasts of the field and the fowls of the air, hath he given into thy hand, so that thou hast dominion over them all: Thou 39 art this head of gold. And after thee will arise another kingdom inferior to thee, and another third kingdom of brass, which shall have dominion over all the earth.
 40 And the fourth kingdom shall be strong as iron: inasmuch as iron breaketh in pieces and subdueth all things: and like iron that breaketh all these shall it break in pieces 41 and destroy. And whereas thou sawest the feet and toes, partly of potter's clay, and partly of iron, the kingdom will be divided;
 but there shall be in it of the strength of the iron, inasmuch as thou sawest the iron mixed 42 with tempered clay. And as the toes of the feet were partly of iron, and partly of clay, so the kingdom will be in part strong, and 43 in part broken. And whereas thou sawest iron mixed with tempered clay, they shall intermix themselves with men of any nation, but they shall not cleave one to another,
 even as iron is not intermixed with clay.
 44 And in the days of those kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed, neither shall the kingdom devolve to another people; it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever: Inasmuch 45 as thou sawest that the stone was cut out of the mountain without hands, and that it broke in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver and the gold: the great God hath made known to the king what shall come to pass hereafter: and the dream is certain, and the interpretation of it faithful.

Then the king Nebuchadnezzar fell upon 46 his face, and did obeisance to Daniel, and gave command that they should offer an oblation and sweet odours unto him. The 47 king spoke to Daniel, and said, In truth your God is a God of gods, and a Lord of kings, and a revealer of secrets, seeing thou couldst reveal this secret. Then the king 48 made Daniel great, and gave him many large gifts, and appointed him to preside over the whole province of Babylon, and he was chief governor over all the wise men of Babylon.
 Then Daniel requested of the king, and he 49 set Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego over the affairs of the province of Babylon:
 but Daniel sat in the gate of the king.

CHAPTER III.

A golden image set up; Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego accused for not worshipping; their firmness when threatened; cast into the furnace, but preserved and delivered.

NEBUCHADNEZZAR the king made an 1 image of gold, whose height was sixty cubits, and the breadth of it six cubits: he set it up in the plain of Dura, in the province of Babylon. And Nebuchadnezzar 2 the king sent to gather together the princes,
 the senators, and the captains, the judges,
 the treasurers, the counsellors, the presidents, and all the governors of the provinces, to come to the dedication of the image which he had set up. Then the princes, the senators, and 3

38. Thou art this head of gold] The Babylonian, as including the Assyrian empire, was exceedingly rich; and for this reason might be represented as a head of gold. This empire did not last after this period more than seventy years.

39. Another kingdom] This was the Persian, which was inferior, as some think, in extent and power; but as others inferior in the talents of its governors; for Prideaux asserts truly that the Persian kings were the worst race of men that ever governed an empire.—Another third] This was the Macedonian, begun by Alexander, and continued by his successors. The Persian empire subsisted about 200 years, and the Grecian or Macedonian upwards of 300.

40. Strong as iron] The Roman empire is fitly represented by iron, because of its strength, and because it conquered the former.

41. Feet and toes] This empire would be divided into ten kingdoms, which would be of considerable strength. The tempered clay represents the mixture of many barbarous nations, which tended to weaken and then destroyed the empire.

43. With men of any] Hebrew, 'with the seed of men;' but this means men of any other race. And the Romans gave the right of the city to those whom they conquered, and thus incorporated the various nations.

44. Of those kings] That is, of the last. This can only signify the kingdom of Christ. The image represented the four worldly empires; but the stone was wholly different, and formed no part of the image. This represented a spiritual kingdom, raised by the God of heaven, and destined to continue for ever as well as to become universal.

46—49. Fell on his face] Thus Jehovah extorted from this proud king an acknowledgment that there was none like him; and he put honours on Daniel, for the sake of his people Israel, as he did on Joseph in Egypt for the same end.

CHAP. III. 1. An image of gold] How soon this image was erected after the dream in his second year is uncertain. The Greek and Arabic begin this chapter with, 'In the eighteenth year,' and Dr. Prideaux agrees with them, though the words are not in the present text: but whether it happened then, or, as some think, later, the design of it probably was to frustrate the exposition, and defeat the end, of the dream; on which account perhaps the image was made wholly of gold, and not of different metals; to make an ostentatious display of the abundance of his wealth, and to obviate the jealousies of his people on account of his favours to Daniel and his friends.—Sixty cubits] The height seems too great for the breadth, unless we suppose the pedestal included. Some suppose that it was hollow, like the colossus at Rhodes.

2—7. The princes] To give this image all the honour

captains, the judges, the treasurers, the counsellors, the presidents, and all the governors of the provinces, were gathered together unto the dedication of the image that Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up. And when they stood before the image which Nebuchadnezzar had set up, Then a herald proclaimed, To you it is commanded, O peoples, nations, and languages, At whatever time ye shall hear the sound of the cornet, pipe, harp, sackbut, psalter, dulcimer, or any kind of music, ye shall fall down and worship the golden image which Nebuchadnezzar the king hath set up: And whosoever shall not fall down and worship, in the same hour shall be cast into the midst of a burning fiery furnace. Therefore at the time when all the peoples heard the sound of the cornet, pipe, harp, sackbut, psalter, or any kind of music, all the peoples, the nations, and the languages, fell down and worshipped the golden image which Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up.

Wherefore at that time certain Chaldeans drew near, and accused the Jews. They spoke and said to the king Nebuchadnezzar, O king, live for ever. Thou, O king, hast made a decree, that every man that shall hear the sound of the cornet, pipe, harp, sackbut, psalter, and dulcimer, or any kind of music, shall fall down and worship the golden image; And that whosoever falleth not down and worshippeth, should be cast into the midst of a burning fiery furnace. Here are certain Jews whom thou hast set over the affairs of the province of Babylon, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego; these men, O king, have not regarded thee: they serve not thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up.

Then Nebuchadnezzar, in his rage and fury, gave command to bring Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego. And they brought these men before the king. Nebuchadnezzar spoke and said to them, Is it true, O Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, that ye do not serve my gods, nor worship the golden image which I have set up? Now if ye be ready whenever ye shall hear the sound of the cornet, pipe, harp, sackbut, psalter, and dulcimer, or any kind of music, to fall down and worship the image which I have made, well; but if ye worship not, in the same hour ye shall be cast into the midst of a burning fiery furnace; and who is that God that shall deliver you out of my hands? Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego answered and said to the king, O Nebuchadnezzar, we are not solicitous to answer thee concerning this matter. If he choose, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he can deliver us out of thy hand, O king; But if I not, be it known to thee, O king, that we will not serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up.

Then was Nebuchadnezzar full of fury, and the form of his visage was changed against Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego: therefore he spoke, and commanded that they should heat the furnace seven times more than it was wont to be heated. And he commanded the most mighty men that were in his army to bind Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, and to cast them into the burning fiery furnace. Then these men were bound in their mantles, their turbans, and their cloaks, and their other garments, and were cast into the midst of the burning fiery furnace. And because the king's command was urgent, and the furnace exceedingly hot, the flame of the fire killed those men that took up Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego. But these three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, fell down bound into the midst of the burning fiery furnace.

Then Nebuchadnezzar the king was astonished, and rose up in haste, and spoke, and said unto his counsellors, Did not we cast three men bound into the midst of the fire? They answered and said to the king, True, O king. He answered and said, Lo, I see four men loose, walking in the midst of the fire without receiving any harm; and the form of the fourth is like a Son of God.

Then Nebuchadnezzar drew near to the 26 possible, its dedication was most pompous; and the decree was general, that at the sound of any kind of music, every person must fall down and worship it. As Nebuchadnezzar had been represented in the dream, as 'the head of gold,' might not this image be designed to honour himself as a god?

9—12. Drew near] Probably many Jews refused to obey this royal decree; but the Chaldeans fixed on Shadrach, &c., as being persons of power, and as their successful rivals.

13—15. In his rage] This king could brook no opposition to his will; and the conclusion of his address shows that he supposed himself to be more than a man.—And who is that God? He had forgotten the God of Daniel, or else now defied him.

16—18. We are not solicitous] We are not anxious about thy power, whether or not thou canst conquer the gods; but we can assure thee of our full conviction that the God whom we serve, if he choose, is able to deliver, &c. This reply is modest, yet firm; it shows both their submission and hope.

19—23. Seven times more] His pride was wounded, and he resolved to take ample vengeance on these disobedient Jews. The bravest of his troops were selected to bind them, and throw them into the furnace; but in the discharge of this duty, they lost their own lives. In the Greek, Syriac, and Vulgate, we have the song of the three children, which is inserted in the Apocrypha, after this twenty-third verse. No Hebrew copy has this song.

24, 25. Rose up in haste] Astonished at what he saw; for the three persons walked to and fro amidst the furnace, unhurt. But there appeared a fourth, whose form attracted his attention.—A son of God] Some render, 'a son of the gods,' supposing him to speak as an idolater. Some mouth of the burning fiery furnace, and spoke, and said, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, ye servants of the most high God, come forth, and come hither. Then Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego came forth out of the midst of the fire. And the princes, senators, and captains, and the king's counsellors, being gathered together, looked on these men, and saw that the fire had no power over their bodies, neither was a hair of their head singed, neither were their mantles changed, nor had the smell of fire settled on them. Then Nebuchadnezzar spoke, and said, Blessed be the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, who hath sent his angel, and delivered his servants that trusted in him, who have reversed the king's word, and yielded up their bodies, that they might not serve nor worship any god, but their own God. Therefore I make a decree, That whatsoever people, nation, and language shall speak amiss concerning the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, shall be cut in pieces, and their houses shall be made heaps: because there is no other God that can deliver after this manner. Then the king promoted Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, in the province of Babylon.

CHAPTER IV.

Nebuchadnezzar's confession; his dream, and Daniel's interpretation of it. The event related.

1 NEBUCHADNEZZAR the king to all peoples, nations, and languages, that dwell in all the earth; Peace be multiplied unto you. It seemeth good to me to declare the signs and the wonders which the high God hath wrought towards me. How great are his signs! and how mighty are his wonders! his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and his dominion from generation to generation.
4 I Nebuchadnezzar was at ease in my house, and flourishing in my palace. I had a dream which made me afraid, and the thoughts upon my bed and the visions of my head troubled me. Therefore made I a decree to bring in all the wise men of Babylon before me, that they might make known unto me the interpretation of the dream. Then came in the magicians, the astrologers, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers: and I told the dream before them; but they could not make known unto me the interpretation of it. But at last came in before me, Daniel, whose name is Belteshazzar, according to the name of my god; and since in him is the spirit of the holy God, I related the dream before him.

O Belteshazzar, chief governor of the magicians, because I know that the spirit of the holy God is in thee, and no secret is difficult to thee, declare to me the visions of my dream which I have seen, and the interpretation of it. Thus were the visions of my head upon my bed; I saw, and behold a tree in the midst of the earth, whose height was very great. The tree grew, and was strong, and the height of it reached to the heavens, and it might be seen to the end of the whole earth. The leaves of it were beautiful, and the fruit of it abundant, and on it was food for all: under its shade dwelt the beasts of the field, and in its branches lodged the fowls of the air, and all flesh was fed from it. I saw in the visions of my head upon my bed, and behold, a watcher, even a holy one, came down from heaven; He cried aloud, and he thus said, Hew down the tree, and cut off its branches, shake off its leaves and scatter its fruit: let the beasts depart from under it, and the fowls from its branches. Nevertheless leave the stump of his roots in the ground, fastened with a band of iron and brass; with the tender grass of the field he shall be wet with the dew of heaven, and his portion shall be with the beasts in the grass of the earth: His heart shall be changed from the human, and the heart of a beast shall be given to him; and seven times shall revolve over him. This matter is by the decree of the divine angelic appearance took place. See verse 28 and Job i. 6.

26—27. Servants of the] As he had heard before of the God of heaven, he now acknowledges that these were his servants; and that he had preserved them. This miracle tended to make God known among these idolaters.

28—30. Sent his angel] The king considered the person whom he had called, 'a son of God,' as sent on purpose to deliver these men; and is once more constrained to bless the God of Shadrach, &c.

CHAP. IV. 1. It seemeth good] This must have been issued after the king had been restored, and perhaps in the last year of his reign.

6—8. Therefore made I a] He called those in who pretended to be skilful in matters relating to the worship and knowledge of the gods; but they could not interpret his dream. Daniel was the last sent for, and he interpreted it. According to the name of my god] That is, Bel; for he still calls him his god, and did perhaps consider him as in reality the same as the God of Daniel.

9. Chief governor of the magicians] He was placed over them as governor, chap. ii. 43; and was perhaps by the multitude considered one of them.

10—12. I saw a tree] Under the same image Ezekiel has represented the empire of Egypt, chap. xxxi; and Isaiah that of Babylon, chap. xiv.

13. A watcher] The meaning seems to be, that an angel, described by his office of watching, came down from heaven, even a holy one, some angel of a higher order, as some think.

14. Hew down the tree] That is, the tree shall be hewn down, &c. The imperative is often used for the future.

15. His portion shall be] See Ezek. xxxi. 10.

16. His heart shall be changed] His mind and disposition, so that in his state of derangement he shall avoid the society of men, and herd among cattle.—Seven times] Or seven years shall he be in this state.

17. The decree of the] Secker argues that these plural terms may be applied to God; see Josh. xxiv. 19; Prov. ix. 10. Perhaps the angels as acting with God, and executing his purposes, may be meant.

- watchers, and this thing by the word of the holy ones, that the living may know that the Most High hath dominion in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will, and the lowest of men he setteth over it.
- 18 This dream, I, king Nebuchadnezzar, had; and do thou, O Belteshazzar, declare the interpretation of it, inasmuch as all the wise men of my kingdom are not able to make known to me the interpretation; but thou art able; for the spirit of the holy God is in thee.
- 19 Then Daniel, whose name is also Belteshazzar, was astonished for one hour, and his thoughts troubled him. The king spoke, and said, Belteshazzar, let not the dream, or the interpretation of it, trouble thee. Belteshazzar answered and said, My lord, the dream be to them that hate thee, and the interpretation thereof to thine enemies.
- 20 The tree that thou sawest, which grew, and was strong, whose height reached unto the heavens, and which might be seen through all the earth; whose leaves were beautiful, and the fruit of it abundant, and on it was food for all; under which the beasts of the field dwelt, and on whose branches the fowls of the air had their habitation: This tree thou art, O king; thou art grown great, and become strong: for thy greatness hath increased, and reached unto heaven, and thy
- 23 dominion to the end of the earth. And whereas the king saw a watcher, even a holy one, coming down from heaven, and saying, Hew down the tree, and destroy it; nevertheless leave the stump of his roots in the earth, fastened with a band of iron and brass; with the tender grass of the field shall he be wet with the dew of heaven, and his portion shall be with the beasts of the field,
- 24 until seven times revolve over him; This is the interpretation, O king; and this is the decree of the Most High, which is come
- 25 upon my lord the king. They will even drive thee out from men, and with the beasts of the field shall be thy dwelling, and they shall cause thee to eat grass as oxen, and thou shalt be wet with the dew of heaven, and seven times shall revolve over thee, until thou know that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whom-
- 26 soever he will. And whereas they commanded to leave the stump of the tree roots; thy kingdom shall be secure for thee, after that thou shalt have known that the heavens do rule. Wherefore, O king, let my counsel be acceptable unto thee, and break off thy sins by righteousness, and thine iniquities by showing kindness to the poor; perhaps it may be a lengthening of thy tranquillity.
- All this came upon the king Nebuchadnezzar. At the end of twelve months as he was walking upon the palace of the kingdom of Babylon, the king spoke, and said, Is not this the great Babylon, which I have built for a royal habitation by the might of my power, and for the honour of my majesty? While the word was yet in the king's mouth, there fell a voice from heaven, saying, O king Nebuchadnezzar, to thee it is spoken; The kingdom is departed from thee. And they shall drive thee from men, and with the beasts of the field shall be thy dwelling; thou shalt eat grass as oxen, and seven times shall revolve over thee, until thou know that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will. The same hour was the thing fulfilled upon Nebuchadnezzar: and he was driven from men, and ate grass as oxen, and his body was wet with the dew of heaven, until his hair grew out like the plumage of eagles, and his nails like the claws of birds.
- But at the end of the days, I, Nebuchadnezzar, raised mine eyes unto heaven, when mine understanding returned unto me, and I blessed the Most High, and I praised and glorified him that liveth for ever, whose dominion is an everlasting dominion, and his kingdom is from generation to generation. And all the inhabitants of the earth are reputed as nothing: and he doeth according to his will in the army of heaven and among the inhabitants of the earth: and none can stay his hand, or say unto him, What doest thou? At the same time my reason returned unto me, also the glory of my kingdom, my honour, and splendour returned unto me: for my counsellors and my nobles sought unto me; and I was established in my kingdom, and more abundant majesty was added unto me. Now I, Nebuchadnezzar, praise and extol and glorify the King of heaven, all whose works are

19. The dream he to them] This mode of speaking shows great respect. See 1 Sam. xxv. 22. The figure is called an euphemism, and occurs in the finest writers.

20—27. The tree that] The interpretation is very particular, and shows how God orders and disposes the events of men and things. Daniel's concluding advice is at once a proof of his piety and loyalty.

30. Is not this the] Here the fulfilment of what God had determined is related. The occasion of the judgment which befell Nebuchadnezzar is stated to be his pride and vanity. See Acts xii. 20—23.—The great Babylon] The circuit of this city is stated as above forty-five miles; and its walls, gardens, and buildings were stupendous and magnificent. See Rollin.

33. Ate grass as oxen] I suppose that he went among the cattle, and lived on vegetables; but this probably is all that is meant. In this mad and savage state, his hair grew much, and his nails became like bird's claws, turned inward. In this view there is nothing improbable in the fact.

34—37. But at the end of] At the end of the seven years, &c. Sometimes the recovery of reason is as unactruth, and his ways judgment: and those that walk in pride he is able to abase.

CHAPTER V.

Belshazzar's impious feast; a hand is seen writing on the wall; the magicians could not read what was written; Daniel reads and explains it.

- 1 BELSHAZZAR the king made a great feast for a thousand of his nobles, and drank wine
- 2 before the thousand. Belshazzar gave command while he tasted the wine, to bring the golden and silver vessels which his grandfather Nebuchadnezzar had taken out of the temple in Jerusalem; that the king, and his princes, his wives, and his concubines, might drink therein. Then were brought the golden vessels that had been taken out of the temple, the house of God in Jerusalem, and the king and his princes, his wives, and his concubines,
- 4 drank in them. They drank wine, and praised the gods of gold, and of silver, of brass, of iron, of wood, and of stone. In the same hour came forth the fingers of a man's hand, which wrote over against the candlestick upon the plaster of the wall of the king's palace: and the king saw the
- 6 part of the hand that was writing. Then the king's countenance was changed, and his thoughts troubled him, so that the joints of his loins were loosed, and his knees smote
- 7 one against another. The king cried aloud to bring in the astrologers, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers. And the king spoke, and said to the wise men of Babylon, Whosoever shall read this writing, and show me the interpretation of it, shall be clothed with purple, with a chain of gold about his neck, and shall rank the third in the kingdom. Then came in all the king's wise men: but they could not read the writing, nor make known to the king the interpretation of it.
- 9 Then was king Belshazzar greatly troubled, and his countenance was changed, and
- 10 his lords were astonished. Now the queen, by reason of the words of the king and his lords, came into the banquet-house: and the queen spoke and said, O king, live for ever: let not thy thoughts trouble thee, nor let thy countenance be changed: There is a 11 man in thy kingdom in whom is the spirit of the holy God; and in the days of thy grandfather light, and understanding, and wisdom, like the wisdom of the gods, was found in him; whom the king Nebuchadnezzar, thy grandfather, appointed chief of the magicians, astrologers, Chaldeans, and soothsayers; Inasmuch as an excellent spirit, and 12 knowledge, and understanding, interpreting of dreams, and showing of hard sentences, and dissolving of doubts, were found in the same Daniel, whom the king named Belshazzar: now let Daniel be culled, and he will show the interpretation.

Then was Daniel brought in before the 13 king. And the king spoke and said unto Daniel, Art thou that Daniel, of the children of the captivity of Judah, whom the king my grandfather brought out of Judea? I have even heard of thee, that the spirit of 14 the gods is in thee, and that light, and understanding, and excellent wisdom is found in thee. And now the wise men, the astrolo- 15 gers have been brought in before me, that they should read this writing, and make known unto me the interpretation of it; but they could not show the interpretation of the thing: And I have heard of thee, 16 that thou canst make interpretations, and dissolve doubts: now if thou canst read the writing, and make known to me the interpretation of it, thou shalt be clothed with scarlet, with a chain of gold about thy neck, and shalt rank the third in the kingdom.

Then Daniel answered and said before the 17 king, Thy gifts be with thyself, and thy large rewards give to another; yet I will read the writing unto the king, and make known to him the interpretation. O thou 18 king, the most high God gave a kingdom, and majesty, and glory, and honour, to Nebuchadnezzar, thy grandfather: And on 19 account of the majesty that he gave him, all people, nations, and languages trembled and feared before him: whom he would he slew; and whom he would he kept alive; whom he would he exalted; and whom he countable as the loss of it; but both the loss and recovery in the case of Nebuchadnezzar are to be considered miraculous, and intended to answer valuable moral purposes, as the following verses evince. Some think that he was a true convert, and died in the faith of the God of Israel.

CHAP. V. 1. For a thousand] When we consider the manners of the east, this number is not more than might be well accommodated, especially in the court of the palace. See Esther i. 3, &c. and notes.

4. They drank wine] This was done from contempt of the God of Israel, and in honour of the gods of Babylon. See 2 Kings xxiv. 13, and 2 Chron. xxxvi. 18.

6. Was changed] This description of the king's terror is a master-piece; in a few words, Daniel has said all that can be said.

7—8. The king cried] In vain were the wise men of Babylon consulted; they knew neither the character nor the meaning of what was written. This I think proves, that the Hebrew words were written in the old Samaritan character.

9—12. Then was king] The report of what had occurred was spread through the palace; and the queen-mother, probably Nitocris, widow of Evil-merodach, son of Nebuchadnezzar, and father of Belshazzar, recollecting Daniel, informed the king respecting him. Are we from this to infer that Daniel had lost his office under Belshazzar? It seems not improbable.

13—16. The king spoke] He inquires respecting his person, compliments him for wisdom, and offers to him rank and riches, if he would make known to him the mysterious writing.

17—23. Daniel answered] Daniel was unconcerned

20 would he put down. But when his heart was lifted up, and his mind hardened in pride, he was deposed from the throne of his kingdom, and his glory was taken from him. Also he was driven from the sons of men; and his heart was made like the beasts, and with the wild-asses was his dwelling: he relished grass like oxen, and his body was wet with the dew of heaven; until he knew that the most high God ruled in the kingdom of men, and that he appointeth over it whomsoever he will. And thou his grandson, O Belshazzar, hast not humbled thy heart, though thou knewest all this; 23 But hast lifted up thyself against the Lord of heaven; and they have brought the vessels of his house before thee; and thou, and thy nobles, thy wives, and thy concubines, have drunk wine in them: and thou hast praised the gods of silver and gold, of brass, iron, wood, and stone, which neither see, nor hear, nor know: and the God in whose hand is thy breath, and whose should be all thy ways, hast thou not glorified. 24 Therefore from him was the part of the hand sent; and this writing was written. 25 And this is the writing that was written, MENE, MENE, TEKEL, UPIARSIN. 26 This is the interpretation of the words: MENE; God hath numbered thy kingdom 27 and finished it. TEKEL; Thou hast been weighed in the balances, and art found wanting. PERES; Thy kingdom is divided, and 29 given to the Medes and Persians. Then Belshazzar commanded, and they clothed Daniel with purple, with a chain of gold about his neck, and made a proclamation concerning him, that he should rank the 30 third in the kingdom. In that same night was Belshazzar, the king of the Chaldeans, 31 slain. And Darius, the Median, took the kingdom, being about sixty-two years old.

CHAPTER VI.

Daniel advanced; the nobles conspire against him, and he is cast into the den of lions; he is preserved, and his enemies destroyed.

1 Ir pleased Darius to appoint over the kingdom a hundred and twenty princes, who about the rewards offered; and as a faithful servant of the God of Israel, he reminds him of the honour and greatness of his father, and of his affliction because of his pride; and then addresses him on his presumption in profaning the holy vessels, and insulting the majesty of heaven, in consequence of which, the hand was sent to write his doom.

24—31. Therefore from him] The first word written was repeated to denote certainty; the second showed that the king was not worthy of a throne; and the last told him to whom his kingdom should devolve. Isaiah, Habakkuk, and Jeremiah had all predicted the fall of Babylon; and at length it was conquered. Compare Is. xlv. 12; Jerem. xlv. 1, &c. li. 11, &c.

CHAP. VI. 1. It pleased Darius] Or Cyaxares, whose father was called Astyages, Tobit xiv. 15, and by Daniel, chap. ix. 1, Assuerus. He is supposed not to have reigned more than two years at Babylon, while Cyrus was com-should be over the whole kingdom; And 2 over these three presidents, of whom Daniel was one, to whom the princes might give an account, that the king might suffer no loss.

Now this Daniel far excelled the presidents and princes, because he had a superior mind; so that the king designed to appoint him over the whole realm. On this the presidents and princes sought to find some transaction against Daniel in respect to the kingdom; but they could not find any transaction or fault; inasmuch as he was faithful, so that no error or fault was found in him. Wherefore these men said, We shall find no 5 transaction against this Daniel, unless we find it against him concerning the law of his God. Then these presidents and princes 6 assembled together to the king, and said thus unto him, King Darius, live for ever. All the presidents of the kingdom, senators, 7 and the princes, the counsellors, and the captains, have consulted together to establish a royal statute, and to make a firm decree, that whosoever shall present a petition to any God or man for thirty days, but to thee, O king, shall be cast into the den of lions. Now, O king, establish the decree, and sign 8 the writing that it may not be changed, according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which altereth not. Wherefore king 9 Darius signed the writing and the decree.

Now Daniel, though he knew that the 10 writing was signed, went into his house; and the windows of his chamber being open towards Jerusalem, three times he kneeled upon his knees in a day, and prayed, and gave thanks before his God, as he had done before time. Then these men assembled, 11 and found Daniel praying and making supplication before his God. They then drew 12 near, and spoke before the king concerning the king's decree; Hast thou not signed a decree, that whosoever shall present a petition to any god or man within thirty days, but to thee, O king, shall be cast into the den of lions? The king answered and said, The matter is ratified according to the law of the pleting the conquest of the kingdom. The division of the empire now made continued afterwards. In the time of Esther, the provinces were one hundred and twenty-seven.

3. Had a superior mind] A stronger and more cultivated understanding; and from his experience possessed the talent of transacting the public business with ease and readiness.

4—9. On this the presidents] A man of superior talents, who is raised to rank and eminence, is often the object of envy. It is honourable to Daniel that these rivals could find no public transaction on which to found a charge; but were obliged to attack him in respect to his religion. Their proposal flattered the vanity of Darius, and without perceiving their design, he sanctioned the decree.

10—17. Though he knew] Daniel perceived the design these men had formed, yet would not desist from praying, nor do it in a manner more private than he had been accus-

Medes and Persians, which altereth not.
13 And they replied and said before the king, Daniel, who is of the children of the captivity of Judah, regardeth not thee, O king, nor the decree which thou hast signed, but maketh his petition three times in a day. Then the king, when he heard these words, was exceedingly distressed, and contrived in his heart how to deliver Daniel: he even laboured till the going down of the sun to deliver him. But these men assembled unto the king, and said to the king, Know, O king, that the law of the Medes and Persians is, That no decree or statute which the king establisheth may be changed. Then the king commanded, and Daniel was brought and cast into the den of lions. Now the king spoke and said unto Daniel, May thy God, whom thou servest continually, deliver thee. And a stone was brought and laid upon the mouth of the den; and the king sealed it with his own signet, and with the signet of his nobles; that the purpose might not be changed concerning Daniel.
18 Then the king went to his palace, and passed the night fasting: nor did he permit any food to be set before him: and his sleep departed from him. And the king arose very early in the morning, and went in haste unto the den of lions. And when he came to the den, he cried with a doleful voice unto Daniel; and the king spoke and said to Daniel, O Daniel, servant of the living God, hath thy God whom thou servest continually, been able to deliver thee from the lions? Then said Daniel 22 unto the king, O king, live for ever. My God hath sent his angel, and hath shut the mouths of the lions, that they have not hurt me: inasmuch as before him integrity was found in me; and also before thee, 23 O king, have I done no hurt. Then was the king exceedingly glad, and commanded that Daniel should be taken up out of the den; and when Daniel was taken up out of the den, no hurt was found upon him, because he believed in his God. Then the king commanded, and those men who had accused Daniel, were brought and cast into the den of lions, together with their children, and their wives; and when they had scarcely reached the bottom of the den, the lions prevailed over them, and broke all their bones in pieces.

Then king Darius wrote unto all peoples, nations, and languages, that dwell in all the earth; Peace be multiplied unto you. I make a decree, That through the whole dominion of my kingdom ye tremble and fear before the God of Daniel; for he is the God that liveth, and is steadfast for ever, and his kingdom shall not be destroyed, and his dominion shall be even unto the end. He delivereth and rescueth, and worketh signs and wonders in heaven and on earth, who hath delivered Daniel from the power of the lions. So this Daniel prospered in the reign of Darius, and in the reign of Cyrus the Persian.

CHAPTER VII.

Daniel's vision of the four beasts; of God's kingdom: the vision interpreted.

In the first year of Belshazzar, king of Babylon, Daniel had a dream, and visions of his head upon his bed; and he wrote the dream, and related it in the following words. Daniel spoke and said, I saw in my vision by night, and, behold, the four winds of heaven rushed forth upon the great sea. And four great beasts came up from the sea: different from each other. The first was like a lion, but had the wings of an eagle: I saw until its wings were plucked with which it was raised from the earth; and it stood on its feet as a man, and a man's heart was given to it. And behold another!

tomed to do. His upper-chamber was his oratory, which three times on a day he frequented, looking towards Jerusalem, the city of his fathers, and where Jehovah had particularly dwelt. Daniel was watched, and accused of violating the royal decree. The king now saw the design of the presidents, and he tried to deliver Daniel; but as he could not change the decree, according to the established, but absurd, custom of the Medes and Persians, he was obliged to consent that Daniel should be cast into the den of lions.—A stone was] This evidences how intent his enemies were on his destruction. They left no way of escape for him; and if delivered it must be by a miracle.

18. Passed the night] He felt for the situation of his faithful servant, and by fasting showed his concern for his deliverance.

20. Hath thy God] He had prayed to the God of Daniel, see verse 16, that he would deliver him; and now he asks if he had done it? If he had been able implies some doubt of the event; but Daniel's reply satisfied him of the fact.

24. Then the king] This was a just punishment of these wicked presidents, and might tend to deter others from misleading their king, and accusing others. But the destruction of their wives and children, though then a common custom, was altogether unjust, and contrary to God's holy will, Deut. xxiv. 16.

25—28. Darius wrote] This decree could not fail to make a considerable impression through the empire, and might lead the people to regard the Jews, when Cyrus issued his decree for their return to their own land.

CHAP. VII. 1. In the first year of] This chapter begins the second part of the book of Daniel; and these prophetic visions were imparted at different periods during the space of more than twenty years, from the first year of Belshazzar, to the third of Cyrus.

2, 3. Rushed forth upon] What had been represented to Nebuchadnezzar under the figure of a large colossal image of various metals, is represented to Daniel under the images of various wild beasts arising out of the sea, amidst a tempest. Most empires are founded by conquest, and wars are fitly compared to tempests. Wild beasts were emblems of their oppressions, tyranny, and cruelty.

4—8. The first was like] These beasts had all some appendages, not natural; they were compound figures, like the cherubs, designed to represent the rise, nature, and various events of the different empires.

beast, a second, like to a bear, which was raised up on one side, and it had three tusks in its mouth between its teeth : and it was said unto it, Arise, devour much flesh.

6 After this I beheld, and lo, another, like a leopard, which had four birds' wings upon its back ; the beast had also four heads ;

7 and dominion was given to it. After this I saw in the visions of the night, and behold, a fourth beast, dreadful and terrible, and exceedingly strong : and it had great iron teeth : it devoured and broke in pieces, and stamped the residue with its feet : and it was different from all the beasts that were

9 before it ; for it had ten horns. I considered the horns, and behold, another little horn grew up among them, before which three of the former horns were plucked up : and behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes of a man, and a mouth speaking presumptuous things.

9 I beheld until thrones were placed and the Ancient of days did sit, whose raiment was white as snow, and the hair of his head like the pure wool : his throne was flames of fire, and its wheels a burning fire.

10 A fiery stream issued and came forth from before him : thousand thousands ministered unto him, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him : the judgment was

11 set, and the books were opened. I beheld then on account of the presumptuous words which the horn spoke ; I beheld until the beast was slain, and its body destroyed, and

12 given to the burning flame. As to the rest of the beasts, they had their dominion taken away ; yet their lives were prolonged for an

13 appointed time. I saw in the visions of the night, and behold, one like the Son of man came in the clouds of heaven ; and he approached to the Ancient of days, and was

14 brought near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all peoples, nations, and languages should serve him ; his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom one which shall not be destroyed.

I was distressed in my spirit, even I, 15 Daniel, on account of this ; and the visions of my head so troubled me, That I went 16 near unto one of those that stood by, and asked him what was the true sense of all this ; and he told me, and made the interpretation known to me in the following words : These great beasts, which are four, 17 are four kingdoms, which shall rise up on the earth. But the saints of the Most 18 High shall receive the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever. Then I desired to know the 19 true meaning of the fourth beast, which was different from all the others, exceedingly dreadful, whose teeth were of iron, and its nails of brass ; which devoured, broke in pieces, and stamped the residue with its feet ; And concerning the ten horns 20 that were in its head, and of the other which grew up, and before which three fell : even that horn which had eyes, and a mouth which spoke presumptuous things, whose aspect was more stout than its fellows. I 21 beheld, and this same horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them ; Until the Ancient of days came, and judg- 22 ment was given to the saints of the Most High, when the time had come that the saints should possess the kingdom.

Thus he said, the fourth beast shall be 23 the fourth kingdom upon earth, which shall be different from all kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall tread it down, and break it in pieces. And 24 the ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kingdoms that shall rise up ; and another shall rise up after them ; and this shall be different from the former, and shall subdue three kingdoms. And the king of it shall 25 speak words against the Most High, and shall wear out the saints of the Most High,

9. Were placed] This version is adopted because the text refers to the thrones on which the ancient of days, and the saints sat, Matt. xix. 28. Rev. iv. 4 ; and because all the old versions so render.—Hair of his head] This vision of Jehovah, as a judge, is striking ; and his throne was of materials suitable to his nature, designed to show that the lightnings and flames of heaven are under his control.

10—14. The judgment was] This cannot refer to the last final judgment ; but to one in God's providence, by which the last empire is judged, and the kingdom given to the son of man.

17. Four kingdoms] The first, the Babylonian, is the lion with eagles' wings, to show its strength and rapid conquests. Compare Jer. iv. 7 ; xlviii. 40. Ezek. xvii. 3—12. —The second was like a bear, the Persian empire, which occasioned much slaughter. Sir Isaac Newton supposes that the three tusks signify the three parts, Babylon, Lydia, and Egypt, which it conquered.—The third, like a leopard, with wings and four heads, was the Macedonian, which Alexander founded. The wings represented the rapidity of his conquests, and the four heads the division of his empire into four kingdoms, under Cassander, Symmachus, Ptolemy and Seleucus. —The fourth was represented by a terrible beast, &c., but its form is not described. This was the Roman empire.

18—22. Then I desired] Daniel's attention was fixed on this fourth beast, and particularly on its little horn, which spoke presumptuous things.

23. Devour the whole earth] The Roman empire reduced Macedonia to a province about 168 years, the kingdom of Pergamus about 133 years, Syria about 65 years, and Egypt about 30 years, before Christ. Thus it devoured and broke in pieces the many nations which had constituted the various parts of the former empire.

24. Ten horns out of this] These ten kingdoms into which the Roman empire was divided, are variously reckoned ; but the number ten has generally obtained. See Newton Pro. Vol. i.—Another shall rise up] That this refers to the kingdom of antichrist, is generally allowed. The fathers so interpreted it, and the characters suit no other. The three kingdoms which this power was to subdue, were, according to Newton, the exarchate of Ravenna, the kingdom of the Lombards, and the state of Rome.

25. He shall speak] He shall oppose the revealed will of and think to change seasons and laws : and they shall be given into his hand until a time and times and the half of a time.

 26 But the judgment shall sit, when his dominion shall be taken away, be wasted and 27 utterly destroyed. And the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people, the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him.
 28 So far he spoke, and here is the end of the relation. As for me, Daniel, my thoughts much troubled me, and my countenance changed in me: yet I kept the matter in my heart.

CHAPTER VIII.

Vision of the ram and he-goat; the temple service for some time prohibited; the vision interpreted and Daniel comforted.

1 IN the third year of the reign of king Belshazzar, a vision appeared unto me, Daniel, after that which appeared unto me
 2 in the beginning of his reign. And I saw in a vision; and when I saw, I was in the palace Shushan, which is in the province of Elam; and I saw in a vision, and I seemed
 3 to be by the river Ulai. And I raised mine eyes, and saw, and behold, there stood before the river a ram which had two horns: and the horns were high; but one was higher than the other, and the 4 higher grew up last. I saw the ram pushing westward, and northward, and southward: so that no beast could stand before him, neither could any deliver from his power; but he did according to his own
 5 will, and became great. And as I was considering, behold, a he-goat came from the west on the surface of the earth, and scarcely touched the ground: and the goat had a conspicuous horn between his eyes. And 6 he came to the ram that had two horns, which I saw standing before the river, and in his mighty rage ran at him. And I saw 7 him come close unto the ram, when he rushed furiously upon, and smote the ram, and broke both his horns; and there was no power in the ram to stand before him, but he cast him down to the ground, and trampled upon him: and there was none that could deliver the ram from his power. Therefore the he-goat became very great; 8 but when he was strong, the great horn was broken; and instead of it rose up four conspicuous ones towards the four winds of heaven. And out of one of them came 9 forth a little horn, which grew exceedingly great, towards the south, and towards the east, and towards the pleasant land. And 10 it grew up even to the host of heaven: and it cast down some of the host and of the stars to the ground, and trampled upon them. Yea, he magnified himself even to 11 the prince of the host, and from him the daily sacrifice was taken away, and the place of his sanctuary profaned. And the 12 host, together with the daily sacrifice, were given up by reason of transgression, and he cast down the truth to the ground: and practised, and prospered.

Then I heard one saint speaking, and 13 another saint said unto that certain saint who spoke, How long will be the time of the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, and the astonishing transgression of treading under foot both the sanctuary and the host. And he said unto him, Unto two 14 thousand and three hundred days; then shall the sanctuary be cleansed.

Now it came to pass, when I, Daniel, 15

the Most High, and think to change seasons and laws by appointing fasts and feasts, &c., and persecuting the saints, the true followers of Jesus.—They shall be given] They shall be in some degree under his power; he shall not be wholly destroyed, until the time specified be accomplished. 'Three times and half a time,' mean three years and a half; and reckoning a day for a year, as was usual with the prophets, the whole period will be 1260 years. As this power rose by degrees, so it will fall. It has been shaken already, and the kingdom of peace and righteousness is spreading. Compare Rev. ii. 1 and 13.

CHAP. VIII. 2. In the palace Shushan] In the vision he thought himself there, and seemed to himself to be standing by the river Ulai. He might in vision be brought here, as Ezekiel was to Jerusalem, Ezek. viii. 3; though in reality he was at Babylon.

3, 4. I raised mine eyes] In this vision only the Medo-Persian and the Macedonian kingdoms are represented. The ram represented the former, ver. 20.

5—7. A he-goat from] It has been observed that the Macedonians were called Egeadæ or the goat's people, and a goat was the emblem on their standards. This he-goat ran towards the ram with uncommon swiftness, scarcely touching the ground; and when he drew near he attacked with rage and overcame him.

8—12. Rose up four] See note, chap. vii. 17. Cassander held Macedon and Greece; Lysimachus had Thrace, Bithynia, &c.; Ptolemy possessed Egypt and the adjoining countries; and Seleucus Syria and the eastern provinces. Out of one of them] This is generally applied to Antiochus Epiphanes, who was a younger brother, but contrived to get the kingdom, and grew exceeding great towards the pleasant land; or land of Judea. See Ezek. xx. 6, 15 Ps. xlviii. 2. 'The host of heaven,' the sun and stars of the Jewish state he attacked and cast down; and the 'daily sacrifice' was taken away, he did not suffer it to be offered, 1 Mac. i. 30—40. I render from him, understanding the prince of the host, or high-priest; and the sanctuary as called his because he ministered in it. This was 'profaned,' cast down or off; and even the truth was in like manner cast down or off; the laws of Moses were disannulled, and the rites of heathenism forcibly established on account of the sins of God's people. For a while this horn prospered.

13, 14. One saint speaking] The events announced particularly concerned the saints, and hence their anxiety to know them. The time 2,300 days, if understood of natural days, will be three years and a half; and Cappellus reckoned the time to commence, when Antiochus profaned the temple, and to end when Judas Maccabæus conquered and slew Nicanor, which according to him amounted exactly to 2,300 days. Michaelis thinks it impossible for us now to reckon them, though they might be easily reckoned at that time.

had seen the vision, and sought for the meaning, then, behold, there stood before me as the appearance of a man. And I heard a man's voice between the banks of the Ulai, which called, and said, Gabriel, explain to this man the vision. Then he came near where I stood: and when he came, I was afraid, and fell upon my face: but he said unto me, Understand, O son of man: for at the appointed time shall the vision be accomplished. Now as he was speaking with me, I sunk into a swoon and fell on my face to the ground: but he touched me, and set me upright. And he said, Behold, I will make known to thee what shall be in the latter end of the indignation: for at the time appointed the end shall be.

The ram which thou sawest with horns are the kings of Media and Persia. And the fierce goat is the king of Greece: and the great horn which was between his eyes, is the first king. Now this being broken, and as four stood up instead of it, so four kingdoms shall stand up out of the nation, but not in his power. And in the latter end of their kingdom, when the transgressors are come to the full, a king will rise up, fierce in countenance, and understanding the arts of deception. And his power will be mighty, but not by his power will he prevail: yet will he destroy wonderfully, and prosper, and succeed; he will even destroy the mighty and the people of the saints. And through his policy will craft also prosper in his hand; and he will be elated in his heart, and in peace will destroy many; he will also stand up against the Prince of princes; but he shall be broken without hand. And the vision of the evening and the morning which hath been related is true: wherefore seal thou up the vision; for it is for many days. And I, Daniel, fainted, and was sick certain days; afterwards I rose up, and did the king's business; and though I was astonished at the vision, yet no one perceived it.

CHAPTER IX.

Daniel's humble confession, and prayer for the restoration of Jerusalem; Gabriel informs him of the seventy weeks.

1 IN the first year of Darius, the son of 20—25. Understanding the arts] The best critics give this sense to the text. This king should succeed chiefly by his intrigues and deceptive arts, which things agree well to Epiphanes.—Broken without hand] He shall be destroyed not by men, but by God. See 1 Mac. i. 30, &c.

CHAP. IX. 1. In the first year of Darius] See note, chap. vi. 1.

2. By the books] Those rolls in which the prophecies of Jeremiah were written; and probably the writings of the other prophets.—That in seventy] The sense is preferred to the construction of the original. Jer. xxv. 12, and xxix. 10.

4. O Lord, the great] Jeremiah had informed the peo-

Ahasuerus, of the seed of the Medes, king over the realm of the Chaldeans; In the first year of his reign, I, Daniel, understood by the books the number of the years, whereof the word of Jehovah came to Jeremiah the prophet, that in seventy years the desolations of Jerusalem should be finished. And I looked up to the Lord God, to seek by prayer and supplication, in fasting, and sackcloth, and ashes: And I prayed to Jehovah my God, and confessed, and said, O Lord, the great and dreadful God, keeping the covenant and mercy to those that love thee, and to those that keep thy commandments; We have sinned, and have committed iniquity, and have done wickedly, and have rebelled, even by departing from thy precepts and from thy judgments; And we have not hearkened unto thy servants the prophets, who spoke in thy name to our kings, our princes, and our fathers, and to all the people of the land. To thee, O Lord, belongeth righteousness, but to us the confusion of faces, which we now suffer; to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and to all Israel, that are near, or afar off, throughout all the countries whither thou hast driven them, because of their trespass which they have committed against thee. O Lord, to us belongeth confusion of face, to our kings, to our princes, and to our fathers, because we have sinned against thee. But with the Lord our God are mercies and forgiveness, though we have rebelled against him; And have not hearkened to the voice of Jehovah our God, so as to walk in his laws which he set before us by his servants the prophets. Yea, all Israel have transgressed thy law, and have revolted so as not to hearken to thy voice; therefore the curse is poured upon us, and the oath that is written in the law of Moses, the servant of God, because we have sinned against him. And he hath confirmed his words which he spoke against us, and against our judges that judged us, by bringing upon us a great calamity: for under the whole heaven hath not been done as hath been done upon Jerusalem. As it is written in the law of Moses, all this calamity is come upon us: yet have we not become supplants before ple that if they sought the Lord even in a foreign land, he would hear them, chap. xxix. 12: and Daniel performs this duty for himself and his countrymen with the greatest zeal and devotion. Compare Nehem. i. 5, and ix. 1, &c.

5—8. We have sinned] The several expressions strongly denote the prophet's deep sense of the accumulated sins of the Jews, and of the justice of God in treating them as he had done. Compare 1 Kings viii. 47.

9, 10. But with thee] While he confessed the sins of Israel, he derives hope from God's great mercy, and from his forgiveness.

11—14 Yea all Israel] He again returns to the of-

- Jehovah our God, by turning from our iniquities, and by attending to thy truth.
- 14 Therefore hath Jehovah watched for the calamity, and brought it upon us: for Jehovah our God is righteous in all his works which he doeth: for we have not hearkened to his voice.
- 15 And now, O Lord our God, who broughtest thy people out of the land of Egypt with a strong hand, and hast gotten thee renown, as at this day; we have sinned, we have done wickedly. O Lord, according to all thy righteousness, I beseech thee, let thine anger and thy fury be turned away from thy city Jerusalem, thy holy mountain: because for our sins, and for the iniquities of our fathers, Jerusalem and thy people are become a reproach to all that are about us. Now therefore, O our God, hear the prayer of thy servant, and his supplications, and cause thy face to shine upon thy sanctuary which is desolate, for the
- 18 Lord's sake. O my God, incline thine ear and hearken; open thine eyes, and behold our desolations, and the city which is called by thy name: for we do not present our supplications before thee on account of our righteousness, but on account of thy great
- 19 mercies. O Lord, hearken; O Lord, forgive; O Lord, attend and do; delay not, for thine own sake, O my God; since thy city and thy people are called by thy name.
- 20 And while I was speaking, and praying, and confessing my sin and the sin of my people Israel, and presenting my supplication before Jehovah my God, for the holy mountain of my God; Yea, while I was 21 speaking in prayer, even the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in the vision before, flying swiftly, reached me about the time of the evening oblation. And he informed me, 22 and spoke with me, and said, O Daniel, I am now come to give thee understanding in respect to these things. At the begin- 23 ning of thy supplications the word went forth which I am come to declare, because thou art greatly beloved: attend therefore to the word, and consider the vision. Se- 24 venty weeks are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision and prophecy, and to anoint the Most Holy. Know therefore 25 and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto Messiah, the Prince, shall be seven weeks, and sixty-two weeks: the streets and the walls shall be rebuilt, even in the most distressing times. And after 26 sixty-two weeks shall Messiah be cut off, though he had no fault. Therefore shall the people of the prince that cometh destroy the city and the sanctuary; and they shall be cut down as with a flood, for unto the end of the war will be the desolations determined. And he will confirm a covenant 27 with many for one week: and in the midst of the week he will make the sacrifice and fences which they had committed, and notices how the threatenings of Moses in the law had been justly fulfilled on the whole nation.

15—19. And now, O Lord] Here the prophet supplicates, beseeches, and entreats with a fervour and affection of the strongest kind; and every thing calculated to move the divine compassion is advanced.

20—23. While I was] We have a proof that fervent prayer will not be unregarded in the court of heaven. Gabriel received a commission to go and inform Daniel in respect to the things which occupied his mind and engaged his heart.

24. Seventy weeks are] All the old versions render weeks. Within these seventy weeks, according to the prophetic mode of reckoning, a day for a year; that is, within the space of 490 years, the following particulars in respect to Daniel's people and holy city should be accomplished.—To finish transgression] All these refer to the sufferings, doctrine, and righteousness of our Lord, who died for our sins, and made peace by the blood of his cross; so that through him sin is pardoned, righteousness obtained, and reconciliation effected.—To anoint the most holy] The anointing here refers to our Lord's inauguration as king, when having finished the work of teaching and suffering, he ascended on high, and sat down on the throne, where he reigns as king and must reign till all his enemies are made his footstool.

25. From the going forth] As the end of this period is limited in the next verse, when Messiah shall be cut off, we must date the going forth of this decree or edict to agree with it. Many date from the 20th year of Artaxerxes Longimanus. From this period to the death of Christ were 483 years, answering to the days of 69 weeks, reckoning 360 days to a year, as was usual with the Chaldeans and others. When Nehemiah received his last commission he fully settled and re-established the Jewish church and state, and so it continued until the consummation determined. As there are two periods marked, the first seven weeks, and the next sixty-two added to them, it has been justly thought that the former regards the next clause.—The streets and the walls] The common version is here sufficiently exact, though not literal. The term רצון means a something decided or finished; and with the Greek translators it is referred to the walls.—Even in the most distressing times] From the 20th of Artaxerxes, when this work was specially undertaken and carried on, until 49 years. Nehemiah was opposed by Sanballat, Tobiah, and Geshem, and others. The Samaritans and other neighbours threw every impediment in their way, both privately and publicly; so that the time mentioned was little enough to accomplish what is here said.

26. Though he had no fault] As to the sense, the common version is followed, considering the text elliptical, וְעַד being understood; and this sense is at least supported by other prophecies, Is. liii. 9, compared with 1 Pet. ii. 22. Vatable renders, 'Though none are for him,' and this version Wintle adopts.—Therefore shall the people] I make this the consequence of the Jews cutting off Messiah. The Romans under Titus are meant.—They shall be cut down] The city and sanctuary and of course the people. Wars are often compared to floods, Is. viii. 8; Jer. xlvii. 2. And how dreadful were the devastations of Titus and his troops in Judea! It was not a war for conquest, but of extermination. The angel passes on from the death of Christ to his coming, by the Romans, to punish the unbelieving Jews; but he does not inform Daniel how long this would be after the former event.

27. Confirm a covenant] The prince mentioned in the preceding verse is the nominative to this. And we find that the Romans entered into covenant, or made a league the oblation to cease; and in the temple shall be the abomination of desolation; for until the consummation determined shall it be 'given up to desolation.'

CHAPTER X.

Daniel having humbled himself is favoured with a vision; and being troubled with fear is comforted by an angel.

- 1 In the third year of Cyrus, king of Persia, a word was revealed unto Daniel, whose name was called Belteshazzar; and the word was true, but the time appointed long: and he regarded the word and understood
- 2 the vision. In those days I, Daniel, had
- 3 been mourning three full weeks. I ate no agreeable food; neither flesh nor wine entered my mouth, nor did I anoint myself at all till three whole weeks were completed.
- 4 And in the four and twentieth day of the first month, when I was on the bank of the
- 5 great river, the Hiddekel; I then raised mine eyes, and looked, and beheld a certain man clothed in linen, whose loins were
- 6 girded with fine gold of Uphaz: His body also was like the beryl, and his face like the appearance of lightning, and his eyes as lamps of fire, and his arms and his feet like in colour to polished brass, and the sound of his voice like the sound of a multitude.
- 7 And I, Daniel, alone saw the vision: for the men that were with me saw not the vision; but great terror fell upon them, so
- 8 that they fled to hide themselves. Therefore I was left alone, and saw this great vision, and there remained no strength in me; for my vigour was turned in me into corruption,
- 9 and I retained no strength. Yet heard I the sound of his words; and when I heard the sound of his words, then I sunk down on my face, in a swoon to the ground.
- 10 And behold a hand touched me, and set with the Medes, Parthians, and others, that they might be at leisure to prosecute the Jewish war; or as some understand it, they encouraged many of the Jews to come over to them, and afforded them protection.—In the midst, or half of the week] Every kind of offering made by fire is intended; and according to Josephus, these actually ceased before the city was taken, and have never been offered since.—In the temple] So the Sept. and Vulg. Matt. xxiv. 14; Mark. xiii. 14.—The abomination] That is, the Roman standards, or eagles, and the soldiers with them, should enter and make this holy place a desolation.—Until the consummation] Until the purposes of God are accomplished. So the Greek translators, which gives the clearest sense.

CHAP. X. 1. In the third year] That is, after the death of Darius, and two years after his decree for the release of the captive Jews. Daniel must have been at least 90 when he was favoured with this vision.—Time appointed long] The words may be rendered, 'the warfare will be great;' or as it implies the time of warfare, the common version may be admitted.

1. The great river] The Greek and Arabic have the 'Tigris Hiddekel'; the Syriac the Euphrates. These rivers unite their streams, and probably somewhere near their junction was the scene of this vision.

5, 6. A certain man] He was dressed like the Jewish high priest. See Exod. xxviii. and compare Rev. i. 13, and iv. 5. Either this was a vision of the Messiah, or of one of the highest order of the heavenly host.

7. I alone saw the] His companions heard the awful me up on my knees and on the palms of my hands. And he said unto me, O Daniel, a man greatly beloved, understand the words which I speak unto thee, and stand upright: for unto thee am I now sent. And when he had spoken this word unto me, I stood up trembling. Then said he unto me, 12 Fear not, Daniel: for from the first day in which thou didst set thy heart to understand, and to afflict thyself before thy God, thy petitions were heard, and I am come on account of thy petitions. But the prince of 13 the kingdom of Persia opposed me twenty-one days: but, lo, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me; hence I was detained there with the kings of Persia. Now 14 I am come to make thee understand what shall befall thy people in the latter days: for yet the vision is for many days.

And when he had spoken these words 15 unto me, I set my face towards the ground, and I became dumb. And behold, one like 16 to a "son" of man touched my lips: then I opened my mouth, and spoke, and said to him that stood before me, O my lord, by the vision my sorrows are turned upon me, so that I retain no strength. For how can 17 the servant of this my lord talk with this my lord? for as to me even now scarce any strength abideth in me, and scarce any breath is left in me. Then he touched me 18 again, who had the appearance of a man, and he strengthened me, And said, Fear 19 not, O man, greatly beloved, peace be unto thee. be strong, yea, be strong. And when he had spoken unto me, I was strengthened, and said, Let my lord speak; for thou hast strengthened me. Then said he, 20 Knowest thou wherefore I came unto thee? and now I am about to return and to fight sound of his voice but saw nothing, as it happened to those who were with Paul, when Jesus appeared to him, Acts ix. 7. The sound so alarmed them that they fled to hide themselves.

9. Then I sunk down] So Michaelis and others render; and the circumstances stated here and chapter viii. 18, fully support this sense.

10—12. A hand touched] The hand of the angel called Gabriel, chapter xi. 1; and if so it is not improbable that the person mentioned verse 5, was the son of God, whom Gabriel and other angels attended. Chapter viii. 15, 16, xii. 5; Gen. xviii. 2; Zech. i. 2, 3.

13. Opposed me twenty-one] That is all the time which Daniel had fasted. See ver. 2, 3. What is meant by the prince of the kingdom of Persia, is most probably an evil angel who tried to influence the Persian court against the people of God. See Zech. iii. 1—3; Jude, ver. 9. Now Gabriel's business was to abide at the court and do what he could to influence the king and nobles in favour of Israel; and Michael assisted in this good work. We are too much unacquainted with the invisible world, to decide that nothing of this kind actually occurs; and yet the whole may be symbolical, to show Daniel that his people would meet with opposition from that quarter.

15. I became dumb] Through terror; but through the hand which touched his lips he recovered his power of speech. See Is. vi. 7.—16. (v) The Versions.

20. About to return] Gabriel, as the guardian of the Jews, was to maintain their cause in the Persian court, with the prince of Persia: and when I am gone forth lo, the prince of Greece will come. But I will declare to thee that which is inscribed in the writing of truth: There is no one that supporteth me in these things, but Michael, your prince, whom I, in the first year of Darius, the Mede, stood to confirm and to strengthen.

CHAPTER XI.

The overthrow of Persia by the king of Greece; leagues and wars between the kings of the north and the south; the invasion and tyranny of the Romans.

- 2 And now will I declare to thee the truth. Behold there shall stand up yet three kings in Persia; and the fourth shall possess more abundant wealth than they all: when he is grown strong, through his wealth, he shall stir up all against the realm of Greece.
- 3 Then a mighty king shall stand up, that shall rule with great dominion, and do according to his pleasure. But when he shall be established, his kingdom shall be broken, and shall be divided into four, towards the four winds of heaven, but not to his posterity, nor according to his dominion which he governed: for his kingdom shall be torn up, and be for others beside those.
- 5 Then will the king of the south be strong; but another of his chiefs will prevail against him, and have dominion; his dominion will be a great dominion. And after some years they will be associated; for the daughter of the king of the south will come to the king of the north to make alliances: but she shall not retain the power of the arm; neither shall she stand, nor 'her seed:' but she shall be given up, and they that brought her and her son, and every one that supported her in those times.
- 7 But from a branch of her root shall stand up in his state, that will come with an army, and shall enter into the fortresses of the king of the north, and shall attack them and prevail. And also their gods, and molten images, with their precious vessels of silver and of gold, shall he bring as captives into Egypt; and he shall continue some years superior to the king of the north. And when he shall enter the kingdom of the king of the south he shall be forced to return to his own land.

But his sons will engage in the war, and will assemble a great multitude of forces: and one of them will certainly come, and overflow, and pass through, and carry the war even to his fortress. And the king of the south will be greatly exasperated, and will come forth and fight with him, even with the king of the north; who though he set in array a great multitude; yet the multitude shall be given into his hand. And when he hath taken away this multitude, his heart will be lifted up; but though he hath cast down many thousands, yet shall he not prevail. For the king of the north will return, and set in array a multitude greater than the former; for he will assuredly come after certain years with a great army and with much wealth. And in those times many will stand up against the king of the south: also the perverse sons of thy people will exalt themselves to establish the vision; but they shall fall. For the king of the north will come, and cast up a mount, and take the fortified cities: and the arms of the king of the south, even his chosen people, shall not withstand, for there will be no strength to withstand. But he that cometh against him shall do according to his own pleasure, and none shall withstand him; and he shall stand in the glorious land, the whole of which shall be under his power.

where they would meet with many enemies; and hints that the prince of Greece would come, and from that quarter enemies would also arise. In reference to the troubles and persecutions from the Grecians, this angel informs Daniel what is inscribed in the scripture or writing of truth; or what God had determined should come to pass.

21. But Michael your prince] The first verse of the next chapter is so connected with this, that it ought not to be separated; and from this consideration Michael cannot signify Christ, but some angel. We never find these names in any part of the Hebrew scriptures written before the captivity.

CHAP. XI. 2. Three kings in Persia] These are generally supposed to be Cambyzes, the Ahasuerus of scripture; Smerdis, the Magian, and Darius Hystaspes.—The fourth] This is Xerxes, who excelled his predecessors in wealth. His army and the wealth of it, with which he invaded Greece, are well known.

3. Mighty king] Greece had been mentioned in the close of the second verse, and now a mighty king of that country it is said will rise up, who shall conquer, and do according to his pleasure.

4. His kingdom shall be] The history of Alexander shows how exactly this verse was fulfilled; indeed it seems more like a history than a prophecy. See chap. viii. 8.

5, 6. King of the south] The prophecy regards only two of the four kingdoms into which the empire was divided that of Egypt to the south of Judea, and that of Syria to the north; and in the contests between these two, the Jews suffered much, and for this reason the following account is given.—After some years] Ptolemy Philadelphus gave his daughter Berenice to Antiochus Theus, who divorced his former wife, and banished her children. Berenice did no long retain her power; for Antiochus recalled his former wife, who contrived to poison him, and to kill Berenice, and her son, with all her friends. To remove ambiguity, I have rendered 'her seed,' because it refers to his seed by her, as the next clause clearly proves.—(v) Vulg. Arab.

7—9. A branch of her] Ptolemy Euergetes, the brother of Berenice, raised a large army and marched into Syria to revenge the death of his sister. He succeeded and carried away immense wealth; especially images and idols, and then returned to Egypt; and though Seleucus Callinechus followed him into Egypt he was obliged to return without achieving any thing.

10—16. His sons] Seleucus Ceraunus, and Antiochus the great; they jointly prepared to recover what their father had lost; and when Seleucus was cut off, the latter being raised to the throne, invaded Egypt with all the strength of the kingdom, but was totally defeated by Ptolemy Philopater, king of Egypt, near to Raphia, one of the frontier towns. But the king of the north Antiochus, having re-

- 17 Moreover he will resolve to enter with the strength of his whole kingdom; and will so make alliances with him and give him a young woman, that she may be corrupted; yet will she not be firm to him, 18 nor be for him. After this will he turn his face to the maritime districts, and shall take many; but a commander will cause the reproach offered to him to cease; and 19 will bring disgrace upon himself. Then he will turn his face towards the fortresses of his own land; but he shall stumble and fall, and not be found.
- 20 Then will stand up in his state one that will send forth an exactor of the glory of the kingdom; but within few days he shall be destroyed, yet not in anger, nor in battle.
- 21 And in his state will stand up a contemptible person, to whom should not be given the honour of a kingdom; but he will come in peaceably, and obtain the kingdom 22 by flatteries. And the arms of the overflowing land shall be overflowed before him, and shall be broken; yea, also the covenanted prince. And after the league made with him he will work deceitfully: for he will come up, and will become strong with 24 a small people. Into the peaceful and richest parts of the province he will come; and he will do that which neither his fathers nor his father's fathers have done; he will plunder, the spoil and the wealth he will scatter among them, and he will form his devices against the strong holds even for a time. And he will rouse his strength and his 25 courage against the king of the south with a great army; and the king of the south will engage in battle with a very great and mighty army; but he shall not stand; for they will form plots against him. Yea, 26 they that eat of his food will bring him to ruin; and his army will be overwhelmed and many shall fall down slain. And the 27 design of both these kings will be to do mischief, and they will speak lies at one table; but it shall not prosper; for yet the end shall be at the time appointed. Then 28 will he return into his own land with great wealth; and his design being formed against the holy covenant, he will perform it as he returns to his own land.

At the time appointed he will again 29 come into the south; but it shall not be as the former, or as the latter. For the ships 30 of the Chittites will come against him and he shall be grieved; and again will he have indignation against the holy covenant, and exercise it as he returns; and he will maintain intelligence with those who forsake the holy covenant. And after him shall armies 31 stand up and will pollute the strongly fortified sanctuary, and take away the daily sacrifice, and place in it the abomination of gained his strength, again moved towards Egypt. The Jews took the side of Antiochus, but Scopas, the Egyptian commander, subdued them as well as plundered them. Antiochus, steady to his purpose, took all the fortified cities, having vanquished Scopas; and at length obtained possession of Judea, called the glorious land.

17—19. Moreover he will] Having succeeded in obtaining many of the provinces which had belonged to Egypt, Antiochus now determined to obtain possession of the whole kingdom; but his purposes were frustrated by the Romans. He began to plunder his own empire and was slain at Elymais, by the people.

20. Exactor of the glory] That is, of the wealth of the kingdom. Seleucus Philopater succeeded his father; and to pay the Romans what they had imposed, was forced to raise great sums by exactions from the people. He reigned only 'twelve years,' and was cut off by Heliodorus, his own servant.

21. A contemptible person] Antiochus Epiphanes, who was not the heir to this throne, but obtained it by all the arts of flattery, promises, &c.

22. Arms of the overflowing land] Of Egypt; a land overflowed by the Nile. Cleopatra joined Heliodorus, but he overcame their joint forces and secured Cælo-Syria and Judea.—Covenanted prince] Ptolemy Philometor. With this young prince Antiochus had just concluded a peace; but soon violated his own engagements.

23. He will come up] To Egypt, with but a few attendants; but after he would penetrate into the richest parts of Egypt; and the plunder, &c. he would scatter among them, the Egyptians, to gain their esteem, or his soldiers, to secure their fidelity.

25—27. Against the king of the south] See 2 Macc. v. 1. The king of Egypt and his generals were vanquished, and Antiochus marched to Memphis, and the young king was delivered up to him, whom he affected to treat with kindness. They would both promise what they never intended to perform.

28. Holy covenant] Against the covenant which God had made with Israel, including the laws and ordinances of it. He would endeavour to destroy these and establish the worship of his own gods. He did do so, and polluted the temple, slew forty thousand Jews, and set up his idols in the sanctuary.

29. At the time appointed] The city of Alexandria had not submitted to Antiochus, but he having been offended with Philometor, had set up his brother to be king. Thus Egypt seemed likely to be the victim of a civil war; but the two brothers seeing their common danger agreed to reign conjointly. On this their uncle Antiochus prepared to attack them both, and actually invaded Egypt; but this third expedition was not to be attended with the success of either of the former.

30. For the ships of the Chittites] That is, of the Romans, who had just conquered Macedonia, and from whom the Ptolemies had sought aid. Their ambassadors arrived, and ordered Antiochus to depart from Egypt, which, through fear, he did, and was much grieved.—Have indignation] On his return he vented his rage upon Jerusalem. He sent one of the generals with 22,000 men, who laid the city waste, set fire to it in several places, built a fortress near the temple, in order to destroy those who came to worship there. See 1 Mac. i. 41, &c.

31. And after him] That is, may have the sense here given, see Nold, and compare verse 8. In the preceding verse the Chittites or Romans were introduced, and what follows to the end of the chapter applies with great propriety to them. The Romans having conquered Macedonia, next obtained the kingdom of Epirus, then that of Syria, and at last that of Egypt. See note, chap. vii. 23.—The strongly fortified sanctuary] According to Josephus and others, this is a just description. The Romans polluted it, taking away, or causing to cease 'the daily sacrifice,' and placing in it the 'abomination of desolation.' See notes, chap. ix. 26, 27.

32 desolation. And such as transgress the covenant "will become profane" by flatteries: but the people who know their God shall 33 be strong, and do it. And the teachers of the people shall instruct many; yet they shall fall by the sword, and by flame, by 34 captivity, and by plunder, many days. Now when they shall have fallen, they shall be helped with a little help; but many will 35 cleave to them with flatteries. And some of the teachers will fall, to try them, and to cleanse, and to make them white, even to 36 the time of the end. For yet at the time appointed, will the king do according to his pleasure; and he will exalt himself, and magnify himself above every god, and will speak marvellous things against the God of gods, and will prosper till the indignation be accomplished: for that which is deter-
37 mined shall be done. He will not regard the God of his fathers, nor the desire of women; he will not regard any god, for 38 he will magnify himself above all. But in his state together with God will he honour the protecting powers; even together with God will he honour those whom his fathers knew not, with gold, and silver, and with 39 precious stones, and desirable things. Thus will he do; to the defenders of these protecting powers, together with God, whom he will certainly acknowledge, he will multiply honour; and he shall cause them to rule over many, and shall divide the land for gain.

But at the time of the end the king of the 40 south will push at him; and the king of the north will come against him like a whirlwind, with chariots, and with horsemen, and with many ships; and he will enter into the countries, and will overflow and pass through. He will enter also into the glorious 41 land, and many countries shall be overthrown; but these shall escape out of his hand, even Edom, and Moab, and the chief of the Ammonites. Yet he will stretch 42 forth his hand over the countries; and the land of Egypt shall not escape. But he 43 shall have power over the treasures of gold and of silver, and over all the precious things of Egypt: and the Lybians and the Ethiopians shall be at his steps. But tidings 44 from the east and from the north shall trouble him: therefore will he go forth with great fury to destroy, and to devote many to utter perdition. And he will fix 45 his own tent, his palace between the seas in the glorious holy mountain; yet he shall come to his end, and none shall help him.

CHAPTER XII.

Michael is to deliver Israel from their troubles; the times are revealed to Daniel.

AND at that time shall rise up Michael, 1 the great prince, who standeth up for the

32. Such as transgress] After having adverted to the destruction of Jerusalem and the temple, the prophecy exhibits the state of the Jewish sect of Christians. The Roman emperors adopted every method to draw away the first Christians from the profession of their faith; but such as were sincere and upright, as knew their God, became strong, and did it, that is, the covenant. They would, on no consideration, renounce their faith.

33. Teachers of the people] The apostles and other ministers of the word shall labour in the work of instruction, and shall see the fruit of their labours; yet many both of the teachers and the people should fall by the sword.

34. With a little help] Newton applies this verse to the conversion of Constantine, when for a season the arm of persecution was broken, and when many professed a faith which they inwardly hated.

35. Some of the teachers will fall] Into gross errors in doctrine, and into evil practices. Hence sprang dissensions, and from these persecutions among the professed disciples of Christ.

36. For yet at the time] This is Mede's punctuation, and seems the proper one. A king all along signifies any power or kingdom; and the sense is, that in the Roman empire would arise some antichristian state or power, that would act in the most absolute and arbitrary manner; 2 Thess. ii. 3, 4.

37. The God of his fathers] The apostles, whose successor he would pretend to be. He would show no respect for his will, but oppose it.—Nor the desire of women] Or wives, as the last word may be rendered. He would attempt to contravene the law of nature, and forbid matrimony. "He will not regard any God," any superior; either magistrate or king, who are thus called, Ps. lxxxii. 6; and every one knows that papal power has arrogated this right, and has raised or abused, crowned or dethroned kings at its pleasure.

38. But in his state] In the condition, place, or rank which he enjoys.—Protecting powers] Hebrew, 'bulwarks or munitions,' but Mede and others consider this abstract term to be used for the concrete, as in many other instances. These protecting powers mean the saints and martyrs, who were worshipped nearly through the christian world, together with, and in many instances, instead of, the true God. To them, churches, cities, and kingdoms were dedicated, and religious festivals appointed to their honour. Thus were they honoured with gold and silver, &c. Their images were set up and ornamented with gold, jewels, &c.

39. To the defenders] These were the priests and monks who preached up the doctrine of the invocation of saints and martyrs; and for so doing, the antichristian state multiplied their honour, and divided the land for gain among them.

40. But at the time] At the time appointed. The king of the south, as Mede explains it, the Saracens, who were south of the Roman state, especially the eastern part. They were to push at it, and injure it, but not to overcome it. For the king of the north] The Turks, who were originally Scythians, are meant, who subverted the Saracen power, took Constantinople, overthrew the eastern empire, and made many successful attacks on the western. The fury of this northern conqueror is expressed, and the rapidity of his conquests.

41—43. The glorious land] The land of Judea; and the Turks did so, and have possessed it ever since, as well as the land of Egypt; but the Arab tribes they never have subdued.

44. From the east and the north] Most probably the Persians and Russians are meant, who are destined to destroy the Turkish empire, and with it the doctrine of the false prophet. And while these events are occurring in the east, other prophecies assure us that the papal power in the west shall experience the same fate.

CHAP. XII. 1. At that time] If the close of the last chapter refers, as many think, to the same time as Ezek. xxxviii. 39, this time of trouble must respect the period before the last enemies of God's church and people are destroyed; when the wicked are to be cut off, and the resurrection is to follow.

children of thy people: then shall there be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation until this time: and at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that is found written in the book.

- 2 And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth, shall awake; some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt. And those who have wisely taught shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and those who have turned many to righteousness, as the stars, for ever and ever. But thou, O Daniel, close the words and seal up the book until the time of the end: many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased.
- 5 Then I, Daniel, looked, and, behold! there stood other two, the one on this side at the bank of the river, and the other on that side at the bank of the river. And one said to the man clothed in linen, who was over the waters of the river, How long shall it be to the end of these wonders? And I heard the man clothed in linen, who was over the waters of the river, when he lifted up his right hand, and his left towards heaven, and swore by him that liveth for ever, that it would be for a time, times, and a half; and when the dispersion of the holy people is finished, all these things shall be accomplished.

And I heard, but I understood not: then said I, O my Lord, what will be the end of these things? And he said, Go, Daniel: for the words are closed and sealed up until the time of the end. Many shall be purified, and made white, when tried; yet the wicked will do wickedly: and none of the wicked will understand, but the wise shall understand. Now from the time that the daily sacrifice shall be taken away, and the desolation of abomination set up, there will be a thousand two hundred and ninety days. Blessed is he that waiteth, and cometh to the thousand three hundred and thirty-five days. But go thou till the end be: for thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot at the end of the days.

2. That sleep in the] Either dead really or figuratively. Like the witnesses in the Revelation, it may mean the latter; but the second clause rather leads us to conclude that the former is intended, as the good and bad are to awake; those to the enjoyment of eternal life, and these to everlasting shame and misery.

3. Those who have] Those ministers of truth who have studied it, and with constancy maintained it; and who have been honoured with turning many to the love and practice of righteousness, shall then receive a glorious reward.

4. Close up the book] The sense seems to be, that what was revealed had respect to distant periods, which time only would unfold and discover; yet this writing of truth would 'in the time of the end' be accomplished.—Many shall run] Men shall search into these predictions, some of which would soon be fulfilled, and thus would divine knowledge be increased among men.

5—7. Then I Daniel looked] Two angels, one on each side the river, appeared to Daniel, one of whom said to the man clothed in linen, chap. x. 5, 6, 'how long,' &c. The answer is in the most solemn manner returned. See Rev. x. 1—6.—Time, times] See note, chap. vii. 25.

8. Understood not] Did not fully comprehend what was intended. He was desirous of knowing more of these wonders; but this was not granted.

10. Many shall be] The trials and sufferings with which God would visit his people, should be the means of their sanctification; yet amidst these trying times, the wicked would persist in their wickedness.

11. From the time] Here is a fixed point at which to begin our calculation; but it is still difficult to determine when this period commenced. The taking away the daily sacrifice, and setting up the abomination of desolation, may be applied to various similar events. The profanation of the temple by Epiphanes is said to be this setting up, 1 Mac. i. 54; and our Lord applies it to the destruction of the temple by the Romans, Matt. xxiv. 15. Some date it from the rise of Antichrist, and suppose the thirty years more respected the period when the Jews will be converted, and the latter forty-five, the time when the fullness of the Gentiles will be brought in; but all these things are yet to come, and the vision is closed until providence explains it.

13. But go thou] Mind thy proper business, while life is granted, and be assured that at last, in the end of days, thou shalt enjoy a glorious and everlasting rest.

J O N A H.

INTRODUCTION.

JONAH is the oldest prophet extant. He was a native of Gath-hepher, in lower Galilee, which belonged to the tribe of Zebulun. Josh. xix. 13. He prophesied in the reign of Jeroboam, the second king of Israel; who began to reign eight hundred and twenty-three years before Christ, and reigned forty-one years in Samaria, 2 Kings xiv. 23—25. He was the only prophet sent to a distant city and people to declare the divine will; and in respect to the miracle wrought, both to correct his spirit, and to teach him the power and mercy of God, he was a type of our Lord's resurrection, Matt. xii. 37—40. The order of time is followed in the arrangement of these prophets, and they stand as follows: Jonah, Amos, Hosea, Micah, Nahum, Joel, Zephaniah, Habakkuk, Obadiah, Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi.

CHAPTER I.

Jonah sent to Nineveh, attempts to flee to Tarshish; a tempest is sent and his guilt discovered; he is thrown into the sea and swallowed by a great fish.

1 Now the word of Jehovah came unto

CHAP. I. 2. Go to Nineveh] The capital of the Assyrians. See notes, chap. iii. 3; iv. 11.

Jonah, the son of Amittai, saying, Arise, 2 go to Nineveh, that great city, and cry against it; for their wickedness is come up before me.

But Jonah rose up to flee unto Tarshish, 3

3. Jonah rose up to flee] Jonah seems to have thought this a dangerous mission. His temper and conduct were from the presence of Jehovah; and he went down to Joppa and found a ship going to Tarshish, and paid the fare thereof, and went down into it, to go with them unto Tarshish, from the presence of Jehovah.

4 And Jehovah sent forth a great wind upon the sea, and there was a great tempest in the sea; so that it was thought the ship would be broken. Then the mariners were afraid, and cried every man unto his god. And they cast forth the things which were in the ship into the sea, to lighten it of them. But Jonah had gone down into the sides of the hold; and he lay, and was in a sound sleep. And the ship-master came near to him, and said unto him, What meanest thou, O sleeper? arise, call upon thy God; it may be that God will think upon us, that we perish not.

7 And they said one to another, Come, and let us cast lots, that we may know for what cause this evil is upon us. And they cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonah. Then said they unto him, Tell us, we pray thee, for what cause this evil is upon us? What is thy business? and whence comest thou? what is thy country? and of what people art thou? And he said unto them, I am a Hebrew; and I fear Jehovah, the God of heaven, who hath made the sea and the dry land. Then were the men exceedingly afraid, and said unto him, Why hast thou done this? For the men knew that he fled from the presence of Jehovah, because he had told them.

11 Then said they unto him, What shall we do unto thee, that the sea may be calm unto us? for the sea grew more and more tempestuous. And he said unto them, Take me up, and cast me forth into the sea; so shall the sea be calm unto you: for I know that for my sake this great tempest is upon you. Nevertheless the men rowed hard to 13 bring the ship unto the dry land; but they could not: for the sea grew more and more tempestuous upon them. And they cried 14 unto Jehovah, and said, We beseech thee, O Jehovah, we beseech thee, let us not perish for the life of this man, and lay not upon us innocent blood: for thou, O Jehovah, hast done as it pleased thee. And 15 they took up Jonah, and cast him forth into the sea: and the sea ceased from its raging. Then the men feared Jehovah exceedingly, and offered a sacrifice unto Jehovah, and made vows.

Now Jehovah had prepared a great fish 17 to swallow up Jonah. And Jonah was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights.

CHAPTER II.

Jonah prayeth and is delivered; his song of praise.

THEN Jonah prayed unto Jehovah, his 1 God, from the belly of the fish: And Jehovah commanded the fish, and he cast forth Jonah on dry land. He then said, 2 I called by reason of my distress, Unto Jehovah, and he hath heard me; Out of the belly of hades I cried aloud, And thou heardest my voice. For thou hadst cast me into the deep, 3 Into the heart of the sea; And the floods compassed me about: All thy billows and thy waves passed over And I said, 'I am cast out of thy sight; [me. 4 Yet will I again look towards thy holy temple.] [my life: The waters surrounded me to the peril of 5 The depth compassed me about; Sea weeds were wrapped about my head.

very improper.—To Tarshish] As Jonah went down to Joppa, and sailed from thence, Tarshish must have been either Tarsus in Cilicia, or Tartessus in Spain, and not the Indian Tarshish, to which they sailed from Eziongeber, on the Red Sea.

5. To his god] It is generally thought that these sailors were heathens, and of course worshipped various gods; and the following verses support this opinion.—Sides of the hold] That is, the covered part of the vessel. We have no information respecting the size of this ship; it was probably not large, as it was a trader.

6. The ship-master] He was much surprised to find Jonah asleep at such a time, and in such circumstances.

7. Cast lots] The lot was often used as a kind of ordeal, both by the heathens and the Jews. Here I think they were over-ruled to adopt this method in order to detect Jonah.

9. A Hebrew] He describes his descent, and very properly states the object of his religious regard, Jehovah, the God of heaven, &c. He also told them his sin.

11. What shall we do] Though they knew by the lot and by his own confession that he was the guilty person; yet knowing that he was a prophet, they would do nothing without his consent and advice.

12. Take me and cast me] This Jonah said most probably under a deep conviction of his sin, acknowledging that he deserved thus to die; and being desirous that the lives of the men who were with him might be saved.

13—16. Rowed hard to] They did every thing in their power to preserve him, but were obliged, from the principle of self-preservation, to cast him into the sea; and the sea then ceased its raging. This strikingly showed the finger of God, and even these sailors might from this circumstance become his servants.

17. Now Jehovah had] The account of this singular miracle is short, and it is doubted whether the term 37, as well as the Greek one which our Lord used, might not denote some kind of ship or vessel, in which Jonah was preserved; but see note, Matt. xii. 40.—Three days] This would be true, if understood of one complete day and a small part of two others. This time was designed to prefigure the period of our Lord's continuance in the grave, Matt. xii. 40.

CHAP. II. 1. Jonah prayed] Being preserved alive, he directed his petitions to God, imploring mercy.—And Jehovah commanded] Green transposes the last verse here, which in fact contains an answer to Jonah's prayer; and what follows is a song of gratitude after his deliverance. In this view all is easy and natural.

2. Out of the belly of hades] So he figuratively calls the belly of the fish; his situation was as if amidst the invisible world.

4. I am cast out] That is, he thought he should live no longer, nor see God in his holy temple; yet he would look in his heart towards that sacred place.

5. To the peril of] See note Ps. lix. 2. He strongly represents his dangerous state.

6 I went down to the bottoms of the mountains; [ever:
The earth with her bars was about me for

CHAPTER III.

Jonah again sent to Nineveh, preacheth to the Ninevites; upon their repentance, God repenteth.

1 And the word of Jehovah came unto
2 Jonah a second time, saying, Arise, go unto Nineveh, that great city, and proclaim unto it the words which I speak unto thee.
3 And Jonah arose, and went unto Nineveh, according to the word of Jehovah. Now Nineveh was an exceedingly great city, a journey of three days. And Jonah began to go through the city, one day's journey; and he proclaimed and said, Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown.
5 And the people of Nineveh believed God, and proclaimed a fast, and put on sackcloth, from the greatest of them, even to the least 6 of them. For the matter came unto the king of Nineveh, and he arose from his throne, and put away his robe from him, and covered himself with sackcloth, and 7 sat on ashes. And it was proclaimed and published through Nineveh by the decree of the king and his nobles, saying, Let neither man nor beast, herd nor flock, taste any thing: let them not feed, nor drink water: But let man and beast be covered 8 with sackcloth; and let men cry mightily unto God, and let them turn every one from his evil way, and from the violence which is in their hands. Who knoweth if 9 God will turn and repent, and turn away from his fierce anger, that we perish not.

And God saw their works, that they 10 turned from their evil way; and God repented of the evil which he had said that he would do unto them, and he did it not.

CHAPTER IV.

Jonah repining at God's mercy, is reproved by the type of a gourd.

BUT it displeased Jonah exceedingly, 1 and he was very angry. And he prayed unto 2 Jehovah, and said, I pray thee, O Jehovah, was not this my saying, when I was yet in mine own country? Therefore I fled before unto Tarshish: for I knew that thou art a gracious and merciful God, slow to anger, and abundant in kindness, and that thou repentest of evil. Therefore now, O 3 Jehovah, take, I beseech thee, my life from me; for it is better for me to die than to live. And Jehovah said, Doest thou well 4 to be angry?

Now Jonah had gone out of the city, and 5 had sat on the east side of the city, and had made for himself a shelter there, and had sat under it in the shade, till he should see what would become of the city. And 6 God Jehovah prepared a gourd, and it grew up over Jonah, so as to be a shade over his head, to deliver him from his affliction. And Jonah rejoiced exceedingly because of the gourd. But God prepared a 7

6. The earth with her bars] He was amidst the strongest parts of the earth, and where he expected to remain; but God mercifully delivered him.

9. Salvation] Thus he concludes with ascribing his wonderful deliverance to Jehovah, from whose presence he had endeavoured to flee.

CHAP. III. 2. Arise go unto] He is addressed as before; and ordered to deliver God's message faithfully. See Ezek. iii. 17—21.

3. Went to Nineveh] He did not repeat his offence; but hastened to execute the commission which he had received.—Great city] This was an ancient city. See Gen. x. 11, and note. Diodorus relates that it was 480 furlongs, or about 60 miles in compass. The same historian states that it was an oblong figure; the two longer sides of which measured 150 stadia, and the shorter 90. If we suppose Jonah to go round the city, he must have to walk about twenty miles each day.

4. Yet forty days] Jonah proclaimed aloud, as he went along, the awful warning of heaven to a sinful people. All denunciations are so far conditional, that they imply the continuance of men in the same state; for if they become penitent, they become the happy partakers of mercy.

5. Believed God] Believed the word of his servant. The people seem first to have been affected; and when the matter came to the king, he sanctioned the observance of a strict fast.

6. Put on sackcloth] See as to this custom, Job ii. 8. Isa. lviii. 5. Jer. vi. 26. The king is supposed by Usher to have been Pul, who invaded Israel in the reign of Manasseh, 2 Kings xv. 19.

7. Taste any thing] The eastern mode of fasting was to taste nothing until the evening.

8. And beast be covered] This was done to impress their minds more deeply, and shows how much they humbled themselves.

9. It is better for me to die than to live] He spoke as one in suspense, between hope and fear; for the light of nature does not teach us the certainty of pardon on repentance. This is a doctrine of revelation.

10. And God saw] They not only had the outward signs of sorrow, but the inward feeling of remorse, Matt. xii. 41. —God repented] This is said of God in reference to his dispensation towards the Ninevites, not to his own purpose; for as to that he never repents, being without the shadow of a change. God is said to repent when there is a change in his providence towards a people, Jer. xviii. 7—10.

CHAP. IV. 1. It displeased Jonah] This shows the temper of the prophet; for he was angry at the very thing which should have given him the greatest pleasure.

4. Doest thou well] Is this becoming thy character and office? Thus God kindly and tenderly admonishes him to reflect on his improper temper and conduct.

6. Prepared a gourd] Jonah, having delivered his message, departed from the city, and waited for the end of the forty days, to see the result. He had made a shelter from the heat, and over this God had caused a gourd to come up,

- worm when the morning rose the next day ; and it smote the gourd, and it withered.
- 8 And it came to pass, when the sun arose, that God prepared a raging east wind ; and the sun beat upon the head of Jonah, so that he fainted, and inwardly asked to die, and said, It is better for me to die than to
- 9 live. And God said to Jonah, Doest thou well to be angry for the gourd ? And he said, I do well to be angry even unto death.

which might make his situation more comfortable. This Jonah enjoyed one day.

7. Prepared a worm] The growth of the plant was rapid, but a worm was feeding on its vital part, and it soon decayed. By some the palma Christi is supposed to be meant.

8. A raging east wind] The Sept. 'a scorching east

And Jehovah said, Thou wouldst have 10 spared the gourd, for which thou hast not laboured, neither hast thou made it grow ; which came up in a night, and perished in a night : And shall not I spare Nineveh, 11 that great city, in which are more than six score thousand persons who cannot discern between their right hand and their left hand ; and also much cattle ?

wind.' The east wind is in scripture often mentioned, and always as boisterous and destructive.

10. Thou wouldst have] This is a fine appeal to the reason and conscience of Jonah. If he would have spared the plant because of its beauty and excellence, as well as use, should not God spare a penitent people ? A great city, in which were so many little ones ?

A M O S.

INTRODUCTION.

This prophet was a native of Tekoa, a city in the tribe of Judah, yet he dwelt in Israel, and chiefly prophesied against that kingdom. He was a shepherd and herdsman ; and distinguishes himself from those educated in the schools founded by Samuel. He is the next prophet after Jonah, as he prophesied in the days of Uzziah, who reigned over Judah from the year before Christ 809, to the year 758. He borrows many images from the scenes in which he had been engaged ; but applies them with skill. His manner is elevated, his descriptions beautiful ; and his exhortations and reproofs warm and pathetic.

CHAPTER I.

God's judgment upon Syria, the Philistines, Tyre, Edom, and the Ammonites, foretold.

- 1 The words of Amos, who was among the herdsmen of Tekoa, which came to him in a vision, concerning Israel, in the days of Uzziah, king of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam, the son of Joash, king of Israel,
- 2 two years before the earthquake. And he said,
Jehovah will roar from Zion,
And from Jerusalem he will utter his voice ;
And the pastures of the shepherds shall mourn,
And the top of Carmel shall wither.
- 3 Thus saith Jehovah ;
For the many transgressions of Damascus,
I will not turn away the punishment thereof ;
Because they thrashed Gilead with thrashing-wains of iron :

CHAP. I. 1. The earthquake] This is referred to Zech. xiv. 5, and Lowth thinks, Isa. v. 25. Josephus describes some of its effects, and attributes it to Uzziah's invasion of the priest's office.

3. For the many.] The former verse indicates that God would soon spread terror, like the roaring lion among the feeble animals. He now assigns the reason of it, the many transgressions of the different peoples. The sense is preferred to the idiom, three and four, which may be misunderstood, Prov. xxx. 15, &c. From the application of the same numbers to all the different peoples, it can only mean as rendered.—Thrashing wains.] See Isa. xxviii. 27. The fact to which the prophet refers is stated 2 Kings x. 32, 33.

4. Ben-hadad.] He was the son and successor of Hazeal, king of Syria, 2 Kings xiii. 3—24.

5. Valley of On] This and Beth-eden, 'house of delight,' according to Bochart, both mean the rich valley in which Damascus stood, 2 Kings xvi. 9.

for slaves to the Edomites.

9, 10. The league of brethren] See 1 Kings v. 12.—
A fire on the] Nebuchadnezzar accomplished this prediction. Ezek. xxv. 7—14.

11, 12. His brother] His brother Jacob. The Edomites ever continued the most bitter enemies of Israel. Jer. xxv.
9 ; xxvii. 3, 6.

13—15. Ammonites] These were next to the Edomites ; and what is here said shows their cruelty. Jer. xxvii. 3, 6.
CHAP. II. 1—3. Burned the bones] Insulted his remains in a revengeful and savage manner. Kiriath was a city of Moab, Jer. xlviii. 24. Moab was also vanquished by the Babylonians. See Jer. xxvii. 3—9.

4, 5. They have despised] The offences of Judah are of a different nature to those of the surrounding nations ; neglect of God's law and turning to idols are mentioned as the cause of their captivity and ruin. See 2 Kings xxv. 9.

6—8. The righteous for silver.] Perverted justice for the smallest present ; a piece of silver, or a pair of sandals.— their idols, and drank wine procured by the basest methods.

9—11. Yet destroyed I] The prophet now addresses the kingdom of Israel.

12. Nazarites wine] They endeavoured to destroy all his sacred institutions. The words of the prophets they despised, saying, ' prophecy not.'

13. I will press you] Modern critics generally give the term press an active signification, as the old versions, Syriac and Chaldee did ; and the comparison justifies this sense.

14—16. And flight shall] Their swiftness, strength,

CHAPTER III.

God's judgments against Israel; nature and causes of them stated.

- 1 HEAR this word which Jehovah hath spoken concerning you, O Israelites, concerning the whole family which he brought up from the land of Egypt, saying,
- 2 You only have I known,
Among all the families of the earth;
Therefore I will punish you for all your sins.
- 3 Can two walk together, unless they be agreed?
- 4 Will a lion roar in the forest, without prey?
Will a young lion cry aloud from his den,
If he have not taken any thing?
- 5 Can a bird fall into a snare upon the earth,
Where no gin is placed for him?
Will a snare spring up from the ground,
When it hath taken nothing at all?
- 6 Shall a trumpet be blown in a city,
And the people not be afraid?
Shall there be any calamity in a city,
And Jehovah hath not inflicted it?
- 7 Surely the Lord Jehovah will do nothing,
But he revealeth his secret counsel Unto his servants the prophets.
- 8 The lion hath roared, who will not fear?
The Lord Jehovah hath spoken, who can but prophecy?
- 9 Publish upon the palaces in Ashdod,
And on the palaces in the land of Egypt,
and say,
Assemble on the mountains of Samaria,
And behold, great tumults within her,
And the oppressed in the midst of her.

dexterity, &c. should avail them nothing; for soon would the Assyrians come and take them away.

CHAP. III. 2. Have I known] In a peculiar and distinguishing manner, revealing myself among you, and protecting and blessing you.

3. Can two walk] How can they, unless the time to meet, and the road which they intend to take, are agreed upon? Unless they are in a state of friendship, how can they walk comfortably? Without friendship there is no fellowship.

4. Hath no prey] Either in sight or in possession. Naturalists tell us that the lion only roars when his prey is in sight, or while he plays with it.

5-7. Can a bird fall] These questions show that as a lion roareth over his prey, or a bird falleth into the snare, or as a people fear when the trumpet indicates the approach of a conquering enemy; so God denounced his judgments by the prophets, to excite the attention of the people before it would be too late.

9. Publish upon] Upon the flat roofs whence any news, or singular event was usually published, Matt. x. 27.—Assemble] The Philistines and Egyptians are called to come and see the injustice and oppression which the Israelites practised in Samaria.

12. Two legs or even a piece] The shepherd did this as a proof that the sheep had been devoured; and the sentiment is that the body of the Israelites should be destroyed.—Or on a damascene] This version is supported by ge-

So shall the Israelites be taken out Who sit in Samaria on the corner of a bed, or on a damascene couch.

Hear ye and testify to the house of Jacob. 13
Saith the Lord Jehovah, the God of hosts;
That in the day when I shall visit 14
The transgressions of Israel upon him,
I will also visit the altars of Bethel.
And the horns of the altar shall be cut off,
And they shall fall to the ground.
And I will smite the winter-house, 15
Together with the summer-house;
And the houses of ivory shall perish,
And the great houses shall be destroyed,
saith Jehovah.

CHAPTER IV.

Reproof for oppression, idolatry, and incorrigibleness.

- HEAR this word, ye kine of Bashan, 1
That are on the mountain of Samaria,
That oppress the poor, that crush the needy,
That say to their masters, Bring, and let us

That ye shall be taken away with hooks,
And your posterity with fishers' nets.
And ye shall go out at the breaches, 3
Every fish at that which is before it; [hovah.
And ye shall be cast into Armenia, saith Je-Go ye to Bethel, and transgress; 4
At Gilgal multiply your transgression;
And bring your sacrifices every morning,
And your tithes every three days:
And burn a thank-offering with leaven, 5

neral custom; for it is usual to call articles by the name of the place where they are made. The passage refers to the rich and luxurious Israelites.

14. Altars of Bethel] See 1 Kings xii. 29, 32. Its destruction is also foretold, chap. 5, of this prophet.

15. Winter-house] The various and splendid habitations which the noble enjoyed, should become ruins.

CHAP. IV. 1. Kine of Bashan] Bashan was celebrated for its rich pastures; and its cattle were fat and restive. David often compares his enemies to bulls of Bashan; and here the prophet compares the proud and luxurious Israelites to the fed beasts of that district.

3. The breaches] Any breach or opening in the nets. I suppose the metaphor with which the preceding concluded, continued in this.—Ye shall be cast] Both the Syr. and Chald. render the noun Armenia, or the mountains of Meni. The sense is, that the Israelites should be sent there captives, 2 Kings xvii. 23.

4, 5. Go ye to Bethel] Here Jeroboam placed one of his calves, 1 Kings xii. 29. and Gilgal, not far from Jericho, was also the scene of idolatry. Chap. v. 5. Hos. iv. 15; ix. 15; xii. 11. The figure is used as Eccles. xi. 9.—Every three days] So all the old versions render, and this answers to 'every morning,' which precedes. On the free-will-offerings they feasted; and in consequence, God, with severe irony, says, 'go on in your idolatry and luxury; for these are what ye like.'

And proclaim, publish the free-will-offerings :
For thus ye love to do, O ye Israelites,
Saith the Lord Jehovah.

- 6 Therefore have I also given you
Cleanness of teeth in all your cities,
And want of bread in all your places ;
Yet have ye not turned to me, saith Jehovah.
7 And I have also withholden from you the rain, [vest :

And I have caused it to rain upon one city,
And upon another city I caused it not to rain :
One portion of land hath been rained upon,
And another whereupon it rained not withered.

- 8 So two or three cities have gone to one city,
To drink water, but they were not satisfied.
Yet have ye not turned to me, saith Jehovah.
9 I have smitten you with blasting and mildew ; [trees,
Your gardens, your vineyards, and fig
And olive trees, the locust hath devoured ;
Yet have ye not turned unto me, saith Jehovah.

- 10 I have sent among you the pestilence,
After the manner of Egypt :
Your young men have I slain with the sword,
And your horses have I led into captivity ;
And I have made the smell of your camps
To come up even to your own nostrils ;
Yet have ye not turned unto me, saith Je-
hovah.

- 11 I have overthrown some of you,
As I overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah ; And ye were as a fire-brand plucked from the burning ; [hovah.
Yet have ye not turned unto me, saith Je-

- 12 Therefore thus will I do to thee, O
Israel ;
And because I will do thus unto thee,
Prepare to meet thy God, O Israel.

- 13 For lo, it is he that formeth the mountains,
and createth the wind,
And declareth unto man what is his thought ; [ness,
He that maketh the morning *and the" dark-
And treadeth upon the high-places of the earth ;
Jehovah, God of hosts, is his name.

6—11. Given you cleanness] God had sent various tokens of his displeasure.

7. When there were yet three] At the time it was wanted to feed and plump the grain, so that the harvest had in a great measure failed.

10. Pestilence] We find this sent for the sin of David, 2 Sam. xxiv. 15 ; and God sent this scourge upon the Israelites, but without effect.

11. As I overthrew] The noun may be used for the pronoun, as it is in many other instances. This version is adopted, as the old ones read it as an infinitive.

12, 13. Prepare to meet] This address is forcible ; and the display of the divine attributes which follows, calculated to God rejecteth their hypocritical service.*

HEAR ye this word which I take up 1 against you, even a lamentation, O house
of Israel.

The virgin of Israel is fallen ; she cannot 2

She is cast down on her land ; none can
For thus saith the Lord Jehovah ; 3

The city that went out by a thousand,
Shall have but a hundred remaining ;

And that which went out by a hundred,
Shall have but ten left to the house of Israel.

For thus saith Jehovah to the house of 4
Seek ye me, and ye shall live, [Israel,

But seek not Bethel, nor go unto Gilgal, 5
And pass not over unto Beer-sheba :

For Gilgal shall surely go into captivity,
And Bethel shall come to nought.

Seek ye Jehovah, and ye shall live ; [seph, 6
Lest he rush like fire on the house of Jo-

And it devour the house of Israel,
And there be none to quench it :

Ye that turn judgment into wormwood, 7
And cast down righteousness to the earth ;

That forsake him who made the Pleiades 8
and Orion, [ing,

And who turneth death-shade into the morn-
And who darkeneth the day into night :

Who calleth for the waters of the sea,
And poureth them out over the earth ;

Jehovah "God of hosts," is his name :
Who scattereth desolation on the strong, 9

And bringeth desolation on the fortress :
Ye that hate him that reproveth in the gate, 10

And abhor him that speaketh uprightly.
Forasmuch therefore as you tread on the 11

poor,
And ye take from him burdens of wheat :

Though ye have built houses of hewn stone,
Yet ye shall not dwell in them :

Though ye have planted pleasant vineyards,
Yet ye shall not drink the wine of them.

For I know your manifold transgressions, 12
And your many aggravated sins :

Ye that afflict the just, that take a bribe,
And turn aside the poor in the gate. [time ;

Therefore the prudent shall be silent in that 13
For it shall be an evil time.

Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live ; 14 lead them to reflect on the God whom they had forsaken, and on the account which they had to give up to him.—(a) MSS.

CHAP. V. 2. The virgin of Israel] This verse contains the lamentation of the prophet. The next assigns the reason of it to be the depopulation of her cities, a tenth part only remaining.

4—10. Seek ye me] This call to repentance, with the promise of life to such as obey it, and with a denunciation against the impenitent, is in the prophet's best manner. The 7th and 10th verses show the wickedness of the people, and the 8th and 9th beautifully display the power and majesty of God.

11. Forasmuch as ye] They trampled on the poor, and

- And so Jehovah, God of hosts, shall be with
As ye are accustomed to speak. [yon,
- 15 Hate ye evil, and love good,
And establish judgment in the gate;
It may be that Jehovah, God of hosts,
Will be gracious unto the remnant of Joseph.
- 16 Therefore thus saith Jehovah, God of hosts, Wailing shall be in all broad places;
And in all the streets they shall say, Alas!
Alas! [ing.
- They shall call the husbandmen to mourn-
And the skilful in lamentation to wailing.
- 17 And in all the vineyards shall be wailing,
For I will pass through thee, saith Jehovah.
- 18 Wo to you that desire the day of Jehovah!
What is the day of Jehovah unto you?
That day shall be darkness, and not light.
- 19 As if a man fled from a lion, and a bear met
him;
Or went into a house, and leaned his hand
Upon a wall and a serpent bit him.
Shall not the day of Jehovah be darkness, and not light?
- 21 Even thick darkness, and no brightness in it?
I hate, I despise your feasts,
- 22 And I will not accept your solemn days.
Though ye offer to me your burnt-offerings,
And wheaten-offerings, I will not accept them, [lings.
- 23 Nor regard the feast-offerings of your fat-Take thou away from me the sound of thy songs;
- 24 For I will not hear the melody of thy viols.
But let judgment roll down as waters,
- 25 And righteousness as a mighty stream.
Did ye offer unto me sacrifices and gifts,
- 26 In the desert forty years, O house of Israel?
Nay ye bore the tabernacle of Moloch,
And the star of your God Chiun,
Your images, which ye made to yourselves.
- 27 Therefore will I send you captive beyond Damascus,
Saith Jehovah, whose name is God of hosts.

CHAPTER VI.

The prophet still describes the luxury of the Israelites; and threatens them with desolation and captivity.

- Wo to them that proudly despise Zion, 1
And that trust in the mountain of Samaria;
That are named after the chief of the nations;
To them the house of Israel resort!
Pass ye over unto Calneh, and see; 2
And from thence go ye unto Hamath the great:
And go down to Gath of the Philistines:
Are they better than these kingdoms?
Or their border greater than your border?
Wo to them that put far off the evil day, 3
And long for the court-day to do violence:
That lie upon beds of ivory, 4
And stretch themselves upon their couches;
That eat the lambs out of the flock,
And the calves from the midst of the stall;
That sing to the sound of the harp; 5
They invent for themselves instruments of music, like David;
That drink wine out of goblets, 6
And anoint themselves with the best ointments: [seph.
But are not grieved for the ruin of Jo-
Therefore now shall they go into captivity, 7
With the first that go into captivity,
And the banquet of these revolvers shall pass away.
The Lord Jehovah hath sworn by himself; 8
Jehovah, the God of hosts, hath said,
I abhor the pride of Jacob, and hate his palaces; [therein.
Hence I will deliver up the city with all
And it shall come to pass, if there remain 9
Ten men in one house, that they shall die.
And one's uncle shall take him up 10
And he that burneth him,
To carry the bones out of the house;
And this shall say to him at the sides of the house, [None.
Is there yet any with thee? and he shall say, exactd from the produce of their labour; and hence the calamities threatened should soon fall on them.

16. Therefore thus [God had determined to punish this sinful people by the sword of their enemies, unless they turned to him.

18. Wo to you that [Some insulted, and laughed 'at the day of Jehovah,' as if it would not come.

21—24. I hate [Their religious feasts were appropriated to their idols, and all their offerings and songs were hateful to God.

25. Did ye offer unto me [It is manifest that the prophet puts this question, to remind them that God was not pleased so much with sacrifices, as with righteousness and piety, 1 Sam. xv. 22, 23; Ps. l. 8, 9; Is. i. 11, &c. 'They did however offer sacrifices to the golden calf, and to other idols in the desert.

26. Nay, ye bore [It is probable that by 'tabernacle,' is meant, a little shrine, or little temple, in which the image was placed. Moloch was worshipped in the land of Israel; and this idol seems to have been the sun.—Star of your god Chiun [Probably the figure of a star, fixed on the head of the image. The order of the Sept. and of Acts vii. 43, is adopted. The Greek translators who lived in Egypt, have preserved the Egyptian name of this god, Remphan, which Jablonski says in their language signifies 'the king of heaven,' or the sun.

27. Beyond Damascus [Hazeal might carry many Israelites captive to that city, 2 Kings x. 32, 33; but now they are informed they must be led to a country far more remote 2 Kings xv. 29; xvii. 6.

CHAP. VI. 1. That proudly despise [The prophet threatens those Israelites who despised the temple at Jerusalem, and trusted in the mount of Samaria, as far more secure.—Named after [They called themselves after the idolatrous nations, with whom they intermarried, and no after their pious forefathers.

2. Better—greater [If these kingdoms are not better and greater than yours, why do ye worship their gods, and forsake Jehovah?

3—7. Court-day [That Amos particularly addresses the nobles, and the judges, is manifest; and 'the seat of violence' can only mean that on which they sat. Their luxury and acts of oppression follow; and for these things they were to be the first led away into captivity.

8. The pride of Jacob [So the word is rendered, Hose v. 5; vii. 10. It signifies the things of which they were proud.

10. And he that burneth [The Jews did not ordinarily

Because they remembered not the name of Jehovah.

And he will smite the great house with breaches,
And the small house with clefts.
- 12 Are horses accustomed to run on a rock?
Or can a man plow there with oxen?
For ye have turned judgment into hemlock,
And the fruit of righteousness into worm-
wood;
- 13 Ye that rejoice in a thing of nought,
That say, By our own strength,
Have we not seized for ourselves dominion?
- 14 But lo, I will raise up against you a nation, O house of Israel, saith Jehovah, God of hosts; [of Hamath,
And they shall oppress you from the entrance
Unto the river of the great desert.

CHAPTER VII.

Judgments averted by the prayer of Amos; the rejection of Israel; Amaziah complaineth of Amos, who states his calling and Amaziah's judgment.

- 1 The Lord Jehovah thus showed unto me; and, behold, he formed locusts in the beginning of the shooting up of the latter growth; and lo, it . . . the latter growth
- 2 after the king's mowing. And it came to pass, when they had made an end of eating the herb of the land, that I said, O Lord Jehovah, forgive, I beseech thee: who shall
- 3 raise up Jacob? for he is small. And Jehovah repented of this: It shall not be, said Jehovah.
- 4 The Lord Jehovah thus showed unto me: and behold, the Lord Jehovah called to contend by fire, and it devoured the great deep; and when it had devoured a part,
- 5 I said, O Lord Jehovah, cease, I beseech thee: who shall raise up Jacob? for he is
- 6 small. And Jehovah repented of this:
This also shall not be, said Jehovah.
- 7 Thus also he showed me: and behold, burn the dead; but yet it seems they should not in this time of judgment be able to follow their usual custom.—

To carry out] This obscure verse seems to describe the effects of famine and pestilence during the siege of Samaria.
The carcass shall be burnt, and the bones be removed with no ceremony of funeral rites, and not without the assistance of the nearest kinsman. Solitude shall reign in the house:
and if one is left, he must be silent and retired, lest he be plundered of his scanty provisions.

12. Are horses] The force of this question depends on the circumstance that horses were not anciently shod. God would make the earth by a drought hard as a rock, because they had perverted justice.

14. River of the] This is generally called 'the river of Egypt,' because it most probably formed the boundary of that country towards the desert.

CHAP. VII. 1. The king's mowing] The mowing of too luxuriant corn is thought to be meant. If the locusts devoured the second growth of such corn, it would prove fatal to the crop.

3. Repented of this] To affect the mind of the prophet, and by him that of the people, God exhibits different judg-

the Lord stood upon a wall made by a plumb-line, with a plumb-line in his hand.
And Jehovah said unto me, Amos, what 8
seest thou? And I said, A plumb-line.
Then said Jehovah, Lo, I will set a plumbline among my people Israel;
I will not again pass through them any more: [solate,
And the high places of Isaac shall be de- 9
And the sanctuaries of Israel shall be laid waste,
And I will rise against the house of Jeroboam with the sword.

Then Amaziah, the priest of Bethel, sent 10 to Jeroboam, king of Israel, saying, Amos hath conspired against thee, amidst the house of Israel; the land is not able to bear all his words. For thus Amos saith, Jero- 11 boam shall die by the sword, and Israel shall surely be led away captive out of their own land. And Amaziah said unto Amos, O 12 thou seer, go, flee thou away into the land of Judah, and eat bread there, and there prophesy. But prophesy not again any 13 more against Bethel; for it is the king's sanctuary, and the temple of the kingdom.

Then answered Amos, and said to Ama- 14 ziah, I was no prophet, neither was I the son of a prophet; but I was a herdsman, and a gatherer of sycamore fruit: And Je- 15
hovah took me as I followed the flock, and Jehovah said unto me, Go, prophesy unto my people Israel.

Now therefore hear thou the word of Je- 16
hovah:

Thou sayest, Prophesy not against Israel,
And drop not thy word against the house of Therefore thus saith Jehovah; [Isaac; 17
Thy wife shall be a harlot in the city,
And thy sons and daughters shall fall by the sword,
And thy land shall be divided by line;
And thou shalt die in a polluted land:
And Israel shall surely be led captive out of his land.

ments, and shows his clemency by forbearing to execute them on the intercession of Amos.

4—9. To contend by fire] In the vision this seemed to dry up the very sea. The next vision represents what God had determined to do, and the prophet makes no intercession to prevent it.

10—13. Priest of Bethel] A priest of calves, who could not hear the faithful denunciations of Amos, without considering him a conspirator. He commands him to flee to Judah, where prophets were tolerated, and not to prophesy against the king's sanctuary, &c. It was indeed the work of the king: and the service performed there was to secure the obedience of the people to the king.

14. Sycamore fruit] This was a kind of fig-tree, which grew in many places in Judea; see 1 Kings x. 27; Luke xix. 4. The fruit might be gathered either for use or exportation. In this humble occupation God called Amos, and inspired him to deliver his message; and he did it with ability and fidelity.

15—17. Thy wife] This severe denunciation would doubtless enrage Amaziah, but he was not permitted to injure the prophet.

CHAPTER VIII.

By a basket of summer-fruit Israel's end is showed; oppression reprov'd, and a famine of God's word threatened.

- 1 THE LORD Jehovah thus showed unto me : and behold a basket of late summer-fruits. And he said, Amos, what seest thou ? And I said, A basket of late summer-fruits. Then said Jehovah unto me, The end is come upon my people Israel : I will not pass through them any more.
- 3 And the singing-women of the palace shall howl
In that day, saith the Lord Jehovah.
There shall be many dead bodies in every place ;
They shall be cast forth with silence.
- 4 Hear this, ye that swallow up the needy, And make the poor of the land to cease, saying,
- 5 When will the new moon be gone, That we may sell corn ?
And the sabbath, that we may set forth wheat ? [great,
Making the ephah small, and the shekel
And falsifying the balances by deceit ;
- 6 Buying the destitute for silver,
And the needy for a pair of shoes,
And selling the refuse of the wheat.
- 7 Jehovah hath sworn by the high state of Jacob,
Surely I will never forget any of their deeds.
- 8 Shall not the land tremble for this,
And all mourn that dwell therein ?
And shall not all of it rise up as the river,
And be driven off and sink as the river of Egypt ? [Jehovah,
- 9 And it shall be in that day, saith the Lord
That I will cause the sun to go down at noon,
And will darken the land in the bright day :
- 10 And I will turn your feasts into mourning,
And all your songs into lamentation ;
And I will bring sackcloth upon all loins,
And baldness upon every head ; [son,
And I will make it as a mourning for an only
And the end thereof as a day of bitterness.

CHAP. VIII. 1—3. Late summer-fruits] This intimated that as the season for fruits was now terminating ; so the end was at hand in respect to Israel as a nation.

5. New moon be gone] They could not bear the usual restraints imposed by the law ; and in their dealings they were guilty of fraud.

6. Buying the] Either his labour or his person. See chap. ii. 6.

7. The high state] To which God had raised him. The term high must be taken in a good sense here. Some understand it to mean the promised land, of which they were proud.

8. All of it rise up as] The rising and falling of the ground with a wave-like motion, occasioned by an earthquake, are justly and beautifully compared to the swelling, the overflowing, and the subsiding of the Nile.

9. The sun go down] This is a strong metaphor to represent a great and calamitous change. See chap. iv. 13.

11. A famine] When these calamities come, there

Behold ! the days come, saith the Lord 11
Jehovah,

That I will send a famine on the land :
Not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water,
But of hearing the words of Jehovah :
And men shall wander from sea to sea ; 12
And from west to east shall they run to and fro, [find it.
To seek the word of Jehovah, but shall not

They that swear by the sin of Samaria, 14

But they shall fall, and not rise again.

would be found no prophet of whom they could inquire. This judgment did not befall Judah ; for when Jerusalem was laid waste, and during the captivity, and for some time after, prophets were raised up in Judah.

14. Thy God, O Beer-sheba] The Greek translators are followed, who either read as in the former line, or some synonymous word.

CHAP. IX. 1. Upon the altar] In this vision the prophet saw the Lord standing upon the altar erected at Beth-el, as if ready to depart, when he had given command to smite the upper lintel ; to intimate that it would soon be demolished, and all that worshipped there dispersed or destroyed.

2—4. Though they dig] God assures them that all their efforts to escape his strokes and judgments would be vain and useless.

5. It shall melt] See Psa. xcvi. 5. The very frame of nature is dissolved before him. There is a reference to an earthquake, chap. viii. 8.

And shall sink down as the river of Egypt.

6. (a) Versions.

7. As the sons of Cush] The Arabian Cushites are meant, who were a powerful but despised people, according to Bochart. They were freebooters in the desert, and idolaters; and the Israelites had become like them.

8—10. Sift the house of] This is an expressive metaphor to denote that God would now separate the chaff from the wheat; comp. Matt. iii. 12; and while the chaff, the ungodly, should perish, not a grain of the wheat, not one good righteous man, should be lost.

11, 12. The fallen tent] This is elegantly put for the kingdom of David, which God promises one day to restore ;

and I think it clear that it refers to the times of the gospel, when 'the residue of men' shall seek unto God, Acts xv. 17. The Greek is followed, as containing the genuine text; and the mistake of the common one is easy to be accounted for. See Kennicott. The calling of the Gentiles is here predicted.

13—15. The days come] It is probable that these verses only mean that some of Israel should be restored from that captivity into which they were to go; and should enjoy fruitful seasons and great prosperity in their own land, for a long period, and which they actually did enjoy. They multiplied exceedingly and became rich and powerful.

HOSEA.

INTRODUCTION.

HOSEA is with great probability supposed to have prophesied for more than sixty years; so that like Samuel he must have been called when very young, and continued until he was very old. Though later than Amos, he must have been some time his contemporary. He is supposed to have begun his prophetic office about 790 years before Christ, and to have died early in the reign of Hezekiah, about 721: so that while he prophesied in Israel, Isaiah prophesied in Judah. Hosea is concise and sententious; and often omits the connexive and adversative particles, which occasions much obscurity.

CHAPTER I.

To show the spiritual harlotry of Israel, Hosea marries Gomer, and hath by her Jezreel, Lo-ruhamah, and Lo-ammi; the restoration of Israel.

I THE word of Jehovah which came unto Hosea, the son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam, the son of Joash, king of Israel.

The beginning of the word of Jehovah by 2
Hosea. And Jehovah said to Hosea,
Go take a wife addicted to harlotries;
And beget children addicted to harlotries;
For so the land is given up to harlotry,

CHAP. I. 2. Addicted to harlotries] This appears to be only a parabolic way of representing the spiritual harlotry of the Israelites; and if we are to consider his going and marrying Gomer, &c., as a real transaction, we must under-

- 7 Yet on the house of Judah I will have mercy; And will save them by Jehovah their God; And I will not save them by bow nor by sword, Nor by battle, by horses, nor by horsemen.
- 8 Now when she had weaned Lo-ruhamah
- 9 she conceived and bare a son: and Jehovah said, Call his name Lo-ammi: [NOT MY PEOPLE] For ye are not my people, and I will not be your God.
- 10 Yet the number of the children of Israel Shall be as the sand of the sea, Which cannot be measured nor numbered; And it shall come to pass that in the place, Where it was said to them, Ye are not my There it shall be said unto them, [people, Ye are the sons of the living God.

stand it, of his marrying an Israelitess, given up to spiritual harlotry, but the whole seems to be a mere parable, from what we read, chap. iii. 1, &c.

4. His name Jezreel 'God will sow or scatter;' is the best approved meaning of this prophetic name. The Jews were accustomed to such prophetic names.—The blood of Jezreel Not Jehu's vengeance on Ahab's family; for this was acceptable, 2 Kings x. 30: but his acts of cruelty while he resided at Jezreel, a city in the tribe of Issachar, Josh. xix. 18, where the kings of Israel had a palace, 1 Kings xxi. 1.

6. Not have So as to preserve them a distinct and powerful kingdom. Some think that the weaker sex of this child, represented the weak state of Israel, under their last kings.

7. On the house of Judah God would not as yet give up Judah, but would deliver that kingdom from the power of Assyria; and this deliverance should evidently appear to be his own work. See 2 Kings xix. 35.

9. Not my people Here their rejection is expressly stated. They had long rejected God, and now he announces his purpose to reject them.

10, 11. Yet the number Though he rejected them as a nation, yet the promises made to Abraham should be fulfilled. Many of them with the children of Judah should come back under Zerubbabel; and great should be the

- SAY ye to your brethren, O Ammi; and 1 to your sisters, O Ruhamah, Plead with 2 your mother, plead: For she is not my wife, nor I her husband: And let her put away her harlotries from her, And her adulteries from between her breasts; Lest I strip and leave her naked, [born; 3 And set her as in the day when she was And make her as a desert, [thirst; And set her as a dry land and kill her with Neither have mercy upon her children; 4 Because they are children addicted to harlotries. For their mother hath played the harlot; 5 She that conceived them hath caused shame: For she hath said, I will go after my lovers, Who give me my bread and my water, My wool and my flax, mine oil and my drink. I will therefore hedge up 'her' way with 6 thorns, [paths. And make a wall that she shall not find her And she shall follow after her lovers, 7 But she shall not overtake them: And she shall seek, but not find them: Then shall she say, I will go again to my first husband; For then was it better with me than now. For she knoweth not that I give unto her 8 The corn, and the wine, and the oil; And the silver which I multiply to her, And the gold which they offer to Baal. Therefore will I turn and take away 9 My corn in its time, and my wine in its season; And I will take away my wool and my flax, So that they may not cover her nakedness. And now will I expose her vileness to her 10 lovers;

day when God would 'sow them again' in their own land, Rom. xi. 25, 26. See Sept. Vat.

CHAP. II. 1. O Ammi Believers are here addressed, those who were God's people, and who had obtained mercy. God speaks of them, and calls them by names of opposite signification to those given to the ungodly. Chap. i. 6—9.

2. Plead with Ye pious ones, enter, as it were, into a judicial process with your mother, the house of Israel; disavow her proceedings, and protest against them; for I do not regard her as my spouse.

3—5. Lest I strip her The language shows in what manner conquerors anciently treated the vanquished. Compare Ezek. xvi. 39; xxiii. 26.

6. Hedge up her way God would so inclose her with difficulties that she should not be able to escape.—(v) Sept. Arab.

7. After her lovers For some time she will remain addicted to her Egyptian and Syrian idols, and her wicked practices; but shall not have the opportunity of doing as she had done.

8. Knoweth not At present she ascribeth these blessings to her idols, and to them offers her sacrifices.

9—13. Take away By thus treating Israel God would show that the favours which they had enjoyed all came from him

CHAPTER III.

By a parable God shows the afflicted state of Israel, while in captivity ; then promises their return.

THEN said Jehovah unto me, Go again, I love a woman that loveth evil and an adulteress, like the love of Jehovah to the Israelites, who look to other gods, and love flagons of wine. So I bought her to me 2 for fifteen shekels of silver, and for a homer and a half of barley : And I said unto her, 3
 Thou shalt abide for me many days ;
 Thou shalt not play the harlot nor have another man ;
 So I also will not have another for thee :
 For the sons of Israel shall abide many days 4
 Without a king, and without a prince,
 And without a sacrifice, and without an altar,"
 And without an ephod, and without teraphs.
 Afterwards shall the sons of Israel return, 5
 And seek Jehovah their God, and David their king ;
 And shall be struck with fear for Jehovah,
 And for his goodness in the latter days.

14. I will allure her] The word here is taken in a good sense; as it follows, that he will bring her into the desert, &c., that is, deliver her from captivity, and conduct her in the desert, as he did of old.

15. Valley of Achor] This valley lay to the north of Jericho, not far from Gilgal; and as formerly, after Achor was stoned, this valley opened the way to the conquests of Joshua, so the restoration of it would again be the door of hope, or the earnest of future blessings.

16. Ishi, my husband] Israel restored, and converted, shall own God as their God; and avoid mentioning the term Baal, though capable of a good sense, because it had been applied to idols.

20. I will betroth thee] These promises, I think, can only be fulfilled in the spiritual seed of Israel, whom God betrothed to himself for ever.

21. I hear the heavens] Asking, as it were, to pour down rain on the earth; and they shall hear the earth, when it supplicated for rain, &c. This and the next verse implies that they had had unfruitful seasons, as Amos had foretold, chap. iv. 7—9.

22. Shall hear the corn] These two verses beautifully represent inanimate objects as speaking, and a chain of second causes as depending on the first, the Lord of all.—Shall hear Jezreel] The people whom God will sow again in his land. See chap. i. 11.

CHAP. III. 1. Love a woman] We must suppose one divorced to be meant; but then this could not be any real transaction, as such conduct in a prophet would have been the disgrace of his office.—Like the love] The prophet in this parable was to represent how Jehovah had loved Israel, who, like an adulteress, had loved idols, and served them, and so deserved the severest judgments.

2. So I bought her] In the parable, the prophet represents himself as doing as he was commanded. He paid for her according to the ancient custom. See Gen. xxxiv. 12, and 1 Sam. xviii. 25.—Fifteen shekels] He paid one half in money, and the rest in grain.

3. Abide for me] According to this, though the prophet had betrothed her, and she was his wife, she was to abide in his house without their having any intercourse; and this was to show that the Israelites should abide many days without a king, &c. in a most distressing condition.

4. Without sacrifice] They could not offer sacrifices in other countries according to the law nor even build altars.—Ephod] A part of the high-priest's dress. They should have no high-priest.—Teraphs] Were in fact little images, analogous to the Penates of the Romans. Gen. xxxix. 14; Judg. xvii. 5. The Jews in their captivity should not regard these ancient objects of superstition.—(v) Ver-sions.

5. And David] See Jer. x. 9; Ezek. xxxiv. 23; xxxviii. 22, &c. These things refer to the gospel; and those who believed on and obeyed the Lord Jesus, among this people, were struck with dread at the displays of Jehovah's power and goodness manifested by the Saviour.

CHAPTER IV.

Judgments for the sins of the people and the priests; for their idolatry; Judah is warned by Israel's calamity.

- 1 HEAR, ye sons of Israel, the word of Jehovah: For Jehovah hath a controversy [vah: With the inhabitants of the land, Because there is no truth, nor mercy, Nor knowledge of God in the land.
- 2 In swearing and lying, and killing and stealing, And committing adultery they break forth, And blood reacheth unto blood.
- 3 Therefore shall the land mourn, And every one dwelling in it shall languish, With the beasts of the field, and the fowls of the air; [away. Yea, the fishes of the sea shall be taken
- 4 Yet let no one contend, let no one reprove; For "my" people are as the priest that contendeth with me.
- 5 Therefore shalt thou fall in the day, And the prophet shall fall with thee in the night, And I will cut off thy mother-city.
- 6 My people are destroyed for want of knowledge; [ledge, Because thou, O priest, hast rejected know- I will also reject thee from being a priest to me; [God, Because thou hast forgotten the law of thy I will also forget thy children.
- 7 As they increased, so they sinned against me; [shame. Therefore will I change their glory into
- 8 They eat up the sin-offerings of my people, And they set their heart on their iniquity.
- 9 And it shall be as with people, so with priest: And I will visit upon them their ways; And their doings will I recompense unto them.
- 10 For they shall eat, and not be satisfied. They shall play the harlot, but not increase; For they have left off giving heed to Jehovah.
- 11 Harlotry and wine, and new wine, Have taken away their understanding.

CHAP. IV. 2. Blood reacheth] That is, murders are committed perpetually. In a state of such falsehood, oppression, and cruelty, well might God have a controversy with them.

3. The land mourns] This may refer to the drought foretold by Amos, chap. iii. 2, or to the locusts mentioned chap. v. 7. There shall be such a scarcity, that even the fish of the sea shall not supply the wants of this rebellious people.

4. For my people] The sense seems to be, The people are as wicked and insensible as their idolatrous priest, who contends with and against me. This properly introduces the next verse.—(v) Sept. Arab.

5. Therefore shalt thou fall] The priest is addressed, and at a time when he least expected, he is appointed to fall, as well as every false prophet, together with the mother city Samaria.

6. Thou, O priest] Priest is supplied to render the commination more plain; for the next line proves that the priest is meant, as the whole order does in the two next verses.

11. Their understanding] That they had not the understanding of men, the next verse clearly proves.

- My people ask counsel at their stocks; 12 And their staff declareth unto them: For the spirit of harlotry hath caused them to err, And they have gone astray from their God. On the tops of mountains they sacrifice, 13 And on the hills they burn incense, Under terebinths, and poplars, and oaks, Because the shadow thereof is good: Wherefore your daughters shall play the harlot, And your wives shall commit adultery. Shall I not visit your daughters 14 When they play the harlot? And your wives when they commit adultery? When they separate themselves with harlots, And when they sacrifice with prostitutes? For the people that understand not shall fall. Though thou, Israel, play the harlot, 15 Yet let not Judah become guilty, And come not to Gilgal, nor go up to Beth-haven, And swear ye not, Jehovah liveth. [back: For as a backsliding heifer Israel slideth 16 Now will Jehovah feed them as a lamb in a wide place. Ephraim is joined to idols: let him alone: 17 He is gone after their wine. They have gone astray continually: 18 Their rulers have loved shame. A wind shall distress them in their borders, 19 And they shall be ashamed for their "altars."

CHAPTER V. VI.

Judgments denounced against the priests, people, and princes for their sins, and a call to repentance, and a complaint for their inconstancy.

- 1 HEAR ye this, O priests; And hearken, ye house of Israel; And give ye ear, O house of the king; For judgment is denounced against you, Because ye have been a snare on Mizpeh, And a net spread out upon Tabor. And the revolvers have made great slaughter, 2

13. Play the harlot] This may be understood literally; as the temples of idols were scenes of the most shameful profligacy. The next verse illustrates this.

15. Let not Judah] The prophet turns his mind to Judah, where more regard was yet paid to the law.—Beth-haven] The same as Bethel, but so called from the idolatry practised there. It means 'house of iniquity;' and not 'house of God,' as it had been called.

18. Their rulers] The rulers and nobles were not better, but even worse than the common people.

19. A wind shall] Referring to the destructive effects of the scorching east wind, which blasted every thing. By this metaphor the destruction of the land is represented.—In their borders] Hebrew, 'in their wings;' but the word is applied to the border of a garment, and of a country, or the earth. Is. xxiv. 16.—(v) Versions.

CHAP. V. 1. House of the king] The royal family are charged with the same offences as others.—Upon Mizpeh] Probably both a mountain and city of Gilead, Judg. xi. 21.

2. Great slaughter] This may refer to the victims slaughtered, or to men.

- Therefore I will bring chastisement on them all. [ine ;

Till they own their guilt, and seek my face.
In their affliction they will seek me, "say-

He hath smitten, and he will bind us up.

Gilead is a city of those that work iniquity ; 8
She is marked with footsteps of blood.
And as troops of robbers wait for a man, 9
So a company of priests murder in the way to Shechem :

4. Their deeds] Their idolatrous practices have formed such habits, that they will not turn to God. The verb עָרַב means owning, acknowledging, which it often signifies.

6. With their flocks] A time will come, when they will offer sacrifices to him in vain ; for he will not regard them.

7. Strange children] A brood of evil doers ; such as are estranged from God.—The locust] The Greek translators give this sense.

8. Blow the trumpet] This verse Newcome thinks may refer to the coming of God's army of locusts. See Joel ii. 11. Probably it refers to the Assyrians.

10. The land-mark] This was a most heinous crime, Deut. xxvii. 17. They had removed the boundaries of right and wrong.

13. His sickness] Sickness and wound mean the diseases of the body politic. See Is. i. 6.—King Jareb] From Chron. x. 6, it is manifest that Jareb is either a proper name of the king of Assyria, derived probably from some place, or it is attributed by the prophet, 'as he that was to plead for Go.' with these two nations. Michaelis prefers the sense of גִּבְעָה in the Syr. which is 'great or mighty,' and which was attributed to the Persian kings by the Greeks. This is very probable ; and if admitted, the version will be, 'And Judah sent to the mighty king.'

15. I will go, I will] Leave the temple of Jerusalem, and as it were, shut myself up in heaven, until the time come when they are brought to repentance.—(a) Versions.

CHAP. VI. 1. He hath torn] See chap. v. 14. They acknowledge that their distresses came from his hand, as a punishment for their offences.

2. After two days] This seems to be a proverbial way of describing an event which would soon happen. Two is put for a few, Kings xvii. 12. One and two for a few, Is. vii. 21 ; Jer. iii. 14 ; and two or three for a few, Is. xvii. 6.

3. We shall know, and] At that time, when we shall live in his sight.—His going forth] His appearance as our deliverer, is fixed as the return of the morning, or as the seasons for rain.

4. O Ephraim] This is a tender complaint of their unsteadfastness. Sometimes they appeared as if penitent ; they brought forth some good fruits ; but soon changed again, and relapsed into their former ways.

5. Hewn them] Wrought on them earnestly and constantly, denouncing desolation and slaughter among them.—My judgment] So the old versions render ; and 'judgment' signifies not, a statute, but 'a penal affliction.' This had gone forth as the light ; as clearly, as manifestly.

6. Rather than] The Hebrew negative has often this comparative sense, Gen. xlv. 8 ; xlviii. 10, &c.

7. Like Adam] This version is now generally adopted ; and it shows that the doctrine of Adam's fall was then admitted and understood.

8. Marked with footsteps] This is the exact force of the original terms, and shows what injustice prevailed among the Gileadites.

9. A company of priests] These were bound by their office to what was good ; but they had become a banditti. Shechem was a city of the priests, and of refuge in the tribe of Ephraim, Josh. xx. 7.

For they have committed great wickedness.

10 In the house of Israel I have seen a horrible thing :

Now have their doings beset them about ;

They are before my face.

3 By their wickedness they make the king glad ;

And by their perfidies, the princes.

Though I have often redeemed them,

They have turned, but not unto me : 16

They have been like a deceitful bow :

11. For thee also] Harvest here denotes the time of punishment, and their ripeness for it. Compare Jer. li. 33 ; Joel iii. 13 ; Rev. xiv. 15—19. The next line is joined to the next chapter, with Moerlius, Michaelis, and others.

CHAP. VII. 1. Turned away] Horsley supposes that the prophet alludes to the reign of Jeroboam the second, when the kingdom of Israel seemed to be recovering from the loss of strength and territory it had sustained.—Then the iniquity] At that time they continued their idolatry and wicked practices.

3. Their wickedness] Those leading Israelites, who entered in as thieves, and the robbers without, who plundered the people, gratified the king and his princes by sharing the spoils with them.

4. They are as an oven] They burn with unhalloved desires.—Which he ceaseth] The baker having heated the oven, permits the fire to continue, until the dough be ready ; so they continue to be hot as the oven, after their idols and adulteries.

5. On the feast-day] His birth-day, or any other day the public resort to the palace.—He stretched out] This must refer to some recent and notorious act of contempt to God, to his prophets, or to his worship.

6. Their heart is hot] The various readings of the versions are preferred, as preserving the metaphor ; and in like manner Ephraim, for 'their baker,' which different words in the Hebrew are the same except one letter, which might be easily mistaken ; and so the Sept. read. The sense seems to be, that by their intemperance their hearts were inflamed, that in the night they indulged sloth, and in the morning were as eager as ever after their vices.

7. Their judges] During the life of this prophet, four kings were put to death : Zechariah by Shallum ; Shallum by Menahem ; Pekahiah by Pekah ; and Pekah by Hoshea, 2 Kings xv. In these violent changes many of the judges, princes, and others must have perished. Notwithstanding these murders and calamities, none called on God.

8. A cake not] Which no one watches or cares for, and which is therefore burnt, and to be cast away.

9. Grey hairs] Like an aged person, whose vigour and strength are decaying, was Ephraim, yet he acted as if insensible of it.

10. Pride of Israel] See chap. v. 5. Their growing miseries did not lead them to seek God.

12. When they go] In their distress they called on the nations to help them, but in vain ; for they proved the source of their bitterest calamities.—To their assembly] Advising them to seek for foreign aid. See 2 Kings xv. 19. The Chaldee has 'when they hearken to their own counsels ;' a reading which some prefer.

14. For corn and for wine] In the famine they howled on their beds, yet they did not cry to God for the removal of the judgment. See chap. iv. 3—10.

15. Or strengthened] Whether God inflicted punishment on them, or showed them favour, yet they rejected him for their idols.

16. But not unto me] This clause is defective, if not erroneous. The correction of Bishop Secker is followed.—Their reproach] When they fly to Egypt, they shall be reproached for the murder of their kings and princes.

CHAP. VIII. 1. As an eagle] Salmanezir is meant, 2 Kings xvii. 3-6; and the rapidity of his march and conquests are forcibly expressed.

2. They shall cry] Struck with consternation when the enemy approaches, they shall begin to cry to that God whom they had so long rejected.—(v) Israel, Versions and MSS.

3. Chief good] This refers to their apostasy from God, and their renunciation of him and his worship.

5. Remove far off] With Houbigant and Dathe, this clause is transposed to the end of the verse, on account of its connexion with the following.

6. From Israel did] That is, it is the invention of Israel, and set up and regarded by Israel, as their fathers set up the golden calf in the desert ; and this like that shall be broken to pieces.

7. Sow the wind] This is a proverbial phrase, Jos. iv. 8 ; Prov. xxii. 8.—The stalk] They shall be disappointed in their expectations of harvest.

8. No pleasure] One despised and cast out, Ps. xxxi.
12. Jerem. xxii. 28 ; xlviii. 35.

9. A solitary] See notes, Job xxxix. 5-8. Though unsuitable, it is vehement in its desires after its mate, Jer. ii.
21; and Ephraim had been as hot after the idols of the nations.

10. Be in pain] They had gone to Assyria for idolatrous commerce, and now God would carry them captive there ; and they should be galled by the oppression of their rulers.

11. Be to him for] There is a play on the word מִן in its double sense. As he had erected many altars for the service of idols, so he should go into a land where he would find such altars only.

12. Great things of] Dathe renders, 'I have described to them many laws.'

CHAP. IX. 1. Rejoice not] Do not imitate their idolatrous festivities.—Corn floor] Attributing plenty to thy idols, but the fruits of the ground shall fail, &c.

4. The food of mourners] It was customary for neighbours to carry food into the houses of those who mourned for the dead ; but such food contracted pollution, by being in the same place with a dead body, Num. xix. 14.—Their own appetite] They may eat of it, but as unclean none of it must be offered to God.

5, 6. They go away] Out of the holy land, where alone they could sacrifice.—Egypt shall] They shall fly there, and at Memphis shall die and be buried, chap. vii. 16.

7. Great hatred] Some words have probably been

- 8 Ephraim lurks for the people of my God ;

And deep is their hatred to the house of my God.
- 9 They are corrupted as in the days of Gibeah :
He will remember their iniquity and visit their sins.

Give them a miscarrying womb and dry breasts.

Israel reprov'd and threatened for their impiety and idolatry.

ISRAEL is a vine spreading itself abroad, 1
Whose fruit is very abundant ;
According to the abundance of his fruit,
He hath abounded in altars ;
According to the goodness of his land,
He hath made goodly images. [punished.
Their heart is divided ; now shall they be 2
He shall break down their altars,
And he shall destroy their images.
For now they say, We have no king, 3
Because we feared not Jehovah ;
What then shall a king do for us ?
They speak empty words when they swear, 4
And falsehood when they make a covenant ;
And judgment springeth up as hemlock
In the furrows of the field.
Because of the calf of Beth-aven, 5
Shall the inhabitants of Samaria fear :
For his own people shall mourn for him,
And his sacrificers that exulted in him ;
Even for his glory, when it is departed from him. [to king Jareb:
For he shall be carried to Assyria, a present 6
Ephraim shall receive shame,
And Israel be ashamed of his own counsel.
As for Samaria, her king is cut off, 7
As the foam on the surface of the waters.
The high-places also of iniquity, 8
The sin of Israel, shall be destroyed :
Thorns and thistles shall come up on their altars ; [us,
And they shall say to the mountains, Cover
And to the hills, Fall on us.
As in the days of Gibeah thou hast sinned ; 9
Israel stood in array there :
Did not the war overtake them in Gibeah ?
Against the sons of iniquity I came, and 10
chastised them. [them,
And the peoples shall be gathered against omitted. I have added what the connexion seems to require.

8. Lurks for the people] This version arises from a change of the points merely. The Israelites were opposed to Judah, and the false prophets ensnared all they could. The verb which begins the next verse, is joined to the last clause of this.

10. Like grapes] Israel was as agreeable to God then as these fruits would be to a traveller in the desert, in comparison with what Israel now is ; for as they acted, so have you.

14. What wilt thou give] These seem to be the words of the prophet, praying that God would appoint abortion and barrenness, rather than that they should bring up their children for the sword.

15. My house] Or household. Israel had been a part of God's household, or family ; but now he would cast them off. See Numb. xii. 7, and chap. vii. 1.

CHAP. X. 1. Spreading itself] For this sense of בָּרַק see Michaelis' Supp. Lex. The participle is used for various times.—Whose fruit] Considering כִּנּוֹן, 'the vine,' the nominative of the verb, which signifies 'whose fruit was equal,' that is, to its flourishing state, the sense is given, if not the idiom, as the next clauses explain. Horsley has rendered nearly to the same purpose.

2. Be punished] God himself will punish them with the destruction of what they have trusted in.

3. Have no king] They had rejected Jehovah and legal government. There was anarchy in the kingdom of Israel for nine years, before Hoshea began to reign, according to Usher and Blair.—What shall a king] Can one be of any service ?

4. They swear] Though they had taken the oath of allegiance to Hoshea, it seems from this that they were not sincere.—Judgment] Punishment suddenly follows our crimes ; it comes as commonly as hemlock grows in the furrows of the field.

5. His own people] His worshippers shall grieve to see their idol destroyed, or stripped of all that was valuable, and sent as a present to Assyria, to the great king.

7. Cut off] Many had been by assassination, and Hoshea soon would be by the king of Assyria ; nor should he have any power to resist.

8. They shall say] This sublime description of fear and distress, our Lord had in view, Luke xxii. 30. See also Rev. vi. 16.

10. I came and chastised] See note. chap. ix. 9.—Two iniquities] The calves of Dan and Bethel. Israel shall then suffer as Benjamin formerly did, Judg. xix. xx.

- When they are chastised for their two iniquities.
- 11 And Ephraim shall be as a trained heifer,
That loveth to tread out the corn;
For I will pass the yoke on her fair neck;
I will make Ephraim tread out the grain;
Judah shall plough, Jacob shall break his clods.
- 12 Sow to yourselves in righteousness,
And reap "the fruit" of loving-kindness:
Break up for yourselves the fallow ground:
For it is time to seek Jehovah,
Till he come and rain righteousness upon you.
- 13 Ye have plowed wickedness, and reaped punishment;
Ye have eaten the fruit of your falsehoods.
Because thou hast trusted in thy way,
In the multitude of thy mighty men,
- 14 There shall arise a tumult among thy people,
And all thy fortresses shall be destroyed,
As Salmon destroyed Beth-arbel in the day of battle;
The mother and children shall be dashed in [pieces].
- 15 Thus shall it be done to you, O house of "Israel,"
Because of your very great wickedness:
In a morning the king of Israel shall surely be cut off.

CHAPTER XI.

Israel's ingratitude, and God's judgments for it; promises of mercy.

- 1 WHEN Israel was a child, then I loved
And out of Egypt I called my son. [him:]
- 2 "When I called," then they departed from me:
[to idols.]
- They sacrificed to Baals, and burnt incense
- 3 Though I taught the Ephraimites to go,
And took them up in "my" arms;

11. Trained heifer] Subjected to servitude; and he shall be wholly employed in servile works. Judah shall have some pre-eminence.

12. It is time] The metaphor of the text intimates, that now Jehovah was calling them to repentance, that this was the proper time to exercise it, in order to avert the divine judgments. But instead of this, 'they plowed wickedness,' &c.—(v) Sept. Arab.

13. Thou hast trusted] Ephraim is addressed, and justly blamed for his false confidence.

14. Salmon destroyed] The Vulg. and Sept. have 'Zalmunna,' referring to Judg. chap. viii. As there is no variation in the MSS. the text is followed as alluding to a fact not elsewhere recorded; yet the various reading has great evidence to support it.

15. O house of Israel] The text has Bethel, where the calf is worshipped. The reading of the Sept. is adopted, because the prophet would not attribute the punishment of Israel to their calf, nor to the people of Bethel.

CHAP. XI. 2. When I called] The common text is incoherent, and is admitted to be wrong. The Sept. gives the true reading.

3. The Ephraimites] So the versions read; and God refers to his care of them in the desert. He was a nurse to them; but they did not know or acknowledge him in their mercies.

4. With human cords] The next words explain these. The Chaldee explains, 'as beloved children are drawn, I

- Yet they knew not that I healed them.
With human cords I drew them, with 4
bands of love;
And I was to them as one that raised the yoke on their cheek;
And I inclined unto them, I "conducted"
them.
- They shall return into the land of Egypt, 5
And the Assyrians shall be their king,
Because they have refused to return to me.
And the sword shall afflict their cities, 6
And shall consume their lying prophets,
And shall devour because of their counsels
And my people persist in backsliding from 7 me; [gether,
Though because of the yoke they call to—
It shall not be raised from off their neck.
- How shall I give thee up, O Ephraim? 8
How shall I deliver thee up, O Israel?
How shall I make thee as Admah?
How shall I subvert thee as Zeboim?
My heart is changed within me;
At the same time my repentings are kindled.
I will not execute my hot anger; 9
I will not turn to destroy Ephraim utterly;
For I am God, and not man,
The Holy One in the midst of thee:
And I will not come in fury against thee.
They shall walk after Jehovah; 10
He shall roar as a lion; when he shall roar,
Then shall their sons hasten from the west:
They shall hasten as a bird from Egypt, 11
And as a dove from the land of Assyria:
And I will place them in their houses, saith
Jehovah.
- Ephraim hath beset me about with false- 12
hood,
And the house of Israel with deceit;
But Judah as yet ruleth with God,
And is faithful with the Most Holy One.

drew them with the strength of love.—Raised the yoke] This was done to ease the neck of the labouring beast; and denotes that God had given them rest and ease.—Inclined] He heeded his kind attention to them, and conducted them forty years in the desert.—(v) MSS.

5. They shall return] The Sept. and Arab. read וְ for כִּי, and join it to the last verse, which removes the contradiction of this place. Compare with ch. vii. 16; viii. 13; ix. 3–6.

6. Lying prophets] Horsley renders, 'diviners.' For the sense given, see Isa. xvi. 6; Jer. xlviii. 3.

7. They call together] Though from the yoke of oppression they cry to me for help, I will not regard them.

8. Give thee up] God speaks as if from his affection to this people, he knew not what to do.

9. Come in fury] So Daltie and Michaelis. God is addressing Ephraim, and there is no reference to a city in what precedes or follows; but a promise of favour and kindness, that however God might correct he would not make a full end of his people.

10. Walk after Jehovah] They shall refrain from idolatry, when Jehovah shall display his power in delivering them.—Their sons] During the seventy years the fathers died off, but their sons lived, and many returned from Egypt and Assyria, on the decree of Cyrus.

12. As yet ruleth with] Maintained the laws of God and adhered to his worship professedly; and were, in comparison of Israel, a faithful people.

CHAPTER XII.

A reproof of Ephraim, Judah, and Jacob; exhortations to repentance, &c.

- 1 EPHRAIM feedeth on wind, and followeth the east wind;
He daily multiplieth falsehood and robbery:
And they have made a league with Assyria,
And oil is carried down into Egypt.
- 2 Jehovah hath also a controversy with Judah,
And he will punish Jacob according to his ways;
According to his doings will he recompense
- 3 In the womb he took his brother by the heel;
And by his strength he had power with
- 4 Yea, he had power with the angel, and prevailed;
He wept, and made supplication to him:
In Bethel he found him, and there spoke with 'him;'
- 5 Even Jehovah, the God of hosts;
Jehovah is his appointed memorial.
- 6 Therefore turn thou unto thy God:
Observe loving-kindness and judgment,
And wait on thy God continually.
- 7 A trafficker! deceitful balances are in He loveth to oppress others. [his hand:]
- 8 And Ephraim said, Surely I am rich,
I have found for myself substance.
All 'his' labours shall not suffice him,
For the iniquity wherewith he hath sinned:
- 9 Yet I am Jehovah, thy God, [Egypt;
'Who brought thee' from the land of
I will again make thee to dwell in tents,
As in the days of the solemn assembly.
- 10 Though I have spoken by the prophets,
And though I have multiplied vision,
And by the prophets have used similitudes;
- 11 Yet verily in Gilead there is iniquity.

CHAP. XII. 1. Feedeth on wind] Not only adopts empty counsels, but dangerous ones. See Job xv. 2. The east wind was parching and noxious.

3. By the heel] This action denoted that he would supplant his brother in the right of primogeniture, Gen. xxv. 26; xxvii. 36.

4. He wept] The circumstance of his weeping is not mentioned, Gen. xxxii. and the conjecture of Houbigant is probable, that for בכה, we should read בכח, he prevailed by might. All the versions read as the text.—In Bethel] Jacob found God there, and God spoke to him and made the promise of giving to him and to his seed the land of Canaan. There is a tacit reflection on the Israelites who had polluted that place by the worship of idols, Gen. xxviii. 14, &c.—(v) Versions.

5. Memorial] The name by which he is remembered and distinguished, Exod. iii. 15.

7. A trafficker] The word is ambiguous, and we may render 'A Canaanite,' the other sense is preferred, because of what follows. Ephraim is understood.

8. All his labours] The text adopted is that of the Sept. and Arab. The meaning is, that though Ephraim had grown rich, yet he should not enjoy his riches in consequence of his sin.

9. To dwell in tents] As they were accustomed to do at the feast of booths; but this is a threatening, not a promise. Others should possess their houses, and in their captive state, they should live in tents, &c.—Days of the] The textual word, כיער, may be rendered, 'appointed time;'

Surely idols are a mere vanity;
Yet in Gilgal they sacrifice oxen;
Yea, their altars are as stone-heaps Among the furrows of the fields.
And Jacob fled into the country of Syria, 12
And Israel served for a wife;
And for a wife he kept flocks and herds.
And by a prophet Jehovah brought Israel 13
from Egypt;
And by a prophet were they preserved.
But Ephraim hath provoked most bitterly: 14
Hence his Lord will leave his blood upon
him,
And will recompense to him his reproach.

CHAPTER XIII.

Ephraim's glory must pass away; God's anger at their wickedness.

- WHEN Ephraim spoke trembling, 1
He exalted himself in Israel;
But when he offended as to Baal, he died.
- And now they sin more and more, 2
And have made to themselves a molten image; [idols:
Of their silver by their skill they made
All of them the work of artificers:
And they say concerning them,
Let the men that sacrifice, kiss the calves.
Therefore they shall be as the morning 3
cloud,
And as the early dew that passeth away;
As chaff driven by a whirlwind from the floor, [ney.
And dispersed as the smoke from the chimney—
Yet I am Jehovah, thy God, [Egypt, 4
'Who brought thee up' from the land of
And thou hast known no God but me:
For there is no Saviour besides me.
I knew thee in the desert, in the land of 5 great drought.

and so refer to the forty years which Israel spent in the desert.—(a) Sept.

10. 11. These verses are connected; and the sense is, That though God had employed the prophets, the people still persisted in their idolatry.

12. And Jacob fled] From the hatred of Esau, he was induced to fly to his mother's family. See Gen. xxviii. and xxix.

13. Israel] Israel is used here for the children of Jacob. The prophet meant is Moses, by whom their civil and religious polity was formed, and under whose guidance they were preserved in the desert.

14. But Ephraim hath] Unmindful of what God did to their ancestor, when in a low and wandering state, or for their forefathers, whom he by Moses delivered from Egypt, and supported in the desert, and planted in a good land; hence God will leave him to answer for the innocent blood which he had shed.

CHAP. XIII. 1. Spoke trembling] Spoke with reverence and respect for God, then he prospered and had great authority among the tribes.

2. Kiss the calves] See 1 Kings xix. 18. We learn from Cicero, that it was usual for devotees to kiss the images of their gods.

4. No God but me] Though thou hast treated me with neglect, yet I am thy only Saviour. (v) Versions. MSS.

5. I knew thee] That is, acted towards thee with kindness and favour.

- 6 According to their pasture they were filled ;
They were filled and their heart was exalted ;
Therefore have they forgotten me.
- 7 Hence I will be unto them as a lion ;
As a leopard in the way will I observe
them :
- 8 I will meet them as a bear bereaved ;
And I will rend the caul of their heart,
And there will I devour them as a lion :
The wild beast shall tear them in pieces.
- 9 O Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself ;
But in me there is help found for thee.
- 10 Where is thy king ? where is he ?
That he may save thee in all thy cities ?
And thy judges of whom thou saidst,
Give me a king and princes ?
- 11 I gave thee a king in mine anger,
And I took him away in my wrath.
- 12 The iniquity of Ephraim is bound up ;
His sin is laid up in store.
- 13 The pains of one in travail shall come on him :
Surely he is an unwise son ;
For else he would not stay in the birth.
- 14 I will ransom them from the grave ;
I will redeem them from death :
O death, 'where' shall be thy sting ?
O grave, 'where' shall be thy destruction ?
Repenting shall be hid from mine eyes.
- 15 Though he was fruitful among his brethren,
There shall come an east wind ; [sert,
A mighty wind shall come up from the de-
And his spring shall become dry,
And his fountain shall be dried up :
It shall spoil the treasure of all his desirable utensils.
- 16 Samaria shall become desolate ;

Because she hath rebelled against her God
By the sword shall her inhabitants fall :
Their infants shall be dashed in pieces,
And their women with child shall be ripped up.

CHAPTER XIV.

An exhortation to repentance ; a promise of God's blessing.

- O ISRAEL, turn unto Jehovah thy God ; 1
For thou hast fallen by thine iniquity.
Take with you words, and turn to Jehovah : 2 Say to him, Forgive all iniquity and receive us kindly ;
So will we render the 'fruits' of our lips.
We will not expect Assyria to save us ; 3
We will not rely on the horses of Egypt,
Nor will we say any more, Ye are our gods,
To the work of our own hands :
For in thee the fatherless findeth mercy
I will heal their backsliding, I will love 4 them freely :
For mine anger is turned away from them.
I will be as the dew unto Israel, 5
He shall blossom as the lily,
And he shall strike his roots as Lebanon.
His suckers shall spread abroad, 6
And his beauty shall be as the olive-tree,
And his smell as the cedars of Lebanon.
They shall return 'and sit' under his sha- 7
They shall revive as the corn, [dow ;
And they shall spread abroad as the vine :
'They shall be celebrated as the wine of Lebanon. [idols ?
What hath Ephraim to do any more with 8
I have heard him, and observed him :
I will make him like a green fir tree :
From me is thy fruit found. [things ?
Who is wise, that he may understand these 9

6. According to their] When brought into the promised land, and blessed with abundance, they were elated, and rebelled against their benefactor; many acted as if they had forgotten him.

7, 8. As a lion] The metaphors show how severely God would punish when the days of recompense came.

9. Hast destroyed] This text has been variously rendered. The common rendering is followed, because it is as probable as any. While God charges their ruin on themselves, he shows whence their restoration both in a political and spiritual sense must come.

10. Thy king] They originally desired a king, that they might be as the other nations; and now they are asked what their king can do for them.

11. I gave thee] This refers not to Saul, who was rejected for his own sin, and not as a punishment of the people; but God had suffered them to raise and appoint one king after another, and by their seditions to cut them off; and by these violent proceedings they were all involved in distress and exposed to danger.

13. For else he] Ephraim is compared to a woman in labour, and to the child abiding in the birth, and consequently suffering with the mother.

14. I will ransom] Whatever their conduct may be, I will fulfil my promise made to their fathers.—Thy sting] The text has 'thy plagues.' Paul has 'sting;' and the difference consists in the omission of one letter. And instead of ארץ, 'I will be,' the Sept. and Syr. read ארץ 'where,' and I Cor. xv. 25.

15. A mighty wind] Here Jehovah is used as an epithet.—It shall spoil] The metaphor means an enemy should invade and plunder them, as the next verse plainly expresses it.

CHAR. XIV. 1. Fallen by thy] They had fallen into the lowest state, being deprived of their freedom; and had contracted great guilt, so as to be ready to perish for ever.

2. (v) Sept. Arab.

3. Rely on the] The kings of Israel were forbidden to multiply horses, Deut. xvii. 16; Is. xxxi. 1; nor would they look for help to their idols.—The fatherless] Such were the Israelites in their state of captivity.

4. Backsliding] They have not fallen into idolatry since the captivity in Babylon.

5. Strike his roots] He shall be as firmly rooted, as mount Lebanon was firmly fixed.

7. And sit under his] So the versions render. The sense is that every one who returns shall sit under the shadow of his own vine, and shall enjoy rest and security.—Wine of Lebanon] This was anciently much esteemed, and it still is according to La Roque. The version given arises from reading וצור as a verb, with Dathie and others.

8. What hath Ephraim] The word לו is pleonastic; for it is clear that God continues to speak. Ephraim shall no more practise idolatry.—I have heard] This supposes that Ephraim had addressed his requests to God, according to the direction in the first verse; and these God regards, and promises to bless him with prosperity and fruitfulness.

9. Who is wise] Who are they among you that will

And prudent, that he may know them?
For the ways of Jehovah are right.

And the just will walk in them;
But the transgressors shall fall therein.

give heed to these things so that ye may truly know them?
Such will acknowledge that the ways of Jehovah are right, in which just men walk; but transgressors will fall amidst the light which should have directed them.

INTRODUCTION.

MICAH is thought to have belonged to the kingdom of Judah, as he mentions only the kings who reigned over that country. He was contemporary with Isaiah and Hosea, but probably later than either of them. He prophesies against both Judah and Israel, and reproves with great zeal both of them for their sins. He foretells their captivity; and for the comfort of the pious predicts the incarnation of Messiah, the place of his birth, his offices, and the glory of the Church in the latter days. His style is nervous and animated, resembling that of Isaiah.

CHAPTER I.

The wrath of God against Judah for idolatry; an exhortation to mourning.

- 1 THE word of Jehovah that came to Micah, the Morasthite, in the days of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah; which came to him in a vision concerning Samaria and Jerusalem.
- 2 Hear, ye people, all of you;
Hearken, O land, and all that are therein,
And let the Lord Jehovah be witness against you,
Even the Lord from his own holy temple.
- 3 For lo Jehovah will go forth from his place,
And will come down, and tread on the high places of the earth,
- 4 And the mountains shall melt under him,
And the valleys shall dissolve as wax before fire, [place.
As waters that are poured down a steep
- 5 For the transgression of Jacob is all this
And for the sin of the house of Israel.
What is the transgression of Jacob?
Is it not that of Samaria?
And what is "the sin" of Judah?
Is it not that of Jerusalem?
- 6 Hence I will make Samaria as a heap of the field, [yard:
And as a place for the plantings of a vine-
And I will pour down her stones into the valley,

And I will discover her foundations.
And all her carved images shall be beaten 7
to pieces,
And all her hires shall be burned in the fire,
And all her idols will I make a desolation:
For from the hire of a harlot she gathered riches,
And to the hire of a harlot shall they return.
Therefore I will wail and howl, 8
I will go stripped and naked:
I will make a wailing like the jackals,
And a mourning like the female ostrich.
For her wound is desperate; 9
For "the stroke" hath come unto Judah;
To the gate of my people, even to Jerusalem.
Declare ye not this at Gath; 10
Weep ye not with great clamour.
In Beth-ophrah roll yourselves in the dust.
Pass on, inhabitress of Saphir, naked and 11
shamed;
Go not forth to wail, inhabitress of Zaanan;
Beth-ezel will take from you its support.
For sick to bitterness is the inhabitress of 12
Maroth: [the gate of Jerusalem.
For evil hath come down from Jehovah to Bind the chariot to the swift beast, inhabit- 13
ress of Lachish: [daughter:
The beginning of sin was she to Zion's
For in thee were found the crimes of Israel.
Therefore shalt thou give presents to More- 14
sheth-gath:

CHAP. I. 1. The Morasthite] Maresha is placed in Judah, Josh. xv. 44; and 2 Chron. ii. 8.

2. O land] The land of Canaan is only meant, and not the whole earth.—Jehovah be witness] By me his prophet against you for your sins.

3. Tread on the high] Compare Amos iv. 13, God will appear as an avenger, punishing the guilty.

5. That of Samaria] See Hosea viii. 5. The turn of the sentence supports the various reading of the versions. Idolatry was practised in Jerusalem as well as Samaria.

7. Her hires] She imputed her wealth to her spiritual harlotry, and honoured her idols for bestowing it: and her conquerors shall apply it to the honour of their idols.

8. And naked] That is, without an upper garment. He would pay no attention to his dress, as was the custom of mourners.

9. The stroke hath] So the versions render. Jerusalem would soon be assailed by her enemies, 2 Chron. xxviii. 16—21.

11. The mourning of] Betheshal shall itself be so afflicted, as not to be able to yield you any succour. This was near to Jerusalem, Zech. xiv. 5.

12. Maroth] A city of like name is placed in the tribe of Judah, Josh. xv. 59.—Sick to bitterness] Sick to good; the reading of the text is inexplicable; and as the paronomasia abounds in so peculiar a manner, the reading of למר is adopted, as most probably the genuine one.

13. Lachish] In the tribe of Judah, Josh. xv. 39. Senacherib took it, 2 Kings xviii. 14.—Beginning of sin] The idols of Israel were first adopted by Lachish.

14. Moreseth-gath] To the Philistines of that country, for safety and protection.—House of Achizib] Or Beth-achizib will deceive the hope of the king of Israel. Achizib was a city in the tribe of Asher, Josh. xix. 29, and now, according

The house of Achzib will be a lie to the king of Israel.

15 Yet will I bring an heir unto the inhabitress of Mareshah :

He shall come unto Adullam, the "border" of 16 Make thee bald, and poll thee for thy delicate children ;

Enlarge thy baldness as the eagle ;

For they are gone into captivity from thee.

CHAPTER II.

Against oppression ; a lamentation and reproof for injustice ; promise of restoring Jacob.

1 Wo to them that devise iniquity,

And who work evil upon their beds !

When the morning is light they practise it, because it is in the power of their hand.

2 And they covet fields, and forcibly seize them ;

And houses, and take them from their So they oppress a man and his household, A great man and his inheritance.

3 Therefore thus saith Jehovah ;

Behold, against this family do I devise evil, From which ye shall not remove your necks ; Neither shall ye go haughtily :

For a time of calamity shall this be.

4 In that day shall a proverb be taken up against you,

And a grievous lamentation shall be made, Saying, We are utterly laid waste ;

The portion of my people is transferred ;

"No one" is moved to take my part.

To restore our fields which have been divided.

5 Surely there shall not remain unto thee, One that shall stretch out a cord by lot, In the public assembly of Jehovah.

to Maundrel, called Zib, near the sea-coast, about nine miles from Aco or Ptolemais ; but there was also a city of the same name in the tribe of Judah, Josh. xv. 44.

15. Mareshah] This is mentioned with Achzib, Josh. xv. 44. The name is derived from a verb signifying 'to inherit,' and God threatens that the enemy should be the inheritor of it.—To Adullam] This was a fenced city of Judah, 2 Chron. xi. 7. It was east of Eleutheropolis, according to Eusebius.—(v) Chald.

16. Make thee bald] The inhabitress of Mareshah may be understood. For the custom, see Amos viii. 10.—As the eagle] When he sheds his plumage. See Ps. ciii. 5. One species is called the bald eagle.

CHAP. II. 1. Upon their beds] They form the designs and do it in their imagination there ; and when they arise, they avail themselves of their power to practise it.

2. Seize them] This must refer to the great and powerful, who were guilty of thus treating their weaker and poorer brethren ; and sometimes even the more wealthy could not escape.

4. Saying] Or, 'it shall be said.'—No one] So the Sept. which is adopted. A mourner is supposed to speak.—Which have been] Or which one hath divided, referring to the enemy, who now occupied the land. See 2 Kings xv. 29 ; xviii. 13.

5. One that shall] You shall have no part of the land ; but shall be wholly removed, and become exiles.

6. O ye that prophesy] The obstinate and unbelieving thus speak to God's prophets, to whom Micah replies. Not be removed] This is the usual sense of נָסַח, and not 'take or apprehend.'

Prophesy not, say they, O ye that prophesy. 6 Should they not prophesy to such as these,

Yet will their disgrace not be removed.

Doth the house of Jacob indeed say, 7

Is the spirit of Jehovah straitened? are these his doings?

Do not my words impart good

To him who walketh uprightly?

But of old my people hath risen up as an 8 enemy :

Ye strip the mantle from off the garment.

From those that pass on securely returning from battle.

The women of my people ye cast out 9

From their delightful habitations ;

From their children ye take away "glory" for ever.

Arise ye, and depart ; for this is not your 10

Because it is polluted, it shall be destroyed ;

Yea, the destruction shall be very great.

If a man walking in the spirit of falsehood 11 and lies,

Prophesy to thee of wine and strong drink ;

Even he shall be the prophet of this people.

I will surely gather, O Jacob, all of thee ; 12

I will surely assemble the remnant of Israel ;

I will put them together as sheep in a fold ;

As a herd in the midst of their stall :

They shall make a tumult from the multitude of men.

The breaker goeth up in their sight ; 13

They break and pass the gate, and go out by it ;

And their king passeth through before them, And Jehovah at the head of them.

7. Straitened] Is God's compassion and mercy confined or diminished? Can such things as you speak be his doings?—Do not my words] Jehovah answers, My words spoken by my prophets will do good, impart instruction and comfort to every serious and upright person.

8. Ye strip the] They showed their enmity to God by acts of cruelty and robbery, violating his express law.—Returning from] They plundered those who had escaped the dangers of battles, and who thought themselves to be safe.

9. The women of] Widows are meant, whom they oppressed, and whose property they seized.—Glorify for ever] Some think that by the sins of the rulers, they were to be driven from the land, and all their privileges, here called 'glory,' or 'my glory,' is meant ; and the next verse countenances this opinion.—(v) Syr.

11. Falsehood and lies] Predicting only preposterous things according to your wishes ; to him you will listen.

12. Gather, O Jacob] 'To gather and assemble,' usually denote God's kindness ; but they ought to be regarded here as a denunciation of punishment.—As sheep in a fold] They shall be pent up in their cities by their enemies as sheep in a fold, &c.

13. The breaker goeth] The term פָּרַץ is scarcely ever taken in a good sense. See Exod. xix. 22—24 ; Judg. xxi. 15 ; Ps. xvii. 4 ; Jerem. vii. 11. Here it denotes the enemy, the troops.—Their king] Salmaneser is meant. The cities being taken, the king leadeth his own troops, and the captive Israelites, under the direction of Jehovah, whose instrument he is. We should recollect that Jehovah represents himself as the leader of heathen conquerors. See Is. xl. 1—4, and chap. xxi. 2, &c.

CHAPTER III.

The cruelty of the princes of Israel, the falsehood of the prophets, and the sinful security of both.

- 1 AND I said, Hear, I pray, O ye chiefs of Jacob,
And ye princes of the house of Israel :
Is it not for you to know judgment ?
- 2 Ye who hate the good, and love the evil ;
Who pluck their skin from off them,
And their flesh from off their bones ;
- 3 Who have also eaten the flesh of my people,
And have flayed their skin from off them ;
And ye have broken their bones,
And divided them as flesh in the pot,
And as meat within the caldron.
- 4 Then shall they cry unto Jehovah,
But he will not hearken unto them :
He will even hide his face from them at that time,
According as their deeds have been evil.
- 5 Thus saith Jehovah, God of hosts,
To the prophets who cause my people to err,
Who bite with their teeth, and cry Peace ;
And as to him that putteth not into their mouths,
They will even prepare war against him :
- 6 Therefore ye shall have night instead of vision.
And darkness instead of divination ;
For the sun shall go down over the prophets,
And the day shall be dark over them.
- 7 Then shall the seers be ashamed,
And the diviners shall be confounded :
Yea, they shall cover their mouth, all of them ;
Because God will give them no answer.
- 8 But verily I am filled with power,
With the spirit of Jehovah, and of judgment, and of might ;
To declare unto Jacob his transgression, and to Israel his sin.
- 9 Hear this, I pray, ye chiefs of the house of Jacob,
And ye princes of the house of Israel,
Who abhor judgment and pervert all equity ;
- 10 Who build up Zion by blood,
And Jerusalem by iniquity.
- 11 The chiefs thereof judge for reward ;
And the priests thereof teach for hire ;
And the prophets thereof divine for silver ;
And yet they lean upon Jehovah,
Saying, Is not Jehovah among us ?
Calamity shall not come upon us.

CHAP. III. 1—3. Hear, I pray] This address shows the sinfulness of the heads or chiefs of Jacob. They treat the people as they did the sacrifices ; they became the victims of their cruelty.

4. Then shall they cry] When Jehovah brings the breaker or destroyer against the land, these shall find no favour.

5—7. To the prophets] The false and wicked ones, who prophesied for bread.

10. Who build up] Who raise up magnificent palaces for yourselves by plunder and murders.

Therefore shall Zion for your sake be plowed 12
as a field,
And Jerusalem shall become heaps,
And on the mountain of the temple, Trees shall grow as on the high-places of a forest.

CHAPTER IV.

The prophet foretells the glory, peace, and establishment of Messiah's kingdom, and the destruction of his enemies.

But it shall come to pass in the latter 1
days,
That the mountain of the house of Jehovah Shall be established on the top of the mountains,
And it shall be exalted above the hills ;
And the peoples shall flow unto it.
And many nations shall go, and shall say, 2
Come, and let us go up to the mount of Je-
hovah,
And to the temple of the God of Jacob ;
And he will teach us of his ways,
And we will walk in his paths :
For out of Zion shall go forth the law,
And the word of Jehovah from Jerusalem.
And he shall judge among many people, 3
And decide among strong nations afar off ;
And they shall beat their swords into ploughshares,
And their spears into pruning-hooks ;
Nation shall not lift up sword against nation,
Neither shall they any longer learn war ;
But they shall sit every man under his vine, 4
And under his fig-tree, and none make them afraid : [spoken it.
For the mouth of Jehovah of hosts hath

Every one in the name of his own god ;
Yet let us walk in the name of Jehovah,
Who is our God for ever and ever.
In that day, saith Jehovah, 6
I will gather her that halteth,
And her that is driven out will I assemble,
And her whom I have afflicted ;
And I will make her that halted a residue, 7
And her that was cast far off a strong nation :
Jehovah shall then reign over them in mount Zion,
From henceforth, even for evermore. 8
And thou, O tower of Eder,
The fortress of the daughter of Zion, to thee shall it come,
Even the former dominion shall come,

CHAP. IV. 1—4. Latter days] See Is. ii. 2—5, and notes.

5. All other people] Though this be the constant practice of the heathens, yet let not us follow them in their idolatry ; but let us imitate their constancy and perseverance in adhering to Jehovah.

6—8. In that day] Though God would send his people into captivity ; yet a residue should be preserved, in whom the future designs of his providence should be accomplished. — Tower of Eder] In or near Bethlehem ; and intimates that the house of David should again flourish.

Is there no king in thee? hath thy counsellor perished?
For pangs have seized thee, as one in travail.

O daughter of Zion, as one in travail:
For now shalt thou go forth from the city,
And thou shalt dwell in the field;
And thou shalt go even unto Babylon,

There shall Jehovah redeem thee
From the hand of thine enemies.

CHAPTER V.

The birth of Christ, his kingdom and his conquest foretold.

- 2 AND art thou, Bethlehem-Ephrath,
Too little to be among the chiefs of Judah?

9. Now why dost] Having predicted the kingdom of Messiah, the prophet now returns to the present state of Israel. Is there no king? Though Zedekiah be removed, am not I thy king?

10. Be in pangs] Here the distresses which they endured when conquered and carried captive, are forcibly described. Yet they are assured that God will redeem them.—(a) MSS.

11. Many nations] The Idumeans, Ammonites, and others who exercised great cruelties on the scattered Israelites, for which the prophets denounced their ruin.

12. As a sheaf] When they have answered his purpose, they shall be in their turn punished.

13. Tread out the grain] The prophet commands the daughter of Zion to tread out this sheaf. On the return from Babylon, the Jews subdued some of these nations, I Macc. v. 3-6.

CHAP. V. 1. Now also] With the Hebrew, Syriac, &c. this verse is joined to the foregoing chapter. Assyria is meant, as Salmanc-er had probably now invaded Israel.

2. And art thou] I have rendered interrogatively, with many others, as the text will bear it, and as this makes it equivalent to the reading of Matthew, chap. ii. 6, and to some copies of the Sept. here.—Among the chiefs] The term רָאשֵׁי denotes both a 'thousand,' and the 'heads' or chiefs of a thousand; and Michaelis supposes that it means also a larger family. The evangelist, or the scribes, mention this city as Bethlehem-Judah, which is equivalent to Ephrath.—One who is] Here the Sept. Alex. agrees with the Hebrew; while the scribes in Matthew either paraphrase, or else we have two renderings of the same word, 'A ruler,

For out of thee shall come forth unto me
One who is to be the ruler in Israel;
And his goings forth have been from of old,
from everlasting.

And in the midst of many peoples,
As a lion among the beasts of the forest,

who shall feed my people Israel.—And his goings forth] See IIos. vi. 8; Job i. 1; and Col. i. 16.

3. She who bringeth forth] Lowth has ingeniously explained this passage by supposing that the prophet refers to the prediction of Is. vii. 14; see note there.—When the residue] God will not fully vindicate his people, until after the birth and work of Messiah. This was fulfilled in the time of the apostles, and will be more so when the residue of Israel, with the fulness of the Gentiles, are brought in.—(v) Versions.

4. And he shall stand] The ruler mentioned verse 2.—In the strength] He shall evidently possess divine power and authority. And so our Lord did.—Converted] Many of the Jewish people by his own ministry, and more by that of his ministers.—(v) Versions.

5. And He shall] With Houbigant I close this remarkable prophecy with these words, and begin a new paragraph with what follows. See for the fulfilment of this, Eph. ii. 14-17.—Seven rulers] The chiefs of the Medes and Babylonians are intended, who attacked and took Nineveh.

7. As dew from] The Jews, in their captivity, spread the knowledge of the one true God. See Dan. ii. 47; iii. 29; iv. 34, &c. In their present dispersion they are witnesses of the truth of our Lord's predictions.—Which tarrieth] This must refer to grass, the immediate antecedent, and signifies that it springeth up without the attention or culture of man.—(a) Versions.

8. As a lion] On their return to their own land, they became a powerful people, and obtained many victories over their enemies.

- As a young lion among the flocks of sheep;
Who, when he passeth through, treadeth
down,
And teareth in pieces, and none can deliver.
9 Thy hand shall be lifted up over thy foes,
And all thine enemies shall be cut off.
10 And it shall be in that day, saith Jehovah,
That I will cut off thy horses, from amidst
thee;
And I will destroy thy chariots:
11 I will also cut off the cities of thy land,
And I will throw down all thy strongholds:
12 I will also cut off sorcerers from thy border;
And thou shalt have no more soothsayers:
13 I will also cut off thy carved images,
And thy statutes from the midst of thee;
Nor shalt thou again worship the work of thy hands: [thee.
14 And I will root up thy groves from amidst 15 Then I will destroy thine enemies,
And execute vengeance in anger and fury Upon the nations that have not hearkened to me.

But if thou deliver, I will give them up to

And the must butt shall not drink the wine.

10. In that day] This must refer to the Assyrian invasion, which was now near, and the effects of it follow.

14. Then I will] Then will God destroy the Assyrian, and other enemies of Israel, the nations that have not hearkened to him.

CHAP. VI. 2. Hear O] See Ps. l. 1—4; Is. i. 18; Hos. xii. 2. This mode of calling the attention of the people is grand and sublime.

3. Wearied thee] By unnecessary burdens or undeserved calamities.

4. Miriam] She was a prophetess, and might have contributed to the instruction and edification of the people in the desert, Exod. xv. 20; Num. xii. 2.

5. What Balak] He sent for Balaam to curse Israel, but God constrained him to bless them. Balaam gave him afterwards advice how to seduce them to idolatry, Num. xxxi. 16.

6. Wherewith shall I come] The prophet here introduces one of the people in the name of the rest, as making inquiry in what way the anger of Jehovah might be appeased, and his favour conciliated. He proposes only sacrifices and offerings; but says nothing of repentance or reformation.—Calves of] These were to be offered for the high-priest, and are noticed as being the best, Levit. ix. 2.

7. First-born] The dearest of my offspring. It is well-known that the Phœnicians and Canaanites sacrificed their children; and some of the idolatrous Jews imitated this horrid practice, for which the prophets often reprov'd them.

8. He hath showed] The prophet answers the inquiries of the people, by reminding them what God had already taught in his law, and by other prophets; that sacrifices were vain, when unaccompanied with repentance, and regards to moral duty.

9. And he that is wise] The rendering adopted is that of all the ancient versions; and arises from a change of the points.—Hear, O ye tribes] This reading is also that of the versions.—Him that testifieth] What God testifieth follows to the end of the chapter.

10. Scant measure] Thus deceiving the buyer, by selling less than he pretended.

11. Her pure] The city is addressed, the place containing for the inhabitants, as it follows.

13. Begin to smite] All the versions except the Chaldee so render.

14. It shall be dark] This reading of the Sept. and Arab. Houbigant and Newcome prefer; darkness is often put for calamity, Job xviii. 6; Is. lix. 9.

- 16 For ye have kept the statutes of Omri,
And all the works of the house of Ahab;
And ye have walked in their counsels,
That I should make the city a desolation,
And the inhabitants thereof a hissing;
And this reproach ye my people shall bear.

CHAPTER VII.

The church complaineth of her small number and the general corruption; trusteth not in man, but in God.

As those who glean the vintage;
But there is no cluster that may be eaten;

The daughter shall rise up against her mother, [in-law;
The daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law:
A man's foes shall be the men of his own house.

I will wait for the God of my salvation:
My God will hear and answer me.
8 Rejoice not over me, O mine enemy:
Though I am fallen, yet shall I rise up;
Though I now sit in darkness,
Yet will Jehovah become a light unto me.
9 I will bear the indignation of Jehovah,
Because I have sinned against him;

16. Statutes of Omri] See 1 Kings xvi. 16—23. He built Samaria, and patronized idolatry, and the people followed his example.—Ye my] They should lose their wealth in the destruction of the city and country, and be a reproach among the nations.

CHAP. VII. 2. The good man] As the early fig cannot be found in the advanced season of summer, or the cluster of grapes after vintage; so neither can the good man be discovered by diligent searching in Israel.

4. It is the day] For the punctuation, see the Syriac. On the approach of danger, watchmen were to be very diligent, Isaiah xxi. 11; and this is announced in what follows.

5. In a guide] A husband is called the guide of the wife, Prov. ii. 17. In this view women are exhorted not to confide in their husbands; and the husbands not to confide in their wives. Both sexes were depraved and unfaithful.

They shall tremble in their holes as earth-worms: [God,

Because he delighteth in mercy.
He will again have compassion on us; 19
He will subdue our iniquities;

Babylon are meant. The people had the promise of restoration, and might speak thus with propriety.

11. The decree be far] The decree of Cyrus and his successors for the restoration of the city and the temple, which was far extended, reaching to all the Jews, and sent into all the provinces of the empire.

12. Fenced cities] If this reading be right, we must understand those cities in Assyria where they were placed. Some render 'from the cities of Egypt.'—(v) Vers. and MSS.

14, 15. Feed thy people] This is the prayer of the prophet, referring to the people as in captivity, dwelling solitarily; then as restored, occupying Gilead, &c. The next two verses are God's answer.

16, 17. Become deaf] With astonishment and dismay.—Lick the dust] This denotes the most abject state, as what follows shows their terror.

18—20. Who is a God] The prophet concludes with celebrating the divine mercy towards his sinful people.

INTRODUCTION.

FROM Chapter ii. 2, it appears that Nahum prophesied after Samaria was taken, in the reign of Hezekiah. The Assyrian power was then at its zenith, yet within little more than sixty years it was destined to fall. The Ninevites had repented at the preaching of Jonah; but they soon returned to their former sins. Nahum is superior to most of the lesser prophets in sublimity, pathos, and fire; he confines himself to the overthrow of Nineveh, the capital of those who had subverted the kingdom of Israel, and greatly distressed that of Judah.

CHAPTER I.

The majesty of God is displayed, in goodness to his people and severity against his enemies.

- 1 THE prophecy concerning Nineveh. The book of the vision of Nahum, the Elkosite.
- 2 Jehovah is a jealous and an avenging God;
Jehovah avengeth, and is very furious.
Jehovah avengeth his adversaries,
And he reserveth wrath for his enemies.
- 3 Jehovah is slow to anger, though great in power;
And Jehovah will not altogether destroy;
His way is in the whirlwind and in the storm,
And the clouds are the dust of his feet.
- 4 He rebuketh the sea, and maketh it dry;
And he drieth up all the rivers:
Bashan languisheth, and Carmel;
And the flower of Lebanon languisheth.
- 5 The mountains quake at him, and the hills melt;
And the land is laid waste at his presence;
Yea, the world, and all that dwell therein.
- 6 Who shall stand before his indignation?
And who shall rise up in his hot anger?
His fury is poured out like fire,
And the rocks are thrown down by him.
- 7 Jehovah is good, a strong-hold in a day of trouble;
And he knoweth them that trust in him.
- 8 But with an overflowing torrent

CHAP. I. 1. Elkosite] He is thus called, according to Jerom, from a village in Galilee.

3. And will not] See note, Exod. xxxiv. 6, &c.—His way is] He displays his power and justice by storms and tempests; he makes all nature subserve his purposes. Comp. Ps. civ. 3.

4—8. He rebuketh the sea] Referring to the Red Sea and the Jordan, Exod. xiv. 21; Josh. iii. 16.—The mountains] Alluding to Sinai and the other mountains around, Exod. xix. 18.—With an overflowing] This may refer to the manner in which Nineveh was taken. Diodorus Siculus says, 'That the Euphrates overflowed its banks, deluged a part of the city, and overturned twenty stadia of the wall; in consequence of which the desponding king burnt himself, his palace, and treasures.'

9—11. Against Jehovah] This may refer to the conduct of Senacherib, in the reign of Hezekiah, and to the destruc-

He will make an utter end of his opposers;
And darkness shall pursue his enemies.

What do ye imagine against Jehovah? 9

He himself will make an utter end:

Distress shall not rise up a second time.

For while the "princes" are yet perplexed, 10

And while drunken as with their wine,

They shall be devoured as stubble fully dry

From thee hath there gone forth one. 11

Who imagined evil against Jehovah?

A most wicked counsellor.

Thus saith Jehovah, God of hosts; 12

Though they are prosperous and so many,

Yet shall they be cut down and pass away;

Though I afflicted thee, I will afflict thee no more.

For now will I break his yoke from off thee, 13

And I will burst thy bonds in sunder.

And Jehovah will command concerning thee, [abroad.

That thy name may be no more scattered

From the house of thy gods will I cut off

The graven image and the molten image:

I will appoint thy grave; for thou art vile.

Behold upon the mountains the feet of 15

That bringeth good tidings, that publisheth

Keep, O Judah, thy feasts; perform thy vows:

For he shall no more pass through thee;

The wicked is wholly consumed, he is cut

tion of his army, as well as to the overthrow of Nineveh. The following verses are strikingly applicable to that event, 2 Kings xviii. and xix.

10. (v) Syr. Chald. 2 MSS.

12. Though they are] The Assyrians had hitherto been successful, as Rabshakeh boasted; and they had distressed the kingdom of Judah, but the prophet assures them that they should not do it again.

13. Break his yoke] They had paid tribute to the king of Assyria from the time of Ahaz; but paid it no more after the destruction of Senacherib's army.

14. Concerning thee] The king of Assyria is addressed.—House of thy gods] Senacherib was slain in the house of Nisroch, his god; and this house and the images might be destroyed.—Appoint thy grave] Thou shalt be cut off, because vile, 2 Kings xix. 37. The next verse celebrates the end of this formidable foe.

CHAPTER II.

Formidable and victorious armies are described as marching against Nineveh.

- 1 THE destroyer is come up before thee :
Guard the fenced place, watch the way ;
Make strong thy loins, fortify thy might greatly. [cob,
- 2 For Jehovah restoreth the excellency of Ja-
In a manner becoming the excellency of Israel :
Though the wasters have wasted them,
And have destroyed their vine branches.
- 3 The shield of his mighty men is made red ;
The valiant men are clothed in scarlet :
The chariots are as flaming torches
In the day when he prepareth them,
And the 'horsemen' spread abroad fear.
- 4 The chariots rage in the streets ;
They jostle one against another in the broad ways : [uing.
- They appear as torches, they run as light-
- 5 He recounteth his mighty men ;
They cast down as they march on ;
They hasten to the wall, and a shed is pre-
- 6 The gates of the river are opened, [pared.
- And the palace melteth, and the fortress.
- 7 She is led away captive, she goeth up ;
Her maids are led away moaning as doves,
And smiting their hands on their breasts.
- 8 But Nineveh is of old like a pool of water,
Yet she and they shall flee away.
Stand, stand, they cry, but none looketh back.
- 9 They seize the silver, they seize the gold ;
And there is no end of the glorious store,
Because of all kinds of desirable utensils.
- 10 She is void, and empty and waste ;
And the heart melteth, and the knees smite together ;
And there is great pain in all loins,
And the faces of them all gather blackness.
- 11 Where is the habitation of the lions ?
And the feeding-place of the young lions ?

CHAP. II. 1. The destroyer] The army of the Medes and Persians is intended.

2. In a manner becoming] The meaning seems to be, that God will treat them in a manner becoming their name Israel, which denotes 'a prince with God'; though they were now wasted and led into captivity. The connexion is, that the conquest of Nineveh should be the deliverance of Israel.

3. The shield is made red] This describes the uniform of those who fought against Nineveh; they bore red shields and were dressed in scarlet.—(v) Versions.

4. The chariots] While mustering the troops, the scythed chariots glittered in the sun as torches in the night.

5. The shed is] The covering which protected the besiegers. The prophet saw the enemy mustering the troops in his own city, commencing their march, and overthrowing whatever opposed, and at length they arrive at the walls of Nineveh.

6. Gates of the river] See note, ch. i. 8.—And the fortress] With Newcome I read מצב, which is favoured by the Sept. and Vulg.

8. She and they] Her waters shall not afford her security, but occasion her destruction. For the construction,

Whither the lion and the lioness went,
And the lion's whelp, and none made them afraid ? [whelps,
The lion tore in pieces enough for his 12
And strangled for his lionesses ;
And filled his dens with prey, and his lairs with rapine. [hosts,
Lo ! I am against thee, saith Jehovah of 13
And I will burn thy chariots in the 'fire,'
And the sword shall devour thy 'villages :'
And I will cut off thy prey from the earth,
And the fame of thy deeds shall no more be heard.

CHAPTER III.

The miserable end of Nineveh is foretold.

Wo to the bloody city ! she is all false- 1
hood ;
Full of rapine ; the prey departeth not.
The sound of a whip, and the noise of 2 rattling wheels ; [riots.
And of prancing horses, and bounding cha-
The horsemen mount, and the flame of the 3

And the glittering of the spear are seen.
There is a multitude slain, and a heap of dead bodies ;
And there is no end to their carcases ;
They stumble upon their carcases. 4

hosts ;
And I will uncover thy skirts to thy face,
And I will show the nations thy nakedness,
And to the kingdoms expose thy shame.
And I will cast upon thee abominable filth, 6
And make thee vile, and set thee as a gaz-
And it shall come to pass, [ing-stock. 7
That all who see thee shall flee from thee,
And shall say, Nineveh is laid waste.

see note, Micah vii. 3.—Stand, stand] When her inhabitants are fleeing, though called to stand, yet such shall be the terror, that none shall hearken or look back.

9. They seize thr] The conquerors seize the immense wealth which had been amassed.

11. Habitation of the lions] The inhabitants of Nineveh are compared to lions ; they were once strong and rapacious as lions, Ezek. xix. 2-6 ; Job. iv. 10.

13. In the fire] So the Chaldee, which is the true and proper reading. It is usual to join fire with burning, but not with smoke. Philagex] So the Chaldee and one manuscript. See Ezek. xxxiii. 13.

CHAP. III. 1-3. Wo to the bloody city] Newcome supposes these three verses contain a description of Nineveh, as it was in the time of the prophet.

4. Mistress of enchantments] This refers to all her arts and allurements, by which she endeavoured to confirm her power by associating those she conquered with her in the worship of her gods.

5-7. I am against thee] Compare Levit. x. 3 ; Hos. ii. 3. To many of the captive women the things here said might be literally done ; if applied to the city, it soon became 'vile, a heap of ruins.'

- Who will bemoan thee?
Whence shall I seek comforters for thee?
- 6 Art thou better than No-Ammon,
Which is situated among the rivers;
The waters are round about her;
Whose rampart is the sea; waters are her wall.
- 9 Ethiopia and Egypt were her great strength,

8. No-Ammon] A city of Egypt. See Ezek. xxx. 13—15, and note. Is the sea] Some lake or branch of the Nile most probably surrounded Thebes.

9. Ethiopia] The African Cushites are meant.—(v) Sept. Syr.

10. Yet was she carried] Prideaux refers either to the taking of No-Ammon by Senacherib or Assar-haddon. See Isa. xx. 4.

11. Shalt be drunken] With the cup of God's wrath. All the ancients give the verb this sense.

12. Fig-trees] The image is a very beautiful one to show how easily their fortresses would be subdued, Rev. vi. 13.

14. Draw water] Prepare for the siege.—Go into the

- Go to the clay, tread the mortar, repair the brick kiln.
- There shall the fire devour thee: 15
The sword shall cut thee off, and eat thee

Increase thyself as the numerous locust:

As locusts spread thyself, and fly away.

clay] Make bricks in abundance to repair the breaches which will be made.

16. As locusts] The Chaldee and Vulgate favour this version; and the verb שָׁרַר is used in the sense here given, Job i. 7. This version preserves the sentiment begun in the 15th verse.

17. Thy crowned ones] The chiefs of Nineveh were many; but both they and the captains would be as grasshoppers, which are benumbed by cold, and by heat are excited to fly away.

18. Give up themselves] The governors of provinces may be meant by shepherds; and by nobles, those who assisted the king; his prime ministers.

JOEL.

INTRODUCTION.

DRUSIUS thought it most probable that Joel lived under the long reign of Manasseh, and before his conversion, 2 Chron. xxxiii. 13; so that he prophesied while the kingdom of Judah subsisted. Newcome agrees with Drusius, and places him from before Christ 697 to 660. He is animated, and occasionally very sublime.

CHAPTER I.

The judgment of God on Judah, by swarms of locusts, and by drought.

- 1 THE word of Jehovah which came to Joel, the son of Pethuel.
- 2 Hear this, ye old men,

And give ear, all ye inhabitants of the land.
Hath this happened in your days,
Or even in the days of your fathers?
Tell ye your children of it, 3
And let your children tell their children,
And their children another generation.

CHAP. I. 1. Joel, the son of] Nothing is said respecting the place of his birth, or from what tribe he sprang. 888

Isidorus says he was born of Beth-oron, in the tribe of Reuben, but produces no authority.

- 4 What the grasshopper left hath the locust eaten ; [worm eaten ;
And what the locust left hath the canker-
And what the canker-worm left hath the caterpillar eaten.
- 5 Awake, ye drunkards, and weep ;
And howl, all ye drinkers of wine, for the sweet wine ;
Since it is cut off from your mouth.
- 6 For a nation hath gone up upon my land,
Who are strong, and without number ;
Whose teeth are the teeth of a lion,
And they have the jaw-teeth of a lioness.
- 7 They have wasted my vine, and barked my fig-tree : [away :
They have made it quite bare, and cast it
The branches thereof are made white.
- 8 Lament as a virgin girded with sackcloth,
For the espoused husband of her youth.
- 9 The wheaten-offering and the drink-offering
Are cut off from the house of Jehovah.
Mourn, O priests, ye ministers of Jehovah.
- 10 The field is laid waste, the ground mourneth.
For the corn is laid waste ; [eth.
The new wine is dried up, the oil languisheth.
- 11 Be ashamed, husbandmen ; howl, vine-dressers,
For the wheat and for the barley ;
Because the harvest of the field is perished.
- 12 The vine is dried up, and the fig tree languisheth, [quince ;
The pomegranate, palm-tree, and the Even all the trees of the field are withered :
Yea joy is withered from among men.
- 13 Gird yourselves, and mourn, O ye priests :
Howl, O ye ministers of the altar :
Come, lie all night in sackcloth, ye ministers of God : [offering:
For the wheaten-offering and the drink-
Are withholden from the house of your God.
- 14 Appoint ye a fast, proclaim a solemn day ;
Gather the elders, and all the inhabitants of the land,
To the house of Jehovah, your God,
And cry aloud unto Jehovah.
- 15 Alas ! alas ! alas ! for the day !
For the day of Jehovah draweth near,

And as destruction from the Almighty shall it come.
Is not our food cut off before our eyes ? 16
From the house of our God joy and gladness ?
The seeds have perished under their clods, 17
The store-houses are desolate, the garners destroyed ;
For the corn hath withered away.
How do the cattle groan ! 18
How are the herds of oxen perplexed,
Because they have no pasture !
The flocks of sheep also are destroyed.
Unto thee, O Jehovah, do I call : 19
For a fire hath devoured the pastures of the desert,
And a flame hath burnt all the trees of the field.
The cattle of the field also cry unto thee : 20
For the streams of waters are dried up ;
And a fire hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness.

CHAPTER II.

The awfulness of God's judgments foretold ; a call to repentance ; a fast is described, and a blessing promised.

BLOW ye the trumpet in Zion ; 1
Sound an alarm in my holy mountain :
Let all the inhabitants of the land tremble :
For the day of Jehovah cometh, it draweth near :
A day of darkness, and of gloominess, 2
A day of clouds and of thick darkness.
As the dusk spread upon the mountains,
Cometh a numerous people, and a strong ;
Like them there hath not been of old time,
And after them there shall not be,
Even to the years of many generations.
Before them a fire devoureth, 3
And behind them a flame burneth :
The land is as the garden of Eden before them,
And behind them a desolate wilderness ;
Yea, and nothing shall escape them.
Then appearance is as the appearance of 4
horses ;
And as horsemen, so shall they run.

4. Grasshopper] Different kinds either of locusts or other destructive worms are here specified ; but as they are happily little known here, it is difficult to ascertain their species.

5. Awake, ye drunkards] Locusts injured the vines and the quality of the wine for some years.

6. A nation] The locusts are so called from their number and order. See Prov. xxx. 25, 26.—Hath gone up] The prophet speaks as if he had seen their destructive ravages ; and thus a future event is often spoken of as past.

8. Espoused husband] The Jews often betrothed their children when very young. The people are called to lament bitterly for the calamities of their country.

9—13. Wheaten-offering] The scarcity is such that there is nothing to spare for the daily offering ; and the ministers are especially called to mourn.

14. Appoint a fast] The prophet points out the way of diminishing and removing the divine judgments, calling the people to humiliation and repentance.

15—20. Alas ! alas !] A drought is foretold as well as the plague of locusts ; so that the corn and herbs withered away, nor could the cattle find water to quench their thirst. For want of food and water they perished.

CHAP. II. 1—11. Blow the trumpet] This description of the number, march, ravages, &c. of God's army of locusts, cannot but strike the imagination of every reader of taste, as most awfully sublime.

2. Like them] This seems to be a proverbial manner of speaking, to represent what is uncommon. See Exodus x. 14.

3. A fire devoureth] They so affect trees, that, as if burnt, they are two or three years before they recover, according to many historians.—Nothing shall] Nothing which the ground produces. Newcome has transcribed many instances of this.

4. Appearance of horses] The head of the locust is very like that of the horse ; and hence the Italians call the locust, cavalette, little horse.

- 5 Like the sound of chariots on the tops of mountains shall they leap;
Like the sound of a flame of fire that devoureth the stubble; [array.
They shall be as a strong people set in
- 6 Before them shall the people be much
All faces shall gather blackness. [pained;
- 7 They shall run like mighty men;
Like warriors they shall climb the wall;
And they shall march every one in his way,
And not turn aside from their paths.
- 8 Neither shall one thrust another;
They shall march each in his own road;
And if they fall on the sword shall not be wounded.
- 9 They shall run to and fro in the city;
They shall run upon the wall, and climb up into the houses; [thief.
They shall enter in at the windows like a
- 10 Before them the earth quaketh, the heavens tremble;
The sun and the moon are darkened,
And the stars withdraw their shining:
- 11 And Jehovah shall utter his voice before
For his camp is very great: [his army:
For he is strong that executeth his word:
For great will be the day of Jehovah;
Yea, very terrible, and who can abide it?
- 12 Yet even now, saith Jehovah, turn ye to
With your heart, and with fasting, [me,
And with weeping, and with mourning:
- 13 And rend your heart, and not your garments,
And turn unto Jehovah, your God:
For he is gracious and merciful,
Slow to anger, and of great kindness,
And repenteth in respect to a threatened evil.
- 14 Who knoweth but he may turn and repent,
And leave a blessing behind him;
A wheat-offering and a drink-offering, for Jehovah your God?
- 15 Blow the trumpet in Zion;
Appoint a fast, proclaim a solemn day.
- 16 Gather the people, hallow the assembly,
Call the elders, gather the children,
And those that suck the breasts:
Let the bridegroom go forth from his
And the bride out of her closet. [chamber,
- 17 Let the priests, the ministers of Jehovah,

Weep between the porch and the altar;
And let them say, Spare thy people, O Jehovah,
And give not up thy heritage to reproach,
That the nations should rule over them:
Why should it be said among the people,
Where is their God?
Then will Jehovah be jealous for his land, 18
And will be merciful to his people. [ple,
Yea, Jehovah will speak and say to his people, 19
Behold, I will send you corn, and wine, and
And ye shall be satisfied therewith: [oil,
And I will no longer make you a reproach
among the nations: [army,
But I will remove far from you the northern 20
And will drive him into a dry and desolate
land,
With his van towards the east sea,
And his rear towards the western sea;
And his smell shall rise, and his ill-savour
come up,
Although he hath done great things.
Fear not, O land, exult and rejoice: 21
For Jehovah will do great things.
Be not afraid, ye cattle of the field: 22
For the pastures of the desert spring up;
For the tree beareth her fruit;
The fig-tree and the vine yield their strength.
And, O ye children of Zion, exult, 23
And rejoice in Jehovah, your God:
For he giveth you the autumn-rain in just quantity; [you,
And causeth showers to come down upon
Even the autumn and spring-rain as aforetime.
And the thrashing-floor shall be full of corn, 24
And the vats shall overflow with wine and
And I will restore to you the years [oil. 25:
Which the locusts have eaten up,
The canker-worm, and the caterpillar, and the grasshopper,
My great army which I sent among you.
And ye shall eat in plenty, and be satisfied, 26:
And praise the name of Jehovah, your God,
Who hath dealt wondrously with you:
And my people shall never be ashamed.
And ye shall know that I am amidst Israel, 27:
And that I am Jehovah your God, and none else:
And my people shall never be ashamed.

5. Sound of chariots] See Rev. ix. 7; Nahum iii. 2. With their wings and feet they make such a sound as to be heard at a great distance.

7. Like mighty men] This shows that real locusts are meant, and not the Assyrian army, as some have supposed.

8. On the sword] They are covered with scales like a coat of mail; so that the sword cannot destroy them. No human means can stop them.

10. The earth] See verse 2. They come in such clouds as to obscure the sun; and when they alight, they cover a country. See Ency. Brit.

13. Rend your heart] To rend the garment was usual as a token of sorrow; but God requires contrition of heart. This is what he prefers.

14. Leave a blessing] A bountiful gift, 2 Kings v. 15. What follows explains the sense of the word.

15—17. Blow the trumpet] This language shows the earnest manner of the prophet. The judgment was coming; lose no time in attempting to avert it. Let ministers and people alike join in fasting and prayer.

18—20. Then will Jehovah] On their sincere repentance, God will be merciful, and send them fruitful seasons, and remove the 'northern army.'

21—27. Fear not, O land] The prophet exhorts to confidence and joy on the removal of this enemy.—My great army] These words limit what is said to locusts, and lead us to understand the two chapters as relating to them only.

- 29 And it shall come to pass afterwards,
That I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh ;
And your sons and daughters shall prophesy ;
Your old men shall dream dreams,
Your young men shall see visions :
29 And also on my servants, and on my handmaids
In those days will I pour out my spirit.
30 And I will show wonders in heaven, and on earth,
Blood, and fire, and pillars of smoke.
31 The sun shall be turned into darkness,
And the moon into blood, [come.
Before the great and terrible day of Jehovah
32 And it shall come to pass,
That whosoever shall call on the name of Jehovah shall be delivered :
For in mount Zion and in Jerusalem shall be deliverance, as Jehovah hath said ; Even among the remnant whom Jehovah shall call.

CHAPTER III.

Judgments on the enemies of God's people ; by these he will be known ; his blessing on the church.

- 1 For behold, in those days, and in that time, [Jerusalem,
When I restore the captivity of Judah and 2 I will assemble also the nations,
And bring them down to the valley of Jehoshaphat,
And execute judgment on them there,
On account of my people and my heritage
Israel,
Whom they scattered among the nations,
And then divided among them my land.
3 And they cast lots for my people :
And they gave a boy for a harlot, [drink.
And sold a girl for wine, that they might 4 Yea, and what have ye, Tyre and Sidon, to do with me,
And all the borders of Palestine ?
Will ye render unto me a recompense ?

Now if ye will render a recompense unto me,
Very swiftly will I return your recompense upon your own head ;
Because ye have taken my silver and my 5
gold, [pleasant things ;
And brought into your palaces my goodly
And the sons of Judah and the sons of Je- 6
Have ye sold unto the Grecians, [rusalem To remove them far from their own borders.
Behold ! I will raise them out of the place 7
Whither ye have sold them,
And will return your recompense upon your own head :
And I will sell your sons and your daugh- 8
ters
Into the hands of the children of Judah,
And they shall sell them to the Sabeans,
To a people afar off : for Jehovah hath spoken it.
Proclaim ye this among the nations ; 9
Prepare war, raise up the mighty men ;
Let all the warriors draw near and come :
Beat your ploughshares into swords, 10
And your pruninghooks into spears :
Let the weak say, I am strong.
Assemble yourselves, and come, all ye na- 11
tions, [about :
And gather yourselves, together round
There, Jehovah will bring down thy mighty ones.
Let the nations be roused, and come up 12
Into the valley of Jehoshaphat :
For there will I sit to judge all the nations around.
Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe ; 13
Come, get down, for the press is full, the vats overflow ;
For their wickedness is great.
Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of ex- 14
cision : [of excision.
For the day of Jehovah is near in the valley
The sun and the moon shall be darkened, 15
And the stars shall withdraw their shining.

23. It shall come to pass] Though the people might exult in the returning fruitfulness of the seasons, the prophet assures them that God had far greater blessings in store for them ; for a day would come, when he would pour down from heaven, not showers of rain only, but his Spirit in such a copious manner that their sons and daughters, old and young men, should prophesy, Acts ii. 17.

30. Wonders in the] This and the next verse refer to the destruction of Jerusalem, and the sun, and moon, and stars, being turned into blood, show how the princes and leading men should be slain. Compare Matt. xxiv. 29, &c., Luke xxi. 25.

32. Shall be delivered] Some apply this to the safety of Christians during the Jewish war ; but with the apostle I understand it of the deliverance from sin and misery obtained by our Lord, and preached by his servants. Rom.
x. 13.

CHAP. III. 1. For behold in] For as an earnest of what hath been foretold, God will restore his people to their land, and their enemies shall be humbled.

2. All the nations] All the surrounding nations, who had been the enemies of Israel.—Valley of Jehoshaphat] We read of no place so called in any other part of scripture ;

and I am inclined to think that it is used for the place where God would execute his judgments. The name signifies, 'Jehovah will judge.' See 2 Chron. xx. 16. &c.
God would treat them as he did those enemies whom Jehoshaphat conquered.

3. Cast lots for] The surrounding nations showed no pity to the scattered Israelites. Tyre and Sidon especially did so, and for this conduct they are to be swiftly visited.

5—8. Because ye have] This shows how the poor Jews were treated in the dark and cloudy days. They were plundered of what they had preserved, and then sold into Greece as slaves.

10. Beat your ploughshares] Let every one prepare for the conflict. Here the image of Isa. ii. 4, and Micah iv. 3, is reversed.

12—15. Will I sit] As a judge to render a just recompense to my enemies.—Put ye in the sickle] This is addressed to the Israelites, the instruments of his vengeance.
They are to cut down, as the people were ripe for destruction. Multitudes were to be slain, and their son, their king, to be vanquished. Rev. xiv. 15—18.

- 16 Jehovah also will roar out of Zion,
And from Jerusalem will he utter his voice ;
And the heavens and the earth shall shake :
But Jehovah will be a refuge to his people,
And a strong-hold to the children of Israel.
- 17 And ye shall know that I am Jehovah,
your God,
Dwelling in Zion, my holy mountain :
And Jerusalem shall be holy,
And strangers shall no more pass through her.
- 19 And it shall come to pass in that day,
That the mountains shall drop down sweet
And the hills shall flow with milk, [wine,
- And all the torrents of Judah shall flow with waters, [Jehovah,
And a fountain shall issue from the house of
And shall water the valley of Shittim.
Egypt shall become a desolation, 19
And Edom shall be a desolate wilderness,
For their violence to the children of Judah, Because they shed innocent blood in their
land.
But Judah shall dwell for ever, 20
And Jerusalem from generation to generation. [not avenged ;
For I will avenge their blood which I have 21
Even I, Jehovah, that dwelleth in Zion.

16, 17. Roar out of Zion] While Jehovah was speaking and overturning the surrounding nations, he would protect his own people. This was remarkably fulfilled by Alexander the Great, who favoured and protected the Jews.

18. In that day] This phrase is used with great latitude ; and here is the same with the latter day or days, the times of the Messiah.—And a fountain] Compare Ezek. xlvii. 1—12. Shittim was in the plains of Moab, not far from the Dead sea, Numb. xxxiii. 49. The sense is that as a stream of water running through a dry land makes it fruitful ; so God's word and grace revealed to men, to heathens, should purify and make them fruitful. Compare Isa. ii. 2—5.

19. Egypt—Edom] These nations shall be lost in the mass of other nations, and their sovereignty shall never be restored, on account of their continued hostility to God's people. This has hitherto been fulfilled.

20. But Judah shall] But God's restored people shall again increase and dwell long in their own land ; and the church formed among them shall continue for ever. If we understand what is here said literally, 'for ever' must signify a long period, as it must be often understood in the prophets.

21. I will avenge their blood] The blood of his servants and people, which their enemies had shed. The Syr. Sept. and Chald. are adopted in the sense given.

ZEPHANIAH.

INTRODUCTION.

ZEPHANIAH prophesied from about the year before Christ 640 to 609. He was contemporary with Jeremiah, and like him foretells the utter desolation of Jerusalem and Judea by the Chaldeans. He predicts the judgments which were to fall on the neighbouring nations. Like his predecessors he exhorts to repentance, threatens the incorrigible, and promises blessings to the penitent.

CHAPTER I.

God's severe judgments on Judah for their many sins.

- 1 THE word of Jehovah which came unto Zephaniah, the son of Cushi, the son of Gedaliah, the son of Amariah, the son of Hiz-kiah, in the days of Josiah, the son of Amon, king of Judah.
- 2 I will wholly take away all things
From off the land, saith Jehovah.
- 3 I will take away man and beast,
I will take away the fowls of the air, and fish of the sea,
And the stumbling-blocks with the wicked,
And cut off man from the land, saith Jehovah.
- And I will stretch out my hand upon 4
Judah,
And upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem ;
And I will cut off from this place the residue of Baal, [priests ;
And the name of the sacrificers with the
And those that worship the host of heaven 5 on the house-tops :
And those that swear by Molech ;
And those that are turned back from Je- 6
hovah :
And those that have not sought Jehovah,
Neither have inquired of him. [hovah,
Be silent at the presence of the Lord Je- 7
For the day of Jehovah is near.

CHAP. I. 3. Birds—fish] Birds are affected by pestilential disorders arising from putrid carcasses ; and from similar causes the fish might.—Stumbling-blocks] Idols are intended, which God would cut off together with the wicked who worshipped them.

4. Sacrificers with] Idolatrous priests together with the Levites, who often joined with them in their idolatrous worship. 2 Kings xxiii. 5 ; Hos. x. 5.

5. (v) That swear by Jehovah] Arab.

- For Jehovah hath appointed a sacrifice,
He hath bidden his guests.
- 8 And it shall be in the day of Jehovah's sacrifice,
That I will punish the princes and king's
And all that are clothed with strange apparel.
- 9 And I will punish every one that leapeth upon the threshold in that day, Who fill their master's house by violence and deceit.
- 10 And it shall be in that day, saith Jehovah,
The noise of a cry shall come from the fish-gate,
And of a howling from the second city,
And of a great breach from the hills.
- 11 Howl, ye inhabitants of the lower city,
For all the trafficking people are destroyed;
All the bearers of silver are cut off.
- 12 And it shall come to pass at that time,
That I will search Jerusalem with lights,
And punish the men settled on their lees:
That say in their heart, [evil.
Jehovah doeth no good, neither doeth he
- 13 And their goods shall become a booty,
And their houses be made a desolation:
And they shall build houses but not inhabit them, [wine.
And plant vineyards, but not drink of the
- 14 The great day of Jehovah is near,
It is near, and hasteth greatly:
The report of the day of Jehovah is bitter:
Then shall the mighty men cry out.
- 15 A day of wrath is that day, a day of distress and anguish;
A day of desolation and destruction;
A day of darkness and of gloominess;
A day of clouds and of thick darkness;
- 16 A day of the trumpet and of alarm Against the fenced cities, and the high towers.
- 17 And I will bring distress upon men.
So that they shall walk as if they were blind,
Because they have sinned against Jehovah:
And their blood shall be poured out as dust,
And their flesh shall be cast forth as dung.

Moreover their silver and their gold 18
Shall not be able to deliver them
In the day of the wrath of Jehovah;
For by the fire of his jealousy
The whole land shall be devoured:
For a full end, a speedy one, will he make,
Of all the inhabitants of the land.

CHAPTER II.

Exhortation to repentance; judgment of the Philistines and other nations.

- GATHER yourselves together; 1
Yea, assemble, O nation not desired;
Before the decree be executed, 2
And 'ye are as chaff that passeth away.'
Before Jehovah's fierce anger come upon you, [upon you.
Before the day of Jehovah's anger come Seek Jehovah, all ye humble in the land, 3
Who have executed his judgment;
Seek ye righteousness, seek humility:
It may be ye shall be hid in the day of Jehovah's anger.
- Surely Gaza shall be forsaken, 4
And Ashkelon shall become a desolation:
Ashdod shall be driven out at noon-day,
And Ekron shall be rooted up.
Wo unto the inhabitants of the sea-coasts, 5
Unto the nations of the Cherethites!
The word of Jehovah is against you;
O Canaan, the land of the Philistines,
I will destroy thee, so as to be without inhabitant.
- And the sea-coast shall be dwellings, 6
Even caves for shepherds, and folds for
And the sea-coast shall also be [flocks. 7
For the residue of the house of Judah;
And 'thereupon' shall they feed:
In the houses of Ashkelon shall they lie down in the evening:
For Jehovah their God shall visit them,
And shall turn again their captivity.
- I have heard the reproach of Moab, 8
And the revilings of the Ammonites,
Wherewith they have reproached my people,

7. A sacrifice] The slaughter of the people.—Bidden his guests] So the Babylonians are called, who were to partake of the feast which accompanied it. See Isa. xxxiv. 6.

8. Strange apparel] Such as was used for idolatrous purposes. See Deut. xxii. 11.

9. That leap on] That invade their neighbour's house, and plunder it.

10. Fish-gate] This is mentioned, Neh. iii. 3.—Second city] A part of Jerusalem was so called, 2 Kings xxii. 14; and 2 Chron. xxxiv. 22. The Chaldeans were to invade it from the hills.

11. Lower city] Castel explains the sense of the word Maktesh to be a valley in Jerusalem which separated the Upper from the Lower city; and the Targums, the people who dwelt about the brook Keiron. This part of the city seems to have been occupied by tradesmen and merchants.

12. Settled on their lees] The thoughtless tranquillity of the rich is compared to the fixed, unbroken surface of fermented liquors, Jer. xlviii. 11; Amos vi. 1.

17. As if they were blind] They shall have no prudence nor wisdom; but shall be exposed to dangers every where. Compare Deut. xxviii. 29; Is. lix. 10. God will utterly destroy them.

Chap. II. 2. Be executed] With Newcome the sense is preferred to the metaphor.—'Ye are as chaff'] The Syriac version is adopted, as conveying a clear, definite sense.

3. Humble in the land] There were some in the worst times who did not bow the knee to Baal, nor follow the multitude to do evil; and these the prophet comforts with some hope of escaping in the day of Jehovah's anger.

5. Sea-coasts] Those meant are specified, the Cherethites, probably so called from the name of some tract or district of the country; or from the caves with which it abounded, and where the shepherds usually dwelt.

6. Even caves] The sea-coast, which then abounded with cities, would be laid waste, and only contain a few shepherds and their flocks.

7. Thereupon shall] In the time of the Maccabees this district was conquered, and what is here said fulfilled. (v) Sept.

8. Moab—Ammon] See notes, Amos i. 13; ii. 1—3.

- And magnified themselves against their border. [God of Israel,]
 9 Therefore as I live, saith Jehovah of hosts, Surely Moab shall become as Sodom, And the Ammonites as Gomorrah; [pits, A deserted place for nettles, and for salt- And a perpetual desolation: The residue of my people shall spoil them, And the remainder of my people possess them.
 10 This shall come upon them for their pride; Because they reproached and magnified themselves Against the people of Jehovah of hosts.
 11 Jehovah will be terrible unto them; For he will famish all the gods of the earth: And men shall worship him, each from his place, Among all the isles of the nations.

 15 This is the rejoicing city that sat securely, That said in her heart, I am, and there is none beside me; [beasts to couch in! How is she become a desolation, a place for Every one that passeth by her will hiss and move his hand.

CHAPTER III.

Jerusalem reproved for her sins; and a promise of restoration in the latter day.

- 1 Wo to her that is filthy and polluted,

For their cruelty and pride they must also be visited; and such shall be the destruction, that they shall never recover their former state.

11. Famish all the gods] The sacrifices offered to them shall cease, and they shall perish.—Among all the] The gradual fall of idolatry is foretold; and its deadly wound by the spreading of the gospel, especially in Lesser-Asia, Greece, and Europe.

12. Cushites] See Amos ix. 7; and Jer. xlv. 2—9; Ezek. xxx. 4—10.

13. Assyria] This nation had lately subverted the kingdom of Israel, and carried away the people captive; but they would soon experience the same judgment.

14. All kinds of] So Houbigant, and this limits the general statement, as the sense clearly requires.—(v) Sept. Arab.

CHAP. III. 1. Wo to her that] The prophet addresses Jerusalem; with great freedom reproves and rebukes her for her crimes; and especially for not listening to the voice of God's prophets.

3. Roaring lions] Are as lions, which roar in the act of devouring the prey. Thus they seize whatever is within their reach.—Wait not] They destroy all the night, and before morning carry their prey into their dens, where they consume it.—(v) Syr. Arab.

- To the oppressing city!
 She hath not obeyed the voice; 2
 She hath not received instruction;
 In Jehovah she hath not trusted;
 To her God she hath not drawn near.
 Her princes within her are roaring lions; 3
 Her judges are evening wolves;
 They 'wait' not until the morning.
 Her prophets are light and faithless men: 4
 Her priests have polluted the sanctuary;
 They have done violence to the law.
 Jehovah is just in the midst of her: 5
 He will not do iniquity:
 Every morning he executeth his judgment;
 He bringeth it to the light, he faileth not;
 But the wicked knoweth not shame.
 I have cut off nations: their towers are de- 6
 solate; [eth:
 I laid waste their streets so that none pass-
 Their cities are destroyed, so that there is So that there is no inhabitant. [no man,
 I said, Surely she will fear me, and receive 7 instruction;
 So her habitation shall not be cut off.
 Yet in whatsoever manner I punished them,
 They diligently corrupted all their doings.
 Nevertheless wait for me, saith Jehovah, 8
 Until the day that I rise up to the prey:
 For my decree is to gather the nations,
 And to assemble the kingdoms,
 To pour upon them mine indignation,
 Even all the heat of mine anger:
 For with the fire of my jealousy
 All the earth shall be devoured.
 Surely I will then turn to the people a 9
 pure language, [hovah;
 That they may all call upon the name of Je-
 That they may serve him with one consent.
 From beyond the rivers of Cush my sup- 10
 pliants,
 'Among' my dispersed, shall bring mine offering.
 In that day thou shalt not be ashamed, 11

5. He bringeth it to the light] He affords daily instances of his equity both towards the just and unjust.

6. The nations] Israel and Syria; or those referred to Is. xxxvi. 18—20.

7. Yet in whatsoever] They did not take warning, and hence judgments came upon them; but even under these they grew more wicked.

8. Wait for me] It is implied in the close of the last verse, that the consequence of universal corruption among the Jews would be their fall and captivity. Here they are taught that God had mercy in store for them.

9. Turn to the people] The Jews appear to be meant. They should speak of God and his worship in a proper manner, and engage in it heartily.—With one consent] Hebrew, 'with one shoulder'; a metaphor taken from the joint efforts of yoked beasts.

10. The rivers of Cush] See Is. xviii. 1, and note. Some of the Jews might fly into Nubia or even Abyssinia.—Mine offering] When the temple should be restored, those pious Jews who lived at the greatest distance should bring offerings thence.

11. In that day] When pardoned captives shall return and serve the Lord with one consent.

- For all thy doings by which thou didst sin against me:
 For then I will take away from amidst thee Those that rejoice in thy pride,
 And thou shalt no longer exalt thyself in my holy mountain.
- 12 I will also leave in the midst of thee an afflicted and poor people,
 And they shall trust in the name of Jehovah.
- 13 The residue of Israel shall not do iniquity, Neither shall they speak falsehood,
 Nor shall a deceitful tongue be found in their mouth:
 For they shall feed and lie down,
 And none shall make them afraid. [rael ;
- 11 Sing, O daughter of Zion ; shout, O Is-
 Be glad and rejoice with all the heart,
 O daughter of Jerusalem :
- 15 Jehovah hath taken away thy judgments,
 He hath turned aside thine enemies :
 Jehovah, king of Israel, is in the midst of Thou shalt no longer see calamity. [thee :
- 16 In that day it shall be said to Jerusalem, Fear not :

12. I will also leave] The Chaldeans would have spared none, had not God reserved a remnant. Those spared are opposed to such as rejoiced in the pride of Zion, and exulted themselves in the holy mountain ; boasted of their security, and trusted to their temple.

13. The residue of] Those purified in the furnace of affliction, and restored to their own land, shall not commit the sins which they formerly committed.

14. Sing, O daughter] For the restoration of the city and temple, and for all the mercies of God towards them, they are called on to exult and be glad.

16. Fear not] So the prophets Haggai and Zechariah said. They encouraged them to go on relying upon their God, who had shown himself mighty, and would be ever found so.

And to Zion, Let not thy hands be slack.
 Jehovah, thy God, in the midst of thee 17
 is mighty ;
 He will save, he will rejoice over thee with joy ;
 He will "renew" his love, and exult over thee with singing.
 They who took away the appointed feasts, 18
 I have removed far from thee:
 Wo to those that brought on thee reproach.
 Lo, at that time I will undo all that afflict 19
 thee:
 And I will save her that halteth,
 And gather her that was driven out ;
 And I will get them praise and a name,
 In every land where they were put to shame ;
 At that time will I bring you again, 20
 Even at the time that I gather you :
 For I will make you a name and a praise
 Among all the people of the earth,
 When I reverse your captivity before your eyes, saith Jehovah.

17. Renew his love] The reading of the Sept. Syr. adopted consists in the change of a letter, so like that of the text as to be often mistaken for it. God will renew the tokens and proofs of his love to Zion ; and particularly in fulfilling his promise, and sending his Son to instruct and save her.

18. Took away the] As it is impossible to give any clear or consistent version of the text, the Chaldee is adopted with Grotius, Dathie, and others. The design according to this version is, to denounce judgment on the Chaldeans, who had taken away the solemn feasts and assemblies of Israel, and had brought on God's people reproach and disgrace among the nations ; but soon would they be delivered, and restored, as it follows in the next verses.

HABAKKUK.

INTRODUCTION.

We have no account of this prophet handed down to us. He for tells the destruction of Judah and Jerusalem, and also the ruin of their enemies the Chaldeans. This prophecy is equal in the grandeur of its imagery and sublimity of its style to those of Isaiah, particularly his hymn or prayer.

CHAPTER I.

Habakkuk, complaining of the iniquity of the land, is shown the dreadful judgments which were to be inflicted by the Chaldeans.

- 1 THE prophecy which Habakkuk, the prophet, did see.
- 2 How long, O Jehovah, have I cried,
 And thou hast not hearkened !
 How long have I cried aloud unto thee,
 There is violence, and thou hast not saved !

CHAP. 1. 2. How long have] The prophet shows an indignant spirit at the vice which he saw in the land.

Why dost thou show me iniquity, 3
 And cause me to behold grievance ?
 For spoiling and violence are before me :
 And there are that raise up strife and contention. 4
 Therefore the law is neglected,
 And judgment goeth not forth in truth :
 For the wicked compasseth about the righteous ;
 Therefore wrong judgment proceedeth.

4. In truth] That is, there is no true judgment ; or judgment goeth not forth to victory, as צדק may be rendered.

- 5 See 'ye despisers,' and wonder, and perish ;
For I will work a work in your days,
Which ye will not believe though it be told you.
- 6 For, behold, I will raise up the Chaldeans,
That cruel and swift moving nation,
Who shall go over the breadth of the earth,
To possess dwelling-places not their own.
- 7 They are terrible and dreadful :
From themselves is their power of judgment ;
And from themselves their dignity proceedeth.
- 8 Their horses also are swifter than leopards,
And are more fierce than evening wolves :
And their horsemen shall spread themselves ;
Yea, their horsemen shall come from far ;
They shall fly as an eagle hasteneth to devour.
- 9 All of them shall come for violence :
The supping up of their faces shall be as the east wind,
And they shall gather captives as the sand.
- 10 And they shall scoff at kings,
And princes shall be a laughing-stock to them :
They shall deride every strong-hold ;
For they shall heap up earth, and take it.
- 11 Then will their minds be changed ;
And they will transgress and be punished,
For imputing their power to their gods !
- 12 Art thou not from everlasting, O Jehovah ?
My God, my Holy One, we shall not die.
Jehovah ! thou hast appointed them for judgment,
And hast founded them as a rock for correction.
- 13 Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil,

And thou canst not look on wickedness :
Why lookest thou then upon the treacherous,
And art silent when the wicked swalloweth
One more righteous than himself ?
And makest men as the fishes of the sea, 14
As the reptiles, which have no ruler over them ?
They take up all of them with the hook ; 15
They catch them in their net, and gather them in their drag ;
Therefore they rejoice and greatly exult :
Therefore they sacrifice to their own net ; 16
And they burn incense unto their own drag ;
Because by them their portion is fat,
And their food plenteous.
Shall they therefore always empty their net, 17
And not spare to slay the nations ?

CHAPTER II.

God in this chapter answers the expostulations of the prophet in the last ; shows the necessity of faith, and then denounces his judgments on the Chaldeans, for their covetousness, cruelty, intemperance, and idolatry.

I stood upon my watch-tower, 1
And placed myself upon my fortress ;
And I watched to see what he would say to me,
And what 'he would reply' to my arguing. 2
And Jehovah answered me, and said,
Write the vision, and make it plain upon tablets,
That he may run that readeth it.
For the vision is yet for an appointed time, 3
But at the end it will speak clearly and not lie :
Though it tarry for a season, wait for it ;
For it shall surely come, it shall not tarry long.

5. Ye despisers] So the Sept. and the apostle, which is much preferable to the text, 'among the nations.'—In your days] This implies that some of those whom the prophet addressed witnessed the invasion of their country by the Chaldeans. The apostle applies this to the work of Christ, and to the unbelief of the Jews, Acts xiii. 41, &c.

6. Cruel and swift] This shows that they were rapid in their attacks, and sanguinary and inhuman to the vanquished.

7. From themselves] Newcome explains their authority to execute judgment, and their dignity and elevation among the nations, arise from their own valour in revolting from the Assyrians.

8. Than leopards] These have been tamed and taught to hunt : and they are said to seize their prey with surprising agility.—Fiercer] The spirit of their horses is more fierce than wolves. This must be understood as hyperbolical.

9. The supping up] They shall absorb and destroy their enemies, as the east wind blasts and destroys vegetation.—Captives] With Newcome this is preferred to the abstract term of the common version.

11. Be changed] They will be corrupted by prosperity, will bring on themselves deserved punishment, Dan. v. 4, &c.

12. We shall not die] Not utterly perish by their hand. They are thy instruments for judgment on the guilty, and for correction to those whom thou wilt spare.

13. On the treacherous] On those who regard all methods of obtaining power and wealth as lawful. The Chaldeans are meant.—More righteous] The Jews were not so criminal as their enemies.

15. With the hook] Having compared the Israelites to fishes, the prophet considers the Chaldeans as fishers, taking them by their hook, or inclosing them in their net and drag, and exulting in their success.

16. Sacrifice to their net] Their net and drag evidently mean their valour and power, by which they conquered the nations. To these they sacrificed, or ascribed all their success.

17. And not spare] This line explains the allegory, ver. 14—16.

CHAP. II. 1. My watch tower] I was earnestly looking for God's word, as a watchman intent on his office. Prophets are compared to watchmen, Ezek. iii. 17, &c.—What he would] This reading of the versions removes all ambiguity, and directs us to consider the prophet as expecting to receive an answer to his expostulations in the last chapter, verse 12—16.

2. That he may run] Let the characters be so large that one hastily passing on may read them. He alludes to the custom of hanging laws upon pillars, or public buildings, which were written so plain, that he who took only a cursory view might read and understand them.

3. The vision] Or the prophecy which follows, from verse 4—20.—Shall speak clearly] Compare Prov. vi. 19 ; xiv. 5, for the sense of the verb. Though it regards a distant period, yet wait for it with hope and confidence ; for it shall surely come to pass. The apostle, Heb. x. 37, has followed the version of the Septuagint, and has accommodated it to his own purpose.

- 4 Lo, he whose soul is not upright in him disregardeth ;
But the just by his faith shall live.
- 5 Truly as a man transgressing by wine,
He is proud and remaineth not at home ;
He enlargeth his desire as hades,
And as death he cannot be satisfied ;
But gathereth unto himself all the nations,
And assemblETH to himself all the peoples.
- 6 Shall not all these take up a parable against him, [say,
And a taunting proverb concerning him, and Wo to him that increaseth by what is not his own ! [clay?
How long will he lade himself with thick 7 Shall they not suddenly rise up that will bite thee, [thee,
And shall they not awake that will harass
And thou shalt become for a booty unto
them ?
- 8 Because thou hast spoiled many nations,
All the residue of the peoples shall spoil thee ; [land,
For men's blood and thy violence to the
To the city, and to all the inhabitants thereof.
- 9 Wo to him that coveteth evil gain for his
That he may set his nest on high, [house,
And be delivered from the power of evil !
- 10 Thou hast devised shame for thy family,
By cutting off many peoples,
And hast sinned against thy own soul.
- 11 Surely the stone from the wall crieth out,
And the beam from the timber answereth it :
- 12 Wo to him that buildeth a town by blood,
And establisheth a city by iniquity !
- 13 'Are not these things' from Jehovah of Hosts,
That peoples shall labour for the very fire,
And nations weary themselves for vanity ?
- 14 Surely then shall the earth be filled
With the knowledge of the glory of Jehovah,
As the waters cover the depths of the sea.

- Wo to him who giveth his neighbour 15
drink ; [him drunk,
Who putteth a bottle to him, and maketh
That he may look on 'his' nakedness !
Thou art filled with shame instead of glory : 16
Drink thou also, and uncover thy foreskin :
The cup of Jehovah's right hand shall be turned to thee,
And shameful vomiting shall be on thy glory.
For thy violence to Lebanon shall cover thee, 17
And the destruction of beasts make thee afraid : [land,
For men's blood, and thy violence to the
To the city, and to the inhabitants thereof.
What profiteth the graven-image, 18
That the maker thereof hath graven it ;
The molten-image, and the teacher of lies,
That the fashioner of his work trusteth
therein,
And maketh for himself dumb idols ?
Wo unto him that saith to the wood, 19
Awake ;
To the silent stone, Arise ; shall it teach ?
Behold, it is laid over with gold and silver,
And there is no breath in the midst thereof.
But Jehovah is in his holy temple : 20
Let all the earth be silent before him.

CHAPTER III.

A review of God's ancient works done for his people ; and from hence the prophet infers that God will fulfil his promise.

- [A prayer of Habakkuk, the prophet, 1 upon Shigiuoth.]
I have heard O Jehovah, thy speech ; 2
I have feared, O Jehovah, thy work :
As the years draw near thou 'hast shown' it ;
As the years draw near, thou makest it known ;
In wrath thou rememberest mercy.
God came from Teman, 3
And the Holy One from mount Paran.

4. Lo,—disregardeth] With our translators, I consider אזל understood ; and to עליו the sense as given, which it most frequently has in the Arabic, and which the Vulg. Sept. and Aquila favour. See Castel and Michaelis in verb. The person who has no holy, upright principle, disregards the prophecy, and will not use any means to avoid the dangers which it involves ; but the man just by his faith shall live, and be preserved, both in a natural and spiritual sense. The apostle applies the latter clause to illustrate and show the nature of justification, Rom. i. 17 ; Gal. iii. 11 ; Heb. x. 39. The Sept. read differently ; most probably יִשְׁמַח בְּשִׁי. See Heb. x. 38.

5. He is proud] Nebuchadnezzar as leading the Chaldeans may be implied, or the people collectively, are meant through the chapter.

6. With thick clay] The riches taken from the conquered nations, together with hostages for their future submission and obedience.

7. For booty to them] The Medes and Persians, who like wild beasts will bite and devour thee.

11. Surely the stone] Nebuchadnezzar and others built magnificent structures in Babylon with the spoils of other cities ; and the very stones and timber of these should proclaim the following wo.

13. For the very fire] Many people were employed in the works of Babylon, and yet they were all to be consumed. Compare with verse, Jer. li. 58.—(v) Versions.

14. Surely then shall] God's power and providence widely displayed in the overthrow of Babylon, in the restoration and establishment of Israel in their own land, Isa. xi. 9.

15. Who putteth his bottle] This language is wholly figurative, and signifies that those who give the wine of wrath to others shall in their turn drink of it, as the next verse intimates.—(v) Vulg. Chald.

17. To Lebanon] Lebanon and the beasts of it are put for Judea and its inhabitants.

19. Shall it teach] He had called the image dumb ; how then could it teach ? How stupid must men be to expect it !

CHAP. III. 1. A prayer of] This title seems to be a Jewish annotation of a later age ; and the insertion of it interrupts the connexion.

2. Thy speech] He refers to what God had revealed to him, chap. i. 5—11 ; ii. 5—20.—I have feared] He was alarmed at the judgment which God would inflict on Judah and on Jerusalem.—(v) Versions.

3. Came from Teman] Either a city of Idumæa, or the south, Deut. xxxiii. 2. God's coming denotes the manifestation.

- His glory covered the heavens,
And the earth was full of his praise.
- 4 And his brightness was as the light ;
Rays streamed forth from his hand :
And there was the hiding-place of his power.
- 5 Before him marched the pestilence ;
Birds of prey followed his footsteps.
- 6 He stood and measured the land ;
He beheld, and dispersed the nations,
And the everlasting mountains were broken ;
The eternal hills bowed down : [ken ;
The eternal paths were trodden by him.
- 7 The tents of Cushan thou sawest in affliction :
The curtains of the land of Midian trembled.
- 8 Was Jehovah enraged against the rivers ?
Was thy wrath against the floods ?
Was thine indignation against the sea,
When thou didst ride upon thy horses,
And upon thy chariots of salvation ?
- 9 Thy bow made quite bare was directed,
According to the oath to the tribes, even the word.
- 10 Thou didst cleave the streams of the land.
The mountains saw thee, and trembled :
The overflowing of the water passed away :
The deep uttered its voice,
And lifted up its hands on high.
- 11 The sun and moon abode in the horizon :
By their light thine arrows went abroad ;
By their brightness, thy glittering spear.
- 12 Thou marchedst through the land in wrath ;
Thou didst tread down the nations in anger.
- 13 Thou wentest forth for the salvation of thy people,

festation of himself, the displays of his power.—Paran] A part of Arabia Petraea, Gen. xxi. 21. The prophet refers to God's appearance at the giving of the law; for Paran is the same as the Desert of Sin, in which was mount Sinai.

4. Rays streamed] The verb יָרָא signifies to shine; and the noun may denote a pencil or cone of rays issuing from a point, which would resemble horns. This sense is now generally adopted.—Hiding-place] All the splendour manifest on Sinai, concealed and hid his presence and his power. Newcome refers this to the Shechinah, Exod. xvi. 7—10.

The pestilence] This was sometimes inflicted on the Israelites for their guilt. See Numb. xi. 33; xiv. 37; xvi. 46.—Birds of prey] See note, Job v. 7, and compare Deuter. xxxii. 24; Psa. lxxviii. 48.

6. And measured] The land of Canaan, which he divided among his people, like a conqueror, Psa. lx. 6.

7. Cushan] Most probably some of the wandering tribes of Arabia Felix.

8. Against the floods] Psa. lxvi. 6. What is here said refers to the Red sea.—Didst ride] As a mighty conqueror, attended with thy war-chariots, for the salvation of thy people. These expressions may denote his heavenly attendants. See Psa. lxxiii. 17, &c.

9. Was directed] Or 'stretched,' as the Greek has it. The bow is put for the arrows too.—According to the oath] The question asked in the 8th verse is answered in this, that God displayed his power to deliver his people according to his own oath and promise. Gen. xxii. 16; xxvi. 3; Psa. cv. 9, 10.

10. Thou didst cleave] When the Jordan was divided. Josh. iii. 16, 17.—Its hands] See Psa. xcvi. 8.

For the salvation of thine anointed ones ;
Thou woundedst the chief in the house of the wicked ; [rock.
Thou didst lay bare the foundation to the Thou piercedst with thy rod the heads of 14
his villages :
They came out as a whirlwind to scatter us :
Their rejoicing was to devour the poor secretly.
Thou didst march through the sea with thy 15
horses,
Through the heap of mighty waters.
When I heard thy speech, my bowels 16
trembled ;
At the sound my lips quivered ;
Rottenness entered my bones, and I trembled in my place, Because I shall be brought to the day of trouble :
To go up captive to the people who will invade us.
But although the fig-tree do not flourish, 17
And there shall be no fruit on the vines ;
The produce of the olive shall fail,
And the fields shall yield no food ;
The flocks shall be cut off from the fold,
And there shall be no herd in the stalls :
Yet will I rejoice in Jehovah ; 18
I will exult in the God of my salvation.
The Lord Jehovah is my strength, 19
And he will make my feet like hinds' feet,
And he will cause me to tread on my high-places.

[To the chief singer on Neginoth.]

11. In the horizon] Michaelis is followed in this version; and he has rendered it probable that this is the real sense of יָבֵיט. As there is a reference to Josh. x. 12—14, we must so explain the prophet, were we to render 'habitation;' for Joshua would not pray for the light to be continued until the sun was going down. See note there.

12. Through the land] The land of Canaan, and 'tread down,' didst crush them as corn by the drag.

13. The chief] The first-born of the Egyptians are meant; and this was the overthrow of many families.

14. Thy rod] The verb being in the second person requires this reading; and mistakes in the pronominal affixes have been frequently made, as appears both from the MSS. collated, and the old versions. The sword of the destroying angel is meant.—They come forth] When Israel had departed, the Egyptians rapidly followed them.

16. When I heard] See verse 2 and note.—Because I shall] Newcome is followed in reading with one manuscript, אֲנִי, considering it in the passive. The Syriac may lead us to think יִהְיֶה the right reading, 'he hath brought me.' The prophet may speak the language the people will then use, when the Chaldeans invade them.

17. But although] The state of the land during the captivity may be here described; or we may understand the prophet as expressing his own confidence, and that of the pious Israelites, in the vision and promise of God, to restore and save his people whatever calamities they might be called to witness or suffer.

19. The Lord Jehovah] Compare Psa. xviii. 33. The sense is, God will bring them to their own land with speed, and again establish them there.

OBADIAH.

INTRODUCTION.

WE have no account of this prophet, nor of the time when he prophesied; but it is highly probable that he was contemporary with Ezekiel, and might deliver this prophecy against the Edomites about five years after Jerusalem was taken and the great body of the people carried away captive. It was during the siege of Tyre, that Usher, with great probability, supposes what is here predicted was accomplished.

The destruction of Edom for his pride; his injustice to his brother Jacob; the victory and salvation of Jacob.

1 THE vision of Obadiah. 'Thus saith the Lord Jehovah concerning Edom.

We have heard a report from Jehovah,
And an ambassador is sent among the nations, saying,
Arise, and let us arise against her in battle.

2 Lo, I have made thee small among the nations:

Thou art greatly despised.

3 The pride of thy heart hath deceived thee,
Thou that dwellest in the clefts of the rock,
Whose abode is on high; that saith in 'thy' heart,

Who shall bring me down to the ground?

4 Though thou exalt thyself as the eagle,
And though thou set thy nest among the stars,

Thence will I bring thee down, saith Jehovah.

5 If thieves had come to thee, if robbers by night,

Would they not have stolen till they had
If the grape-gatherers had come unto thee,
Would they not leave some grapes? [out!]

6 How art thou cut off! how is Esau searched
How are his hidden things inquired after!

7 All the men who were confederate with thee
Have brought thee even to the border:
The men at peace with thee and ate thy bread,

Have deceived thee and prevailed against
They have spread 'a snare' under thee:

There is no understanding in thee.

8 Shall I not in that day, saith Jehovah,

Even destroy the wise men from Edom,
And understanding from the mount of Esau!
And thy mighty ones, Teman, shall be dismayed,

That man may be cut off from the mount of
For the slaughter and violence to thy brother Jacob,

Shame shall cover thee, and thou shalt be cut off for ever.

In the day when thou stoodest on the other side,

When strangers carried away captive his
And when foreigners entered into his gates,
And when they cast lots upon Jerusalem,
Even thou wast as one of them.

But thou shouldst not have looked forth
On the day of thy brother's calamity,

On the day that he became a stranger,
Nor have rejoiced over the sons of Judah

In the day when they were destroyed;

Yea, thou shouldst not have looked forth
On their affliction in the day of their calamity;

Nor have seized their substance in the day
Nor shouldst thou have stood in the cross-

Nor shouldst thou have delivered up those
That remained in the day of distress.

For the day of Jehovah is near on all nations:

CHAP. I. 1. Is sent among] God has sent an ambassador to arouse the nations under the Babylonians to war against Edom.

2. Small among] Idumæa was but a small country, compared with many others; nor was it a very desirable one, being rocky and mountainous.

3. Clefts of the rocks] In the caves of the mountains, some of which might be natural, and others artificial, formed for security in times of war.—(v) Vulg.

4. As the eagle] Edom through pride trusted to the strongholds, and in imagination was as safe as if among the stars, yet she must be brought down, Jer. xlix. 16.

6. How art thou cut off] With Newcome these words are transposed, from the middle of the preceding verse here, where the sense and connexion show they should be.

7. Have brought thee] Thy confederates have joined thy enemy, and conduct thee to thy own border, to give thee up as a captive.—Ate thy bread] Either those thou hast treated as guests, or thy soldiers whom thou hast supported. For the text see Dimock.—A snare] That this is the true reading can scarcely be doubted by any reflecting person, as placing or spreading a wound under a person, is not intelligible. Whatever Edom might boast, she acted as if devoid of all knowledge.—(v) Versions.

10. For slaughter] All the old versions thus divide and point, and who does not perceive that by joining this word to the end of the 9th verse, the parallelism and beauty are destroyed? See Amos i. 2, and note.

11—14. In the day] By telling the Edomites what they should not have done, the prophet informs us what they actually did. They not only looked on the ruin of Judah, but rejoiced in it, and even murdered those who had escaped the sword of the Chaldeans, and who fled to them for refuge.

15, 16. Day of Jehovah] The day of recompense was

17. Upon mount Zion] The return of the Jews from Babylon is foretold ; who are to occupy their ancient possessions.

18. House of Esau for stubble] This refers to the future conquests of the Maccabees. 1 Mac. v. 3—5, and 2 Mac. x. 15—23.

19. They of the south] The meaning is, the restored Jews should extend themselves in every direction ; and should vanquish those to whom for a season they had been slaves ; the Edomites, Philistines, &c.

21. Deliverers] God would raise up a succession of men who should, by their wisdom and valour, secure the liberty of their country against these nations ; and the kingdom of Israel should be devoted to Jehovah.

H A G G A I.

INTRODUCTION.

HAGGAI was the first prophet sent to the Jews who had returned from Babylon. He lived about 520 years before Christ, and about 15 years after Cyrus had granted the Jews liberty to return to their country and to rebuild their temple. But they being employed in building their own houses scarcely did any thing in respect to the temple, till aroused by this prophet, Ezra vii. 11, &c.

CHAPTER I.

Haggai reproves the negligence of the people, incites them to build the house, and promises God's assistance.

- 1 In the second year of Darius, the king, in the sixth month, on the first day of the month, came the word of Jehovah by Haggai, the prophet, unto Zerubbabel, the son of Salathiel, governor of Judah, and to Joshua, the son of Josedech, the high-priest, saying :
2 Thus speaketh Jehovah of hosts, saying,
This people have said, The time is not come,
The time that Jehovah's house should be built.
3 But the word of Jehovah hath come by Haggai, the prophet, saying,

Is it a time for you, O ye people, 4
To dwell in your own ceiled houses,
And shall this house lie waste ?
Now thus saith Jehovah of hosts ; 5
Deliberately consider your ways.
Ye have sown much, and brought in little ; 6
Ye eat, but ye have not enough ;
Ye drink, but ye are not filled with drink ;
Ye clothe yourselves, yet none is warm thereby ; [for a bag with holes.
And he that earneth wages, earneth them
Thus saith Jehovah of hosts : 7
Deliberately consider your ways.
Go up to the mountain, and bring wood, 8
And build the house that I may be pleased with it,

CHAP. I. 1. Second year] Darius, son of Hystaspes, king of Persia. Blair places the second year of his reign 520 years before Christ.—Zerubbabel] He was grandson of Jechoniah, king of Judah, Matt. i. 12 ; and the son of 'Salathiel.'—Joshua, son of Josedech] Josedech was the son of Seraiah, the high-priest, when Jerusalem was taken, who was slain at Riblah, 1 Chron. vi. 14, and 2 Kings xxv. 13—21.

4. Shall this house] Its foundations had been laid near fifteen years before this time, in the second month of the second year after their return from Babylon, Ezra iii. 8.

6. Brought in little] God had punished their negligence by unfruitful seasons, so that they had not sufficient.—A bag with holes] Whatever a man earns, the scarcity took from him to obtain some provision. He could keep nothing.

- And may be glorified, saith Jehovah.
 9 Ye look for much, and, lo, there is little ;
 And when ye brought it home, I blew upon it.
 Why ? saith Jehovah of hosts,
 Because of my house which lieth waste ;
 And ye run every man to build his own house. [stayed,
 10 Therefore the dew of heaven over you is
 And the produce of the earth is stayed.
 11 For I called for a drought upon the land,
 And upon the mountains, and upon the corn,
 And upon the new wine, and upon the oil ;
 And upon whatever the ground bringeth
 And upon men, and upon cattle, [forth,
 And upon all the labour of the hands.
 12 Then Zerubbabel, the son of Salathiel, and Joshua, the son of Josedech, the high-priest,
 and all the residue of the people,
 hearkened to the voice of Jehovah their God,
 and to the words of Haggai the prophet,
 according as Jehovah their God had sent him ;
 and the people feared before Jehovah.
 13 Then spoke Haggai, the messenger of Jehovah, by a message from Jehovah, to the people, saying,
 I am with you, saith Jehovah.
 14 And Jehovah stirred up the spirit of Zerubbabel, the son of Salathiel, governor of Judah,
 and the spirit of Joshua, the son of Josedech,
 the high-priest, and the spirit of all the residue of the people ; and they came and did work in the house of 15 Jehovah of hosts, their God ; On the twenty-fourth day of the sixth month, in the second year of Darius the king.

CHAPTER II.

Haggai encourages the people to the work, by a promise of greater glory to this second than the first temple had.

1 In the seventh month, on the twenty-first

9. Have blown upon it] Either blown it away, or made it unfit for your support.

10. Dew of heaven] The sense of this verse is preferred to the literal rendering, with Dathe and others. The drought mentioned in the next verse shows the cause of the great scarcity.

12—15. Hearkened to the] This address of the prophet in connexion with their present afflictions roused them ; and they immediately began to finish the house of the Lord.

CHAP. II. 3. In its former glory] Seventy years elapsed from the destruction of the former temple, before Christ 587, to its complete restoration, about four years after this prophecy was delivered ; and there could be but few now living, who had seen the former temple.

5. Covenant made with] God engaged to be their God, and to dwell among them ; and he had fulfilled his engagement. His spirit still remained in his prophets, and other pious servants, and this ought to encourage them.

6. I will shake the heavens] The political and religious revolutions which were to occur are here referred to. Compare ver. 21, 22 ; Matt. xxiv. 29 ; Heb. xii. 26—28. Once, if referred to the gospel state, has a definite sense and application. God had, before, at the giving of the law, and the establishment of the Jews in Canaan, shook the heavens and earth ; and now once he engages to produce a like revolution in the spiritual world.

7. The desire of] That חֲמִידָה may be referred to a person, see Dan. xi. 37 ; and if pointed as plural to agree with day of the month, came the word of Jehovah by the prophet Haggai, saying, Speak now to Zerubbabel, the son of Salathiel, governor of Judah, and to Joshua, the son of Josedech, the high-priest, and to the residue of the people, saying,

Who is there left among you That saw this house in its former glory ?

And what do ye see it now ?

Is it not as nothing in your eyes ?

Yet now be strong, O Zerubbabel, saith Jehovah ; [the high-priest ;

And be strong, O Joshua, son of Josedech, And be strong, all ye people of the land, And work ; for I am with you, saith Jehovah of hosts ; [with you

According to the covenant which I made When ye came out of the land of Egypt ; And my spirit remaineth with you : fear not.

For thus saith Jehovah of hosts ; Yet once more, and in a little while, I will shake the heavens and the earth, And the sea, and the dry land ;

And I will shake all the nations, And the desire of all the nations shall come : And I will fill this house with glory, saith Jehovah of hosts.

The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith Jehovah of hosts. The glory of this latter house shall be greater Than of the former, saith Jehovah of hosts : And in this place will I give peace, saith Jehovah of hosts.

On the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius, came the word of Jehovah, by Haggai, the prophet, saying, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts ; Ask now the law from the priests, saying, If a man carry holy flesh in the skirt of his garment, and with his skirt touch bread, or the verb, it may signify the excellence of the person who should come.—With glory] This house, though in time greatly enriched and ornamented, was never equal to Solomon's temple ; and we know that it wanted the table of the law, the pot of manna, and above all the shechina, or divine glory, which filled the former house. How it could be filled with glory, or the glory of it be greater than of the former, unless by the coming and presence of Messiah, it is impossible to tell.

8. The gold is mine] Predictions of temporal and spiritual blessings are often blended together ; and we have here a reference to the contributions for erecting it, Ezra vi. 8 ; vii. 15—20, and to the donations by which it was to be adorned. See 2 Mac. iii. 2, and Joseph. J. 5. 13, 6.

9. Greater than of the former] Some have made it a question whether or not we should consider the temple in which our Lord taught, a second temple, since it was wholly rebuilt by Herod, John ii. 20. It may however be doubted, whether the whole was rebuilt by Herod. It is probable that what Herod did was repairing certain parts, erecting others, and making the whole as perfect and complete as possible ; and though ever so much improved, yet it would be regarded as the same house. Josephus says that Herod took away the old foundations, and laid others, &c. ; but this must be confined to such parts as were decayed ; or else how could the divine service have been observed ? Rabbi Joseph, Maimonides, and other Jewish authors, always speak of this as a second temple.

pottage, or wine, or oil, or any meat, shall it be holy? And the priests answered and said, 13 No. Then said Haggai, If a man unclean by a dead body touch any of these, shall it be unclean? And the priests answered and 14 said, It shall be unclean. Then answered Haggai, and said, So was this people, and this nation before me, saith Jehovah; and so was every work of their hands: and that 15 which they offered there was unclean. And now consider from this day and upward, from before one stone was laid upon another in the temple of Jehovah, in what 16 state ye were. When one came to a heap of twenty measures, there were only found ten; when one came to the vat, to draw out fifty vessels from the wine-press, there were 17 only twenty. I smote you with blasting, and with mildew. And with hail in all the labours of your hands; yet ye turned not to 18 me, saith Jehovah. Consider now from this day and upward, from the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month, and from the day in which was laid the foundation of Jehovah's temple, consider it. Is there yet seed in the granary? Yea, as yet the vine, and fig-tree, and pomegranate, and the olive-tree, have not brought forth: but from this day will I bless you.

And again the word of Jehovah came 20 unto Haggai, on the twenty-fourth day of the month, saying, Speak to Zerubbabel, 21 governor of Judah, saying, I will shake the heavens and the earth; And I will over- 22 throw the throne of kingdoms, and I will destroy the most powerful kingdoms; and I will overthrow the chariots, and those that ride in them; and the horses and their riders shall come down, every one by the sword of his brother. In that day, saith 23 Jehovah of hosts, will I take thee, O Zerubbabel, my servant, the son of Salathiel, saith Jehovah, and will make thee as a signet: for thee I have chosen, saith Jehovah of hosts.

10—13. If a man] To make any thing holy, it must be touched by that which was hallowed on the altar. The skirt would be holy, but not the things which it touched. He that was unclean, rendered unclean what he touched.

14. So was this] Your neglect of my temple made you unclean, and in like manner polluted all your offerings.

15. In what state were ye] The first words of the next verse are joined to this with the Sept. which at least makes the whole more clear.

16—19. Came to a heap] Of corn, which seemed likely to produce twenty measures, but from the poverty of the ear, only yielded ten; and in like manner the grapes were unproductive.—From this day] On which ye have begun to build the temple, ye shall be blessed with fruitful seasons.

21. I will shake the] This and the next verse Vitrina understands to signify the calamity which Babylon suffered during the reign of Darius; and the conquests of Alexander in Persia, &c. In these events the kingdoms were overthrown, great slaughter was made, and those who had conquered others were themselves conquered.

23. In that day] Some think that by Zerubbabel is meant his posterity. But it may well be said that the revolutions and commotions foretold, began in the rebellion of Babylon, which Darius besieged and took; and exercised great cruelties towards its inhabitants. Prideaux places this event in the 5th of Darius; others in the 8th. While these things were occurring at Babylon, Zerubbabel and the Jews should be secure; and preserved as a signet, with the greatest care.

ZECHARIAH.

INTRODUCTION.

THIS prophet was contemporary with Haggai; and like his, the first part of this prophecy was designed to encourage the Jews to build the temple; the latter contains clear predictions of the sufferings, death, and kingdom of Christ.

CHAPTER I.

The prophet exhorts to repentance; vision of the horses; comfortable promises to Jerusalem.

1 IN the eighth month, in the second year of Darius, came the word of Jehovah to Zechariah, the son of Berachiah, the son of Iddo, the prophet, saying, "Speak to all
2 the people of the land, saying," Jehovah was greatly angry with your fathers; but 3 say thou unto them, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts; Turn ye unto me, saith Jehovah of hosts, and I will turn to you, saith Jehovah of hosts. Be not ye like unto your 4 fathers, to whom the former prophets called, saying, thus saith Jehovah of hosts; Turn ye now from your evil ways and from your evil doings: but they heard not, nor attended to me, saith Jehovah. Your 5 fathers, where are they? And the prophets, do they live for ever? But my

CHAP. I. 1. In the eighth month] This prophecy was delivered between the times mentioned, Haggai ii. 1—10.—Speak unto] With Blayney this is supplied from ch. vii. 5, as it is unusual for a prophet to denounce the divine judgment.

ments, or to give assurances of the divine favour, without specifying the object of his address.

5, 6. Your fathers] This question implies, that their fathers had been cut off by famine, by war, and pestilence, words and my statutes, which I commanded my servants the prophets, were they not fulfilled in respect to your fathers? And did they not return and say, Like as Jehovah of hosts thought to do to us, according to our ways, and to our deeds, so hath he done with us?

7 Upon the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month, which is the month Sebat, in the second year of Darius, came the word of Jehovah to Zechariah, the son of Berechiah, the son of Iddo, the prophet, in this wise: I saw by night, and behold a man riding on a red horse, and he stood between the myrtle-trees which were in a valley; and after him were red, speckled, and white
9 horses. Then said I, What are these, O my lord? And the angel who talked with me said to me, I will show thee what these 10 are. And the man who stood between the myrtle-trees answered and said, These are they whom Jehovah hath sent to go to and 11 fro through the earth. And they spoke to the angel of Jehovah, who stood between the myrtle-trees, and said, We have gone to and fro through the earth, and, behold, all the earth remaineth still, and is at rest.

12 Then the angel of Jehovah spoke and said, O Jehovah of hosts, how long will it be ere thou have mercy on Jerusalem, and on the cities of Judah, against which thou hast had indignation these seventy years?
13 And Jehovah answered the angel who talked with me with good words and comfortable words. And the angel who talked with me said to me, Proclaim, saying, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts;
I am greatly jealous for Jerusalem and for Zion, 15 And I am very angry with the nations at For when I was but a little angry at my They helped forward the affliction. [people,

And he will yet choose Jerusalem.

Then I raised mine eyes, and saw, and 18 behold four horns. And I said to the angel 19 who talked with me, What art these? And he answered me, These are the horns which have scattered Judah and Israel. And Je- 20 hovah showed me four ploughmen. Then 21 said I, What come these to do? And he spoke, saying, Those are the horns which have scattered Judah, so that no man lifted up his head; but, these are come to terrify them, to cast down the horns of the nations, who lifted up their horn against the land of Judah, to scatter it.

CHAPTER II.

Jerusalem is measured, Zion restored and the promise of God's presence.

AGAIN I raised mine eyes, and looked, 1 and behold a man with a measuring-line in his hand. Then I said, Whither goest thou? And he said to me, To measure Jerusalem, to see what is the breadth thereof, and what is the length thereof. And, be- 3 hold, the angel that talked with me went forth; and another angel went forth to meet him. And said unto him, Run, speak to 4 this young man, saying,
Jerusalem shall dwell in villages,
For the multitude of men and of cattle therein:
For I will be unto her, saith Jehovah, 5
A wall of fire round about, or else had died and were buried in a foreign land, where they had been carried captive, as the prophets had said; and even these prophets had died before their predictions had been fulfilled; but my words, and my decrees, &c. were they not fulfilled? Hebrew, 'Did they not overtake?' The sense is preferred to the idiom.

7. Sebat] A Chaldee or a Syriac name, which Golius explains as answering to our February.

8-11. Riding on a red horse] From this verse to chap. vi. 15, we have eight different visionary representations of the state of things, and of the events which were to occur. This mode of showing what should come to pass, chiefly obtains in Ezekiel, Daniel, and Zechariah; and these visions may be considered in the light of historical paintings, as Eichhorn has observed. In this vision are seen angels in the human form; one sat on a red horse, and others on red, speckled, and white horses; and another attended the prophet, and answered his inquiries.

12. Angel of Jehovah] I think this to be the same as the man who sat on the red horse. Compare verse 8 and 11. The state in which the nations now were, gives occasion to the following intercession.—Seventy years] See note Hag-gai, ii. 3, and Newton, vol. i. Diss. 8. p. 102.

14. I am greatly jealous] Some render in the past tense, 'I have been,' and suppose God's resentment against his people for their sins and unfaithfulness to be meant; but with our translators I understand the concern God had for the honour and comfort of his people.

15. They helped forward] They treated my people with the greatest cruelty. God speaks after the manner of men, as greatly provoked with the instruments of his own vengeance, because they had shown no compassion.

16. And the line] For laying out its streets and other buildings. The next verse establishes the sense of this.

18. Four horns] Horns are the well-known symbols of power, and often used by the sacred writers in this sense. Four are probably mentioned to denote many. See Mic. v. 5. The Jews had many enemies, who joined in scattering them.

20, 21. Four ploughmen] So Michaelis and Blayney render.—To terrify] In the vision the ploughmen came, as the agents of Providence, to terrify, and cast down, or to use the hand on the horns, to hold and restrain the horns from doing as they had done.

CHAP. II. 1-4. In villages] This vision was to show that Jerusalem should not only be rebuilt, but its inhabitants should be so many as to be obliged to live beyond the walls, as we learn from Josephus they actually did.

5. A wall of fire] This most sublime image strongly expresses the protection of deity; and must have reminded the

CHAPTER III.

By Joshua as a type the restoration of Zion and Christ the Branch are promised.

- 1 AND he showed me Joshua, the high-priest, standing before the angel of Jehovah,

Jews of the pillar of fire by which God directed and protected their ancestors.—The glory] The cloud of glory did not return to the second temple; but God's gracious presence was there, and his brightest glory was displayed there in the person of his son.

6. Ho, ho, come] They had liberty to do so, and God invites them to embrace it.

8. After promising glory] The text is certainly defective, some words having been early omitted. I have supplied what seems to me best to suit the context. —(v) Vulg.

9. A spoil to their servants] As the Babylonians were to the Medes and Persians, and especially when Darius took Babylon and plundered it. See note, Hag. ii. 23. Some think, as this event soon took place, the Jews at Babylon were forewarned of it, and actually left the city before it happened, as invited to do, ver. 6, 7, &c.

10—13. Sing and rejoice] Amidst the commotions which should occur, God would be the defence and security of Zion; so that their enemies should be struck with awe and confusion.

CHAP. III. 1. Angel of Jehovah] The angel mentioned chap. ii. 3.—Adversary] Most render as an appellative, and the narrative requires it. In the vision the adversaries of the Jews are noticed as attempting to impede them in the restoration of their civil and religious polity, but in vain.

2. A brand] Joshua and the other restored Jews are thus called, because they had been great sufferers; and God would not permit a new flame to consume them, as their enemies desired.—(a) Syr.

3. Filthy garments] In the vision Joshua appeared with the squalid and polluted garments of a captive.

4. Thine iniquity] The effect or the punishment of iniquity and an adversary standing at his right hand to resist him. And the "angel of" Jehovah said to the adversary, Jehovah rebuke thee, O adversary; even Jehovah that chooseth Jerusalem, rebuke thee: Is not this a brand plucked out of the fire?

Now Joshua was clothed with filthy garments, and standing before the angel; And he spoke and said unto those that stood before him, saying, Take away the filthy garments off him. Then he said to him, See, I have caused thine iniquity to pass from thee, and I will clothe thee with goodly apparel. He said also, Let them set a fair mitre upon his head. And they set a fair mitre upon his head, and clothed him with garments. And the angel of Jehovah stood by. And the angel of Jehovah protested unto Joshua, saying,

Thus saith Jehovah of hosts;
If thou wilt walk in my ways,
And if thou wilt keep mine ordinance;
If thou wilt also judge my house,
And wilt moreover keep my courts,
Then I will give unto thee a place
Among these that are now standing by.
Hear now, O Joshua, the high-priest,
Thou, and thy companions who sit before thee:

For they are men to be wondered at:
For, behold! I bring forth my servant,
The BRANCH,
For, lo! the stone that I have placed before Joshua;

From out of one stone shall be seven fount-
Behold! I will open the orifice thereof, [ains.
Saith Jehovah of hosts,

quity God had caused to cease.—With goodly apparel] Suitable to his rank. The vision imports that the priestly office was to be resumed and exercised with decency and splendour.

6. Protested unto] In a strong and solemn manner, to make the greater impression on Joshua's mind, and on the minds of the people.

7. If thou wilt also judge] This and what follows were a part of the high-priest's duties, and cannot be regarded as a promise; the promise being in the close, giving him a place or places among those, &c. the angels. This may be understood either of his entrance into the holy of holies annually, or of his admission at last into heaven.

8. Wondered at] On account of their extraordinary deliverance from Babylon, and on account of their success in rebuilding the city and temple; but more so as the root whence he was to spring called the Branch. Some would apply this to Zerubbabel, as a branch from the root of David. But he already existed, and had done so both as a man and as a governor some years; and how could he then be the person of whom God promises, 'Behold, I bring forth,' &c. See Jer. xxiii. 5. What is said agrees to no other besides our Lord. See chap. vi. 12, &c.

9. The stone that] See Isa. xxviii. 16, and note. 'Seven fountains' may mean a sufficiency, a fulness, as the Hebrew term denotes.—I will open] This work Jehovah undertakes; and he gave his Son, and smote and afflicted him for the offences of men, so that in this view he removed the iniquity of that land in one day. The living waters Blayney considers to be the doctrines of the gospel, and the fountains the dispensers of them, to denote the Apostles and Evangelists.

And I will remove the iniquity of that land in one day.

- 10 In that day, saith Jehovah of hosts, Shall ye call every man his neighbour Under the vine and under the fig-tree.

CHAPTER IV.

The vision of the golden chandelier, and of the two olive-trees, which the angel explains.

- 1 AND the angel who talked with me returned, and awaked me, as a man that is
2 awakened out of his sleep : And he said to me, What seest thou ? And I said, I have looked, and behold a chandelier, all of gold, with a bowl upon the top thereof, and its seven lamps thereon, and seven pipes to the seven lamps, which are upon the top thereof :
3 And two olive-trees over it, one on the right side of the bowl, and the other on the left side thereof. And I further spoke to the angel who talked with me, saying, What are these, my lord ? Then the angel who talked with me answered and said unto me, Knowest thou not what these are ? And I said, No, my lord. Then he answered and spoke unto me, saying, This is the word of Jehovah unto Zerubbabel, saying,
Not by human might, or human power, But by my spirit, saith Jehovah of hosts.
7 What art thou, O great mountain ? Before Zerubbabel thou shalt become a plain :
And he shall bring forth the chief corner-stone,
With shoutings of, Favour, favour, unto it.
8 The word of Jehovah came also unto me,
9 saying, The hands of Zerubbabel lay the foundation of this house ; his hands shall also finish it ; and ye shall know that Jehovah of hosts hath sent me unto you.
10 For who hath despised the day of small things ? even they shall rejoice, when they see the plummet in the hand of Zerubba-

bel. Those seven pipes and lamps are the eyes of Jehovah, which run to and fro through the whole earth. Then I spoke, 11 and said unto him, What are these two olive-trees upon the right side of the chandelier, and upon the left side thereof ? And 12 I spoke again, and said unto him, What are the two branches of the olive-trees which are by the side of the two golden pipes, and which empty the oil out of themselves ? And he answered me and said, Knowest 13 thou not what these are ? And I said, No, my lord. Then said he, These are the two 14 anointed ones, who stand before the Lord of the whole earth.

CHAPTER V.

Vision of the flying-roll, denoting the curse of thieves ; of the woman in the ephah, denoting the cause of their captivity in Babylon.

- THEN I raised mine eyes again, and 1 looked ; and behold a flying-roll. And he 2 said unto me, what seest thou ? And I answered, I see a flying-roll ; the length thereof is twenty cubits, and the breadth thereof ten cubits. Then said he unto me, 3 This is the curse that goeth forth :
Over the face of the whole land
For every one who stealeth shall be cut off
From hence, according to it.
And every one that sweareth shall be cut off
From hence, according unto it.
I will bring it forth, saith Jehovah of hosts, 4
And it shall enter the house of him that steal-eth,
And the house of him that sweareth falsely by my name :
And it shall remain in the midst of his house,
And consume it with its timber and its stones.
Then the angel who talked with me went 5 forth, and said unto me, Raise now thine eyes, and see what is this that goeth forth.

10. Under the vine] These images denote a state of peace and security ; and if applied to believers in the Saviour, have the most important completion.

CHAP. IV. 1. Returned] It is probable that this vision succeeded the former on the same night. Chap. i. 8, and compare v. 10, with chap. iii. 9. After some time the prophet, overpowered by the vision which had been presented to him, was awakened from his prophetic trance by the angel as from a sleep.

2, 3. A chandelier] This chandelier was of the purest metal, like that in the tabernacle.

6. Not by human] The chandelier represented the temple which was then erecting, and as the chandelier was supplied with oil by the olive-trees, without the labour of men ; so also the temple should not be completed by human aid, but by divine power, and especially the spiritual temple.

7. What art thou] The great mountain was the symbol of the difficulties which Zerubbabel had to surmount ; but he is assured of the most complete success in what he was engaged.—Chief corner-stone] Ps. cxviii. 22. Matt. xxi. 42. This passage, from the connexion, limits the sense of the terms 'head-stone,' or 'chief stone,' and can only signify the stone which completed the structure.

8—10. The word of Jehovah] It should seem that the voice of God was immediately addressed to the prophet, and he spoke as follows, confirming what the angel had said, in explaining the vision.—Day of small things] See Ezra iii. 11—13.—These seven are] The prophet inquired, 'What are those seven pipes and lamps ?' And the answer is, They represent the seven eyes, or the perfect oversight and providence of God. Compare 2 Chron. xvi. 9.

11—13. The two olive-trees] The prophet puts two questions, the one respecting the olive-trees, and the other respecting two branches which hung over the bowl, and emptied their oil into it. He is informed that these denoted 'two sons of oil,' or two persons anointed with oil, Joshua and Zerubbabel. Though fully satisfied that this vision had respect to the temple then building, and to Joshua and Zerubbabel, as chief instruments, yet the whole was typical of another temple, another priest and governor, and designed to show the complete triumph of our Lord over difficulties.

CHAP. V. 2—4. A flying-roll] The visions of this prophet have all hitherto been consoling ; but now he shows the judgments of God on thieves and unjust persons. The flying-roll of parchment, like Ezekiel's, chap. ii. 9, 10, was full of curses for such characters ; it was large, and in the act of flying, to show both the magnitude and celerity of the evils impending.

6 And I said, What is it? And he said, This is an ephah which goeth forth. He said moreover, This shows the "iniquity" of the whole land. And, behold, a talent of lead was lifted up, and "behold" a woman sat within the ephah. And he said, This is wickedness. And he cast her within the ephah; and he cast the weight of lead upon the mouth thereof. Then I raised mine eyes, and looked; and behold, two women went forth, and the wind was in their wings; for they had wings as the wings of a stork: and they lifted up the ephah between the earth and the heavens. Then said I to the angel who talked with me, Whither do these bear the ephah? And he said unto me, To build it a house in the land of Shinar: and it shall be established, and set there upon its base.

CHAPTER VI.

Vision of the four chariots; and by the crowns of Joshua is shown the temple and kingdom of Christ the Branch.

1 AND again I raised mine eyes, and looked; and behold, four chariots went forth from between two mountains; and the mountains were mountains of brass. To the first chariot were red horses; and to the second chariot black horses; and to the third chariot white horses; and to the fourth chariot spotted bay horses. Then I spoke, and said to the angel who talked with me, 5 What are these, my lord? And the angel answered and said to me, These are four spirits of the heavens, who go forth from standing before the Lord of the whole earth. The black horses which are there go forth into the north country; and the white go forth after them; and the spotted go forth into the south country.

And the bay went forth, and sought to go, even to walk to and fro through the earth: and he said, Go hence, walk to and fro through the earth. And they walked to and fro through the earth. Then he cried to me, and spoke to me, saying, See those that go toward the north country have quieted my spirit in the north country.

And the word of Jehovah came unto me, 9 saying, Take of those of the captivity, from the families of Hildai, Tobijah, and Jedaiah; and thou shalt go on the same day, and shalt enter into the house of Josiah, the son of Zephaniah, who have come from Babylon. And thou shalt take silver and gold, and make crowns; and shalt set one upon the head of Joshua, the son of Jose-dech, the high-priest. And thou shalt speak 12 unto him, saying,

Thus speaketh Jehovah of hosts, saying, Behold! the man, whose name is The BRANCH;

Even he shall branch up out of his place, And he shall build the temple of Jehovah: Even he shall build the temple of Jehovah; 13 And he himself shall receive the glory; And shall sit and rule upon his throne; And he shall be a priest upon his throne: And the counsel of peace shall be between both of them.

And there shall be crowns for "Hildai", and for Tobijah, and for Jedaiah, and for

6. This is an ephah] A vessel in the form of an ephah, but much more capacious, as it could contain a woman.—The iniquity] This reading of the versions is preferred, because it is definite, and is explained by what follows.

7. Talent of lead] About 1500 ounces.—A woman sat] When the heavy lid was removed, he saw the woman that sat within it.—(v) Versions.

8. This is wickedness] Or the symbol of it, in this vision.—Cast her] That is, obliged her to contract herself within it.

9. Two women] These appear to be mere agents to complete the symbolical vision; and as they had wings, they could carry the ephah with speed to its appointed place.

11. To build it a house] A mansion for its abode and continuance, and where the woman denoting wickedness shall be imprisoned. The meaning of the vision seems to be that the Babylonian captivity had happened on account of the wickedness of the people; and that a like dispersion would befall them, if they relapsed into like crimes. Thus the whole chapter will be an awful admonition, that multiplied curses, dispersion, and captivity would be the punishment of national guilt.

CHAP. VI. 1.—8. Four chariots] The two mountains of brass are not improbably thought to denote God's immutable decrees and purposes, by which he governs the earth. His righteousness is like the great mountains, Ps. xxxvii. 6. The horses are designed to show the different empires, which had, did, or should exist, as they would affect the interests of God's people. Nothing is said of the red horses, which might denote the bloody Assyrian empire, ver. 2, because this had now passed away. The black horses seemed to denote the Persian empire, which had subdued the Chaldeans, whose country lay to the north of Judea, and which event had quieted God's spirit with respect to Chaldea.

The white horses denote the Macedonian empire, which like the Persian conquered the Chaldeans. The spotted bay horses represent the Roman empire, with its various forms of government, which penetrated into the same countries, and which could not be restrained within any moderate bounds. These sought to go to and fro through the earth.

10. Hildai] Besides Hildai, Tobijah, and Jedaiah, take some of their sons, and go to the house of Josiah, &c. This man was probably a worker in gold and silver.

12. Even he shall] By this version Joshua is not called the Branch; but on putting the crown on his head, the prophet foretells the coming of Messiah, whom former prophets had represented as a branch from the root of David. In this view we have a prophecy made to Joshua, as chap. iii. 8; and the very language supports and limits it to this sense. For how could it be said of Joshua, 'he shall grow and branch out, &c.' He had already sprung up and branched forth.—Shall build the] As they were now engaged in building the material temple, God takes occasion to predict the coming of Messiah, who should build the spiritual temple, the church.

13. Even he shall] This work peculiarly belongs to him, and he himself shall receive the glory of accomplishing it.—A priest upon his throne] In him the priestly and royal dignities shall be united. We are sure that this never was the case in reference to Joshua; but in respect to our Lord it is fulfilled.—Between both of them] Or 'between these two.' Calvin, Poole, Gill, and others, consider that these two, or 'both of them,' refer to things and not persons; to the union and harmony of the two offices in the person of our Lord, by which our sin is expiated, and our enemies subdued, which constitute the essence of the gospel.

14. There shall be crowns] For the persons who had

'Josiah," the son of Zephaniah, for a memorial in the temple of Jehovah. And this shall come to pass, if ye will diligently hearken to the voice of Jehovah, your God, they that are far off shall come and build in the temple of Jehovah; and ye shall know that Jehovah of hosts hath sent me.

CHAPTER VII.

The captives inquire respecting fasting, whom the prophet reproves, and states that their sin was the cause of their captivity.

- 1 And it came to pass in the fourth year of the king Darius, that the word of Jehovah came unto Zechariah, on the fourth day of the ninth month, even in Chisleu; When they had sent to the house of God, She-rezer and Regem-melech, and his men, to
- 2 entreat the face of Jehovah; And to speak to the priests who were in the house of Jehovah of hosts, and to the prophets, saying, Shall I weep in the fifth month, separating myself, as I have done these so many years?
- 4 And the word of Jehovah of hosts came to me, saying, Speak unto all the people of the land, and to the priests, saying, When ye fasted and mourned in the fifth and seventh month, even those seventy years, did
- 6 ye indeed fast unto me, even to me? And when ye ate, and when ye drank, did not ye eat to yourselves, and drink to yourselves?
- 7 Are not those the words which Jehovah proclaimed by the former prophets, when Jerusalem abode still and prospered; and her cities round about her, and the south and the plain were inhabited?
- 8 And the word of Jehovah came unto Zechariah, saying, Thus speaketh Jehovah of hosts, saying,
- 9 Execute true judgment, And show kindness and mercy one to another; And the widow, and the fatherless, [other;
- 10 The stranger, and the poor oppress not, Neither imagine evil in your heart Every man against his brother.
- 11 But they refused to hearken, been witnesses of what had now been predicted; and these should be laid up in the temple as a memorial of this prophecy.—(v) Syr.—Ibid.

15. And thus shall come] With Houbigant I have transposed the last clause, in order to give the sense more clearly.

CHAP. VII. 2, 3. They had sent] The nominative of the verb 'people' is implied. Sherezer, Regem-melech, and others were sent to offer sacrifices on the altar, and to entreat the face of God or his favour towards his people; and to propose to the priests and prophets a question of much importance, 'shall I weep in the fifth month,' &c. God had appointed certain days of humiliation and fasting, which they had been wont to observe; but in their exile, the leaders of the people had appointed four others; one in the fourth month, in memory of the wall of Jerusalem being broken down: a second in the fifth month, in memory of the temple being burnt, Jerem. lii. 6—12; a third in memory of Gedaliah being slain, in the seventh month, Jerem. xli. 2; and a fourth in the tenth, in memory of the commencement of the siege of Jerusalem. That of the fifth month was most strictly kept; but as the temple was now rebuilding,

And pulled away the shoulder, And stopped their ears, so as not to hear. Yea, they make their hearts as an adamant, 12 Lest they should hear the law, and the words

Which Jehovah of hosts sent by his spirit, Through the ministry of the former prophets: [of hosts.

Hence was there great wrath from Jehovah Therefore it came to pass that 13 As I called and they would not hear; So they called, and I would not hear, Saith Jehovah of hosts. But I scattered them as with a whirlwind, 14 Among all the nations whom they knew not. Thus the land was desolate after them, So that no man passed through, nor returned: For they made a pleasant land a desolation.

CHAPTER VIII.

The restoration of Jerusalem; the temple through God's favour will be completed; instead of fasting will be joy and rejoicing.

Also the word of Jehovah of hosts came 1 to me, saying, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts; 2 I was jealous for Zion with great jealousy, And I was jealous for her with great fury. Thus saith Jehovah, "God of hosts;" 3 I have returned unto Zion, And I will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: And Jerusalem shall be called a city of truth; And the mount of Jehovah of hosts, the Thus saith Jehovah of hosts; [holy mount. 4 Old men and old women shall yet dwell In the streets of Jerusalem, [very age. Even the man with his staff in his hand for And the streets of the city shall be full 5 Of boys and girls playing there. 'Thus saith Jehovah of hosts; 6 Though it be wonderful in the eyes Of the residue of this people in those days, Shall it also be wonderful in mine eyes, Saith Jehovah of hosts? Thus saith Jehovah of hosts; [land, 7 Behold, I will save my people from the east was it proper to observe it any longer? The prophet answers, by first stating the nature of acceptable fasts, and the causes of the evils which they had suffered; and then in the 8th chapter observes, that these days should be kept, not as fasts, but as days of thanksgiving.

6. When ye ate] When ye offered sacrifices, after which ye feasted, did ye not in this religious act regard yourselves more than God?

7. By the former prophets] Perhaps referring to Isa. lviii. 6, Amos v. 24. &c. What they said, and the disobedience of the people, is related in the remaining part of the chapter.

11. Pulled away] Or, withdrew the shoulder, as beasts that refuse the yoke. Compare Nehem. ix. 29; Hos. iv. 16. —Stopped] Or made heavy their ears, &c. They refused to hear what the prophets said.

CHAP. VIII. 2—5. I was jealous] See chap. i. 14, and note. The idiom of the original is followed here, because of its parallelism in the next line. The following verses contain the promise of a great increase of inhabitants.—(a) MSS.

6—8. Wonderful in mine eyes] Though some who

- And from the land of the setting sun.
 8 And I will bring them, and they shall dwell in Jerusalem;
 And they shall be my people, and I will be their God,
 In truth and in righteousness.
 9 Thus saith Jehovah of hosts; let your hands be strong, ye that heard in these days these words by the mouth of the prophets, on the day when was laid the foundation of the house of Jehovah of hosts, even the temple that it might be rebuilt.
 10 For before those days
 There was no hire for men nor hire for beast;
 And to him that went out or came in
 There was no peace, because of distress;
 For I set all men one against another.
 11 But now I will not be as in former days
 Unto the residue of this people, saith Jehovah of hosts.
 12 For the seed shall prosper, the vine yield its fruit,
 And the ground shall yield its increase,
 And the heavens shall yield their dew;
 And the residue of this people
 I will cause to possess all these things.
 13 And it shall come to pass that
 As ye were a curse among the nations,
 O house of Judah, and house of Israel;
 So will I save you, and ye shall be a blessing.
 Fear not, but let your hands be strong.
 14 For thus saith Jehovah of hosts;
 According as I purposed to punish you,
 When your fathers provoked me to wrath,
 Saith Jehovah of hosts, and repented not;
 15 So again have I purposed in these days
 To do good unto Jerusalem,
 And to the house of Judah: fear ye not.
 16 These are the things which ye shall do;
 Speak ye every man truth to his neighbour;

 Every man against his neighbour:

beheld the city of Jerusalem, mostly yet in ruins, and the people very few, might doubt and wonder at what they heard; yet could this be wonderful in God's eyes, who saw what would certainly be hereafter.

10. No recompense] No fruit of their labours, from God's curse on the produce of the ground. See Haggai i. 6—11.

11—15. As in former days] As favourable as I was to your pious fathers. God would bless them in their basket and store, and would fulfil his purposes of love and kindness towards them.

16. True and just] It is clear that שליש here signifies such judgment as tends to secure peace, which is just judgment. Lowth remarks, from the first hemistich, that the promises made to the Jews after the captivity were conditional.

19. The fast of the] Here an answer is returned to the inquiry respecting the fasts. See note, ver. 4, chap. vii.

21. Entreat the face] To supplicate the favour of Jehovah.—Will I go also] Each one shall thus speak, and readily embrace the invitation given.

And love not a false oath:

For all these things do I hate, saith Jehovah.

And the word of Jehovah of hosts came 18 unto me, saying, Thus saith Jehovah of 19 hosts; The fast of the fourth month, and the fast of the fifth, and the fast of the seventh, and the fast of the tenth, shall be to the house of Judah joy and gladness, and cheerful feasts; but love ye truth and peace.

Thus saith Jehovah of hosts; 20

Yet shall there many people come,
 And the inhabitants of many cities:

And the inhabitant of one city 21

Shall go to those of another, saying,
 Let us go speedily to entreat the face of Jehovah; [also.

And to seek Jehovah of hosts will I go
 And many people and strong nations shall 22
 come

To seek Jehovah of hosts in Jerusalem,
 And to entreat the face of Jehovah.

Thus saith Jehovah of hosts; 23

In those days, ten men shall take hold
 From among all the languages of the nations,
 They shall even take hold of the skirt of a Jew,

Saying, We will go with you:

For we have heard that God is with you.

CHAPTER IX.

God defendeth his church; Zion exhorted to rejoice at the coming of Christ; promises of victory and defence.

THE prophecy of the word of Jehovah: 1

On the land of Hadrach and Damascus shall it rest;

For Jehovah hath an eye over men,
 And over all the tribes of Israel; [by;
 And on Hamath also which bordereth there- 2
 And on Tyre and Sidon though very wise.

Though Tyre hath built for herself a fort- 3

And heaped up silver as the dust, [ress,

And fine gold as the mire of the streets;

Behold! Jehovah will cast her out, 4

And he will smite her power in the sea;

And she shall be devoured by fire.

Ashkelon shall see it, and shall fear; 5

23. Skirt of a Jew] This gesture denotes to seek assistance and protection. See Is. iii. 6; iv. 1, &c. 1 Sam. xv. 32. From the 19th verse to this, we have promises of a great accession of converts to the Jewish church, and to the number of christian disciples which the Jewish preachers made, when the word of the Lord went forth from Jerusalem.

CHAP. IX. 1. The prophecy of] Mede contends that the last six chapters belong to the prophet Jeremiah, as is said, Matt. xxvii. 9; and being found after the return from captivity, Zechariah added them to his own; but it is not probable that the Jews would ascribe them to a wrong author, when there could be no motive to induce them to do so.—Of Hadrach] The name of a valley near Damascus.

4. Smite her power] Though these cities had been nearly destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar, it should seem that they had recovered their strength and were now rising to their wonted power and greatness. Tyra was subdued by Alexander, and its power and wealth destroyed, as Sidon had been by Ochus, king of Persia. Damascus, Hamath, As-

- Gaza also shall see it, and be greatly pained ;
 And Ekron, because her hope is put to shame ;
 And the king shall perish from Gaza,
 And Ashkelon shall not be inhabited :
 6 And a spurious race shall dwell in Ashdod,
 And I will cut off the pride of the Philistines. [mouth, 7 And I will take away his blood out of his
 And his abominations from between his teeth :
 And he also shall belong to our God,
 And he shall be as a ruler in Judah,
 And Ekron shall become as a Jebusite.
 8 And I will camp about my house with an army,
 So that none shall pass through or return ;
 Nor an oppressor pass through them any more :
 For now have I seen with mine eyes.
 9 Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion ;
 Shout, O daughter of Jerusalem :
 Behold ! thy king cometh unto thee :
 He is the righteous one, and a 'Saviour,' Humble and riding upon an ass,
 Even upon a colt, the foal of an ass.
 10 And I will cut off the chariot from Ephraim,
 And the horse from Jerusalem,
 And the battle-bow shall be cut off :
 And he shall speak peace unto the nations :
 And his dominion shall be from sea to sea,
 And from the river to the ends of the earth.
 11 As for thee also, by the blood of thy covenant
 I have sent forth thy prisoners from the pit
 In which there was no water.
 12 Turn to the strong-hold, ye prisoners of hope ; [ble to 'you.'
 Even to-day I declare that I will restore doubt 13 For I have bent Judah for myself,

I have filled the bow with Ephraim ;
 And I will raise up thy sons, O Zion,
 Against thy sons, O Greece, [man,
 And make thee as the sword of a mighty
 And Jehovah shall be seen over them, 14
 And his arrow shall go forth as the lightning : [pet,
 And the Lord Jehovah shall blow the trumpet
 And go forth with whirlwinds of the south.
 Jehovah of hosts shall defend them ; 15
 And they shall devour, and subdue with sling-stones ; [wine ;
 And they shall drink and shout as through
 And they shall be filled as bowls,
 As the corners of the altar.
 And Jehovah, their God, will save them, 16
 In that day he will save his people as a flock :
 For trophies shall be set up on their land.
 For how great is their prosperity, 17
 How great their beauty !
 The harvest maketh glad the young men,
 And the vintage giveth joy to the maidens.

CHAPTER X.

God must be sought and not idols ; and as he visited his flock for sin, so he will save and restore them.

Ask of Jehovah the spring-rain in its 1 season :
 Jehovah will make ready the lightnings, 17
 And give you abundance of rain,
 And to every man the herb in the field.
 Surely the images spoke vanity, 2
 And the diviners saw falsehood ;
 They told false dreams, they comforted in vain :
 Therefore were they removed as a flock ;
 They were afflicted, because they had no shepherd.

kelon, and Gaza must have suffered much in the contest with Alexander, and in the wars which followed among his successors.

6. A spurious race] See note, Deut. xxiii. 2. That is, persons sprung from various nations.

7. His blood out of] The idolatrous rites of the Philistines shall cease.—And shall be as a ruler] Some of them shall become proselytes to the Jewish religion, and be incorporated with them. See Josephus, Ant. xiii. 15, 4.

8. I will camp] This probably refers to the protection afforded to this city by Alexander. God by him secured it, and for a season prevented any oppressor passing through it.

9. Rejoice greatly] Zion is called on to rejoice, not only because God would defend her, but because he was about to fulfil his promise in sending king Messiah, whose dignity and personal graces are described, Matt. xxi. 5 ; John xii. 15.—Riding on an ass] As horses were used in war, Christ by this action showed the peaceable and spiritual nature of his kingdom.—(v) Versions.

10. Chariot from Ephraim] Those of the ten tribes who had returned may be meant by Ephraim ; and the sense may be, that Ephraim and Judah should not engage in war to spread Messiah's kingdom ; but their spiritual king shall go forth by his apostles and speak peace to the nations, converting them by the gospel to himself.

11. As for thee also] The feminine pronoun limits this address to the 'daughter of Zion.'—Blood of thy] The covenant made with Israel at Horeb was ratified by blood ; and the people were sprinkled with it, Exod. xxiv. 6—8.—Sent forth thy prisoners] Those belonging to thee. This refers to their recent deliverance from Babylon, where the sons of Zion had been confined as in a prison. Deep, dry pits were frequently used as prisons in the east, Jer. xxxviii. 6.

12. To the strong-hold] To Jerusalem which was now rebuilt, and in some degree fortified.—Prisoners of hope] Prisoners, but enjoying the assured hope of release, arising from the divine promise. The prophet addresses those of his nation, who had not yet returned to their city and country.—I will restore] Double blessings, give thee abundance.

13. Have bent Judah] God will make use of Judah and Ephraim, as his instruments of punishment to the Greek power, set up by Alexander.

14—16. Seen over them] God will animate them to oppose and conquer the troops of Antiochus.—Trophies] Monuments commemorating the victories obtained, and the blessings conferred. The term adopted gives the sense, מַצֵּבֹת, whether we understand 'crowned stones,' or 'stones separated and consecrated.'

17. How great is their] The affixes refer to people mentioned in the foregoing verse.

CHAP. X. 2. The images spoke] By their false prophets and priests. What is said must refer to the Israelites before their captivity.

- 3 Mine anger was kindled against the shep-
And I punished the he-goats : [herds,
But Jehovah of hosts hath visited
His flock, the house of Judah,
And made them as his goodly horse in war.
- 4 From them shall be the corner stone,
From them the nail, from them the battle-bow ; [ther.
From them shall go forth every ruler toge-
5 And they shall be as brave men
Treading down their enemies in battle.
Like the mire of the streets :
And they shall fight ; for Jehovah shall be with them,
And the riders on horses shall be confounded.
- 6 And I will strengthen the house of Judah,
And the house of Joseph I will save ;
And I will settle them, for I tenderly regard them : [moved them afar off :
And they shall be as though I had not re-For I am Jehovah their God, and will hear
them.
- 7 And Ephraim shall be as a mighty man.
And their heart shall rejoice as through wine :
And their children shall see it, and rejoice ;
Their heart shall exult in Jehovah.
- 8 I will hiss for them, and gather them ;
Surely I have redeemed them :
And they shall increase as they once increased.
- 9 For I have sowed them among the peoples :
And they shall remember me in far countries ; [return.
And they shall live with their children, and
- 10 And I will bring them from the land of Egypt,
And from Assyria will I gather them ;
And I will bring them to the land of Gilead and Lebanon ;
And room shall not be found for them.

And he shall pass through the sea distress- 11
ing it,
And shall smite the waves in the sea,
And all the depths of the river shall be dried up : [down,
And the pride of Assyria shall be brought
And the sceptre of Egypt shall depart.
And I will strengthen them in Jehovah ; 12
And in his name they shall walk, saith Jehovah.

CHAPTER XI.

The destruction of Jerusalem foretold ; the staves of Beauty and Bands are broken, to denote that the unbelieving Jews were rejected.

OPEN thy doors, O Lebanon, 1
That the fire may devour thy cedars.
Howl, fir tree, because the cedar is fallen ; 2
Because the goodly ones are destroyed :
Howl, O ye oaks of Bashan ;
Because the fenced forest is felled.
The howling voice of the shepherds is heard, 3
Because their glory is destroyed :
The roaring voice of young lions is heard,
Because the pride of Jordan is destroyed.
Thus saith Jehovah, my God ; 4
Feed the flock given up to slaughter ;
Whose possessors slay them, and hold them- 5
selves not guilty :
And each one of those who sell them, saith,
Blessed be Jehovah, for I am rich :
And their own shepherds spare them not.
Surely I will no longer spare 6
The inhabitants of the land, saith Jehovah ;
But, behold, I will deliver up the men,
Every one into the hand of his neighbour,
And into the hand of his king :
And they shall crush the land to pieces,
And I will not deliver out of their hand.
So I fed the flock given up to slaughter, 7 because of the poor of the flock. And I

3. Visited his flock] He had cut off most of their wicked rulers, but had preserved his flock in a foreign land, and would increase their power as a nation.

4. From them shall be] These metaphorical terms seem to denote, that whatever was necessary to restore the political edifice, should be found among them. Dathe renders, 'leaders, prefects, troops, and governors ;' and these are doubtless meant. See Judges xx. 2 ; Is. xix. 13 ; xxii. 23, and note ; lx. 17.

5. Shall be confounded] They shall again vanquish their enemies ; which they frequently did after this period.

6—8. Tenderly regard them] Many of the ten tribes doubtless came to their own land at different times ; and together with Judah enjoyed prosperity, and were greatly increased in their number and power.

9. Live with, &c.] Both they and their offspring shall be preserved.

10. And I will bring] In the time of the prophet many abode in the countries in which they had been long settled ; and I suppose that for a good while after this period the land was but thinly inhabited ; but was gradually peopled, by the return of some from Egypt, and others from Assyria and Babylon, &c.

11. And he shall] There is an allusion to the passage of the Red Sea, and the Jordan.—And the pride of Assyria] As these had been the enemies of Israel, they are put for any enemies which they might have after their restoration.

CHAP. XI. 1—3. Cedars, fir-trees, oaks] Under these emblems the great and powerful are represented ; and by the fall of these cedars, their subversion and ruin are predicted. Compare Ezek. xvii. 8—23 ; Jer. xlix. 19. These verses may refer to the havoc made among them by Epiphanes ; or rather, from what follows, to the destruction by the Romans.

4. Feed the flock] This is an address to the prophet, who was to feed and instruct a people over whom destruction impended.

5. Possessors slay them] The Romans took and sold immense numbers of Jews as slaves, and it seems their purchasers did not set much value on them.

6. I will no longer] Here the prophet expresses clearly what he had said figuratively in the preceding verse.—Of his neighbour] There shall be discord and oppression among themselves ; and this shall bring them into the hand of the king or power which then rules over them.

7. So I fed] He obeyed the command of Jehovah, verse 4.—Beauty] To denote how beautiful the land would have been if the people had obeyed their God.—Bands] To signify the union which should have subsisted among the whole body of the people

- took unto me two crooks; the one I called 8 Beauty, and the other I called Bands. And I fed the flock, and removed three shepherds in one month; and my soul loathed them, 9 and their soul also abhorred me. Then said I, I will feed you no longer: that which dieth, let it die: and that which is to be cut off, let it be cut off; and let the rest eat every one the flesh of another.
 10 And I took my crook, Beauty, and cut it asunder, to break my covenant which I had 11 made with all the people. And it was broken in that day: and thus the poor of the flock who observed me, knew that this was the 12 word of Jehovah. And I said unto them, if ye think good, give me my price; and if not, forbear. So they weighed for me thirty 13 pieces of silver. And Jehovah said unto me, Cast it into "the house of" the potter:
 a goodly price at which I am prized by them.
 And I took the thirty pieces of silver, and 14 cast them into the house of the potter "as Jehovah commanded me." Then I cut asunder mine other crook, Bands, to break the brotherhood between Judah and Israel.
 15 And Jehovah said unto me, Take unto thee yet the instruments of a foolish shep-16 herd. For lo, I will raise up a shepherd
 in the land;
 Of that which is cut off he shall take no account;
 That which is young he shall not seek,
 And that which is hurt he shall not heal:
 That which standeth he shall not sustain;
 But the flesh of the fat ones shall he eat,
 When he shall have broken their hoofs.
 17 Wo to the worthless shepherd that leaveth
 the flock! [right eye:
 The sword shall be on his arm, and on his

His arm shall surely be withered,
 And his right eye shall be utterly darkened.

CHAPTER XII.

Jerusalem a cup of trembling, and a burdensome stone to her enemies; Judah restored, and Jerusalem brought to repentance.

- THE prophecy of the word of Jehovah. 1
 Concerning Israel saith Jehovah, [earth,
 Who stretched out heaven and founded the
 And formed the spirit of man within him:
 Behold! I will make Jerusalem 2
 A cup of trembling to all people round about, [saalem.
 And Judah shall be a fortress about Jeru-
 And in that day will I make Jerusalem 3
 A burdensome stone to all people:
 All that are burdened with it shall be crushed, [against her.
 Though all nations of the earth be gathered
 In that day, saith Jehovah, I will strike 4 Every horse with terror, and his rider with madness; [Judah,
 But I will open mine eyes on the house of
 When I strike every horse of the people with blindness. [heart,
 And the leaders of Judah shall say in their 5
 There is strength to the inhabitants of Jerusalem
 Through Jehovah of hosts, their God.
 In that day will I make the leaders of Judah 6
 As a hearth of fire among the wood,
 And as a torch of fire in a sheaf;
 And they shall devour all the people around,
 On the right hand and on the left:
 And Jerusalem shall yet be inhabited in her place.* [old,
 Jehovah will save the tents of Judah as of 7
 That the glory of David's house may not increase,

8. And removed three] The prophet speaks of doing what he foretells. Whether three are put for many, or for a definite number, cannot be determined.

10. To break my] To show my agreement to be their shepherd was now at an end.—All the people] All the Jewish people. See Joel ii. 6, and note.

11. Thus the poor] The common people who observed this action of the prophet, understood it to be symbolical, and to represent God's conduct towards them.

12. Give me my price] Or, my wages. Rate my labours as a true shepherd. And they rated them contemptuously, giving me only thirty shekels of silver, the price of a slave, Exod. xxi. 32.

13. A goodly price] Jehovah calls the price of his prophet his own price, and commands that it should not be accepted, but given to another.—Then I took the] The prophet threw them to the potter, as a recompense fitter for his labour than his own.—In the house] The text as given by the evangelist is followed, as it is supported by manuscripts, and the last clause by the Arabic version.

14. Other crook, Bands] By this action the prophet showed that, as they had despised his endeavours to unite them, they should now be left to a spirit of discord, and one man set against another. No transaction occurred to the prophet or to the people after their return from Babylon to which this can be applied, unless to their treatment of the great prophet, our Lord, and to what followed, the ruin of their state, Matt. xxvii. 7. In this view the reference to it by the evangelist is just and proper

15—17. A foolish shepherd] Such as his iron crook and scrip. &c. What is said in these verses represents the spirit and conduct of the leaders, both in church and state; and shows that their punishment would be signal, as in fact it was.

CHAP. XII. 2. To all people] The surrounding nations now despised Jerusalem, but a time would soon come when they would be afraid of her.—And Judah] With the Vulg. the first by is omitted; and with this omission the sense given naturally arises.

3. A burdensome stone] Jerom has explained this, by informing us that it was an ancient custom, and then observed in the cities, towns, and villages, to have large round stones, which the young men took up as an exercise of their strength, some raising them as high as the knee, some as high as the breast, and others above the head, with their arms.

4. In that day] This refers to the growing power of the restored Jews, and to their success against the surrounding nations.—Open mine eyes] Look on, and regard, and protect the house of Judah.

6. As a hearth of fire] These metaphors show that they would prevail and destroy many of their enemies; and the Maccabees did actually do so.—(o Jerusalem) Sept. Arab. MSS.

7. May not increase] For the sense given, see the Syriac. The people of Judah in general should share in the honour of conquering their enemies, as well as the house of David, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

CHAPTER XIII.

- Nor the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem above that of Judah.
- 8 In that day Jehovah will defend
The inhabitants of Jerusalem ;
And he that is feeble among them
In that day shall be as David ;
And the house of David shall be as angels,
Even as the angel Jehovah before them.
- 9 And it shall come to pass in that day,
That I will seek to destroy all the nations
Which come up against Jerusalem.
- 10 And I will pour upon the house of David,
And upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem,
A spirit of grace and of supplications :
And they shall look on 'him' whom they pierced,
And they shall mourn for this deed,
As one mourneth for an only son,
And shall be in bitterness on account of it,
As one is in bitterness for a first born.
- 11 In that day shall be great mourning in Jerusalem,
As the mourning of Hadad-rimmon,
In the valley of Megiddon.
- 12 And the land shall mourn, every family
apart ; [apart ;
The family of David apart, and their wives
The family of Nathan apart, and their wives
apart ; [apart ;
- 13 The family of Levi apart, and their wives
The family of Simeon apart, and their wives apart ;
- 14 All the families which remain,
Every family apart, and their wives apart.

8. As angels] Ps. viii. 3, there is a climax intended, and to render 'God,' and then 'as the angel,' is certainly an anti-climax.—As the angel] That angel who anciently went before the Israelites. This language is strongly hyperbolic, and can only mean they shall be valiant and successful.

9. I will seek to destroy] That is, he will seek them out for destruction. They shall not escape, for what he seeks he will find.

10. A spirit of grace] That is, the Holy Spirit, as the author of gracious dispositions freely bestowed. This was fulfilled on the day of Pentecost, Acts ii. 17, 18.—House of David] Or some of that house, and on many who resided in Jerusalem, who were led to believe on and obey the Saviour.—Look on him] Look with confidence and respect, as the word signifies ; on him whom they had pierced, by crucifying him. In him they shall trust for salvation.—Mourn for this deed] Mourn for having pierced him. The affix refers to their sin in crucifying the Lord of glory ; for they had no need to mourn for him, who had triumphed over death, and was now enthroned at the right hand of the Majesty on high ; but had just cause to mourn for the wicked deed of rejecting him so long, and joining to cut him off from among men.—(v) MSS. and Fathers.

11. In Jerusalem] Among those brought to repentance, as there was when the good king Josiah was slain. See 2 Chron. xxxv. 22, &c.

12—14. Family of David apart] Some think that those mentioned were the collateral branches of David's family, some of which might then live and mourn apart. Comp. Luke iii. 26 ; xxxix. 31.

CHAP. XIII. 1. Shall a fountain] The time is mentioned when this was to be fulfilled ; and if the piercing in the 10th verse of the former chapter, refer to the crucifixion, this must refer to the same event. The blood of Christ is said to cleanse from all sin ; from the guilt, and from the defile-

And they shall no more be remembered :
And the "false" prophets and impure spirit
I will cause to pass away from the earth.
And it shall be when any shall yet prophesy, 3
Then his father and his mother that begot

For thou speakest lies in the name of Jeho-sied ; [deceive :

Nor shall they wear a rough garment to
But each shall say I am no prophet, 5
I am a man that tiltheth the ground ;
For I have been a servant from my youth.
And one shall say unto him, 6
What are these strokes within thy hands ?
And he shall answer, [of my friends.
Those with which I was stricken in the house
Awake, O sword, against my shepherd 7
And against the man that is my fellow,

ment of it. When our Lord had risen, his command was to preach remission of sins in his name, beginning at Jerusalem ; and the first effects of his death were seen in the conversion of many, and in the establishment of a gospel church, Luke xxiv. 46, 47.

2. Names of idols] As the Jews were not idolaters at that period, דְּרָאִץ is rendered 'earth,' and not 'land,' to show its application to the effects which the gospel produced. For many nations then cast their idols to the moles and to the bats ; and false prophets, and the impure spirit which influenced them, were then exposed.—(a) Versions.

3. Yet prophesy] Pretend to do so ; his own parents shall expose him.—Pierce him] Such will be their zeal for truth that they will disregard the ties of nature, and smite and wound a son when he would seduce them from it.

4. Prophets shall be] By the light of the gospel, many that pretended to foretell coming events, shall be instructed, and made ashamed of their own arts of deception, both among Jews and Gentiles, Acts xvi. 16—18 ; xix. 13—20.

6. Strokes within thy hands] As 'house of friends' is mentioned, the strokes were those made as signs of grief.

7. Awake, O sword] The prophet again returns to the person and sufferings of our Lord. The father thus speaks, calling for the sword of justice to awake against the great shepherd of the flock.—My fellow] There is the same ambiguity in the term 'fellow,' that there is in the original. It may mean 'his intimate friend and associate ;' one engaged in that work which his wisdom had planned from eternity ; or it may signify the man, who is at the same time a divine person, my equal, as enjoying the same nature, see Phil. ii. 5, &c. ; John i. 1, &c.—I will smite the] The reading of the Arabic is not only supported by the Evangelists, but by several copies of the Sept. See Matt. xxvi. 31 ; Mark xiv. 27.—I will turn my] I consider this to mean, I will protect them ; my hand shall be over them as a shield.

- Smith Jehovah of hosts :
 'I will smite' the shepherd and the sheep shall be scattered ;
 And I will turn my hand upon the little 8 And it shall come to pass, [ones.
That in all the land, saith Jehovah,
 Two parts therein shall be cut off and die ;
 But the third part shall be left therein ;
 9 And I will bring the third part through the fire,
 And will refine them as silver is refined,
 And will try them as gold is tried :
 They shall call on my name, and I will hear
 them :
 I will say, They are my people :
 And they shall say, Jehovah is our God.

CHAPTER XIV.

The enemies of Jerusalem destroyed ; singular events foretold ; the knowledge and worship of God to become general.

 And thy spoil shall be divided in the midst

 2 For I will gather all nations against Jeru-
 And the city shall be taken and the houses

 And the women shall be defiled ;
 And half of the city shall go forth into captivity, [cut off from the city.
 But the residue of the people shall not be 3 Then will Jehovah go and fight with those nations
 As when he fighteth in the day of battle.
 4 And his feet shall stand in that day on the mount of Olives,
 Which is before Jerusalem on the east ;
 And the mount of Olives shall be rent
 In the midst thereof, eastward and westward,
 So that there shall be a very great valley ;
 And half of the mountain shall move to the north,
 And the other half of it towards the south.

8. Come to pass] After some time an event of a most awful nature will occur, even the excision of a great part of the Jewish people. The third part left] All the Jews who embraced the gospel, and who did not engage in war against the Romans. These would be exposed to great sufferings, but would be purified by them, and would be owned as God's people.

CHAP. XIV. 1. In the midst of thee] That is, of Jerusalem. This most probably refers to the Roman war, when immense spoil was taken. For many nations served in the Roman army, and when the city was taken it was given up to all the evils here specified.

2. Half shall go] Those who escaped the sword were sold as slaves ; but many still abide in the land, especially the Christian Jews, nor were they cut off from going to and visiting the city in its desolation. If two parts were to be cut off and die, chap. xiii. 8, in all the land, those left must be very few ; and if the half of these were to go into captivity, their number will be still more reduced.

3-5. Then will Jehovah] Josephus informs us that by the earthquake in the days of Uzziah one half of the mountain was broken off from the western side, and having rolled four furlongs towards the eastern side, stopped, so that the roads were choked up. In a similar manner, either by an earthquake or some other means, the valley of the moun-

 In the days of Uzziah, king of Judah :
 And Jehovah my God shall come,
 And all the saints 'with him.'
 And it shall come to pass in that day, 6
 That there shall be no clear light, but obscurity : [Jehovah ;)
 And this shall be one day ; (it is known to 7
 It shall not be day, nor night : yet it shall be
 That at evening-tide there shall be light.
 And it shall come to pass in that day, 8
 That living waters shall go out from Jerusalem ;
 Half of them toward the eastern sea,
 And half of them toward the western sea :
 In summer and in winter shall it be.
 And Jehovah shall be king over all the 9 land : [his name one.
 In that day shall there be one Jehovah, and He will encompass the whole land as a 10 plain,
 From Geba to Rimmon south of Jerusalem :
 And she shall be exalted, and inhabited From Benjamin's gate to the place of the first gate,
 And unto the corner gate,
 And from the tower of Hananeel to the king's wine-presses.
 And men shall dwell therein, [tion ; 11
 And there shall be no longer utter destruc-
 And Jerusalem shall be safely inhabited.
 And this shall be the calamity, 12 Wherewith Jehovah will smite all the people
 That have fought against Jerusalem ;
 Their flesh shall waste as they stand on their feet,

tains, that is, between the mountains on which Jerusalem stood, should be choked up. (v) Vers. MSS.

6, 7. No clear light] From the language used, one would think that the prophet refers to some unusual appearance or phenomenon ; or if we understand this language as figurative, it may denote, that the affairs of the Jews would be for a short season in a most trying state ; it would neither be night nor day with them, but in the end of this period light would break forth.

8. Living waters shall] If by these he meant the gifts and graces of the gospel, then it is intimated that after the distresses before intimated, a time would come when what had been so long foretold, would be accomplished, Ezek. xlvii. 1 ; Joel iii. 18.—In summer] These waters shall flow the year round, in the cold of winter, and during the heat of summer.

9. One Jehovah] They shall own him only and serve him for the displays of his power and grace.

10. Encompass] Afford its signal protection, as a plain is protected by the surrounding mountains.—Geba—Rim-mon] The one was north of Jerusalem, and the other south.
 See Josh. xv. 32 ; xxi. 17.—She shall be] Jerusalem. Her streets and gates shall be restored as formerly. After the destruction of the city by Antiochus this occurred.

12-15. Flesh consume] They shall perish by pestilence,

INTRODUCTION.

MALACHI, the last of the prophets of the Old Testament, lived some time after the temple was rebuilt, chap. iii. 10 :
 and most probably during the period of Nehemiah's government, when the zeal and piety of many had decayed, and the people and priests were guilty of many gross sins. For these the prophet reproves and threatens them ; and then speaks distinctly of the coming of Messiah and of his forerunner, John the Baptist ; until which event they are to observe the law, and look for no more prophets among them.

CHAPTER I.

The prophet complaineth of the ingratitude, contempt of divine worship, and profaneness of the people.

- 1 The prophecy of the word of Jehovah to Israel, by Malachi.
 2 I have loved you, saith Jehovah ;
 But ye have said, Wherein hast thou loved us ? [vah ?
 Was not Esau Jacob's brother, saith Jeho-
 3 Yet I loved Jacob, and I disregarded Esau ;
 And have made his mountains a desolation,
 And his heritage for the serpents of the desert.
 4 Although Edom say, We are impoverished.
 But we will build again the desolate places ;

Thus saith Jehovah of hosts,
 They shall build, but I will throw down ;
 And they shall be called, The border of wickedness, [for ever.
 The people with whom Jehovah is angry
 And your eyes shall see this, and ye shall 5 say, [Israel.
 Jehovah is magnified beyond the border of A son honoureth his father, and a servant 6
 his master :
 If then I be a father, where is my honour ?
 And if I be a master, where is my fear ?
 Saith Jehovah of hosts unto you,
 O priests, who despise my name. [name ?
 But ye say, Wherein have we despised thy

CHAP. I. 2, 3. Yet I loved Jacob God had favoured Jacob and his offspring, the Israelites, far more than Esau and the Edomites. They had a better land, and greater religious privileges.

4. Build again The Edomites had suffered much by the arms of the Babylonians ; but now hoped to recover their former power, and to repair their cities ; but they are threatened with desolation, which was brought on them by Judas and Hyrcanus, for their great wickedness.

5. Beyond the border He showeth his power and justice in other countries as well as in Israel.

6. A son honoureth It is his duty to do so, and nature

- 7 Ye bring polluted food to mine altar ;
Yet ye say, Wherein have we polluted thee ?
In that ye say, The table of Jehovah is contemptible. [not evil ?]
- 8 And if ye bring the blind for sacrifice, is it
And if ye bring the lame and sick, is it not evil ?
Present it now, I pray, unto thy governor ;
Will he be pleased with thee, or accept thee ?
Saith Jehovah of hosts.
- 9 And now, I pray you, beseech the face of
That he may be gracious unto us ; [God
From your hand hath this been ;
And 'shall I accept' any of your persons ?
Would Jehovah of hosts say.
- 10 'Surely' the doors shall be closed against you ; [vain.
Nor shall ye kindle fire on mine altar in I have no pleasure in you, saith Jehovah of
hosts,
Nor will I accept an offering at your hand.
- 11 For from the rising of the sun, unto his setting,
My name shall be great among the nations ;
And in every place shall incense be brought Unto my name, and a pure offering :
For my name shall be great among the na-
Saith Jehovah of hosts. [tions,
- 12 But ye profane it, in that ye say.
The table of Jehovah is polluted ;
And what is offered, its food, is contemptible.
- 13 Ye say also, Behold, what a weariness is it !
And ye have snuffed at it, saith Jehovah of hosts ; [sick ;
And ye brought the torn, and lame, and
And ye have also brought a wheaten-offering : [hovah.
Shall I accept this at your hand ? saith Je-
- 14 But cursed be the deceiver who hath a male in his flock,
And voweth and sacrificeth to Jehovah one diseased :
For I am a great King, saith Jehovah of
hosts,

For my name shall be feared among the nations.

CHAPTER II.

The priests are reproved for unfaithfulness ; and the people for their idolatry, adultery, and infidelity.

- AND NOW, O priests, to you is this com- 1
mand,
If ye will not hear, nor lay it to heart, 2
To give glory unto my name, saith Jehovah of hosts, [blessings :
I will send a curse on you, and curse your Yea, I have cursed them already,
Because none of you layeth it to heart.
Behold, I will corrupt your seed, 3
And scatter dung in your faces,
Even the dung of your solemn feasts ;
And one shall take you away with it.
And ye shall know that I have sent 4
This command unto you,
That my covenant may remain with Levi,
Saith Jehovah of hosts ;
My covenant of life and peace with him ; 5
For I gave it him for the fear wherewith he feared me,
And was dismayed on account of my name.
The law of truth was in his mouth, 6
And iniquity was not found in his lips :
He walked with me in peace and equity,
And did turn many away from iniquity.
For the priest's lips should keep knowledge, 7
And they should seek the law at his mouth :
For he is the messenger of the Lord of hosts.
But ye are departed out of the way ; 8
Ye have caused many to stumble at the law ;
Ye have corrupted the covenant of Levi,
Saith Jehovah of hosts.
Therefore have I also made you 9
Contemptible and base before all the people,
According as ye have not kept my ways,
But have respect to persons in the law.
Have we not all one father ? 10
Hath not one God created us ? [other, Why deal we treacherously one with animpels him to show some respect ; but ye priests, call me father, yet despise me.

7. The table of Jehovah] The altar, Ezek. xli. 22 : xlv.
15, 16. By offering such sacrifices, they, in effect, said that it was contemptible.

8. Unto thy governor] Gifts of this kind were commonly made in the east, and are to this day. Would such a gift be accepted ?

10. Surely the doors] Ye shall not minister to me ; for ye kindle fire on my altar in vain as to propitiating me.
(a) Sept. Arab.

11. Among the nations] A time would come when the levitical priests should be rejected with their offerings ; and the gentile nations called to know, honour, and serve God acceptably.

12-14. Profane it] See Haggai i. 9. By violating the law in offering what was forbidden, they incurred the displeasure of God. See Levit. xxii. 19, &c.

CHAP. II. 2. Your blessings] The portion of the priest is meant. Chap. iii. 10, 11 ; Joel ii. 14. By a dearth this would be diminished.

3. The shoulder belonged to the priest, Levit. vii. 32 ;
Deut. xviii. 3.—Dung. The man was also the priest's.

Deut. xviii. 3 ; but such priests deserved only the dung which it contained.—Take you away] Ye shall be destroyed and cast on a dunghill.

5. My covenant of life] The covenant of the priesthood is intended, which was an honourable and profitable office.

6. The law of truth] Though there is a reference perhaps to Aaron and Phinehas, yet the whole tribe is meant.

7. Should keep] Store up and preserve it for distribution as occasion and circumstances require. The people are to seek the just sense of the law and its application from his mouth.

8. To stumble] To sin, by offering what God had forbidden, and to offend in many other ways.

9. Respect to persons] They favoured the rich and oppressed the poor, see Levit. xix. 15.

10. Have we not] From this verse to verse 16, the prophet censures intermarriages of Israelites with women of another country, which had been forbidden, Deut. vii. 3 ; and also divorces, which seem to have been multiplied for the purpose of contracting these prohibited marriages.—

11. Daughter of a strange god] One sprung from another nation, and addicted to the service of idols. See Deuter. xxxii. 19; Nehem. xiii. 23, &c.

13. Covering the altar] The tears and groans of wives divorced by the priests, and referring to them for decisions.

15. Make one] One man and one woman; 'yet or though he had the residue of the spirit,' that is, all power and wisdom, and could have made more, had his intention been that one man should have many wives, or one woman many husbands.—That he might seek] That parents might feel a proper interest in the education and welfare of their children, and especially mothers, which they could not do when divorced at the caprice of their husbands. Our Lord has prohibited divorce, unless on the ground of adultery.

16. Covereth violence] The meaning is, his second marriage is an act of violence to his former wife.

17. By your words] They justified the wicked, as if their conduct was approved and acceptable to God.

CHAP. III. 1. My messenger] John the Baptist, the forerunner of our Lord, Isa. xl. 2, &c.—The way before me] Before me, as my servant to prepare the people for the coming of my son, who shall act in my name.—The Lord whom] The Lord Messiah, for whom all the pious were anxiously looking.—Messenger of the] He who shall establish a new covenant between me and mankind. The Messenger, or Angel of the covenant, is a phrase no where else found in scripture. It may mean the person by whose intervention a covenant is made, or by whom a covenant proposed by one party is sent to the other. Now the voice of the Angel in whom God's name was, the Israelites were to obey and to do all that God spoke, Exod. xxiii. 29—33; and this angel was with them before the covenant was made with them, Exod. xiv. 19: and the law was ordained by angels, Gal. iii. 19: so that this angel, of whom see note on Isa. lxiii. 9, may be the angel of the covenant here.—God, and an or the angel, are joined close together. Zec. xiii. 8. Gen. xlviii. 16.

2, 3. Refiner's fire] His doctrine shall tend to purify, and shall separate the wicked from the godly.—Sons of Levi] Those who shall minister in their stead, under the new covenant, may be meant, as well as those priests who believed; a great company of whom became obedient to the faith.

4. Offering of Judah] The spiritual offering of those purified by the doctrine and grace of Christ, &c.; for as to those who persist in their crimes, God will punish in a signal manner.

5. Change not] This is added to give assurance that what had been now foretold would be accomplished.

7—12. Even from] In these verses the people are reprehended for withholding the legal tithes and oblations, for which they had been smitten with God's curse; but if they would observe the law, God promises so to bless them that other nations should esteem them as most happy.

- But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee ?
In the tithe and the heave-offering.
- 9 Ye are, indeed smitten with a curse,
For ye have robbed me, even this whole nation.
- 10 Bring ye all the tithes into the store-house,
That there may be food in my house,
And by this now prove me, saith Jehovah

- 13 Your words have been bold against me, Yet ye say, What have we spoken against thee ?
- 14 Ye have said, It is vain to serve God :
And what profit is it that we have kept his ordinance,
And that we have walked mournfully before
Jehovah of hosts ?

Yea, they that work wickedness are set up ;
Yea, they that tempt God have escaped.

In the day which I make, a peculiar treasure :

Before the great and terrible day of Jehovah
come :
That he may turn the heart of fathers with 6
the children,
And the heart of children with their fathers :
Lest I come and smite the land with a curse.

13—15. Your words have] Here God expostulates with the wicked and unbelieving, who accounted all religious services useless ; who vindicated and patronized the proud despisers of God, esteeming those happy who wrought wickedness.

16. Then they who] Here are some who regarded Jehovah amidst the many who neglected and tempted him. They met and conversed with one another, and strengthened one another's hands ; and God promises to regard them, and in a striking manner to honour and distinguish them.

17. Which I make] See Psa. cxviii. 24. Which God will make a signal and peculiar day. Some think that the period referred to, is that of the Roman war.

18. Then shall ye] At that time a special providence shall attend the righteous and watch over them, while the wicked shall be as remarkably cut off.

CHAP. IV. 1. For behold the day] That day which Jehovah will make cometh, and a terrible day will it be to all the ungodly. For they shall be wholly consumed.

2. Sun of righteousness] The Messiah shall reign and shine by his truth and spirit gloriously among his followers ; and his wings, or rays, shall bring health to their souls. This is a beautiful image of our glorious Redeemer, and the effects of his ministry, sufferings, and reign.

3. Tread down] They are said to do what is done for them ; for it is not probable that they would be personally engaged in inflicting miseries upon others.

5. Elijah the prophet] We have the authority of our Lord for saying that this means the baptist, who came in the spirit and power of Elijah. See Luke i. 17. Compare Matt. xi. 14 ; xvii. 10—13.

6. With the children] For this sense of ל see Nold. and Dowl. Note on Luke i. 17.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO

ST. MATTHEW.

INTRODUCTION.

THIS portion of the Holy Scriptures is called the New Testament of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, or more correctly, the New Covenant, and sometimes the Gospel, including the whole doctrine of Christ: Rom. i. 1. 9. Mark xiii. 10, 16, 18. The original import is, 'good news, glad tidings,' and in this sense it is often used: 'The glad tidings of the kingdom,' Matt. iv. 23.; ix. 35. Mark i. 14. By a common figure it denotes, the history of the life, teaching, miracles, death, resurrection, and glory of Christ. In this sense we have four gospels, the holy gospel according to Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John.

Of Matthew we have no certain information, but what we collect from the gospels. He was a native of Galilee, a Jew by birth, and by office a publican or tax-gatherer under the Romans. He was also called Levi, and is said to be the son of Alphaeus, Mark ii. 14; Luke v. 27. When Jesus called him to be his follower, he made a feast and invited his acquaintance, that they might hear the instructions of Jesus. Matthew, with Andrew, Peter, and the two sons of Zebedee, are the only disciples whose call is particularly mentioned. It is uncertain where he laboured after the death of Christ, and when and where he died.

CHAPTER I.

The genealogy of Christ; his conception and birth; his names; Joseph informed in a dream respecting Christ.

- 1 The genealogy and life of JESUS CHRIST, the son of David, the son of Abraham.
- 2 Abraham begot Isaac; And Isaac begot Jacob; and Jacob begot Judah and his brethren; And Judah begot Pharez and Zarah by Tamar; and Pharez begot Hezron, and Hezron begot Ram; And Ram begot Aminadab; and Aminadab begot
- 5 Nashon; and Nashon begot Salmon; And Salmon begot Boaz by Rahab; and Boaz begot Obed by Ruth; and Obed begot
- 6 Jesse; And Jesse begot David the king; and David the king begot Solomon by her who had been the wife of Uriah;
- 7 And Solomon begot Rehoboam; and Rehoboam begot Abijah; and Abijah begot Asa; And Asa begot Jehoshaphat; and Jehoshaphat begot Jehoram; and Jehoram begot Ahaziah; and Ahaziah begot Joash; and Joash begot Amaziah; and Amaziah begot Uzziah;" And Uzziah begot Jotham; and Jotham begot
- 10 Abaz; and Abaz begot Hezekiah; And Hezekiah begot Manasseh; and Manasseh begot Amon; and Amon begot Josiah;
- 11 And Josiah begot Jehoiakim; and Jehoiakim begot Jeconiah and his brethren, about the time of the going away to Babylon: And after the going away to Babylon, 12 Jeconiah begot Salathiel; and Salathiel begot Zerubbabel; And Zerubbabel begot 13 Abiud; and Abiud begot Eliakim; and Eliakim begot Azor; And Azor begot 14 Zadock; and Zadock begot Achim; and Achim begot Eliud; And Eliud begot 15 Eleazar; and Eleazar begot Matthan; and Matthan begot Jacob; And Jacob begot 16 Joseph, the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, who is called the Christ. [So 17 all the generations from Abram to David are fourteen generations; and from David until the going away to Babylon are fourteen generations; and from the going away to Babylon unto Christ are fourteen generations.]

Now the birth of Jesus Christ was thus: 18 When his mother Mary had been espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child by the Holy Spirit. Then Joseph her husband being a righteous 19 man, and not willing to expose her to shame, purposed to divorce her privately. But 20 while he was thinking on these things, behold an angel of the Lord appeared to him in a dream, saying, Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take home Mary thy wife; for her conception is by the Holy Spirit. And she shall bring forth a son, and 21 thou shalt call his name JESUS [SAVIOUR]:

CHAP. I. 1. And life] The idiomatical terms of the text are so rendered, as including both the descent of our Lord and a narrative of his life. This verse is the title of the book.—The son] God had promised to David and Abraham that the Messiah should descend from them.

8. Ahaziah] Compare 1 Chron. iii. 11, 12. It is difficult to account for the omission of these names, unless it has arisen from the negligence of the transcribers. The same remark applies to the 11th verse, with which compare 1 Chron. iii. 16.

12. Jeconiah begot] It appears from Jer. xxii. 30, that Jeconiah outlived his son Salathiel; and as Zerubbabel is called the son of Pedaiah, 1 Chron. iii. 19, some think that he raised up seed to his brother Salathiel.

17. So all the] If the names omitted ver. 8, 11, be inserted, the number of the generations here specified is inaccurate; and Newcome and Pearce consider this verse as a marginal gloss, which, after the names above mentioned had been omitted, was added as a part of the text. Matthew gives the natural genealogy of Joseph, and Luke his civil or legal genealogy.

19. A righteous man] Campbell renders, 'a worthy man.' The term adopted is preferred, as it includes all that is essential in a truly good and pious character; and as it is the usual sense of the original term.—To divorce] This was done by giving a bill of divorce in a private manner; and in this case the dowry was not forfeited.

20. Her conception] The Greek is, 'that which is befor he shall save his people from their sins.

 22 (Now all this was done, so that it was fulfilled which the Lord spoke by the prophet,
 23 saying, Behold, the virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and his name shall be called Emmanuel, which being interpreted 24 is, GOD WITH US). Then Joseph, when he awoke, did as the angel of the Lord had commanded him, and took home his wife:
 25 And he knew her not till she had brought forth her first-born son: and he called his name JESUS.

CHAPTER II.

Magians from the east are directed to Christ by a star; they do obeisance to him; Joseph fleeth into Egypt with Jesus and his mother; Herod slayeth the children and dieth; Joseph returns and dwells at Nazareth.

1 Now after Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea, in the days of Herod, the king, behold, magians from the east country came to Jerusalem, Saying, Where is the newborn king of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east country, and are come to do him homage. When Herod the king heard these things, he was alarmed, and all Jerusalem with him. And having assembled all the chief priests and scribes of the people, he inquired of them where the Christ was to be born. And they said unto him, In Bethlehem of Judea: for thus it is written by the prophet; And thou Bethlehem, in the land of Judah, art by no means the least among the chief cities of Judah; for out of thee shall come a Governor, who shall rule my people Israel. Then Herod, having privately called the magians, learned from them exactly what time the star appeared. And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, Go and search diligently for the young child; and when ye have found him, bring me word, that I also may come and do him homage. When they had heard the king, they departed; and, lo, the star, which they saw in the east country, went before them, till it came and stood over the place where the young child was. And when 10 they saw the star, they rejoiced with very great joy.

And when they had come into the house, 11 they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down and did him homage: and when they had opened their treasures, they presented to him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh. And being warned of 12 God in a dream not to return to Herod, they went back into their own country by another way. And when they had gone 13 back, behold, an angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a dream, saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and abide there until I speak unto thee: for Herod will seek the young child, to destroy him. Then he 14 arose, and took the young child and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt; And abode there until the death of Herod: 15 so that it was fulfilled which the Lord spoke by the prophet, saying, Out of Egypt have I called my son.

Then Herod, when he saw that he was 16 deceived by the magians, was greatly enraged; and he sent and slew all the male-children that were in Bethlehem, and in all its borders, from two years old and under, according to the time which he had exactly learned from the magians. Then was fulfilled gotten or formed in her; the sense of which the word adopted clearly gives.

22. So that it was fulfilled] That now expresses the consequence or event only, and is equivalent to 'so that,' appears from many passages. See Matt. xxiii. 26; Luke ix. 45, &c.

23. The virgin] Compare Is. vii. 14.—His name shall be] There is some variety in manuscripts and versions both here and in the prophet; but the sense is the same whatever reading be adopted. See note, Isa. vii. 14.

CHAP. II. 1. What is here related happened some time after the birth of our Lord, at least above a year after. Comp. ver. 16 and note.—King Herod] This was Herod the Great, the first Jewish king of that name. He had four sons. 1. Archelaus, ethnarch of Judea and Samaria: ver. 22. 2. Herod Antipas, tetrarch of Galilee, who put John the Baptist in prison, &c. Matt. iv. 1, 10; Luke iii. 1. It was this Herod to whom Pilate sent Jesus. 3. Philip, the tetrarch of Iturea and Trachonitis, Luke iii. 1. 4. Herod Philip, Matt. xiv. 3. 5. Herod Agrippa was the grandson of Herod the Great, who beheaded James the apostle, Acts xii. 1. 6. Herod Agrippa, son of the former mentioned, Acts xxv. 13.—Magians] They were neither magicians (see Dan. ii. 27.) nor sorcerers, Acts xiii. 6; but persons who lived in retirement, and studied astronomy and other sciences. They worshipped one God, as infinitely wise and good; and were opposed to the Sabians, who worshipped the sun and stars. Daniel was placed over them in Babylon, Dan. v. 11; and Elymas, who was a Jew, was of this sect. Most commentators agree that they came from Arabia or Persia.

2. Have seen his star] Some unusual luminous body, which, by some divine intimations, they were taught to consider as importing the birth of the long expected king of the Jews.—To do him homage] This homage was paid to kings and other superiors, Exod. xviii. 7. When civil respect is intended, to do homage is used; and when religious adoration, to worship, to which sense this term is now confined.

4. Chief priests] These were the high priest, with such as had discharged that office, together with the heads of the 24 courses, 1 Chron. xxiv. 6, 19, Acts iv. 6.

6. Art by no means the least] In the prophet Micah, v. 2: we have no negative particle; but if rendered interrogatively, the negative is implied, and the Evangelist has given the sense.

9. Went before them till it came] Bishop Pearce would render, had gone before them; not having led them, but having been at Bethlehem before them.

11. Gold and frankincense] This was a most seasonable providential assistance to furnish Joseph and Mary for so long and expensive a journey as that into Egypt, where they had to abide some time.

16. From two years old] According to the Jewish mode of reckoning, if a child had entered on its second year, it would be called two years old. Hence Campbell renders, one full year old.

17. See note on Jer. xxxi. 15. Nothing can be more evident, than that the primary design of the prophet does not refer to the slaughter of the infants by Herod; but that the Evangelist, recollecting the words, considers them as again fulfilled.

filled again that which was spoken by Jeremiah the prophet, saying, A voice hath been heard in Ramah, lamentation, and weeping, and great mourning; Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, because they are not.

19 But when Herod was dead, behold, an angel of the Lord appeared in a dream to Joseph in Egypt, Saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and go into the land of Israel: for they are dead 20 who sought the young child's life. And he arose, and took the young child and his mother, and came into the land of Israel. 22 But having heard that Archelaus reigned in Judea, instead of his father Herod, he was afraid to go thither: but being warned of God in a dream, he withdrew into the 23 parts of Galilee; And came and dwelt in a city called Nazareth: so that it was fulfilled which was spoken by the prophets, He shall be called the Nazarene.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 26, 27. John begins his ministry; his office, life, and baptism; he reproveth the Pharisees, and baptizeth Christ in the Jordan.

1 IN those days came John the Baptist, 2 preaching in the desert of Judea, And saying, Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven 3 draweth near. For this is he that was spoken of by the prophet Isaiah, saying, The voice of one crying in the desert; Prepare ye the way of the Lord; make his 4 paths straight. Now this John had on a raiment of camel's hair, and a leathern gir-

20. They are dead] It has been supposed, that there is here a reference to Antipater, the son of Herod, who died five days before his father. He had procured the death of his two elder brothers to clear his way to the crown; and might be one who had advised Herod to slaughter the infants.

22. That Archelaus] It should seem his first intention was to reside at Bethlehem, but on account of Archelaus, who was cruel, he went to Nazareth, which was part of the territory allotted to his brother, Herod Antipas.

23. A Nazarene] From John i. 47, it is manifest that Nazareth was a despised place; and its inhabitants a despised people. Hence Jesus and his disciples were called Nazarenes, in contempt; they were despised and insulted, according to the predictions of the prophets.

CHAP. III. 1. In those days] From the return of Joseph from Egypt, our Lord dwelt at Nazareth, being subject to his parents; and 'in those days,' mean, while Jesus dwelt at Nazareth John began his ministry.—Desert of Judea] This does not denote a plain destitute of vegetation, or inhabitants, but a district fit only for pasturing flocks and herds. Comp. 1 Sam. xvii. 28; Josh. xv. 21; Judges i. 16.

2. Kingdom of heaven] This version is retained as well as the corresponding one, 'kingdom of God,' because we have no terms which express more precisely the complex notions involved in the words. The phrase is derived from Dan. ii. 44; vii. 13, 14. It properly signifies the gospel dispensation, in which subjects were to be gathered to Christ, and a society formed under him as the king and head. It is denominated the 'kingdom of heaven or of God,' because of its origin, its nature, and its final destination. In some places the phrase denotes the state of the church on earth, as to the gathering of its members by the dle about his loins; and his food was locusts and wild honey.

Then went out to him Jerusalem, and 5 all Judea, and all the country about the Jordan. And were baptized by him in the 6 Jordan, confessing their sins. But when 7 he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees coming to his baptism, he said unto them, O offspring of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from impending wrath? Bring 8 forth therefore fruit, worthy of repentance: And think not to say within yourselves, We 9 have Abraham to our father; for I say to you, that God is able from these stones to raise up children to Abraham. And even 10 now the axe is laid to the root of the trees: every tree therefore which beareth not good fruit is to be cut down, and cast into the fire. I indeed baptize you with water to 11 repentance; but he who cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to carry; he shall baptize you with the Holy Spirit and with fire: Whose win- 12 nowing shovel is in his hand, and he will thoroughly cleanse his floor, and gather the wheat into the granary; but the chaff he will burn up with unquenchable fire.

Then cometh Jesus from Galilee unto the 13 Jordan to John, to be baptized by him. But 14 John excused himself, saying, I have need to be baptized by thee, and comest thou to me? And Jesus answering said to him, 15 Suffer it now; for thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness. Then he suffered him. And when Jesus had been baptized, 16 he immediately went up from the water, gospel, their union by faith in Christ, and their obedience and subjection to him, as chap. xiii. &c. and sometimes it signifies the state of glory, but most frequently it includes both.

4. Of camel's hair] Camel's hair is now made into cloth; for Chardin assures us, that the dervises wear such garments, as they do also leathern girdles: see Harmer's Obs.—Locusts] That these were eaten, see Levit. xi. 21, 22. They are still dried for food in some hot countries. Wild honey abounded in Judea, 1 Sam. xiv. 25.

7. Pharisees and Sadducees] Bishop Pearce thought that they came only to inquire who John was, but did not submit to be baptized by him. This opinion appears probable, if we compare Matt. xxi. 23, 32; Luke vii. 30. John's address marks his honest, but austere character. He reproveth with boldness, as knowing the hypocrisy of the one, and the infidelity of the other, of these sects.

9. From these stones] John probably pointed to some which lay before him. See chap. iv. 3; vi. 29, &c. He alludes to the calling of the Gentiles; and that God should regard the Gentiles as the children of Abraham, appeared to the Jews like a natural impossibility.

11. And with fire] The meaning is, that the Spirit should exert an energy, penetrating and powerful as fire, both enlightening and purifying. See Acts ii. 3, when this remark was verified.

12. Winnowing-shovel] It could not be a van, as it was carried in the hand.

15. Fulfil all righteousness] To perform fully and in the most exact manner, all positive as well as moral righteousness, Rom. xiii. 10.

16. Descending as a dove] Luke says, 'in a bodily shape,' but it is uncertain whether or not this appearance was in the form of a dove. Grotius and Dr. Owen thought this and lo, the heavens were opened to him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending as 17 a dove, and coming upon him : And, lo, a voice from the heavens, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

CHAPTER IV.

A. D. 30, 31. Christ fasteth and is tempted; angels minister unto him; he dwelleth in Capernaum; beginning to preach, he calls Peter, Andrew, James, and John, and healeth all the diseased.

- 1 THEN WAS Jesus led up by the Spirit into the desert to be tempted by the devil.
- 2 And when he had fasted forty days and
- 3 forty nights, he was afterward hungry. And when the tempter came to him, he said, If thou be the Son of God, command that
- 4 these stones become loaves. But he answered and said, It is written; Man shall not live by bread only, but by whatsoever
- 5 God appointeth. Then the devil taketh Jesus with him to the holy city, and setteth
- 6 him on a wing of the temple, And saith to him, If thou be the Son of God, cast thyself down; for it is written, He shall give his angels charge concerning thee; and on their hands they shall bear thee up, lest
- 7 thou dash thy foot against a stone. Jesus said to him, It is also written, Thou shalt
- 8 not tempt the Lord thy God. Again, the devil taketh Jesus with him up to a very high mountain, and sheweth him all the
- 9 kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them; And saith unto him, All these things I will give thee, if thou wilt fall down and
- 10 worship me. Then saith Jesus to him, Get thee hence, Satan; for it is written, appearance was a bright flame; and it descended in the manner of a dove, hovering and then resting on Jesus. It is probable, that not only Jesus, but John and all present saw this sign from heaven, and heard the voice, John i. 32; and 1 John v. 6, 8.

17. This is my beloved] Some MSS. read here as Mark and Luke, 'Thou art, my beloved Son,' &c. The sense is the same whichever reading be adopted.

CHAP. IV. 1. If the temptation soon followed our Lord's baptism, it is probable the desert might be the great desert where the law was given. This was a fit scene for the temptation, whether it be considered as a real occurrence, or as only what passed in our Lord's mind.

3. Loaves] So Pearce and Campbell; and the former explains, 'let each stone become a loaf.' We do not read, that our Lord, during his whole ministry, wrought one miracle to support himself.

4. In the quotation from Deut. viii. 3, the sense is given in preference to the literal version. See note there.

7. Tempt the Lord thy God] To tempt God, is to call in question the proofs he has given of his goodness and power, and unreasonably to request new proofs. Comp. Exod. xvii. 2; Deut. vi. 6; Heb. iii. 12; and Is. lxxvii. 18, 20.

9. All these things] Our Lord was here tempted by power, honour, and ambition; but the tempter found nothing in him on which these objects could operate. The tempter was resisted, and he fled.

12. Delivered up] John was imprisoned in the castle of Machærus in Peræa; and the reason of it is given chapter xiv. 3; Mark vii. 17; and Luke iii. 19.

13. Capernaum] Wetstein conjectures, that this town,

Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve. Then the devil 11 leaveth him; and behold angels came and ministered to him.

Now when Jesus had heard that John 12 was delivered up to prison, he withdrew into Galilee. And having left Nazareth, he 13 came and dwelt in Capernaum, which is on the side of the lake, in the borders of Zebulon and Naphtali: So that it was fulfilled 14 which was spoken by Isaiah the prophet, saying, The land of Zebulon, and the land 15 of Naphtali, the way of the lake, along the Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles; The peo- 16 ple who sat in darkness have seen a great light; and to them who sat in the region of deathshade, light hath sprung up.

From that time Jesus began to preach, 17 and to say, Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven draweth near.

Now as he walked by the lake of Galilee, 18 he saw two brethren, Simon called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the lake; for they were fishers. And he 19 saith to them, Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men. And immediately they 20 left their nets and followed him. And 21 going on thence, he saw other two brethren, James, the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, in a vessel with Zebedee their father, mending their nets; and he called them. And they immediately left the ves- 22 sel and their father, and followed him.

And Jesus went about all Galilee, teach- 23 ing in their synagogues, and preaching the glad tidings of his kingdom, and curing every disease, and every malady among the people.

which was situate at the north point, on the outer side of the Lake of Galilee, was under the tetrarch of Galilee, and not under Herod. Compared with this Herod, Philip was a quiet and peaceable prince.

15. The lake] It is called the lake or sea of Galilee, of Tiberias and of Genesareth. It received from a small district called Genesareth, the last name; the second from a town built by Herod the Great, which became the chief city. The first name is taken from the province of Galilee; and as it was contiguous to the Tyrians and Syrians, in the upper part of it many of these dwell. Hence it was called Galilee of the Gentiles.

16. Who sat in darkness] The tribes of Zebulon and Naphtali were the first that suffered by the invasion of Tiglath Pileser, 2 Kings xv. 29, and 1 Chron. v. 26; and the prophet, when properly translated, evidently predicts a future period, when God would make this district glorious. Our Lord first preached to these tribes, and wrought many miracles among them, so that the Evangelist applies with the strictest propriety this prophecy to this circumstance.

18—22. Simon called Peter] These apostles knew Jesus before this solemn call. Some of them had heard the testimony of John the Baptist to him, John i. 35, 41, and it is probable that our Lord's divine knowledge and power were known to them.—Vessels] It is clear the vessels mentioned here, were only fishing vessels employed on the lake. Josephus calls them καφάρ, and says 250 were employed on the lake, with four or five men to each.

23. In their synagogues] These are not mentioned in the Old Testament. They were erected in towns both in Judea, and wherever a sufficient number of Jews resided,

24 And his fame went through all Syria; and they brought to him all their sick, who were seized with various diseases and pains, and demoniacs, and lunatics, and paralytics, and he healed them.

CHAPTER V.

A. D. 31. Christ preacheth from a mountain, declaring who are happy; the excellence of his disciples, and the design of his coming; he explains the law, and inculcates love to enemies.

25 AND great multitudes followed Jesus from Galilee, and from Decapolis, and from Jerusalem, and from Judea, and from beyond the Jordan. And seeing the multitudes, he went up a mountain; and he sat down, and his disciples came near to him: 2 And he opened his mouth, and taught 3 them, saying, Happy are the poor in spirit; 4 for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. Happy are they that mourn; for they shall be comforted. Happy are the meek; for they 6 shall inherit the land. Happy are they who hunger and thirst after righteousness; 7 for they shall be filled. Happy are the merciful; for they shall obtain mercy. 8 Happy are the pure in heart; for they shall 9 see God. Happy are the peacemakers; for they shall be called the sons of God. 10 Happy are they who are persecuted for righteousness' sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. Happy are ye, when men shall reproach and persecute you, and speak all kind of evil against you falsely, for my 12 sake. Rejoice, and be exceedingly glad;

and religious service was performed in them three times a day, morning, afternoon, and evening. They were like modern chapels, with a desk, where the law and prophets were read, seats for the men below, and galleries for the women. The synagogue was governed by a council of a few persons and a president, who is called in the gospels, ruler of the synagogues.

24. And demoniacs] Some contend that demoniacs were persons who laboured under bodily diseases: particularly those of the maniacal, lunatic, and epileptic kind, which were by the common people attributed to the agency of demons and evil spirits. But most suppose that God permitted evil spirits to exercise a power over human bodies at the time of Christ's appearance, for the purpose of displaying his superiority over them. Compare chap. xvii. 15, 18, and John x. 20.

25. Decapolis] A part of Syria, and so called because it contained ten cities.

CHAP. V. 1. A mountain] Middleton asserts that this means the mountainous district near to Capernaum.—And his disciples] Jesus addressed this discourse to his disciples in the hearing of the multitude.

2. Opened his mouth] This idiom occurs elsewhere for speaking, chap. xiii. 35; Acts viii. 35, &c.

3. Happy] This word comprehends the natural as well as the judicial consequences of the disposition and temper described.—The poor in spirit] A man may be poor in circumstances, who is not poor in spirit; and the following words suggest that a religious disposition is intended.

4. That mourn] This must apply to mourn under a sense of sin, as well as under afflictions; for there is a sorrow which is unto death, 2 Cor. viii. 10.

5. The meek] Compare Ps. xxxvii. 10, 17. Those who duly govern their anger and exercise lenity and forgiveness, find friends; they enjoy health and tranquillity, and escape injuries or find support under them.

6. Hunger and thirst] This phrase is expressive of a for great shall be your reward in heaven; for so men persecuted the prophets who were before you.

Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the 13 salt have lost its savour, with what shall its saltiness be restored? It is no longer good for any thing but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot by men. Ye are the 14 light of the world. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid. Nor do men light a 15 lamp, and put it under a measure, but on a stand; and it shineth to all who are in the house. Thus let your light shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your father who is in heaven.

Think not that I am come to destroy the 17 law, or the prophets; I am come not to destroy, but to fulfil them. For verily I say 18 to you, Till heaven and earth pass away, one jot or one tittle shall by no means pass away from the law, till all be accomplished. Whosoever therefore shall violate one of the 19 least of these commandments, or shall teach men so, shall be least in the kingdom of heaven; but whosoever shall do and teach them, shall be great in the kingdom of heaven. For I say to you, that unless 20 your righteousness shall abound more than that of the Scribes and Pharisees, ye shall by no means enter into the kingdom of heaven.

Ye have heard that it was said to the 21 ancients, Thou shalt not commit murder;

holy ardour of soul after the most eminent attainments in universal goodness, which will end in complete satisfaction in a future state.

7. The merciful] They who exercise mercy, shall find the like mercy from God and man.

8. Pure in heart] Morally and spiritually pure, which far exceeds all ceremonial purity.

9. Peace makers] The friends of amity and benevolence.—Sons of God] To be called signifies to be really sons of God by adoption, John i. 12; and 1 John iii. 1.

10—12. Persecuted] Our Lord here prepares his disciples for what he knew would be their lot; and glances at the future conduct of the Jews by referring to that of their fathers.

13. Lost its savour] From Maundrel we learn that some rock salt, by exposure to the sun, air, and rain, becomes insipid or loses its savour; and this was used in some cases as sand to repair the roads. This shows the foundation of our Lord's remark; and as applied to teachers, signifies, that if they lose their relish for spiritual things, and become insipid and foolish, what good can there be expected from them?

14—16. Set on a hill] Like Samaria, Bethulia, or Nazareth. They were to be a light by their instructions and example.

17. To destroy] The sense is, abolish or set aside. Jesus came not to do this, but to fulfil them, to answer the types, accomplish the predictions, and enforce the precepts of the old covenant.

19. One of the least] I construe with Campbell and as our translators have done, chap. xxv. 40, 45.—Shall be least] That the verb in the passive is used in the sense to be is certain. See Schleusner and Parkhurst.

20. Righteousness of the scribes] The Jews had a proverb that if but two were admitted into the kingdom of heaven, the one would be a Pharisee, and the other a Scribe. How awfully were they mistaken!

and whosoever shall commit murder, shall 22 be liable to the judgment. But I say to you, That whosoever is angry with his brother without a cause, shall be liable to the judgment; and whosoever shall say to his brother, Raca, [VILE MAN,] shall be liable to the council; but whosoever shall say Moreh, [MISCREANT,] shall be liable to 23 hell-fire. Therefore if thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there remember that thy brother hath matter of complaint against 24 thee; Leave there thy gift before the altar, and go; first be reconciled to thy brother, 25 and then come and offer thy gift. Agree with thine adversary quickly, while thou art on the way with him; lest the adversary deliver thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and thou 26 be cast into prison: Verily I say to thee, Thou shalt by no means come out thence,
 till thou hast paid the uttermost farthing.
 27 Ye have heard that it was said to the ancients, Thou shalt not commit adultery.
 28 But I say to you, That whosoever looketh on the wife of another in order to desire her, hath already committed adultery with 29 her in his heart. Now if thy right eye cause thee to offend, pluck it out, and cast it from thee; for it is better for thee that one of thy members perish, than that thy whole body should be cast into hell.
 30 And if thy right hand cause thee to offend, cut it off, and cast it from thee; for it is better for thee that one of thy members perish, than that thy whole body should be 31 cast into hell. It hath been said, Whosoever shall put away his wife, let him give 32 her a bill of divorce. But I say to you,
 That whosoever shall divorce his wife, except on account of whoredom, causeth her to commit adultery; and whosoever shall marry one that is divorced committeth adultery.

Again, ye have heard that it hath been 33 said to the ancients, Thou shalt not for-swear thyself, but shalt perform to the Lord thine oaths. But I say to you; Swear not 34 at all; neither by heaven; for it is God's throne: Nor by the earth; for it is his 35 footstool: nor by Jerusalem; for it is the city of the great King: Neither shalt thou 36 swear by thine head; for thou canst not make one hair white or black. But let 37 your yea be yea, and your no, no; for whatsoever is more than these proceedeth from evil.

Ye have heard that it hath been said, 38
 An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth:
 But I say to you, That ye resist not the in- 39
 jurious man; but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also. And if any man choose to sue 40 thee at law, and to take away thy vest, let him have thy mantle also. And whosoever 41 shall compel thee to go one mile, go with him two. Give to him that asketh thee, 42 and from him that would borrow of thee, turn not away.

Ye have heard that it hath been said, 43
 Thou shalt love thy neighbour and hate thine enemy. But I say to you, Love your 44 enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them who hate you, and pray for them who injuriously treat you, and persecute you; That ye may be the sons of your 45 Father who is in heaven; for he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust.
 For if ye love them who love you, what re- 46
 ward have ye? do not even the publicans

22. Liable to the judgment] There is a reference to the Jewish court of twenty-three, and to the sanhedrim, or great council of seventy-two; but our Lord, I conceive, refers to the different degrees of punishment God will inflict on causeless sneer, reproach, and reviling. The words 'without a cause' refer to the two next clauses. Some render Raca and Moreh by hypocrite and apostate.

23—26. Bring thy gift] Thy free-will-offering, Levit. vii. 16.—Thy brother] No gift will be accepted, while he who presents it is injuring his neighbour; and if it be prudent when we have done an injury to one, to make it up with him rather than to go to law and suffer all the rigours of justice, it must be more so to repent, lest our case should be infinitely more deplorable in the prison of hell.

28. The wife of another] The Greek word means unquestionably a wife, as well as a woman; and most of our old versions so render. It is certainly our Lord's design to state, that intentional wickedness is criminal as well as the actual deed; and the spirit of the divine command is as much violated in the one case as in the other.

29. Cause thee to offend] So the Geneva, and the marginal rendering of our common version. The moral sense is equally plain with the natural; and our Lord meant that seductions from duty should be avoided at all events. The hand to be cut off, is the hand of violence, and the eye to be plucked out, is the eye of concupiscence.

32. To commit adultery] Such a man commits adultery, if he marry again while his wife is living; and he causes her to commit adultery if she marry again while he is living; and in this case her second husband is an adulterer.

33—36. Forswear thyself] Compare Levit. xix. 12; Deut. xxiii. 21. From these verses it appears that the Jews thought no oath binding, unless they used the name of God. See Deut. vi. 13, 19, 20. They might swear by heaven, or earth, or Jerusalem, or their head, without incurring guilt. Our Lord evidently refers to swearing in common conversation; as in a court no oaths of this kind would be admitted.

37, 38. Your yea be yea] Our Lord inculcates an inviolable adherence to truth, so that a man's simple affirmation or denial of a thing may be believed. 'The Jews had a saying, The yea of the just is yea, and their no is no,' Compare James v. 12; Exod. xxi. 24.

39. The injurious man] That τῷ ἀδικῶν refers to the person, who is mentioned in the next words, is to me certain, Luke iii. 12, 14. Our Lord recommends patience under trifling injuries, rather than resistance; and a disposition rather to sustain the loss of what is of small value, than to go to law.

41. Compel thee] This kind of compulsion was used by public officers, who seized persons or carriages as they had occasion.

43. Hate thine enemy] Comp. Ps. cxxxix. 21, 22. Our Lord refers to the comments of the Jews on their law, as well as to the law itself.

44. Love your enemies] So regard them as to wish well to them when they curse you, &c.

46. Publicans] Comp. Luke iii. 13; vii. 34.—47. (v) Griesb.

47 the same? And if ye salute your brethren only, in what do ye excel? do not even the 48 'Gentiles' so? Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father who is in heaven is perfect.

CHAPTER VI.

A. D. 31. Christ treateth on alms, prayer, and fasting; exhorteth to seek the kingdom of God, and not to be anxiously careful concerning the things of the world.

1 TAKE heed that ye do not your acts of righteousness before men, in order to be seen by them: otherwise ye have no reward 2 from your Father who is in heaven. When therefore thou doest thine alms, do not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets, that they may be honoured by men. Verily I say to you, They have their reward. 3 But when thou doest alms, Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth; 4 That thine alms may be in secret; and thy Father who seeth in secret shall himself reward thee openly. 5 And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be like the hypocrites; for they love to pray standing in the synagogues, and at the corners of the streets, that they may be seen by men. Verily I say to you, They have 6 their reward. But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray in secret to thy Father; and thy Father, who seeth in secret, shall 7 reward thee openly. But when ye pray, use not many idle words as the Gentiles do; for they think that they will be heard 8 for their much speaking. Be not ye therefore like them; for your Father knoweth 9 what things ye need, before ye ask him. In this manner therefore pray ye: Our Father who art in heaven; Hallowed be thy name. 10 Let thy kingdom come; and thy will be 11 done on earth, as it is in heaven. Give us 12 this day food sufficient for us. And forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who have trespassed against us. And bring us 13 not into temptation, but preserve us from evil.* For if ye forgive men their trespasses, 14 your heavenly Father will also forgive you; But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, 15 neither will your Father forgive your trespasses.

Moreover when ye fast, be not, as the 16 hypocrites, of a sad countenance; for they disfigure their faces, that they may appear to men to fast. Verily I say to you, They have their reward. But thou when fasting, 17 anoint thine head, and wash thy face; That 18 thou appear not to men to fast, but to thy Father who is in secret; and thy Father who seeth in secret shall reward thee openly.

Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon 19 earth only, where the moth and rust consume, and where thieves break through and steal; But lay up for yourselves treasures 20 in heaven, where neither moth nor rust consumeth, and where thieves do not break through nor steal; For where your treasure 21 is, there also will be your heart. The 22 eye is the lamp of the body; if therefore thine eye be clear, thy whole body will be full of light. But if thine eye be dim, thy 23 whole body will be full of darkness. If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness!

No man can serve two masters; for either 24 he will hate the one, and love the other; or at least he will attend on one, and neglect the other. Ye cannot serve God and wealth. Therefore I say to you, Be not anxious for 25 your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor for your body, with what ye shall be clothed. Is not life more than food, and the body than clothing? Behold 26 the fowls of the air; for they sow not, nor do they reap, or gather into barns; yet your CHAP. VI. 1. Acts of righteousness] The reading here followed, is allowed to be genuine; and more properly introduces what follows.

2. Do not sound a trumpet] A proverbial expression for doing a thing in the most public manner, and to express ostentation.—Hypocrites] The Scribes and Pharisees who sought popular applause only.

6. In secret] This construction is supported by the Vulg. and Arab. vers.

7. Idle words] Repetition in prayer may often be proper; but whatever is vain, foolish, or idle, must be forbidden. The heathens repeated for hours their petitions, and thought them, on this account, more acceptable to their gods, 1 Kings xviii. 26.

10. Thy kingdom come] See note, chap. iii. 2. The next clause is connected with this, and expresses the nature of this kingdom and its government. The subjects of it are to do God's will as made known by Christ. The order of the Greek is, 'As in heaven, so upon the earth.'

11. Food sufficient] This is allowed to be the sense; and this version avoids the tautology.

12. Our trespasses] Newcome is followed, in giving the sense; as our Lord gives it in the 14th verse.

13. (o) [For thine is the kingdom, and the power and the glory, for ever, amen.].—Griesb.

19. Moth] One part of the stores of the rich in the east was, and yet is, garments; the form of the mantle being adapted to any one, James v. 2.—And rust] Whatever eats into any valuable substance.

22, 23. The eye is the lamp] As all the members of the body depend on the eye for light, so, if the understanding, the eye of the soul, be in darkness, and lead one to prefer earthly to heavenly things, how great the misery of the soul! Make therefore a right use of our understanding. Prefer heavenly treasures to earthly, and God to riches.

24. Serve two masters] Two whose wills are opposite must be meant. In this case a man will hate or love the one less than the other, if he divide his service between both; or he will attach himself to the service of one, and show his want of respect to the other by deserting him.

25. Be not anxious] So as to make this anxiety an evil, by distrustful provocation.

26—30. How simple, yet how forcible this reasoning of our Lord's.—O ye of little faith] Campbell renders distrustful; and there can be no doubt but some degree of distrust is implied.

27 heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they? Now which of you by being anxious, can add one cubit to his stature? And why are ye anxious for clothing? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, nor do they spin; And yet I say to you, That not even Solomon in all his glory was arrayed like one of these. Wherefore, if God so clothe the herb of the field, which to-day is, and to-morrow is cast into the oven, will he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith? Be not therefore anxious, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, What shall we put on? For all these things the Gentiles anxiously seek: for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye need all these things. But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added to you. Be not therefore anxious for the morrow; for the morrow will be anxious for the things of itself. Sufficient for the day is its own evil.

CHAPTER VII.

A. D. 31. Christ reproveth rash judgment, exhorteth to prayer, and to enter the strait gate; he cautions against false prophets, and admonishes not to be hearers only, but doers of the word.

1 JUDGE not, that ye be not judged. For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged; and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again. And why beholdest thou the splinter which is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam which is in thine own eye? Or how canst thou say to thy brother, Let me pull out the splinter from thine eye; and, behold a beam is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, first take the beam out of thine own eye; and then thou wilt see clearly to take the splinter out of thy brother's eye.
6 Give not that which is holy to the dogs, nor cast your pearls before swine; lest these trample them under their feet; and those turn again and tear you.

Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened to you. For every one that asketh, receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened. For what man is there among you, who, if his son ask bread, will give him a stone? Or if he ask a fish, will give him a serpent? If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more shall your Father, who is in heaven, give good things to those who ask him? In all things, therefore, whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so unto them; for this is the law and the prophets.

Enter in through the strait gate; for wide is the gate, and broad the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many are they who go in thereby: But 'how' strait is the gate, and how narrow the way which leadeth to life, and how few are they who find it! Beware then of false teachers, who come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravenous wolves. By their fruits ye shall know them. Do men gather grapes from thorns, or figs from thistles? Even so every good tree beareth good fruit; but a corrupt tree beareth bad fruit. A good tree cannot bear bad fruit, nor can a corrupt tree bear good fruit. (Every tree not bearing good fruit is cut down, and cast into the fire.) Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them.

Not every one that saith to me, Master, Master, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Master, Master, have we not taught in thy name? and in thy name

32. Ye need all] This shows that a reasonable care for such things is proper, where special interposition of providence is not promised.

33. But first seek] Seek to share in the blessings of the gospel, and especially submit to that method of acceptance which God has revealed and appointed.

CHAP. VII. 1, 2. Judge not] Our Lord immediately attacks the spirit of the Scribes and Pharisees, who placed much of their own religion in censuring and condemning others. Such as are guilty of this sin are generally repaid in the same manner.

3. Splinter—beam] Small and great faults are meant by this proverbial language, common among the Jews.

6. Holy] That part of the sacrifice which the priest only was to eat. The meaning is, that some persons are so obstinate, and so brutish, that they will persecute those who attempt to instruct and reform them.

7—11. Some would confine what is here said to the disciples; but assuredly these encouragements belong to all Christians; and the appeal to parental affection, (notwithstanding human depravity,) and the inference drawn from it, strongly and evidently prove it.—And he that] The force of war, every one, belongs to the two following clauses, and is implied in the conjunction.

12. The law] This clause means, that this is what the law and the prophets inculcate as to relative duty.

13. Strait gate] By a gate the Jews understand that which leads men into the sense and knowledge of any doctrine. Compare Acts xiv. 27; 1 Cor. xvi. 9; and Colos. iv. 3. Lightfoot supposes that in this and the next verse, there is an allusion to the public and private ways; which according to their lawyers were, for a private, four cubits in breadth, and for a public one, sixteen. The strait gate or door he supposes means a little door within a large one.

14. How strait] The reading here followed is doubtless genuine, and, as Welstein remarks, expresses admiration. (v) Versions.

15. False teachers] When the term ῥαββί is used in the plural with the article, and refers to those of former times, it means prophets in the strictest sense. On most other occasions it denotes a teacher of religious truths, and the compound, a false teacher.

19. Is cut down] This awful admonition is thrown in very naturally, and if included in a parenthesis, is in the style of our Lord.

21—23. From these verses it is clear that some who received the gifts of the Spirit were in reality wicked men, and workers of iniquity. Though they professed the cast out demons? and in thy name done 23 many wonderful works? But I will then declare to them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity.

 24 Whosoever therefore heareth these my words, and doeth them, I will liken him to a wise man, who built his house upon a 25 rock; And the rain descended, and the streams came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not: for it was 26 founded upon a rock. And whosoever hear-eth these my words, and doeth them not, shall be likened to a foolish man, who 27 built his house upon the sand; And the rain descended, and the streams came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house, and it fell: and the fall of it was great.
 28 And it came to pass, when Jesus had ended these words, the multitudes were astonished 29 at his teaching; For he taught them as having authority, and not as the Scribes.

CHAPTER VIII.

A. D. 31. Christ cleanseth the leper, healeth the centurion's servant, Peter's mother-in-law, and others; show-eth how he is to be followed, stilleth a tempest, and ex-pellet demons.

1 Now when Jesus had come down from the mountain, great multitudes followed 2 him. And, behold, there came a leper, and did him homage, saying, Master, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.
 3 And Jesus put forth his hand and touched him, saying, I will; be thou made clean!
 And immediately his leprosy was cleansed.
 4 And Jesus saith to him, See thou tell no man; but go, show thyself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded,
 for a testimony to them.
 5 And when Jesus had entered into Capernnaum, there came to him a centurion, be-6 seeing him, And saying, Master, my servant lieth at home sick of the palsy, 7 grievously afflicted. And Jesus said to 8 him, I will come and heal him. The cen-turion answered and said, Master, I am not worthy that thou shouldst come under my roof; but speak the word only, and my servant will be healed. For I also am a man under authority, who have soldiers under me; and I say to this man, Go, and he goeth, and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it. When Jesus heard this, he won-10 dered, and said to those who followed, Verily

 I say to you, not even in Israel have I found so great faith. And I say to you, that 11 many shall come from the east and the west, and be placed at table with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven. But the heirs of the kingdom shall be cast out into the outer darkness; and there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth. And Jesus said to the centurion, 13 Go; and according as thou hast believed, so be it done to thee. And his servant was healed in that very hour.

And when Jesus came into Peter's house, 14
 he saw his wife's mother lying on a couch, and sick of a fever; And he touched her 15 hand and the fever left her; and she arose, and ministered to them.

When the evening had come, they brought 16 to him many demoniacs; and he cast out the spirits with a word, and healed all that were sick: So that it was fulfilled which 17 was spoken by Isaiah the prophet, saying, Himself took our infirmities, and bore our sicknesses.

Now when Jesus saw great multitudes 18 about him, he gave commandment to depart unto the other side of the lake. And 19
 a certain Scribe came, and said to him, Teacher, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest. And Jesus saith to him, The 20 foxes have holes, and the birds of the air roosts; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head. And another of his disci- 21 ples said to him, Master, suffer me first to name, and taught the doctrine of our Lord, yet he never approved of them.

29. Having authority] There was seriousness, dignity, and majesty in his manner of teaching. He did not appeal, as they did, to tradition or to the authority of their Rabbies.
 He taught on his own authority and the evidence of the truths he stated.

CHAP. VIII. 2. Clean] The leper was legally unclean: Levit. xiii. 44, and Numb. v. 2, 3. As in some stages this disease was contagious, it was a wise and merciful provision of the law, to separate such persons from others as being unclean.

3. Touched him] Our Lord thus contracted legal un-cleanness; but miraculous works were exempt from ritual precepts.

4. Offer the gift] See Levit. xiv. 4. This was to be done for a testimony that the cure was perfected, and that the priests, the judges of the cure, might be witnesses of it.

5. A centurion] Comp. Luke vii. 3, 10. He was captain of 100 men, as the word signifies. As he was a Gentile, though a worthy man, it is probable that as the Jews would not eat with him, he conceived that he was not worthy of the honour of a personal visit from so great a prophet as our Lord. He argues in the following verses from the less to the greater; and if he could command, and be obeyed, much more could Jesus. He had only to speak the word, &c.

11, 12. He placed at table with Abraham] The gospel dispensation is often compared to a feast, of which the people partook, reclined on couches. Those who by faith receive the Saviour are the spiritual children of Abraham, and are said to sit at table with him and the other patriarchs and prophets, to whom the promise of this kingdom was made; while his natural seed, the unbelieving Jews, should be 'put forth into the outer darkness.' Outer darkness]
 This phrase occurs ch. xxii. 13, and xxv. 30; and refers to a state of misery, as the punishment for abused mercy and other crimes.

16. The evening had come] The preceding day was the sabbath, on which the Jews did not think it lawful to carry out their sick, or even that miracles should be wrought.

17. Our infirmities] See note, Isa. liii. 4. Peter in his first epistle, chap. ii, 24, refers to Isa. liii. 5. The Jews applied this to the Messiah. It is said in Zofar that he was to bear all the diseases, all the griefs, and all the punishments due to Israel.

19. A Scribe] This is the first instance of a Scribe offer-

CHAPTER IX.

22 go and bury my father. But Jesus said to him, Follow me; and let the dead bury their dead.

23 And when he had entered into a vessel, his 24 disciples followed him. And, behold, there arose a great tempest in the sea, so that the vessel was covered with the waves; but 25 he was asleep. And his disciples came near, and awoke him, saying, Master, save us! we perish. And he saith to them, 26 Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith? Then he arose, and rebuked the winds and 27 the sea; and there was a great calm. But the men wondered, saying, What kind of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him?

28 And when he had come to the other side into the country of the "Gadarenes," there met him two demoniacs, coming out of the tombs, exceedingly fierce, so that no man 29 could pass by that way. And, behold, they cried out, saying, What hast thou to do with us, "thou Son of God? Art thou come 30 hither to torment us before the time? Now there was feeding at a distance from them, 31 a great herd of swine. So the demons besought him, saying, If thou cast us out, 32 send us into the herd of swine. And he said unto them, Go. And when they had come out, they went into the herd of swine; and, behold, the whole herd of swine ran violently down a steep place into the lake, 33 and perished in the waters. And those who kept them fled; and went away into the city, and told every thing; and what had been done to those who had the demons. And, behold, the whole city came 34 out to meet Jesus; and when they saw him, they besought him that he would depart out of their borders.

ing to follow Jesus; and from the answer he received, it is probable he soon went away.

21. And bury my father.] He meant that he would, after his father's death and burial, become our Lord's constant follower.

22. The dead bury.] Those spiritually dead, bury those naturally dead. The term dead is used in its natural and figurative sense.

26. A great calm.] The surface of the sea became still and smooth, as soon as the wind was laid. This shows the full force of the miraculous power then exerted, as the sea is usually much agitated for a long time after a tempest: compare Mark iv. 39; Luke vii. 24.

28. Gadarenes.] This is admitted by Wetstein as the genuine reading. Origen introduced the common one on conjecture only. Gadara was the metropolis of Peræa, a part of which district seems to have reached to the sea of Tiberias. (v) Griesb.—29. (a) Jesus, Griesb.—31. (v) Griesb.

32. And perished in.] A punitive miracle may be allowed in this destruction of the swine; the keeping of which by Jews, was a breach of the law; and by Gentiles, within the confines of Palestine, might be a snare to the Jews, as it was a contempt of their religion.

34. Besought him.] They were struck with great fear, on account of his miraculous power, Luke vii. 37.

CHAP. IX. 1. His own city.] Capernaum, where he now

A. D. 31. Christ cureth one sick of the palsy, calleth Matthew, and eateth with publicans; he defendeth his disciples, cureth the bloody issue, and raiseth the daughter of Jairus.

AND he went into the vessel, and passed 1 over, and came to his own city. And, be- 2 hold, they brought to him a man sick of the palsy, lying on a bed; and Jesus seeing their faith, said to the sick of the palsy, Take courage, son; thy sins are for- 3 given thee. And, behold, some of the 3 Scribes said within themselves, This man blasphemeth. And Jesus, knowing their 4 thoughts, said, Why think ye evil in your hearts? For which is easier to say, Thy 5 sins are forgiven; or to say, Arise, and walk? But that ye may know that the Son 6 of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (then saith he to the sick of the palsy,) Arise, take up thy bed, and go to thy house. 7 And he arose and departed to his own house. 8 But when the multitudes saw it, they wondered, and glorified God, who had given such power to men.

And as Jesus thence passed on, he saw a 9 man named Matthew sitting at the receipt of custom; and he saith unto him, Follow me. And he rose up, and followed him.

And it came to pass, as Jesus was at meat 10 in the house of Matthew, behold! many publicans and sinners came and placed themselves at table with him and his disciples. And when the Pharisees saw it, 11 they said to his disciples, Why doth your teacher eat with publicans and sinners? But when Jesus heard that, he said to them, 12 They that are well need not a physician, but they that are sick. But go ye and learn 13 what that meaneth, I desire mercy rather than sacrifice: for I am come to call, not the righteous, but sinners to repentance.

dwelt, as opposed to Gadara, mentioned in the conclusion of the former chapter.

2. Take courage, son.] Be of good cheer, is now idiomatical. This language expressed both the authority and the affection of Jesus.—Thy sins are forgiven.] These words are an affirmation, not a prayer, or wish. As a prayer, the Scribes would not have objected to them.

5, 6. Which is easier.] To bestow forgiveness, or to display supernatural power. Both are alike proofs, that Jesus was God as well as man; or else he would have been guilty of blasphemy.

9. Named Matthew.] The scene of this transaction was at Capernaum, where Christ had taught and performed many miracles; and it is probable that Matthew had previously known his character, doctrine, and mighty works.—Receipt of custom.] At the place where the duty on goods imported was paid; or as Lightfoot supposes, for persons who sailed from one place to another.

10. And sinners.] Matthew humbly adopts the usual language of the Jews. With like humility he calls himself the publican, chap. x. 3. This name was odious to the Jews, as such persons were employed to gather taxes for the Romans.

13. Mercy rather.] See Hos. vi. 6. This reasoning is conclusive; and sufficiently justified our Lord, in endeavouring to instruct, and bring sinners to repentance.

14 Then came to him the disciples of John, saying, Why do we and the Pharisees fast
15 often, but thy disciples fast not? And Jesus said to them, Can the bridemen mourn, as long as the bridegroom is with them? But the days will come when the bridegroom shall be taken from them, and then 16 they will fast. Moreover no man putteth a piece of undressed cloth upon an old garment, for that which is put on taketh from the garment, and the rent is made worse.
17 Nor do men put new wine into damaged bottles; if otherwise the bottles burst, and the wine is spilled, and the bottles destroyed; but they put new wine into sound bottles, and both are preserved.
18 While he spoke these things to them, behold there came a certain ruler, and did him homage, saying, My daughter is by this time dead; but come and lay thine
19 hand upon her, and she will revive. And Jesus arose, and followed him; and his disciples also went. And, behold, a woman, who having had an issue of blood twelve years, came behind, and touched the border 20 of his garment; For she said within herself, If I can but touch his garment, I shall be 21 made well. But when Jesus turned about, and saw her, he said, Daughter, take courage; thy faith hath made thee well. And the woman was made well from that hour.
22 And, when Jesus came into the ruler's house, and saw the minstrels and the people making a mournful noise, He said to them, Give place; for the damsel is not dead, but sleepeth. And they derided him.
23 But when the multitude were sent out, he went in, and took her by the hand, and the damsel arose. And the fame of this went abroad into all that country.
24 And as Jesus thence passed on, two blind men followed him, crying out and saying, 25 Thou son of David, have pity on us. And when he had come into the house, the blind men came to him: and Jesus said to them, Believe ye that I am able to do this? They said to him, Yea, Master. Then he touched 29 their eyes, saying, According to your faith be it done unto you. And their eyes 30 were opened; and Jesus strictly charged them, saying, See that no man know it. But they went out and spread abroad his 31 fame in all that country.

Now as they went out, Behold, there was 32 brought to him a dumb man, who had a demon. And when the demon was cast 33 out, the dumb spoke; and the multitudes wondered, saying, It was never thus seen in Israel. But the Pharisees said, He casteth 34 out the demons by the prince of the demons.

CHAPTER X.

A. D. 31. Christ sendeth out his twelve apostles, giving them power to work miracles; he comforteth them against persecutions, and promiseth a blessing to those who receive them.

AND Jesus went about all the cities and 35 villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the glad tidings of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease." And when he saw the multitudes, he was 36 moved with compassion for them, because they were scattered and neglected, as sheep, having no shepherd. Then saith he to his 37 disciples, The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few. Pray ye, there- 38 fore, the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest.

And when he had called to him his twelve 1 disciples, he gave them power over unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal every disease and every malady. Now the names 2 of the twelve apostles are these; the first, Simon who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother; James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother; Philip and Bartholo- 3 mew; Thomas, and Matthew the publican; James the son of Alphaeus, and Lebbeus, whose surname was Thaddeus; Simon the 4 Canaanite, and Judas Iscariot, he who delivered him up. These twelve Jesus sent 5 forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into 14—17. Fast often] Our Lord replies, by using three similitudes taken from common life. That as it would not be proper to be sad at a wedding feast, or to put a new patch on an old garment, or new wine in damaged bottles; so it would not be proper while he was with them, and in their present circumstances, that they should now fast, but rather that they should rejoice. The time was coming when they would be called to fast and mourn.

20. Border] See the note, Numb. xv. 17, and compare Deut. xxii. 12.

24. Not dead, but] This is not a lasting death; but, as it were, a short sleep. Jesus knew what he was about to do.

27. Son of David] This is the first time this title is given to Christ, except by the angel before his birth, Luke i. 32. By this title he was acknowledged to be the Messiah, 2 Sam. vii. 13—16; Ps. lxxxix. 4, 26, 29.

28. The house] In which he resided at Capernaum. See ch. xiii. 1.

30. See that no man] See chap. viii. 4. Jesus avoided all ostentation in performing miracles, and forbade them to be published, that he might not excite the jealousy of his enemies.

33. The dumb spoke] How wonderful and numerous were the miracles of Jesus! In one afternoon he had raised the daughter of Jairus from the dead, healed the woman with the bloody issue, given sight to two blind men, and now speech to one dumb.

35. (a) Among the people] Griesb.

35, 36. As these verses naturally introduce the calling and mission of the twelve apostles, they are joined to the 10th chapter.

36. Scattered and neglected] I follow Campbell, who has supported this version, after Elsner and others, as most suitable to the context.

CHAP. X. 2. Simon called] The four apostles here mentioned are said to be the first called, chap. iv. 18—21.

3. Lebbeus] Called also Judas, the son of James, Luke vi. 15, 16. He wrote the short epistle, inscribed with his name.

4—6. Canaanite] Some suppose him to be thus called, as being a native of Cana, in Galilee, which is the most any city of the Samaritanis enter ye not ;

 6 But go rather to the lost sheep of the house
 7 of Israel. And as ye go, preach, saying,
 The kingdom of heaven draweth near.
 8 Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, 'cast out demons ; freely ye have received, freely 9 give. Provide neither gold nor silver, nor 10 brass in your purses. Nor bag for your journey, nor two coats, nor sandals, nor staves ; for the labourer is worthy of his 11 food. And into whatsoever city or town ye enter, inquire who in it is worthy ; and 12 there abide till ye depart. And when ye 13 enter the house, salute the household. And if the household be worthy, let your wish of peace come upon it ; but if it be not worthy, let your wish of peace return to 14 yourselves. And whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear your words, when ye depart out of that house or city, shake off 15 the dust of your feet. Verily I say to you,
 It shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment, than for that city.
 16 Behold, I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves ; be ye therefore prudent 17 as serpents, and harmless as doves. And beware of these men, for they will deliver you up to councils, and they will scourge 18 you in their synagogues. And ye will be brought before governors and kings for my sake ; for a testimony to them and to 19 the Gentiles. But when they deliver you up, be not anxious how or what you shall speak ; [for it shall be given to you in that same hour what ye shall speak.] 20 For it is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father which speaketh by you.
 21 Now the brother will deliver up the brother to death, and the father the child ; and the children will rise up against their parents, and cause them to be put to death. And 22 ye will be hated of all men for my name's sake ; but he that endureth to the end shall be saved. But when they persecute you 23 in one city, flee ye into another ; and if they persecute you out of this, flee into another." For verily I say to you, Ye shall not have gone through the cities of Israel, till the Son of man be come. The 24 disciple is not above his teacher, nor the servant above his master. It is enough for 25 the disciple that he be as his teacher, and the servant as his master. If they have called the master of the house Beelzebub, how much more will they call those of his household ? Fear them not therefore ; for 26 there is nothing covered which shall not be manifested ; or hidden which shall not be known : What I tell you in darkness, that 27 speak ye in light : and what ye hear by the ear, that proclaim ye upon the housetops. And fear not those who kill the body, 28 but are not able to kill the soul ; but rather fear him who is able to destroy both body and soul in hell. Are not two sparrows sold 29 for a penny ? and yet one of them falleth not to the ground without your Father.

 And even the hairs of your head are all 30 numbered. Fear ye not therefore ; ye are 31 of more value than many sparrows. Who- 32 soever therefore shall confess me before men, him I also will confess before my Father who is in heaven. But whosoever 33 shall deny me before men, him I also will deny before my Father who is in heaven.
 Think not that I am come to bring peace 34
 on this land ; I came to bring, not peace, probable opinion.—Iscariot] A man of Kerioth, John xiv. 22. The apostles are probably mentioned, two and two, as they were sent. See Mark vi. 7.—Delivered him up] This is the real sense of the text. The inspired historian simply adverts to the fact, without noticing the sinfulness or criminality of it. The mission of our Lord was to the Jews. Comp. chap. xv. 24, with Rom. xv. 8.

8. Raise the dead] This clause is wanting, ver. 1, and Luke ix. 1 ; nor is it noticed, Mark vi. 13, where they give an account of the miracles they had done. It does not appear that they received this power, until after the gift of the Spirit.—(c) Griesb.

9. In your purses] The zones, or girdles, with which the eastern people bound their loose garments, were used by them as purses.

10. Bag] For carrying provisions.—Nor sandals] Provide no additional supply of such articles.

11—15. There abide] That the family may enjoy the full benefit of your instruction and miracles, and if any treat you unkindly shake off the dust of your feet to show that you disclaim all intercourse with them.

17. Scourge you] The Jews made use of synagogues, not only for the purposes of religious worship, but for the administration of justice. See chap. xxiii. 34 ; Acts xxii. 19.

19. Not anxious] Had not the apostles been thus divinely taught, and inspired, they would not have been able to conduct themselves with propriety. What is within brackets is doubtful.—Griesb.

22. Will be hated of all] Those who received the apostles' testimony must highly esteem and love them ; and the term 'all' can with propriety be applied only to all unbelievers.

23. Son of man be come] To destroy the Jewish state by the Romans.—(a) Griesb.

25. Beelzebub] This was an idol of the Philistines, 2 Kings i. 2, 3. The word signifies 'The Lord of flies.' The Jews styled him 'The Prince of demons.' The Greek is Belzebul. It was a matter of religion among the Jews to reproach idols, and give them the most odious names. One of the most common was דביל, 'dung,' or 'dunghill ;' and as they judged that demon, or devil, worst of all, who ruled over idols, they called him בעל דביל, 'lord of a dunghill.' See Lightfoot.

26, 27. Our Lord warns them of approaching persecution ; and observes that his gospel, notwithstanding, must be preached openly and boldly. See Deut. xxii. 8, and Acts x. 9.

28. Kill the soul] There is here such an opposition between the soul and body, as clearly proves the former to be immaterial ; and as what does not and cannot perish with the body. The soul exists separate from the body, and must be conscious of that existence, else the soul would be as properly killed as the body. The latter clause proves that the soul may perish, by being subject to future misery ; but it does not cease to exist.

29—31. The inducements and motives to faithfulness, from the dread of eternal misery, the kindness and providential care of God, are admirably stated. The subject is continued to the end of the chapter.

34—36. To bring peace] Our Lord expresses not the design of his coming, but what would be the event or con-

35 but a sword. For I am come to set a man at variance against his father, and the daughter against her mother, and the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law. And a man's foes will be they of his own household. He who loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me: and he who loveth son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me. And he who taketh not his cross, and followeth me, is not worthy of me. He who secureth his life shall lose it; and he who loseth his life for my sake shall secure it.

40 He who receiveth you receiveth me, and he who receiveth me receiveth him that sent me. He who receiveth a teacher in the name of a teacher, shall receive a teacher's reward; and he who receiveth a righteous man in the name of a righteous man, shall receive a righteous man's reward.

42 And whosoever shall give one of these little ones a cup of cold water only to drink, in the name of a disciple, verily I say to you, He shall by no means lose his reward.

1 And it came to pass, when Jesus had made an end of commanding his twelve disciples, that he departed thence to teach and to preach in their cities.

CHAPTER XI.

A. D. 31. John sendeth some of his disciples to Christ; Christ's testimony to John; the opinion of the people respecting Christ and John; he upbraideth Chorazin, &c. for impenitence, and inviteth sinners.

2 Now when John had heard in the prison the works of Jesus, he sent two of his disciples, And said to him, Art thou he that cometh, or must we look for another?

4 Jesus answered and said to them, Go and tell John those things which ye hear and see: The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk; the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear; the dead are raised, and to the poor glad tidings are preached. And happy he who shall not offend because of me.

And as they departed, Jesus said unto the multitudes concerning John, What went ye out into the desert to behold? A reed shaken with the wind? But what went ye out to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? Lo, they that wear soft raiment are in palaces. But what went ye out to see? A prophet? Yea, I say unto you, and much more than a prophet. For this is he, of whom it is written, Behold! I send my messenger before thy face, who shall prepare thy way before thee. Verily I say to you, Among those who are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist; but the least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he. And from the days of John the Baptist until now, the kingdom of heaven is invaded, and the invaders take it by force. For all the prophets and the law taught you until John. And if ye be willing to receive it, this is Elijah who was to come. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

But to what shall I liken this generation? It is like to children sitting in the marketplace, and calling to their fellows, And say- ing, We have played to you on the pipe, and ye have not danced; we have sung mournful songs to you, and ye have not lamented. For John came neither eating nor drinking; and they say, He hath a demon. The Son of man came eating and drinking; and they say, Behold a glutton and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and sinners. But wisdom is justified by her children.

Then began he to reprove the cities in which most of his mighty works were done, sequence of it. Some in a family being converted, would be persecuted by those who remained unconverted.

39. Shall lose it] In the future state; and he who loseth it in this world, shall save it in the next.

41. Teacher] Pearce and Wakefield thus render; and that this is the sense often in the New Testament must be admitted. See note, chap. vii. 15.—In the name of] That is, because he is a teacher, he shall be rewarded in the same manner as a teacher, either here or hereafter.

CHAP. XI. 1. This verse ought to have concluded the preceding chapter.

3. He that cometh] This was one title of the Messiah, taken from Ps. cxviii. 26. Some think John began to doubt, and sent for his own satisfaction; but this seems improbable, considering what Matthew has related. It is therefore most probable that he sent for the satisfaction of his disciples; and that a satisfactory proof might be given that he was the Christ, the Son of the Blessed.

4, 5. The miracles mentioned were to be wrought by the Messiah. Comp. Isa. xxxv. 4—6, and lxi. 1. They therefore formed the strongest proof that Jesus was He that cometh.

6. Shall not offend] Campbell renders, 'To whom I shall not prove a stumbling-block,' and Newcome in the margin, 'An occasion of offending.' The term signifies more than to be offended; it implies being so ensnared as to fall off from the belief and profession of the gospel.

7. A reed shaken] One meanly clothed, and exposed to the injuries of the weather.

9. Much more than a prophet] It may be justly said, that John was greater than any of the ancient prophets, on account of his wonderful conception and birth, his knowledge of gospel truth, his testimony to the Messiah, and his success in preparing his way; and John was himself the subject of ancient prophecy, Malachi iii. 1; Isaiah xl. 3.

11. Greater than he] Under the gospel dispensation, even the least of the apostles or ministers of the word is greater than John in religious knowledge; in the power of working miracles, John x. 41; and in various other spiritual privileges.

12. Invaded] The comparison is to a country invaded, or to a city besieged and taken by storm. Our Lord meant that numbers of sinners, with the most eager desires, were now crowding into his kingdom.

14. Elijah] Mal. iv. 5. This is he who was to come in the spirit and power of that illustrious prophet and reformer, Luke i. 17.

17—19. John lived in abstinence; and was on this account accused of having a demon, and being melancholy. Jesus lived like other men, yet temperate and thankful; and for this was abused as a glutton. Thus nothing would please these perverse, censorious men.

21 because they repented not. Alas for thee, Chorazin ! alas for thee, Bethsaida ! for if the mighty works, which have been done in you, had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes. But I say to you, It shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon on the day of judgment, than for you. And thou Capernaum, which art exalted to the heavens, shalt be brought down to hades ; for if the mighty works which have been done in thee had been done in Sodom, it would have remained until this day. But I say to you, It shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom on the day of judgment, than for thee.

25 At that time Jesus spoke and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that having hidden these things from the wise and understanding, thou hast revealed them to babes. Even so, Father ; for thus it hath seemed good in thy sight.

27 All things have been delivered to me by my Father ; and no one knoweth the Son but the Father ; neither knoweth any one the Father, but the Son, and he to whom the Son chooseth to reveal him.

28 Come unto me, all ye that are weary and heavily burdened, and I will give you rest.

29 Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me ; for I am meek and lowly in heart ; and ye shall find rest to your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.

CHAPTER XII.

A. D. 31. Christ accused of violating the sabbath, vindicates himself ; he healeth one blind and dumb ; sin against the Holy Spirit not to be forgiven ; he reproveth the unfaithful, &c.

1 At that time Jesus went on the sabbath through the corn-fields ; and his disciples were hungry, and began to pluck the ears of corn, and to eat. But when the Pharisees saw it, they said to him, Behold, thy disciples do that which is not lawful to do on the sabbath. But he said to them, Have ye not read what David did, when he was hungry, and those that were with him ; How he entered into the house of God, and ate the presence-bread which was not lawful for him to eat, nor for those that were with him, but for the priests only ? Or have ye not read in the law, how that on the sabbaths the priests in the temple profane the sabbath and are blameless ? But I say to you, That one greater than the temple is here. But if ye had known what this meaneth, I desire mercy rather than sacrifice, ye would not have condemned the guiltless. For the Son of man is Lord of the sabbath.

And passing on thence, he went into their synagogue : And, behold, there was a man who had a withered hand. And they asked him, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath ? that they might accuse him. And he said to them, What man is there among you, who hath one sheep ; and if it fall into a pit on the sabbath, will not lay hold on it, and lift it out ? How much then is a man better than a sheep ? Wherefore it is lawful to do good on the sabbath. Then saith he to the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it forth ; and it was made sound like the other.

Then the Pharisees went out, and took counsel against Jesus, how they might destroy him. But Jesus knew it, and withdrew thence ; and great multitudes followed him, and he healed them all ; And strictly charged them that they should not make him known : So that it was fulfilled which was spoken by Isaiah the prophet, saying, Behold my servant, whom I have chosen ; my beloved, in whom my soul delighteth :

21. The miracles our Lord wrought in these cities are not recorded. We have but a few of the mighty works Jesus did mentioned, John xxi. 25.

25. Having hidden] Jesus does not give thanks, because these things were hidden to some, but because they were revealed to others. See Rom. vi. 17. ' Having hidden ' signifies merely, not having revealed. There is a reference to the Scribes and Pharisees, who were the learned ; whose vice and pride prevented their receiving the doctrine of Christ ; while the truths of the gospel were revealed to such plain and sincere persons as those who followed Christ and believed on him.

27. No one knoweth the Son] These words evidently declare that there is something in our Lord's person which no man can fully comprehend ; and so there is, on the ground of his having two natures, the divine and human ; and to this he refers.

28. But the Son] If no one can know the Father but the Son, &c. then come to me, &c. This is clearly an inference from what precedes.

29. Come to me] Our Lord invites to himself as a teacher. His yoke is easy in comparison with the Mosaic rites, and the prescriptions of the Scribes.

Слѣд. XII. 2. On the sabbath] On any other day they might, according to Deut. xxiii. 25. The Pharisees consid-dered this a kind of work ; and more especially the rubbing out the grain in their hands, which they regarded as threshing it out.

4. For the priests alone] Comp. Levit. xxiv. 9. If David in a case of necessity broke a positive statute, the Son of man may do so in a like case, and be blameless as David was in this instance.

5. Profane] Not resting on it from the offering of the morning and evening sacrifice ; but thus laboured as on other days.

6. One greater] Some MSS. read μῦλλον, something greater, the Lord of the temple, Mal. iii. 1. This is the first answer to the objection ; and two others follow,—that God prefers works of kindness to the observance of a positive law—and that the Son of man, as Lord of the sabbath, has the power of dispensing with the strict observance of it, when he sees fit. Pearce thinks our Lord refers to his power of changing the day from the seventh to the first of the week.

9. Their synagogue] A synagogue of the Galileans, frequented by those Pharisees whom he had reprovcd.

14. How they might destroy him] They now formed the resolution to take away his life ; and from this they never departed. See John v. 16, and ix. 16.

18. Behold, my servant] The Targumist applied this

I will put my spirit upon him, and he shall 19 publish judgment to the Gentiles. He shall not strive, nor cry aloud; nor shall 20 any one hear his voice in the streets. The bruised reed shall he not break, and the dimly smoking flax shall he not quench, he shall publish judgment so as to establish 21 it: And in his name shall the Gentiles hope.
 22 Then was brought to him one who had a demon, blind and dumb; and he healed him inasmuch that the blind and dumb both 23 spoke and saw. And all the people were amazed, and said, Is this the Son of David?
 24 But when the Pharisees heard it, they said,
 This man doth not cast out the demons, but by Beelzebub the prince of the demons.
 25 And Jesus knew their thoughts, and said to them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and every city or house divided against itself, cannot stand.
 26 And if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself; how then can his kingdom 27 stand? And if I by Beelzebub cast out the demons, by whom do your sons cast them out? wherefore they shall be your judges.
 28 But if I by the Spirit of God cast out the demons, then hath the kingdom of God sudden-29 ly come to you. For how can one enter into a strong man's house, and plunder his goods, unless he first bind the strong man? then 30 indeed he may plunder his house. He who is not with me is against me; and he who gathereth not with me scattereth.
 31 Wherefore I say unto you, All other sin and blasphemy may be forgiven to men;
 but the blasphemy against the Spirit shall 32 not be forgiven to men. And whosoever speaketh a word against the Son of man,

it may be forgiven him; but whosoever speaketh against the Holy Spirit, it shall not be forgiven him, either in this state, or in that to come. Either call the tree good, 33 and its fruit good; or else call the tree corrupt, and its fruit corrupt; for the tree is known by its fruit. Ye offspring of vipers, 34 how can ye, being evil, speak good things?
 for out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. The good man out of his 35 good treasure, bringeth forth good things;
 and the evil man out of the evil treasure, bringeth forth evil things. But I say to 36 you, That for every pernicious word that men shall speak, they shall give an account in the day of judgment. For by thy words 37 thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned.

Then some of the Scribes and of the Pha- 38 risees spoke, saying, Teacher, we desire to see a sign from thee. But he answered 39 and said to them, An evil and an adulterous race seeketh after a sign; and no sign shall be given to it, unless the sign of the prophet Jonah. For as Jonah was three days and 40 three nights in the belly of the fish, so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth. The men 41 of Nineveh shall rise up in the judgment with this generation, and will condemn it; because they repented at the preaching of Jonah; and, behold, a greater than Jonah is here. The queen of the south shall rise 42 up in the judgment with this generation, and will condemn it! because she came from a distant country to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and, behold, a greater than Solomon is here.

Now when an unclean spirit is gone out 43

prophecy to the Christ, as he explains, 'Behold my servant, the Messiah,' Isa. xlii. 1.

21. In his name] The present Hebrew has, in his law; but the reading here is supported by all the versions and manuscripts.

23. Is this the Son] From the other places where πρωτος occurs, to render by a negative would pervert the sense, chap. vii. 16; Mark iv. 21, and xiv. 19; Luke vi. 39.

27. By Beelzebub] Our Lord replies to the malicious objection, 1. That it is a maxim of common sense, that if Satan cast out Satan, he opposes his own interest, and subverts his own kingdom. 2. That if he cast out demons by Beelzebub, then their sons, or kindred, or scholars, must do the same, who used his name in expelling demons. See Mark ix. 38; Luke ix. 49. They shall be your judges, and their testimony will be my apology. The Greek here and ver. 24, is Beelzebub. See ix. 34.

31. May be forgiven] So Campbell and others render in the potential mood; as it could not be our Lord's intention to say that all other sin will, in fact, be forgiven.—Against the Spirit] Many consider the blasphemy as consisting in their ascribing the miracles of Jesus to Beelzebub, rather than to the Spirit of God; compare ver. 24, and Mark iii. 30. This discovered such hardness, hatred of truth, and malice, that such men would be left to their own blindness and impenitence, and perish for ever.

32. Against the Son of man] Such as calling him a glutton, a wine-bibber, a friend of publicans and sinners, a deceiver of the people, a demoniac.—In this state] Grotius observes that our Lord opposes some of the errors of the Pharisees, who maintained the final happiness of every Jew; and that the sins which were not forgiven in this state, would be at death, or in the future; and that He meant to assure them that the sin against the Spirit would never be forgiven. The Jerusalem Gemara states, 'Repentance and the day of expiation alone as to one third part, (i. e. of sins,) and corrections as to another third part; and death wipes it off.' This last third part is expiated by death; and they found this on Isa. xxii. 14. This was founding all their hope on themselves, and Jesus aimed to expose their error, and undeceive them. Compare Mark ii. 19; and Luke xii. 10.

33. Call the tree good] Newcome explains, suppose the tree good, &c. Grotius understands it as if our Lord had said, 'Since you cannot but allow that my life and the tendency of my doctrine are good, be not so inconsistent as to suppose I am a confederate with Beelzebub.' What follows supports this sense.

35. (o) Of the heart.—Griesb.

36. Pernicious word] Several have shown that this is the sense of αἵμας when applied to things or words. It comprises all the vices of the tongue.

38. A sign] From heaven, and that instantly. Perhaps they expected him to come in the clouds of heaven, Dan. vii. 13; or, they asked such a sign as was given at his baptism.

40. In the belly] Some critics suppose that the great air-cavity found in the whale is meant by κόιλια here. It is large enough to contain a man; and a man might live in it. During a storm the whale often lodges two of her young therein.

43—45. When an unclean] This comparison is designed of a man, he passeth through dry places, 44 seeking rest, and he findeth none. Then he saith, I will return to my house, whence I came out; and when he is come, he findeth it empty, swept, and set in order, 45 Then goeth he, and taketh with him seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and they enter in and dwell there: and the last state of that man is worse than the first.

 Thus will it be also to this wicked generation.

46 Now while he yet spoke to the people, behold, his mother and his brethren stood 47 without, desiring to speak with him. Then one said to him, Behold, thy mother and thy brethren stand without, desiring to 48 speak with thee. But he answered and said unto him that told him, Who is my 49 mother? and who are my brethren? And he stretched forth his hand towards his disciples, and said, Behold my mother and my 50 brethren! For whosoever shall do the will of my Father who is in heaven, is my brother, and sister, and mother.

CHAPTER XIII.

A. D. 31. The parable of the sower, and the explanation of it; those of the dornel, mustard seed, leaven, hidden treasure, pearl, and the draw-net; Christ despised by his countrymen.

1 THE same day Jesus went out of the house, and sat by the side of the lake.
 2 And great multitudes were gathered together to him, so that he went into the vessel, and sat down; but the whole multitude 3 stood on the shore. And he spoke many things to them in parables, saying, Behold 4 a sower went forth to sow; And as he sowed, some seeds fell by the way side, and 5 the birds came and devoured them. Some fell upon rocky places, where they had not much earth; and they immediately sprang up, because they had no depth 6 of earth: But when the sun was risen, they were scorched; and because they had not root they withered. And some fell 7 among thorns; and the thorns sprang up and choked them. But others fell into good 8 ground, and brought forth fruit, some a hundred-fold, some sixty, some thirty. He 9 that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

And the disciples came, and said to 10 him, Why speakest thou to them in parables? He answered and said to them, Be- 11 cause to you it is given to know the secrets of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not yet given. For whosoever hath much, 12 to him shall be given, and he shall have more; but whosoever hath little, from him shall be taken away even that which he hath. I therefore speak to them in para- 13 bles; because seeing, they see not; and hearing, they hear not, nor understand.
 And in them is again fulfilled the prophecy 14 of Isaiah, which saith, Ye hear indeed, but will not understand; and ye see indeed, but will not perceive. For this people's 15 heart is become gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed; lest they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and be converted, and I should heal them. But happy are 16 your eyes, for they see; and your ears, for they hear. For verily I say to you, that 17 many prophets and righteous men have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard
 them.

Hear ye therefore the parable of the 18
 sower. When one heareth the doctrine 19 concerning the kingdom, and mindeth it not, the wicked one cometh and snatcheth away that which was sown in his heart.
 This is what was sown by the way side.
 And that which was sown on rocky places, 20 to illustrate the incorrigible state of the Jews. Some partial reform had been effected by the ministry of John; but they soon relapsed, and became more hardened in sin, and more ripe for ruin; and notwithstanding his own instructions and miracles, they would persist till destruction fell on them.

47. Thy brethren] Nephews and cousins were thus called by the Jews; Abraham called Lot his brother, Gen. xiii. 8. Laban called Jacob his brother, though only his cousin, see note, chap. xiii. 55.

CHAP. XIII. 3. In parables] The word παραβολή has all the extent of signification of the Hebrew מָשָׁל, mashal. It signifies a comparison of any kind, a proverb, figure, or anything expressed in poetic diction. In some of the instances here recorded, parable is proper, in others it simply means comparison.

2. The vessel] Wakefield observes, that a particular vessel is uniformly specified, which was kept on the lake for the use of Jesus and his disciples. It probably belonged to Peter and Andrew. This is supported by Mark iii. 9; Luke v. 3; viii. 22.

5. Rocky places] Not stony, as these may be, and are found in some rich grounds. What is meant here is evidently continued rock, with a very thin cover of earth.

8. A hundred-fold] Herodotus relates that a district in Lybia produced a hundred fold; and Babylonia two or three hundred.

11. The secrets] Campbell so renders, and observes that the moral truths here alluded to, are as far from being mysteries, that is, doctrines incomprehensible, as any thing in the world can be. The word in scriptural use has only two senses, either denoting a doctrine or fact not made known, or the spiritual or moral sense of a parable, or any symbolical action, representation, or vision. It is probably in the latter sense our Lord used the word to denote that he explained to them the meaning of his parables. But to them it is not given, that is, not yet, for a time was to come, when all was to be made known, chapter xxiii. 19; x. 26, 27.

12. Hath much—hath little] The original words must have the sense given, or otherwise they would be absurd.

14, 15. Of Isaiah] The prophet predicted the future obstinacy, unbelief, and wickedness of the Jews. This prediction was evidently fulfilled in many who heard our Lord, and who saw his miracles.

19. This is what] This explanation of the parable is highly useful for explaining our Lord's other parables.

- is he who heareth the word, and immediately with joy receiveth it; Yet not having it rooted in himself, he endureth but for a short time; for when affliction or persecution ariseth because of the word, he immediately falleth away. And that which was sown among thorns is he, who heareth the word; but the anxious care of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches choke the word, and it becometh unfruitful. But that which was sown on good ground is he who heareth the word, and mindeth it; who also beareth fruit, and bringeth forth, one a hundred fold, one sixty, and one thirty.
- Another parable he put forth to them, saying, The kingdom of heaven may be compared to a man who sowed good seed in his field: But while men slept, his enemy came and sowed darnel among the wheat, and departed. But when the blade had sprung up, and brought forth fruit, then appeared the darnel also. So the servants of the householder came near and said to him, Sir, didst not thou sow good seed in thy field? whence then hath it darnel? He said to them, An enemy hath done this. The servants said to him, Wilt thou then that we go and gather them up? But he said, No; lest while ye gather up the darnel, ye root up also the wheat with it. Let both grow together until the harvest; and in the time of harvest I will say to the reapers, Gather up first the darnel, and bind it in bundles to burn; but gather the wheat into my barn.
- Another parable he put forth to them, saying, The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard-seed, which a man took, and sowed in his field; Which indeed is the smallest of all seeds; but when it is grown, it is the greatest of herbs, and becometh a tree, so that the birds of the air come and lodge in its branches.
- Another parable he spoke to them, The kingdom of heaven is like leaven, which a woman took, and mixed with three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened. All

21. Falleth away] Newcome admits that the original term here has this meaning. Such a hearer, when persecution arises, becomes an apostate. The truth he professed had no hold on his heart and affections.

25. Darnel] Forskal says, 'It is well known to the people of Aleppo. It grows among corn, and bears a strong resemblance to wheat. If the seeds remain mixed with the meal, they occasion dizziness to those who eat of the bread. The seeds are separated by a van. In some places they are pulled up in the harvest by the hand.'

32. Smallest of all seeds] One of the smallest of those which produce plants whose stems grow into a woody substance. We learn from chap. xvii. 20, that a grain of mustard seed was proverbial for expressing a very small quantity.—Becometh a tree] Simon had a mustard tree capable of being ascended by climbing. Another had three branches, these things spoke Jesus to the multitude in parables; and without a parable spoke he not to them: So that it was fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying, I will open my mouth in parables; I will utter things secret from the foundation of the world.

Then Jesus sent away the multitude, and went into a house, and his disciples came near to him, saying, Explain to us the parable of the darnel in the field. He answered and said to them, He that soweth the good seed is the Son of man; The field is the world; the good seed are the sons of the kingdom; but the darnel are the sons of the wicked one; The enemy that sowed it is the devil; the harvest is the end of this state, and the reapers are the angels. As therefore, the darnel is gathered and burned in the fire: so shall it be in the end of this state. The Son of man will send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all who cause offence, and those who commit iniquity; And shall cast them into a furnace of fire; and there will be wailing and gnashing of teeth. Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

Again, the kingdom of heaven is like to a treasure hid in a field; which when a man hath discovered, he keepeth it secret, and for joy thereof goeth and selleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field.

Again, the kingdom of heaven is like to a merchant seeking goodly pearls; Who, when he had found one pearl of great price, went and sold all that he had, and bought it.

Again, the kingdom of heaven is like to a net, cast into the sea, enclosing fish of every kind: Which when it was full, men drew to shore, and sat down, and gathered the good into vessels, but cast the bad away. So shall it be at the end of this state: the angels shall come forth, and separate the wicked from among the righteous, And shall cast them into the furnace of fire: and there will be wailing and gnashing of one of which furnished a shade for potters to work under, Jerusalem Talmud.

33. Three measures] Three sata made an ephah, the quantity which the Jews were accustomed to mix. See Gen. xviii. 6; Jud. vi. 9.

35. In parables] The reference is to Ps. lxxviii. 2; and it is evident that the evangelist accommodates the words to the present occasion.

40. Of this state] As there may be a reference to the awful destruction of Jerusalem, as well as the consummation of all things, this state is preferred to the world, or to age, as including both.

44. The design of this and the next parable is to represent the happiness which the gospel confers, and that we should deem no labour, no sacrifice too great, in order to enjoy its benefits. In the concealment of the treasure, we

51 teeth. [Jesus saith to them], Have ye understood all these things? They say 52 to him, Yes, Master. Then said he to them, Every Scribe therefore instructed in the doctrine of the kingdom of heaven is like to a householder, who bringeth forth out of his store-house new things and old.

53 And it came to pass when Jesus had finished these parables, that he departed
54 thence. And when he had come to Nazareth, his own country, he taught them in their synagogue, so that they were amazed, and said, Whence hath this man this wisdom, and these mighty works? Is not this the carpenter's son? Is not the woman, called Mary, his mother? And are not James, and Joses, and Simon, and Judas his brethren? And are not all his sisters with us? Whence then hath this man all these things? And they were offended at him. But Jesus said to them, A prophet is not without honour, except in his own 55 country, and in his own house. And he did not many mighty works there, because of their unbelief.

CHAPTER XIV.

A. D. 32. Herod's opinion of Christ; John the Baptist beheaded; Jesus feedeth five thousand, walketh on the lake, and landing at Genesareth, healeth the sick.

1 At that time Herod the tetrarch heard
2 of the fame of Jesus, And said to his servants, This is John the Baptist; he is risen from the dead; and therefore mighty works are wrought by him.

3 For Herod had laid hold on John, and bound him, and put him in prison because 4 of Herodias, his brother Philip's wife. For John had said to him, It is not lawful for 5 thee to have her. And when Herod would have put him to death, he feared the multitude, because they accounted John as a prophet. But when Herod's birthday was kept, the daughter of Herodias danced before them, and pleased Herod. Upon which he promised with an oath to give her whatsoever she should ask. And she, having been before instructed by her mother, said, Give me here the head of John the Baptist in a basin. And the king was grieved; yet because of his oath, and of his guests, he commanded it to be given her. And he sent, and John was beheaded in the prison. And his head was brought in 11 a basin, and given to the damsel; and she brought it to her mother. And his disciples came, and took up the body, and buried it, and went and told Jesus. When Jesus 13 heard of it, he departed thence by vessel into a desert-place privately; and when the people had heard thereof, they followed him on foot out of the cities.

And Jesus went forth, and saw a great 14 multitude, and was moved with compassion towards them; and he healed their sick. And towards evening, his disciples came to 15 him, saying, This is a desert place, and the day is now advanced; send the multitudes away, that they may go into the towns, and buy food. But Jesus said to them, They 16 need not go; give them food to eat. And 17 they say to him, We have here but five loaves, and two fishes. He said, Bring 18 them hither to me. And he commanded 19 the multitudes to place themselves on the grass, and took the five loaves, and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, he blessed, and broke, and gave the loaves to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitudes. And they all ate, and were filled: and they 20 took up of the fragments, twelve large bas-

have a picture of human nature, not a recommendation of the fact. The hidden treasure means a valuable mine.

51. Jesus saith to them] This has the appearance of a marginal annotation. It is wanting in two of the oldest manuscripts, and four of the ancient versions.

52. Instructed in the kingdom] The Scribes were the accustomed teachers of the law; and a teacher of the gospel will be like a householder, who bringeth from his store provisions recently and formerly deposited. He will possess a store of new and old religious truths.

55. Carpenter's son] When the word τεκτων stands alone, it denotes a carpenter. See Sept. 1 Kings xxii. 6; Isa. xli. 7; and Zech i. 20.—Are not James] From chap. x. 3, we learn that James was the son of Alphaeus, and is the person here meant, because James is called the Lord's brother, Gal. i. 19; and therefore it seems most probable, that the Mary here mentioned was the wife of Alphaeus, and related to Joseph, the legal and supposed father of Jesus, by marriage.

CHAP. XIV. 2. This is John] Bishop Pearce renders here, and Mark vi. 14, interrogatively, as more agreeable to Luke ix. 7, 8. Is this John the Baptist?—Mighty works] 'The powers work in him,' is the version of Dr. Middleton; and he supposes there may be a reference to the Jewish opinion of the invisible powers.

4. To have her] That is, as his wife, her husband Philip, being then alive. John acted faithfully in thus reproving vice, and maintaining the authority of the law, Levit. xviii. 16, and xx. 11.

6. Birth-day] Pearce supposes that this means the day of his accession to the throne, which in the oriental style was denominated their 'birth-day.' Comp. Ps. ii. 6.

9. Because of his oath] With what simplicity doth Matthew relate this most atrocious deed! He even makes that allowance for him which all the circumstances of the case admitted. Yet it is not impossible but all this had been previously arranged between Herodias and Herod; and the sorrow which Herod expressed might be feigned as a cover to his sin, and to mitigate the displeasure of the people.

13, 14. And when Jesus had heard of it] That is, of what Herod had done to John, he withdrew thence. 'This is more natural than to include what is said concerning John in a parenthesis.—Went out] That is of the vessel.'

15. A desert place] From the circumstance mentioned, the reality of the miracle became more strikingly manifest, See chap. xv. 33.

19. He blessed] The form of giving thanks to God among the Jews, was by using words, which began thus, Blessed be God, &c. Hence the whole thanksgiving was called the blessing, from the first word used.

20. Large baskets] The word καθρις seems to denote a 21 kets full. And those that had eaten were about five thousand men, besides women and children.

22 And immediately Jesus constrained his disciples to get into the vessel, and to go before him to the other side, while he sent the multitudes away. And when he had sent the multitudes away, he went up a mountain privately to pray; and when the evening had come he was there alone.

24 But the vessel was now in the midst of the lake, tossed by the waves; for the wind was contrary. And in the fourth watch of the night Jesus went to them, walking on the lake. And when the disciples saw him walking on the lake, they were troubled, saying, It is an apparition, and they cried out for fear. But Jesus immediately spoke to them, saying, Take courage; it is I; be not afraid. And Peter answered him and said, Master, if it be thou, bid me come to thee on the water. And he said, Come. Then Peter went down from the vessel, and walked on the water to go to Jesus. But when he found the wind hoisterous, he was afraid; and beginning to sink, he cried, saying, Lord, save me. And immediately Jesus stretched forth his hand, and took hold of him, and said to him, O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?

32 And when they had come into the vessel, the wind ceased. Then they who were in the vessel came and did him homage, saying, Truly thou art the Son of God.

34 And when they had passed over, they came into the land of Gennesaret. And when the men of that place knew him, they sent out into all the surrounding country, and brought to him all that were diseased; and besought him that they might only touch the border of his garment; and as many as touched were made perfectly sound.

vessel of larger capacity than σκαφος, and it seems to have been carried by men, and not by beasts.

25. Walking on the lake] The Egyptian hieroglyphic to denote an impossibility, was two feet walking on water. This action was miraculous.

31. Didst thou doubt?] Peter was thus taught that when an individual doubted the divine power, a miracle could not be wrought.

33. The Son of God] What idea those had of the person of our Lord, who now addressed him, it is not easy to ascertain. From witnessing his amazing power in feeding the multitudes, and now controlling the winds and the waves, it is natural to think, that they considered him as one greater than any of the prophets.

34, 35. Land of Gennesaret] This extended about thirty furlongs along the lake of the same name, and was about twenty in breadth.—Knew him] He had been there before. See chap. viii. 24.

CHAP. XV. 2. The tradition] Injunctions delivered down by their ancestors, but not written in the law of Moses. This they call the oral law, and pretend it was delivered by Moses to the elders of Israel and the priests, and

CHAPTER XV.

A. D. 32. Christ reproveth the Scribes and Pharisees for their traditions; healeth the woman of Canaan's daughter; and feedeth four thousand, &c.

THEN came near to Jesus Scribes and Pharisees, from Jerusalem, saying, Why do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? for they wash not their hands when they eat bread. But he answered and said to them, Why do ye also transgress the commandment of God by your tradition? For God commanded, saying, Honour thy father and mother: and, He who revileth father and mother, let him assuredly die. But ye say, Whosoever shall say to his father or his mother, An offering is every thing of mine by which thou mightest be profited; He shall not then honour his father or his mother. Thus have ye made the commandment of God of no effect by your tradition. Ye hypocrites, well hath Isaiah prophesied of you, saying, This people draw nigh to me with their mouth, and honour me with their lips; but their heart is far from me. But in vain do they worship me, teaching doctrines the commandments of men. And he called the multitude, and said to them, Hear, and understand. Not that which I goeth into the mouth defileth the man; but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth the man. Then came his disciples, and said to him, Knowest thou that the Pharisees were offended, when they heard this discourse. But he answered and said, Every plant which my heavenly Father hath not planted, shall be rooted up. Let them alone: they are blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both will fall into the ditch. Then answered Peter and said to him, Explain to us this comparison. And Jesus said, Are ye also still without understanding? Do ye not understand, that whatsoever entereth into the mouth goeth into the belly, and is cast has been transmitted through successive generations to Judah, the Holy, who compiled and digested it into the Mishnah, to explain which the two Gemara or Talmuds were written.

4. Honour] Succour, or assist with thy substance. See ver. 6; Acts xxviii. 10; and 1 Tim. v. 9.

5. An offering is] Mark uses the word corban; and Campbell has clearly proved that this was not any thing actually given in the temple, but a kind of imprecation on himself, if he ever gave any thing to support his aged parents. In case a son repented of such a rash vow, and gave any thing to his parents, the doctrine of the Pharisees was, that what was so given as a sacred thing belonged to God; and they had a right to claim it.

7. Prophesied of you] That is, used words that are applicable to you. See Isa. xxix. 13.

9. Doctrines] There is a contrast intended between the authority of God and of men; and in his worship what is not sanctioned by his authority must be vain.

15. This comparison] Or proverb. Parable is here wholly improper. Peter desired our Lord to explain his words, verse 11.

18 out into the vault? But those things which proceed out of the mouth come forth from the heart; and they defile the man. For out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, 20 false testimonies, calumnies. These are the things which defile the man; but to eat with unwashed hands defileth not the man.

21 Then Jesus went thence, and withdrew into the parts about Tyre and Sidon. 22 And, behold, a Canaanitish woman came out of those borders, and cried to him, saying, Have pity on me, Master, son of David; my daughter is grievously afflicted 23 with a demon. But he answered her not a word. And his disciples came near and besought him, saying, Send her away; for 24 she crieth after us. Then he answered and said, I am not sent but to the lost sheep 25 of the house of Israel. Then she came and did him homage, saying, Master, help 26 me. But he answered and said, It is not proper to take the children's bread, and to 27 cast it to dogs. And she said, True, Master; yet the dogs eat of the crumbs which 28 fall from their master's table. Then Jesus answered and said to her, O woman, great is thy faith: be it unto thee even as thou desirest. And her daughter was cured from that very hour.

29 And Jesus departed thence, and came nigh to the lake of Galilee: and went up 30 a mountain, and sat down there. And great multitudes came to him, having with them those that were lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, and laid them down at the feet of Jesus; and he healed them: 31 So that the multitude wondered, when they perceived that the dumb spoke, the maimed were made whole, the lame walked and the blind saw: and they glorified the God of Israel. 32 Then Jesus called his disciples to him, and said, I have compassion on the multitude, because they have now continued with me three days, and have nothing to eat; and I am not willing to send them away fasting, lest they grow faint on the way. And his disciples say to him, 33 Whence should we have so many loaves in the desert, as to satisfy so great a multitude? And Jesus saith to them, How many 34 loaves have ye? And they said, Seven, and a few little fishes. And he commanded 35 the multitude to place themselves on the ground. And he took the seven loaves and 36 the fishes, and gave thanks, and broke them, and gave to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitude. And they all ate, and were 37 filled; and they took up of the fragments which remained, seven baskets full. Now 38 they that ate were four thousand men, besides women and children. And he 39 sent away the multitude, and went into the vessel, and came into the borders of Magdala.

CHAPTER XVI.

A. D. 32. The Pharisees require a sign; Jesus cautions his disciples against the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees; the people's opinion of him; Peter's confession; he foretelleth his death, and reprovereth Peter, &c.

THEN the Pharisees and the Sadducees 1 came near, and tempting Jesus desired that he would show them a sign from heaven. He answered and said to them, When it is 2 evening, ye say, It will be fair weather: for the sky is red. And in the morning, 3 It will be stormy weather to-day: for the sky is red and lowering. Hypocrites, ye can discern the appearance of the sky; but can ye not discern the signs of the times? 4 A wicked and an adulterous race seeketh a sign; and there shall no sign be given to it, but the sign of the prophet Jonah. And he left them, and departed.

Now when his disciples were come to the 5 other side, they had forgotten to take loaves with them. Then Jesus said to them, 6 Take heed and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees. And they 7 reasoned among themselves, saying, It is because we have taken no loaves with us.

17. Fault] The Vulgate has given the genuine sense. See note on Matt. vii. 19.

22. Son of David] This woman evidently had some knowledge of our Lord, and had probably seen or heard of his miracles, through her intercourse with the Galileans.

23. After us] This happened while Jesus and his disciples were on the way. But when Jesus entered into a house, Mark vii. 22, the woman came and fell at his feet.

24. I am not sent] Our Lord was particularly sent to the Jews. Compare chap. x. 5, 6; Acts xiii. 46; Rom. xv. 8.

26. Dogs] So the Jews called all the heathens. See Philip. iii. 2, and Rev. xxii. 15. The reply of our Lord seems to have been a strong proverbial expression, and he knew the woman's faith, and the miracle which he would work in answer to it, John vi. 6.

30. Maimed] The original word, καλλους, properly signifies those who had lost a hand, arm, leg, or foot, &c. Such persons have been always found, who have lost a limb by disease, or accident, or in war. To supply a lost limb was a creation, and therefore an astonishing miracle, chap. v. 30; xviii. 8.

34—38. The miracle previously wrought supports our Lord's reproof, that his followers had little faith. This miracle falls short of that recorded in the former chapter; but, as Newcome remarks, there is no gradation as in fictitious histories; and this is a strong circumstance in favour of the truth of what is related.

39. Magdala] A place on the eastern side of the lake; from which it is probable that Mary was called Magdalene, that is, of Magdala.

CHAP. XVI. 1—3. The signs of the times] Such as were to be given to evince the appearance of the Messiah; and such as our Lord mentioned to the messengers of John. See ch. xii. 39, and xi. 5. Comp. Is. xxxv. 5.

5. To the other side] From Magdala to the western sea of Galilee and Bethsaida.

6. Leaven] Here means their corrupt doctrines. See 1 Cor. v. 6, 7.

8 But when Jesus perceived this, he said to them, O ye of little faith, why reason ye among yourselves, because ye have brought 9 no loaves with you? Do ye not yet understand; nor remember the five loaves of the five thousand, and how many large
10 baskets ye took up? Nor the seven loaves of the four thousand, and how many baskets ye took up? How is it that ye do not understand that I spoke not to you concerning bread, That ye should beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees? Then they understood how he did not bid them beware of the leaven of bread, but of the doctrine of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees.
13 When Jesus was coming into the parts of Cesarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, saying, Who do men say that I, the Son of man, am? And they said, Some, that thou art John the Baptist; some, Elijah; and others, Jeremiah, or one of the prophets.
15 He saith to them, But who say ye, that I am? And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. And Jesus answered and said to him, Happy art thou, Simon, son of Jonah, for flesh and blood hath not revealed this to thee, but my Father who is in heaven.
18 And I say also to thee, That thou art Peter, [A STONE]: and upon this very rock I will build my church, [CONGREGATION]; and the gates of hades shall not prevail against 19 it. And I will give to thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven. Then 20 charged he his disciples to tell no man that he was "the Christ."

From that time Jesus began to show 21 to his disciples, that he must go to Jerusalem, and suffer many things from the elders and chief priests and Scribes, and be killed, and be raised again on the third day. Then Peter took him aside, and began to reprove him, saying, Be it far from thee, Master; this shall by no means befall thee. But he turned, and said to Peter, 23 Get thee behind me, adversary; thou art an obstacle to me; for thou ragest not the things of God, but the things of men.

Then said Jesus to his disciples, if any 24 man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me. For whosoever desireth to save his life shall 25 lose it; and whosoever shall lose his life for my sake shall gain it. For what is a man 26 profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own life? or what shall a man give in ransom for his life? For the Son of 27 man will come in the glory of his Father with his angels; and then he will reward every man according to his works. Verily 28 I say to you, There are some standing here, who shall not taste of death, till they have seen the Son of man coming in his kingdom.

CHAPTER XVII.

A. D. 32. The transfiguration of Christ; he healeth a lunatic; foretelleth his own sufferings, and payeth tribute.

Now after six days Jesus taketh Peter, I

13. Cesarea Philippi] This was situate at the spring head of the Jordan, and was built by Philip, tetrarch of Galilee, in honour of Tiberius Cæsar. The name Philippi was added to distinguish it from the sea-port town of Cesarea, mentioned in the Acts, which was situate on the shore of the Mediterranean sea.

14. John the Baptist] Like Herod, some thought he was risen from the dead.—Elijah] The Pharisees believed, according to Josephus, that the souls of good men migrated into other bodies.

18. Peter] His name was Simon, but now honoured with this, which in Greek signifies a large stone, or fragment of a rock, as Cæphas does in Syriac. In the Hebrew, similar allusions to names often occur, Gen. xxvii. 3, 6, and xlix. 8, 16, 19.—Upon this rock] If our Lord had meant Peter he would have said 'upon thee' I will build. The action of Christ, or tone of his voice might make the sense of the terms plain. Peter could not be a foundation of it in any other sense than as an apostle and minister, who was honoured with success in his labours among the Jews, Acts ii. and as the first who preached to the Gentiles, Acts x. and xv. 7.—Gates of hades] The Hebrew sheol, and the Greek hades, imports the place of departed spirits; and death is the gate leading to this abode. Our Lord foretells, that however his disciples might be persecuted and put to death, this should not prevent, but rather contribute to the establishment of his church and kingdom.

19. The keys] Bearing the keys is a mark of office and rule. Comp. Isa. ix. 5, and xxii. 22; Rev. iii. 7. The power intended is explained by what follows.—Whatsoever thou shalt bind] The precise meaning of binding and loosing must be ascertained from the use of the terms among the Jews; and by numerous quotations Lightfoot has proved that they refer to doctrines and not to persons, or to their explications of the law; and thus to bind is to oblige a person to do or forbear any thing in question, or to declare a thing commanded or forbidden; and to loose is to declare the thing indifferent and the person at liberty in respect to it. See note, chap. xviii. 18. 20. (o) Jesus.—Griesb.

22. To reprove him] The conduct of Peter discovers his yet imperfect views of the Saviour's kingdom, and the warmth of his temper.

23. Adversary] This is the import of the term Satan, which the context proves is used here, not as a proper name, but as an appellative. Peter, like the other apostles, seems to have thought our Lord's kingdom would be like the kingdoms of this world. How soon is Peter, the stone, turned to an adversary, opposing the scheme of God for the redemption of mankind.

25, 26. His life] As the term is the same in both verses, it ought to be rendered in the same manner. The expressions are proverbial, importing, it signifies nothing how much a man may gain, if it be at the expense of his life; and if this be true as to the present life, it must be so for a stronger reason, if a man lose his soul, or eternal life. Comp. Luke ix. 25.

28. Not taste of death] If 'to see death, or taste of death,' means simply dissolution, then the coming of Christ must refer to his figurative coming to punish the Jews.

CHAP. XVII. 1. After six days] Luke ix. 28, says, 'about eight days after,' reckoning the first and last in that number, which Matthew and Mark omit.—A high mountain] According to Jerom, it was an old tradition in his day, that this was Mount Tabor; but this is not probable, as our Lord was in the neighbourhood of Capernaum, which lay considerably north of Tabor.

James, and John his brother, and bringeth 2 them up a high mountain apart, And was transfigured before them; and his face shone 3 as the sun, and his raiment became white as the light. And behold there appeared to them Moses and Elijah talking with him.
 4 Then Peter spoke and said to Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here: if thou wilt, let us make here three booths; one 5 for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah. While he yet spoke, behold, a bright cloud surrounded them: and lo, a voice out of the cloud, which said, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; 6 hear ye him. And when the disciples heard it, they fell on their face and feared 7 greatly. And Jesus came near and touched them, and said, Arise, and be not afraid.
 8 And when they had raised their eyes, they saw no man, except Jesus only.
 9 And as they came down from the mountain, Jesus commanded them, saying, Tell the vision to no one, until the Son of man 10 be risen from the dead. And his disciples asked him, saying, Why then say the Scribes 11 that Elijah must come first? And Jesus answered and said to them, Elijah indeed doth come first, and restore all things.
 12 But I say to you, that Elijah is come already; and they acknowledged him not, but have done to him whatsoever they chose; in like manner the Son of man 13 also will thus suffer from them. Then the disciples understood that he spoke to them of John the Baptist.
 14 And when they had come to the multitude, a certain man came near him, kneel-15 ing down to him, and saying, Master, have pity on my son; for he is a lunatic and grievously afflicted: for he often falleth into the fire, and often into the water.
 16 And I brought him to thy disciples, and 17 they could not heal him. Then Jesus answered and said, O unbelieving and perverse race, how long shall I be with you?

 how long shall I endure you? bring him hither to me. Then Jesus rebuked the 18 demon; and he came out of him; and the child was healed from that very hour. Then 19
 the disciples came near to Jesus privately, and said, Why could not we cast him out?
 And Jesus said to them, Because of your 20 want of faith; for verily I say to you, If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say to this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove;
 and nothing shall be impossible to you.
 However, this kind is not cast out but by 21
 prayer and fasting.

And while they abode in Galilee, Jesus 22 said to them, The Son of man will be delivered up into the hands of men; And they 23 will kill him, and on the third day he shall be raised up. And they were exceedingly grieved.

And when they had come to Caper- 24
 naum, they that received the half-shekel came to Peter, and said, Doth not your Teacher pay the half-shekel? He saith,
 Yes. And when he came into the house, 25
 Jesus spoke first, saying, What thinkest thou, Simon? from whom do the kings of the earth take tribute or custom? from their own sons, or from strangers? Peter saith 26 to him, From strangers. Jesus saith to him, Then are the sons free. Notwith- 27 standing, lest we should give them offence, go to the lake, and cast a hook, and take up the fish which first cometh up; and when thou hast opened its mouth, thou shalt find a shekel; that take, and give to them for me and these.

CHAPTER XVIII.

A. D. 32. Christ teacheth his disciples to be humble, to avoid giving offence, and how to treat those who offend them, which he illustrates by the parable of the unforgiving servant.

At that time the disciples came near to 1

2. Transfigured] Not by a change of his form as a man, but by his face shining as the sun, &c.

3. Moses and Elijah] They appeared to do honour to Jesus as their God and Saviour; to whom they had borne testimony, and whose glory all their ministrations had been designed to advance.

4. Booths] A temporary shed made of boughs of trees seems to be meant here, and not a tent or tabernacle.

5. Surrounded them] Jesus, Moses, and Elijah. See Luke ix. 24.—Hear ye him] Pearce thinks that these words refer to Deut. xviii. 15, and that it was now declared from heaven, that Jesus was the prophet of whom Moses spake.

10. Asked him] The three disciples perhaps thought that Elijah was soon to come; and they were surprised, that they were commanded not to tell what they had seen.

11. And restore all] Campbell renders consummate, and Doddridge regulate. Grotius and Hammond conceive there is a reference to Mal. iv. 6, and that the sense is, 'He will restore, or turn the children with the fathers, by preaching repentance, and directing men to the Messiah.'
 Thus John completed the old dispensation and began the new.

12. They acknowledged him not] They acknowledged not that he was the person whom Malachi had spoken of;
 but they expected the prophet Elijah would literally come again as a preacher and reformer.

17. O unbelieving] Jesus knew that his power to cure this lunatic was doubted. See Mark ix. 22.

20. As a grain of] See note on chap. xiii. 32.—This mountain] Some think our Lord pointed to the mountain on which he had been transfigured.

21. This kind is not cast out] That is, the power to expel demons, and to effect cures of this kind, is to be acquired only by fasting and prayer.

24. The half-shekel] Every Jew paid this for the service of the temple: Exod. xxx. 13, &c. This was now demanded by the authority of the high-priest and the sanhedrim.

25. Or custom] Wakefield omits these words, and Newcome observes that they have the appearance of a gloss.

27. A shekel] This might have been dropped into the sea, or lake, and the fish have accidentally swallowed it. But this shows our Lord's perfect knowledge and power; knowledge penetrating into the bowels of this fish, and power in bringing it to Peter's hook, though he was at a distance.

Jesus, saying, Who is the greatest in the 2 kingdom of heaven? Then Jesus called to him a little child, and set him in the midst
 3 of them, And said, Verily I say to you, Except ye be changed, and become as little children, ye cannot enter into the kingdom 4 of heaven. Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, he is the 5 greatest in the kingdom of heaven. And whosoever shall receive one like this little 6 child in my name, receiveth me. But whosoever shall cause one of those little ones who believe in me to offend, it were better for him that an upper millstone were hung about his neck, and he drowned in the depth of the sea.
 7 Alas for the world because of occasions of offending! for it must needs be that occasions of offending come; but alas for that man by whom the occasion of offend-8 ing cometh! Wherefore if thy hand or thy foot cause thee to offend, cut them off, and cast them from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life lame or maimed, than, having two hands or two feet, to be cast 9 into everlasting fire. And if thine eye cause thee to offend, pluck it out, and cast
 it from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life with one eye, than, having two eyes, to be cast into hell-fire.
 10 Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones; for I say to you, That their angels in heaven always behold the 12 face of my Father who is in heaven. What think ye? If a man have a hundred sheep, and one of them be gone astray, doth he not leave the ninety and nine on the mountains, and go and seek that which is gone 13 astray? And if so be that he find it, verily

I say to you, he rejoiceth more for that sheep, than for the ninety and nine which went not astray. Even so it is not the will 14 of your Father who is in heaven, that one of these little ones should be lost. For the 11 Son of man is come to save that which was lost."

Moreover, if thy brother shall sin against 15 thee, go tell him his fault, when thou and he are alone; if he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother. But if he will not 16 hear thee, then take with thee one or two more, that by the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established.
 And if he shall neglect to hear them, tell it 17 to the congregation; but if he neglect to hear the congregation, let him be to thee as a heathen and a publican. Verily I say 18 to you, Whatsoever ye shall bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever ye shall loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven. Again I say to you, That if two 19 of you shall agree on earth as touching any thing that they shall ask, it shall be done for them by my Father who is in heaven.
 For where two or three are gathered toge- 20 ther in my name, there am I in the midst of them.

Then came Peter to him, and said, Mas- 21 ter, how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? till seven times?
 Jesus saith to him, I say not to thee, Until 22
 seven times; but, Until seventy times seven.
 In this the heavenly kingdom is like to a 23 certain king, who chose to reckon with his servants. And when he had begun to 24 reckon, one was brought to him who owed him ten thousand talents. But as he had 25 not wherewith to pay, his Lord commanded

CHAP. XVIII. 1. Who is the greatest? From what follows, it is plain that they inquired which of them should be the greatest. Whether Peter or the two sons of Zebedee raised this dispute, is uncertain; but it is evident some one had.

3. Be changed. That is, lay aside your ambition and worldly pursuits.—Ye cannot enter. Cannot be so much as members of it, much less be the greatest in it.

4. Shall humble himself. Be as teachable and as indifferent to the great things of this world.—He that is most spiritual shall be regarded by me as greatest here, and shall be raised to the highest degree of glory hereafter.

5. One like this little child. Or disciple manifesting such a child-like disposition.

6. Mill-stone. This mode of punishment is not mentioned in the law of Moses; but it was often inflicted among the Greeks, especially on a parricide. See Elsnor.

7. It must needs be. Considering the state of human nature, this may be expected, 1 Cor. xi. 19.

10. Their angels. The Jews believed, that each man had his guardian angel; and this passage supports the opinion.
 See Heb. i. 14; Acts v. 19; and viii. 26, &c.

11. This verse is transposed, as affording a better connection. Some manuscripts omit this verse, and Griesbach considers it doubtful. It may have been supplied from Luke xix. 10.

12, 13. He rejoiceth more. It is the nature of joy to spring up and rise high from some extraordinary circumstance, as from the recovery of what one had lost, or from the unexpected communication of some great good.

15, 16. If thy brother. Thy Christian brother. Our Lord here teaches those who are despised, how to act.—Sin against thee. By injustice, personal injury, or calumny.—
 Comp. Deut. xix. 15.

17. Congregation. The term church is now ambiguous, and the scope of the place requires, that the dispute should be referred to the particular assembly, or congregation to which the parties belonged. Newcome's marginal version is congregation.

18. Ye shall bind. Proceeding thus, your decisions shall be ratified in heaven when ye admit to, or cut off an individual from christian fellowship. What was promised to Peter, chap. xvi. 19, is here given to every christian community.

19. If two of you. This power shall not only belong to you as a body, but if any two of you, assembled in my name, shall ask any thing in prayer with faith, and according to the will of God, chap. xxi. 21, 22, and 1 John v. 14, for the confirmation of your decisions, it shall be done for you. Doddridge considers that this refers to a miraculous answer to prayer.

20. In my name. By my authority, and as my disciples.
 —There am I in the midst of them. If the promise respect Christian assemblies, our Lord engages to be so with them, as to show his regard to their prayers by every suitable interposition of his divine power, compare John xiv. 13, 14;
 and this is one proof, that Jesus possessed those attributes which cannot belong to a creature. Compare chapter xxviii. 20.

24. Ten thousand talents. A Jewish talent in silver was him to be sold, and his wife, and children, and all that he had, and payment to be made. The servant therefore fell down, and did him homage, saying, Lord, have patience with me, and I will pay thee all.

27 Then the Lord of that servant was moved with compassion, and released him, and so far forgave him the debt. But this servant went out, and found one of his fellow-servants, who owed him a hundred denarii; and he laid hold on him, and took him by the throat, saying, Pay me what thou owest.

29 And his fellow-servant fell down at his feet, and besought him, saying, Have patience with me, and I will pay thee all.

30 And he would not; but went and cast him into prison, till he should pay the debt.

31 So when his fellow-servants saw what was done, they were much grieved, and came and told their lord all that had been done.

32 Then his lord, after that he had called him, said to him, Thou wicked servant, I released thee, and so far forgave thee all that debt, because thou desiredst me: Oughtest not thou also to have had compassion on thy fellow-servant, even as I had compassion on thee? And his lord was wroth, and delivered him up to the jailors, till he should pay all that was due to him. Thus shall my heavenly Father also do to you, if, from your hearts, ye forgive not every one his brother.^o

CHAPTER XIX.

A. D. 33. Christ answereth the Pharisees concerning divorces, he receiveth little children, and instructeth a young man how to attain eternal life; the snare of riches; parable of the labourers.

- 1 AND it came to pass, when Jesus had ended these sayings, that he departed from Galilee, and came into the borders of Judea, by the side of the Jordan; And great multitudes followed him; and he healed them there.
- 3 Then the Pharisees came near to him, in our money, 333. 11s. 10d; and ten thousand would amount to above three millions and a half. This seems to be used for many talents, and signifies how much we are indebted to God.

25. His wife and children] This was the established law of antiquity. Compare 2 Kings iv. and Neh. v. 6.

27. And so far forgave] What follows demands limitation. The master for the present released him, but did not give up his right to the debt due to him. This is all which the servant desired, ver. 26, and all which is represented as done, ver. 34.

28. Denarii] A Roman penny, and worth about sevenpence of our money. It was the wages of a day-labourer for a day, chap. xx. 2.

34. Jailors] They were often employed to administer the torture; for the debtor was absolutely in the power of the creditor.

35. The occasion of the parable and the inference drawn should ever be kept in view. The measure we mete will be measured to us again.

CHAP. XIX. 1. By the side] For this sense of παρὰ, compare chap. ix. 13; John vi. 22; Mark x. 1; and John x. 40.

tempting him, and saying, Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cause? And he answered and said to them, Have ye not read, that he who made them at the beginning made them male and female, And said, For this cause shall a man leave father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife; and they two shall be one flesh? Wherefore they are no more two but one flesh. What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder. They say to him, Why did Moses then command to give a bill of divorce, and to put her away? He saith to them, Moses, because of your perverse disposition, permitted you to put away your wives; yet from the beginning it was not so. And I say to you, Whosoever shall put away his wife, except for whoredom, and shall marry another, committeth adultery; and whoso marrieth her who is put away committeth adultery.

His disciples say to him, If the condition of a man be so with his wife, it is not good to marry. But he said to them, All men are not able to receive these words; but they only to whom it is given. For there are eunuchs who were so born from their mother's womb; and there are eunuchs who were made eunuchs by men; and there are eunuchs who have made themselves eunuchs for the sake of the kingdom of heaven. He that is able to receive and do so, let him receive and do it.

Then were brought to him little children, that he might put his hands on them, and pray: and the disciples reproved those who brought them. But Jesus said, Suffer the little children to come to me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven. And he laid his hands on them, and departed thence.

And behold one came near and said to him, Good Teacher, what good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life? And he 17

3. For every cause] Moses indeed permitted a man to dismiss his wife, on account of dislike, and other causes, comp. note, Deut. xxiv. 1, 6, and it is certain that in the time of our Lord, the Jews for the most trifling reason dismissed their wives. So Josephus relates that he divorced his wife because her temper did not please him. Our Lord adverts to the design of God in making but one man and one woman; and by his authority establishes the original intention of marriage. What was permitted to the Jews on 'account of their perverse dispositions,' he disallows; and only concedes to a man the power of putting away his wife for the actual violation of the marriage-covenant.

8. Perverse disposition] So Campbell renders, who has proved that the other, though apparently a more literal version, does not give the real sense.

12. Eunuchs] Some do not marry from a regard to religion. They abide single that they may have more leisure to serve God. The term eunuch is used in a different sense here from the two former instances.

14. Of such is] Parkhurst and Newcome, of such-like. Our old versions, 'for to such belongeth the kingdom of God,' which gives clearly the sense.

16. Pearce suspects that αἰσῶτος is spurious, as it is not said to him, Why callest thou me good? None is good but one, even God; but if thou desirest to enter into that life, keep 18 the commandments. He saith to him, Which? Jesus said, Thou shalt not commit murder. Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt 19 not bear false witness. Honour thy father and thy mother; and Thou shalt love 20 thy neighbour as thyself. The young man saith to him, All these things have I observed from my youth: what need I yet?

21 Jesus said to him, If thou desire to be perfect, go sell what thou hast, and give it to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in 22 heaven; and come, follow me. But when the young man heard these words, he went away sorrowful; for he had great possessions.
23 Then said Jesus to his disciples, Verily I say to you, That it is difficult for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of heaven.
24 And again I say to you, It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God. When his disciples heard 25 this, they were exceedingly amazed, saying: 26 What rich man can then be saved? But Jesus looked on them, and said to them, With men this is impossible; but with God all things are possible.
27 Then answered Peter and said to him, Behold, we have forsaken all, and followed 28 thee; what shall we therefore have? And Jesus said to them, Verily I say to you, That ye who have followed me, at the renovation, when the Son of man shall sit on the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of 29 Israel. And every one that hath left houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for the sake of my name, shall receive a hundred-fold, and shall inherit everlasting life.

CHAPTER XX.

BUT many that are first shall be last; 30 and the last first. For the kingdom of heaven is like to a householder, who went out early in the morning to hire labourers into his vineyard. And when he had 2 agreed with the labourers for a denarius a day, he sent them into his vineyard. And he went out about the third hour, and
3 saw others standing unemployed in the market-place; And he said to them, Go ye also into the vineyard; and whatsoever
4 is right, I will give you. And they went. Again he went out about the sixth and ninth
5 hour and did in like manner. And about the eleventh hour he went out, and found
6 others standing unemployed, and saith to them, Why stand ye here all the day unemployed? They say to him, because no one 7 hath hired us. He saith to them, Go ye also into the vineyard; and whatsoever is 8 right, ye shall receive. So when the evening was come: the owner of the vineyard saith to his steward, Call the labourers, and 9 give them their hire; and begin from the last unto the first. And when they came, 10 who were hired about the eleventh hour, they received every man a denarius. But 11 when the first came, they supposed that they should receive more; and they also received every man a denarius. And when 12 they received it they murmured against the householder, saying, These last have worked 12 but one hour, and thou hast made them used in the parallel places; and some few manuscripts want it; but the authorities for retaining it far outbalance these.

17. Why callest thou me good? Two old manuscripts, several ver., and some of the fathers, read τίς ἰσχυρὸς καὶ θεός. 'Why askest thou me concerning good? One only is good.' Griesbach admits this into the text. In opposition to this we have, besides the authority of an equal number of manuscripts, versions, and fathers, the parallel places in Mark x. and Luke xviii. and the strong internal evidence arising from the address of the young man.—But one, even God Our translators have rendered, but God only, Mark ii. 7, and this is the sense, though not the idiom; for our Lord meant that 'none is originally, essentially, and supremely good, but God.'

21. If thou desire to be perfect Such a conduct would have been perfection at that time when Christ might have been constantly followed.

24. Easier for a camel In describing an impossibility, or a strong degree of improbability, the Jewish rabbies were accustomed to say, 'It will not happen before a camel or elephant has crept through the eye of a needle.'

25. What rich man This question arose from their expectation of a grand temporal kingdom. The answer of our Lord implies, that God by his Spirit could so convince the rich, as to induce them to embrace the gospel, and to trust in him as their Saviour.

24. At the renovation The term παλιγγενεσία must here mean, not a change of heart, or conversion, but rather, a change of the state of the church, either when God destroyed the old, and established the new dispensation, or that grand renovation of all things at the resurrection. Both Josephus and Cicero use the term in this sense; and the Syriac supports both the sense given and the construction.

29. A hundred-fold Blessings of a hundred-fold value even here. Piety often receives here a reward in temporal good.

30. First shall be last The Jews who are first called into the kingdom of God, shall many of them be last in his favour; and the Gentiles who are called last shall be first.

CHAP. XX. 1. For the kingdom It is clear from the particle γὰρ, and from ver. 16, that the parable is designed to illustrate the assertion of the 30th verse.—Kingdom of heaven Campbell here, and chap. xviii. 23, renders 'administration of heaven.' The meaning is, The method adopted to engage men to attend to their own salvation, is like to a householder, &c. Thus Jesus first, and his apostles afterward, went forth to instruct and call men to repentance.

3. The third hour Or nine o'clock in the morning. The Jews began their day at six in the morning, and ended it at six in the evening. Dr. Whitby explains the first call in the morning of the earliest days of our Lord's ministry; that of the third hour of the mission of the apostles, chap. x; those of the sixth and ninth, of their preaching after the descent of the Spirit, first to the Jews in Judea, and then to those in other countries; and those called at the eleventh hour, of the calling of the Gentiles.

11. They murmured That this was the case with the equal to us, who have borne the burden 13 and heat of the day. But he answered one of them, and said, Companion, I do thee no wrong: didst thou not agree with me 14 for a denarius? Take what is thine, and depart: for it is my will to give to this last 15 even as unto thee. Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own? Is thine 16 eye evil, because I am good? Thus the last shall be first, and the first last; for many are called, but few are chosen.

 17 And as Jesus was going up to Jerusalem, he took the twelve disciples aside by the 18 way, and said to them, Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of man shall be delivered up to the chief priests and 19 Scribes, who will condemn him to die, And will deliver him up to the Gentiles, that they may mock, and scourge, and crucify him:
 but the third day he shall rise again.
 20 Then the mother of the sons of Zebedee came near to him, together with her sons, doing homage to him, and asking a certain 21 thing of him. And he said to her, What desirest thou? She saith to him, Grant that these my two sons may sit, the one on thy right, and the other on thy left, in thy king-22 dom. And Jesus answered and said, Ye know not what ye ask. Can ye drink of the cup, of which I am about to drink?
 23 They say to him, We can. Then he saith to them, Ye shall indeed drink of my cup; but to sit on my right hand, or on my left, is not mine to give, unless to those for whom it is prepared by my 24 Father. And when the ten heard this, they were moved with indignation against 25 the two brethren. But Jesus called them unto him, and said, Ye know that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and the great ones exercise arbitrary authority upon 26 them. It shall not be so among you; but

Jews on the admission of the Gentiles into the church, is manifest from a variety of scriptures: Acts xi. 2, 3; xiii. 45, &c. xvii. 5, 13; Rom. xi. 28.

13. Companion] Campbell has observed, that here the poverty of our language obliged translators to use the word friend for the two Greek words philos and swaigos. The former denotes always affection and regard, the latter does not; the latter was employed as a civil compellation to strangers and indifferent persons. It is the word which is used here, and chap. xxii. 12, and it was given by our Lord to the traitor Judas, chap. xxvi. 50.

15. Is it not lawful?] It would be improper to apply this to the future state, for then men will receive according to what they have done, whether it be good or bad; but in this life, it is evident that the favours of Divine Providence and grace are distributed in righteous sovereignty.—Is thine eye evil?] That is, envious. Here is an evident reference to that malignant aspect which is generally the attendant of a selfish and envious temper.

19. And will deliver] To Pilate and his soldiers. This is the third plain declaration which Jesus made to his disciples about his death. See chap. xvi. 21; xvii. 22.

21. What desirest thou?] Newcome thought it probable that Salome, James, and John were strongly impressed with our Lord's words, chap. xix. 28. Thus they still thought his kingdom was to be a temporal one.

whosoever among you desireth to be great, let him be your servant; And whosoever among you desireth to be chief, let him be your slave: Even as the Son of man came not to be served, but to serve, and to give his life a ransom for many.

And as they went out from Jericho, a 29 great multitude followed him. And, be- 30 hold, when two blind men, who were sitting by the wayside, heard that Jesus was passing by, they cried out, saying, Master, son of David, have pity on us. And the mul- 31 titude charged them to be silent; but they cried the more, saying, Master, son of David, have pity on us. Then Jesus stood still, and 32 called them and said, What desire ye that I should do for you? They say to him, Master, 33 that our eyes may be opened. So Jesus 34 had compassion on them, and touched their eyes; and immediately their eyes received sight, and they followed him.

CHAPTER XXI.

A. D. 33. Christ rideth into Jerusalem on an ass's colt, and casts out of the temple the buyers and sellers.

AND when they drew near to Jerusalem, 1 and were come to Bethpage, to the mount of Olives, then sent Jesus two disciples, Saying to them, Go into the village over 2 against you, and immediately ye will find an ass tied, and a colt with her: loose them and bring them to me. And if any one 3 say ought to you, ye shall say, The Master hath need of them: and immediately he will send them. Now all this was done, 4 that what was spoken by the prophet might be fulfilled, Tell ye the daughter of Zion, 5 Behold, thy king cometh unto thee, meek, and riding upon an ass, even a colt, the foal of an ass. And the disciples went, and 6 did as Jesus commanded them, And brought 7 the ass and the colt, and put on them their 22, 23. In both these verses, Griesbach omits the clause, 'And to be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with.' For the metaphor of drinking the cup, for suffering affliction, compare chap. xxvi. 39, and Ps. ix. 6; lxxv. 8; Isa. v. 17; Jer. xxv. 15, &c. These sons of Zebedee afterwards drank deep of the cup of affliction, compare Acts xii. 2; Rev. i. 9.

26. It shall not be so among you] Hence it is clear that these disciples did not understand our Lord's words to Peter, chap. xvi. 18, as giving him any peculiar prerogative; for this language of Christ concludes strongly against it.

CHAP. XXI. 1. To Bethpage] This was a village without the walls of Jerusalem, on mount Olivet, inhabited by priests, and its boundary was contentious with Bethany on the one hand, and Jerusalem on the other.

2. An ass] This was commonly used in Judea, and magistrates and those of the royal family formerly rode on asses, Judg. v. 10, and 2 Sam. xvi. 2.

3. And if any] Our Lord knew the man, as well as the ass and the colt; and he might be one of his disciples.

5. Tell ye the] See Zech. ix. 9, and Is. lxii. 11. This prophetic description of the person of Messiah was both true and beautiful: and was now literally fulfilled.

7. And he sat on the colt] They put their mantles both on the ass and on the colt; but Jesus rode on the latter, as

8 mantles, and he sat on the colt. And a very great multitude spread their mantles in the way; and others cut down branches from the trees, and strewed them in the way. And the multitudes who went before and who followed, cried, saying, Hosanna to the Son of David; blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord. Hosanna in the highest. And when he had come into Jerusalem, the whole city was moved, saying, Who is this? And the multitudes said, This is Jesus, the prophet of Nazareth in Galilee.

12 And Jesus went into the temple of God, and cast out all those who sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the money-changers, and the seats of those who sold doves. And saith to them, It is written, My house shall be called the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of robbers. And the blind and the lame came to him in the temple, and he healed them.

15 And when the chief priests and the Scribes saw the wonderful things which he did, and heard the children crying in the temple, and saying, Hosanna to the son of David; they were moved with indignation.

16 And said to him, Hearest thou what these say? And Jesus saith to them, Yes; have ye never read, Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise?

17 And he left them, and went out of the city to Bethany, and he lodged there.

18 Now in the morning, as he returned into the city, he was hungry. And when he saw a fig tree on the way side, he came to it, and found nothing on it but leaves only, and said to it, Let no fruit ever hereafter grow on thee. And presently the fig tree withered away. And when the disciples saw it, they wondered, saying, How soon is the

fig tree withered away! Jesus answered and said to them, Verily I say to you, If ye have faith, and doubt not, ye shall not only do what hath been done to the fig tree, but also if ye shall say to this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; it shall be done. And all things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive.

And when he had come into the temple, the chief priests and the elders of the people came near to him as he was teaching, and said, By what authority doest thou these things? and who gave thee this authority? And Jesus answered and said to them, I also will ask you one thing, which if ye tell me, I in like manner will tell you by what authority I do these things. Whence was the baptism of John? from heaven, or from men? And they reasoned with themselves, saying, If we say from heaven; he will say to us, Why then did ye not believe him? But if we say, From men; we fear the people; for all account John a true prophet. And they answered Jesus and said, We cannot tell. And he said to them, neither tell I you by what authority I do these things.

But what think ye? A certain man had two sons; and he came to the first, and said, Son, go work to day in my vineyard. He answered and said, I will not: but afterwards he repented, and went. And he came to the second, and said in like manner. And he answered and said, I go, sir; but went not. Which of the two did the will of his father? They say to him, The first. Jesus saith to them, Verily I say to you, that the publicans and the harlots go before you into the kingdom of God. For John came to you in the way of 32 had been predicted, and as the other evangelists relate. So thereon can only refer to the mantles.

8. Spread their mantles] This was designed to do him honour, and was done for Jehu, when the officers made him king, 2 Kings ix. 13. When Cato returned to Rome they spread their mantles in the way; which Plutarch says was an honour then done only to a few emperors. The miracle of raising Lazarus occasioned the people thus to act, John xii. 18.

9. Hosanna] Compare Ps. cxviii. 24, 26. The Hebrew signifies, 'Save now, or be saved I pray.' Acclamations of this kind are always of the nature of prayers or ardent wishes; and Hosanna to the Son of David is equivalent to 'God preserve the Son of David;' and what follows signifies, 'Prosperous be the reign of him that cometh in the name of the Lord.'

12. Temple of God] The outer-court is meant, where only this traffic was carried on. The 'money changers' were persons who supplied foreign Jews with the shekel of the sanctuary, for foreign coin, and who made great gain by this exchange. Doves were the offerings for the poor.

13. A den of robbers] Our Lord's comparison conveys a severe reproach to the Jews. His interference may be attributed to Divine agency, and to a consciousness in the Jews, that by such practice the temple was profaned. See Isaiah lvi. 7, and Jer. vii. 11.

16. Hearest thou] These chief priests thought that our Lord ought to have reproved these little ones for their acclamations; but he justified their conduct, by appealing to the language of the Psalmist, Ps. viii. 2. See note there.

17. Bethany] This was fifteen furlongs from Jerusalem; and most probably he always took up his abode with Lazarus and his sisters, John xi. 18.

19—22. He was hungry] Compare Mark xi. 12, 20. The miracle was striking, and might be intended to warn unfruitful professors of their doom. What follows, seems peculiarly to relate to the apostolic times.

21. To this mountain] Our Lord most probably referred to Mount Olivet, which might be in sight; but the expression is figurative, and only means that they would be able to overcome the greatest difficulties.

23. Doest thou these things] They refer to his public entry into Jerusalem, his driving the sellers and buyers from the temple, his miracles wrought there, and his teaching the people.

25. Whence was the baptism] This question was very proper, as the true answer to it would be in fact an answer to that put to our Lord. If John was a prophet and acted by a Divine commission, then the testimony he bore to Christ, showed that he also had Divine authority for what he did. Their reasonings on this subject manifest their perplexity.

28—32. Go before you] The application of the parable is at once pointed and proper. The chief priests pretended righteousness, and ye believed him not; but the publicans and the harlots believed him, yet, when ye had seen this, ye did not afterwards repent so as to believe him.

- 33 Hear another parable. There was a certain householder, who planted a vineyard, and hedged it around, and digged a wine-press in it, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went in to another country. And when the vintage drew near, he sent his servants to the husbandmen, that they might receive the fruits of it.
- 35 And the husbandmen took his servants, and beat one, and stoned another, and killed another. Again, he sent other servants more than the first; and they did to them in like manner. But last of all he sent to them his son, saying, They will reverence my son. But when the husbandmen saw the son, they said among themselves, This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance. And they took him, and cast him out of the vineyard and slew him. When therefore the owner of the vineyard cometh, what will he do to those husbandmen? They say to him, He will miserably destroy those wicked men, and will let out his vineyard to other husbandmen, who will render him the fruits in their seasons. Jesus saith to them, Did ye never read in the scriptures, The stone which the builders rejected, is become the chief corner stone? This is the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes.
- 43 Therefore I say to you, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits of it.
- 44 And whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be bruised; but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will crush him to pieces. And when the chief priests and Pharisees had heard his parables, they perceived that he spoke of them. But when they sought to apprehend him, they feared the multitudes, because they accounted him a prophet.

CHAPTER XXII.

A. D. 33. Parable of the marriage of the king's son; tribute to be paid to Cæsar; Sadducees confuted, and which is the great command stated.

AND Jesus spoke to them again in parables, saying, The kingdom of heaven is like to a certain king, who made a marriage feast for his son, And sent his servants to call those who were invited to the marriage feast; and they would not come. Again, he sent other servants, saying, Tell those who are invited, Behold, I have prepared my dinner; my oxen and my fatlings are killed, and all things are ready; come to the marriage feast. But they made light of it, and went away, one to his farm, another to his merchandise: And the rest took his servants, and treated them shamefully, and killed them. But when the king heard of it, he was wroth; and he sent forth his armies, and destroyed those murderers, and burned up their city. Then he saith to his servants, The marriage feast is ready, but those who were invited were not worthy. Go, therefore, into the highways, and as many as ye find, invite to the marriage feast. So those servants went out into the highways, and gathered together all as many as they found, both bad and good; and the marriage feast was filled with guests.

And when the king came in to see the guests, he saw there a man who had not on a marriage garment: And he saith to him, to do the will of God; but our Lord shows them their sin and impenitence.

33. Dugged a wine-press] Harmer has brought many proofs that it was and is the practice in various countries in the east, to dig their wine-presses in the ground, and line them with stone-work.—A tower] for defence against robbers. Compare Isa. v. 1, and note there.

35. Killed another] This clause is transposed, with Campbell; and is the genuine order of the words.

38. This is the heir] Our Lord clearly refers to himself; and this circumstance shows the goodness and love of God, who did not spare, but gave his only Son to be crucified for us.

39. Cast him out of] This, some think, refers to our Lord's crucifixion out of Jerusalem.

41. They say to him] That this reply was made by some of the Jewish rulers, or by some of our Lord's hearers, is probable from this answer; but others who understood the design of the parable, said, 'God forbid,' Luke xx. 16.

42. The stone which] Ps. cxviii. 22. See note there.

43. Kingdom of God] This was a clear prediction of the rejection of the Jews, and of the calling of the Gentiles.

44. Shall fall on this] Be offended at me in my humiliation, shall suffer for it; but after my elevation to my throne, if any persist in rejecting me, they will be destroyed as if overwhelmed by a huge stone. Lightfoot supposes there is an allusion to the manner in which the sanhedrim sometimes punished criminals by stoning. 'The place of stoning was twice the height of a man. From the top of this, one of the witnesses, striking him on the loins, felled him to the ground; and if he survived this, the other witness threw a large stone upon his heart. This stone was as large as two men could carry.' By the stroke and fall he might be killed; but by the stone he must be crushed to pieces.

CHAP. XXII. 3. Who were invited] The Jews had been invited by the preaching of the Baptist; and from his testimony to Jesus, they ought to have expected the marriage feast, and been ready to come.

4. Other servants] This may refer to the labours of the apostles, after our Lord had suffered. They were commissioned to preach remission of sins in Christ's name, beginning at Jerusalem.

7. Sent forth his armies] The sins of the Jews were to be at length punished. Our Lord predicts the coming and conquest of the Roman armies.

10. Went out into the highways] We have here another prediction of the calling of the Gentiles. In this representation there is a reference to oriental customs. Compare Prov. ix. 2, 3.

11—14. Had not on a marriage garment] This guest was guilty of the most contemptuous behaviour, because the Master of the feast himself furnished such garments, which were usually white robes. Hence, when interrogated why he had not one, he was speechless. He could not say, 'None was provided.' The reason was, he would not have one; and he was therefore justly cast into the outer darkness.

Companion, how camest thou in hither not having on a marriage garment? And he 13 was speechless. Then said the king to the servants, Bind him hand and foot, and take him away, and cast him into the outer darkness; and there will be weeping and gnashing 14 of teeth. For many are called, but few chosen.
 15 Then went the Pharisees, and took counsel how they might ensnare him in discourse. And they sent to him their disciples with the Herodians, saying, Teacher, we know that thou art true, and teachest the way of God in truth, and carest not for any man: for thou regardest not the persons of men. Tell us, therefore, what thou thinkest; Is it lawful to give tribute to 18 Cæsar, or not? But Jesus knowing their malice, said, Why tempt ye me, ye hypocrites? Show me the tribute money? And 20 they brought to him a denarius. And he saith to them, Whose is this image and superscription? They say to him, Cæsar's. Then saith he to them, Render therefore to Cæsar, the things which are Cæsar's; and 22 to God the things which are God's. When they had heard these words, they wondered and left him, and went away.
 23 The same day came to him the Sadducees, who say that there is no future life,
 24 and asked him, Saying, Teacher, Moses said, If one die, having no children, his brother shall marry his wife, and raise up
 25 seed to his brother. Now there were with us seven brethren; and the first, when he had married a wife, died; and, having no
 26 issue, left his wife to his brother: In like manner the second also, and the third, 27 unto the seventh. And last of all the woman also died. Therefore, at the resurrection, whose wife shall she be of the seven? for 29 they all had her. Jesus answered and said to them, Ye err, not knowing the 30 scriptures, nor the power of God. For at ness. This strongly intimates that though many are invited, there are but few who accept and will be finally approved.

16. Herodians] Partisans of Herod Antipas, tetrarch of Galilee, and therefore friends to the Roman interest. The Pharisees joined them on this occasion, though they were opposed to them in opinion on the subject of the lawfulness of paying tribute to Cæsar.

18. Ye hypocrites] Campbell softens this term, and renders dissemblers, and no doubt but this sufficiently expresses the sense here; but when it regards their religious profession, they were justly called hypocrites.

21. Render to Cæsar] It is obvious that our Lord's answer was unusual and unexpected. They were not only silenced, but wondered greatly at it.

23—28. No future life] For the vindication of this version, see Campbell's note.

32. I am the God of] See Exod. iii. 6, 16.—God is not the God] The argument is, that they must have been existing in some sense, at the time when this was spoken; otherwise God could not be then 'the God of Abraham, &c.' this expression implying a relation subsisting between God and them; but there can be no relation between God and those who do not in any way exist. The patriarchs were the resurrection, they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven. But concerning the 31 resurrection of the dead, have ye not read that which was spoken to you by God, saying, I am the God of Abraham, and the 32 God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? God is not the God of the dead, but of the living. And when the multitudes 33 heard this, they were amazed at his doctrine.

But when the Pharisees had heard that 34 he had put the Sadducees to silence, they were gathered about him. Then one of 35 them, who was a teacher of the law, asked him a question, tempting him, and saying, Teacher, which is the great commandment 36 in the law? Jesus said to him, Thou shalt 37 love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. 38 And the second is like to it; Thou shalt 39 love thy neighbour as thyself. On these 40 two commandments hang all the law and the prophets.

While the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus asked them, Saying, What think 41 ye of the Christ? whose son is he? They say to him, The son of David. He saith 43 to them, How then doth David by the Spirit call him Lord, saying, The Lord said to 44 my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool? If 45 David then call him Lord, how is he his son? And no man was able to answer him a 46 word, nor durst any man from that day ask him any more questions.

CHAPTER XXIII.

A. D. 33. Our Lord condemns the doctrine, but condemns the evil conduct of the Scribes and Pharisees; he foretells the destruction of Jerusalem.

THEN spoke Jesus to the multitudes, and 1 to his disciples, Saying, The Scribes and 2 dead as to this life; the inference is, their souls exist in another. Or his being the God of any person, implies that he neither has, nor will suffer any such finally to perish; and hence we may infer that their spirits exist, and that their bodies shall be raised.

35. Teacher of the law] He is called a Scribe, Mark xii. 8; but in Luke xi. 44—46, they are distinguished. Some think the former were teachers of the law in the synagogues, and the latter private instructors.

36. Great commandment] From this question it is evident that the teachers of the law divided the precepts into greater and less, and that it was a matter of dispute among them to which class certain belonged. Some thought that those regarding sacrifice were the greatest; while others more justly considered that which respected the object of worship, and the love of him as entitled to pre-eminence. Compare Mark xii. 28—34.

42—46. What think ye of the Christ] Or the Messiah. Whose son is he? They readily answer that he was the son of David; but when our Lord quotes the first verse of Ps. cx. and reasons upon it, they could make no reply. By the question, If David by the Spirit call him Lord, how is he his son? Jesus intimated strongly his claim to a higher character than that of son of David.

the Pharisees sit in the seat of Moses :
 3 All things therefore whatsoever they command you to observe, observe and do ; but do not ye according to their works ; for 4 they say, and do not. For they bind up burdens heavy and hard to be borne, and lay them on the shoulders of men ; but with a finger of their own will not move
 5 them. And all their works they do in order to be seen by men ; they make broad their phylacteries, and enlarge the borders of 6 their garments. And love the chief place at feasts, and the chief seats in the synagogues, And salutations in the markets, and to be called by men Rabbi, Rabbi.
 8 But be not ye called Rabbi ; for one is your teacher.* And call no man upon earth your father ; for one is your Father who is in heaven ; 'and all ye are brethren.'
 10 Nor be ye called leaders ; for one is your 11 Leader, even the Christ. But he that is greatest among you shall be your servant.
 12 And whosoever shall exalt himself shall be humbled ; and whosoever shall humble himself shall be exalted.
 14 Alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites ! for ye devour widows' houses, and make long prayers for a disguise : therefore ye shall receive the greater punishment.
 13 'But alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites ! for ye shut up the kingdom of heaven against men ; for ye neither enter in yourselves, nor suffer those 15 who are entering to enter.' Alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites ! for ye compass sea and land to make one proselyte ; and when he becometh such, ye make him two-fold more the child of hell than 16 yourselves. Alas for you, blind guides,

CHAP. XXIII. 2. Sit in the seat of Moses] The Jewish teachers always taught, sitting. The seat is called 'the seat of Moses,' because it was that from which the books of Moses were read and explained for the instruction of the people.

3. All things whatsoever] That is, all that they require, from the books of Moses, or the law of God ; for our Lord frequently condemns the doctrines which the Scribes and Pharisees taught, as well as their unholy and unjust deeds.

4. Bind up heavy burdens] Their traditions added to the law, and which they most rigorously imposed.

6. Phylacteries] Pieces of parchment on which were written sentences of the law, and which were worn on their foreheads and arms, Deut. vi. 8, and note. The Pharisees wore them of a great breadth, and they were regarded as charms to prevent evil spirits from hurting them.

6-8. Chief place] To be first seated, to be honoured in public by receiving the title of Rabbi, were the objects of their ambition.—One is your teacher] Our Lord unquestionably meant himself. The last clause, on the authority of many manuscript copies, is transposed to the end of next verse.—(a) Even Christ.—Griesb.

12. Whosoever shall] This shows the design of the preceding remarks ; our Lord intending to repress the pride of men, states, that among his disciples the humblest shall be esteemed the greatest.

13. Shut up the kingdom] They did this by their own example, John vii. 48, and by their open and avowed opposition to our Lord's claims.

14. Ye devour widows] The transposition of these two who say, Whosoever shall swear by the temple, it is nothing ; but whosoever shall swear by the gold of the temple, he is bound by his oath ! Ye fools and blind ! for which 17 is greater ; the gold, or the temple which sanctifieth the gold ? And, whosoever shall 18 swear by the altar, it is nothing ; but whosoever sweareth by the gift that is upon it, he is bound by his oath. Ye fools and 19 blind ! for which is greater ; the gift, or the altar which sanctifieth the gift ? He 20 therefore who sweareth by the altar, sweareth by it, and by all things thereon. And 21 he who sweareth by the temple sweareth by it, and by him who dwelleth therein. And 22 he who sweareth by heaven, sweareth by the throne of God, and by him who sitteth thereon. Alas for you, Scribes and Phari- 23 sees, hypocrites ! for ye pay tithe of mint and dill and cummin, and omit the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy, and faithfulness : now these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone. Blind guides, ye strain off the gnat, 24 and swallow the camel. Alas for you, 25 Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites ! for ye make clean the outside of the cup and of the dish, but within they are full of rapine and injustice. Thou blind Pharisee, first 26 make clean the inside of the cup and dish, that their outside may be clean also. Alas 27 for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites ! for ye are like to whited sepulchres, which outwardly indeed appear beautiful, but are within full of dead men's bones, and of all uncleanness. Even so ye also outwardly 28 appear righteous to men, but within ye are full of hypocrisy and iniquity. Alas for you, 29 Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites ! because verses rests on the best authorities. Avarice was the ruling passion of these men, and making long prayers a disguise for it. Some very religious of this sect prayed nine hours on a day.

15. To make one proselyte] They were eager to persuade men of the truth of their doctrines, and to induce them to become their partisans. They were not less so to induce the heathens to submit to circumcision ; and when they did so, to inspire them with the greatest hatred against our Lord and his disciples.

17. Ye fools and blind] Our Lord had divine knowledge to discern the wickedness of their hearts, and divine authority to reprove it.

18-22. Swear by the altar] These casuists considered that though these were oaths in appearance, yet that they were not in reality so. Our Lord justly calls them 'blind guides.' The first line of the 16th is implied before the 18th verse.

23. Dill] This, and not anise, is certainly meant by the original text, and so all the Latin versions have rendered.

24. Strain off the gnat] That is, to strain off their liquor, lest they should swallow a gnat. The expression is clearly proverbial, and denotes, that while they were scrupulous about trifles, they without scruple practised the greatest sins.

25. Make clean the inside] If the inside were clean, if the heart were upright and pure, the outside, the life and conduct, would be so too.

27. Whited sepulchres] They appear to have whited the sepulchres, lest they should touch them and thereby be defiled.

ye build the tombs of the prophets, and 30 adorn the sepulchres of the righteous, And say, If we had lived in the days of our fathers, we would not have been partakers with them in the blood of the prophets.
31 Wherefore ye bear witness to yourselves, that ye are the sons of those who killed the 32 prophets. Fill ye up then the measure of 33 your fathers. Ye serpents, ye offspring of vipers, how can ye escape the punishment of hell?
34 Wherefore, behold, I send to you prophets, and wise men, and scribes; and some of them ye will kill and crucify; and some of them ye will scourge in your synagogues, 35 and persecute them from city to city: So that upon you shall come all the righteous blood shed upon the earth, from the blood of righteous Abel to the blood of Zechariah, [son of Berachiah,] whom ye slew between the temple and the altar.
36 Verily I say to you, that all these things shall come upon this generation. O Je-37 rusalem, Jerusalem, that killest the prophets, and stonest them who are sent to thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings; but ye would 38 not! Behold, your house shall be left by 39 you desolate. For I say to you; Ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord.

CHAPTER XXIV.

A. D. 33. The destruction of the temple particularly foretold; the signs of Christ's coming to judgment, and the duty of all to prepare for it.

1 AND Jesus went out and departed from the temple: and his disciples came near to show him the buildings of the temple. And 2 Jesus said to them, See ye not all these things? Verily I say to you, There shall not be left here one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down.

And as he sat upon the mount of Olives, 3
the disciples came to him privately, saying, Tell us, when will these things be? and what will be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of this state? And Jesus answered 4 and said to them, Take heed that no man deceive you. For many will come assum- 5 ing my name, each saying, I am the Christ, and will deceive many. And ye will hear 6 of wars and rumours of wars: see that ye be not troubled: for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet. For 7 nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there will be fa-mines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in many places: But all these are only the 8 beginning of sorrows.

Then will men deliver you up to "afflic- 9 tion," and will kill you; and ye will be hated of all nations for my name's sake.
And then will many fall off, and will betray 10
one another, and will hate one another.
And many false prophets will arise, and 11 will deceive many. And because iniquity 12 will abound, the love of many will become cold. But whosoever endureth to the end, 13 he shall be saved. And these glad tidings 14 of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a testimony to all nations; and then will the end come.

When ye therefore see the desolating 15 abomination spoken of by Daniel the pro-

29—33. Ye build the tombs] It is usual for the Mahometans to ornament the tombs of their saints; and if they have none, to build them. Such was the custom of the Jews; and Josephus informs us, that Herod repaired in a splendid manner the sepulchre of David.

31. Are the sons of] Ye acknowledge those murderers to be your fathers; and imitate therefore their wickedness.

35. So that upon you] The national punishment of all the blood shed in the land, because ye take pleasure in the works of your fathers, and imitate them. The words included in brackets are omitted Luke xi 51, and have probably been interpolated. Who this Zechariah was, is not absolutely certain. Most refer to him whom Joash put to death, 2 Chron. xxiv. 20. This proverb means the blood of all the martyrs from Abel, who was the first, down to Zechariah, who is the last expressly mentioned in the Hebrew Scriptures.

37. As a hen gathereth] This beautiful similitude is found 2 Exdras i. 30, 'I gathered you together as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings; but now what shall I do with you? I will cast you out from my face.'

39. Your house] That is, the temple in which our Lord was teaching, and Jerusalem, the city in which they dwelt.

39. Till ye shall] These words, from their connexion, clearly refer to the destruction of Jerusalem; and appear to signify, that many having seen his predictions accomplished, should be converted to him, and adopt the language of the children, saying, 'Blessed be he that cometh,' &c. Eusebius informs us, that many Jews became Christians after the destruction of Jerusalem.

CHAP. XXIV. 2. One stone upon another] This may only refer to the general destruction; yet I think the words contain a prediction that the very foundations of the temple would one day be razed.

3. Upon the mount of Olives] An eye-witness informs us,
'that from the mount of Olives all Jerusalem may be distinctly seen.'

5. Assuming my name] To come in the name of another most naturally signifies to come by his authority or order.
Thus Christ came in the name of the Father, and the apostles in his name. This cannot be the sense of the words here, but that which, after Campbell and others, is given.

6. The end is not yet] That is, of the Jewish state and polity.

8. Beginning of sorrows] These calamities will be succeeded by much heavier, when Jerusalem is besieged and taken.

9. Of all nations] As the name of the Jew will become an execration; and especially will ye my followers, as opposing the sins and corruptions of men, be thus hated. We have abundant evidence of the fulfilment of this prediction in the Acts of the Apostles, in their Epistles, and in Tacitus, Eusebius, and others.—(v) Griesb.

14. Glad tidings of] It is most certain that before the destruction of Jerusalem, the gospel had been preached, not only in the Roman empire, but among remote and distant nations. Compare Rom. x. 18; Col. i. 6—23.

15. Desolating abomination] Dan. ix. 27. The Roman armies are meant. They were an abomination to the Jews, because they bore images on their standards.

phet stand in the holy place, (let him who 16 readeth attend.) Then let those who are 17 in Judea flee to the mountains: Let not him who is on the housetop go down, to 18 take any thing out of his house. Nor let him who is in the field turn back, to take 19 his upper garments. And alas for them that are with child, and for them that give 20 suck in those days! But pray ye that your flight be not in the winter, nor on the 21 sabbath. For then will be great affliction, such as hath not been since the beginning of the world to this time, no nor 22 ever will be. And unless those days should be shortened no flesh could be preserved;
 but for the elect's sake, those days shall be 23 shortened. Then if any man say to you, Lo, here is the Christ, or he is there; be-24 lieve it not. For there will arise false Christs, and false prophets, and will propose great signs and wonders; so as to deceive, if it were possible, the very elect.
 25 Behold, I have foretold you this. Wherefore, if men say to you, Behold, he is in the desert; go not forth: or behold, he is in the private chambers, believe them not.
 27 For as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth to the west; so will the coming of the Son of man also be. For wheresoever the carcass is, there will the eagles be gathered together 29 Immediately after the affliction of those days the sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens shall be shaken. And then 30 shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven; and then shall all the tribes of the land mourn; when they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory. And he shall 31 send his angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from one end of the heavens to the other.

Now learn a parable of the fig tree: 32
 When its branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves, ye know that summer is near:
 So likewise, when ye shall see all these 33 things, know that the Son of man is near, even at the doors. Verily I say to you, This 34 generation shall not pass away until all these things be accomplished. Heaven 35 and earth shall pass away; but my words shall not pass away.

But that day and hour none maketh 36 known: no, not the angels of heaven;
 but the Father only. But as the days of 37 Noah were, so will the coming of the Son of man also be. For as in the days which 38 were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying, and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered into the ark; And understood not until the flood 39 came, and took them all away; so will the coming of the Son of man also be. Then 40

17. Housetop go down] They had stairs from the roofs of their houses, which led into the court, or into the street, without going into the house. See note on Mark ii. 4. Each is to flee as for his life.

20. On the sabbath] Women with child, or that gave suck, would be unable to flee; and if this event should occur in winter, or on the sabbath, it would be more calamitous, Acts i. 12.

21. Such as hath] These expressions denote the greatness of the calamities which would befall them. Compare Exod. x. 14; Joel ii. 2.

22. Those days shortened] If such times were to continue no flesh or no man could be saved or preserved; but for the elect's sake, those who had believed, and those who should believe hereafter, from among that people those days were shortened.

24. False Christs] Some of those who assumed his name, were apostate Christians, 1 John ii. 18, 19.—False prophets] Or teachers. They would pretend to show or do great signs, as Josephus informs us many actually did. Many persuaded the people to follow them into the desert, promising them signs and wonders. One persuaded them to go up into the temple, which being set on fire by the Romans, 6000 of them perished.—If it were possible] The words οὐ δυνατον have this sense, chap. xxvi. 39; Rom. xii. 18; Gal. iv. 15. They do not denote a natural but a moral impossibility, a thing which God would not permit to happen.

27. The coming of the Son] This coming respects his executing judgments on the unbelieving Jews; and not his final personal appearance to judge the world.

28. Carcass is, the eagles] As the eagle scents its prey, so will the Romans overtake the devoted Jews. We have here a proverbial expression applied in allusion to the Roman standards. Compare Job xxix. 30.

29. Sun shall be darkened] This is the language of prophecy, to denote that the Jewish rulers, priests, leaders, and state would be destroyed: compare Isa. xlii. 9—13.

30. Sign of the Son of man] The last clause of this verse supports the sense of one manuscript, which refers in heaven to the person of our Lord and not to the sign. The Son of man shall then have ascended to heaven, and by the sign is meant himself and the manifest tokens of his coming to execute his word. as by the sign of Jonah, ch. xii. 39, is meant Jonah himself delivered by miracle.—Coming in the clouds] Sudden and irresistible destruction is often denoted by God's coming on the clouds of heaven, Ps. xviii. 1—9; xcvi. 2, 3; civ. 3; Isa. xix. 1; xxvi. 22; lxvi. 15. In this view the latter is only exegetical of the former.

31. His angels] The instruments of his providence. Pearce observes, that, strong as the language is, it signifies only, that our Lord would gather the believers together for their preservation, wheresoever they might be.

32—35. Heaven and earth] Pearce explains, 'That heaven and earth shall sooner pass away and come to nothing, than my words shall.' That generation was not to die off before what our Lord had said was to be accomplished, and of course, what he had said, could not refer to the last final judgment.

36. But that day] Whether we refer this to the time when Jerusalem was to be destroyed, or to the day in which the heavens and the earth shall pass away, it is attended with difficulties, especially as it is read, Mark xiii. 32, where we have, 'nor the Son,' &c. By regarding the verb as transitive, with Macknight, the difficulties are removed, and a plain and easy sense arises. As to the very day and hour, it was granted to no one to make known, neither to the angels of heaven, nor to the Son: but the Father only had reserved this time and season in his own power. Compare Zech. xiv. 7; Acts i. 7. In this and the 34th verse, our Lord answers the questions put to him ver. 3.

39. Understood not] Did not regard Noah's warning, and thus were unexpectedly swept away by the deluge.

will two men be in the field; the one shall 41 be taken and the other left. Two women will be grinding at the mill; the one shall be taken, and the other left.
 42 Watch therefore; for ye know not at 43 what hour your master cometh. But this ye know, that if an householder had known in what watch the thief would come, he would have watched, and would not have suffered him to break into his house.
 44 Wherefore be ye also ready; for in an hour 45 ye think not the Son of man cometh. Who then is the faithful and wise servant, whom his master hath placed over his household, 46 to give them food in due season? Happy is that servant, whom his master, when he 47 cometh, shall find doing thus. Verily
 I say to you, that he will place him over 48 all that he hath. But as to that evil serv-49 vant who saith in his heart, My master delayeth his coming; And beginneth to smite his fellow-servants, and to eat and drink
 50 with the drunken; The master of that serv-51 vant will come in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an hour of which he is not aware, And will cut him off, and appoint him his portion among the perfidious; there shall be the weeping and the gnashing of teeth.

CHAPTER XXV.

A. D. 33. The parable of the ten virgins, and of the talents; and a description of the last judgment.

1 THEN will the kingdom of heaven be like to ten virgins, who took their lamps, and 2 went forth to meet the bridegroom. And five of them were wise, and five were fool-3 ish. Those who were foolish, took their 4 lamps, but took with them no oil. But the wise took oil in their vessels, together with 5 their lamps. While the bridegroom tar-6 ried, they all slumbered and slept. And at midnight there was a cry made, Behold!
 the bridegroom cometh; go ye forth to meet him. Then all those virgins arose, 7 and trimmed their lamps. And the foolish 8 said to the wise, Give us of your oil; for our lamps are going out. But the wise 9 answered, saying; Lest there be not enough for us and you, go ye rather to those who sell, and buy for yourselves. And while 10 they went to buy, the bridegroom came;

 and those who were ready went in with him to the marriage feast, and the door was shut. Then afterward came the other 11 virgins, saying, Sir, Sir, open the door to us. But he answered and said, Verily I 12 say to you, I know you not. Watch there- 13 fore, for ye know not the day nor the hour.*

For the Son of man is like to a man 14 going abroad, who called his servants, and delivered to them what he had. And to 15 one he gave five talents, and to another two, and to another one; to every man according to his ability; and immediately went into another country. Then he that 16 had received the five talents went and traded with them, and made of them other five talents. And in like manner he that 17 had received the two, also gained other two.
 But he that had received the one went and 18 digged in the earth, and hid his master's money. Now after a long time, the master 19 of those servants cometh and reckoneth with them. Then he that had received 20 five talents came and brought other five talents, saying, Master, thou deliveredst to me five talents: lo, I have gained besides them five other talents. His mas- 21 ter said to him, Well done, thou good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will place thee over many things: enter into the joy of thy master. He also that had received the two 22 talents came near and said: Master, thou deliveredst to me two talents: lo, I have gained besides them two other talents.
 His master said to him, Well done, thou 23

42-44. Watch therefore] What follows contains a warning to our Lord's own disciples, to be watchful, faithful, and persevering.

51. Will cut him off] That is, from his fellow-servants, and send him to prison for his unfaithfulness, oppression of his fellow-servants, and his wasting his master's property by intemperance.

CHAP. XXV. 1. Then will the] When these calamities are brought on the Jews, then will the heavenly kingdom, or gospel dispensation, be like, &c. This parable cannot directly refer to the final judgment. The ten virgins represent professing christians, and the coming of the bridegroom, the coming of our Lord to punish the Jews.

2-4. Wise—foolish] Their conduct proved their character. The whole parable contains a plain reference to the custom which prevailed among the Jews. They celebrated their marriage feasts in the evening: the bride, and her virgin companions, or bride-maids, were full dressed, and furnished with lamps or torches, that when the bridegroom came to conduct his bride home, they might go forth to meet him, and then accompany him to the marriage feast. Sometimes the marriage feast was kept in the house of the bride, and sometimes in that of the bridegroom, but most frequently in that of the latter, Judg. xiv. 10, and 1 Mac. ix. 37.

6-9. Go forth to meet him] Now was the time of trial. They all trimmed their lamps; but the foolish virgins had no oil in their vessels.

10-13. The bridegroom came] The concluding verse explains the leading design of the parable. Though the whole parable may primarily refer to the state of Christians, when Jerusalem was destroyed, it may refer also to the duty of professors at all times, to be watchful, and especially to be upright and sincere.—(a) Wherein the Son of man cometh.—Griesb.

14. For the Son of man] The text is either elliptical, or something has been omitted. With Campbell, I supply Son of man, as here preferable to the heavenly kingdom; as what follows seems to apply to him personally.

15. Five talents] A talent is supposed to have been worth about 18*l*. The design of the parable is, to remind men of the value of the privileges they enjoy, especially under the reign of Christ, and their great obligation to improve them.

21. Joy of thy master] That χαρῆς signifies the joy of a good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will place thee over many things: enter into the joy 24 of thy master. Then he who had received the one talent came and said, Sir, I knew that thou art a hard man, reaping where thou hast not sown, and gathering where 25 thou hast not scattered: And I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth:

 26 lo, thou hast what is thine. His master answered and said to him, Wicked and slothful servant, thou knewest that I reap where I sowed not? and gather where I
 27 scattered not? Thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the exchangers, and then at my coming I should have received 28 mine own with increase. Take ye therefore the talent from him, and give it to 29 him who hath the ten talents. For to every one that hath improved, more shall be given, and he shall abound, but from 30 him that hath not improved shall be taken away even that which he hath. And put out the unprofitable servant into the outer darkness: and there will be the weeping and the gnashing of teeth.
 31 Now when the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne
 32 of his glory; And before him shall be gathered all nations: and he will separate them one from another, as a shepherd se-
 33 parateth his sheep from the goats: And he will set the sheep on his right hand, but 34 the goats on the left. Then will the King say to those on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of 35 the world. For I was hungry, and ye gave me food; I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in; Naked, and ye clothed me; I was sick, and ye took care of me; I was in prison, and ye came to me. Then will the 37 righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee hungry, and fed thee? or thirsty, and gave thee drink? When saw 38 we thee a stranger, and took thee in? or naked, and clothed thee? Or when saw we 39 thee sick, or in prison, and came to thee? And the king will answer and say to them, 40 Verily I say to you, Inasmuch as ye did it to one of the least of these my brethren, ye did it unto me. Then will he say to 41 those also on the left hand, Depart from me, ye cursed, into the everlasting fire, which was prepared for the devil and his angels: For I was hungry, and ye gave 42 me no food; I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink. I was a stranger, and ye took 43 me not in; naked, and ye clothed me not; sick, and in prison, and ye took no care of me. Then they also will answer him, say 44 ing, Lord, when saw we thee hungry, or thirsty, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister to thee? Then he will answer them, saying, Verily 45 I say to you, Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me. And these shall go away into ever- 46 lasting punishment; but the righteous into everlasting life.

CHAPTER XXVI.

A. D. 33. The rulers conspire against Christ; a woman anointeth his feet; Judas selleth him; he eateth the passover, and instituteth his own supper; he is delivered up by Judas to the Jewish rulers.

AND when Jesus had ended all these words, he said to his disciples, Ye know 2 that after two days will be the passover, and feast, see the Greek, Esther ix. 10. The banquet or feast is implied, and the illuminated guest chamber, in the punishment of the wicked servant, ver. 30. Campbell renders, 'partake thou in thy master's joy.'

24. One talent] This may intimate that we are accountable for the smallest advantages with which we are intrusted; and if we have more talents and neglect to improve them, our punishment will be proportionably greater.

26. Wicked and slothful] The master reasons on his own principles, and justly attributes these qualities to him.

28—30. Take ye therefore] Deprive him of every privilege he has enjoyed, and instead of being admitted to the joy of his master, let him be put out into the outer darkness. This forcibly describes the miseries of such offenders.

31. Now when the Son] Here our Lord passes on to describe the last judgment, as what follows seems to have no reference to his coming to punish the unbelieving Jews. Compare chap. xvi. 27, and 2 Thess. i. 7—9; Jude 14, 15.

32. Sheep from the goats] In prophetic language, sheep signify good men, and goats bad and wicked men, Ezek. xxxiv. 17, 22; Zech. x. 3. When separated, the former are placed at the right hand, as the place of honour; and the latter at the left, as that of disgrace, or less honourable, Ps. xlv. 9.

34. The king will say] Our Lord means himself, who is made 'King of Kings, and Lord of Lords,' and constituted the final judge and arbiter of men.—Foundation of the world] Or beginning of the world. When God made the heavens and the earth, he prepared the former, and fixed it in his eternal purpose, as the inheritance of his chosen, ransomed, and sanctified people.

35. A stranger] Not only a person unknown, but one of another nation is intended; and taking him in, means entertaining him.

37—39. Lord, when saw] They will be surprised, as they had never seen him in the flesh, and could not literally do these things to him; and their language shows that they placed no dependence on their own works.

40. Ye did it unto me] One of the meanest of my disciples out of love and regard to me and my authority, I take it as done to myself. This ought to be a most powerful motive to the exercise of christian kindness and charity.

41. Which was prepared] Doddridge has observed, that there is a remarkable difference between our Lord's expression here and verse 34. There the kingdom is said to be prepared for the righteous; whereas here the everlasting fire is not said to have been prepared for the wicked, but for the devil and his angels. Compare Rom. ix. 22, 23.

42—45. I was hungry] The wicked are charged with the neglect, if not the contempt of our Lord; and this was manifest from their treatment of his disciples.

46. Everlasting punishment] As the same word occurs in each part of the sentence in the Greek, it is better to render it everlasting in both; and miserable are they who adventure their souls on its signifying a limited duration in either.

CHAP. XXVI. 2. After two days] Or in two days, or the Son of man will be delivered up to be 3 crucified. Then assembled together the chief priests, and the Scribes, and the elders of the people, in the palace of the high 4 priest, who was called Caiaphas; And consulted how they might take Jesus by craft, and kill him. But they said, Not during 5 the feast, lest there be a disturbance among the people.

 6 Now when Jesus was in Bethany, in the 7 house of Simon the leper, There came to him a woman having an alabaster box of very precious ointment, and poured it out
 8 on his head, while he was at table. But when his disciples saw it, they had indignation, saying, To what purpose is this 9 waste? For this ointment might have been 10 sold for much, and given to the poor. And Jesus knew this, and said to them, Why 11 trouble ye the woman? for she hath done a good deed to me. For ye will have the 12 poor always with you; but me ye will not have always. For in that she hath poured 13 this ointment on my body, she hath done it for my embalming. Verily I say to you, Whosoever this gospel shall be preached in the whole world, this also which she hath done shall be spoken of, for a memorial of her.
 14 Then one of the twelve, called Judas
 15 Iscariot, went to the chief priests, And said to them, What will ye give me, and I will deliver him up to you? And they appointed him thirty pieces of silver. And 16 from that time he sought for a fit opportunity to deliver him up.

Now on the first day of the feast of unleavened bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying to him, Where wilt thou that we prepare for thee to eat the passover? And 18 he said, Go into the city to such a man, and say to him; The Teacher saith, My time is at hand; I will keep the passover at thy house with my disciples. And the 19 disciples did as Jesus had appointed them; And they made ready the passover. Now 20 when the evening was come he placed himself at table with the twelve. And as they 21 were eating, he said, Verily I say to you, that one of you will deliver me up. And 22 they were very sorrowful, and began every one of them to say to him, Master, is it I? And he answered and said, He who dippeth 23 his hand with me in the dish, even he will deliver me up. The Son of man goeth 24 indeed as it is written of him; but alas for that man by whom the Son of man is delivered up! good were it for that man if he had not been born. Then Judas, 25 who delivered him up, answered and said, Master, is it I? He said to him, Thou hast said.

And as they were eating, Jesus took 26 bread, and having given thanks, he brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body. And he took 27 before they shall be ended; for if, as Pearce thinks, these words were spoken on the Wednesday, the time of observing the passover began on Thursday evening, at six o'clock, and continued till the same hour the next day. This was immediately followed by the feast of unleavened bread, which continued for seven days more. The whole eight days were called the feast of unleavened bread, including the passover.

5. Not during the feast] One of these rulers was apprehensive lest the people should defend our Lord, and was for deferring the execution of their design until the feast had ended, and then the people would have departed; but this caution was overruled.

6. Simon the leper] Who had been so, and, though healed, was still so called, perhaps to remind him of the mercy vouchsafed to him.

7. Came to him a woman] It is evident from John xii. 3, that this woman was Mary, one of the sisters of Lazarus, John xi. 2.

8. When his disciples saw] Matthew speaks generally, but from John xii. 4, we learn that it was Judas who made these remarks; although it is not improbable but some others might approve of them, as they are said 'to have indignation.'

12. For my embalming] My death and departure being so near, what she hath done may be considered as preparatory to that event.

15. Appointed him] Or weighed him thirty pieces of silver. Campbell and most others suppose that shekels are meant, which would amount only to about 3*l.* 10*s.*, but Pearce contends that a larger sum seems necessary to the purchase of a field.

17. On the first day] On that of the passover, properly so called. See Note on ver. 4.

20. The evening was come] The passover feast began on the Thursday evening, after three o'clock. The victim was to be slain and roasted, and eaten on that night; but from

John xviii. 28, it appears that some had not eaten it on the Friday morning. Pearce observes, that this most probably occurred from the multitudes of the Jews who then assembled; so that from necessity they took the liberty of eating the passover on any hour before the second evening, on the fifteenth day.

23. Answered and said] Not aloud, but to John only, who was the nearest to him, John xiii. 23—26.—He who dippeth] John gives the particulars, and it is clear that while Jesus was dipping the sop, Judas also was putting his hand into the dish.

25. Then Judas said, Is it I?] He had already agreed with the priests to deliver him up; and hearing this denunciation, he asked the question to ward off suspicion.—Thou hast said] According to the Hebrew idiom, the reply unquestionably means, 'It is as thou hast said.' Compare ver. 64; Mark xiv. 62.

26. And having given] It is well known that it was the uniform custom of the Jews to bless God, or to give thanks to him, for providing food, and not to bless the food. Compare Luke xxii. 17, and 1 Cor. xi. 23.—This is my body] The verb substantive, whether expressed or understood, is often equivalent to signifieth, representeth, Gen. xl. 26. 'The seven good kine are or signify seven years,' &c. Exod. xii. 11. 'It is or signifies, the passover of Jehovah,' 1 Cor. x. 4. 'That rock was signified, or represented Christ.' The bread used on this occasion was unleavened, but this arose from the custom of the paschal feast, as no other was then allowed. There were two loaves, or rather cakes, used in the paschal supper. One of these was nearly cut through before baked, so that it might be easily broken. And this was what Christ took and brake.

27. Took the cup] In the feast of the passover, they had one vessel of diluted wine, which was poured into a cup four times. The first was drunk at the commencement of the feast; the second at giving an account of the reason of the feast to their children; and the third when they blessed the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to 28 them, saying, Drink ye all out of it; For this is my blood, even that of the new covenant, which is shed for many for the 29 remission of sins. And I say to you, I shall not drink henceforth of this produce of the vine, until that day when I drink it new 30 with you in my Father's kingdom. And after having sung the hymn, they went out to the mount of Olives.

31 Then saith Jesus to them, All ye will offend because of me on this night; for it is written: I will smite the shepherd, and 32 the flock will be scattered. But after I am risen again, I will go before you into 33 Galilee. Peter answered and said to him, Though all men should offend because of 34 thee, I will never offend. Jesus said to him, Verily I say to thee, That on this night,
before a cock crow, thou wilt deny me 35 thrice. Peter said to him, Though I should die with thee, yet will I not deny thee. In like manner said also all the disciples.
36 Then cometh Jesus with them to a place called Gethsemane, and saith to the disciples, Sit ye here, while I go and pray yon-37 der. And he took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, and began to be 38 sorrowful and full of anguish. Then saith he to them, My soul is exceedingly sorrowful, even unto death: abide ye here and 39 watch with me. And he went forward a little, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass away from me; nevertheless, not 40 as I will, but as Thou wilt. And he cometh to the disciples, and findeth them asleep, and saith to Peter, What, could ye not 41 watch with me one hour? Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.

He went away a second time, and prayed, 42 saying, O my Father, if this cup cannot pass away from me, except I drink it, thy will be done. And he came and found 43 them asleep again: for their eyes were heavy.
And he left them, and went away again, 44 and prayed the third time, saying the same words. Then cometh he to his disciples, 45 and saith to them, Do ye now sleep on and take rest? Behold, the hour draweth near;
and the Son of man is delivered up into the hands of sinners. Rise, let us be 46 going; behold, he draweth near who delivereth me up.
And while he was yet speaking, lo, Judas, 47 one of the twelve, came, and with him a great multitude with swords and staves, from the chief priests and elders of the people. Now he, who delivered him up, had 48 given them a sign, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, that is he: apprehend him. And 49 immediately he came to Jesus, and said, Hail, Rabbi; and kissed him. And Jesus 50 said to him, Companion, wherefore comest thou? Then they came, and laid hands on Jesus, and apprehended him. And, behold, 51 one of those who were with Jesus stretched out his hand and drew his sword, and struck a servant of the high priest's, and cut off his ear. Then said Jesus to him, 52 Put up thy sword into its place: for all those who take the sword will perish by the sword.
Thinkest thou that I cannot pray to my 53
Father, and he will presently give me more than twelve legions of angels? But how 54 then can the scriptures be fulfilled, that thus it must be? At that same time Jesus 55 said to the multitudes, Are ye come out as against a robber with swords and staves to God for their redemption out of Egypt, called the cup of blessing, after having eaten of the paschal lamb. It was this cup Jesus took and made the emblem of his shed blood. See Lightfoot, in loc.

28. This is my blood] This wine of which ye drink I appoint to represent my blood, shed for the ratification of the new covenant, and for the remission of the sins of many according to the tenour of it.

29. Drink of this produce] Jesus would not drink of the vinegar which was offered to him, ch. xxvii. 34. That our Lord ate and drank with his disciples after his resurrection is certain. See Acts x. 41.

30. After having sung the hymn] This was probably the Hillel, which comprised Psalms 113 to 118.

31. Will offend because of me] His being apprehended would be the occasion of their offending by deserting and denying him, Zech. xiii. 7.

34. Before a cock crow] According to Mark xiv. 30, crow twice. Whithy has produced authorities as noticing a double crowing of the cock, at midnight, and at the break of day. This latter was used to denote the fourth watch of the night, and is what Matthew and the other evangelists referred to in giving the account of what our Lord said to Peter. Mark refers to the same time, when he says, crow twice: so that it is only a different way of relating the same thing.

36. Gethsemane] The oil-press, as the word signifies. It was a part of the mount of Olives, ver. 30; Mark xiv.

26, 32; Luke xxii. 39; and is called a garden, to which our Lord often resorted, John xviii. 1, 2.

37. Took with him Peter] From that part of Gethsemane where he had left the other apostles, Mark xiv. 32, 33.

38. My soul is] This seems to be idiomatical to denote himself, 'I am exceedingly sorrowful, ready to die through excess of sorrow.'

39. Not as I will] The sense is, though the sorrow I experience constrains me to desire the removal of the bitter cup, yet I perfectly acquiesce in what thou hast appointed.

40. To the disciples] To Peter, James and John, ver. 27.—Findeth them asleep] From this it appears that it was now very late in the night.

41. The spirit indeed is] Our Lord kindly alleges for their infirmity the only extenuation which it admitted.

45. Do ye now sleep on] At such a time, when ye ought especially to be watchful.

51. One of those who] The name of the servant was Malchus, and it was Peter who cut off his ear. As John wrote the last of the apostles, it is not improbable that Peter was then dead, and there existed no reason for keeping these things secret.

52. The sword will perish] The expression seems to be proverbial, denoting, that they who use the sword in general perish by it. John xviii. 4—8.

53. Thinkest thou] Our Lord reminds Peter, that if it take me? I sat daily with you teaching in the temple, and ye did not lay hold on me. 56 But all this is done, that the writings of the prophets may be fulfilled. 57 Then all the disciples forsook him and fled. And those who had laid hold on Jesus led him away to the palace of Caiaphas the high priest, where the scribes and the elders 58 were assembled. But Peter followed him at a distance to the court of the high priest, and went in, and sat with the servants, to 59 see the end. Now the chief priests, and elders, and all the council, sought false witness against Jesus, that they might put 60 him to death; But found it not, though many false witnesses came near. At last 61 came near two false witnesses. And said, This man said, I am able to destroy the temple of God, and to build it in three days. 62 And the high priest arose, and said to him, Answerest thou nothing? what is it which 63 these witness against thee? But Jesus continued silent. And the high priest spoke and said to him, I adjure thee by the living God, that thou tell us whether thou be the 64 Christ, the Son of God. Jesus saith to him, It is as thou hast said: moreover I say to you, That hereafter ye shall see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, 65 and coming in the clouds of heaven. Then the high priest rent his garments, saying, He hath spoken blasphemy; what further need have we of witnesses? behold, now ye 66 have heard his blasphemy. What think ye? They answered and said, He is guilty 67 of death. Then they spat in his face and struck him with the fist; and others beat 68 him with the palms of their hands, Saying, Prophecy to us, thou Christ, Who is he that struck thee? 69 Now Peter sat without in the court; and a maid servant came near to him, saying, Thou also wast with Jesus of Galilee. But 70 he denied it before them all, saying, I know not what thou meanest. And when he 71 was gone out into the porch, another maid servant saw him, and said to them that were there, This man also was with Jesus of Nazareth. And he denied it again with 72 an oath, saying, I do not know the man. And after a while those who stood by came 73 and said to Peter, Surely, thou also art one of them; for thy speech discovereth thee. Then he began to curse and to swear, say- 74 ing, I know not the man. And immediately a cock crew. And Peter remem- 75 bered the words of Jesus, who had said to him, Before a cock crew, thou wilt deny me thrice. And he went out and wept bitterly.

CHAPTER XXVII.

A. D. 33. Christ is delivered to Pilate, and Judas hangeth himself; Pilate convinced of his innocence tries to release him, but the clamours of the Jews induce him to give him up to be crucified.

Now when morning was come, all the chief priests and elders of the people took counsel against Jesus to put him to death. And when they had bound him, they led him away, and delivered him up to Pontius Pilate the governor.

Then Judas, who had delivered him up, when he saw that he was condemned, repented, and brought back the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders, Saying, I have sinned in that I have delivered up an innocent person. And they said, What is that to us? see thou to that. And he cast down the pieces of silver in the temple, and departed, and went and hanged himself. And the chief priests took the pieces of silver, and said, It is not lawful to were his will to escape he could have had an army of the heavenly host to defend him.

56. May be fulfilled] Such events are permitted to occur agreeable to what had been foretold; and there was a moral necessity for such predictions being fulfilled.

58. To the court] Not into the place where the high priest and elders sat, though near to it, or at the door, as Luke informs us that our Lord turned and looked on Peter, after he had denied him with oaths, which could not have taken place unless he had been near, Luke xxii. 61.

59—62. Sought false witness] They had already determined on his death, but some pretence was requisite to hide or palliate their own injustice. The witnesses refer to what John relates, chap. ii. 20, 21. But the words they use are different. Jesus did not say the temple of God; but 'this temple.'

64. I say to you] When adjured in the name of the living God, to say whether or not he was the Christ, our Lord answered in effect, I am.

65. Rent his garments] This was an ancient custom to express indignation, sorrow, or grief, Acts xiv. 14.—Blasphemy] That is, speaking reproachfully and maliciously of God. How our Lord's words, even by construction, could be made to involve this does not appear.

68. Prophecy to us] Both Mark and Luke inform us that our Lord's face was then covered as a condemned criminal.

Mark xiv. 65. Luke xxii. 64; and the design of the speakers was to ridicule his prophetic office.

69. Sat without in the court] For this sense of αὐλῆς, see Schleus. and Campbell. Mark says, Peter being in the αὐλῆς κατω, court below; so that the room where Jesus was examined was raised some little above the ground.

70. I know not what thou meanest] I do not understand of what thou art talking.

71. Into the porch] That of the entrance into that of the room where our Lord was.

72. Denied with an oath] His first offence was a simple denial, or a kind of evasion; now he offends presumptuously, appealing to God to confirm a lie. When again suspected, he breaks out into the most sinful language.

CHAP. XXVII. 1. Took counsel against] From Mark xv. 1, it appears that Caiaphas, and those with him, who first examined our Lord, had summoned all the members of the Jewish sanhedrim, or chief council, who assembled to sanction what had been done, as early as possible.

2. Delivered him to Pilate] From John xviii. 28, we learn that they led Jesus to the pretorium, where Pilate lived, and where he administered justice. The Jews had not the power of putting any one to death without the consent of the Roman governor.

4. An innocent person] This confession of the traitor is honourable to the character of our Lord.—What is that to put them into the treasury; because it is 7 the price of blood. And they took counsel, 8 and bought with them the potter's field, to bury strangers in. Wherefore that field is called, The field of blood unto this day.

 9 (Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by the prophet, saying, And I took the thirty pieces of silver, the price of him who was valued, whom they of the children of Israel 10 valued; And gave them for the potter's field, as the Lord appointed me.) 11 And Jesus stood before the governor; and the governor asked him, saying, Thou art then the King of the Jews? And Jesus 12 said to him, Thou sayest truly. And when he was accused by the chief priests and 13 elders, he answered nothing. Then Pilate saith to him, Hearest thou not how many 14 things they testify against thee? And he answered him to no one matter; so that the governor wondered greatly.
 15 Now at that feast the governor was wont to release to the people a prisoner, whom 16 they would. And they had then a noted 17 prisoner, called Barabbas. When therefore they were gathered together, Pilate said to them, Whom will ye that I release to you?
 Barabbas, or Jesus who is called Christ?
 18 (For he knew that through envy they had 19 delivered him up. And while he was sitting on the judgment seat, his wife sent to him, saying, Have thou nothing to do with that righteous man; for I have suffered many things this day in a dream because of 20 him.) But the chief priests and the elders persuaded the multitude that they should ask for Barabbas, and destroy Jesus.
 21 The governor spoke and said to them,

Which of the two will ye that I release to you? They said, Barabbas. Pilate 22 saith to them, What shall I do then with Jesus who is called Christ? They all say to him, Let him be crucified. And the gover- 23 nor said, Why, what evil hath he done?
 But they cried out exceedingly, saying, Let him be crucified.

Now when Pilate saw that he could pre- 24 vail nothing, but rather that a tumult was made, he took water, and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this righteous person: see ye to it. Then answered all the people, 25 and said, His blood be on us, and on our children. Then he released Barabbas to 26 them; and when he had scourged Jesus, he delivered him up to be crucified.

Then the soldiers of the governor took 27
 Jesus into the common hall, and gathered unto him the whole band. And they stripped 28 him, and put on him a scarlet robe. And 29 when they had platted a crown of thorns, they put it upon his head, and a reed in his right hand; and they kneeled before him, and derided him, saying, Hail, king of the Jews! And they spat on him, and took the 30 reed, and struck him on the head. And 31 when they had derided him, they took off the robe, and put on him his own raiment, and led him away to crucify him. And as 32 they were coming out, they met a man of Cyrene, named Simon, whom they compelled to carry his cross. And when they 33 had come to a place called Golgotha, (that is a skull-place,) They gave him vinegar, 34 mixed with a bitter ingredient, to drink;
 but when he had tasted he would not drink.

us] This shows the hardness, as well as proves the guilt of our Lord's enemies.

6. To put them into the treasury] This was agreeable to the spirit of the law, Deut. xxiii. 18. What is mentioned here and in the following verses was not done immediately, but most probably some time after, though on account of order the evangelist has narrated the whole transaction together.

9, 10. Then was fulfilled] The words are from Zech.
 xi. 12, 13, and are quoted as in a very remarkable manner now fulfilled in the treatment of the great shepherd.—
 (o) Jeremiah.—Griesb.

18, 19. For he knew] These two verses are parenthetic, containing first a remark of the writer, and second a circumstance which occurred while Pilate was examining our Lord.—This day] As the Jews began their day at the sixth hour of the evening, Pilate's wife meant, during the night.
 Her dream had made a strong impression on her mind.
 One design of it might be, that Pilate should bear his testimony to the innocence of Jesus.

21. They said Barabbas] As Barabbas had most probably espoused the opinion that it was lawful to oppose the Romans, and sinful to submit to them, and in consequence had excited the people to sedition, they would be strongly disposed to favour him. Compare Luke xxiii. 19.

23. Why, what evil] Pearce observes that the text is elliptical: 'Why should I crucify him? For what evil hath he done?' Compare 1 Cor. ix. 10; x. 20; xii. 31. During the examination, and after he had acknowledged himself king of the Jews, the conversation between him and Pilate, John xviii. 36, &c. must have passed.

24. Washed his hands] Comp. Deut. xxi. 6, 7, and Ps.
 xxvi. 6. The heathens had a similar custom to that of the Jews, as appears from Virgil, Æn. 2. v. 715. Pilate yielded through fear of a popular tumult.

26. He had scourged] That is, had ordered him to be scourged. Some think that Pilate hoped that the Jews would have been satisfied with this punishment. Compare John xix. 4, 5. This was itself a terrible punishment, the flesh being cut by the whip used for the purpose.

28. Scarlet robe] This was the colour of the robe which the Roman nobility chiefly wore, as white was that of the Jewish nobles. It is called purple by Mark xv. 17, and John xix. 2. It should seem that it only contained a light shade of blue, as the words scarlet and purple are used promiscuously by the evangelists. See Schleus. in verb.

29. Crown of thorns] This was most probably designed both to ridicule his claim of being a king, and to produce pain. Hence when crowned, they treated him with every mark of contempt, spitting on him, and striking him on the head.

32. Whom they compelled] From John xix. 17, we learn that our Lord carried his own cross, or that part of it called antenna, to which the arms were fastened. The stipes, or upright beam which was fixed in the earth, was what they compelled Simon to carry; or at least to assist our Lord in carrying, if the two pieces were fastened together.

33. Golgotha] Perhaps some criminals had been buried there. This was a part of mount Calvary, Luke xxiii. 33.

34. Mixed with a bitter ingredient] Mark says that they gave him 'wine mingled with myrrh.' Such ingre-

35 And when they had crucified him, they 36 parted his garments, casting lots.* And 37 sitting down there they watched him. And they set up over his head his accusation written : THIS IS JESUS THE KING 38 OF THE JEWS. Two robbers were also crucified with him, one on the right hand, and another on the left.
 39 And those who passed by reviled him,
 40 shaking their heads, And saying, Thou who destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three days, save thyself. If thou be the Son of God, come down from the cross.
 41 In like manner the chief priests and the Scribes and the elders, derided him, and 42 said, He saved others; himself he cannot save. If he be the king of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will 43 believe him. He trusted in God; let him now deliver him, if he delight in him; for 44 he said, I am the Son of God. The robbers also, who were crucified with him, reproached him in the same manner.
 45 Now from the sixth hour there was darkness over all the land until the ninth hour.
 46 And about the ninth hour, Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, Eli, Eli, lama sabach-thani? (that is to say;) My God, my God, 47 why hast thou forsaken me? Some of those who stood there, when they heard it, said, 48 This man calleth for Elijah. And immediately one of them ran, and took a sponge, and filled it with vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave him to drink. The rest said, 49 Forbear, let us see whether Elijah will come to save him. Jesus, when he cried again 50 with a loud voice, resigned his spirit.

And, behold, the veil of the temple was 51 rent in two from the top to the bottom; and the earth quaked, and the rocks were rent; And the graves were opened; and 52
 many bodies of the saints who slept arose,
 And came out of the graves after his resur- 53 rection, and went into the holy city, and appeared to many.

Now when the centurion, and they that 54 were with him, watching Jesus, perceived the earthquake, and those things that were done, they feared greatly, saying, Truly this was the Son of God.

And many women were there, beholding 55 at a distance, who had followed Jesus from Galilee, ministering to him: Among whom 56 was Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Josès, and Salome the mother of the sons of Zebedee.

Now when it was evening, there came a 57 rich man of Arimathea, named Joseph, who himself also was a disciple of Jesus. He 58 went to Pilate, and begged the body of Jesus. Then Pilate commanded the body to be delivered. And when Joseph had 59

dients were given to criminals to stupefy them, and to render them insensible to the horrors of death.

35. Casting lots] The remainder of this verse is wanting in the best manuscripts, the old versions, and the fathers. Griesbach has rejected it. Probably it is added from John xix. 23, 24—(o) So that it was fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, 'They parted my garments,' &c. Griesb.

37. His accusation] It was usual with the Romans to affix to the instrument of their punishment a writing, expressing the crime for which they suffered. See Seuton. in Calig. ch. 24. This accusation was called title. Luke and John tell us that it was written in Latin, for the majesty of the Roman empire; in Greek, for the information of the many Hellenists who spoke that language; and in Hebrew, as it was the vulgar language of that place.

43. If he delight] The seventy often render the Hebrew יִשְׁמַח בְּיָלֹוֹ; and it is the term used Ps. xxii. 8. This sense Parkhurst adopts; also Campbell, De Sacy, and others.

44. The robbers also] Matthew does not relate what respected these men so circumstantially as Luke xxiii. 39, whence we learn that it was only one of them that derided our Lord.

45. Darkness over all] It is probable that Jesus was fixed on the cross about the third hour, or nine in the morning; and that the darkness began at the sixth, or twelve o'clock, and continued until Jesus expired, about three in the afternoon, called the ninth hour. This darkness must have been miraculous, as the passover was kept at the full moon, when no eclipse could happen.

46. Eli, Eli, lama] This shows that our Lord spoke the common language of the people, a mixture of Hebrew and Chaldee or Syriac. The quotation is from Ps. xxii. 1.

48. Took a sponge] Jesus said, I thirst, John xix. Hence some one took a sponge and filling it with vinegar, put it on a long reed and reached it to his mouth. Some were for denying our Lord this small favour, saying, 'Forbear,' that is, give him nothing, and let us see, &c.

50. Resigned his spirit] It is certain that our Lord had power to lay down his life and to take it again, John x. 18;

and it appears that he exercised this power, when he had fulfilled all things given him to do.

51. The veil of the] That which separated the most holy place from the sanctuary, and which was made of the richest and strongest tapestry. This was done to show that the Jewish ceremonies were to be abolished, Heb. vi. 19; ix. 8. —Rocks were rent] A singular fissure now remains as evidence of this fact, which Maundrel has described as about a span wide at the top, but opens a few spans below, and runs downward to an unknown depth.

52. The graves were opened] These were without the city; and it is most probable that they remained open until after our Lord's resurrection. For as the next day was the sabbath, the Jews would not approach them, lest they should be polluted.—Of the saints] Probably some of our Lord's disciples who had lately died, and who were well known, Acts ix. 41.

53. And they came out] Our Lord was the first fruits of those that slept, and they who now arose, as some think, were not again subject to death. They appeared to many to many who had known them while living; and it is thought by many to be highly probable, that these saints ascended to heavenly bliss, as an earnest that all such shall ascend, and enjoy eternal life, through our Lord and Saviour.

54. This was the Son of God] The centurion could not be ignorant of what our Lord had so often said of himself, that he was the Son of God; and that under the impression which these awful events had made on his mind, he speaks not as a heathen polytheist, but as admitting the claim which our Lord had made to be just.

56. Mary Magdalene] That is, Mary of Magdala; so called from the town where she had lived.—Mother of the sons] See note on ch. xiii. 55.—Mother of the sons] Mark calls her Salome, mother of James and John, chap. iv. 21; Mark xv. 40. The name is inserted on this authority, as it makes the narrative more explicit.

57. When it was evening] It was the custom of the Jews to bury malefactors before sunset, as Josephus relates, and the law appoints, Deut. xxi. 23.—A disciple of] Some rich taken the body, he wrapped it in a clean 60 linen cloth; And laid it in his own new sepulchre, which he had hewn out in the rock; and he rolled a great stone to the door of the sepulchre, and departed.

61 And Mary Magdalene was there, and the other Mary, sitting over against the sepulchre.
62 Now on the morrow, which followed the day of preparation, the chief priests and the 63 Pharisees came together to Pilate, Saying,
Sir, we remember that this deceiver said, while he was yet alive, After three days I 64 will rise again. Command therefore that the sepulchre be made sure until the third day, lest his disciples come by night and steal him away, and say to the people, He is risen from the dead: so the last deceit 65 will be worse than the first. Pilate said to them, Ye have a guard; go make it as se-66 cure as ye know how. So they went, and secured the sepulchre, by sealing the stone, and posting the guard.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

A. D. 33. Our Lord's resurrection; he appeareth to certain women, then to his disciples and sendeth them to preach and baptize in his name.

1 AFTER the sabbath, as the first day of the week began to dawn, came Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary, to see the se-2 pulchre. And behold, there had been a great earthquake; for an angel of the Lord had descended from heaven, and had come and rolled back the stone from 3 the door, and sat upon it. His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment 4 white as snow; And for fear of him the guards trembled, and became as dead men.

men believed on Jesus; and Joseph showed his respect to his Lord by attention to his dead body.

59. Clean linen] Most probably the body had been previously washed, as was the custom. This was done in order to embalm the body after the sabbath.

62. Now on the morrow] That is, on the Saturday, the Jewish sabbath. The Friday is called 'the day of preparation,' because it was the day before the sabbath, and it was that year the day of the passover.

63. After three days] That is, in three days, or on the third day. So we find the words, after three days, to signify, 'on the third day,' 1 Chron. x. 5, compared with ver. 12, and 1 Sam. xx. 12, compared with verse 19.

65. Ye have a guard] During the passover a cohort of Roman soldiers were posted at the gate of the temple, to quell any tumult that might arise; and from these some were selected to guard our Lord's sepulchre, so that no art or imposture could be used.

CHAP. XXVIII. 1. After the sabbath] That is, after that Saturday had ended, and during the night these women had prepared ointments to embalm the body of Jesus.—As it began to dawn] John says, 'when it was yet dark,' the day just breaking; and Mark and Luke, 'very early in the morning.'

5. And an angel] Luke speaks of two men or angels, xxiv. 4, 23; and from John xx. 1, &c. it appears that Mary had gone back to Jerusalem to inform Peter and John that the body of Jesus was not in the sepulchre, and that Peter and John had come and seen it to be true, and had also gone

But the angel spoke and said to the 5 women, Fear not; for I know that ye seek Jesus, who was crucified. He is not here; 6 for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay, And go quickly, 7 and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead; and, behold, he goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see him: lo, I have told you. And they quickly went out 8 of the sepulchre with fear and great joy;
and they ran to bring his disciples word.

And [as they went to tell his disciples,] 9 behold, Jesus met them, saying, Hail.
And they came near and took hold of his feet, and did homage to him. Then said 10 Jesus to them, Be not afraid; go tell my brethren that they go into Galilee, and there shall they see me.

Now as they were going, behold, some 11 of the guard came into the city, and told the chief priests all the things which had been done. And when they had assembled 12 with the elders, and had taken counsel, they gave much money to the soldiers, Saying, 13 Tell the people, that his disciples came by night, and stole him away while we slept.
And if this come to the governor's ears, 14
we will prevail on him, and secure you.
So they took the money, and did as they 15 were taught; and this report is spread abroad among Jews until this day.

Then the eleven disciples went away into 16 Galilee, to a mountain where Jesus had appointed them. And when they saw him, 17 they did homage to him; but some had doubted. And Jesus came and spoke to 18 them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore, 19 and make disciples of all nations, baptizing back; and that Mary Magdalene having returned, the angel or angels appeared and spoke as is here related.

7. Into Galilee] Our Lord had many disciples in that country which was so much the scene of his preaching and miracles. See verses 10, 16.

9. As they went] Some good manuscripts want the words included in brackets, as well as many of the versions; and the sense is complete without them, being implied in the preceding verse.—Jesus met them] Before they had gone out of the garden in which the sepulchre was, John xx. 15.

11. Now as they were going] From the garden to Jerusalem, to tell the disciples that they had seen the Lord, and that he had ordered them to go into Galilee.

12—15. Gave much money] This conduct and the incoherent tale can only be regarded as designed to mislead the multitude. The punishment for a soldier on guard sleeping, was most probably death. Hence the chief priests promise to procure their safety, if they were to say as they were bidden.

17. But some had doubted] It is probable that it was in Galilee where our Lord was seen by above 500 brethren at once, 1 Cor. xv. 6; and if so, there is no need to think that any of the apostles doubted, but rather some of these brethren. Matthew cannot refer to Thomas; for what is said of him took place at Jerusalem, and not in Galilee.

19. Make disciples] This is the most literal version, and prevents the tautology, teach all nations, teaching them.—Baptizing them] When made disciples, as the initiatory rite them into the name of the Father, and of 20 the Son, and of the Holy Spirit; Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world.

Amen.

of Christianity, they were to be baptized into the name, belief, or profession of the Father, &c. Compare 1 Cor. i. 13;
x. 2, with Acts viii. 16; x. 48; xix. 5.

20. To observe all things] Had the teachers of Christianity observed this rule, happy would it have been for mankind; but alas! how many things have they observed which our Lord never commanded.—With you always] Whitby well observes, that this cannot apply to the apostles only, but to the teachers of the gospel all days to the end of the world. 'Till then the church shall be favoured with the presence, assistance, and protection of the Saviour; and this is her security, privilege, and glory.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO ST. MARK.

INTRODUCTION.

The second narrative of our Lord is the work of Mark, who was an Evangelist; and according to ancient testimony attended Peter in his journeys and ministry, as Timothy and Titus did the apostle Paul. He is supposed to be the person whom Peter calls his son, that is, a convert to the Christian faith, 1 Pet. v. 13. His knowledge of the doctrines and miracles of our Lord must have been derived from the information of Peter, and of others who had heard our Lord's discourses, and been witnesses of his miracles; and it is probable it had the approbation of Peter. He relates the miracles of Jesus with particularity; but rarely gives us his discourses. Like Matthew he simply states facts, and leaves the reader to reflect on them, and make the proper inferences.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 27. The office of the baptist; Jesus baptized, tempted, begins his ministry and works many miracles.

1 THE beginning of the gospel of Jesus
2 Christ, the Son of God. As it is written in the prophets, Behold, I send my mes-3 senger before thy face, who shall prepare thy way before thee. The voice of one crying in the desert; Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.
4 Thus came John baptizing in the desert, and preaching the baptism of repentance
5 for the remission of sins. And all the land of Judea, and all they of Jerusalem, went out to him, and were baptized by him in the river 6 Jordan, confessing their sins. And John was clothed with camel's hair, and with a leathern girdle about his loins; and he ate 7 locusts and wild honey. And he proclaimed, saying, One mightier than I cometh after me, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to stoop down and unloose.

I indeed have baptized you with water; 8 but he shall baptize you with the Holy Spirit.

And it came to pass in those days, that 9 Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized by John in the Jordan. And 10 immediately going up from the water, he saw the heavens rent, and the Spirit, as a dove, descending upon him: And there 11 came a voice from heaven, saying, Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. And immediately the Spirit send- 12 eth him forth into the desert. And he was 13 there in the desert forty days, tempted by Satan; and was with the wild beasts; and angels ministered to him. Now after John 14 was delivered up to prison, Jesus came into Galilee, proclaiming the glad tidings of the kingdom of God, And saying, The time is 15 fulfilled, and the kingdom of God draweth

CHAP. I. 1. The beginning of] This verse is the title or inscription; and the fourth verse contains the reddition to the second.

2. Behold, I send] This is quoted in the same manner, Matt. xi. 10, and Luke vii. 27, and applied to John. See Matt. iii. 1.

8. With water] This sense of the preposition εν is supported by chap. v. 2; Luke xiv. 31; Heb. ix. 25; Jude 14.
and in this sense it is often used by Xenophon and other Greek writers.

9. In the Jordan] It is not improbable that our Lord and others whom John baptized went down to the water; and if within its banks, (for the Jordan at some seasons of the year overflowed,) they might be said to be in the Jordan without going into the water at all. As the preposition is used for sub, so it is for in, and like the Hebrew ב must be rendered in many places to, at. Compare chap. v. 30; Luke
i. 17; xxiii. 42; Rom. viii. 34.

10. The heavens rent] The aerial heavens are intended; the clouds seemed to be rent, while the Holy Spirit descended, perhaps in some bright and luminous appearance, hovering as a dove, and then lighting upon Christ.

11. Thou art my] Matthew says, 'This is my beloved son.' Luke agrees with Mark in the first clause, but in the latter, instead of 'in whom I am well pleased,' Luke has,
'in thee I am,' &c. These little variations in relating the same fact are natural, and show that the Evangelists did not copy one from another.

12. Sendeth him forth] That the original word does not imply force, see ver. 43, Matt. ix. Compare Matt. iv. 1.

13. Forty days] If the opinion of Michaelis be adopted, that Jesus was led by the Spirit into the great desert, in which the Israelites sojourned, these forty days may include the time spent in going there, as well as the period he abode there, before the temptation commenced. This account of Mark strongly supports the opinion that our Lord was eth near; repent and believe the glad tid-16 ings. Then as he walked by the sea of Galilee, he saw Simon, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea: for 17 they were fishers. And Jesus said to them, Come after me, and I will make you to 18 become fishers of men. And immediately they left their nets, and followed him.

 19 And thence passing on a little further, he saw James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, who also were in a vessel 20 mending their nets. And immediately he called them; and they left their father Zebedee in the vessel with the hired ser-21 vants, and went after him. And they went to Capernaum; and immediately on the sabbath he entered into the synagogue and 22 taught. And the people were amazed at his doctrine; for he taught them as one that had authority, and not as the Scribes.
 23 And there was in their synagogue a man with an unclean spirit, and he cried out, 24 Saying, Ah! what hast thou to do with us, Jesus of Nazareth? art thou come to destroy us? I know who thou art, the Holy 25 One of God. And Jesus rebuked him, saying, Be silent, and come out of him.
 26 And when the unclean spirit had con-vulsed him, and cried with a loud voice, 27 he came out of him. And they were all astonished, so that they reasoned among themselves, saying, What is this? What new doctrine is this? for with authority commandeth he even the unclean spirits, 28 and they obey him. And immediately his fame spread abroad through all the region 29 about Galilee. And immediately they went out of the synagogue, and entered with James and John into the house of Simon 30 and Andrew. Now the mother of Simon's wife lay sick of a fever; and they immedi-31 tell him of her. And he came and took her by the hand, and raised her up; and instantly the fever left her, and she minis-32 tered to them. When the evening was come, and the sun set, they brought to him all that were diseased, and those that had 33 demons. And all the city was gathered together at the door. And he healed many 34 that were sick of various diseases, and cast out many demons; and suffered not the demons to say, that they knew him. And 35 in the morning, rising up long before the dawn, he went out, and departed into a solitary place, and prayed there. And Si- 36

 mon and those that were with Simon followed after him. And when they had found 37 him, they said to him, All men seek thee.
 And he said to them, Let us go into the 38 neighbouring towns, that I may preach
 there also; for therefore am I come forth.
 And he preached in their synagogues 39
 throughout all Galilee, and cast out demons.
 And there came a leper to him, beseeching 40 him, and kneeling down to him, and saying to him, If thou wilt, thou canst make me clean. And Jesus, moved with compassion, 41 put forth his hand, and touched him, and saith to him, I will; be thou clean. And 42 as soon as he had spoken, immediately the leprosy departed from the man, and he was made clean. And he strictly charged him, 43 and immediately sent him away; And saith 44 to him, See thou say nothing to any man:
 but go, show thyself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing those things which Moses commanded, for a testimony to them. But 45 he went out, and began to publish it much,
 and to spread abroad the matter, so that Jesus could no more openly enter into the city, but was without in desert places: and they came to him from every quarter.

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 31. Christ healeth one sick of the palsy, calleth
 Matthew, and eateth with publicans and sinners.

AND he entered again into Capernaum 1 after some days; and it was reported that he was in a house. And immediately many 2 were gathered together; so that there was no room to contain them, no, not even about the door; and he spoke the word to them.
 And they came to him, bringing one sick 3 of the palsy, who was borne by four. And 4 when they could not come near him because of the multitude, they removed the

in that desert. which abounded with serpents and wild beasts

21. They went to Capernaum] After having preached in the synagogue of Nazareth and being thrust out of that city, he went to Capernaum, Luke iv. 16—31. The next verse Matthew places at the end of the sermon on the mount, chap. vii. 28, 29.

22—28. A man with an] Compare Luke iv. 33—37.
 Doddridge considers the account of this man as affording strong proof that those called demoniacs were really possessed with demons.

24. Ah! what hast thou] In rendering the idiomatic words. τι ηναι και ου, Pearce and others are followed. The same idiomatical words occur in the Heb. Josh. xxii. 24, &c.

29—34. They went out of the] Compare Matt. viii.
 14—17; Luke iv. 38—41.

32—39. Evening was come] The reason why they brought the diseased persons to be healed in the evening, most probably was that the sabbath was ended. Compare Luke iv.

 42—44.

40—45. There came a leper] Compare Matt. viii. 2, and notes, Luke v. 12.

45. Could no more enter] That is, into Capernaum. He could not enter for the crowds that came to see him, without exposing himself more than he judged proper.

CHAP. II. 2. Spoke the word] That is, 'the word of God, or of the kingdom,' as the gospel is called, Matt.
 xiii. 19.

3. One sick of the palsy] Matthew only relates the miracle, without noticing the circumstance of their going upon the roof, &c. chap. ix. 2—8. Luke agrees with Mark, chap.
 v. 18—26.

4. Removed the covering] Dr. Shaw supposes that our Lord was in the area or court, and that they carried him up

- covering where he was : and when they had taken it up, they let down the couch on which the sick of the palsy lay. When Jesus saw their faith, he said to the sick of the palsy, Son, thy sins are forgiven thee. Now some of the scribes were sitting there, and reasoning thus in their hearts, Why doth this man thus speak blasphemies ? who can forgive sins but one, that is God ? And immediately when Jesus perceived in his spirit that they so reasoned within themselves, he said to them, Why reason ye thus in your hearts ? Whether is it easier to say to the sick of the palsy, Thy sins are forgiven thee ; or to say, Arise, and take up thy couch, and walk ? But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (he saith to the sick of the palsy,) I say to thee, Arise, and take up thy couch, and go to thy house. And immediately he arose, took up the couch, and went forth before them all ; so that they were all amazed, and glorified God, saying, We never saw any thing like this.
- 13 And again he went forth by the side of the lake ; and all the multitude came to him, and he taught them. And as he passed by, he saw Levi, the son of Alpheus, sitting at the receipt of custom, and said to him, Follow me. And he arose and followed him. And it came to pass, that as Jesus was at meat in Levi's house, many publicans and sinners placed themselves at table with Jesus and his disciples : for there were many, and they followed him.
- 16 And when the Scribes and Pharisees saw him eat with publicans and sinners, they said to his disciples, How is it that he eateth and drinketh with publicans and sinners ? When Jesus heard this, he saith to them, They that are well, have no need of a physician, but they that are sick : I came to call, not the righteous, but sinners [to repentance.]
- 18 Now the disciples of John and of the Pharisees used to fast ; and they come and say to him, Why do the disciples of John and of the Pharisees fast, but thy disciples fast not ? And Jesus said to them, Can the bride men fast, while the bridegroom is with them ? as long as they have the bridegroom with them, they cannot fast. But the days will come, when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them, and then they will fast in those days. No one seweth a piece of undressed cloth on an old garment : else the new piece put on taketh away from the old, and the rent is made worse. And no one putteth new wine into damaged bottles ; else the new wine bursteth the bottles, and the wine is spilled, and the bottles will be marred : but new wine must be put into sound bottles

And it came to pass, that he went through the corn fields on the sabbath ; and his disciples began, as they went, to pluck the ears of corn. And the Pharisees said to him, Behold, why do they on the sabbath that which is not lawful ? And he said to them, Have ye never read what David did, when he had need, and was hungry, he, and they that were with him ? How he went into the house of God in the days of Abiathar, afterwards high priest, and ate the presence bread which is not lawful for any to eat but for the priests ; and gave also to those who were with him ? And he said to them, The sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath : Therefore the Son of man is Lord also of the sabbath.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 31. Christ healeth the withered hand ; chooseth his apostles, and refutes the blasphemy of the scribes, ascribing his miracles to Beelzebub.

AND he entered again into the synagogue ; and there was a man there who had a withered hand. And the Pharisees watched him, whether he would heal him on the

the outside stairs to the roof, and went on the roof near to the place where Jesus was teaching, and removing a part of the parapet wall, they let down the couch. A late ingenious critic conceived it probable that the court might be covered with a kind of awning, fastened to the balustrade or parapet wall, and that the removing of this is only intended.

5—12. Thy sins are] See notes, Matt. ix. 2—8. Pearce observes, that the Jews having said in their hearts, ver. 7, 'Who can forgive sins, but one, that is God?' Jesus, by affirming that he had power to forgive them, did in effect lead them to conclude that he claimed to be God ; which we may justly suppose he would not have done, if he had not a right to that claim, 13—16. And again he went] Compare Matt. ix. 9—13.—Levi, the son of] It has been generally thought that Levi is only another name for Matthew, as what that evangelist relates contains the same particulars we have here.

17. To repentance] Griesbach has rejected these words, on the authority of many MSS. and versions ; but as they are found, Luke v. 32, without any diversity of reading, and as the sense seems incomplete without them, I have admitted them with a mark as of doubtful authority.

19—22. Can the bride men] Compare Matt. ix. 14, and note.—They cannot fast] It is a time of joy, and not of grief ; they cannot therefore fast consistently with common usage. Compare Matt. ix. 16, 17, and notes.

23—25. Corn fields on the sabbath] Compare Matt. xii. 1, 8 ; Luke vi. 1, 11.

26. Abiathar, the high priest] Alimelech was high priest when David went to Nob. 1 Sam. xxi. 12 ; but Abiathar might officiate for his father on that occasion ; and as he only escaped the sword of Saul, and was high priest during David's reign, he is mentioned in preference to his father. To prevent ambiguity, afterwards is added.—Sabbath made for man] The sabbath was not first instituted and man created to observe it ; but man was first created, and the sabbath instituted for his benefit.

CHAP. III. 1. And he entered again] Compare chap. i. 21. This was on another sabbath, Luke vi. 6.

2. Pharisees watched him] Matthew says, 'They asked him, saying, 'Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath?' They

3 sabbath; that they might accuse him. And he saith to the man who had the withered
4 hand, Stand forth. And he saith to them, Is it lawful to do good on the sabbath, or to do evil? to save life, or to kill? But 5 they were silent. And when he had looked round about on them with anger, being grieved for the hardness of their hearts, he saith to the man, Stretch forth thy hand. And he stretched it forth; and his hand
6 was restored. And the Pharisees went out, and immediately took counsel with the Herodians against him, how they might 7 destroy him. But Jesus withdrew with his disciples towards the lake; and a great multitude followed him from Galilee, and 8 from Judea, And from Jerusalem, and from Idumea, and from beyond the Jordan; and they about Tyre and Sidon, a great 9 multitude, when they had heard what great things he did, came to him. And he spoke to his disciples, that a small vessel should 10 attend on him because of the multitude, lest they should throng him. For he had 11 healed many; so that as many as had grievous diseases pressed upon him that they 12 might touch him. And unclean spirits, when they saw him, fell down before him, and cried, saying, Thou art the Son of God. But he strictly charged them that they 13 should not make him known. And he goeth up a mountain, and calleth to him whom he would: and they came to 14 him. And he appointed twelve, that they might be with him, and that he might send 15 them forth to preach; And to have the power of healing diseases and casting out 16 demons. And these were they; Simon whom he had surnamed Peter; And James 17 the son of Zebedee, and John the brother of James, these he surnamed Boanerges, 18 that is, Sons of thunder; And Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew and Matthew, and Thomas and James the son of Alphaeus, and Thaddeus, and Simon the Canaanite, 19 And Judas Iscariot, who also delivered him up.
20 And they went into a house; and the multitude cometh together again, so that they could not so much as eat bread. And 21 when his friends heard of it, they went out to lay hold on him; for they said, He is beside himself. But the Scribes who came 22 down from Jerusalem said, He hath Beelzebub, and by the prince of the demons he casteth out the demons. And he called 23 them to him, and said to them in parables, How can Satan cast out Satan? And if a 24 kingdom be divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand. And if a household 25 be divided against itself, that household cannot stand. And if Satan rise up against him- 26 self, and be divided, he cannot stand, but must have an end. No man can enter into 27 a strong man's house, and plunder his goods, unless he first bind the strong man; and then he may plunder his house. Verily 28 I say to you, All other sins may be forgiven to the sons of men, and the blasphemies wherewith soever they may blaspheme; But he that shall blaspheme against the 29 Holy Spirit hath never forgiveness, but is liable to everlasting punishment. Because 30 they said, He hath an unclean spirit.

And his mother and his brethren then 31 came, and, standing without, sent to him, calling him. And the multitude sat about 32 him, and they said to him, Behold, thy mother and thy brethren and thy sisters without seek thee. And he answered them 33 saying, Who is my mother, or my brethren? And he looked round on them who sat 34 about him, and said, Behold my mother and my brethren? For whosoever shall do the will of God, he is my brother, and my sister, and mother.

CHAPTER IV.

A. D. 31. The parable of the sower, and its explanation; parable of the seed growing secretly, and that of the mustard seed.

AND again he began to teach by the side of 1 the lake: and there was gathered to him a great multitude, so that he entered into a ship, and sat therein on the lake; and the whole multitude was by the lake on the land. And he taught them many things 2 by parables, and said to them in his teach-might do this after that Jesus had bid the man stand forth; and our Lord might reply as in Matthew as well as what Mark relates.

4. To do good or evil? To do evil and to kill, means, not to do good, nor to save when we can; otherwise there could have been no question about the lawfulness.

6. Herodians] See note, Matt. xxii. 16.

10. Grievous diseases] Such as was the woman's bloody issue, chap. v. 25.

14. Appointed twelve] This appointment consisted in his imparting to them spiritual gifts, as it follows.

18. Thaddeus] See note, Matt. x. 2.

21. They went out] From some house in which they were in Capernaum.—He is beside himself] He is so intent on his ministry that he alike disregards his health and safety. This reflection on our Lord's conduct by his friends is a testimony to his zeal and unwearied exertions in doing good.

23. In parables] By parables are meant our Lord's allusions to the case of a kingdom, a household, and a strong man, in the following verses.

24, 25. If a kingdom] Compare Matt. xii. 25. &c.; Luke xi. 16, &c.

28, 29. All other sins] See notes, Matt. xii. 28—31.

30. Because they said] What gave occasion for our Lord's thus speaking, was their saying, 'He hath an unclean spirit.'

31—35. And his mother] Compare Matt. xii. 46—50 and notes.

CHAP. IV. 1—10. And again he began] Compare Matt. xiii. 1—9.

3 ing, Hearken; behold a sower went forth
 4 to sow: And it came to pass, as he sowed, some seed fell by the way-side, and the fowls of the air came and devoured it.
 5 And some fell on rocky ground, where it had not much earth; and immediately it sprang up, because it had no depth of earth.
 6 But when the sun was up, it was scorched;
 and because it had no root, it withered away. And some fell among thorns, and the thorns grew up, and choked it, and it 8 yielded no fruit. But some fell on good ground, and yielded fruit that sprang up and increased; and brought forth, some thirty, and some sixty, and some a hundred 9 fold. And he said to them, He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.
 10 And when he was in private, they that were about him with the twelve asked him 11 respecting the parable. And he said to them, To you it is given to know the secret of the kingdom of God; but to them that are without, all these things are spoken in 12 parables: So that they may see indeed but not perceive; and may hear indeed but not understand; lest they should be converted, 13 and their sins should be forgiven. And he said to them, Know ye not this parable? how then will ye know all parables?
 14 The sower is he who soweth the word.
 15 And those by the way-side in whom the word is sown, are such as have no sooner heard than Satan cometh and taketh away
 the word that was sown in their hearts.
 16 And those in like manner which are sown on rocky ground, are they, who, when they have heard the word, immediately receive it 17 with joy; But not having it rooted in themselves, they endure but for a short time:
 afterward, when affliction or persecution ariseth because of the word, immediately 18 are they offended. And those which are sown among thorns, are such as hear the 19 word, And the cares of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, and the desires of other things entering in, choke the word, 20 and it becometh unfruitful. And those which are sown on good ground, are such as hear the word, and receive it, and bring forth fruit, some thirty, some sixty, and some a hundred fold.

And he said to them, Is a lamp brought 21 to be put under a measure, or under a couch, and not to be set on a stand? For 22 there is nothing hidden, which is not to be manifested; nor hath any thing been kept secret, but that it should come abroad. If 23 any man have ears to hear, let him hear.
 And he saith to them, Take heed what ye 24 hear; with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you.^a For he that hath 25 much to him shall be given; and he that hath little, from him shall be taken even that which he hath.

And he said, So is the kingdom of God, 26 as if a man should cast seed into the ground; And, while he sleepeth by night, 27 and riseth by day, the seed should spring and grow up, he knoweth not how. For 28 the earth bringeth forth fruit of itself; first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear. But when the fruit is ripe, 29 immediately he putteth in the sickle, because the harvest is come.

He said also, To what shall we liken the 30 kingdom of God, or what comparison shall we use concerning it? It is like a grain of 31 mustard seed, which when it is sown in the earth, is less than all the seeds that are in the earth: But when it is sown, it groweth 32 up, and becometh greater than all herbs, and shooteth out great branches; so that the fowls of the air may lodge under the shadow of it. And with many such parables 33 spoke he the word to them, as they were able to understand. But without a para- 34 ble spoke he not to them; and when they were alone he expounded all things to his disciples.

And the same day, when the evening 35 was come, he saith to them, Let us pass over to the other side. And when they had 36 sent away the multitude, they took him with them in the vessel. And there were

11. To them that are without] To those who were not admitted to the intimacy and private instruction with which the apostles and some other disciples were favoured.

12. So that they may see] Compare Matt. xiii. 14; where the quotation from Isa. vi. 9 is more complete, and the reason why they saw indeed, but did not perceive, &c. is assigned: 'For this people's heart is become gross,' &c.

15. In whom the word] Every translator must agree with Wakefield, that the construction of the original is extremely harsh and embarrassed. If we might read ὁ σπαραγμός instead of ἐλάσας, the construction would be improved.

16, 20. And those in like] In the 15th verse those must refer to the persons intended, and in this and the following to the grains or seeds sown. Compare Matt. xiii. 20-23.

21-23. Under a couch] Such as the Jews reclined on at meals. See Luke viii. 16.—Been kept secret] These remarks had been made on another occasion, Matt. v. 15.

24. With what measure] Consider what ye hear from me; for in proportion as ye attend to my doctrine, ye shall be blessed with improvement in the knowledge of it.

24. (a) And to you that hear, more shall be given.—Griesb.

25. For he that hath] Compare Matt. xiii. 12, and note; and xxv. 29.

27. Sleepeth by night] Compare Matt. vii. 6, and note. This kind of construction is common in the Hebrew. As vegetation is carried on by the prolific power of the elements, constantly, though imperceptibly, so should the gospel spread and increase in the world; and in its influence on the minds of believers.

30-34. To what shall we liken] Compare Matt. xiii. 31, 32. Raphael explains the close of ver. 33, 'able to understand,' as signifying 'able to bear,' as John xvi. 12.

35. And the same day] Compare Matt. viii. 18. If Mark has given us the very day on which our Lord delivered the parable of the sower, &c. it is clear that Matthew's account of what we have here is not given in the order of time.

36. They took him with them] Literally, 'They took him,

37 with him other little vessels also. And there arose a great storm of wind, and the waves beat into the vessel, so that it was now filled with water. And he was in the hinder part of the vessel, asleep on a pillow; and they awake him, and say to him, Master, carest thou not that we perish? And he arose and rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, Peace, be still. And the wind ceased, and there was a great calm. And he said to them, Why are ye so fearful? how is it that ye have no faith? And they feared exceedingly, and said one to another, What man is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?

CHAPTER V.

A. D. 31. Christ delivereth him possessed with a legion of demons; healeth the woman of a bloody issue, and raiseth the daughter of Jairus.

1 And they came over to the other side of the lake, into the country of the Gadarenes. 2 And when he had come out of the ship, immediately there met him out of the tombs a man with an unclean spirit, Who had his dwelling among the tombs; and no man could bind him not even with chains: For he had been often bound with fetters and chains, and the chains had been rent asunder by him, and the fetters broken in pieces, nor could any man tame him. 5 And always, night and day, he was in the tombs and in the mountains, crying out, and cutting himself with stones. But when he saw Jesus at a distance, he ran and did him homage, And cried out with a loud voice and said, What hast thou to do with me, Jesus, Son of the most high God? I adjure thee by God, that thou torment me not. (For he had said to him, Come out of the man, thou unclean spirit!) And he asked him, What is thy name? And he answered, saying, My name is legion; for 10 we are many. And he besought him much that he would not send them away out of the country. Now near to the mountains 11 there was a great herd of swine feeding. And the demons besought him, saying, 12 Send us into the swine that we may enter into them. And immediately Jesus gave 13 them leave. And the unclean spirits went out, and entered into the swine; and the herd ran violently down a steep place into the lake, (they were about two thousand) and were choked in the lake. And they 14 that fed the swine fled, and told it in the city, and in the villages. And the people went out to see what had been done. And 15 they come to Jesus, and see him that had the demon, sitting, and clothed, and in his right mind; and they were afraid. And 16 those that had seen it told them how it had befallen him that had the demon, and also concerning the swine. And they began to 17 entreat Jesus to depart out of their borders. And when he had come into the vessel, he 18 that had the demon besought Jesus that he might be with him. Yet Jesus suffered 19 him not, but saith to him, Go unto thy house to thy friends, and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee, and hath had compassion on thee. And he de- 20 parted, and began to publish in Decapolis how great things Jesus had done for him; and all men wondered.

And when Jesus had passed over again 21 by the vessel to the other side, much people gathered to him, and he was near to the lake. And behold, there cometh one of 22 the rulers of the synagogue, named Jairus; and when he saw him, ^{he} fell at his feet, And besought him greatly, saying, My little 23 daughter lieth at the point of death: I pray that thou wouldst come and lay thy hands on her, that she may be recovered, and live. And Jesus went with him; and 24 much people followed him, and thronged as he was in a ship.' Our Lord had gone into a vessel while his apostles had dismissed the multitude; and they then entered and took him away. Compare Matt. viii. 23.

38. Carest thou not? Matthew, 'Master, save us; we are perishing.' Luke, 'Master, Master, we are perishing!' Perhaps some of the disciples might say as Mark has it, and others as Matthew. The sense of all is the same.

CHAP. V. 1. Gadarenes] Compare Matt. viii. 23, and note there.

2—20 A man with an] Matthew connected this miracle with the storm on the lake of Genesareth, and mentions two demoniacs; but as one was a most remarkable case, and his cure a singular miracle, Mark dwells upon this, and gives a more particular account of the man and of the miracle.

3. Bind him] His strength was so great, as to break even the chains with which he was fettered.

5. In the tombs] Perhaps he was in the tombs by night, and in the mountains by day. The tombs being cut out of the rocks might afford him shelter.

7. Son of the most] The preceding verse renders it certain that it was the man, and not the demons, who made the confession. He might previously have heard Jesus and seen his miracles, and, now recollecting them, might thus speak.

9. What is thy name?] Our Lord had said, Come out of the man, unclean spirit. He speaks of only one spirit. By the question Jesus might intend only what was his own name; and the answer shows, that the unhappy man conceived that he might be called legion, as he thought himself possessed by so many spirits.

12. The demons besought him] According to popular opinion, they spoke through the organs of the man, and requested permission to enter into the swine; and when this was granted they entered, and the herd ran violently down a steep place into the sea or lake.

15. Clothed, and in his right mind] This man must have been well known, and so signal a miracle could not fail to make a considerable impression.

19. And tell them] Our Lord had usually forbidden the person healed to tell it, but here he commands the man to publish the mercy shown to him. The reason might be that this country was inhabited by heathens as well as Jews, and was remote from Jerusalem, where his most inveterate enemies resided. Josephus reckons Decapolis a part of Syria.

21. Passed over again] That is, to Capernaum. Compare Matt. iv. 13.

25 him. And a certain woman who had an
26 issue of blood twelve years, And had suffered much from many physicians, and had spent all that she had, and had received no
27 relief, but had rather grown worse, When she heard of Jesus, came in the crowd behind him, and touched his garment. For she said, If I may but touch his garments, 28 I shall be restored. And immediately the source of her disorder was dried up; and she felt in her body that she was cured of 30 that plague. And Jesus immediately knowing in himself the power which had gone from him, turned about in the crowd and 31 said, Who touched my garments? And his disciples said to him, Thou seest the multitude thronging thee, and sayest thou, 32 Who touched me? And he looked around 33 to see her that had done this thing. But the woman, fearing and trembling, knowing what had been done to her, came and fell down before him, and told him the 34 whole truth. And he said to her, Daughter, thy faith hath made thee well; go in peace, 35 and be whole of thy plague. While he yet spoke, there came from the ruler of the synagogue's house, some who said, Thy daughter is dead, why troublest thou the 36 master any further? And as soon as Jesus heard the word which was spoken, he saith to the ruler of the synagogue, Be not afraid, 37 only believe. And he suffered no man to follow, but Peter, and James, and John the 38 brother of James. And he cometh to the house of the ruler of the synagogue, and seeth a disturbance, and them that wept
39 and wailed greatly. And when he had come in, he saith to them, Why make ye this disturbance and weep? the child is not dead, but sleepeth. And they derided 40 him. But when he had put them all out, he taketh the father and the mother of the child, and those who were with him, and 41 entereth in where the child was. And he took the child by the hand, and said to her, Talitha cumi; which is, being interpreted;

Damsel, (I say unto thee,) arise. And immediately the damsel arose, and walked; for she was twelve years old. And they were amazed with great amazement. And he charged them strictly that no man should know it; and commanded that something should be given her to eat.

CHAPTER VI.

A. D. 31. Christ is despised by his countrymen, gives the power of miracles to the twelve; various opinions respecting him; miracle of five loaves and two fishes; walketh on the sea, &c.

AND he went out thence, and came to 1
Nazareth his own country; and his disciples follow him. And when the sabbath 2 was come, he began to teach in the synagogue; and many hearing him were astonished, saying, Whence hath this man these things? and what wisdom is this which hath been given to him? and whence are such mighty works wrought by his hands? Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary, 3 the brother of James, and Joses, and of Judah, and of Simon? and are not his sisters here with us? And they were offended at him. But Jesus said to them, A prophet is not without honour, except in his own country, and among his own kindred, and in his own house. And he could not 5 do any mighty work there except that he put his hands upon a few sick, and cured them. And he wondered because of their unbelief. 6 And he went round about the villages teaching. And he called to him the twelve, 7 and began to send them forth by two and two; and gave them power over unclean spirits; And commanded them that they 8 should take nothing for their journey, except a staff only; no bag, no food, no money in their purse: But to be shod with 9 sandals; and not to put on two coats. And 10 he said to them, In what place soever ye enter into a house, there abide till ye depart from that place. And whosoever will not 11 receive you, nor hear you, when ye depart thence, shake off the dust under your feet

25—34. A certain woman] Compare Matt. ix. 20—22; Luke viii. 43—48. Luke nearly agrees with Mark in relating this miracle, while Matthew omits many circumstances, and describes it very briefly. She had been afflicted with the disease twelve years, and the disease had become worse. Having heard of Jesus, and the wonders which he performed, she thought that if she could but touch his garment, she should be healed. She did so, and was healed. How striking, and how instantaneous the miracle!

30. The power which had] He knew what he had done, was conscious of the healing power which had been exerted; and the question, Who touched me? was designed to lead the woman to declare before all this surprising miracle.

39. Not dead, but sleepeth] Comp. Matt. ix. 24, and note.

40. Those who were with him] Peter, James and John, as is clear from ver. 37.

CHAP. VI. 1. Went out thence] From Capernaum, where he had sometime resided. Nazareth is supplied, as what is clearly implied.

3. This the carpenter] Matthew has 'the son of the carpenter,' and Pearce thought this the more probable. Some of the people might say as Matthew has it, and others as Mark. It is known that it was usual with the Jews, whatever their circumstances were, to teach their children some trade. Grotius says, 'Since Christ is thus called by the people of Nazareth, among whom he grew up, I cannot dissent from those who report that he assisted Joseph in his occupation, and as Justin says, made ploughs and yokes. That the ancient Christians thought so appears from the reply of one, who, being contumeliously asked, what the son of the carpenter was doing, answered, 'He is making a bier for Julian.'

4. A prophet is not] See note, Matt. xiii. 57. When an individual, whom we have known in circumstances like to our own, is afterwards distinguished by peculiar gifts and endowments, we are more prejudiced against him than strangers usually are.

5. He could not do] He could not with propriety. Their prejudices and unbelief might prevent them from bringing their sick in general to him for relief, as appears from Matt. xiii. 58.

12 for a testimony unto them.* And they went out and preached that men should repent.
 13 And they cast out many demons, and anointed with oil many that were sick, and cured them.
 14 And king Herod heard of him; (for his name was spread abroad:) and he said, John the Baptist is risen from the dead, and therefore mighty works are wrought by him. Others said, he is Elijah. And others said, He is a prophet like one of the old prophets. But when Herod heard of him, he said, It is John, whom I beheaded; he is risen from the dead. For this Herod had sent and apprehended John, and bound him in prison for Herodias' sake, his brother Philip's wife; for he had married her.
 18 For John had said to Herod. It is not lawful for thee to have thy brother's wife. Herodias therefore was greatly incensed against him, and would have killed him, but she could not; For Herod regarded John, knowing that he was a righteous and holy man, and protected him; and after hearing him, he did many things; and he heard him gladly. But a convenient day being come, when Herod on his birth-day made a supper for his great men, commanders and chiefs of Galilee; And the daughter of this Herodias came in, and danced, and pleased Herod and his guests; and the king said to the damsel, Ask of me whatsoever thou wilt, and I will give it thee. And he swore to her, Whatsoever thou shalt ask of me, I will give it thee, to the half of my kingdom. And she went out and said to her mother, What shall I ask? And she said, The head of John the Baptist. And she immediately came with haste to the king, and asked, saying, I desire that thou give me presently in a basin the head of John the Baptist. And the king was exceedingly grieved; yet because of his oath and of his guests, he would not reject her. And immediately the king sent an executioner, and commanded his head to be brought; and he went and beheaded him in the prison, And brought his head in a basin, and gave it to the damsel; and the damsel gave it to her mother. And when his disciples heard of it, they came and took up his corpse, and laid it in a tomb.

Then the apostles came together to Jesus, 30 and told him all things, both what they had done, and what they had taught. And he 31 said to them, Come ye yourselves privately to a desert place, and rest a short time: for there were many coming and going, and they had not leisure even to eat. And they 32 departed into a desert place by the vessel privately. But the people saw them departing, and many knew him, and ran by land out of all the cities, and came thither to him. And Jesus came out of the vessel, 34 and saw much people, and was moved with compassion towards them, because they were as sheep not having a shepherd: and he began to teach them many things. And 35 when the day was now far spent, his disciples came to him, and said, This is a desert place, and the day is far spent: Send them 36 away, that they may go into the country, and into the villages round about, and buy for themselves food: for they have nothing to eat. He answered and said to them, 37 Give ye them food to eat. And they say to him, Shall we go and buy bread for two hundred denarii, and give them to eat? He saith to them, How many loaves have 38 ye? go and see. And when they knew, they say, Five, and two fishes. And he 39 commanded them to make all place themselves by companies upon the green grass. And they placed themselves in squares, by 40 hundreds, and by fifties. And when he had 41 taken the five loaves and the two fishes,

11. Testimony unto them] As a testimony of their unbelief, and a declaration that you leave them as unworthy of your further regard, Acts xiii. 51; xviii. 6.—(o) Verily I say to you, It shall be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment, than for that city.—Griesb.

13. Anointed with oil] From this and James v. 14, 15, it appears that it was then usual to anoint sick persons with oil, or some unguent, which was most probably rubbed into the part affected. What is here said, as well as in James, implies that the cure was miraculous; and the reason of the rite, whatever it was, has now ceased.

19. She could not] For some time Herod resisted her arts and entreaties.

20. He did many things] Did many things according to the admonitions and instructions which John gave him; and took some pleasure in attending on his ministry.

21. A convenient day] Convenient for the purpose of Herodias. See Matt. xiv. 6.

23. To the half of my kingdom] See Matt. xiv. 9, and note. Doubtless this rash oath was made, when his passions were inflamed by wine.

25. Give me presently] She desired this might be done quickly, fearing lest Herod should change his mind. Josephus informs us that John was imprisoned in the castle of Machærus, a fortress at the extremity of Peræa, his territory adjoining that of Aretas, king of Arabia. Herod had married his daughter; but had put her away to take Herodias, to avenge which Aretas had declared war against him. It is then almost certain that Herod with his forces now lay at Machærus, where his leading men and officers attended him, and where his birth-day was kept. Hence he sent a sentinel to behead John, which could be done, and was done immediately. Soon after Herod engaged Aretas, but was defeated with great slaughter. He never prospered after beheading John, but died in exile.

30. Then the apostles] They had fulfilled the commission given to them, and now tell him what miracles they had wrought in his name, and what they had taught the people.

33. And ran by land] Our Lord sailed near the coast, to the desert place mentioned, and did not cross the lake.

34—41. And Jesus came] Compare Matt. xiv. 13—21. Mark is much more particular in the relation of this miracle than the former evangelist.

40. In squares by hundreds] I follow Campbell in this version; and it is certainly more literal than companies or ranges, which others adopt. The metaphor is taken from beds or flowers in gardens, which are usually parallelograms.

he looked up to heaven, and blessed, and broke the loaves, and gave them to his disciples to set before them; and the two fishes 42 divided he among them all. And they all 43 ate, and were filled. And they took up twelve large baskets full of the fragments 44 of the loaves and of the fishes. And those who ate of the loaves were five thousand 45 men. And immediately he constrained his disciples to get into the ship, and to go before to the other side towards Bethsaida, 46 while he sent away the people. And when he had sent them away, he departed to a moun- 47 tain to pray. And when the evening was come, the ship was in the midst of the lake, 48 and he alone on the land. And he saw them distressed with rowing; for the wind was contrary to them; and about the fourth watch of the night he cometh to them, walking upon the lake, and would have passed 49 by them. But when they saw him walking upon the lake, they supposed that it was 50 an apparition, and they cried out: (For they all saw him and were troubled.) And immediately he talked with them, and saith to them, Take courage; it is I; be not 51 afraid. And he went up to them into the ship; and the wind ceased: and they were greatly amazed in themselves beyond mea- 52 sure and wondered. For they considered not the miracle of the loaves; for their heart was hardened.

53 And when they had passed over, they came into the land of Genesaret, and drew 54 to the shore. And when they had come out of the ship, immediately the people knew 55 him, And ran through all the country round about, and began to carry about on couches those that were sick, where they 56 heard he was. And whithersoever he entered, into villages, or cities, or country, they laid the sick in the streets, and besought him that they might touch if it were but the border of his garment; and as many as touched him were made well.

CHAPTER VII.

A. D. 32. Pharisees offended at the disciples for not regarding the tradition; our Lord's reply; healeth the Syrophenician woman's daughter, and other miracles.

43. Of the loaves and of the fishes] That the words supplied are understood, must generally be allowed. Comp. John vi. 13.

45-56. And when he had] Compare Matt. xiv. 23-36. Mark omits the circumstance of Peter requesting that he might go to Jesus on the sea.

54. The people knew him] Some good MSS. have, men of that place, which, as to the sense, must be supplied, or something equivalent. Such supplements are often necessary in a translation.

CHAP. VII. 2. Defiled] In the Greek it is common, that is, not ceremonially cleansed. See verses 15, 18, 20, 21; Acts x. 14, 15.—(c) They found fault.—Griesb.

3. With a little water] That this is the exact sense of the text is generally allowed. Wetstein explains, 'With sees, and some scribes, who came from Jerusalem. And they saw some of his disciples eat bread with defiled, that is, with unwashed hands.' (For the Pharisees, and all the Jews, unless they wash their hands with a little water, eat not, holding the tradition of the elders. And when they come from the market-place, unless they wash, they eat not. And many other things there are, which they have received and hold, as the washings of cups and of pots, brazen vessels and tables.) Then the Pharisees and scribes asked him, Why walk not thy disciples according to the tradition of the elders, but eat bread with unwashed hands? He answered and said to them, Well hath Isaiah prophesied of you, hypocrites, as it is written; This people honour me with their lips, but their heart is far from me. But in vain do they worship me, teaching doctrines, the commandments of men. For laying aside the commandment of God, ye hold the tradition of men, as the washings of pots and cups; and many other such like things ye do. And he said to them, Well do ye make void the commandment of God, that ye may keep your own tradition. For Moses said, Honour thy father and thy mother; and, Whoso revileth father or mother, he shall surely die: But ye say, If a man shall say 11 to his father or mother, Be it Corban, [that is, an offering.] whatsoever I have by which thou mightest be profited: And ye 12 suffer him not afterward to do ought for his father or his mother; Making the word of 13 God of no effect through your tradition, which ye deliver: and many such like things ye do.

And when he had called all the people 14 to him, he said to them, Hearken to me, every one of you, and understand: There 15 is nothing from without a man, that entering into him can defile him; but the things which come out of him, those are they which defile the man. If any man have 16 ears to hear, let him hear. And when he 17 had entered into a house from the people, his disciples asked him concerning this saying. And he saith to them, Are ye also thus 18 without understanding? Do ye not per-as much water as they can hold in the nollow of their hand, when the fingers are gathered up together.'

4. Unless they wash] Αὐτίαν is used as synonymous with ὑπόπαι in the former verse, and the design of the Evangelist is not to describe a different mode of washing, but a different occasion of it, coming from the market-place, where they thought they might have been defiled, the common version is followed. Several good MSS. read παινῶνται, which signifies washing or sprinkling; and, though not of equal authority with the text, yet this contributes to fix the sense in which it was understood.—Washings of cups] That washings gives the sense of baptisms, I conceive must be allowed.

15. Nothing from] Though it is true that a man may bring guilt on himself by eating to excess, and a Jew by eat-ceive, that whatsoever thing from without entereth into the man, it cannot defile him ;

 19 Because it entereth not into his heart, but into the belly, where all food is cleansed, and the impurities pass off into the vault ?
 20 Also he said, That which cometh out of the 21 man, that defileth the man. For from within, out of the heart of men, proceed evil thoughts, adulteries, fornications, murders, Thefts, covetousness, maliciousness, deceit, impurity, an evil eye, calumny, pride, 23 folly. All these evil things come from within, and defile the man.
 24 And he arose, and departed thence into the borders of Tyre and Sidon, and entered into a house, and desired that none might know of him ; but he could not be concealed. For a certain woman, whose young daughter had an unclean spirit, heard of 26 him, and came and fell at his feet ; (The woman was a Greek, a Syrophenician by birth :) and she besought him that he would 27 cast the demon out of her daughter. But Jesus said to her, Let the children first be filled ; for it is not meet to take the children's bread, and cast it to the dogs. And 28 she answered and said to him, True, Master : yet the dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs. He then said to 29 her, For this saying, depart ; the demon is gone out of thy daughter. And when she came to her house, she found the demon gone out, and her daughter lying upon the bed.
 31 And again Jesus, departing from the borders of Tyre and Sidon, came to the lake of Galilee, through the country of Decapolis.
 32 And they bring to him one that was deaf, and had an impediment in his speech ; and they beseech him to put his hand upon 33 him. And he took him aside from the multitude, and put his fingers into his ears, 34 and spat, and touched his tongue ; And looking up to heaven, he sighed, and saith to him, Ephphatha, (that is, Be opened.)

ing what was forbidden ; yet still the pollution would arise from the wickedness of the heart, which is what our Lord meant.

19. Where all food is] Food received undergoes various changes, and that part fit for nutrition is cleansed or separated by the action of the stomach, and the secretory vessels, while that part which is unfit passes off. To give the sense clearly, it is necessary to desert the verbal order of the text, and to supply what is implied.

22. Folly] The word seems to be used in opposition to σωφροσύνη, sober-mindedness ; and to denote mad, ungoverned passion.

26—28. A Syrophenician] A native of that part of Phenicia, which was then called the Syrian Phenicia, in distinction from the Libophenicians or Carthaginians. Mark calls her a Greek, according to the style of the Jews, who called all the civilized part of mankind Greeks, as distinguished from themselves. Compare Acts xix. 10 ; xx. 21 ; Rom. i. 16 ; ii. 9, 10 ; iii. 9. By birth she was a Syrophenician ; by descent, a Canaanite, and by religion, a Greek, or an idolater. Compare note, Matt. xv. 26, &c.

33. Put his fingers] In this instance and some others, see chap. viii. 23 ; John ix. 6, our Lord made use of actions,

And immediately his ears were opened, and 35 the string of his tongue was loosed, and he spoke plainly. And he charged them that 36 they should tell no man ; but the more he charged them, the more abundantly they published it ; And were beyond measure 37 astonished, saying, He doeth all things well ; he maketh both the deaf to hear, and the dumb to speak !

CHAPTER VIII.

A. D. 32. Christ feedeth the people miraculously ; refuseth to give a sign to the Pharisees ; exhorteth to beware of the leaven of their doctrine, and foretells his death and resurrection.

IN those days, the multitude being very 1 great, and having nothing to eat, Jesus called his disciples to him, and saith to them, I have compassion on the multitude, 2 because they have now been with me three days, and have nothing to eat. And if 3 I send them away fasting to their own houses, they will faint by the way ; for some of them came from far. And his disciples answered 4 him, Whence can a man satisfy these men with bread here in the desert ? And he 5 asked them, How many loaves have ye ? And they said, Seven. And he commanded the multitude to place themselves on the ground ; and he took the seven loaves, and gave thanks, and broke, and gave to his disciples to set before them ; and they set them before the multitude. And they had a few 7 small fishes : and he blessed God, and commanded to set these also before them. So 8 they ate, and were filled ; and they took up of the remains of the fragments seven baskets. And they that had eaten were about 9 four thousand ; and he sent them away.

And immediately he entered into the 10 vessel with his disciples, and came into the parts of Dalmanutha. And the Pharisees 11 came forth, and began to dispute with him, seeking of him a sign from heaven, trying him. And he sighed deeply in his spirit, 12

perhaps to excite attention to the miracle ; for it must be evident that the act of putting his finger into the ears, or touching his tongue, could not have any natural efficacy to produce the effects.

CHAP. VIII. 2. Three days] It is not said that they had nothing during those three days, but that they had nothing to eat then, when Jesus thus spoke. Paul ate nothing for the space of three days ; and Cicero speaks of old women fasting two or three days as an usual thing in Italy.

4—9. Whence can a man] Such a question, after what the apostles had witnessed of his power and kindness, shows strongly their little, or rather, want of faith. Compare Matt. xv. 32—39. In this as in the former miracle there must have been a real creation of bread and fishes, to supply such a multitude.

10. Dalmanutha] In Matt. xv. 39, Jesus is said to come ' into the coasts or borders of Magdala ;' and hence some MSS have Magdala here. It is most probable that Dalmanutha was some village on the shore belonging to Magdala, or not far from that city ; so that both Matthew and Mark are correct in the account they give.

12. He sighed deeply] Jesus most probably thus sighed ; out of pity to their prejudices.

and saith, Why doth this race seek after a sign? verily I say to you, There shall no sign be given to this race. And he left them, and entering into the vessel again departed to the other side.

14 Now the disciples had forgotten to take bread, nor had they in the vessel with them more than one loaf. And he charged them, saying, Take heed, beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, and of the leaven of Herod. 16 And they reasoned among themselves, saying, It is because we have no bread. And when Jesus knew it, he saith to them, Why reason ye, because ye have no bread? perceive ye not yet, nor understand? have ye 18 your heart yet hardened? Having eyes, see ye not? and having ears, hear ye not? 19 and do ye not remember? When I broke the five loaves among five thousand, how many large baskets full of fragments took 20 ye up? They say to him, Twelve. And when the seven among four thousand, how many baskets full of fragments took ye 21 up? And they said, Seven. And he said to them, How is it that ye do not understand?

22 And he cometh to Bethsaida; and they bring a blind man to him, and besought 23 him to touch him. And he took the blind man by the hand, and led him out of the town; and when he had spit on his eyes, and put his hands upon him, he asked him 24 if he saw aught. And he looked up, and 25 said, I see men, like trees, walking. After that he put his hands again upon his eyes, and made him look up; and he was restored, 26 and saw every man clearly. And he sent him away to his house, saying, Neither go into the town, nor tell any in the town. 27 And Jesus went out, and his disciples, into the villages of Cæsarea Philippi; and by the way he asked his disciples, saying 28 to them, Whom do men say that I am? And they answered, Some, John the Baptist; and some, Elijah; and others, One of the 29 Prophets. And he saith to them, But whom say ye that I am? And Peter answereth and 30 saith to him: Thou art the Christ. And he charged them that they should tell no man of him. And he began to teach them, that 31 the Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected by the elders, and the chief priests, and scribes, and be killed, and after three days rise again. And he spoke 32 that saying openly. And Peter took him aside, and began to reprove him. But 33 when he had turned about and looked on his disciples, he reproveth Peter, saying, Get thee behind me, adversary, for thou regardest not the things which are of God, but the things which are of men.

And when he had called the multitude 34 to him, with his disciples also, he said to them, Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. For whosoever will save his 35 life shall lose it; but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the Gospel's, the same shall save it. For what will it profit 36 a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own life? Or what shall a man 37 give in ransom for his life? Whosoever 38 therefore shall be ashamed of me and of my words among this adulterous and sinful race; of him also will the Son of man be ashamed, when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels. And he 1 said to them, Verily I say to you, There are some of those who stand here, who shall not taste of death, till they have seen the kingdom of God come with power.

CHAPTER IX.

A, D. 32. Jesus is transfigured; explains what is meant by the coming of Elijah; cures a demoniac; foretells his death and gives various instructions to his disciples.

Now after six days Jesus taketh with him 2 Peter, and James, and John, and leadeth them up a high mountain apart by themselves; and he was transfigured before them. And his raiment became shining, 3 very white [as snow,] so as no fuller on earth can whiten. And Elijah and Moses 4 appeared to them; and they were talking with Jesus. And Peter spoke and said to 5 Jesus, Rabbi; it is good for us to be here: and let us make three booths; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah.

where we have a fuller account of Peter's confession, and the answer of our Lord.

28—33. One of the prophets] That is, 'Some one of the old prophets,' as we have it Luke viii. 9, 19, but which of them they did not pretend to know. From the parallel place, some must be here supplied. See note on Matt. xvi. 23.

34—38. And when he] Compare Matt. xvi. 24—27, and notes there.

CHAP. IX. 1. Some of those] See note, Matt. xvi. 28.

3. Very white] Mark does not mention the change of his face, or countenance, which Matthew says 'shone as the sun.'

4. Moses] The reason why Moses and Elijah appeared might be to intimate that both the law and the prophets bore testimony to the ministry of Christ, as the law was given by Moses, and as Elijah was one of the greatest of the prophets.

15. Of Herod] Matthew calls it the leaven of the Sadducees, from which Pearce thinks it probable that the Sadducees were the partisans of Herod Antipas, and that he was a Sadducee, as were the Herodians mentioned chap. iii. 6; Matt. xxii. 16.

17. Heart yet hardened] That is, are ye yet so stupid and ignorant, as not to perceive what I meant? Our Lord had just reason for the questions and rebukes which he gave.

24. Like trees, walking] He judged what he saw to be men from the circumstance of their walking, but in other respects they seemed to be as trees, or only as large objects.

26. Away to his house] His own house. We are not told where he lived, but from what follows it appears that he was not a native or inhabitant of Bethsaida, into which he is forbidden to enter.

27—33. Cæsarea Philippi] Compare Matt. xvi. 13—20,

6 For he knew not what to say; for they 7 were much afraid. And a cloud came and surrounded them; and a voice came out of the cloud, saying, This is my beloved 8 Son: hear him. And quickly, when they had looked round about, they saw no man any more, but Jesus only with themselves.
 9 And as they came down from the mountain, he commanded them that they should tell no man what things they had seen, until the Son of man were risen from the 10 dead. And they kept that saying with themselves, reasoning one with another what the rising from the dead could mean.
 11 And they asked him, saying, Why say the 12 scribes that Elijah must come first? And he answered and said to them; Elijah verily cometh first, and restoreth all things;
 and (as it is written of the Son of man,)
 he must suffer many things, and be con-13 temptuously treated. But I say to you, That Elijah is indeed come, (as it is written of him,) and they have done to him whatsoever they chose.
 14 And when he came to his disciples, he saw a great multitude about them, and the 15 scribes disputing with them. And immediately all the people, when they beheld him, were greatly astonished, and running 16 to him saluted him. And he asked them, 17 About what do ye dispute with them? And one of the multitude answered and said,
 Rabbi; I have brought to thee my son, 18 who hath a dumb spirit; And whosoever it seizeth him, it dasheth him on the ground; and he foameth, and gnasheth with his teeth, and pineth away: and I spoke to thy disciples that they should cast it out; 19 and they could not. He answereth them, and saith, O unbelieving race, how long shall I be with you? how long shall I en-20 dure you? bring him to me. And they brought him to him: and when he saw him, immediately the spirit convulsed him;
 and he fell on the ground, and wallowed, 21 foaming. And he asked his father, How long is it since this befel him? And he said,

 From his childhood. And it hath often 22 cast him into the fire, and into the waters, to destroy him; but if thou canst do any thing, have compassion on us, and help us.
 Jesus said to him, If thou canst believe, all 23 things are possible to him that believeth.
 And immediately the father of the child 24
 cried out, and said with tears, I believe; strengthen thou my weak faith. When 25
 Jesus saw that the people came running together, he rebuked the unclean spirit, saying to him, Thou dumb and deaf spirit, come out of him, I command thee; and enter no more into him. And the spirit 26 cried out, and convulsed him much, and came out of him; and he was as one dead;
 so that many said, He is dead. But Jesus 27 took him by the hand, and raised him up;
 and he arose. And when he had come 28 into the house, his disciples asked him privately, Why could not we cast him out?
 And he said to them, This kind can come 29 out by nothing, but by prayer and fasting.

And they departed thence, and passed 30 through Galilee; and he was unwilling that any one should know it. For he 31 taught his disciples, and said to them, The Son of man is about to be delivered into the hands of men, and they will kill him;
 and after he is killed, he will rise again the third day. But they understood not 32 that matter, and were afraid to ask him.

And he came to Capernaum; and being 33
 in the house he asked them, What was it about which ye disputed among yourselves by the way? But they were silent: for by 34 the way they had disputed among themselves, who should be the greatest. And 35 he sat down, and called the twelve, and saith to them, If any man desire to be first, he must be last of all, and servant of all.
 And he took a child, and set him in the 36 midst of them; and when he had taken him in his arms, he said to them, Whoso- 37 ever shall receive one of such children in

7. A cloud came] Matthew says, a bright cloud, the same as the Jews called Shechina, from which issued the voice.—My beloved son] Both Matthew and Peter have 'in whom I am well pleased.' Matt. xvii. 5, and 2 Pet. i. 17. While such variations show the independence of the writers, they tend greatly to establish the truth of the facts which they relate.

12. And, as it is written] Making 'as it is written of the Son of man' a parenthetic sentence, the meaning is obvious. In this view of the passage our Lord does not say that it was any where foretold that John should be thus treated; but as it had been written of him, so he affirms would they do to John.

13. As it is written of him] That this clause refers to the coming of John, in the spirit of Elijah, and not to his sufferings and death, is generally allowed; and to prevent any misapprehension of the text, I have, with Heinsius and others, transposed it.

15. Greatly astonished] The most probable reason of the astonishment of the people, on beholding our Lord, is to suppose that his countenance still shone with unusual brightness and lustre, as that of Moses did on his coming down from the mount. Compare Exod. xxxiv. 29, 30.

17. A dumb spirit] He was deaf as well as dumb, ver. 25, and in Matt. xvii. 15, is called a lunatic, in the original sense of that term, meaning that he was subject to fits at short periods, according to the changes of the moon. He was a most pitiable object, and being an only son, it is natural that the father should be much concerned for him.

23. If thou canst believe] Here the faith of the father obtains the cure of the son.—All things are possible] That is, all cures of this kind may be effected for such as believe.

24. Strengthen thou] To consider unbelief as meaning unbelief is to make the man contradict himself. The sense given is commonly admitted.

29. This kind can come] That is, the power to expel demons can only be obtained by prayer and fasting, because by these exercises the faith requisite is obtained.

34. Who should be the greatest] Matthew adds, 'in the heavenly kingdom,' by which they understood a temporal kingdom, Matt. xviii. 1.

CHAPTER X.

A. D. 32. Christ discourseth on divorce; blesseth little children; sheweth the danger of riches; and he, foretelling his own death, represseth the ambition of two of his disciples.

my name, receiveth me; and whosoever shall receive me, receiveth not me only, but him that sent me.

38 And John spoke to him, saying, Rabbi; we saw one casting out demons in thy name; and we forbid him, because he followeth

39 not us. But Jesus said, Forbid him not; for there is no man who shall do a miracle in my name, that can soon speak evil of

40 me; For he that is not against you is for

41 you. For whosoever shall give you a cup of water to drink in my name, because ye are Christ's, verily I say to you, he shall

42 not lose his reward. And whosoever shall cause to offend one of the little ones who believe on me, it is better for him that a millstone were hung about his neck, and

43 he cast into the sea. And if thy hand cause thee to offend, cut it off; it is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than having two hands to go into hell, [into the

44 unquenchable fire;] Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

45 And if thy foot cause thee to offend, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than having two feet to be cast into hell, [into the unquenchable fire;]

46 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched. And if thine eye cause thee to offend, pluck it out: it is better for thee to enter into the kingdom of God with one eye, than having two eyes to be

48 cast into hell-fire; Where their worm dieth

49 not, and the fire is not quenched. For every one shall be salted with fire, as every 50 sacrifice is salted with salt. Salt is good; but if the salt have lost its saltiness, with what will ye season it? Have salt in yourselves, and be at peace one with another.

And he arose thence, and cometh into the borders of Judea, by the side of the Jordan; and the people resort to him again; and as he was wont, he taught them again.

And the Pharisees came to him, and asked him, Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife? tempting him. And he answered and said to them, What did Moses command you? And they said, Moses permitted us to write a bill of divorce, and to put her away. And Jesus answered, and said to them, Because of your perverse disposition he wrote you this precept. But from the beginning of the creation God made them male and female. For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife; And the two shall be one flesh; so that they are no more two, but one flesh. What therefore God hath joined together, let no man put asunder.

And in the house his disciples asked him again concerning this matter. And he saith to them, Whosoever shall put away his wife, and marry another, committeth adultery against her. And if a woman shall put away her husband, and be married to another, she committeth adultery.

And they brought young children to him, that he might touch them; and his disciples rebuked those who brought them. But when Jesus saw it, he was much displeased, and said to them, Suffer the little children to come to me, and forbid them

33. Because he followeth not us] In the common text this clause occurs twice; but the authorities for omitting the first time are so many that Griesbach has rejected it. John here puts a case not included in verse 37, of one who did not receive Jesus.

40. Not against you] Grotius has justly observed, 'That proverbs used opposite ways, are true, according to the subject of which they are asserted.' Hence Matt. xii. 30; Luke xi. 23. 'He that is not with me, is against me;' such as attributed his miracles to Satan must be wholly opposed to him; but they who made use of his name to expel demons must attribute such power to him as argued some regard, if not some degree of faith.

41, 42. For whosoever] He that is not against you, but so far favours you as to give a cup of cold water, out of regard to me, shall not lose, &c. Matt. x. 42. Compare Matt. xviii. 8, and note, &c.

43-45. Into unquenchable fire] Wakefield rejects this clause as merely explanatory, and Griesbach admits it as only probably genuine or doubtful.

46. Where their worm] In the valley of Hinnom, the worm died when its food failed, and the fire went out; but in that place, of which this was but an emblem, the worm never dies, and the fire is not quenched. Some consider by worm is meant a guilty conscience, and by fire the torture of the mind. It represents the most exquisite punishment. Compare Is. lvi. 24; Eccles. vii. 17; Judith xvi. 17.

49. Salted with fire] That is, punished with fire; but shall not be destroyed by this fire, but be seasoned with it, so as to be inconsumable, and to endure it for ever.—Is every sacrifice] Pearce is followed in this version. Compare Levit. ii. 13.

50. Have salt in] As salt was good in itself both for seasoning and preserving things, so, in a figurative sense, as denoting instruction, humility, it would be useful both to themselves and others. Compare Coloss. iv. 6.

CHAP. X. 1. The side] That is, the western side, which was nearest to Galilee and Samaria. Here begins Mark's account of our Lord's going up to Jerusalem to the Passover at which he suffered death.

2. Put away his wife] Matthew adds, for every cause. See Matt. xix. 3.

4, 5. Moses permitted us] Compare Matt. xix. 7, 8, and notes there.

11. Put away his wife] Matt. v. 32, and xix. 9, has added, except for whoredom, which in a wife is adultery; and this must be understood both here and Luke xvi. 8, and 1 Cor. vii. 10, 11.

12. If a woman shall put] The law of Moses is silent on this practice; but in the time of our Lord some wives took this unwarrantable liberty of giving their husbands a bill of divorce. Josephus informs us that Salome divorced her husband Costabarus; and Herodias acted in like manner to Philip, and married Herod. The Roman ladies acted in the same manner towards their husbands, at the same period. Juven. Sat. vi. 222-230.

14. Much displeased] At the unfeeling conduct of his

- not ; for of such is the kingdom of God.
 15 Verily I say to you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, 16 he shall not enter therein. And he took them up in his arms, put his hands upon them, and blessed them.
 17 And as he went forth into the way, there came one running, and kneeled to him, and asked him, Good teacher, what shall I do
 18 that I may inherit eternal life? And Jesus said to him, Why callest thou me good? none is good but one, even God. Thou knowest the commandments, Do not commit adultery; Do not commit murder; Do not steal; Do not bear false witness; Do no injury; Honour thy father and thy mother. And he answered and said to him, Teacher, all these have I observed 21 from my youth. Then Jesus looking on him regarded him, and said to him, One thing thou needest: go, sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come,
 22 take up the cross, and follow me. And he was sad at those words, and went away grieved; for he had great possessions.
 23 And Jesus looked round about, and saith to his disciples, How difficult is it for those who possess riches to enter into the kingdom of God! And the disciples were astonished at his words. But Jesus spoke again and saith to them, Children, how difficult is it for those who trust in riches to enter into 25 the kingdom of God! It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God. And they were exceedingly amazed, saying among themselves, Who 27 then can be saved? And Jesus looking upon them saith, With men it is impossible, but not with God: for with God all things are possible.
 28 Then Peter began to say to him, Lo we disciples; and the reason he assigns for their coming to him, that 'Of such is the kingdom of God,' implies their right to be regarded as such, and dedicated to him. Compare Matt. xix. 14.

15. As a little child] As innocent, simple, humble and teachable, as a little child. This verse proves that 'Of such is the kingdom of God,' in the former verse, cannot mean, of such like minded adults; for in that case there would have been no necessity to add in so solemn a manner, 'Verily I say to you,' &c.

19. Do no injury] This clause is wanting in many good MSS. and some would omit it. In the parallel places Matt. xix. 18; Luke xviii. 20; it does not occur; and we find there a clause, 'Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself,' which is wanting here. If the words be genuine, they imply love to our neighbour which will prevent us doing him the least injury.

21. Regarded him] As being well disposed, and knowing that he was too much attached to his riches, kindly warned him and others.

24. Who trust in riches] It is not the possession, but the abuse of riches, which prevents men entering into the kingdom of God, and especially their love of them, and confidence in them.

have left all and have followed thee. And 29 Jesus answered and said, Verily I say to you, There is no man that hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my sake, and the gospel's, But he shall receive a 30 hundred-fold now in this time, [houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands, with persecutions;] and in the world to come eternal life. But 31 many that are first shall be last; and the last first.

And they were in the way going up to 32 Jerusalem; and Jesus went before them; and they were astonished; and as they followed, they were afraid. For he took again the twelve, and began to tell them what things should befall him, Saying, Be- 33 hold, we go up to Jerusalem; and the Son of man will be delivered up to the chief priests, and to the scribes; and they will condemn him to death, and will deliver him up to the Gentiles: And these will deride 34 him, and scourge him, and spit upon him, and kill him: and the third day he will rise again.

And James and John, the sons of Zebe- 35 dee, came to him, saying, Rabbi, we desire that thou wouldest do for us whatsoever we shall ask. And he said to them, What 36 desire ye that I should do for you? They 37 said to him, Grant to us that we may sit, one on thy right hand, and the other on thy left hand, in thy glory. But Jesus 38 said to them, Ye know not what ye ask; can ye drink of the cup which I am to drink of? and be baptized with the baptism that I am to be baptized with? And they 39 say to him, We can. And Jesus said to them, Ye shall indeed drink of the cup which I am to drink of; and with the baptism that I am to be baptized with shall ye be baptized: But to sit on my right hand and on 40

25—27. It is easier] Compare Matt. xix. 24, and note.

30. A hundred-fold] Pearce suspected the words included in brackets to be an early interpolation; for according to the text, if a man suffer the loss of a house, in this life, he was to receive a hundred houses, &c. To say he was to receive what is equivalent to them is only to say what is implied in the text without these words, and what indeed is the genuine sense of both Matthew and Luke. One of the copies of Matthew omits the words as well as one copy of the old Latin version. See Campbell.

32. Were astonished] This astonishment and fear arose from the danger in which their Master had been in at Jerusalem formerly. Compare John vii. 45; viii. 40, 59; but our Lord now began to speak without reserve respecting his death.

35. James and John] From Matt. xx. 20, we learn that they made this request by their mother; and by their own answer to the question, ver. 39, 'We can,' they did in effect make the request their own.

37. In thy glory] Matthew says, 'in thy kingdom,' meaning a temporal one, which Mark expresses by glory, as Matt. iv. 8.

my left hand is not mine to give, but to 41 those for whom it is prepared. And when the ten heard this, they began to be much 42 displeased with James and John. But Jesus called them to him, and saith to them, Ye know that they who rule the Gentiles lord it over them; and their great ones 43 exercise arbitrary authority upon them. But it shall not be so among you; but whosoever among you desireth to be great, must 44 be your servant: And whosoever of you de-sireth to be chief, must be the slave of all.
 45 For even the Son of man came not to be served, but to serve, and to give his life a ransom for many.

46 And they came to Jericho: and as he was going out of Jericho with his disciples and a great number of people, blind Bartimæus, that is, the son of Timæus, sat by 47 the highway side begging. And when he heard that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to cry out, and say, Jesus, son of David, 48 have pity on me. And many charged him to be silent: but he cried out much more: 49 Thou son of David, have pity on me. And Jesus stood still, and commanded him to be called. And they call the blind man, saying to him, Take courage, rise; he calleth 50 thee. And he, casting away his mantle, 51 rose, and came to Jesus. And Jesus spoke and said to him, What desirest thou that I should do for thee? The blind man said to him, Rabbi, that I may receive my sight.
 52 And Jesus said to him, Go; thy faith hath restored thee. And immediately he received sight, and followed Jesus in the way.

CHAPTER XI.

1. D. 33. Christ entereth Jerusalem in triumph; curseth the barren fig tree; exhorteth to steadfastness, and defendeth his own conduct by the testimony of John.

1 And when they drew near to Jerusalem, to Bethphage and Bethany, at the mount of 2 Olives, he sendeth two of his disciples,
 And saith to them, Go into the village over against you: and as soon as ye enter into it, ye shall find a colt tied, whereon never man sat; loose it, and bring it to me.

 And if any man say to you, Why do ye this? 3 say, The Master hath need of it; and immediately he will send it hither. And they 4 went, and found the colt tied by the door without, in a place where two ways met; and they loose it. And some of those who 5 stood there said to them, What do ye, loosing the colt? And they said to them even 6 as Jesus had commanded; and they suffered them to take it. And they brought the colt 7 to Jesus, and cast their mantles on it; and he sat upon it. And many spread their 8 mantles in the way; and others cut down branches of the trees, and strewed them in the way. And those who went before, and 9 those who followed, cried, Hosanna; Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord:
 Blessed is the approaching kingdom of our 10
 father David: Hosanna in the highest.
 And Jesus entered into Jerusalem, and into 11
 the temple, and when he had looked round about upon all things, and now the evening was come, he went out to Bethany with the twelve.

And on the morrow, as they were coming 12 from Bethany, he was hungry: And seeing 13 a fig tree at a distance having leaves, he came,
 if haply he might find any thing thereon;
 for the season of ripe figs was not yet; but when he came to it, he found nothing but leaves. And Jesus spoke and said to it, 14 Let no man eat fruit of thee hereafter for ever. And his disciples heard it.

And they come to Jerusalem: and Jesus 15 went into the temple, and began to cast out those who sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the moneychangers, and the seats of those who sold doves; And would not suffer any to carry 16 vessels through the temple. And he taught, 17 saying to them, Is it not written, My house shall be called a house of prayer for all nations? but ye have made it a den of robbers. And the scribes and the 18 chief priests heard this, and sought how they might destroy him; for they were

42. Who rule the] I follow Pearce in considering δοκύντες, &c. as idiomatic. See his excellent note.

46—52. Going out of Jericho] Matthew mentions two blind men; but as Bartimæus was probably the best known, Mark and Luke only mention him; and another reason might be that he became and continued a disciple of Christ.

51. Receive my sight] This answer is elliptical. I desire thee to give me my sight. The ellipsis is easily supplied, and shows the eager desire of the speaker.

CHAP. XI. 1. To Bethphage] Compare Matt. xxi. 1, and note.

2. A colt tied] Matthew mentions both an ass and a colt; but as Jesus rode on the colt, Mark only mentions it.

3—6. And if any man] Mark relates the circumstances more particularly than his predecessor had done. Matt. xxi. 3—7.

10. Kingdom of our father] The clause, in the name of the Lord, is rejected by Griesbach on the best authority.

The kingdom of our father David, means the kingdom of Messiah. The people justly thought this was approaching.

13. For the season of ripe] This is clearly a reason why figs might be expected; at least some not fully ripe, which might be eaten. According to the law, Deuter. xxiii. 24, &c. the Jews considered that every traveller had a right to eat of any fruits, though not to pluck and carry any way. Now as the figs had not been gathered, if the tree had produced any, as it was full of leaves, our Lord might expect to find some; but as there were none, it was clearly a barren one, and hence he cursed it, or devoted it to destruction, Matt. xxi. 18—21.

15—19. And they come] From Matt. xxi. 12, and Luke xix. 45, the things Mark here related were done before our Lord devoted the fig tree. None of the Evangelists have followed the exact order of events in their narratives.

17. Is it not written] See Is. lxvi. 7, where the version is as rendered. The words, shall be called, mean, shall be.

CHAPTER XII.

afraid of him, because all the multitude 19 was astonished at his doctrine. And when the evening was come, he went out of the city.

20 And in the morning, as they passed by, they saw the fig tree withered away from 21 the roots. And Peter remembering, saith to him, Rabbi, behold, the fig tree which 22 thou didst devote is withered away. And Jesus answering, saith to them, Have faith 23 in God. For verily I say to you, That whosoever shall say to this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; and shall not doubt in his heart, but shall believe that those things which he saith will come to pass; he shall have whatsoever he 24 saith. For this reason I say to you, All things whatsoever ye ask when ye pray, believe that ye will receive them, and ye 25 shall have them. And when ye stand praying, forgive, if ye have aught against any; that your Father also who is in heaven may forgive you your trespasses. But 26 if ye do not forgive, neither will your Father who is in heaven forgive your trespasses.
27 And they come again to Jerusalem; and as he was walking in the temple, the chief priests, and the scribes, and the elders,
28 come to him, And say to him, By what authority doest thou these things? and who gave thee this authority to do these things?
29 And Jesus answered and said to them, I also will ask you one question; and answer me, and I will tell you by what authority
30 I do these things. The baptism of John, was it from heaven or from men? answer 31 me. And they reasoned within themselves, saying, If we say, From heaven; he will say, Why then did ye not believe him?
32 But if we say, From men, we fear the people: for all account that John was indeed 33 a Prophet. And they answered and said to Jesus, We cannot tell. And Jesus answering, saith unto them, Neither do I tell you by what authority I do these things.

23, 24. Be thou removed] Compare Matt. 21, 22, and note. In working miracles, a full confidence in the power and faithfulness of God was necessary; for without this they could not be so weak as to make the attempt. And they must also be assured in some manner that God would effect what they declared, Acts iii. 6; ix. 34, 40.

25, 26. Stand praying] Compare Matt. vi. 14, 15.
27—33. In the temple] Compare Matt. xxi. 23—27, and note, ver. 25.

CHAP. XII. 1—12. To speak to them] Compare Matt. xxii. 33—46.

2. And at the season] That is, when the grapes were ripe, and fit for gathering. See note, chap. xi. 13.—The inheritance] Not by right, but by seizing on it as it is, Matt. xxi. 38.—And killed him] The order of the two verbs is different. Matt. and some MSS. so read here. Luke also agrees with Matthew in stating that they slew him after

A. D. 33. The parable of the vineyard let out to wicked husbandmen; on paying tribute to Cæsar; the Sadducees refuted; what is the first command; the poor widow commended.

AND he began to speak to them in parables. 1
A certain man planted a vineyard, and set a hedge about it, and digged a wine-vat, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into another country. And at the season he sent to the husbandmen a servant, that he might receive from the husbandmen of the fruit of the vineyard. And they took him, and beat him, and sent him away empty. And again he sent to them another servant; and at him they cast stones, and wounded him in the head, and sent him away shamefully treated. And again he sent another; and him they killed; and many others he sent, some of whom they beat, and some they killed. Having an only son, his well beloved, he sent him also last to them, saying, They will reverence my son. But those husbandmen said amongst themselves, This is the heir; come let us kill him, and the inheritance shall be ours. And they took him, and killed him, and cast him out of the vineyard. What shall therefore the owner of the vineyard do? He will come, said they, and destroy the husbandmen, and will give the vineyard unto others. And have ye not read this scripture, The stone which the builders rejected, is become the chief corner-stone? This is the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes. And they sought to lay hold on him, but feared the people; for they knew that he had spoken the parable against them: and they left him and departed.

And they sent to him certain of the Pharisees and of the Herodians, to catch him in his discourse. And when they had come, they said to him, Teacher, we know that thou art true and carest for no man; for thou regardest not the person of men, but teachest the way of God in truth: Is it lawful to give tribute to Cæsar or not? Shall we give, or shall we not give? But having cast him out of the vineyard. Campbell renders 'having thrust him out of the vineyard, killed him.'

9. Give the vineyard] That is, 'let it out' to other husbandmen, as ver. 1.

13—17. Certain of the Pharisees] Compare Matt. xxii. 15—22, and notes.—Cæsar's] According to their own maxims, the conclusion of Christ was proper. They held that 'wherever the money of any king was current, the inhabitants owned that king for their lord.' They now on this principle, confess Cæsar to be their lord, by acknowledging his coin current among them. Hence they ought to render to Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's &c.

14. Teacher, we know] The order of the words in the parallel place Pearce considers more natural, and most probably the true one.

he knowing their hypocrisy, said to them, Why tempt ye me? Bring me a denarius, 16 that I may see it. And they brought it. And he saith to them, Whose is this image and superscription? And they said to him, 17 Cæsar's. And Jesus answering said to them, Render to Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's, and to God the things that are God's. And they wondered at him. 18 Then come to him the Sadducees, who say there is to be no future life; and they 19 asked him, saying, Teacher, Moses prescribed to us, that if a man's brother die, and leave a wife, and leave no children, his brother should take his wife and raise up 20 seed to his brother. Now there were seven brethren; and the first took a wife, and 21 dying left no seed. And the second took her, and died, neither left he any seed: 22 and the third likewise. And the seven had her, and left no seed; last of all the woman 23 died also. In the resurrection, therefore, when they shall rise, whose wife of them shall she be? for the seven had her to wife. 24 And Jesus answering said to them, Do ye not therefore err, because ye know not the 25 scriptures nor the power of God? For when persons rise from the dead, they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are 26 as the angels who are in heaven. But concerning the dead, that they rise: have ye not read in the book of Moses, in the section of the bush, how God spoke to him, saying, I am the God of Abraham, and the 27 God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? He is not the God of the dead but of the living. Ye therefore do greatly err. 28 And one of the scribes came near, and having heard them reasoning together, and perceiving that he had answered them well, asked him, Which is the first commandment of all? And Jesus answered him, The 29 first commandment of all is, Hear, O Israel, the Lord is our God, the Lord is one. And 30 thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength:

this is the first commandment. And the 31 second is like to it, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. There is none other commandment greater than these. And 32 the scribe said to him, In truth, Teacher, thou hast said well; for there is one God; and there is none other but he: And to 33 love him with all the heart, and with all the understanding, and with all the soul, and with all the strength, and to love his neighbour as himself, is more than all whole burnt-offerings, and sacrifices. And when 34 Jesus saw that he answered discreetly, he said to him, Thou art not far from the kingdom of God. And no man after that durst ask him any further question.

And Jesus spoke and said, while he 35 taught in the temple, How say the scribes that Christ is the son of David? for David 36 himself said by the Holy Spirit, The Lord said to my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool. David therefore himself calleth him Lord; 37 and how is he then his son? And the common people heard him gladly.

Then he said to them in his teaching, 38 Beware of the Scribes, who love to walk in robes, and love salutations in the market-places, And the chief seats in the syna- 39 gogues, and the uppermost places at feasts; Who devour widows' houses, and for a dis- 40 guise make long prayers; these shall receive a heavier punishment.

And Jesus sat over against the treasury, 41 and beheld how the people cast money into the treasury; and many that were rich cast in much. And there came a certain poor 42 widow, and she threw in two mites, which make a farthing. And he called to him 43 his disciples, and saith to them, Verily I say to you, That this poor widow hath cast in more than all they who have cast into the treasury. For they all did cast in from 44 their abundance: but she from what she wanted cast in all that she had, even all her substance.

18—27. No future life] See notes, Matt. xxii. 23—33. As they are said only to admit the five books of Moses, from them our Lord refutes their error. The Pharisees attempted to prove the resurrection from the books of Moses, see Lightfoot; but how much superior is the reasoning of our Lord? They held that those who maintained that the resurrection could not be proved from his writings, 'should have no part in the world to come.' While Jesus refutes the Sadducees, he also refutes the Pharisaical opinion, 'that if a woman had had two husbands, she should be the wife of the first at the resurrection,'—27. (c) The God.—Griesb.

29. The Lord is our God] Compare Deut. vi. 4, and note. Mark quotes Moses at length, giving the reason why the Lord should be supremely regarded.

33. Is more than all whole] From this it appears that some of the Jewish teachers held that the command concerning sacrifices was the greatest; but this scribe more properly gave the preference to that which required supreme love to God.

34. Thou art not far] This just and well-grounded sentiment agreed with what Christ taught; and holding this, he considered the man as ready to believe on him as the Messiah, and to enter into his kingdom.

35—37. That Christ is the] Compare Matt. xxii. 42—46, and note.

38—40. Beware of the Scribes] Mark gives us a very abridged account of what Jesus said respecting the Scribes and Pharisees. Matthew has recorded this discourse at length, chap. xxiii.

41. Cast money into the] By treasury is meant a chest, into which the people put what they pleased. It was placed in one of the rooms of the temple, 1 John viii. 20; and what the people gave was not designed for the poor, but for the repairs of the temple, and the service of God. Compare 2 Kings xii. 19.

44. From what she wanted] Even for her own use. She thus showed her love to God, by depriving herself of some little temporal comfort for his sake.

CHAPTER XIII.

A. D. 33. The destruction of the temple foretold; persecutions for the gospel stated; great calamities to come on the Jews; Christ's coming to judgment; the hour of it uncertain.

- 1 AND as he went out of the temple, one of his disciples saith to him, Teacher, see what kind of stones and what kind of build-
 2 ings are here! And Jesus answering, said to him, Seest thou these great buildings? there shall not be left one stone upon ano-
 3 ther that shall not be thrown down. And as he sat upon the mount of Olives over against the temple, Peter, and James, and John, and Andrew, asked him privately, say-
 4 ing, Tell us when will these things be? and what will be the sign when all these 5 things shall be fulfilled? And Jesus an-6 swering them said, Take heed, lest any man deceive you: For many will come assuming 7 my name, each saying, I am the Christ, and will deceive many. And when ye shall 8 hear of wars and rumours of wars, be not troubled: for such things must needs be; but the end will not be yet. For nation 9 will rise up against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there will be earth-
 10 quakes in many places, and there will be famines and tumults; These are the begin-11 nings of sorrows. But take heed to yourselves; for they 12 will deliver you up to councils and to syna-13 gogues, and ye shall be beaten; and ye will be brought before rulers and kings for 14 my sake, for a testimony to them. And the gospel must first be published among 15 all nations. But when they bring you and deliver you up, be not anxious beforehand 16 what ye shall speak, nor do ye premeditate; but whatsoever shall be given you in that 17 hour, that speak, for it is not so much ye 18 that speak, but the Holy Spirit. Now the brother will deliver up the brother to death, 19 and the father the son; and children will rise up against their parents, and will cause 20 them to be put to death. And ye will be hated of all men for my name's sake; but 21 he that shall endure to the end, shall be saved.
 22 But when ye shall see the desolating abomination spoken of by Daniel the prophet, standing where it ought not, (let him that readeth attend,) then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains: And let not 15 him who is on the housetop, go down into the house, nor enter therein, to take any 16 thing out of his house: And let not him 16 who is in the field, turn back to take up 17 his mantle. But alas for those who are 17 with child, and for those who give suck in 18 those days! And pray ye that your flight be 18 not in the winter. For in those days will 19 be affliction, such as hath not been from the beginning of the world which God cre-20 ated unto this time, nor shall be hereafter. And unless the Lord should shorten those 21 days, no flesh could be preserved; but for the elect's sake whom he hath chosen, he 22 hath shortened those days. And then if 21 any man shall say to you, Lo, here is the 22 Christ, or, lo, he is there; believe him not: For false Christs and false prophets will 23 rise, and will propose signs and wonders, so as to deceive, if it were possible, even 24 the elect. But take ye heed; Behold I 23 have foretold you all these things.

But in those days, after that affliction, 24 the sun shall be darkened, and the moon 25 shall not give her light. And the stars of 25 heaven shall fall, and the powers which are 26 in heaven shall be shaken. And then they 26 shall see the Son of man coming in the 27 clouds with great power and glory. And he 27 will send them his angels, and gather together
 28 his elect from the four winds, from the end of the earth, to the end of heaven. Now 28
 29 learn a parable of the fig tree: When its branch is yet tender, and putteth forth 30 leaves, ye know that summer is near; So 29 ye in like manner, when ye shall see these 30 things come to pass, know that it is near, even at the door. Verily I say to you, That 30
 31 this generation shall not pass away till all these things be accomplished. Heaven 31 32 and earth shall pass away; but my words shall not pass away.

But that day and that hour no one maketh 32 known; no, not the angels who are in hea-
 33 ven, nor the Son, but the Father. Take 33

CHAP. XIII. 1—3. Went out of the temple] Compare Matt. xxiv. 1—3, and notes. All ancient writers agree that the temple was one of the most splendid structures ever erected. Josephus says, 'That of all the buildings he had ever seen or heard of, it was the most wonderful for its size, structure, and magnificence. Some of its stones were fifty feet long, twenty-four broad, and sixteen in thickness.'

5—8. Take heed, lest] See notes, Matt. xxiv. 4—8.

9. Will deliver you up] Compare Matt. x. 17, 18, and xxiv. 9. That this and what follows was fulfilled we learn from the Acts and Epistles. See Acts iv. 7; v. 27, 40; vi. 12, &c., and 2 Cor. xi. 24.

10—13. The gospel must] Compare Rom. x. 18, and Colos. i. 6, 23; from which passages we learn the fulfilment of what our Lord said. Compare also Matt. xxiv. 9—14.

14—22. Desolating abomination] Compare Matt. xxiv. 15—22, and notes there.

24. In those days] Matthew says, 'Immediately after the tribulation of those days,' &c. For the sense of this and following verse, see note, Matt. xxiv. 29.

26, 27. Son of man coming] See note, Matt. xxiv. 27—31.

28—31. Learn a parable] Compare Matt. xxiv. 32—35, and note there.

32. But that day] See note, Matt. xxiv. 36. Dr. Hammond observes, 'That to preclude the curiosity of men, and to excite vigilance, Christ is pleased to tell them, that no dispensation of God, either by men, as of Daniel, or by angels, or, which is the highest, by the Son of man, had ordered us thus to know the seasons; this being no part of the prophetic office, or within the commission of Christ himself.'

heed, watch and pray: for ye know not 34 when the time is. For the Son of man is as a man going abroad, who left his house, and gave authority to his servants, and to every man his work, and commanded the 35 porter to watch. Watch ye therefore; for ye know not when the master of the house cometh, at evening, or at midnight, or at the cock crowing, or in the morning:
 36 Lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping.
 37 And what I say to you, I say to all, Watch.

CHAPTER XIV.

A. D. 33. Conspiracy against Christ; a woman anointeth him; Judas selleth and betrayeth him; he having instituted his supper and foretold the flight of his disciples and how Peter would deny him, is taken and shamefully treated.

1 AFTER two days was the passover and feast of unleavened bread: and the chief priests and the scribes sought how they might seize Jesus by craft, and put him to 2 death. But they said, Not during the feast, lest there be a disturbance among the people.
 3 And being in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, as he sat at meat there came a woman having an alabaster box of ointment of liquidnard, very precious; and she broke open the box, and poured it on 4 his head. And there were some that had indignation within themselves, and said, Why 5 is this waste of the ointment made? For it might have been sold for more than three hundred denarii, and have been given to the poor. And they murmured against her.
 6 But Jesus said, Let her alone; why trouble ye her? she hath done a good deed to-7 wards me. For ye will have the poor with you always, and whensoever ye will ye may do them good; but me ye will not have 8 always. She hath done what she could:
 she hath beforehand anointed my body 9 for its embalming. Verily I say to you, Whosoever this gospel shall be preached throughout the whole world, this also that she hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her.
 10 Then Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve, went to the chief priests, to deliver him up to them. And when they heard it, 11 they were glad, and promised to give money. And he sought how he might deliver him up.

And the first day of unleavened bread, 12
 when they killed the passover, his disciples said to him, Where wilt thou that we go and prepare that thou mayest eat the passover? And he sendeth forth two of his 13 ciples, and saith to them, Go into the city, and a man will meet you carrying a pitcher of water; follow him. And whosoever 14 he shall go in, say to the householder, The Teacher saith, Where is the guest-chamber, where I may eat the passover with my disciples? And he will show you a large upper 15 room furnished and prepared; there make ready for us. And his disciples went forth, 16 and came into the city, and found as he had said to them; and they made ready the passover. And in the evening he cometh 17 with the twelve. And as they were at table 18 and were eating, Jesus said, Verily I say to you, One of you who eateth with me will deliver me up. And they began to be sor- 19 rowful, and to say to him, one by one, Is it I? and another said, Is it I? And he an- 20 swered and said to them, It is one of the twelve, who dippeth with me in the dish.
 The Son of man indeed goeth, as it is writ- 21 ten of him; but alas for that man by whom the Son of man is delivered up! good were it for that man if he had not been born.

And as they were eating, Jesus took 22 bread, and having blessed God, he broke it and gave to them, and said, Take, eat, this is my body. And he took the cup, and 23 when he had given thanks, he gave it to them; and they all drank of it. And he 24 said to them, This is my blood of the new covenant which is shed for many. Verily 25
 I say to you, I will drink no more of the produce of the vine, until that day when I shall drink it new, in the kingdom of God.
 And after having sung the hymn, they went 26
 out to the mount of Olives.

And Jesus saith to them, All ye will of- 27 fend because of me this night; for it is written, I will smite the shepherd, and the

33. When the time is] That is, the time of the coming of the Son of man, to execute divine judgments, on that generation.

34—36. For the Son of man] Our translators considered the words supplied as necessary to give the genuine sense of the text. The reason of the duty of watching is, the uncertainty as to the time when the Master may return, whether in the evening, at midnight, &c. These are the four night-watches, answering to the hours of nine and twelve at night, three and six in the morning with us.

CHAP. XIV. 1. After two days] See note, Matt. xxvi. 2.—By craft] That is, privately, or, as Luke has it, 'in the absence of the people.'

3—9. Simon the leper] Compare Matt. xxvi. 6, &c.—Three hundred denarii] The amount in our money would be 87. 15s., a large sum; and, as spent to honour Christ, showed the highest regard.—She broke open] There was no necessity to break the box.

12. When they killed the] According to Philo, every Jew was permitted to kill the paschal lamb or kid in his own house; and so far to be his own priest, though in no other instance whatever. Compare Exod. xii. 6—8; Deut. xvi. 6.

13—16. Go into the city] Luke xxii. 8, gives us the names of the two disciples, Peter and John; and agrees with Mark as to meeting a man with a pitcher of water, &c.

19, 20. Another said, Is it I?] From Matt. xxvi. 25, we learn that this was Judas.

22. Took bread, and blessed] That is, blessed God for it, or gave thanks. See note, Matt. xxvi. 26—30.

28 sheep shall be scattered. But after that I am risen, I will go before you into Galilee. But Peter said to him, Although all should offend, yet will not I. And Jesus saith to him, Verily I say to thee, That this day, even on this night, before the cock crow twice thou wilt deny me thrice. But he spoke the more vehemently, saying, If I should die with thee, I will in no wise deny thee. And thus said they all.

32 And they came to a place which was named Gethsemane; and he saith to his disciples, Sit ye here, while I pray. And he taketh with him Peter and James and John, and began to be greatly astonished and full of anguish; and saith unto them, My soul is exceedingly sorrowful unto death: abide here, and watch. And he went forward a little, and fell on the ground, and prayed that, if it were possible, the hour might pass away from him. And he said, Abba, Father, all things are possible to thee; take away this cup from me: yet not what I will, but what thou wilt. And he cometh, and findeth them sleeping, and saith to Peter, Simon, sleepest thou? couldst not thou watch one hour? Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation. The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak. And again he went away, and prayed, and spoke the same words. And when he returned, he again found them asleep; for their eyes were heavy, and they knew not what to answer him. And he cometh the third time, and saith to them, Do ye now sleep on, and take rest? It is enough; the hour is come, behold, the Son of man is delivered up into the hands of sinners. Rise up, let us go; lo, he who delivereth me up draweth near.

43 And immediately, while he was yet speaking, cometh Judas, one of the twelve, and with him a great multitude with swords and staves, from the chief priests and the scribes and the elders. Now he who delivered him up had given them a token, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, that is he; 45 take him, and lead him away safely. And when he had come, he goeth immediately to him, and saith, Rabbi, Rabbi; and kissed him.

And they laid hands on him, and took him. And one of them that stood by drew a sword, and smote a servant of the high priest, and cut off his ear. And Jesus spoke and said to them, Are ye come out, as against a robber, with swords and with staves to take me? I was daily with you in the temple teaching, and ye took me not; but the scriptures must be fulfilled. And they all forsook him, and fled. Now there followed him a certain young man, having a linen cloth cast about his naked body; and the soldiers laid hold on him: And he left the linen cloth, and fled from them naked.

And they led Jesus away to the high priest; with whom were assembled all the chief priests, and the elders and the scribes. And Peter followed him at a distance, even to the court of the high priest; and he sat with the servants, and warmed himself at the fire. And the chief priests and all the council sought for witness against Jesus to put him to death; but they found none. For many bore false witness against him, but their testimonies were not sufficient. And there arose certain, and bore false witness against him, saying, We heard him say, I will destroy this temple which is made by hands, and within three days I will build another not made by hands. But neither so was their testimony sufficient. Then the high priest stood up in the midst, and asked Jesus, saying, Answerest thou nothing? what is it which these testify against thee? But he was silent, and answered nothing. Again the high priest asked him, and said to him, Art thou the Christ, the Son of the Blessed? And Jesus said, I am; and ye shall see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven. Then the high priest rent his garments, and saith, What need have we further of witnesses? Ye have heard the blasphemy; what is 64

30. Cock crow twice] For the sense of this, and the agreement with the other evangelists, see note, Matt. xvi. 34.

35. This cup from] This cup of affliction. See note, Matt. xxvi. 39.

37—42. Findeth them sleeping] Compare Matt. xxvi. 40, 41, and notes.

43, 45. Yet speaking] Matthew gives a more particular account, and mentions the respectful address of the traitor, and the reply of our Lord; see Luke also.

47. Drew a sword] See note, Matt. xxvi. 51, and John xviii. 10.

49. I was daily with you] Our Lord had now been teaching in the temple at least four days.

51. A certain young man] He might be a disciple, or one of the neighbourhood, aroused by the noise of so many coming there. Newcome observes that the evangelist may allude to him as a known witness of the facts here related.—Linen cloth] This may have been the vesture in which he slept, or a thin upper garment.

54. Court of the] See notes, Matt. xxvi. 58, 69.—Warmed himself] Though, at the passover, the day-time was hot, yet the nights were cold, in Judea. See Harmer.

56. Were not sufficient] Or equal to the point which the high priest wanted to establish.

58. This temple] This was 'false witness,' because they meant Herod's temple, and our Lord meant that of his body, John ii. 21.—Made by hands] Things made by man are liable to decay and perish, and hence denote what is perishing; but those 'not made with hands,' are such as endure and do not perish: 1 Cor. v. 1; Colos. ii. 11; Heb. ix. 11.

62. I am] Mark has given the sense of the Hebrew idiom. See Matt. xxvi. 64, and note.

your opinion? And they all condemned him 65 to be guilty of death. And some began to spit on him, and to cover his face, and to strike him with the fist, and to say to him, Prophecy: and the servants beat him with the palms of their hands.
66 And as Peter was in the court beneath, there cometh one of the maid servants of 67 the high priest: And when she saw Peter warming himself, she looked on him, and said, And thou also wast with Jesus of 68 Nazareth. But he denied, saying, I know not, neither understand I what thou meanest. And he went out into the porch; 69 and the cock crew. And the maid servant saw him again, and began to say to them 70 that stood by, This is one of them. And he again denied it, and a little after, those that stood by said again to Peter, Surely thou art one of them: for thou art a Ga-71 lilean and thy speech sheweth it. But he began to curse and to swear, saying, I 72 know not this man of whom ye speak. And the second time the cock crew. And Peter called to mind the word that Jesus said to him, Before the cock crow twice, thou shalt deny me thrice. And when he thought thereon, he wept.

CHAPTER XV.

A. D. 33. Jesus brought and accused before Pilate, Barabbas preferred to him; delivered to be crucified; being crowned with thorns is insulted; is nailed to the cross and crucified between two robbers; reproached by the Jews, confessed by the centurion, and buried by Joseph.

1 AND early in the morning the chief priests held a consultation with the elders and scribes and the whole council, and bound Jesus, and carried him away, and 2 delivered him up to Pilate. And Pilate asked him, Art thou the king of the Jews?
And he answering said to him, Thou sayest 3 truly. And the chief priests accused him of many things; but he answered nothing.
4 And Pilate asked him again, saying, Answerest thou nothing? behold how many 5 things they testify against thee. But Jesus answered no more, so that Pilate wondered.

Now at that feast he was wont to release 6 to them one prisoner, whomsoever they desired. And there was one named Bar- 7 abbas, who lay bound with those who had made insurrection with him, and who had committed murder in the insurrection. And the multitude crying aloud desired 8 him to do as he had ever done to them. But Pilate answered them, saying, Will ye 9 that I release to you the king of the Jews? (For he knew that the chief priests had 10 through envy delivered him up.) But the 11 chief priests excited the people to ask that he would rather release Barabbas to them. And Pilate answered and said again to 12 them, What will ye then that I should do to him whom ye call the King of the Jews? And they cried out again, Crucify him. 13
Then Pilate said to them, Why, what evil 14 hath he done? But they cried out exceedingly, Crucify him.

And so Pilate, willing to gratify the 15 people, released Barabbas to them, and when he had scourged Jesus, he delivered him up to be crucified. And the soldiers 16 led him away into the hall, called Prætorium; and they call together the whole band. And they clothed him with purple, 17 and platted a crown of thorns, and put it about his head, And began to salute him, 18 Hail, king of the Jews! And they smote 19 him on the head with a reed, and spat upon him, and bowing their knees did him homage. And when they had derided him, 20 they took off from him the purple robe, and put on him his own clothes, and led him out to crucify him. And they compel one 21 Simon, a Cyrenian, who passed by, coming out of the country, the father of Alexander and Rufus, to bear his cross. And 22 they bring him to the place called Golgotha, which, being interpreted, is, Skull-place. And they gave him to drink wine 23 mingled with myrrh; but he received it not.

65. Prophecy] This was to insult his claims to the prophetic character. See Matthew xxvi. 68, &c.

69. The maid servant] Matthew says, 'another maid,' and Luke, another man. These variations are reconciled by what John says, xviii. 25. 'They said to him, Wast not thou also one of his disciples?' Whence it appears that several persons spoke on this occasion. So that what all the evangelists relate may be true.

70. Thy speech] Thy manner of pronunciation is like to that of the Galileans. Different districts of the same country often vary in their accent and tones of voice. See Judg. xii. 6.

CHAR. XV. 1-3. And early in the] See note, Matt. xxvii. 1, &c.

5. Answered no more] The common version is not true in fact, as Jesus had answered the former question of Pilate; but on being asked a second, he did not reply.

7-11. Barabbas] See notes, Matt. xxvii. 16, 21.

15. Willing to gratify] Mark has omitted many particulars in this narrative which the other evangelists have noticed. Pilate resisted for some time their demands; and only consented lest a tumult should be made, and himself accused as an enemy to Caesar. Compare Matt. xxvii. and John xix.

17. Clothed him with purple] This and what follows was done after that Pilate had departed. Having pronounced the sentence, he withdrew.

21. A Cyrenian] A native or inhabitant of Cyrene, a city of Africa; many Jews dwelt in that city, and the other parts of the country called Pentapolis, 2 Kings xvi; Acts ii.—Father of Alexander] These became Christians of some eminence, Rom. xvi. 13. This incidental mention of names is one strong proof of the reality of scripture facts.

22-24. Called Golgotha] Compare Matt. xxvii. 33-36, and notes.

24 And when they had crucified him, they parted his garments, casting lots for them, 25 what every man should take. And it was the third hour when they crucified him. 26 And the inscription of his accusation was written over, THE KING OF THE 27 JEWS. And with him they crucified two robbers; the one on his right hand, and 28 the other on his left. Thus that scripture was fulfilled, which saith, And he was 29 numbered with the transgressors. And they that passed by reviled him, shaking their heads, and saying, Ah, thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three days, 30 Save thyself and come down from the cross. 31 In like manner also the chief priests, with the scribes, said among themselves, He 32 saved others, himself he cannot save. Let the Christ, the King of Israel, descend now from the cross, that we may see and believe. And those who were crucified with him 33 reproached him. And when the sixth hour was come, there was darkness over the whole 34 land until the ninth hour. And at the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, Eloi, Eloi, lama sabachthani? which being interpreted is, My God, my God, why hast 35 thou forsaken me? And some of those who stood by, when they heard it, said, Behold, 36 he calleth for Elijah. And one ran and filled a sponge with vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave him to drink, saying, Forbear, let us see whether Elijah will 37 come to take him down. And Jesus cried with a loud voice and expired. 38 And the veil of the temple was rent in 39 two from the top to the bottom. And when the centurion, who stood over against him, saw that he thus cried out, and expired, he said, Truly this man was the Son of God. 40 There were also women beholding at a distance; among whom was Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James the younger, 41 and of Joses and Salome; (Now these, when he was in Galilee, followed him, and ministered to him;) and many other women who came up with him to Jerusalem.

25. When they crucified him] That is, when they nailed him to the cross. To crucify, implies the whole time from a person's being nailed to the cross until he expires.

26—32. His accusation] Compare Matt. xxvii. 37—44.

33. Darkness over] See note, Matt. xxvii. 45. If this darkness was confined to the land of Judea, and wholly miraculous, it might not affect any other country, and on this account be unnoticed by heathen writers.

34—38. Ninth hour] See notes, Matt. xxvii. 46—50.

33—41. The veil of the temple] Mark has omitted what Matthew relates respecting the graves of some saints being opened, and their bodies arising and appearing to many.

42. Evening was come] The Jews used the term evening with some latitude, signifying the time after three to six, as well as the close of the day. As the sabbath commenced at six o'clock, it is probable that the former evening is meant here. Compare Matt. xxvii. 62, and note, 57.

CHAP. XVI. 1, 2. And when the sabbath] The order and construction of the text are confused; but by a small

And when the evening was come, be- 42 cause it was the preparation, that is, the day before the sabbath, Joseph of Arima- 43 thea, a senator of rank, who also waited for the kingdom of God, came, and went in boldly to Pilate, and asked for the body of Jesus. And Pilate wondered that he was 44 already dead; and calling to him the centurion, he asked him whether he had been any while dead. And when he knew it 45 from the centurion, he gave the body to Joseph. And he bought fine linen, and 46 took him down, and wrapped him in the linen, and laid him in a sepulchre which was hewn out of a rock, and rolled a stone to the door of the sepulchre. And Mary 47 Magdalene, and Mary the mother of Joses, beheld where he was laid.

CHAPTER XVI.

A. D. 33. An angel announceth to three women the resurrection of Christ; he appeareth to Mary Magdalene; to two going into the country, and then to the apostles; and having commissioned them to preach the gospel, ascended to heaven.

AND when the sabbath was past, Mary 1 Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Salome, having bought sweet spices, that they might go and embalm him, 2 Very early in the morning of the first day of the week, about the rising of the sun, came to the sepulchre. And they said among them- 3 selves; Who shall roll away the stone for us from the door of the sepulchre? (For it was very large.) And when they looked, 4 they saw that the stone was rolled away; And, entering into the sepulchre, they saw 5 a young man sitting on the right side clothed in a white robe, and they were astonished. And he saith to them, Be not as- 6 tonished: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth who was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him. But 7 depart, tell his disciples, and Peter, that he goeth before you into Galilee; there ye shall see him, as he said to you. And they went 8 out quickly, and fled from the sepulchre; for trembling and amazement seized them;

transposition of the last clause, it becomes clear. 'About the sun rising,' is often taken for the dawn of the morning, as Matthew and Luke express it, and when, according to John, it was yet dark, or comparatively so.

3. For it was very large] With Campbell and others, this clause is transposed from the end of the next verse, as it contains the reason for what they said.

4. Stone was] See how this was done related Matt. xxviii. 2—4.

5. A young man] An angel in the form of a young man. Both Matthew and Mark only mention one angel, but Luke and John two. From Matthew I think it is clear that one only appeared at first, whose appearance alarmed the soldiers, and who addressed the women; but afterwards, another appeared in the sepulchre, John xx. 12. See note, Matt. xxvii. 5.

7. As he said to you] Jesus had told them that he would go before them into Galilee, ch. xiv. 28; compare with Matt. xxvi. 32.

8. Trembling and amazement seized them] As they nor said they anything to any one; for they were afraid.

9 Now early on the first day of the week, Jesus arose, and appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven demons. And she went and told those who had been with him, as they mourned and wept. And when they had heard that he was alive, and had been seen by her, they believed not.

12 After that he appeared in another form unto two of them, as they walked and went into the country. And they went and told it to the rest; but they believed them not.

14 Afterwards he appeared to the eleven as they were at meat, and upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not those who had seen him after he was risen. And he said 15 to them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the glad tidings to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be 16 saved; but he that believeth not shall be condemned. And these signs shall follow 17 those who believe: In my name shall they cast out demons; they shall speak in new languages; They shall take up serpents; 18 and if they drink any deadly thing it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover.

So then, after the Lord had spoken to 19 them, he was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God. And they 20 went forth, and preached every where, the Lord working with them, and confirming the doctrine by attendant miracles. Amen.

went to carry the news to the apostles, Matt. xxviii. 8, 9.

9—11. Now early on] John relates how Jesus addressed Mary, and the kind and encouraging language he used, John xx. 16.

12. In another form] Under a different appearance from what had been usual. Pearce supposes only another dress may be intended, as he had before appeared in that of a gardener, John xx. 15. Luke relates the particulars of this appearance to the two disciples going to Emmaus, ch. xxiv. 13, &c.

14. Appeared to the eleven] John mentions three appearances to the eleven, ch. xx. 19, 26, and xxi. 1; but Luke only relates one, ch. xxiv. 36, &c., which seems to be the same as Mark refers to here.

15, 16. Go ye into all] See note, Matt. xxviii. 19.—Be saved] From everlasting punishment, John iii. 18, 36; while those who resist the evidence of Divine truth, and reject the Saviour, shall suffer the due reward of their sins.

17, 19. These signs shall] These miracles were wrought by our Lord's disciples. See Acts v. 16; viii. 7; xvi. 18, for casting out demons; and for speaking in new languages, Acts ii. 4; x. 46; xix. 6, and 1 Cor. xiv. 18. Paul took up a serpent without injury, Acts xviii. 15. Laying hands on the sick was usual, Acts v. 16; xxviii. 8. We have no instance recorded of their drinking poison without receiving injury, but doubtless even this might occur.

19. So then, after] This was some time after; for, as what Mark relates occurred in Galilee, and as Jesus ascended from Bethany, near Jerusalem, the disciples must have had time to return there. Compare Luke xxiv. 50, 51, with Acts i. 4.—Sat on the right] So had David predicted, Ps. cx. 1; and so had Jesus said it would be, chap. xiv. 62.

20. By attendant miracles] So that the evidence of the Divine authority of what they preached was sufficient to justify the belief of it, and to condemn every man who should not believe.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO ST. LUKE.

INTRODUCTION.

LUKE, the author of the third account of the life of our Lord and Saviour, was not an apostle, but an evangelist, or an attendant on the apostles, and especially of the apostle Paul. It does not appear that he had seen or heard Christ; but had derived his information from those who had, from such as had been with him from the beginning, the ministers of his word. As an evangelist, he was endowed with the gifts of the Holy Spirit; and we have as much reason to give credit to his narrative as to those of Matthew and John. He has supplied us with many interesting particulars which the preceding writers had omitted; as the account of the birth of the Baptist—the annunciation, and other circumstances concerning the nativity. These events would be recorded and communicated by Mary, Joseph, and other branches of the holy family; and as to the truth of them, they are supported by historical data, by prophecy, and by the testimony of other sacred writers.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 0. Preface to his gospel; conception of John and of Christ; prophecy of Elizabeth and Mary concerning Christ; the birth of John; prophecy of Zechariah respecting Christ and John.

1 FORASMUCH as many have undertaken to compose a narrative of those things which have been accomplished among us; Even as they delivered them to us, who 2 from the beginning were eye-witnesses, and then ministers of the word; It seemed 3 good to me also, having gained exact knowledge of every thing from the very first, to

CHAP. I. 1. To compose a narrative] These narratives might in the main be true, though very defective; and on this last account Luke might form the design of composing his gospel. From what he here says, he could not have seen either Matthew's or Mark's gospel.

2. Even as they] Luke meant to state that he had received write a particular account to thee, most 4 excellent Theophilus, That thou mayest know the certainty of those things in which thou hast been instructed.

 5 In the days of Herod, the king of Judea,
 there was a certain priest named Zechariah, of the course of Abijah, and his wife was 6 of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elizabeth. And they were both righteous before God, walking unblameably according to all the commandments and 7 ordinances of the Lord. And they had no child, because Elizabeth was barren, and they were both far advanced in years.
 8 Now it came to pass, that while he executed the priest's office before God in the 9 order of his course, According to the custom of the priest's office, his lot was to go into the temple of the Lord to burn incense.
 10 And the whole multitude of the people were praying without, at the time of in-11 cense. And there appeared unto him an angel of the Lord, standing on the right 12 side of the altar of incense. And when Zechariah saw him, he was troubled, and 13 fear fell upon him. But the angel said to him, Fear not, Zechariah : for thy prayer hath been heard ; and thy wife Elizabeth shall bear thee a son, and thou shalt call 14 his name John. And thou shalt have joy and gladness ; and many shall rejoice at 15 his birth. For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink ; and he shall be filled with the Holy Spirit, even from his 16 mother's womb. And many of the children of Israel shall he turn to the Lord 17 their God. And he shall go before him in the spirit and power of Elijah, to turn the hearts of the fathers with the children, and, by the wisdom of the just, to make the disobedient a people prepared for the Lord.

his information from those who had first been eye-witnesses of the things related, and then ministers of the word.

3. A particular account] Most critics consider καὶ ἐξ ἑσῶν, as not referring to time, but as opposed to incoherence and obscurity : for Luke has not followed the exact order of events in his gospel. Most excellent Theophilus] We have no information who this person was, or where he lived. Theophylact asserts that he was a person of senatorian rank, and perhaps a prefect or governor, as Paul called Felix, 'most excellent.'

5. Herod, the king] See note, Matt. ii. 1.—Zechariah] This was the eighth of the twenty-four courses appointed by David, 1 Chron. xxiv. 10.

9. His lot was] Each course served a week at Jerusalem : and the course was divided into seven classes, so that each class had its day of attendance at the temple.—Temple] The holy place, or sanctuary, where the altar of incense stood before the veil, Exod. xxx. 1—8 ; xl. 26.

10. Praying without] That is, in the court of Israel. When the priest began to burn the incense, notice was given to the people without by the sound of a bell ; and they then silently poured out their requests to God, Revel. viii. 1—4.

13. Thy prayer] Which he had formerly offered up, that he might have children.—Call his name John] Which sig-

And Zechariah said to the angel, Whereby 18 shall I know this ? for I am an old man, and my wife advanced in years. And the 19 angel answering said to him, I am Gabriel, that stand in the presence of God ; and am sent to speak to thee, and to tell thee these glad tidings. And, behold, thou shalt be 20 dumb, and not able to speak, until the day that these things shall be performed, because thou believest not my words, which shall be fulfilled in their season.

Now the people waited for Zechariah, 21 and wondered that he tarried so long in the temple. And when he came out, he 22 could not speak to them : and they perceived that he had seen a vision in the temple : for he beckoned unto them, and remained speechless. And it came to pass, 23 that, as soon as the days of his ministration were accomplished, he departed to his own house.

And after those days his wife Elizabeth 24 conceived, and concealed herself five months, saying, Thus hath the Lord dealt with me 25 in the days wherein he looked on me, to take away my reproach among men.

And in the sixth month the angel Gabriel 26 was sent from God unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth, To a virgin espoused to a 27 man whose name was Joseph, of the family of David ; and the virgin's name was Mary. And the angel entered in unto her, 28 and said, Hail, thou that art highly favoured ; the Lord is with thee : blessed art thou among women. And she was troubled at 29 his address ; and reasoned within herself as to what kind of salutation this could be. And the angel said to her, Fear not, Mary : 30 for thou hast found favour with God. And, 31 behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name JESUS. He shall be great, and 32 nifies the grace or favour of God ; and in consequence of this favour he should have joy and gladness.

15. Strong drink] Wine made from fruits, and particularly from the palm. See note, Isa. v. 11. John was to be a Nazarite, Num. vi. 3.

17. To turn the hearts] Pearce and Campbell are followed in the version given ; and it has at least the merit of precision and perspicuity. See Mal. iv. 6.

18—20. Whereby shalt I know] Zechariah wanted some sign or miraculous token, that what was promised should be granted ; and the angel, while he announceth as a punishment for his doubting and unbelief, ' that he should be dumb,' grants the sign of the thing promised. In what manner he was affected so as not to be able to speak, we are not informed ; but it might be by paralysis of the organs of speech, miraculously produced.

24, 25. Concealed herself] Or 'lived in retirement,' to preserve her health and to give thanks to Him who had taken away her reproach. See Gen. xxx. 23.

26. In the sixth month] After Elizabeth's conception. See verse 36.

28. Hail, thou that art] The language of this verse is in the style of the east, and denotes that God had greatly distinguished her. Compare Judg. v. 24, and Judith xiii. 18.

30—33. His name Jesus] Compare Matt. i. 21, with Isa. i.

shall be called the Son of the Highest :
and the Lord God shall give to him the 33 throne of his father David : And he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever ; and of his kingdom there shall be no 34 end. Then said Mary to the angel, How shall this be, seeing I know not man ?
35 And the angel answered and said to her,
The Holy Spirit shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee : therefore also that holy child shall 36 be called the Son of God. And behold, thy kinswoman Elizabeth, even she hath conceived a son in her old age ; and this is the sixth month with her, who was called 37 barren. For with God nothing shall be impossible.
38 And Mary said, Behold the handmaid of the Lord ; be it unto me according to thy word. And the angel departed from her.
39 And Mary arose in those days, and went into the mountainous country with haste, 10 into a city of Judah ; And entered into the house of Zechariah, and saluted Elizabeth.
41 And it came to pass, that when Elizabeth heard the salutation of Mary, the babe leaped in her womb ; and Elizabeth was 42 filled with the Holy Spirit : And she spoke out with a loud voice and said, Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the 43 fruit of thy womb. And whence is this to me, that the mother of my Lord should 44 come to me ? For, lo, as soon as the voice of thy salutation sounded in mine ears, the 45 babe in my womb leaped for joy. And happy is she who hath believed that there would be a performance of those things 46 which were told her from the Lord. And Mary said, My soul magnifieth the Lord,
47 And my spirit rejoiceth in God my Saviour.
48 For he hath regarded the low estate of his handmaid : for, behold, from henceforth all generations shall call me happy. For 49 the Mighty One hath done for me great things ; and holy is his name. And his 50 mercy is on them that fear him from generation to generation. He sheweth strength 51 with his arm ; he scattereth those that are proud by the imagination of their own hearts.

He putteth down the mighty from their 52 thrones, and exalteth those of low degree.
He filleth the hungry with good things ; 53 and the rich he sendeth empty away. He 54 helpeth Israel his servant, in remembrance of his mercy ; As he promised to our fathers, 55 to Abraham, and to his seed for ever. And 56
Mary abode with her about three months,
and returned to her own house.

Now Elizabeth's full time came that she 57 should be delivered ; and she brought forth a son. And her neighbours and her kindred 58 heard how the Lord had showed great mercy towards her ; and they rejoiced with her.
And it came to pass on the eighth day, that 59 they came to circumcise the child ; and they called him Zechariah, after the name of his father. And his mother spoke and said, 60
Not so ; but he shall be called John. And 61 they said to her, There is none among thy kindred that is called by this name. And 62 they made signs to his father, how he would have him called. And he beckoned for a 63 writing tablet, and wrote, saying, His name is John. And they all wondered. For his 64 mouth was opened immediately, and his tongue loosed, and he spoke and praised God. And fear came on all who dwelt 65 round about them : and all these things were reported throughout all the mountainous country of Judea. And all those that 66 heard them laid them up in their hearts, saying, What kind of child will this be
And the hand of the Lord was with him.
And his father Zechariah was filled with 67

ix. 7 ; Dan. ii. 44 ; vii. 13, 14. Our Lord's spiritual kingdom will be everlasting ; and when the Jews, as a people, shall believe in him, he shall then eminently reign over the house of Jacob.—Of his father David Pearce remarks, that Mary was espoused to Joseph before Jesus was conceived ; and that she was, in the eye of the law, his wife ; so that Joseph was his legal father when conceived, and in consequence David was so too.

35. Shall be called] That is, shall be ; see also ver. 32.
This idiom is common in the scriptures.

39. Into the mountainous] The land occupied by the tribe of Judah was divided into several parts—one called the south, Josh. xv. 20—32 ; another, the valley or low land, ver. 33—47 ; a third, the mountains, ver. 48—60 ; and a fourth, the waste or wilderness, ver. 61, 62. Some have thought that the city to which she went was Hebron ; but Michaelis ingeniously conjectures that it was Jutta, Josh.
xv. 35, a city given to the priests, and that this was probably the reading of Luke, which has been changed to Judah.

41—44. Filled with the Holy Spirit] In consequence of this she knew that Mary was pregnant ; that the child conceived was the Messiah, her own Lord ; and that she, as well as John, her unborn son, felt an unusual, a supernatural joy.

45. Happy is she] Zechariah had not believed, and was so unhappy as to be for a season speechless ; but Mary had believed, and her faith was not in vain.

46—55. Mary said] This song of Mary has much affinity in its sentiments with that of Hannah, 1 Sam. ii.
1—10.

55. As he promised] Compare Gen. xvii. 19 ; xxii. 18 ;
Ps. cxxxii. 11, 12. This will not be fully accomplished until all Israel be converted, and by faith embrace the Messiah, which we are assured shall be. Compare Rom. xi. 25
—27.

56. About three months] She probably staid until Elizabeth was delivered of her son.

59. Zechariah] Many thought it natural to call the son after the name of the father, to keep up his name in Israel ;
but his mother, to whom Zechariah had made known the vision he had had, doubtless by the use of his pen, said that his name should be called John.

62. Made signs] From this it appears that he was deaf as well as dumb ; at least this seems highly probable.

63. His name is John] He meant that his name was already given to him by the angel ; ver. 13. At this they all wondered, as they had not before heard of the circumstance.

the Holy Spirit, and prophesied, saying, 68 Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel;
for he hath regarded and redeemed his peo-69 ple; And hath raised up a prince for our salvation, in the family of his servant Da-70 vid; (As he spoke by the mouth of his holy prophets, who have been from ancient 71 times :) Even a salvation from our enemies, and from the hand of all that hate us; 72 To perform the mercy promised, and to remember his holy covenant with our fathers;
73 The oath which he swore to our father 74 Abraham: To grant unto us, that we, being delivered out of the hand of our enemies, 75 might serve him without fear, In holiness and righteousness before him, all the days of our life.
76 And thou, child, shalt be called a prophet of the Most High: for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways; 77 By giving the knowledge of salvation to his people, in the remission of their sins, 78 Through the tender mercy of our God, by which a dawning light hath visited us from 79 on high; To give light to those who sit in darkness and death-shade; to guide our feet into the way of peace.
80 And the child grew, and was strengthened in spirit, and was in the deserts till the day of his public appearance unto Israel.

67. Prophesied] That is, spoke what follows, under the immediate influence and impulse of the Holy Spirit.

69—71. A prince for our] With Campbell the sense is given. Michaelis renders, a 'victorious king.' Compare Deuter. xxxii. 17, and 1 Sam. ii. 10; Ps. cxxxii. 17, &c.

72—75. To perform the mercy] Pearce supposes that Zechariah as well as Mary, ver. 51, expected that the Messiah would be a temporal prince, delivering the Jewish people from Herod and the Romans; so that they might serve God under his happy reign, free from fear, and from all molestation.

76. Thou, child] He means his son John. He shall be called, or shall be, a prophet of the Most High.—Face of the Lord] The Lord Jesus; for John was his forerunner.

77. By giving the] He was to make known the way of salvation, by preaching repentance, and promising forgiveness.

80. In spirit] In his mind or understanding, being filled with wisdom, as it is said, ch. ii. 40.

CHAP. II. 1. The whole land] The text is ambiguous, and may denote the whole Roman empire; or be confined to the whole land of Judea. Compare Acts ii. 29. With Lardner I take it in the latter sense: first, because the text will fairly bear it; and secondly, because the circumstances of Herod, and the oath as mentioned by Josephus, seem to imply it; and thirdly, because none of the Roman historians mention a general census at the time to which Luke refers.

2. This enrolment] The common rendering of the text is undoubtedly at variance both with the testimony of Josephus, and of Luke himself. Cyrenius was not governor of Syria during the reign of Herod, nor until the deposition and banishment of Archelaus, when Judea was made a Roman province, and taxed as other provinces; and in consequence of which, Judas of Galilee raised an insurrection. See Acts v. 37. This was ten or eleven years after the death of Herod: either then the text or the version must be wrong.—Took effect] The enrolment was the basis of the levy of men, and of money. So in our own history, William the Conqueror ordered a survey of the kingdom. The book, yet in the Exchequer, called Domesday-book, contains this survey;

Now it came to pass in those days, that 1 there went out a decree from Cæsar Augustus, that the whole land should be enrolled. (This enrolment first took effect when Cy- 2 renius was governor of Syria.) And all 3 went to be enrolled, every one into his own city. And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, unto the city of David, which is called Beth- 4 lehem; (because he was of the family and lineage of David :) To be enrolled with 5 Mary his espoused wife, who was great with child. And it came to pass, that, while 6 they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered. And she 7 brought forth her first-born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the house for strangers.

Now there were in the same country 8 shepherds abiding in the field, and keeping night-watches over their flock. And, be- 9 hold, an angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they feared greatly. And the 10 angel said to them, Fear not; for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which it was six years in making for England only, and no payment of taxes was made upon it till twelve years after. On the expulsion of Archelaus, Judea became a Roman province, and then the tax was levied. See Campbell.

4. City of David] He was probably born there; or he might go there in conformity to the custom of the Jews, who were enrolled by their tribes and families; and he might have some small estate there; and according to Ulpian, a man was to enrol himself where his estate lay.

5. Great with child] The reason of Mary undertaking such a journey in this condition is stated, note to chap. iii. 33.

7. No room for them in the] Pearce and Campbell agree that καταλύμα signifies a room for guests, and answers to what Busbequius calls ænodochium, where persons were comfortably lodged at the public expense. It is probable that there was only one such house for strangers in Bethlehem; and this being full, Joseph and Mary were obliged to retire to a more homely receptacle, called a stabulum, the middle of which afforded room for cattle, and the sides accommodation for persons. It was not properly a stable, but was formed for the convenient lodging of both men and cattle.

8. Night-watches] That is, watching them by turns, the space of three hours. From this it is probable that our Lord was born, not on the 25th of December, but as early as September or October. This may be proved from Luke's account in the first chapter. The Jews began their sacred year at the passover, Exod. xiii. 4, which was near the vernal equinox. Zechariah was of the course of Abijah, which was the eighth, 1 Chron. xxiv. 10. If we count from the passover, Zechariah's course would be at the temple in June. On his return, Elizabeth conceived, suppose about the end of June; and when Elizabeth was in the sixth month of her pregnancy, chap. i. 26, which will bring us into December, an angel was sent to inform Mary that she should conceive, which seems to have then occurred. Reckoning nine months from December, Jesus must have been born in the month of September or of October. Now in the month Tisri was the feast of tabernacles, or booths, Numb. xxix. 12. As the

- 11 shall be to all the people. For unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a 12 Saviour, who is Christ the Lord. And this will be a sign unto you; Ye will find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying 13 in a manger. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly 14 host praising God, and saying, Glory in the highest heavens be to God; and on earth peace, good-will towards men.
15 And it came to pass, when the angels had departed from them into heaven, that the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath 16 made known to us. And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the 17 babe lying in the manger. And when they had seen it, they declared what had been 18 told them concerning this child. And all that heard it, wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.
19 But Mary kept in mind all these things, and pondered them in her heart. And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it had been told them.
21 And when eight days were accomplished for the circumcising of the child, his name was called JESUS; the name given to him by the angel before he was conceived
22 in the womb. And when the days of her purification, according to the law of Moses, were accomplished, they brought him to Jerusalem, to present him to the Lord;
23 (As it is written in the law of the Lord, Every male that openeth the womb shall be 24 called holy to the Lord;) And to offer a sacrifice according to that which is said in the law of the Lord, A pair of turtle-doves, or two young pigeons.
25 And, behold, there was a man in Jerusalem, whose name was Simeon; and the same man was just and devout, waiting for the consolation of Israel: and the Holy Spirit was upon him. And it was revealed unto 26 him by the Holy Spirit, that he should not see death, before he had seen the Lord's Anointed. And he came by the Spirit into 27 the temple: and when the parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him according to the custom of the law, Then he took 28 him up in his arms, and blessed God and said, Lord, now lettest thou thy servant de- 29 part in peace, according to thy word: For 30 mine eyes have seen thy salvation, Which 31 thou hast prepared before the face of all people; A light to enlighten the Gentiles, 32 and to be the glory of thy people Israel.

And Joseph and his mother wondered at 33 those things which were spoken by him. And Simeon blessed them, and said to Mary 34 his mother, Behold, this child is set for the fall and rise of many in Israel; and for a sign which will be spoken against; (Yea, 35 a sword will pierce through thy own soul also;) so that the thoughts of many hearts will be revealed.

And there was one Anna, a prophetess, 36 the daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Asher: she was of a great age, and had lived with a husband but seven years after marriage. And she was a widow of about 37 eighty-four years, who departed not from the temple, but served God with fastings and prayers night and day. And she, 38 coming in at that instant, gave thanks likewise unto the Lord, and spoke of him to all them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem.

And when they had performed all things 39 according to the law of the Lord, they returned into Galilee, to their own city Nazareth. And the child grew, and became 40 strong in spirit, filled with wisdom: and the favour of God was upon him.

Jews were obliged to assemble at the chief city of their respective districts, and as the feast of tabernacles was a season of leisure, this was most suitable for the enrolment. Lardner has stated it as his opinion that our Lord was born about the season above mentioned.

12. Lying in a manger] This seems to be the circumstance by which they were to know him, and not his being wrapped in swaddling clothes, as this latter was usual.

14. Glory be to God] This anthem of praise was suitable to the display now made of the love, grace, and faithfulness of God.

19. And pondered them] It is clear that Mary did not know every thing relating to the son she had borne; and her piety is manifest in observing and considering the various wonders which occurred.

21. Eight days] Or on the eighth day; this was according to the law, Gen. xvii. 12.

22-24. Days of her purification] See Levit. xii. 2; Exod. xiii. 2. The offering of Mary shows that she was not rich, though married to one of the family of David.

25. Consolation of Israel] That is, the coming of Messiah. This proves that there was then an expectation of his coming. Compare chap. iii. 15; John iv. 25.

26. Lord's Anointed] Or Messiah, a name given to the Saviour, as being both appointed to, and fully qualified for, the discharge of his office.

32. A light to enlighten] Jesus was to be a light by his doctrine to be preached among the Gentiles. See Isa. xlix. 6; Acts xxvi. 18; xxviii. 28.

34. Fall and rise] That is, many Jews will reject him, and fall by their unbelief; and many will receive him, and rise from their present sinful state.

35. A sword will] That is, thou wilt experience the most piercing affliction on account of him: allowing, most probably, to the crucifixion. John xix. 25.—So that the thoughts] The ministry, miracles, and death of Jesus will discover or bring to light the thoughts, designs, and dispositions of all kinds of characters.

36. Anna, a prophetess] One devoted to God, and endowed with the gifts of the Spirit to explain the prophets, and instruct the people.

39. They returned into Galilee] While Luke has given us a particular account of the circumstances attending the birth of John and Jesus, he has wholly omitted what Matthew relates of the coming of the wise men, the descent of Joseph and Mary into Egypt, and the reason of their going to reside at Nazareth. See Matt. ii. 1, &c.

41 Now his parents went to Jerusalem every 42 year at the feast of the passover. And when he was twelve years old, they went up to Jerusalem according to the custom 43 of the feast; And having fulfilled the days, they returned, but the youth Jesus tarried behind in Jerusalem; and Joseph and his 44 mother knew it not. But they, supposing him to have been in the company, went a day's journey; and they sought him among 45 their kindred and acquaintance. And when they found him not, they returned to 46 Jerusalem, seeking him. And it came to pass, that, after three days, they found him in the temple, sitting in the midst of the teachers, both hearing them, and asking 47 them questions. And all that heard him were astonished at his understanding and 48 answers. And when his parents saw him, they were amazed: and his mother said to him, Son, why hast thou done thus to us? behold, thy father and I have sought 49 thee sorrowing. And he said to them, How is it that ye sought me? knew ye not that I must needs be in my father's house?
 50 But they understood not the thing which 51 he spoke unto them. And he went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them: but his mother kept 52 all these things in her heart. And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 26. The preaching and baptism of John; his testimony to Christ; is imprisoned by Herod; Christ being baptized, receiveth testimony from heaven; genealogy of Christ by Mary.

1 Now in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Cæsar, Pontius Pilate being governor of Judea, and Herod being tetrarch of Galilee, and his brother Philip tetrarch of Iturea and of the region of Trachonitis, and 2 Lysanias the tetrarch of Abilene, Annas and Caiaphas being the high priests, the word of God came unto John, the son of Zechariah, in the desert. And he came into 3 all the country about the Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins; As it is written in the 4 book of the words of Isaiah the prophet, who saith, The voice of one crying in the desert, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight. Every valley 5 shall be filled, and every mountain and hill shall be brought low; and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough ways shall be made smooth; And all flesh shall 6 see the salvation of God. Then he said to 7 the multitudes that went forth to be baptized by him, O offspring of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from impending wrath? Bring forth therefore fruits worthy 8 of repentance, and say not within yourselves, We have Abraham for our father:

 for I say to you, That of these stones God is able to raise up children unto Abraham.
 And now also the axe is laid to the root of 9
 the trees: every tree therefore which beareth not good fruit is to be cut down, and cast into the fire. And the multitudes asked 10 him, saying, What then shall we do? He 11 answereth and saith to them, He that hath two coats, let him impart to him that hath none; and he that hath food, let him do likewise. Then came publicans also to be 12 baptized, and said to him, Master, what shall we do? And he said to them, Exact 13 no more than that which is appointed unto you. And the soldiers likewise demanded 14 of him, saying, And what shall we do?
 And he said to them, Take by violence from no man, and accuse not any falsely;
 and be content with your pay.

And as the people were in expectation, 15 and all men reasoned in their hearts concerning John, whether he were the Christ,

CHAP. III. 1. In the fifteenth year] As to the two methods of calculating the reign of Tiberius, see Lardner and Bishop Pearce.

2. Being the high priests] Annas had been high priest, but Caiaphas was then in that office, John xi. 49; xviii. 13, 24.
 Some think that they are thus styled, because the power which the Jews possessed was lodged in their hands; and others, that Annas was only Sagan, or deputy to Caiaphas, Acts iv. 6.

3. For the remission] Or in order to receive and enjoy the remission of sins. His baptism was designed to awaken the attention of the Jews, and prepare them for the appearance of our Lord.

7, 8. To the multitudes] And especially to the Pharisees and Sadducees. See Matt. iii. 7, &c.

10—14. Asked him] These questions and answers are not noticed by the other Evangelists. They are both natural and interesting. The advice and direction he gave to each were suitable to their characters and vocations.—Soldiers]
 They were not Roman soldiers, but most probably Jews, belonging to Herod, the tetrarch of Galilee.

15—18. In expectation] See notes, Matt. iii. 11, &c.

41. His parents went] Women were not obliged by the law to go; but it seems, from the instance of Hannah, 1 Sam.
 i. 7, &c., that it was customary for pious females to go and observe that holy solemnity. It is probable, that his parents took Jesus with them, because that they perceived he became strong in spirit, and was filled with Divine wisdom.

43. Fulfilled the days] That is, eight days; for so long the passover and feast of unleavened bread lasted, Exod.
 xii. 1—23.—The youth] The term 'child' does not seem proper to one so old, and who attended on the passover.

45. Found him not] The company must have been very large, as it occupied the space of a day to examine it, before they returned to Jerusalem.

46. In the midst of the teachers] They sat on benches in a half circle, and their scholars at their feet, Acts xxii. 3.

47. Understanding and answers] As Jesus asked them questions, they, probably to try his knowledge, might ask him questions in reference to the law and the prophets; to which he replied in such a manner as to excite their astonishment.

49. Be in my father's house] That this is the true version of the text is now generally admitted. It is supported by the Greek classics as well as by the Sept. Compare Greek, Esai. vii. 9; John xix. 27.

- 16 or not; John spoke, saying to them all, I indeed baptize you with water; but one mightier than I cometh, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to unloose: he shall baptize you with the Holy Spirit
- 17 and with fire: Whose winnowing-shovel is in his hand, and he will thoroughly cleanse his floor, and will gather the wheat into the granary; but the chaff he will burn up
- 18 with unquenchable fire. And with many other exhortations he published the glad tidings to the people.
- 19 But Herod the tetrarch, being reproved by him about Herodias his brother Philip's wife, and for all the evils which Herod had done, Added this likewise to all, that he shut up John in prison.
- 21 Now it came to pass, when all the people were baptized, that Jesus also having been baptized, and praying, the heavens
- 22 were opened, And the Holy Spirit descended in a bodily shape, like a dove, upon him; and a voice came from heaven, which said, Thou art my beloved Son, in thee I am well pleased.
- 23 And Jesus himself was about thirty years of age when he began his ministry, being (as was supposed) the son of Joseph, who
- 24 was the son of Heli, who was the son of Matthat, who was the son of Levi, who was the son of Melchi, who was the son of Janna,
- 25 who was the son of Joseph, Who was the son of Mattathiah, who was the son of Amos, who was the son of Nahum, who was the son of Esli, who was the son of Naggai,

- 27 was the son of Judah, Who was the son of Joanna, who was the son of Rhesa, who was the son of Zerubbabel, who was the son of Salathiel, who was the son of
- 28 Neri, Who was the son of Melchi, who was the son of Addi, who was the son of Cosam, who was the son of Elmodam, who was the son of Er, Who was the son of Josse, who 29 was the son of Eliezer, who was the son of Jorim, who was the son of Matthat, who was the son of Levi, Who was the son of 30 Simeon, who was the son of Judah, who was the son of Joseph, who was the son of Jonan, who was the son of Eliakim, Who 31 was the son of Melea, who was the son of Menan, who was the son of Mattatha, who was the son of Nathan, who was the son of David, Who was the son of Jesse, who was 32 the son of Obed, who was the son of Boaz, who was the son of Salmon, who was the son of Naason, Who was the son of Aminadab, who was the son of Ram, who was the son of Hezron, who was the son of Pharez, who was the son of Judah, Who was the son of 34 Jacob, who was the son of Isaac, who was the son of Abraham, who was the son of Terah, who was the son of Nahor, Who 35 was the son of Serug, who was the son of Reu, who was the son of Phaleg, who was the son of Eber, who was the son of Salah, Who was the son of Cainan, who was the 36 son of Arphaxad, who was the son of Shem, who was the son of Noah, who was the son of Lamech, Who was the son of Mathuse- 37 lah, who was the son of Enoch, who was the son of Jared, who was the son of Mahalaleel, who was the son of Cainan, Who 38 was the son of Enoch, who was the son of Seth, who was the son of Adam, who was the son of God.

CHAPTER IV.

A. D. 31. Christ's temptation and victory; begins his ministry; his discourse at Nazareth; cureth Peter's mother-in-law, and many who had demons.

Now Jesus, being full of the Holy Spirit, I returned from the Jordan, and was led by the Spirit into the desert, Being tempted 2 forty days by the devil. And during those

19. 20. Reproved by him] John was not imprisoned until more than two years after the commencement of his ministry, and this is only mentioned here because that Luke was speaking about John.

22. In a bodily shape] It is probable that Luke only meant by idos what John saw, Matt. iii. 16; Mark i. 10. The Holy Spirit manifested himself in a glorious light, which light descended upon him in the manner a dove descends.

23. And Jesus himself was] The text will fairly admit various versions, according to the sense in which αἰχμαλωτός is taken. It may be a mere idiom, and the version will be, 'And Jesus himself was about thirty years of age, being (as was supposed) the son of,' &c. Or supposing the participle to have the sense of 'ruled, governed,' we may render, 'And Jesus himself was about thirty years in subjection,' which Campbell has adopted, referring to his being in subjection to his parents. The version given seems most natural. Luke had related the miraculous conception of Jesus, and the usual sense of the verb, 'supposed,' applies to the common apprehension respecting him.—Son of Joseph, who was the son of Heli] Matthew informs us that the father of Joseph was Jacob, and traces his descent in a direct line through Solomon to David. How then could Joseph be the son of Heli? By marrying Mary his daughter, who from this must have been his only child living, and of course heiress of the little property he might possess. Those who married heiresses were obliged to pass into the family of their fathers-in-law, and let themselves be reckoned their sons. The principle of inheritance among the Israelites implied as much; for the inheritance was given to daughters, in order that the name of their father might not become extinct; and, consequently, the sons of such marriages were recorded by the name of their maternal grandfather. Compare Numb. xxvii. Hence Joseph by marrying Mary became the son of Heli, Mary's father; and this genealogy proves that Mary was of the family of David, in the line of Nathan; so that our Lord was, in the strictest sense, the son of David, notwithstanding his miraculous conception.

36. The son of Cainan] This generation is found only in the Sept., Gen. xi. 12, and Jackson has stated the reasons for admitting it. Jackson's Chron. vol. i. p. 69, &c.

CHAP. IV. 2. Being tempted] However Satan might have tempted our Lord before, by exciting gloomy and de-days he ate nothing: and, when they were 3 ended, he was hungry. And the devil said to him, If thou be the Son of God, com-4 mand that this stone become a loaf. And Jesus answered him, saying, It is written, 5 That man shall not live by bread only, but by whatsoever God appointeth. And the devil brought him to a high mountain, and showed him all the kingdoms of the world 6 in a moment of time. And the devil said to him, All this power will I give thee, and the glory of them: for it is delivered to me; 7 and to whomsoever I will, I give it. If thou therefore wilt worship me, all shall be 8 thine. And Jesus answered and said to him, 'It is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou 9 serve. And he brought him to Jerusalem, and set him on a wing of the temple, and said to him, If thou be the Son of God, cast 10 thyself down hence: For it is written, he shall give his angels charge over thee, to 11 keep thee: And on their hands they shall bear thee up, lest at any time thou dash thy 12 foot against a stone. And Jesus answering said to him, It is commanded, Thou shalt 13 not tempt the Lord thy God. And when the devil had ended all his temptation, he for some time departed from him.

 14 And Jesus returned, in the power of the Spirit, into Galilee: and there went out a fame of him through all the country round 15 about. And he taught in their synagogues, being praised by all.
 16 And he came to Nazareth, where he had been brought up: and, as his custom was,
 he went into the synagogue on the sabbath, 17 and stood up to read. And the book of the prophet Isaiah was delivered to him. And when he had opened the book, he found the place where it was written, The Spirit 18 of the Lord is upon me, inasmuch as he hath anointed me to preach glad tidings to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to proclaim deliverance to the captives, and recovery of sight to the blind, to set at liberty those that are bruised,

 To proclaim the acceptable year of the 19
 Lord. And he closed the book, and gave 20 it again to the attendant, and sat down.
 And the eyes of all those that were in the synagogue were fixed upon him. And he 21 began by saying to them, This day is this scripture fulfilled in your ears. And all 22 bore testimony to him, and wondered at the words full of grace which proceeded out of his mouth, and they said, Is not this the son of Joseph? And he said to them, Ye 23 will surely say to me this proverb, Physician, cure thyself: whatsoever things we have heard done in Capernaum, do here also in thy own country. And he said, 24 Verily I say to you, No prophet is acceptable in his own country. But I tell you in 25 truth, there were many widows in Israel in the days of Elijah, when heaven was shut up for three years and six months, so that there was a great famine throughout all the land; Yet to none of them was Elijah sent, 26 but to a widow in Zarephath, a city of Sidon. And there were many lepers in Israel 27 in the time of Elisha the prophet; yet none of them, but Naaman the Syrian, was cleansed. And all in the synagogue when 28 they heard these things were filled with wrath, And rose up and drove him out of 29
 the city, and led him to the brow of the hill on which their city was built, that they sponding thoughts, he did not tempt him as to turning a stone into bread, until the end of the forty days.

4. By whatsoever God] See note, Matt. iv. 4, and Deut. viii. 3.

5. All the kingdoms of] Luke has added to Matthew's account of the circumstance, 'in a moment of time.' This strongly supports the opinion of those commentators who suppose that what is related passed in our Lord's mind.

8. It is written] The clause, 'Get thee behind me, Satan,' is wanting in the best MSS. and most of the old versions; and has been inserted from Matthew.—(o) Griesb.

13. For some time] Until the time which our Lord called the hour and the power of darkness, John xiv. 30; Luke xxii. 3, 53.

14. Into Galilee] After he had heard that John was cast into prison, Matt. iv. 12. None of the three Evangelists have related any part of the circumstances noticed, John i. 19, to iv. 43.

16. Stood up to read] By standing up, he showed that he was ready to read the lesson of the day, if they would permit him.

17. Book of the prophet] From this place Pearce observes, that at Nazareth, at least, the books of the Jewish scriptures were written in separate volumes, as they gave to Jesus only that of Isaiah.

18, 19. The Spirit of the] In what way the clauses, 'the recovery of sight to the blind, and to set at liberty those that are bruised,' have crept into the text; and whether, from a various reading of the Hebrew, we have not, in the Sept. and in Luke, two translations of the same text, I leave to the learned to decide.

21. By saying to them] It is probable that he enlarged much on the remarkable words which he had read.

22. Words full of grace] The text implies not only the kind and pleasing manner in which he spoke, but refers to the sentiments and doctrines which he delivered.

23. Heard done in Capernaum] From this it is evident our Lord had wrought miracles in Capernaum; and the other Evangelists place before this, what follows here, ver. 31; and Matthew all that Luke says, from ver. 31, to chap. vii. 36.

24. Acceptable] That is, treated with the honour to which his office is entitled. Comp. Matt. xii. 57; Mark vi. 4, and John iv. 44.

25—27. I tell you in truth] Our Lord shows, by instances, that a prophet not being acceptable in his own country, or to his own countrymen, was sent to others, or others came to him and received Divine favours; intimating that their unbelief would lead him to act in like manner. See 1 Kings xvii. 7—16, 45; James v. 17, and 2 Kings v. 14, &c.

29. And drove him] Maundrel visited Nazareth, and informs us that it is situate in a concave round valley on the top of a high hill. His passing through the midst of them, and departing, seems to have been miraculous.

CHAPTER V.

A. D. 31. Christ teacheth out of Peter's ship; a miraculous draught of fishes; a leper cleansed; one sick of the palsy healed; Matthew called; he eateth with publicans, &c.

30 might cast him down headlong. But he, passing through the midst of them, departed.
31 And he went down to Capernaum, a city of Galilee; and taught them on the sabbath. And they were astonished at his doctrine: for his word was with authority.
32 And in the synagogue there was a man, who had the spirit of an unclean demon; and he cried out with a loud voice, Saying, Ah! what hast thou to do with us, Jesus of Nazareth? art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art; the Holy One of God. And Jesus rebuked him, saying, Be silent, and come out of him! And when the demon had thrown him in the midst of the assembly, he came out of him, and hurt him not. And they were all amazed, and spoke among themselves, saying, What word is this! for with authority and power he commandeth the unclean spirits, and they come out. And a report of him went out into every place of the country round about.
38 And he arose out of the synagogue, and entered into Simon's house. Now the mother of Simon's wife was seized with a great fever, and they besought him for her.
39 And he stood over her, and rebuked the fever, and it left her: and immediately she arose and ministered to them.
40 Now when the sun was set, all those that had any sick with various diseases brought them to him: and he laid his hands on every one of them, and cured them. And demons also came out of many, crying out, and saying, Thou art the Son of God. And he rebuking them suffered them not to say, that they knew he was the Christ.
42 And when it was day, he departed and went into a desert place; and the multitude sought him, and came to him, and urged him not to depart from them. But he said to them, I must preach the glad tidings of the kingdom of God to other cities also: for therefore am I sent. And he preached in the synagogues of Galilee.

Now it came to pass, when the multitude pressed on him to hear the word of God, as he stood by the lake of Gennesaret, That he saw two vessels standing by the lake: but the fishermen had gone out of them, and were washing their nets. And he entered into one of the vessels, which was Simon's, and besought him to launch out a little from the land. And he sat down, and taught the multitude out of the vessel. Now when he had ceased speaking, he said to Simon, Launch out into the deep; and let down your nets for a draught. And Simon answering, said to him, Master, we have toiled during all the night, and have taken nothing: nevertheless at thy word I will let down the net. And when they had done this, they inclosed so great a multitude of fishes, that their net began to break. And they beckoned to their partners, who were in the other vessel, that they might come and help them. And they came, and filled both the vessels, so that they were near sinking. When Simon Peter saw this, he fell down at Jesus' knees, saying, Depart from me, Lord, for I am a sinful man. For astonishment seized him, and all that were with him, at the draught of the fishes which they had taken: And in like manner also were James and John, the sons of Zebedee, astonished, who were partners with Simon. And Jesus said to Simon, Fear not; henceforth thou shalt catch men. And when they had brought their vessels to land, they forsook all and followed him.

And it came to pass, when he was in a certain city, behold a man full of leprosy: who, when he saw Jesus, fell on his face, and besought him, saying, Master, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean. And he put forth his hand and touched him, saying, I will: be thou clean. And immediately the leprosy departed from him. And he commanded him to tell no man: but go, and show thyself to the priest, and offer

34—37. Ah! what hast thou] See note, Mark i. 24—28, and Matt. viii. 29, &c.—A report of him] Literally, a sound went forth.

38—39. Into Simon's house] Comp. Matt. viii. 14, and Mark i. 29.

40—44. Now when the sun] See note, Mark i. 32, &c. In the Jewish comments on Isa. ix. 1, 2, it is stated that Messiah should first appear in Galilee. See Schœtgen.

CHAP. V. 1—3. He stood by the lake] Compare Matt. xiii. 1, 2; Mark iv. 1, &c.—And he sat down] Luke is more full in his account of the calling of our Lord's first apostles than Matthew and Mark; but there is no contradictory statement. One mentions one circumstance, and a second seizes on another; so that there is no difference in the fact, but in the circumstances.

4—11. Launch out into the deep] Matthew and Mark mention the calling of Simon and the other apostles, but do not mention the miracle of the fishes, Matt. iv. 18, and Mark i. 16, &c.

6. Began to break] The term must have this sense here; for had it broken altogether, how could they have preserved the fish? Or how could their companions have helped them? The same turn must be given to the close of the next verse.

8. Lord, for I am a sinful] So Campbell renders Koios here, because Peter seemed to discover that his master was more than a man, which overwhelmed him with fear and awe. Like Manoah, he perhaps thought, by seeing so glorious a person, his life could not be continued. Compare 1 Kings xvii. 18.

12. A certain city] Or town, near to Capernaum. most probably. Compare Matt. viii. 2, and Mark i. 40.

for thy cleansing, as Moses commanded, 15 for a testimony to them. But so much the more went there a fame abroad of him :
 and great multitudes came together to hear him, and to be cured by him of their infir-16 mities. And he withdrew himself into the wilderness and prayed.
 17 And it came to pass on a certain day, as he was teaching, that there were Pharisees and teachers of the law sitting by, who had come from every town of Galilee, and Judea, and Jerusalem : and the power of the 18 Lord was exerted in curing the sick. And, behold, men brought on a bed one that was sick of the palsy : and they sought how to bring him in, and to place him before Jesus.
 19 And when they could not find by what way they might bring him in because of the multitude, they went up to the roof, and let him down through the tiling, with his 20 couch, into the midst before Jesus. And when he saw their faith, he said to him, 21 Man, thy sins are forgiven thee. And the scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying, Who is this that speaketh blasphem-ies ? Who can forgive sins but God alone ?
 22 But when Jesus perceived their reasonings, he answering said to them, Why reason ye 23 in your hearts ? Which is easier ? to say,
 Thy sins are forgiven thee ; or to say, Rise 24 up and walk ? But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power upon earth to forgive sins, (he said to the sick of the palsy,) I say to thee, Arise, and take up 25 thy couch, and go unto thy house. And immediately he rose up before them, and took up that whereon he lay, and departed to his 26 own house, glorifying God. And they were all struck with amazement, and they glorified God ; they were filled also with fear, saying, We have seen strange things today.
 27 And after these things Jesus went forth, and saw a publican, named Levi, sitting at the receipt of custom : and he said to him, 28 Follow me. And he left all, rose up, and 29 followed him. And Levi made for him a great feast in his own house : and there was a great company of publicans and of others 30 that sat down with them. But the scribes and Pharisees murmured against his disciples, saying, Why do ye eat and drink with publicans and sinners ? And Jesus answer-31 ing said to them, They that are well need not a physician, but they that are sick. I 32 am come to call, not the righteous, but sinners, to repentance.

And some said to him, Why do the disci- 33
 ples of John fast often, and make prayers, and in like manner the disciples of the Pharisees ; but thine eat and drink ? And he 34 said to them, Can ye make the bride-men fast, while the bridegroom is with them ?
 But the days will come, when the bride- 35 groom shall be taken from them, and in those days they will fast.

And he spoke also a parable to them ; 36
 No man putteth a piece of a new garment upon an old one ; if otherwise, both the new maketh a rent, and the piece that was taken from the new agreeth not with the old. And no man putteth new wine into 37 damaged bottles ; if otherwise the new wine will burst the bottles and be spilled, and the bottles will be destroyed. But new wine 38 must be put into sound bottles, and both will be preserved. No man also, having 39 drunk old wine, immediately desireth new :
 for he saith, The old is better.

CHAPTER VI.

A. D. 31. Christ reproveth the blindness of the Pharisees respecting the sabbath ; he chooseth twelve to be apostles ; cureth many of diseases, and preacheth to them.

AND it came to pass on the second sab- 1 bath after the first day of unleavened bread, that he went through the corn-fields ; and his disciples plucked the ears of corn, and ate, having rubbed them in their hands.
 And some of the Pharisees said to them, 2
 Why do ye that which is not lawful to do on the sabbath ? And Jesus answering said 3 to them, Have ye never read what David did, when both he himself was hungry and they who were with him ; How he 4 went into the house of God, and took and ate the presence-bread, and gave also to them that were with him ; which it is not lawful to eat, but for the priests alone ?
 And he said to them, The Son of man is 5
 Lord even of the sabbath. And it came to 6 pass on another sabbath also, that he entered into the synagogue and taught : and there was a man whose right hand was

17. On a certain day] This was at Capernaum in the house where he was accustomed to sojourn, as appears from Matt. ix. 1, compared with Mark ii. 1.

18—26. One that was sick of] Compare Matt. ix. 2—8, and Mark ii. 3—12, where see the notes.

19. Through the tiling] Some tiling might be removed in order to let the couch down near to Christ. Or we may render near to the tiling.

27. A publican] See Mark i. 14, and Matt. ix. 9, and notes.

33—35. Why do the disciples] Compare ix. 14, and Mark ii. 18, &c. From the former Evangelists, it seems that the disciples of John asked this question ; and here, that the Pharisees asked it. It is probable that some of both asked it.

CHAP. VI. 1. After the first day] So Doddridge, Newcome, and others render. On the second day of unleavened bread, the first fruits of barley were offered to God. From the first sabbath they began to reckon the seven weeks which intervened between the second day of unleavened bread and Pentecost, Levit. xxiii. 15, 16.

2—5. Why do ye that] Compare Matt. xii. 2—8, and notes.

6—11. Right hand was withered] See Matt. xii. 9, and Mark iii. 1, 5.

7 withered. And the Scribes and Pharisees watched him, whether he would heal on the sabbath, that they might find an accusation against him. But he knew their thoughts, and said to the man that had the withered hand, Rise up, and stand forth in the midst. And he arose and stood forth. Then said Jesus to them, I will ask you one thing; Is it lawful on the sabbath to do good, or to do evil? to save life, or to kill? And looking round about upon them all, he said to the man, Stretch forth thy hand. And he did so: and his hand was restored as the other. And they were filled with madness, and communed one with another what they should do to Jesus.

12 And it came to pass in those days, that he went forth to a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God. And when it was day, he called to him his disciples; and from them he chose twelve, whom he named apostles: Simon, (whom he had named Peter also,) and Andrew his brother; James and John; Philip and Bartholomew; Matthew and Thomas; James the son of Alphaeus, and Simon called the Zealous; and Judas the brother of James, and Judas Iscariot, who also became a traitor. And he came down with them, and stood in the plain; and there was a company of his disciples, and a great multitude of people from all Judea and Jerusalem, and from the sea-coast of Tyre and Sidon, who came to hear him, and to be cured of their diseases; And those that were vexed by unclean spirits: and they were cured.

19 And the whole multitude sought to touch him: for power went from him, and healed all.

20 And he raised his eyes on his disciples, and said, Happy are ye poor: for yours is the kingdom of God. Happy are ye that hunger now: for ye shall be filled. Happy are ye that weep now: for ye shall laugh.

22 Happy are ye, when men shall hate you, and when they shall separate you from them, and shall reproach and defame you, for the sake of the Son of man. Rejoice ye in that day, and leap for joy: for behold, your reward shall be great in heaven: for in like manner did their fathers to the prophets. But alas for you that are 24 rich! for ye have received your consolation. Alas for you that are full! for ye shall hunger. Alas for you that laugh now! for ye shall mourn and weep. Alas for you, when 26 men shall speak well of you! for so did their fathers of the false prophets.

But I say to you who hear, Love your 27 enemies, do good to those who hate you, Bless those that curse you, and pray for 28 those that despitefully use you: And to him 29 that smiteth thee on the one cheek, offer also the other; and from him that taketh away thy mantle withhold not thy coat. Give to 30 every man that asketh of thee; and of him that taketh away what is thine ask it not again. And as ye would that men should 31 do to you, do ye also to them in like manner.

For if ye love those who love you, what 32 thanks have ye? for sinners also love those who love them. And if ye do good to those 33 who do good to you, what thanks have ye? for sinners also do the same. And if ye 34 lend to those from whom ye hope to receive, what thanks have ye? for sinners also lend to sinners, to receive as much in return. But love ye your enemies; and do good, 35 and lend, hoping for nothing again, and your reward will be great, and ye will be the sons of the most High: for he is kind to the unthankful and to the evil. Be ye 36 therefore merciful, as your Father also is merciful. Judge not, and ye shall not be 37 judged: condemn not, and ye shall not be condemned: forgive, and ye shall be forgiven: Give, and it shall be given to you; 38 good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall be given into your lap. For with the same measure with which ye mete, it shall be measured to you again.

And he spoke a parable to them, Can the 39 blind lead the blind? will they not both

12. In prayer to God] 'In an oratory,' a place set apart, for prayer, as Campbell renders; but see Middleton. Compare Acts xvi. 13.

13. Apostles] An apostle, both in Greek, and the corresponding Hebrew word משל, means one deputed to act for another, especially on public business, and in this sense it was used also by Greek writers.

14. Philip and Bartholomew] It is almost certain that the latter apostle was Nathaniel; and that Bartholomew was his patronymic name, as it signifies 'the son of Tholomew.' See John i. 43—51.

16. And Judas the brother] He is called Lebbeus; whose surname was Thaddeus, by the latter of which he is mentioned, Mark iii. 18. We here learn that he was the son of Alphaeus, and is the author of the short epistle of Jude.

17—19. Stood in the plain] This and other particulars prove that what follows, though containing many similar sentiments, was not the sermon on the mount, given Matt.

v—vii. The time, place and circumstances are all different; and the address and language are different too.

22. Separate you] Cut you off from being members of their synagogues, John ix. 34.—Defame you] Call you Nazarenes and Christians, James ii. 7; Acts xxiv. 5; for these were names of reproach in the mouths of their enemies.

27—31. Love your enemies] Regard them and show kindness. Compare Matt. v. 44, and vii. 12, and notes.—Coat] This was a close garment fitting the body, over which the mantle was thrown when they went abroad.

32—35. What thanks have ye] What thanks do ye deserve? Ye are entitled to no peculiar mark of favour. In this paragraph we have many sentiments different from what Matthew has related; and so in the next.—Your lap] Cr ample fold of the mantle or loose garment worn in the east, in which they were accustomed to carry many things, Nehem. v. 13.—Same measure] Our Lord used this aphorism in Matt. vii. 1, 2, to express the retribution of justice;

40 fall into the ditch? The disciple is not above his teacher: but every finished
41 ciple shall be as his teacher. And why beholdest thou the splinter that is in thy brother's eye, but perceivest not the beam 42 that is in thine own eye? Or how canst thou say to thy brother, Brother, let me pull out the splinter which is in thine eye; when thou thyself beholdest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, first take the beam out of thine own eye, and then wilt thou see clearly to pull out the 43 splinter which is in thy brother's eye. For no good tree beareth corrupt fruit; nor 44 doth a corrupt tree bear good fruit. For every tree is known by its own fruit: for from thorns men do not gather figs, nor from a bramble bush do they cut grapes.
45 A good man, out of the good treasure of his heart, bringeth forth that which is good; and an evil man, out of the evil treasure of his heart, bringeth forth that which is evil: for out of the abundance of the heart his mouth speaketh.
46 And why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do
47 not the things which I say? Whosoever cometh to me, and heareth my sayings, and doeth them, I will show you to whom he is 48 like: He is like a man who built a house, and digged deep, and laid the foundation on a rock: and when the flood arose, the stream dashed vehemently upon that house, but could not shake it: for it was founded 49 upon a rock. But he that heareth, and doeth not, is like a man, who, without a foundation, built a house upon the earth; against which the stream dashed vehemently, and immediately it fell; and the ruin of that house was great.

CHAPTER VII.

A. D. 31. Christ healeth the centurion's servant; raiseth the widow's son at Nain; answereth John's messengers; upbraiddeth the Jews, and forgives a penitent woman.

1 Now when Jesus had ended all his sayings in the hearing of the people, he entered into Capernaum. And the servant of a certain centurion, who was dear to him, was sick, and ready to die. And having heard of Jesus, he sent to him the elders of the Jews, beseeching him that he would come and recover his servant. And when they came to Jesus, they intreated him earnestly, saying, He is worthy for whom thou wilt do this: For he regardeth our nation, and hath himself built us a synagogue. Then Jesus went with them. And when he was now not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to him, to say, Master, trouble not thyself: for I am not worthy that thou shouldst enter under my roof: Wherefore neither thought I myself worthy to come to thee: but command by word, and my servant will be healed. For I also, who am a man placed under authority, have soldiers under me, and I say to one, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it. When Jesus heard these words, he wondered at him; and turned about and said to the multitude that followed him, I say to you, I have not found so great faith, even in Israel. And they that were sent, returned to the house, and found the servant well that had been sick.

And it came to pass on the day after, that he went into a city called Nain; and many of his disciples went with him, and a great multitude. Now when he drew near to the gate of the city, behold there was a dead man carried out, the only son of his mother, and she was a widow: and many people of the city were with her. And when the Lord saw her, he had compassion on her, and said to her, Weep not. And he came and touched the bier: (and they that bore him stood still.) And he said, Young man, I say to thee, Arise. Then he that had been dead sat up, and began to speak. And he delivered him to his mother. And all were struck with fear: and they glorified God, saying, A great prophet is risen up among us; and, God hath visited his people.

in Mark iv. 24, one of reward, and more is promised than due. Here we have a retribution of superabundance. These differences were made by the Jewish rabbies. See Wetstein.

40. Every finished] Or perfected, having been fully instructed; one that has attained to a full knowledge of the gospel—shall be as his teacher, both in his sufferings and persecutions, and in sharing with him in his glory.

41, 42. And why beholdest] See Matt. vii. 3—5, and notes.

43, 44. For no good tree] Compare Matt. vii. 16—18; the 45th verse with Matt. xii. 33.

46—49. And why call ye me] Though the sentiment be the same as Matt. vii. 24—29, it is expressed with much more brevity, and the introductory remark is not noticed.

CHAP. VII. 2—10. A certain centurion] See Matt. viii. 5—13. Luke gives us several particulars which Matthew has not noticed, especially as to the person who applied to our Lord, and the manner in which they intreated him; while Matthew has related the reflections which our Lord made on this instance of a gentile believing. Matt. viii. 11—13, of which we see nothing here. See Matt. and notes.

11. A city called Nain] A town, two miles south of Mount Tabor, and not far from Endor, according to Eusebius.

12. A dead man carried out] The Jews always buried their dead without the cities, except those of the family of David.—Many people] Josephus informs us, that it was ordained, 'that whoever met a corpse, should attend it and join in the lamentation.' This was one of the traditions, which they regarded as a part of the law.

14. Young man] It has been noticed, that in the 12th verse and this, four circumstances are mentioned, more calculated to excite compassion, than the most laboured composition. The person dead was a son, an only son, his mother a widow, and he in the prime of his days.

16. God hath visited] In the manner he did their fathers; showing mercy and favour to them. Compare chap. i. 68. The report of this miracle spread in all directions.

17 And this report of Jesus went forth through all Judea, and through all the country round about.
 18 And the disciples of John told him of all these things. And John called to him two of his disciples, and sent them to Jesus, saying, Art thou he that cometh? or do we look for another? And when the men came to him, they said, John the Baptist hath sent us to thee, saying, Art thou he that cometh? or do we look for another?
 21 (Now in the same hour he had healed many of diseases and grievous maladies and of evil spirits; and to many that were blind he had kindly given sight.) Then Jesus answered and said to them, Go and tell John what things ye have seen and heard; that the blind receive sight, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor glad tidings are preached. And happy is he, whosoever shall not offend because of me.
 24 And when the messengers of John had departed, he said to the multitudes concerning John, What went ye out into the desert to behold? A reed shaken with the wind? But what went ye out to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? Behold, they who are gorgeously apparelled, and live delicately, are in palaces. But what went ye out to see? A prophet? Yea, I say to you, and much more than a prophet. This is he, of whom it is written, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, who shall prepare thy way before thee. For I say to you, Among those that are born of women there is not a greater prophet than John the Baptist: but he that is least in the kingdom of God is greater than he. And all the people and the publicans that heard him, justified God, having been baptized by John. But the Pharisees and teachers of the law rejected the counsel of God in regard to themselves, not having been baptized by him.
 31 To what then shall I liken the men of this generation? and to what are they like?
 32 They are like to children sitting in the market-place and calling one to another, and saying, We have played to you on the pipe, and ye have not danced; we have sung mournful songs to you, and ye have not wept, For John the Baptist came neither eating bread nor drinking wine; and ye say, He hath a demon. The Son of man hath come eating and drinking; and ye say, Behold a glutton, and a wine-bibber, a friend of publicans and sinners! But wisdom is justified by all her children.

Now one of the Pharisees asked Jesus to eat with him. And he went into the Pharisee's house, and placed himself at table. And, behold, a woman in the city, who had been a sinner, when she knew that Jesus was at meat in the Pharisee's house, brought an alabaster box of ointment, And stood behind at his feet weeping, and began to wash his feet with tears, and she wiped them with the hair of her head, and kissed his feet, and anointed them with the ointment. But when the Pharisee who had invited him saw it, he spoke within himself, saying, If this man were a prophet, he would have known who and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him; for she is a sinner. Then Jesus spoke and said to him, Simon, I have somewhat to say to thee. And he saith, Teacher, say on. There was a certain creditor who had two debtors: the one owed five hundred pence, and the other fifty. And as they had nothing wherewith to pay, he freely forgave them both. Tell me, therefore, which of them will love him most? Simon answered and said, I suppose that he, to whom he forgave most. And he said to him, Thou hast rightly judged. And he turned to the woman, and said to Simon, Seest thou this woman? I entered into thine house, thou gavest me no water for my feet: but she hath washed my feet with tears, and wiped them with the hair of her head. Thou gavest me no kiss: but this woman hath anointed my feet with ointment. Wherefore I say to thee, Her sins, which are many, have been forgiven; therefore she hath loved much: but to whom little is forgiven, the same loveth little.

19—23. Art thou he that] See Matt. xi. 3, and notes.
 24—28. Compare Matt. xi. 7—11.—Justified God] By confessing the justice of his threatenings against them for their sins; and his mercy in calling them to repentance; and the Scribes and Pharisees, by treating John with neglect, and refusing to repent, or to submit to his baptism, so far rejected the counsels of God in regard to themselves.
 31—33. To what shall I liken] Compare Matt. xi. 16—19.

37.—A woman in the city] Either of Nain or Capernaum; he former is the last-mentioned place. This is clearly a different incident from that related, Matt. xxvi. 7, &c.; Mark xiv. 3, and John xii. 3. The place, time, and circumstances, are all different.—A sinner] It is probable that she had been a heathen, a Gentile sinner; for the touch of a Jew, however sinful, would not have been objected to, as it is ver. 39. Nor was this woman Mary Magdalene. See note, chap. viii. 2.

38. Wash his feet] As the Jews wore no stockings, so it was usual, before they lay down on their couches, as they did when they ate, to wash their feet.

39. She is a sinner] Simon knew her general character, but did not know of her repentance and reformation.

41. 43. A certain creditor] By this similitude our Lord made Simon the judge of his conduct towards this woman, as well as stated the reason of it.

44—47. Seest thou this woman] In these verses we have described the usual ceremonies at the reception of guests.

48 Then he said to her, Thy sins are forgiven.
 49 And those that were at meat with him began to say within themselves, Who is this 50 that forgiveth sins also? And he said to the woman, Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace.

CHAPTER VIII.

A. D. 31. Women minister to Christ; he delivers the parable of the sower, and of the candle; rebuketh the winds, and cureth the demoniac who had the legion.

1 AND it came to pass afterward, that he went throughout every city and village, preaching and proclaiming the glad tidings of the kingdom of God: and the twelve
 2 were with him. And certain women who had been healed of evil spirits and infirmities; Mary called Magdalene, out of whom 3 had gone seven demons; And Joannah the wife of Chuza, Herod's steward, and Susannah, and many others, who ministered to him of their substance.
 4 And when a great multitude assembled and some out of every city came to him,
 5 he spoke by a parable; A sower went out to sow his seed: and as he sowed, some seed fell by the way-side; and it was trodden down, and the fowls of the air devoured it.
 6 And some fell upon rocky ground; and as soon as it had sprung up, it withered away,
 7 because it wanted moisture. And some fell among thorns; and the thorns grew up with it, and choked it. And some fell on good ground, and grew up, and yielded fruit a hundred-fold. And as he said these things, he cried out, He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.
 9 And his disciples asked him, saying,
 10 What may this parable be? And he said, Unto you it is given to know the secrets of the kingdom of God: but to others I speak in parables; so that seeing they may not see, and hearing they may not understand. Now the parable is this: The seed 12 is the word of God. And those seeds by the way-side are they that hear; but then

To bring water, to give the kiss of peace, and to anoint the head, were common. See Matt. vi. 17; xxvi. 49.

48. Then he said] Our Lord had shown that he knew the thoughts of Simon's heart, and as a prophet he might declare the pardon of this woman as a penitent; but he now assures her of the fact, 'Thy sins are forgiven.'

50. Thy faith hath] Some still thinking that Jesus assumed a prerogative which did not belong to him, he thus addressed the woman.

CHAP. VIII. 2. Certain women] These attended our Lord from motives of affection and gratitude for the blessings which he had bestowed. A few of the most distinguished Luke mentions.—Mary, called Magdalene] That is, Mary a native of Magdaia, see note, Matt. xv. 39.—Out of whom] From this it appears that Mary had not been, as some have believed, a prostitute; but is mentioned as one of those unhappy beings, possessed with demons, and to whose influence various infirmities and diseases were ascribed. Our Lord had cured her; and from what is said, she was a woman of property and honour, and is mentioned cometh the devil, and taketh away the word out of their hearts, lest they should believe and be saved. And those on the rocky 13 ground are they, who, when they have heard, receive the word with joy; and these have no root, but for a while believe, and in time of temptation fall away. And that 14 which fell among thorns are they, who, when they have heard, go forth, and are choked with the cares and riches and pleasures of this life, and bring forth no fruit to perfection. But that on the good ground 15 are they, who, having heard the word, keep it in an honest and good heart, and bring forth fruit with perseverance.

No man, when he hath lighted a lamp, 16 covereth it with a vessel, or putteth it under a couch; but setteth it on a stand, that they who enter in may see the light. For 17 nothing is hidden which shall not be made manifest; nor any thing secret which shall not be known and come abroad. Take 18 heed, therefore, how ye hear: for whosoever hath much, to him shall be given; and whosoever hath little, from him shall be taken even that which he indeed hath.

And his mother and his brethren came to 19 him, but could not gain access to him: because of the multitude. And it was told 20 him by some, who said, Thy mother and thy brethren stand without, desiring to see thee. And he answered and said to them, 21 My mother and my brethren are those that hear the word of God and do it.

Now it came to pass on a certain day, 22 that he went into a vessel with his disciples, and said to them, Let us pass over to the other side of the lake. And they 23 launched forth. But as they sailed he fell asleep: and a storm of wind came down on the lake; and they were filled with water, and were in danger. And they came near, 24 and awoke him, saying, Master, master, we perish. Then he arose, and rebuked the wind and the raging of the water, and they ceased, and there was a calm. And he said 25 before Joannah, the wife of Chuza, who must have been a person of rank. She showed our Lord every mark of respect in his life, at his death, and after it.

12. Those seeds by the way side] Seeds are supplied to remove all ambiguity; for it must be to the seeds which fell there, to which the article refers; and so in what follows.

15. With perseverance] In vindication of this sense of persevere the learned reader may consult Campbell's excellent note and Schleus.

16—18. No man when] These verses are given in a different order by Matthew. Comp. Matt. v. 15; x. 25; xiii. 12.

19—21. And his mother] Compare Matt. xii. 46—50, and notes there.

22—25. Now it came to pass] This is related by Matt. xviii. 21, &c.—Were filled] Some copies have, the ship was filling; but the figure Luke uses is common, the persons being put for things, they for the ship, in which they were.—Rebuked the wind] As the agitation of the sea was merely the effect of the wind, it was necessary to remove the cause before the effect would cease. Who could do this but God, to them, Where is your faith? And they feared and wondered, saying one to another, Who is this! for he commandeth even the winds and water, and they obey him.

- 26 And they arrived at the country of the Gadarenes, which is over against Galilee.
- 27 And when he had gone forth to land, there met him a certain man of the city, that had demons a long time, and wore no clothes, nor abode in any house, but in the tombs.
- 28 And when he saw Jesus, he cried out, and fell down before him, and said with a loud voice, What hast thou to do with me, Jesus, thou Son of the most high God? I intreat thee, torment me not. (For Jesus had commanded the unclean spirit to come out of the man. For it had often seized him; and he was kept bound with chains and in fetters; and he broke the bands, and was driven by the demon into desert places.)
- 30 And Jesus asked him, saying, What is thy name? And he said, Legion, (for many demons had entered into him.) And they besought him that he would not command them to go out into the deep pit. Now a herd of many swine was there, feeding on the mountain: and they besought him that he would suffer them to enter into them.
- 33 And he suffered them. Then the demons went out of the man, and entered into the swine: and the herd ran violently down a steep place into the lake, and were drowned.
- 34 And when those who kept them saw what was done, they fled, and told it in the city, and in the country. Then the people went out to see what had been done: and they came to Jesus, and found the man, out of whom the demons had departed, sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed, and in his right mind: and they were afraid. And those also that had seen it, told them in what manner the demoniac had been delivered.
- 37 Then the whole multitude of the country of the Gadarenes round about asked Jesus to depart from them; for they were seized with great fear, and he went up into the vessel, and returned.
- 38 Now the man, out of whom the demons had departed, intreated Jesus that he might be with him: but Jesus sent him away, saying, Return to thine own house, and tell how great things God hath done to thee. And he departed, and published throughout the whole city how great things Jesus had done to him.

or simply saying, 'Peace, be still!' See Mark iv. 39. This authoritative language reminds us of what Moses relates; 'God said, Let there be light, and there was light.'

26—40. Of the Gadarenes] Compare Matt. viii. 23—34; Mark v. 1—17, and notes.

41. Deep pit] Greek, abyss. In Mark, out of the country; but this might be added, and must denote some place of confinement or misery

And it came to pass, that, when Jesus returned, the people gladly received him: for they were all waiting for him. And, behold, there came a man named Jairus, who was a ruler of the synagogue; and he fell down at Jesus' feet, and besought him that he would come into his house: For he had an only daughter about twelve years of age, and she was dying. But as he went the people thronged him. And a woman, having an issue of blood twelve years, who had also spent all her substance on physicians, but could not be healed by any, came behind, and touched the border of his garment: and immediately her issue of blood stopped. And Jesus said, Who touched me? And when all denied, Peter, and those that were with him, said, Master, the multitude press and throng thee, and sayest thou, Who touched me? And Jesus said, Some one hath touched me; for I know that power hath gone from me. And when the woman saw that she was not concealed, she came trembling, and fell down before him, and declared to him before all the people for what cause she had touched him, and how she was immediately healed. And he said to her, Take courage, Daughter: thy faith hath made thee well; go in peace.

While he was yet speaking, there cometh one from the ruler of the synagogue's house saying to him, Thy daughter is dead; trouble not the Teacher. But when Jesus heard it, he spoke to the ruler, saying, Fear not: only believe, and she shall be made well. And when he came to the house, he suffered none to enter in, but Peter, and James, and John, and the father and the mother of the child. And all wept, and lamented her: but he said, Weep not; she is not dead, but sleepeth. And they derided him, knowing that she was dead. And he sent all out of the house, and took her by the hand, and spoke aloud, saying, Child, arise. And her spirit came again, and she forthwith arose: and he commanded that food should be given her. And her parents were astonished: but he charged them to tell no man what had been done.

CHAPTER IX.

A. D. 32. Christ sendeth his Apostles to preach; Herod desires to see him; he feedeth five thousand; foretelleth his passion; his transfiguration, and various miracles wrought.

Now Jesus called his twelve disciples

40—48. Jesus returned] To Capernaum, as appears from Matt. ix. 1, 18; Mark v. 22, &c.

49—56. Thy daughter is dead] Matt. ix. 23—26; Mark v. 35—43, and notes.—Her spirit came again] There is some ambiguity in the word πνεῦμα, as it may denote the breath, or the thinking, intelligent principle. But it is more natural to understand it of the spirit here; and so it will prove that this may exist when the body is dead.

together, and gave them power and authority over all demons, and to heal diseases.

- 2 And he sent them forth, to preach the kingdom of God, and to cure the sick.
- 3 And he said to them, Take nothing for your journey, neither staves, nor bag, nor bread, nor money, nor have two coats a-piece.
- 4 And into whatsoever house ye enter, there
- 5 abide, and thence depart. And whosoever will not receive you, when ye go out of that city, shake off the very dust from your feet
- 6 for a testimony unto them. And they departed, and went through the towns, preaching glad tidings, and healing every where.
- 7 Now Herod the tetrarch heard of all that had been done by him: and he was perplexed, because it was said by some, that
- 8 John was risen from the dead; And by some, that Elijah had appeared; and by others, that one of the old prophets was risen again.
- 9 And Herod said, John I have beheaded: but who is this, of whom I hear such things? And he desired to see Jesus.
- 10 And the apostles returned, and told Jesus all that they had done. And he took them, and withdrew privately to a desert place be-
- 11 longing to the city called, Bethsaida. And when the multitude knew it, they followed him: and he received them, and spake to them concerning the kingdom of God, and
- 12 cured those that had need of cure. And when the day was far spent, the twelve came near, and said to him, Send the multitude away, that they may go into the towns and country round about, and lodge, and get provision, for we are here in a desert place.
- 13 But he said to them, Give ye them food to eat. And they said, We have no more than five loaves and two fishes; unless we should go and buy food for all this people. For they were about five thousand men.
- 14 And he said to his disciples, Make them place themselves on the ground by fifties
- 15 in a company. And they did so, and made
- 16 them all place themselves. Then he took the five loaves and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, he blessed them, and broke, and gave them to the disciples to set before the multitude. And they all ate, 17 and were filled: and there was taken up of the fragments twelve large baskets full.

And it came to pass as he was apart 18 praying, his disciples only being with him, that he asked them, saying, Whom say the multitudes that I am? They answered and 19 said, John the Baptist; but some say, Elijah; and others, that one of the old prophets is risen again. And he said to them, 20 But whom say ye that I am? Then Peter answered and said, The Christ of God. And he strictly charged them, and com- 21 manded them to tell no man that thing; Saying, The Son of man must suffer many 22 things, and be rejected by the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be slain, and be raised the third day. And he said to 23 them all, If any man desire to come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross [daily] and follow me. For whoso- 24 ever desireth to save his life shall lose it: but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake, the same shall save it. For what is a man 25 profited, if he gain the whole world, and lose himself, or be cast away? For whosoever 26 shall be ashamed of me, and of my words, of him the Son of man will be ashamed, when he shall come in his glory, and in that of the Father, and of the holy angels. But I tell you truly, There are some of those 27 who stand here, who shall not taste of death, until they have seen the kingdom of God.

And it came to pass about eight days 28 after these words, that he took Peter and John and James, and went up a mountain to pray. And, while he prayed, the appear- 29 ance of his countenance was changed, and his raiment was white and glistening. And, 30 lo, there talked with him two men, who were Moses and Elijah: Who appeared in 31 glory, and spake of his decease which he was about to accomplish at Jerusalem. But 32 Peter and those that were with him were heavy with sleep: and when they awoke, they saw his glory, and the two men that stood with him. And as they were depart- 33 ing from him, Peter said to Jesus, Master, CHAP. IX. 1-6. His twelve disciples] See notes, Matt. x. 1-18; Mark vi. 7-11.

7-9. Now Herod] He was a tetrarch of Galilee, and Matthew has given us a full account of his treatment of John, and the cause of it, Matt. xiv. 1-12; Mark vi. 14-29.

10. Told Jesus all] Compare verse 6, and Mark vi. 30.

12-17. The twelve came near] See notes, Matt. xiv. 14-22.—Blessed them] He blessed, that is, prayed for a blessing on them, as one MS., one copy of the Latin, and Epiphanius read, ἐξ αὐτοῦ.

18. Apart praying] Luke has not given this inquiry in the order which both the preceding Evangelists have observed, nor has he related the circumstances. Compare Matt. xvi. 13, &c.; Mark viii. 27, &c.

19, 20. John the Baptist] See notes, Matt. xvi. 14-20.—Whom say ye that I am] Jesus did not ask their opinion respecting himself; but whom they declared him to the multitude to be. Did they preach him as the Christ? See note, Matt. xvi. 16.

23. Take up his cross] The common text has daily; but it is wanting, Matt. x. 36; xvi. 24; Mark viii. 34, and in many MSS. Griesbach retains it as probable.

24-26. Desireth to save] Compare Matt. x. 33-39; xvi. 25-28.

28-36. About eight days] See Matt. xvii. 1, &c.; Mark ix. 2, &c. Matthew says, six days after. Luke does not speak positively, saying about eight days after.

31. Appeared in glory] In the bright light called the Shechinah, which then appeared on the mount. See 2 Pet. i. 17. Bishop Porteus maintains that the transfiguration of our Lord was designed to show what will be his glory, when he comes to judge the world; and is recorded as a specimen of it is good for us to be here : and let us make three booths : one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah : not knowing what he said. And while he thus spoke, a cloud came and surrounded them : and they feared, as those entered into the cloud. And there came a voice out of the cloud, saying, This is my beloved Son : hear him. And when the voice was past, Jesus was found alone. And they were silent, and told no man in those days any of those things which they had seen.

And it came to pass that, on the next day, when they had come down from the mountain, a great multitude met him. And, behold, a man of the multitude cried out, saying, Teacher, I beseech thee, look upon my son : for he is mine only child. And, lo, a spirit taketh him, and he suddenly crieth out ; and it convulseth him so that he foameth again, and bruising him hardly departeth from him. And I besought thy disciples to cast it out ; and they could not. And Jesus answered and said, O unbelieving and perverse race, how long shall I be with you and endure you ? Bring thy son hither. And as he was now coming near, the demon dashed him on the ground and convulsed him. Then Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit, and cured the child, and delivered him to his father. And they were all amazed at the mighty power of God.

But while all wondered at all things which Jesus did, he said to his disciples, Mark diligently these words, The Son of man is about to be delivered up into the hands of men. But they understood not this matter, and it was hidden from them, so that they did not perceive it : and they feared to ask him of this matter.

Then there arose a reasoning among them, which of them should be greatest. And Jesus, perceiving the thought of their heart, took a little child, whom he set by him ; and said to them, Whosoever shall receive this little child in my name receiveth me : and whosoever shall receive me receiveth him that sent me : for he that is least among you all, the same shall be great.

Then John spoke and said, Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy name, and we forbid him, because he followeth not with us. And Jesus said to him, Forbid him not : for he that is not against us is for us.

Now it came to pass, when the days were fulfilled that he should be received up, that he stedfastly resolved to go to Jerusalem ; And sent messengers before him : and they went and entered into a town of the Samaritans, to make ready for him : But they did not receive him, because he was going up to Jerusalem. And when his disciples, James and John, saw this, they said, Master, wilt thou that we command fire to come down from heaven, and consume them, even as Elijah did ? But he turned, and rebuked them, and said, Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of. For the Son of man is come, not to destroy men's lives, but to save them. Then they went to another town.

And it came to pass, as they were going on the way, that a certain man said to him, Master, I will follow thee wheresoever thou goest. And Jesus said to him, The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have roosts ; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head. And he said to another, Follow me. But he said, Master, suffer me first to go and bury my father. And Jesus said to him, Let the dead bury their dead ; but go thou and proclaim the kingdom of God. And another also said, Master, I will follow thee ; but suffer me first to bid those farewell, who are in my house. And Jesus said to him, No man, that hath put his hand to the plough, and looketh back, is fit for the kingdom of God.

what will be the glory of all the saints, when mortality is swallowed up of life. See his 15th lecture.

33. Not knowing] He was so confused by the appearance of Moses and Elijah, and the conversation which he heard, that he did not consider what he said.

34. And they feared] This signifies that Peter, James, and John feared, or were struck with awe, when they saw Moses and Elijah enter the cloud of glory.

36. Told no man] The three apostles were charged not to make this known till after the resurrection. See Matt. xvi. 9 ; Mark ix. 9.

39. And, lo, a spirit taketh] Matthew tells us that he was a lunatic, chap. xvii. 15 ; and Mark, that he had a dumb spirit, chap. ix. 16, &c. The symptoms are all those of a person subject to epileptic fits.

41. Mark diligently] So the Geneva version, which gives the sense of the idiom more clearly than the literal version.

43. This little child] To receive a child in his name, must mean to receive it as belonging to him ; for of such is his kingdom. They form a part of his flock ; and those disciples, who are unambitious and humble as children, shall be accounted greatest.

49. Master, we] See Matt. xii. 30, and Mark ix. 38—40, and notes.

51. Received up] Into heaven : which assumption was to be preceded by his crucifixion.—Resolved to go] Greek, 'set his face,' which is a Hebrew idiom to denote a firm and fixed resolution. See Sept. 2 Kings xii. 17 ; Jerem. xxi. 10 ; Ezek. xiv. 8. In the 53rd verse, 'his face was as though' is a like Hebrew idiom, for 'he' or for 'person.'

53. Because he was] Compare John iv. 9. The Samaritans were more than usually unkind to the Jews, when they were going up to Jerusalem to any of the feasts, because they contended, that they ought to be kept at their temple on mount Gerizim.

54—56. James and John, saw this] They were greatly provoked, and desired to punish severely this conduct of the Samaritans. See 1 Kings i. 10, &c. The answer of our Lord shows that he did not approve of their temper. For the sentiment, compare John iii. 17, and xii. 47.

57—60. Master, I will follow] Compare Matthew viii. 18—22.

62. Jesus said] This seems to be a proverbial saying, to denote inconstancy, a person beginning but not persevering

CHAPTER X.

A. D. 32. Christ the door, and the good shepherd; various opinions respecting him; he proves by his works that he is the Messiah, &c.

- 1 Now after these things, the Lord appointed seventy others also, and sent them two and two before him, into every city and place, whither he himself intended to come.
- 2 He said therefore to them, The harvest indeed is great, but the labourers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth labourers into his
- 3 harvest. Depart: behold, I send you forth as
- 4 lambs amidst wolves. Carry neither purse, nor bag, nor shoes: and salute no man by
- 5 the way. And into whatsoever house ye enter, say first, Peace be to this house.
- 6 And if a son of peace be there, your peace shall rest upon it: if not, it shall turn back
- 7 to yourselves. And remain in the same house, eating and drinking such things as they give: for the labourer is worthy of
- 8 his hire. Go not from house to house. And into whatsoever city ye enter, and they receive you, eat such things as are set before you; and cure the sick that are there-
- 9 in, and say to them, The kingdom of God draweth near to you. But into whatsoever
- 10 city ye enter, and they receive you not, go forth into the streets of it, and say,
- 11 Even the very dust which cleaveth to us from your city, we wipe off against you: notwithstanding know this, that the king-
- 12 dom of God draweth near to you. But I say to you, That it shall be more tolerable in the last day for Sodom, than for that city.
- 13 Alas for thee, Chorazin! alas for thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty works which have been done in you, had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago, sitting in sackcloth and ashes.
- 14 But it shall be more tolerable for Tyre and
- 15 Sidon at the judgment, than for you. And thou, Capernaum, which art exalted to the in what he undertakes. Such a one was not fit to be employed as a minister in the gospel.

CHAP. X. 1. Seventy others also] Luke is the only Evangelist who has mentioned the seventy. Nor are they expressly named in the Acts. We find, that on the ascension of our Lord, the apostles met in an upper chamber, and that in a little while after Peter stood up and addressed the disciples, who were about 'a hundred and twenty;' and it is probable, that among these were the seventy. It was upon these that the Holy Spirit came on the day of Pentecost, Acts i. 13, 15; ii. 1. Some have supposed Luke and Mark were two of the seventy.

2. The harvest is] Compare Matt. ix. 37. Many were ready to hear the gospel, but there were few to preach unto them.

3. As lambs amidst] See Matt. x. 16. Pearce supposed that our Lord referred to the treatment they would receive after his death.

4. Salute no man] This expresses either that they were to use the greatest diligence in fulfilling the ministry committed to them. 2 Kings iv. 29; or that they were to address no Gentile or Samaritan, Matt. x. 5.

heavens, shalt be brought down to hades.

He that heareth you heareth me; and he that despiseth you despiseth me; and he that despiseth me despiseth him that sent me

And the seventy returned with joy, saying, Master, even the demons are subject to us through thy name. And he said to them, I beheld Satan fall like lightning from heaven. Behold I give you power to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the strength of the enemy; and nothing shall by any means hurt you. Notwithstanding, in this rejoice not, that the spirits are subject to you; but rather rejoice that your names are written in heaven.

In that hour Jesus rejoiced in spirit, and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that, having hidden these things from the wise and understanding, thou hast revealed them to babes: even so, Father, for thus it hath seemed good in thy sight. All things have been delivered to me by my Father: and no one knoweth who the Son is, but the Father; and who the Father is, but the Son, and he to whom the Son chooseth to reveal him.

And he turned to his disciples, and said privately, Blessed are the eyes which see the things that ye see: For I tell you, that many prophets and kings have desired to see the things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear the things which ye hear, and have not heard them.

And behold, a certain teacher of the law rose up, tempting him and saying, Teacher, what shall I do to inherit eternal life? Jesus said to him, What is written in the law? how readest thou? And he answered and said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbour as thyself. Then Jesus said to him, Thou hast answered rightly; do this, and thou shalt live. But he, desiring to justify himself, said to Jesus,

5—12. House ye enter] Compare Matt. x. 11, 15.—Son of peace] One worthy of your salutation. In the Hebrew idiom, a man who has any good or bad quality, is called the son of it, as here 'son of peace.' Wise men are the 'children of wisdom,' Matt. xi. 19; Luke vii. 35. In like manner, what a man is doomed to, he is called the son of, as Eph. ii. 3, 'children of wrath,' John xvii. 12. Judas is called 'son of perdition,' 2 Thess. ii. 3.

13—16. Alas for thee, Chorazin] See note, Matthew xi. 21—23.

19. I give you power] Compare Mark xvi. 17, 18, and Pet. v. 8; Matt. xiii. 39.

24. For I tell you, that] Compare Matt. xiii. 17, and 1 Pet. i. 10—12.

25. What shall I do] It is probable that this teacher of the law put the question, not to receive instruction, but to try the knowledge of our Lord.

28. Do this, and thou] Do it perfectly, and thou wilt have a legal claim to life.

29. To justify himself] To prove that he understood his duty, and had done it, said, 'Who is my neighbour?'

30 And who is my neighbour? And Jesus answered and said, A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell among robbers, who stripped him of his raiment, and wounded him, and departed, leaving him half dead. And by chance a certain priest came down that way: and when he saw him, he passed by on the other side. In like manner a Levite, when he had come to the place, looked on him, and passed by on the other side. But a certain Samaritan, as he journeyed, came where he was, and when he saw him, he had compassion; And went to him, and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine; and he set him on his own beast, and brought him to an inn, and took care of him. And on the morrow, when he departed, he took out two denarii, and gave them to the host, and said to him, Take care of him; and whatsoever thou spendest more, when I come again, I will repay thee. Which now of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbour to him that fell among the robbers? And he said, He that showed mercy to him. Then said Jesus to him, Go, and do thou in like manner.

35 Now it came to pass, as they journeyed, that he entered into a certain town; and a certain woman named Martha received him into her house. And she had a sister called Mary, who also sat at the feet of Jesus, and heard his words. But Martha was cumbered by much attendance, and came to him, and said, Master, carest thou not that my sister hath left me to attend alone? command, therefore, that she help me. And Jesus answered and said to her, Martha, Martha, thou art anxious and troubled about many things: But one thing is needful: and Mary hath chosen that good part which shall not be taken away from her.

CHAPTER XI.

A. D. 33. Christ teacheth to pray; casteth out a demon and rebuketh the Pharisees; he denounceth who are blessed, and denounceth the hypocrisy of the Scribes and Pharisees.

AND it came to pass, that, as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said to him, Master, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples. And he said to them, When ye pray, say, Our Father, Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Give us day by day food sufficient for us. And forgive us our sins: for we also forgive every one who trespasseth against us. And bring us not into temptation. And he said to them, Which of you shall have a friend, and shall go to him at midnight, and say to him, Friend, lend me three loaves; For a friend of mine on his journey is come to me, and I have nothing to set before him; And he from within shall answer and say, Trouble me not: the door is now shut, and I and my children are in bed; I cannot rise and give thee. I say to you, Though he will not rise and give him, because he is his friend, yet because of his importunity he will rise and give him as many as he needeth. And I say to you, Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened to you. For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened. Now if a son shall ask bread from any of you that is a father, will he give him a stone? or if he shall ask a fish, will he for a fish give him a serpent? Or if he shall ask an egg, will he offer him a scorpion? If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts to your children; how much 30—32. Went down from Jerusalem] The road from Jerusalem to Jericho lay through a desert, according to Jerom, and was much infested with robbers. Hence the scene of the parable is natural; and it is not improbable that the incidents were taken from real actions. The priest and the Levite displayed an unfeeling heart, especially towards one of their own nation.

33—35. A certain Samaritan] Our Lord mentions the people to whom this kind man belonged, to heighten his compassion. The Samaritan did not regard the national prejudice. He saw a man wounded and ready to die, and he felt and acted as every one should do.—Oil and wine] These he would have with him for his own use; and the ancients applied both to wounds as medicinal. Taking him to the inn, and leaving him under proper care, and promising to pay the host, completes this character.

37. Go, and do thou in like] Instead of regarding a person of another nation or religion as a neighbour, it is probable that the scribe thought he was only to esteem the Jews as such. Hence the direction of our Lord.

38. A certain town] This was Bethany, John xi. 18, and xii. 2. Doddridge supposes that our Lord was returning from the feast of tabernacles, and going to pay his last visit to Galilee, when this occurred.

40. Master, carest thou not] Martha was busy in preparing for, and attending on, her guests, and seems much out of temper that her sister did not assist her. The reply of Jesus is an apology for Mary.

42. But one thing] Pearce and others confine this to one dish, a sense which our Lord never intended. The next clause explains this; and the one thing was no other than the good part which Mary had chosen.

CHAP. XI. 1. Master, teach us] That our Lord must often have given his disciples instruction respecting both the matter and form of prayer before now, can scarcely be doubted; and the opinion of Mede, who supposes that it was the custom of the Jewish teachers, to teach their disciples some short form of prayer, as a badge of discipleship, is now generally admitted. The prayer here is abridged from that delivered in our Lord's sermon on the mount, Matt. vi. 9, &c.; and from this, and what follows, it is certain that our Lord repeated the same truths on different occasions.

2—4. (a) Who art in heaven. Thy will be done as in heaven, so in earth. But deliver us from evil.—Griesb.

5—13. W huch of you] This, and what follows, is intended to show the prevalence of prayer with God, by showing its prevalence with man, Matt. vii. 7, &c.

12. A scorpion] There is a general resemblance between the body of a white scorpion and an egg, as there is between the objects mentioned in the foregoing verse. See Buchart.

more will your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him ?

14 And he was casting out a demon, and it was dumb. And it came to pass, when the demon had gone out, that the dumb spoke ;

15 and the people wondered. But some of them said, He casteth out the demons through Beelzebub the prince of the demons. (And others, tempting him, sought

16 of him a sign from heaven.) But he, knowing their thoughts, said to them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation ; and a house divided

17 against itself falleth. If Satan also be divided against himself, how can his kingdom stand ? because ye say that I cast out

18 the demons through Beelzebub. And if I by Beelzebub cast out the demons, by 19 whom do your sons cast them out ? Wherefore they shall be your judges. But if I by the finger of God cast out demons, then

20 hath the kingdom of God suddenly come to you. When a strong man armed guardeth

21 his habitation, his goods are in peace : But when a stronger than he shall come upon him, and overcome him, he taketh from him all his armour in which he trusted,

22 and divideth his spoils. He that is not with me is against me ; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth.

23

24 When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he passeth through dry places, seeking rest ; and finding none, he saith, I will return to my house whence I came out.

25 And when he cometh, he findeth it swept

26 and garnished. Then he goeth and taketh to him seven other spirits more wicked than himself ; and they enter in and dwell there ; and the last state of that man is worse than the first.

27 And it came to pass, as he spoke these things, that a certain woman of the company raised her voice, and said to him, Happy is the womb that bare thee, and the 28 breasts which thou hast sucked. But he said, Yea rather, happy are they that hear the word of God, and keep it.

29 And when the multitude were gathered together about him, he began to say, This is an evil generation : they seek a sign ; and there shall no sign be given it, but the 30 sign of the prophet Jonah. For as Jonah was a sign to the Ninevites, so shall also the Son of man be to this generation. The 31 queen of the south will rise up in the judgment with the men of this generation, and will condemn them : because she came from the utmost parts of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon ; and, behold, a greater than Solomon is here. The men of Nine-

32 veh will rise up in the judgment with this generation, and will condemn it ; because they repented at the preaching of Jonah ; and, behold, a greater than Jonah is here.

No man, when he hath lighted a lamp, putteth it in a secret place, or under a measure, but on a stand, that they who come in may see the light. The eye is the 33 lamp of the body : when therefore thine eye is clear, thy whole body also will be full of light ; but when thine eye is dim, thy body also is full of darkness. Take heed

35 therefore that the light which is in thee, be not darkness. If thy whole body therefore 36 be full of light, having no part dark, the whole will be full of light, as when a lamp by its brightness giveth light unto thee.

And as he spoke, a certain Pharisee asked him to dine with him : and he went in, and placed himself at table. And when 37 the Pharisee saw that he had not first washed before dinner, he wondered. Then

38 the Master said to him, Now ye Pharisees make clean the outside of the cup and of the dish ; but your inward part is full of rapine and wickedness. Foolish men ! did

39 not he that made the outside, make the inside also ? But rather give in alms such

40 things as ye have ; and, behold, all things are clean unto you. But alas for you

41 Pharisees ! for ye pay tithe of mint and rue and all manner of herbs, and pass over justice and the love of God : now these ought

42 ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone. Alas for you, Pharisees ! for ye

43 love the chief seats in the synagogues, and salutations in the markets. Alas for you !

44 for ye are as graves which appear not, and the men that walk over them know it not.

Then answered one of the teachers of the law, and said to him, Teacher, thus saying, thou reproachest us also. And he said,

45 Alas for you teachers of the law also ! for ye laide men with burdens hard to be borne,

14. Casting out a demon] Compare Matt. ix. 32, and xii. 22, &c.

15—23. Through Beelzebub] See notes, Matt. xii. 24—30.

24—25. The unclean spirit] See Matt. xii. 43—45, and note there. Matthew adds what explains this paragraph, ' Even so shall it be with this generation.' See 2 Pet. ii. 20.

28. Yea rather, happy] This noble sentiment at once cuts up the vain opinion of the right of Mary to receive adoration as the catholics pretend.

29—32. This is an evil] See Matt. xii. 39—43, and notes.

33—36. No man, when] Compare Matt. v. 15, and vi. 22, 23, and notes.

37, 38. To dine with him] The Jews made but two meals on a day. Their first meal was about twelve at noon, which was that to which our Lord was now invited. Their chief meal was their supper, when the heat of the day was over.—First washed] See note on Mark vii. 2, &c.

39—53. Make clean the outside] This paragraph, though containing the same truths as Matt. xxiii. 23, &c. yet they were delivered on a different occasion, and are mingled with truths and sentiments not expressed there. See notes, Matt. xxiii. 23, &c.—44. (o) Scribes and Pharisees.—Griesh.

and ye yourselves touch not the burdens 47 with one of your fingers. Alas for you ! for ye build the sepulchres of the prophets, and 48 your fathers killed them. Truly ye bear witness that ye consent to the deeds of your fathers ; for they indeed killed them, 49 and ye build their sepulchres. Wherefore the wisdom of God saith, I will send them prophets and apostles ; and some of them 50 they will kill, and persecute others : So that the blood of all the prophets, which hath been shed from the foundation of the world, 51 will be required of this generation ; From the blood of Abel to the blood of Zechariah, who perished between the altar and the temple : verily I say to you, it will be 52 required of this generation. Alas for you teachers of the law ! for ye have taken away the key of knowledge : ye have not entered in yourselves, and them that were 53 entering in ye have hindered. And as he said these things to them, the Scribes and the Pharisees began to be greatly incensed, and to provoke him to speak of many things ; 54 Laying wait for him, and seeking to catch something out of his mouth, that they might accuse him.

CHAPTER XII.

A. D. 33. Christ cautions his disciples to avoid hypocrisy and the fear of man ; to beware of covetousness ; and over-carefulness ; the wise and faithful steward, &c.

1 ABOUT the same time, when many thousands of the multitude were gathered together, insomuch that they trode upon one another, he began to say to his disciples,
 First of all, beware of the leaven of the 2 Pharisees, which is hypocrisy. For there is nothing covered, which shall not be revealed ; or hidden, which shall not be 3 known. Whatsoever things therefore ye have said in darkness shall be heard in the light ;
 and that which ye have spoken in the ear in closets shall be proclaimed upon the house-tops.
 4 And I say to you my friends, Fear not those who kill the body, and afterwards 5 have no more which they can do. But I will warn you whom ye shall fear : Fear him, who, after he hath killed, hath power to cast into hell ; yea, I say to you, Fear him. Are 6 not five sparrows sold for two farthings ?

 and not one of them is forgotten before God : Yea, even the very hairs of your head 7 are all numbered. Fear not therefore ; ye are of more value than many sparrows.

Also I say to you, Whosoever shall con- 8
 fess me before men, him the Son of man will also confess before the angels of God :
 But he that denieth me before men shall be 9 denied before the angels of God. And 10 whosoever shall speak a word against the Son of man, it may be forgiven him : but to him who blasphemeth against the Holy Spirit it shall not be forgiven.

And when ye are brought before syna- 11 gogues, and magistrates, and rulers, be not anxious how or what ye shall speak in defence, or what ye shall say : For the Holy 12 Spirit shall teach you in that same hour what ye ought to say.

And one of the multitude said to him, 13
 Teacher, speak to my brother, that he divide the inheritance with me. And he said 14 to him, Man, who made me a judge or a divider over you ? And he said to them, Take 15 heed, and beware of covetousness ; for whatever abundance a man may have, his life dependeth not on his possessions. And he 16 spoke a parable to them, saying, The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully : And he thought within himself, say- 17
 ing, What shall I do, because I have no room where to store my produce ? And he 18 said, This I will do ; I will pull down my barns, and build greater ; and there will I store all my produce and my goods. And 19
 I will say to my soul, Soul, thou hast many goods laid up for many years ; take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry. But God 20 said to him, Thou foolish man, this night thy soul shall be required of thee : then whose shall those things be which thou hast provided ? So is he that layeth up treasure 21 for himself, and is not rich towards God.

Then he said to his disciples, Therefore 22

49. The wisdom of God] It is probable that these are the words of our Lord, who so calls himself, as Paul does, 1 Cor. i. 24. In this view Luke agrees with Matthew, who makes Jesus say, ' I will send you prophets, ' &c.

52. Have taken away] They had mistaken, and wilfully perverted the word of God, giving a wrong sense to passages which related to the person and kingdom of Messiah, and so did not enter in themselves, but even hindered others.

CHAP. XII. 1. To his disciples] In opposition to the multitude who had flocked to hear him.

2, 3. Nothing covered] The words are here used in an extensive sense, as an argument against hypocrisy ; where- as, Matt. x. 26 ; Mark iv. 22 ; Luke viii. 17, they are restricted to our Lord's doctrine. In those places it is, ' What I tell you ; ' here, ' Whatsoever ye have said.'

4, 5. Fear not those] See note, Matt. x. 28.

6, 7. Five sparrows] Matthew has two : but this was delivered at a different time. Compare Matt. x. 29-31.

8-10. Shall confess] Matt. x. 32, 33 ; xii. 31 ; Mark iii. 28, 29.

11, 12. Ye are brought] When the third person active is used, the nominative men being understood, the sense is better conveyed by the second passive, as here and in other instances.—Magistrates, and rulers] Or principalities and powers ; but the former is more definite.

14. Made me a judge] In a case of the kind referred to, an appeal must be made to the proper authority, and a decision of judgment passed before a division could be made.

15. For whatever abundance] So Campbell. A man's possessions cannot lengthen his life, as the parable makes clear.

16-21. Thy soul] That is, his life, and with that his spirit, which must return to God to receive its reward.—It

I say to you, Be not anxious for your life, what ye shall eat; nor for the body, with 23 what ye shall be clothed. The life is more than food, and the body than clothing.
 24 Consider the ravens; for they neither sow nor reap; they have neither storehouse nor barn, and yet God feedeth them: how 25 much better are ye than those birds! Now which of you by being anxious can add one 26 cubit to his stature? If therefore ye be not able to do even that which is least, why 27 are ye anxious for the rest? Consider how the lilies grow. They toil not nor spin; and yet I say to you, that Solomon in all 28 his glory was not arrayed like one of these.
 29 If God then so clothe the herb, which is to day in the field, and to-morrow is cast into the oven; how much more will he clothe 30 you, O ye of little faith? Wherefore seek not what ye shall eat, or what ye shall 31 drink, nor live in restless suspense. For all these things do the nations of the world seek; and your Father knoweth that ye 32 have need of these things. But rather seek ye the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added unto you.
 33 Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the 34 kingdom. Sell your goods, and give alms; provide yourselves bags which grow not old, a treasure that faileth not in the heavens, where no thief approacheth, nor moth 35 corrupteth. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.
 36 Let your loins be girded about, and your lamps burning; And ye yourselves like men waiting for their master when he shall return from the wedding; that when he cometh and knocketh, they may instantly
 37 open to him. Happy are those servants, whom their master when he cometh shall find watching. Verily I say to you, that he will gird himself, and make them place themselves at table, and will come and 38 serve them. And if he shall come in the second watch, or come in the third watch, and find them doing thus, happy are those 39 servants. Now ye know this, that if an householder had known at what hour the thief would come, he would have watched, and not have suffered him to break into his house. Wherefore be ye also ready; for, 40 at an hour when ye think not, the Son of man cometh.

Then Peter said to him, Master, speak- 41 est thou this parable to us, or to all likewise? And the Master said, Who now is 42 the faithful and wise steward, whom his master will place over his household, to give them their portion of food in due season? Happy is that servant, whom his mas- 43 ter, when he cometh, shall find doing thus. In truth I say to you, that he will place 44 him over all that he hath. But if that ser- 45 vant say in his heart, My master delayeth his coming; and begin to beat the men-servants and maid-servants, and to eat and drink, and be drunken; The master of that 46 servant will come in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an hour of which he is not aware, and will cut him off, and will appoint him his portion with the unfaithful. And that servant, who knew his mas- 47 ter's will, and prepared not himself, nor did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes. But he that knew it not, and 48 committed things worthy of stripes, shall be beaten with few stripes. For to whomsoever much hath been given, of him much shall be required: and to whom men have trusted much, of him they will ask the more.

I came to send fire on the earth; and 49 what do I desire, but that it were kindled? But I have a baptism to be baptized with; 50 and how am I straitened till it be accomplished! Suppose ye that I came to spread 51 peace on earth? I tell you, No; but rather division. For henceforth five in one house 52 will be divided, three against two, and two against three. The father will be divided 53 against the son, and the son against the father; the mother against the daughter, and the daughter against the mother; the mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law, and the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law.

not rich towards God] So foolish are they who are heaping up riches at the expense of their salvation.

22—31. Be not anxious] Compare Matt. vi. 26—33, and notes.

29. Nor live in restless] This is the sense now most generally attributed to the text; and nothing can be more afflicting than to live in such a state.

32. Little flock] So they were then, and so they are still, when compared with the world.—To give you the] To make you members of the kingdom set up by the gospel, and heirs of the heavenly one.

33. Sell your goods] It is manifest that this precept must be confined to the times when it was given; and might respect the apostles more particularly. See Matthew vi. 19, &c.

35—53. Let your loins be] As servants, be ever ready for duty. The substance of what is said here is found,

Matt. xxiv. 44—51.—Lamps burning] The Jewish weddings were celebrated by night.

37. He will gird himself] He will honour such faithful and diligent servants, and in some degree become their equal.

47, 48. Knew his master's will] He who offends knowingly and wilfully, deserves more stripes than he who does it ignorantly, Levit. v. 17, and 1 Tim. i. 13.

49. I came to send fire] The fire of persecution; the same sentiment as Matt. x. 34. The connexion is, there is need of watchfulness and preparation; for divisions and persecutions will arise in consequence of the gospel.—And what do I desire] The sense is, since the knowledge and the advancement of true religion is the greatest blessing to men, though attended with many unhappy divisions, I long that they may take place, and that I may be the first victim, For I have a baptism, &c.

54 And he said to the multitude also, When ye see the cloud rising out of the west, immediately ye say, There cometh a shower; and so it is. And when the south wind bloweth, ye say, There will be heat; and so it cometh to pass. Ye hypocrites, ye can discern the appearance of the sky and of the earth; but how is it that ye do not discern this time? And why even of yourselves judge ye not what is right? When thou goest with thine adversary to the magistrate, while thou art on the way, use thy endeavour to satisfy him, lest he drag thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee up to the officer, and the officer cast thee into prison. I say to thee, thou shalt not depart thence, till thou have paid the very last mite.

CHAPTER XIII.

A. D. 33. Christ preacheth repentance; the useless fig-tree must not stand; he restoreth the crooked woman; parable of the grain of mustard seed; he reproveth Herod and laments over Jerusalem.

- 1 Now there were present at that season some that told Jesus of the Galileans, whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices. And Jesus answered and said to them, Suppose ye that these Galileans were sinners above all the Galileans, because they suffered such things? I say to you, No; but, unless ye repent, ye will all perish in like manner. Or those eighteen, upon whom the tower in Siloam fell, and killed them; think ye that they were transgressors above all men that dwelt in Jerusalem? I say to you, No; but, unless ye repent, ye will all perish in like manner.
- 6 He spoke also this parable: a certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard; and he came and sought fruit thereon, and found none. Then he said to the dresser of his vineyard, Behold, these three years I come seeking fruit on this fig tree, and find none: cut it down; why should it encumber the ground? And he answered and said to him, Sir, let it alone this year also, till I shall dig about it, and dung it: And if it bear fruit, well; but if not, afterwards thou mayest cut it down.

Now he was teaching in one of the synagogues on the sabbath. And, behold, there was a woman who had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wise raise herself up. And when Jesus saw her, he called her to him, and said to her, Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmity. And he put his hands on her; and immediately she was made straight, and glorified God. And the ruler of the synagogue spoke, being moved with indignation, because Jesus had healed on the sabbath, and said to the multitude, There are six days in which men ought to work; in them therefore come and be healed, and not on the sabbath day. The Lord then answered him, and said, Ye hypocrites, doth not each one of you on the sabbath loose his ox or his ass from the manger, and lead him away to water? And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound, lo, these eighteen years, be loosed from this bond on the sabbath day? And as he said these things, all his adversaries were ashamed; but all the multitude rejoiced for all the glorious things done by him.

He said also, To what is the kingdom of God like? and to what shall I resemble it? It is like a grain of mustard seed which a man took and put into his garden; and it grew, and became a great tree; and the fowls of the air lodged in its branches. And again he said, To what shall I liken the kingdom of God? It is like leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened.

And he went through the cities and towns, teaching, and journeying towards Jerusalem. Then one said to him, Master, 23

54—55. Ye see the cloud] Compare Matt. xvi. 2, &c. Middleton very justly observes, that a cloud rising out of the sea was a prognostic of rain, 1 Kings xviii. 44. The sea lay westward of Judea. Hence the cloud was a well-known phenomenon, portending rain.

58. Great with thine] See Matt. v. 23, &c.—Use thy endeavour] See Campbell.

CHAP. XIII. 1. Whose blood Pilate] These must have been some real or supposed enemies to the Romans. Pilate had commanded them to be slain while the priests were sacrificing.

3. Perish in like manner] Our Lord was addressing the Jews, who, without repentance, would soon be given up to be destroyed by the Romans, and who would perish in a still more awful sense.

6—9. A fig tree planted] This parable is clearly designed to represent our Lord's ministry among the Jews. For three years the owner had come seeking fruit, but had found none; and still, on the intercession of the vine-dresser, he spared it another year. So, after the fourth year of public labour, they completed the measure of their sin in cutting off the Lord Jesus; and as a nation and church the Jews were no longer to be regarded as the vineyard of God.

11. A spirit of infirmity] An infirmity supposed to be inflicted by an evil spirit or demon, or Satan, as in ver. 16. This mode of speaking, some think arose from what is said of Job, chap. i. 2.

15. Ye hypocrites] Our Lord's address is not only to the ruler, but to all those who approved of his doctrine respecting the observance of the sabbath.

17. The multitude] The common people, uninfluenced by opinion, perceived more clearly the force and pertinency of our Lord's replies on various occasions, than the Jewish rulers and teachers.

18—21. To what is the kingdom] Compare Matt. xiii. 31—33. These parables were now repeated.—Mustard seed] Mr. Frost has stated strong reasons against the commonly received signification of snail, and he contends that it means the phytolaacca which abounds in Judea. It has the smallest seed of any tree in that country; and is used as a culinary vegetable. It grows to a large size and a great height.

are there few who will be saved? And he 24 said to them, Strive to enter in by the strait gate: for many, I say to you, will seek to 25 enter in, and will not be able. When once the master of the house hath risen up, and hath shut the door, and ye stand without,
 and knock at the door, saying, Master, Master, open to us; but he will answer and say to you, I know not whence ye are, 26 Then ye will say, We have eaten and drunk in thy presence, and thou hast taught in 27 our streets. But he will say, I tell you, I know not whence ye are; depart from 28 me, all ye workers of iniquity. There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrust out.
 29 And men shall come from the east and west, and from the north and south, and shall be guests in the kingdom of God.
 30 And, behold, there are last who will be first, and there are first who will be last.
 31 On the same day some of the Pharisees came near, saying to him, Go forth, and depart hence; for Herod desireth to kill 32 thee. And he said to them, Go and tell that fox, Behold I shall cast out demons, and I shall work cures to-day and to-33 morrow, and the third day I shall be perfected. However, I must walk about today, and to-morrow, and the day following; for it cannot be that a prophet perish out of 34 Jerusalem. O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, that killest the prophets, and stonest those that are sent to thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen doth gather her brood under her wings!
 35 but ye would not! Behold, your house is left to you desolate; for verily I say to you, Ye shall not see me, until the time come when ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.

CHAPTER XIV.

A.D. 33. Christ cureth a dropsical person and teacheth humility; the parable of the great supper; his disciples must bear their cross, &c.

1 And it came to pass, when Jesus had

23, 24. Are there few who] This question arose from curiosity; but our Lord took occasion to admonish and direct his hearers as to what was their duty, Matt. vii. 13.

25. When once the master] Something similar to this occurs, Matt. vii. 22, 23; xxv. 10—12.—I know not whence This signifies, he did not acknowledge them as belonging to his family, or as friends and disciples.

28—30. There will be weeping] See note on Matt. viii.
 11, 12; xix. 30, and Mark x. 31.

31. Herod desireth] Herod was tetrarch of Galilee, and might fear lest the growing popularity of Christ might occasion him some trouble. He was a crafty and cruel prince, according to Josephus, and our Lord's comparison intim-ates it.

32. To-day and to-morrow] For a short period of time, and then he would be perfected by his sufferings. See Heb.
 ii. 9, 10, and vii. 28.

gone into the house of one of the rulers among the Pharisees, to eat bread on the sabbath, that they watched him. And, be-2 bold, there was before him a certain man who had a dropsy. And Jesus spoke to the 3 teachers of the law and Pharisees, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath? And they remained silent. And he took him, 4 and cured him, and sent him away, And 5 spoke to them, saying, Which of you shall have an ass or an ox fallen into a pit, and will not immediately draw him out on the sabbath day? And they could not answer 6 him again to these things.

He then addressed those that were 7 invited, when he observed how they chose out the chief places; saying to them,
 When thou art invited by any man to a 8 marriage-feast, take not the chief place; lest a more honourable man than thou be invited by him; And he that invited thee 9 and him, come and say to thee, Give place to this man; and thou begin with shame to take the lowest place. But when thou 10 art invited, go and take the lowest place; that when he that invited thee cometh, he may say to thee, Friend, go up higher; then wilt thou have honour in the presence of those that are at meat with thee. For every 11 one that exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.

Then he said to him also that invited 12 him, When thou makest a dinner or a supper, invite not thy friends, nor thy brethren, nor thy kinsmen, nor thy rich neighbours, lest they also invite thee again, and a recompense be made thee. But when thou 13 makest a feast, invite the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind; And thou shalt be 14 happy; for, as they cannot recompense thee, thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just.

And when one of those that were at meat 15 with him heard these things, he said to him, Happy is he that shall eat bread in the kingdom of God. Then Jesus said to him, 16
 A certain man made a great supper, and 34, 35. O Jerusalem] See note, Matt. xxiv. 37, 38.

CHAP. XIV. 1—6. They watched him] The design of this ruler, as well as of the whole sect to which he belonged, was to find something in the actions or words of our Lord for which they might accuse and condemn him.

7—11. The chief places] As the Jews lay at their meals, the chief place was to lie down first on the couch, so that all the rest must lie below them. See Prov. xxv. 6, 7.

12—14. Invite not thy friends] It cannot be wrong in itself to invite friends and relatives to eat with us; but we should not do it, and neglect the poor, the maimed, &c.
 These have a claim on our charity; and it was the ancient custom of the Jews to invite their neighbours indiscrimi-nately, Matt. xxii. 9; Prov. ix. 2, 3.

15. Happy is he] that shall be a subject of this kingdom, and, as a guest, share in its blessings. The parable illustrates this sentiment.

17 invited many : And sent his servant at supper time to say to those who were invited, 18 Come ; for all things are now ready. And they all with one consent began to make excuse. The first said to him, I have bought a piece of ground, and I must needs go and see it ; I pray thee have me excused.
 19 And another said, I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I go to try them ; I pray thee have me excused. And another said, I have married a wife ; and therefore I cannot come. So that servant came, and told his master these things. Then the householder, being angry, said to his servant, Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in hither the poor, and the 22 maimed, and the lame, and the blind. And the servant said, Sir, it is done as thou hast 23 commanded, and yet there is room. And the master said to the servant, Go out into the highways and hedges, and press them to come in, that my house may be filled.
 24 For I say to you, That none of those men which were invited, shall taste of my supper.
 25 And great multitudes went with him ;
 26 and he turned, and said to them, If any man come to me, and prefer not me to his father and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and sisters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple.
 27 And whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple.
 28 For which of you, intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first, and counteth the cost, whether he have sufficient to complete it ? Lest haply, after he hath laid the foundation, and is not able to finish it, all that behold it begin to deride him, Saying,
 30 This man began to build, and was not able 31 to finish. Or what king, going to make war against another king, sitteth not down first, and consulteth whether he be able with ten thousand to meet him that cometh against him with twenty thousand ? Or 32 else, while the other is yet a great way off, he sendeth an embassy, and desireth conditions of peace. In like manner, whoso 33 ever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, cannot be my disciple.

Salt is good : but if the salt have lost its 31 savour, with what shall it be seasoned ? It is neither fit for the land, nor yet for the dunghill ; but men cast it out. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

CHAPTER XV.

A. D. 33. The parables of the lost sheep, the piece of silver, and the prodigal son.

THEN all the publicans and sinners drew 1 near to Jesus to hear him. And the Pharisees and Scribes murmured, saying, This man receiveth sinners, and eateth with them.

And he spoke this parable to them, saying, What man among you, having a hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the desert, and go after that which is lost, until he find it ? And when he hath found it, he layeth it 5 on his shoulders, rejoicing. And when he cometh home, he calleth his friends and neighbours together, saying to them, Rejoice with me, for I have found my sheep which was lost. I say to you, that in like 7 manner there will be joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons, who need no repentance.

Or what woman, having ten pieces of 8 silver, if she lose one piece, doth not light a candle, and sweep the house, and seek diligently till she find it ? And when she 9 hath found it, she calleth her friends and her neighbours together, saying, Rejoice with me ; for I have found the piece which I had lost. In like manner I say to you, 10 there is joy among the angels of God over one sinner who repenteth.

18. With one consent] Thus the most wealthy Jews, from the influence of a worldly and carnal spirit, rejected the kind invitations of the gospel.

21. Streets and lanes] Pearce explains this to signify the poorer sort of Jews, many of whom followed our Lord and embraced the gospel.

23. Press them to come] That is, persuade, intreat, &c. The Greek word is used of a moral compulsion, Matt. xiv. 22 ; Mark vi. 45, &c. This part of the parable refers to sending the apostles to preach the gospel among the Gentiles.

26. Prefer not me] Matthew expresses the true sense of this idiom, x. 37, 'loveth his father and mother more than me,' &c. If any man be not willing to forsake all at the call of duty, &c. See Matt. vi. 24, and Gen. xxix. 30, 31.

28—32. To build a tower] This parable strongly and forcibly represents the folly of such as became the professed disciples of Jesus, without serious reflection on the difficulties with which they would have to contend.

33. Forsaketh not] In his heart, affection, and actually, if required, to follow Christ. Is not this binding still ?

CHAP. XV. 2. Receiveth sinners] Such was the invidious reflection which these self-righteous persons made on the conduct of our blessed Lord, which gave occasion to the following parables.

4—7. What man among] The design of the parable cannot be mistaken. It was evidently intended to justify our Lord's conduct in admitting sinners, and labouring to bring them to repentance.

7. Joy in heaven] This is spoken after the manner of men, who rejoice more sensibly over the recovery of what they thought was lost, than in that which may be of greater value, but which has not been exposed to danger.—Just persons] Some would refer this to the Pharisees, who thought themselves just or righteous ; but as they were miserably deceived, I do not see how they could be said to need no repentance. No doubt they did in reality need it ; and some of them, like Paul, were called to repent. By just persons, we must understand those really so, persons who had repented and were justified, and were now in a happy state of acceptance and safety.

8—10. One piece] Though this one piece be but of small value, yet it was of some consequence to her ; and of course she rejoiced when it was found.

11 And he said, A certain man had two 12 sons: And the younger of them said to his father, Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth, to my share. And he 13 divided to them his substance. And, not many days after, the younger son gathered all together, and went into a distant country, and there wasted his substance by riotous 14 living. And when he had spent all, a great famine arose in that land; and he 15 began to be in want. And he went and joined himself to a citizen of that country, who sent him into his fields to feed swine.
16 And he desired to fill his belly with the husks which the swine ate: and yet no 17 man gave him food. Then he came to himself, and said, How many of the hired servants of my father have bread enough and to spare, and I am perishing with 18 hunger! I will arise and go to my father, and say to him, Father, I have sinned 19 against heaven, and in thy sight; I am no more worthy to be called thy son; make 20 me as one of thy hired servants. And he arose, and came to his father. But when he was yet far off, his father saw him, and had compassion. and ran, and fell on his 21 neck, and kissed him. And the son said to him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son; "make me as 22 one of thy hired servants?" But the father said to his servants, Bring forth "quickly" the best robe, and clothe him with it; and put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his 23 feet: And bring hither the fatted calf, and 24 kill it; and let us eat, and be joyful; For this my son was dead, and is alive again;
he was lost, and is found. And they began 25 to be joyful. Now his elder son was in the field: and, as he came and drew nigh to the house, he heard music and dancing.

Then he called one of the servants, and in- 26 quired what these things meant. And he 27 said to him, Thy brother is come; and thy father hath killed the fatted calf, because he hath received him in health. And he 28 was angry, and would not go in; his father therefore came out, and intreated him.
And he answered and said to his father, Lo, 29 these many years I have served thee, nor have I at any time transgressed thy command; and yet thou never gavest me a kid, that I might be joyful with my friends:
But when this thy son came, who hath de- 30 voured thy substance with harlots, thou hast killed for him the fatted calf. And he said 31 to him, Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine. But it was right that 32 we should be joyful and glad; for this thy brother was dead, and is alive again; and was lost, and is found.

CHAPTER XVI.

A. D. 33. The parable of the unjust steward; hypocrisy of the covetous Pharisees: the parable of the rich man and Lazarus.

And Jesus said also to his disciples, 1
There was a certain rich man who had a steward; who was accused to him of wasting his property. And he called him, and said 2 to him, How is it that I hear this of thee?
give an account of thy stewardship; for thou shalt no longer be steward. Then the stew- 3 ard said within himself, What shall I do?
for my master taketh away from me the stewardship: I cannot dig; to beg I am ashamed. I am resolved what to do, that 4 when I am put out of the stewardship, I may be received into their houses. So he 5 called to him every one of his master's debtors, and said to the first, How much owest thou to my master? And he said, a 6 hundred measures of oil. And the steward

11. A certain man had] The moral and spirit of this parable is the same as the former. It shows how graciously God receiveth sinners; and how great the displeasure of pharisaic persons was at this kind reception.

13. By riotous living] This includes not only excesses of the table, but the indulgence of lust. See verse 31.

15. To feed swine] Not at home, but in the fields. This must have been a hateful employment to a Jew; as, by the law, these animals were unclean.

16. He desired to fill] Such unnatural food as the husks of pulse; but no one gave him even this food.

17. Came to himself] Distress brought him to serious reflection; and this led to the only proper line of conduct which he could adopt in his circumstances.

21, 22. Make me as one] This clause, which is found in the 19th verse, is wanting here in the common Greek text; but the authorities for it are so good, that Wetstein, Griesbach, and most critics, admit it. The addition in the next verse is adopted.

24. Was dead] That is, by his folly and sin; but is now happily made alive by repentance. See Matt. viii. 22.

25. He was angry] This elder brother discovered a bad temper; and he even reflects on the father, as if he had not treated him with due regard, while he states his own services.

30. When this thy son] He shows no regard to a brother, but appears to be full of envy and jealousy. This was the temper of the Jews, and especially of the Pharisees.

31, 32. Son, thou art ever] Thou art always sharing what I possess, and art heir to the chief part of my estate. This is all thine; but is it not right to rejoice on such an occasion as this? Though our Lord had a reference to the Jews in general in the character of this elder son, yet he particularly refers to the Pharisees, and shows, that if they were as righteous as they pretended to be, they ought not to be offended at the kind treatment which any sincere penitent might receive, but they ought rather to have rejoiced and given thanks to God.

CHAP. XVI. 1. Man who had a steward] The design of this parable is to teach men to make such a use of their riches and advantages in this world, as that they may be rich towards God and may find happiness in the next.

2. Thou shalt be] It is not fit and proper that one so unfaithful should be continued in such an important office.

3. I cannot dig] That is, he had neither knowledge nor strength to do the work of a husbandman; and he could not think of becoming a beggar.

5. Master's debtors] Pearce, after others, supposes that, by debtors, we are to understand, tenants, who anciently paid their rent in produce. If we understand the debt in the

- said to him, Take back thy bill, and sit 7 down quickly, and write fifty. Then said he to another, and how much owest thou?
 And he said, A hundred measures of wheat. And he said to him, Take back thy 8 bill, and write eighty. And the master commended the unjust steward, because he had done prudently: for the children of this world are more prudent in their generation 9 than the children of light. And I say to you, Make to yourselves friends by deceitful wealth; that, when ye are discharged, they may receive you into the everlasting mansions.
- 10 He that is faithful in a very little, is faithful in much also: and he that is unjust in a very little is unjust in much also.
- 11 If therefore ye have not been faithful in respect to the deceitful wealth, who will 12 commit to your trust the true wealth? And if in the possessions of another ye have not been faithful, who will give you possessions 13 of your own? A servant cannot serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or at least he will attend on one, and neglect the other. Ye cannot serve God and wealth.
- 14 And the Pharisees also, who were covetous, heard all these things; and they scoffed 15 at him. And he said to them, Ye are they who justify yourselves before men; but God knoweth your hearts: for that which is highly esteemed among men is abomina-usual sense, 50 baths of oil, and 20 cores of wheat, amounted to a considerable sum.

8. And the master commended] He commended his prudence, but condemned his dishonesty and injustice, as he styles him 'the unjust steward.' This manner of distinguishing the circumstances of an action is noticed by Quintilian, Or. ii. 20; and Wetstein quotes from Eustathius the following: 'It will be no advantage to Amphinoius to have had good sense: for thieves and adulterers, possessed of that, may be commended as such, yet condemned as wicked men.'—For the children] They are usually so. Hence we should learn to be as prudent in our spiritual concerns as the men of the world are in their worldly.

9. Deceitful wealth] Wealth may be called, deceitful, both because it is often acquired by deceit, and because it deceives those who possess it; as they are led to trust in it for what it cannot do. To make friends by a charitable use of it, is alike our duty and interest.—When ye are] Campbell's version is adopted, which expresses both a change in circumstances and a dismissal from a state of probation by death.

10. He that is faithful] Our Lord here regards our principles. Faithfulness will be shown in the least as well as in the greatest concerns; and so will injustice.

11. The true wealth] Here the true wealth, spiritual blessings, is contrasted with the deceitful wealth, or riches of this world. The term true is used in the same sense, John i. 9; vi. 32; Heb. viii. 2; ix. 24.

12. And if ye have not] When a man had faithfully discharged the office of steward, the master, as a reward, might give him some land for his own inheritance. But how can an unfaithful steward expect this?

13. Ye cannot serve God] See note, Matt. vi. 24. The connexion is, Be faithful stewards of wealth; but take care that ye be not enslaved by it: for no man can serve, &c.

14, 15. Who were covetous] So they are said to be, chapter ii. 39; Matt. xxiii. 14, 25.—Is abomination] That

tion in the sight of God. The law and the 16 prophets were until John; since that time the kingdom of God is preached, and every one that entereth doth it by force. And it 17 is easier for heaven and earth to pass, than one tithe of the law to fail. Whosoever 18 putteth away his wife, and marrieth another, committeth adultery: and whosoever marrieth her that is put away from her husband committeth adultery.

Now there was a certain rich man, who 19 was clothed in purple, and fine linen, and feasted sumptuously every day: And there 20 was a certain beggar named Lazarus, who was laid at his gate, full of sores, And de- 21 siring to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table: moreover the dogs came and licked his sores. And it 22 came to pass, that the beggar died, and was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom. The rich man also died, and was buried; And in hades he raised up his eyes, being 23 in torments, and beheldeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom: And he cried 24 out and said, Father Abraham, have pity on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am tortured in this flame. But Abraham said, Son, remember that 25 thou in thy life-time didst receive thy good things, and in like manner Lazarus evil things: but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented. And besides all this, be- 26 for which men esteemed them, their outward sanctity, was what God hated, because it was the effect of their hypocrisy.

16—18. The law and] See Matt. xi. 13; v. 18, 32. Our Lord repeated these verses on the present occasion, to turn the attention of the people to the gospel and its success; its excellence, as fulfilling and improving the precept of the law, while it super-sedes it.

19. There was a certain rich man] That this is a parable no considerate man will deny; and the design of it is to show the folly of such as make wealth minister only to their appetites, and neglect their salvation.

20. Named Lazarus] This name, עֲזַרְיָה, is very expressive, signifying a helpless person.

22. Carried by the angels] This office was assigned to the angels both by the Jews and Greeks, and our Lord sanctions it by his authority.—Abraham's bosom] The heavenly state is represented as a banquet, where Abraham reclines, and Lazarus lies next to him. See John xiii. 25.

23. In hades] Both Lazarus and the rich man were in hades, but in very different parts of it. The one was in the lower hades, the abode of misery; the other in the upper, the abode of bliss; yet, according to the parable, they could see from the one to the other. Whether we are to interpret this literally may admit of doubt; and it is, perhaps, introduced to represent more forcibly the misery of a lost person. To see happiness which we never can enjoy is an appalling circumstance.

24. Send Lazarus] Pearce thinks the request of the rich man, that Lazarus might be sent, is a proof that he had been relieved by his bounty, when laid at his gates; for if not, he would have rather desired some other to be sent.

25, 26. Abraham said] The patriarch uses two arguments, the one that it is not reasonable, the other that it is not possible, for his request to be granted; and from this representation, we learn that the states of men are fixed at death.

tween us and you a great gulf is fixed : so, that they who would pass from hence to you cannot ; nor can they pass to us, who would 27 come thence. Then he said, I beseech thee, therefore, father, that thou wouldest send 28 him to my father's house : For I have five brethren ; that he may testify unto them, lest they also come into this place of torment.
 29 Abraham saith to him, They have Moses
 30 and the prophets, let them hear these. And he said, Nay, father Abraham : but if one go to them from the dead, they will repent.
 31 Then Abraham said to him, If they hear not Moses and the prophets, they will not be persuaded, though one should arise from the dead.

CHAPTER XVII.

A. D. 33. To avoid giving offence ; one to forgive another ; ten lepers cleansed ; of the kingdom of God and coming of the Son of man.

- 1 THEN Jesus said to his disciples, It is impossible that causes of offending should not come : but alas for him, by whom they
- 2 come. It were better for him that an upper millstone were hung about his neck, and he cast into the sea, than that he should cause one of these little ones to offend. Take heed to yourselves.
- 3 Now if thy brother trespass against thee, rebuke him ; and if he repent, forgive him.
- 4 And if he trespass against thee seven times in a day, and seven times in a day turn again, saying, I repent ; thou shalt forgive him.
- 5 And the apostles said to the Lord,
- 6 Increase our faith. And the Lord said, If ye had faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye might say to this sycamore tree, Be thou plucked up by the root, and be thou planted in the sea ; and it should obey you. But
- 7 which of you, having a servant plowing or feeding cattle, will immediately say to him, when he is come from the field, Go and place thyself at table ? And will not rather 8 say to him, Make ready wherewith I may sup, and gird thyself, and serve me, till I have eaten and drunk ; and afterwards thou shalt eat and drink ? Doth he thank that 9 servant because he did the things which were commanded him ? I suppose not. So 10 likewise ye, when ye shall have done all those things which are commanded you, say, We as servants are without merit, for we have only done that which it was our duty to do.

And it came to pass, as he journeyed to 11 Jerusalem, that he passed through Samaria and Galilee. And as he entered into a 12 certain town, there met him ten men that were lepers, who stood afar off : And they 13 raised their voices, and said, Jesus, Master, have pity on us. And when he saw them, 14 he said to them, Go show yourselves to the priests. And it came to pass that, as they went, they were cleansed. And one of 15 them, when he saw that he was cured, turned back, and with a loud voice glorified God ; And fell down on his face at the 16 feet of Jesus, giving him thanks : and he was a Samaritan. And Jesus spoke and 17 said, Were there not ten cleansed ? but where are the nine ? Not any are found that 18 have returned to give glory to God, except this stranger. And he said to him, Arise, 19 depart : thy faith hath restored thee.

Being now asked by the Pharisees, when 20 the kingdom of God would come, he answered them and said, The kingdom of God cometh not with outward show. Nor will 21 men say of it, Lo here ! or, lo there ! for, behold the kingdom of God is among you. And he said to the disciples, The days will 22 come, when ye shall desire to see one of the days of the Son of man, and shall not behold it. And they will say to you, Lo, 23

27, 28. My father's house] This is a fine incident in the parable, to represent that, if it were possible, those in misery would alarm their kindred, who were living as they had done without any respect to God, or a future state.

29—31. They have Moses] If they do not obey those whose divine call and mission were established by as strong evidence as the case would admit, one returning from the dead could not convince them.

CHAP. XVII. 1, 2. It is impossible] See Matt. xviii. 6, 7.

3, 4. Thy brother trespass] This was said in answer to a question put by Peter, Matt. xviii. 21, and might be repeated.

6. If ye had faith] That is, the least degree of miraculous faith ; for the mustard seed is one of the least of seeds. Compare Matt. xiii. 32, and xxi. 22. It is probable that our Lord pointed to a sycamore-tree near ; for it is common in the holy land ; and as it strikes deeper root than most other trees, it is more difficult to be plucked up.

10. We as servants] That is, we have conferred no favour by doing that which it is our duty to do. The instance, ver. 7—9, shows that the servant did only what he was obliged to do ; and our Lord, in this application to his disciples, states that they could merit nothing of him by the strictest obedience to his commands ; but ought still to be humble and look for all blessings, as freely bestowed according to God's promise.

11. As he journeyed] Our Lord set out from Galilee, and in his way to Jerusalem must pass through some part of the land which the Samaritans possessed.

12. Stood afar off] They were forbidden by the law to come near such as were sound, lest they should infect them, Levit. xiii. 46 ; Numb. v. 2.

14. Go show yourselves] As directed, Levit. xiii. 2, &c. He did not tell them that they should be cured ; but it is probable that they expected this favour would be conferred when they came to the priest.

18. Except this stranger] That is, one of another nation, not a Jew. It seems that, as they went, their complaint was removed ; and this Samaritan, perceiving it, returned to honour the Lord and Saviour. The rest, being Jews, perhaps thought that they did enough by showing themselves to the priest.

20. Not with outward show] This answer is opposed to the commonly received opinion, that the kingdom of Messiah was to be a splendid earthly kingdom.

21. Is among you] So many of the ablest critics render. Our Lord meant his own kingdom, which he was then establishing by his doctrine, law, and miracles.

23. And they will say] Our Lord cautions them against he is here ; or, lo, he is there : go not after 21 them, nor follow them. For as the lightning, which lighteneth out of the one part under heaven, shineth unto the other part under heaven ; so will the Son of Man be 25 in his day. But first he must suffer many things, and be rejected by this generation.

 26 And as it was in the days of Noah, so will it be also in the days of the Son of man.
 27 They ate, they drank, they married wives, they were given in marriage, until the day that Noah entered into the ark, and the 28 flood came, and destroyed them all. In like manner as it was also in the days of Lot : they ate, they drank, they bought, 29 they sold, they planted, they built ; But on the same day, that Lot went out of Sodom, it rained fire and brimstone from heaven, 30 and destroyed them all. Even thus will it be, in the day when the Son of man is re-31 vealed. In that day, whoever shall be upon the housetop, and his goods in the house, let him not come down to take them away ;
 and in like manner, let not him that is in 32 the field turn back. Remember Lot's wife.
 33 Whoever shall seek to save his life, shall lose it ; and whoever shall lose his life, 34 shall preserve it. I say to you, In that night there will be two men in one bed ;
 the one will be taken, and the other left.
 35 Two women will be grinding together ; the 37 one will be taken, and the other left." And they answered and said to him, Where, Master? And he said to them, Wherever the body is, thither will the eagles be gathered together.

CHAPTER XVIII.

A. D. 33. The importunate widow ; the Pharisee and Publican ; children brought to Christ ; the young ruler ; the reward of those who forsake all for Christ ; he restoreth sight to a blind man.

1 JESUS then spoke a parable unto them, to this end, that they ought to pray always, the vain expectations of the Jews, who would be ready to hearken to every rumour.

24. So will the Son of man be] That is, his coming will be as extensive and as destructive to his enemies as the lightning is. See Matt. xxiv. 23—27.

25—29. In the days of Noah] See Gen. vii. 23, and xix. 24.

31—33. In the field turn back] That is, to take any thing away. The admonition, to remember Lot's wife, strongly enforces the above caution not to turn back. She looked back and most probably lingered, and was struck dead.

34. In that night] In that time of calamity the following things will occur.—36. (c) [Two men shall be in the field, the one shall be taken, and the other left].—Griesb.

37. Where, Master?] Where will these things occur? Our Lord replies that wherever the body or carcase is, &c., that wherever the Jews are found, the conquering armies will meet with and destroy them, Matt. xxiv. 40. The word carcase here must be taken as signifying the same as σάρκα, a dead carcase, Matt. xxiv. 23.

CHAP. XVIII. 1. To pray always] That is, frequently and habitually, as well as fervently, Rom. xii. 12; Eph. v. 20.

2—5. Who feared not God] He was very unfit for his and not to grow weary ; Saying, In a cer- 2 tain city there was a judge, who feared not 3

 God, nor regarded man : And there was a 3 widow in that city, who came unto him, saying, Do me justice against mine adver- 4 sary. And he would not for a while : but 4 afterwards he said within himself, Though 5
 I fear not God, nor regard man ; Yet be- 5 cause this widow troubleth me, I will do 6 justice to her, lest by her continual coming 6 she tire me. And the Lord said, Hear what 6 the unjust judge saith. And will not God 7 do justice in behalf of his own elect, who cry 7 unto him day and night ? and will he be 8 slow in their cause ? I say to you, He will 8 speedily do justice for them. Nevertheless 8 when the Son of man cometh, will he find 8 faith in the land ?

And he spoke this parable to some who 9 trusted in themselves that they were right- 9 teous, and despised others : Two men went 10 up to the temple to pray ; the one a Phari- 10 see, and the other a publican. And the 11
 Pharisee stood by himself and prayed thus :
 God, I thank thee, that I am not as other 11 men are, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or 12 even as this publican. I fast twice in the 12 week, I give tithes of all that I possess.
 And the publican, standing afar off, would 13 not even raise his eyes unto heaven, but 13 smote upon his breast, saying, God be merciful to me a sinner. I say to you, This 14 man went down to his house justified, and 14 not the other : for every one that exalteth himself shall be humbled ; and he that 15 humbleth himself shall be exalted.

And some brought unto him infants, that 15
 he might touch them : but when his disciples saw it, they rebuked them. But 16 Jesus called them unto him, and said, Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not : for of such is the kingdom of God. Verily I say to you, Whosoever 17 office ; but it appears that he could be influenced by in-treaty, to do justice, though his motive was of the lowes kind.

6—8. Hear what he] If such a man be induced to do justice, will not God do it to persons whom he loves, and who love and serve him? Will not he listen to their cries?
 The next verse supports this sense of the text.

8. He will speedily] By the destruction of their enemies, the Jews.—Will he find faith] That is, faithful persons, who will endure the trials which will then be experienced.
 Those calamities would sift many, and many would be found but chaff.

11. Pharisee stood by himself] This circumstance shows his pride.

12. I fast twice] The days which the stricter Jews kept as fasts, were Mondays and Thursdays ; the first because Moses then ascended the mount ; and the latter because he came down on account of the worship paid to the golden calf.

14. And not the other] In this connexion the sense requires us to render in the negative form, rather than in the comparative ; for the concluding remark supports the opinion that the Pharisee was in no sense justified.

16. Suffer the little] Here there can be no doubt respecting who are meant by little children. They were such shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child shall by no means enter therein.

18 And a certain ruler asked him, saying, Good teacher, what shall I do to inherit everlasting life? And Jesus said to him, Why callest thou me good? none is good, but one, even God. Thou knowest the commandments; Do not commit adultery, Do not commit murder, Do not steal. Do not bear false witness, Honour thy father and thy mother. And he said, All these things I have observed from my youth. Now when Jesus heard these things, he said to him, Yet one thing thou needest: sell all which thou hast, and distribute unto the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: come, and follow me. And when he heard this, he was very sorrowful; for he was very rich. And when Jesus saw that he was very sorrowful, he said, How difficult is it for those that have riches to enter into the kingdom of God! For it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God. And they that heard it said, Who then can be saved? And he said, The things which are impossible with men, are possible with God. Then Peter said, Lo, we have left all, and followed thee. And he said to them, Verily I say to you, There is no man that hath left house, or parents, or brethren, or wife, or children, for the sake of the kingdom of God, Who shall not receive much more in this present time, and in the world to come everlasting life.

31 Then he took unto him the twelve, and said to them, Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem, and all things that are written by the prophets concerning the Son of man shall be accomplished. For he will be delivered up unto the Gentiles, and derided, and will be shamefully treated and spit on, And will be scourged, and put to death; but the third day he will rise again. And they understood none of these things: and this matter was hidden from them, and they knew not the things which were spoken.

in the literal, in the strictest sense; and in the reflection of our Lord, we find that they not only were the objects of his regard, but do form a part of his kingdom. In this view they must have a right to be recognized as such at baptism.

17. Shall not receive] Our Lord now addresses adults, and assures them that if they do not become as teachable and humble as those children, they could not be the subjects of his kingdom.

18—23. A certain ruler] A member of the Jewish council or Sanhedrim. See Matt. xix. 16—23.

24. That have riches] Mark adds a very important particular, chap. x. 24, 'and trust in them.'

31—34. Then he took unto him] That is, apart from the rest, to impart to them what would be done unto him at Jerusalem.

35—43. A certain blind man] Compare Matt. xx. 29, and Mark x. 46, &c. As both the Evangelists expressly declare that this miracle was wrought when Jesus was departing from Jericho, I have with Doddridge, rendered,

Now while he was yet near to Jericho, a certain blind man sat by the way-side begging; And when he heard the multitude passing by, he asked what it meant. And they told him, that Jesus of Nazareth was passing by. And he cried, saying, Jesus, thou son of David, have pity on me. And those who went before rebuked him, that he might be silent: but he cried out so much the more, Thou son of David, have pity on me. And Jesus stood, and commanded him to be brought unto him, and when he had come near, he asked him, saying, What desirest thou that I should do for thee? And he said, Master, that I may receive sight. And Jesus said to him, Receive sight: thy faith hath restored thee. And immediately he received sight, and followed him, glorifying God: and all the people, when they saw it, gave praise unto God.

CHAPTER XIX.

A. D. 33. Zaccheus, a publican, called; the ten pieces of silver; Christ in triumph enters Jerusalem; weepeth over it; driveth traffickers out of the temple and teacheth daily in it.

Now Jesus had entered and was passing through Jericho, And, behold, there was a man named Zaccheus, who was a chief of the publicans, and he was rich. And he sought to see what kind of person Jesus was; but could not because of the multitude; for he was little of stature. So he ran before, and climbed up into a sycamore tree to see him: because he was about to pass that way. And when Jesus came to the place, he looked up, and saw him, and said to him, Zaccheus, make haste and come down; for to-day I must abide at thy house. And he made haste and came down, and received him joyfully. And when they all saw this, they murmured, saying, He is gone in to be guest with a sinner. And Zaccheus stood forth, and said to the Master; Behold, Master, the half of my goods I will give to the poor; and if in any thing I have wronged any man, I will re-

'when he was yet near,' &c. As the words will bear this version, I conceive that candour demands we should adopt it, so as to avoid even the least apparent contradiction.

CHAP. XIX. 1. Had entered] See note, chap. xviii. 35.

2. Zaccheus] That he was a Jew we might infer from his name; derived, most probably, from זכר (Zachar) pure; but our Lord asserts it, calling him a son of Abraham, verse 9.—chief of the publicans] One whom we should call a farmer of the revenue of a town or district.

5. Abide at thy house] Pearce supposes this proves that Jesus had not passed through Jericho, as he abode at the house of Zaccheus in that city. But it is not easy to reply that the house of Zaccheus might be at some little distance in the country; though he might be in the city on account of his office? This is highly probable.

7. They murmured] The Pharisees are intended, who generally discovered this temper, when Jesus associated with persons whom they disliked.

8. The half of my goods] It does not appear that Zac-

9 store fourfold. And Jesus said concerning him, This day salvation is come to this house, inasmuch as he also is a son of 10 Abraham. For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.
11 And while they listened to these things, he added and spoke a parable, because he was near to Jerusalem, and because they thought that the kingdom of God would 12 immediately appear. He said therefore, A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to 13 return. And he called ten of his servants, and delivered to them ten pounds, and said
14 to them, Trade with these till I come. But his citizens hated him, and sent a message after him, saying, We will not have this 15 man to reign over us. And it came to pass, when he had returned, having received the kingdom, that he commanded these servants to be called to him, to whom he had given the money, that he might know how much 16 every man had gained by traffic. Then came the first, saying, Sir, thy pound hath 17 gained ten pounds. And he said to him, Well done, thou good servant : because thou hast been faithful in a very little, have thou 18 authority over ten cities. And the second came, saying, Sir, thy pound hath gained 19 five pounds. And he said in like manner
20 to him, Be thou also over five cities. And another came, saying, Sir, behold, here is thy pound, which I have kept laid up in a
21 napkin : For I feared thee, because thou art an austere man : thou takest up that which thou didst not lay down, and reapest
22 that which thou didst not sow. And he saith to him, Out of thine own mouth I will judge thee, thou wicked servant. Thou knewest that I was an austere man, taking up that which I laid not down, and reaping
23 that which I did not sow. Why then gavest not thou my money into the bank, that at my coming I might have obtained mine 24 own with interest ? And he said to those who stood by, Take from him the pound, and give it to him that hath ten pounds. (And they said to him, Sir, he hath ten pounds.) For I say to you, To every one 26 that hath much shall be given ; and from him that hath little, even that which he hath shall be taken away. But those mine 27 enemies, who would not that I should reign over them, bring hither, and slay them before me.

Now when he had thus spoken, he went 28 foremost, going up to Jerusalem. And it 29 came to pass, when he drew near to Bethphage and Bethany, at the mount called the mount of Olives, that he sent two of his disciples, Saying, Go into the town over 30 against you ; in which as ye enter, ye will find a colt tied, whereon no man ever sat : loose it, and bring it hither. And if any 31 man ask you, Why do ye loose it ? thus shall ye say to them, Because the Master hath need of it. And those that were sent 32 departed, and found as he had said to them. And as they were loosing the colt, the 33 owners of it said to them, Why loose ye the colt ? And they said, The Master hath need 34 of it. And they brought it to Jesus ; and 35 they cast their mantles upon the colt, and they set Jesus on it. And as he went, they 36 spread their mantles in the way before him.

And as he drew near to the city, at the 37 descent of the mount of Olives, the whole multitude of his disciples began to rejoice and praise God with a loud voice for all the mighty works which they had seen ; Saying, 38 Blessed be the King who cometh in the name of the Lord : peace in heaven, and glory in the highest places. And some of 39 the Pharisees from among the multitude said to him, Teacher, rebuke thy disciples. And he answered and said to them, I say to 40 you, If these should be silent, the stones would soon cry out.

And as he drew near, he beheld the city, 41 and wept over it, Saying, O that thou 42

thou had been a wicked man, or an oppressor, notwithstanding what the Pharisees said. His present offer shows that, when he had given half, and restored four-fold to any he might have wronged, he supposed he would have sufficient etc. Exod. xxi. 1.

11. He was near to] Jericho was not above twenty miles from Jerusalem. In this parable two things are clearly intended ; first, the behaviour of the citizens to the nobleman, and secondly, that of his own servants. By the first is meant that of the Jews to himself in rejecting him, and refusing to own him as the Messiah. By the second is meant, that the disciples of Christ, who are his servants, were favoured with various privileges ; and that, according as they improved or neglected them, they would be rewarded or punished.

12. To receive a kingdom] Or royal power. In this there is an allusion to the manner in which Herod and Archelaus, and many others, obtained royal power and authority in these days, from the Roman emperors.

14. His citizens hated him] Nothing is stated as the cause of this ; but it strongly paints the spirit of the Jews towards our Lord. So the Jews did in regard to Archelaus.

15—17. Commanded these servants] He in this acted wisely ; as from their behaviour he might learn how he could confide in them hereafter.—Over ten cities] That is, ten of the cities in the kingdom which he had received ; so the next servant was promoted according as he had improved what was given unto him.

20—26. Here is thy pound] The conduct of this servant was base, and his reason for it shows him to be as foolish as he was wicked.

27. Those mine enemies] When Archelaus had received the royal authority, he took ample vengeance on his enemies ; and so our Lord intimates would vengeance be taken on his enemies.

28—36. Going up to Jerusalem] See notes, Matt. xxi. 1, &c. ; Mark xi. 1, &c.

37—40. Drew near to the city] Matt. xxi. 8, 9 ; Mark ix. 8, 9.—The stones would] This is a strong figurative mode of expression, to denote that it was the will of God, that he should enter Jerusalem in this solemn and triumphant manner. See Habakk. ii. 11.

hadst known, at least in this thy day, the things which concern thy peace! But now 43 they are hidden from thine eyes. For the days will come upon thee, in which thine enemies will cast a trench about thee, and compass thee around, and keep thee in on every side; And will lay thee even with the ground, and thy children within thee; and they will not leave in thee one stone upon another: because thou knevest not the time of thy visitation
45 And he went into the temple, and began to drive out those who sold, and those who bought therein; Saying to them, It is written, My house is the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of robbers.
47 And he taught daily in the temple. But the chief priests and the scribes and the elders of the people sought to destroy him;
48 But could not find how to do it: for all the people heard him with earnest attention.

CHAPTER XX.

A. D. 34. By the baptism of John, Christ maintains his own Divine authority; parable of the vineyard; tribute to Cæsar; answereth the Sadducees, and how he is the son of David, &c.

1 And it came to pass, on one of those days, as he was teaching the people in the temple, and preaching glad tidings, that the chief priests and the scribes, with the elders,
2 came upon him, And spoke to him, saying, Tell us, by what authority thou doest these things; or who is he that gave thee this authority? And he answered and said to them, I will also ask you one thing; and tell me: Was the baptism of John from 3 heaven, or of men? And they reasoned together among themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven; he will say, Why then did ye not believe him? But if we say, Of men; all the people will stone us: for they are persuaded that John was a 4 prophet. And they answered, that they could not tell whence it was. And Jesus said to them, Neither tell I you by what authority I do these things.
5 Then he began to speak to the people this parable: A certain man planted a vineyard, and let it out to husbandmen, and 6 went abroad for a long time. And at the season he sent a servant to the husbandmen, that they might give him of the fruit of the vineyard; but the husbandmen beat him, and sent him away empty. And afterwards 7 he sent another servant; and they beat him also, and treated him shamefully, and sent him away empty. And he yet sent a 8 third; and him also they wounded, and drove out. Then said the owner of the 9 vineyard, What shall I do? I will send my beloved son; perhaps they will reverence him when they see him. But when the 10 husbandmen saw him, they reasoned among themselves, saying, This is the heir; come, let us kill him, that the inheritance may be 11 ours. So they drove him out of the vineyard, and killed him. What therefore will the owner of the vineyard do unto them?

12 He will come and destroy those husbandmen, and will give the vineyard to others. And when they heard this, they 13 said, By no means. And he looked on them, and said, What then is this which is written, The stone which the builders re-14 jected, the same is become the chief corner stone? Whosoever falleth on that stone shall 15 be broken; but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will crush him to pieces.

And in that very hour the chief priests
16 and the scribes sought to lay hands on him, but they feared the people: for they perceived that he had spoken this parable against them. And they watched him, and 17 sent forth spies, who feigned themselves righteous men, that they might take hold of his words, that so they might deliver him up to the power and authority of the governor. And they asked him, saying, 18 Teacher, we know that thou speakest and teachest rightly, and respectest not persons, but teachest the way of God in truth. Is 19 it lawful for us to give tribute to Cæsar, or not? But he perceived their craftiness, and 20 said to them, Why tempt ye me? Show me a denarius. Whose image and superscription hath it? They answered and said, 21 Cæsar's. Then he said to them, Render therefore to Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's, and to God the things that are 22 God's. And they could not take hold of

42. Hadst known] Hadst so understood and regarded them as it was thy duty to do.—They are hidden] Through thy prejudices and unbelief, all means have failed, and will fail, to convince thee of thy sins; and the most awful punishment awaits thee.

45—43. Went into the temple] Compare Matt. xxi. 12, &c.—Heard him] Literally, 'Hung on his lips,' which denotes their fixed or earnest attention to what he said, as well as delight in him.

CHAP. XX. 1. Preaching glad tidings] Respecting his own kingdom, and the blessings and happiness of it. This was one of the four last days of his life.

2—9. Tell us, by what] See notes, Matt. xxi. 23—25, 33—40.

10. And at the season] See note, Mark xi. 13. From this we learn that rent was paid, at least in some instances, in the produce of the vineyard or farm.

16. He will come] Matthew says, that some of the people spoke, xxi. 41, and Luke relates this as the answer of our Lord; and it was so, as he consented to what they said.

18. Falleth on that stone] See note, Matt. xxi. 44.

20. Sent forth spies] Perhaps who should exert all their subtlety to ensnare him, and lead him to say something on which they might ground a charge.

22—24. Is it lawful to give] This was then a question which divided the Jewish nation; and had our Lord said, 'it was not lawful,' he would have been seized and his words before the people: and they wondered at his answer, and were silent.

- 27 Then came to him certain of the Sadducees, who deny that there is any future state; and they asked him, Saying, Teacher, Moses hath written to us, If any man's brother die, having a wife, and he die childless, that his brother should take his wife, and raise up seed to his brother. Now there were seven brethren: and the first took a wife, and died childless. And the second took her to wife, and he died childless. And the third took her; and in like manner the seven also left no children, and died. And last of all the woman also died. Therefore at the resurrection, whose wife of them doth she become? for the seven had her to wife. And Jesus answered and said to them, The children of this world marry, and are given in marriage; But those who shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage; Nor can they die any more: for they are like to the angels, and are the sons of God, being the sons of the resurrection. Now that the dead are raised, even Moses showed, when he calleth the Lord, in the section of the bush, the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. For he is not the God of the dead, but of the living: for all live to him. Then some of the scribes said, Teacher, thou hast spoken well. And after that they durst not ask him any further question.
- 41 Then he said to them, How say men that Christ is David's son? And yet David saith in the book of Psalms, Jehovah said to my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, Till I make thine enemies thy footstool. David therefore calleth him Lord, how is he then his son?
- 45 Then in the hearing of all the people he said to his disciples, Beware of the scribes, who desire to walk in long robes, and love salutations in the market-places, and the chief seats in the synagogues, and the chief places at feasts; Who devour the houses of widows, and make long prayers for a disguise: these shall receive the greater punishment.

CHAPTER XXI.

A. D. 33. Christ commendeth the poor widow; foretelleth the destruction of the temple and of Jerusalem; the signs of these awful events; he exhorteth to watchfulness.

AND Jesus looked, and saw the rich men casting their gifts into the treasury. And he saw also a certain poor widow casting in thither two mites. And he said, I tell you truly, that this poor widow hath cast in more than they all: For all these have from their abundance cast in unto the offerings of God; but she from what she wanted hath cast in all the substance that she had.

And as some spoke of the temple, how it was adorned with goodly stones and gifts, he said, As for these things which ye behold, the days will come, in which there will not be left one stone upon another, that will not be thrown down. And they asked him, saying, Teacher, but when will these things be? and what will be the sign when these things are about to be accomplished? And he said, Take heed that ye be not deceived: for many will come assuming my name, each saying, I am the Christ; and the time draweth near: go ye not therefore after them. But when ye shall hear of wars and commotions, be not terrified: for these things must first come to pass; but the end is not immediately. Then said he to them, Nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: And there will be great earthquakes in many places, and famines and pestilences, and there will be fearful sights, and great signs from heaven. But before all these, men will lay their hands on you, and persecute you, delivering you up to the synagogues, and into prisons; being brought before kings and rulers for the sake of my name. And this shall befall you for a testimony to them. Be therefore resolved, not to meditate before what ye shall answer: For I will give you utterance and wisdom, which all your adversaries shall not be able to gainsay nor resist. And ye will be delivered up both by parents, 16 accused as the enemy of Cæsar. He acted more wisely than to meddle with politics, otherwise than to teach us our duty.

27—40. Certain of the Sadducees] See Matt. xxii. 23—33; Mark xii. 18, &c.

34. For all live to him] Josephus, speaking of the Maccabees, says, 'They who lose their lives for the sake of God, live to God, as do Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and all the patriarchs.'

41—44. Christ is David's son] See Matt. xxii. 41, &c.; Mark xii. 35, &c.

CHAP. XXI. 1—4. And Jesus looked] See Mark xii. 41—44, and notes.

5. Goodly stones] Remarkable for their size and beauty, Matt. xxiv. 1, and note.—Gifts] Things which were hung up in it, such as the golden vine, which Herod gave, as Josephus relates. The Roman emperors also gave gifts, according to Philo.

10, 11. Nation will rise] See Matt. xxiv. 7. Josephus gives an account of many wars, which the Jews had at that period with the Syrians, Arabians and others.—Famines and pestilences] We read of the former, Acts xi. 28, and Suetonius in Claud. gives an account of others.—Fearful sights] Matthew mentions earthquakes. Josephus says that 'a flaming sword was seen over the city; that such a light shone about the altar and temple, that it seemed day; that chariots and troops were seen fighting in the sky.' &c. Tacitus has also related these things. Hist. lib. v. c. 13.

13. For a testimony to them] Your constancy shall prove to them your full conviction of the truth of what you preach. See Mark xiii. 9.

14—18. Be therefore resolved] See Mark xiii. 9—13.

and brethren, and kindred, and friends; and some of you will they cause to be put 17 to death. And ye will be hated of all men
 18 for the sake of my name. But yet a hair 19 of your heads shall not perish. By your perseverance ye shall preserve your lives.
 20 And when ye shall see Jerusalem surrounded with armies, then know that its 21 desolation draweth near. Then let those that are in Judea flee to the mountains; and let those that are within the city depart out; and let not those that are in the 22 country places enter therein. For these are the days of vengeance, that all things 23 which are written may be fulfilled. But alas for them that are with child, and for them that give suck, in those days! for there will be great distress in the land, and wrath upon this people. And they shall 24 fall by the edge of the sword, and they shall be led away captive into all nations: and Jerusalem shall be trodden down by the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be 25 fulfilled. And there will be signs in the sun, and moon, and stars; and upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity, 26 the sea and the waves roaring; Men's hearts failing them for fear, and expectation of those things which are coming on the earth:
 for the powers of heaven shall be shaken.
 27 And then will they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with great power and glory.
 28 And when these things begin to be accomplished, then look up, and raise your heads; for your redemption draweth near.
 29 And he spoke to them a parable: Behold 30 the fig tree, and all the trees; When they now shoot forth, ye see them and know of your own selves that now summer is near.
 31 So likewise, when ye see these things accomplishing, know that the kingdom of 32 God is near. Verily I say to you, This generation shall not pass away, till all be 33 accomplished. Heaven and earth will pass away; but my words shall not pass away.
 34 But take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with excess

19. By your perseverance] That patience is improper here most critics allow; and the sense given is now generally adopted. By this steadfastness they should, in the general ruin, be preserved; which accordingly came to pass. See Newton's Prop.

20—27. Surrounded with armies] See Matt. xxiv. 16, &c. Mark xiii. 14, &c. and notes.

24. Times of the Gentiles] Until those times when the fulness of the Gentiles shall be brought in, and the Jews shall be called and ingrafted into the true vine, Rom. ix. 24.

25. Signs in the sun] This is only another way of expressing the same truth as Matt. xxiv. 29, &c.—The sea and the waves] Perhaps this only means, figuratively, what had been before expressed.

27. Son of man] See Matt. xxiv. 30; Mark xiii. 26.

34—36. Take heed] Luke has omitted the remark of both the former Evangelists, 'But that day and hour no one maketh known,' &c.

and drunkenness, and the anxious cares of this life, and so that day come upon you unawares.* For as a snare will it come on 35 all those who dwell on the face of the whole land. Watch ye therefore, and pray conti- 36 nually, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things which will soon come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man.

Now Jesus thus taught in the temple by 37 day; and at night he went out of the city, and abode in the mount which is called the mount of Olives. And early in the morning 38 all the people came to him in the temple to hear him.

CHAPTER XXII.

A. D. 33. The Jews conspire against Christ; the passover prepared; the holy supper instituted; Peter's fall foretold; agony in the garden; Judas betrayeth him, and he is shamefully treated.

Now the feast of unleavened bread drew 1 near, which is called the Passover. And 2 the chief priests and scribes sought how they might safely kill him: for they feared the people.

Then Satan entered into Judas, surnamed 3 Iscariot, who was of the number of the twelve. And he went and communed with 4 the chief priests and captains of the temple, how he might deliver him up to them. And 5 they were glad, and agreed to give him money. And he promised, and sought for 6 a convenient opportunity to deliver him up unto them in the absence of the multitude.

Then came the day of unleavened bread, 7 on which the passover must be killed. And 8 Jesus sent Peter and John, saying, Go and prepare for us the passover, that we may eat it. And they said to him, Where wilt 9 thou that we prepare it? And he said to 10 them, Behold, when ye have entered into the city, a man will meet you, carrying a pitcher of water; follow him into the house where he goeth in. And ye shall say to the 11 householder, The Teacher saith to thee, Where is the guest-chamber, where I may eat the passover with my disciples? And he 12 will show you a large upper room furnished:

CHAP. XXII. 2. Safely kill him] The connexion requires the term, or some one equivalent to be supplied, or otherwise the reason assigned is inapposite. See Matt. xxvii. 2, and note.

3. Then Satan entered] Compare John xiii. 2, 27; Acts v. 3. Natural and moral evil is attributed to him. Compare Matt. xxvi. 14; Mark xiv. 12.

4. Captains of the temple] See verse 54, which supports this insertion.

5, 6. To give him money] Thirty pieces of silver, Matt. xxvi. 15. This was to be done as privately as possible, as they dreaded the interference of the populace, which shows that our Lord had many friends.

7. The day of unleavened bread] See note, Matt. xxvi. 2. — Passover must be] That is, the paschal lamb. See Matt. xxvi. 17, 20.

8—13. Jesus sent Peter] Compare Mark xiv. 12—16, and notes; and Luke ii. 7.

13 there make ready. And they went, and found as he had said to them : and they made ready the passover.

14 And when the hour was come, he placed himself at table, together with the twelve apostles. And he said to them, I have earnestly desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer. For I say to you, I shall not any more eat of it, until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God. He then took a cup, and gave thanks, and said, Take this, and divide it among yourselves :

15 For I say to you, I shall not drink of the produce of the vine, until the kingdom of God come. He then took bread, and gave thanks, and broke it, and gave unto them, saying, This is my body which is given for you : do this in remembrance of me. In like manner also, he took the cup after supper, saying, This cup is the new covenant in my blood, which is shed for you.

21 Yet, behold, the hand of him that delivereth me up is with me on the table.

22 And the Son of man goeth indeed, as it was determined : but alas for that man by whom he is delivered up ! Then they began to inquire among themselves, which of them was about to do this thing.

24 Now there had been a contention among them, which of them should be accounted the greatest. And he said to them, The kings of the Gentiles lord it over them ; and they that exercise arbitrary authority upon them are called benefactors. But ye ought not to do thus : but he that is greatest among you, let him be as the younger ; and he that is chief, as he that serveth. For which is greater ; he that is at table, or he that serveth ? is not he that is at table ? But I am among you as he that serveth.

28 Now ye are they who have continued with me in my trials. And as my father hath appointed unto me a kingdom, I appoint also to you, That ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

And the Lord said, Simon, Simon, behold, 31 Satan hath asked to sift you all as wheat : But I have prayed for thee, that thy faith 32 fail not utterly : and when thou hast returned, strengthen thy brethren. And he 33 said to him, Master, I am ready to go with thee, both to prison, and to death. And he said, I say to thee, Peter, the cock 34 will not crow this day, before thou have thrice denied that thou knowest me.

And he said to them, When I sent you 35 without purse, and bag, and shoes, wanted ye any thing ? And they said, ' Nothing.' Then he said to them, But now, he that 36 hath a purse, let him take it, and in like manner his bag, and he that hath no sword, let him sell his mantle, and buy one. For 37 I say to you, that this which is written must yet be accomplished in me, And he was reckoned among the transgressors : for the things concerning me will soon have an end. And they said, Master, behold, here are 38 two swords. And he said to them, It is enough.

And he came out, and went, as his 39 custom was, to the mount of Olives ; and his disciples also followed him. And when 40 he was at the place, he said to them, Pray that ye enter not into temptation. And he 41 had withdrawn from them about a stone's cast ; and he kneeled down, and prayed, Saying, Father, if thou wilt, take this cup 42 from me : nevertheless not my will but thine be done. And there appeared to him an 43 angel from heaven, strengthening him. And 44 being in an agony, he prayed more earnestly : and his sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground. And 45 when he had risen up from prayer, and come to his disciples, he found them asleep from sorrow. And said to them, Why sleep 46 ye ? rise and pray, lest ye enter into temptation.

14—17. The hour was come] The time of eating the passover-victim—Eat any more of it] Our Lord refers to his own supper, of which the passover was a distinguished type. According to a rule observed on that occasion, he took a cup, blessed God for the redemption of Israel, and then gave to the guests.

18—20. I shall not drink] See note, Matt. xxvi. 26.—Which is given for you] Pearce would render, 'This, which is given for you, is my body.'

21—23. Yet, behold, the hand] See notes, Matt. xxvi. 21, 25. Matthew gives a more full and particular account of this conversation.

24—30. There had been a] Compare Matt. xx. 17, &c.; Mark x. 32, 35, &c.—Called benefactors] The kings of Egypt affected the name Euergetes, or benefactor.

29, 30. As my father] The common version regards 'kingdom' as belonging to each clause of the verse ; and yet the latter verse specifies what it is which Christ appoints to his disciples.—Sit on thrones] Be the chief ministers in my spiritual kingdom ; and when I come in my glory to convert men, and to punish my enemies, ye shall concur in my righteous displeasure. See Matt. xix. 28.

31. To sift you as wheat] Our Lord refers, most probably, to all the apostles ; and many learned men think that in the first clause there is a reference to Job, chap. i.

32. Hast returned] That is, to me by repentance.

34. Not crow this day] Compare Matt. xxvi. 34 ; John xiii. 38. Mark xiv. 30.

35—38. When I sent you] See chap. ix. 2, &c.—No sword] The apostles seem to have brought two swords with them in their journey to Jerusalem, for the purpose of defending themselves against robbers.—Buy one] Our Lord never intended to make any resistance, as appears from verse 38. When he therefore said, 'buy one,' he meant only to apprise them of their own danger. Compare Matt. xxvi. 52, &c.

40. At the place] Gethsemane, a garden on the mount of Olives. See Matt. xxvi. 36, 37.

43, 44. There appeared to him] Paul, at least, refers to something like this agony, Heb. v. 7.—Sweat was as if it were great drops] It is not clear, from these words, whether the resemblance of his sweat to drops of blood be to the colour, or to the largeness of the drops of sweat. It may have been the latter ; but it may also have been the former, as cases

47 And while he was yet speaking, behold a multitude, and he that was called Judas, one of the twelve, went before them, and drew near to Jesus, to kiss him. And Jesus said to him, Judas, deliverest thou up the Son of man with a kiss? When those that were about him saw what would follow, they said to him, Master, shall we smite with the sword? And one of them smote a servant of the high priest, and cut off his right ear. And Jesus spoke and said, Let this suffice. And he touched his ear, and healed him. Then Jesus said to the chief priests, and captains of the temple, and the elders who came to him, Are ye come out as against a robber, with swords and clubs? When I was daily with you in the temple, ye did not stretch forth your hands against me: but this is your hour, and the power of darkness.

54 Then took they him, and led him away, and brought him into the high priest's house. And Peter followed at a distance.

55 And when they had kindled a fire in the midst of the court, and were sitting together, Peter sat down among them. But a certain maid-servant beheld him as he sat by the fire, and earnestly looked upon him, and said, This man was also with him. But he denied him, saying, Woman, I know him not. And a little while after another saw him, and said, Thou art also of them. And Peter said, Man, I am not. And about the space of one hour after, another confidently affirmed, saying, In truth this man also was with him: for he is a Galilean. And Peter said, Man, I know not what thou sayest. And immediately, while he was yet speaking, the cock crew. And the Lord turned, and looked upon Peter. And Peter remembered the word of the Lord, which he had said to him, Before the cock crew, thou wilt deny me thrice. And Peter went out, and wept bitterly.

63 And the men that held Jesus derided him, and smote him. And when they had blindfolded him, they struck him on the face, and asked him, saying, Prophecy, who is it that smote thee? And reviling they spoke many other things against him.

And as soon as it was day, the elders of 66 the people and the chief priests and the scribes assembled, and brought him into their council, saying, If thou be the Christ, tell us. And he said to them, If I tell you, ye will not believe: And if I also ask you, ye will not answer me, nor release me. Hereafter the Son of man will sit on the 69 right hand of the power of God. And they 70 all said, Art thou then the Son of God? And he said to them, Ye say truly, for I am. And they said, What need we any 71 further witness? for we ourselves have heard from his own mouth.

CHAPTER XXIII.

A. D. 33. Jesus accused before Pilate and sent to Herod, who mocketh him; Herod and Pilate made friends; Pilate releases Barabbas and gives up Jesus to be crucified; he foretells the ruin of Jerusalem, prays for his enemies; his death and burial.

AND the whole multitude of them rose 1 up, and led him to Pilate. And they began 2 to accuse him, saying, We found this man perverting the nation, and forbidding to give tribute to Cæsar, saying that he himself is Christ a King. And Pilate asked him, 3 saying, Art thou the King of the Jews? And he answered him and said, Thou sayest truly. Then said Pilate to the chief priests 4 and to the people, I find nothing faulty in this man. But they were the more violent, 5 saying, He stirreth up the people, teaching throughout all Judea, beginning from Galilee to this place. When Pilate heard 6 of Galilee, he asked whether the man were a Galilean. And as soon as he knew that he belonged to Herod's jurisdiction, he sent him to Herod, who himself also was at Jerusalem at that time.

And when Herod saw Jesus, he was very 8 glad: for he had long desired to see him, because he had heard many things of him; and he hoped to see some miracle wrought by him. Then he questioned Jesus in many 9 have occurred, when, through violent fears and agonies, the sweat has had the colour of blood. Aristotle, Galen, and others have related such instances.

47. Behold a multitude] See Matt. xxvi. 47; Mark xiv. 43.

49—51. Smite with the sword] It was Peter who thus spoke, John xviii. 10. It should seem he did not wait for our Lord's reply, but immediately smote with the sword. This was rash conduct in Peter, and might have been the destruction of all, had not Jesus healed the wound which he had given.

52. Captains of the temple] These were inferior Jewish officers, who commanded the divisions of the priests and levites, who attended the temple, and were themselves subject to a chief commander. See Acts iv. 1; v. 24.

56—60. Maid-servant] Matthew has given the answers of Peter in a somewhat different form, but the substance is the same, Matt. xxvi. 69—75.

63—65. And smote him] See Matt. xxvi. 67, &c.

66—71. And as soon] See Matt. xxvi. 58—68; Mark xiv. 53, &c.

CHAP. XXIII. 1. Multitude of them] That is, of the elders, chief priests, scribes, and their dependants; for the common people seem to have favoured the person and cause of Jesus.

2. Perverting the nation] Never was there a more barefaced falsehood than this. Jesus had not long before said, 'Render to Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's,' &c.

3. Thou sayest truly] See note, Matt. xxvi. 25, and 1 Tim. vi. 13.

5. He stirreth up the people] According to them, Jesus preached sedition, and disturbed the public tranquillity; but when or where had this occurred?

7—12. Was at Jerusalem] As a Jew, he was there to keep the passover. Luke only has related the incidents respecting Herod.

10 words; but he answered him nothing. And the chief priests and scribes stood and earnestly accused him. And Herod and his soldiers despised and derided him, and arrayed him in a gorgeous robe, and sent him again to Pilate. And on that day Pilate and Herod were made friends: for before they were at enmity.

13 And Pilate, when he had called together the chief priests and the rulers and the people, said to them, Ye have brought to me this man as one that perverteth the people: and, behold, I, having examined him before you, have found nothing faulty in this man concerning any of those things whereof ye accuse him: No, nor yet Herod: for I sent you to him; and, lo, nothing worthy of death hath been done by him. I will therefore chastise him, and release him. (For it was necessary, through custom, that he should release one to them at the feast.) But the whole multitude cried out at once, saying, Away with this man, and release unto us Barabbas; (Who, for a certain insurrection made in the city, and for murder, had been cast into prison.)

20 Pilate, therefore, desiring to release Jesus, spoke again to them. But they cried aloud, saying, Crucify him, crucify him. And he said to them the third time, Why what evil hath he done? I have found no cause of death in him: I will therefore chastise him, and release him. And they were urgent with loud voices, requesting that he might be crucified. And the voices of them and of the chief priests prevailed. And Pilate pronounced sentence that it should be as they desired. And he released unto them him who for insurrection and murder had been cast into prison, whom they had requested; but delivered up Jesus to their will.

26 And as they led him away, they laid hold upon one Simon, a Cyrenian, coming out of the country; and on him they laid the cross, that he might carry it after Jesus.

27 And there followed him a great company of people, and of women, who also lamented and bewailed him. But Jesus, turning to them, said, Daughters of Jerusalem, weep not for me, but weep for yourselves, and for your children. For, behold, the days are coming, in which it will be said, Blessed are the barren, and the wombs that never bare, and the breasts which never gave suck. Then will men begin to say to the 30 mountains, Fall on us; and to the hills, Cover us. For if these things be done to the green tree, what will be done to the dry? And two others also, who were malefactors, were led with him to be put to death.

And when they had come to the place which is called Calvary, [SKULL-PLACE,] they there crucified him, and the malefactors, one on the right hand, and the other on the left. Then said Jesus, Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do. And they parted among them his garments by casting lots. And the people stood beholding. And the rulers, together with the people, derided him, saying, He saved others, let him save himself, if he be the Christ, the chosen of God. And the soldiers also 36 derided him, coming to him, and offering him vinegar. And saying, If thou be the king of the Jews, save thyself. And an inscription was written over him in Greek, and Latin, and Hebrew letters, THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS.

And one of the malefactors that were crucified reviled him, saying, If thou be the Christ, save thyself and us. But the other answered and rebuked him, saying, Dost thou not fear God, since thou art in the same condemnation? And we indeed justly; 41 for we receive the due reward of our deeds: but this man hath done nothing amiss. Then he said to Jesus, Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom. And Jesus said to him, Verily I say to thee, To-day shalt thou be with me in paradise.

And about the sixth hour, there was darkness over the whole land until the ninth

13-25. And Pilate, when] Pilate perceived that our Lord was charged falsely, and that no proof was brought of the things stated against him. The whole body of the priests, elders, and those whom they could influence, were all combined in this work of blood; and the efforts of Pilate to release Jesus were in vain.

26. As they led him away] The soldiers of the governor. See Matt. xxvii. 27, 32.

28-30. Weep not for me] Not so much for me as for yourselves: and the reason of this follows, Hos. x. 8; Rev. vi. 16. He refers to the destruction of Jerusalem, when, from famine and slaughter, the barren should be deemed more happy than those who had children.

31. To the green tree] That is, to one as undeserving of punishment, as a green tree is unfit for burning.—To the dry tree] To one who deserves punishment, as a dry tree is fit for burning.

33-38. And when they were] Compare Matthew xxvii.

33, &c. Matthew has given a more circumstantial account of what passed during the crucifixion.

39. And one of the malefactors] Matthew says, they both railed on him, xxvii. 44; but it is usual to say, they did it, when only one is intended.

40-42. Dost thou not fear God?] This shows that he had a just sense of his own offence; and he was satisfied of the innocence of Jesus. Hence his very important request, 'Lord, remember me,' &c.

43. To-day shalt thou be] Some critics would remove the comma, I say to thee to-day, Thou shalt, &c. That is, at some future period. This is sanctioned neither by the sense of the text, nor by the authority of the Greek commentators. See Watts in loc. vol. i. Works; Campbell's Dissert. vi. Part 2. This is one of the many passages which support the opinion of the immediate happiness of the souls of good men after death.

45 hour. And the sun was darkened, and the veil of the temple was rent in the midst.
 46 And when Jesus had cried out with a loud voice, he said, Father, into thy hands I commit my spirit: and having said this, he 47 expired. Then the centurion, seeing what was done, glorified God, saying, Certainly 48 this was a righteous man. And all the multitudes who came together to that sight, beholding the things which were done, 49 smote their breasts, and returned. And all his acquaintance, and the women who had followed him from Galilee, standing at a distance, beheld these things.
 50 And, behold, there was a man named Joseph, a senator, of Arimathea, a city of the Jews, and he was a good and righteous
 51 man; And had not consented to the counsel and deed of the rest, and who himself also 52 looked for the kingdom of God. This man went to Pilate, and asked the body of Jesus.
 53 And he took it down, and wrapped it in linen, and laid it in a tomb cut in stone, in 54 which no man had ever yet been laid. And that day was the preparation day, and the sabbath drew on.

CHAPTER XXIV.

A. D. 33. Christ's resurrection declared to the women; who report it to others; he appears to two disciples in the way to Emmaus; then to the apostles, to whom he gives a charge, promiseth the Holy Spirit, and ascendeth to heaven.

55 AND the women also, who had come with him from Galilee, followed after, and beheld the sepulchre, and how his body was 56 laid. And they returned, and prepared spices and ointments; and rested on the sabbath, according to the commandment.
 1 But on the first day of the week, very early in the morning, they came to the sepulchre, bringing the spices which they had prepared, and some other women with 2 them. And they found the stone rolled 3 away from the sepulchre: And when they had entered in, they found not the body of 4 the Lord Jesus. And it came to pass, as they were much perplexed about this,

45. And the sun] Compare Matt. xxvii. 45—51, and notes.

49. And the women] Matt. xxvii. 55, &c.; Mark xv. 40, where several of these pious women are mentioned.

50, 51. A man named Joseph] The text of these verses is a little involved; but by a small transposition all becomes clear and coherent. See Matt. xxvii. 57.

53. Wrapped it in linen] See Matt. xxvii. 59.

54. That day was the preparation] Matt. xxvii. 62, and note.

CHAP. XXIV. 1. Bringing the spices] From this we learn that these women did not know what Joseph and Nicodemus had done. See John xix. 39, 40; or that what they had done was only preparative to a more complete embalment of the body.

4. Two men stood] Mark and Matthew mention only one angel, and the former calls him 'a young man,' whom he describes as sitting. One might at first appear in this posture, and then two as Luke describes.

behold, two men stood by them in shining garments: And as they were afraid, and bowed down their faces to the earth, they said to them, Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here, but is risen: remember how he spoke to you when he was yet in Galilee, Saying, The Son of man must be delivered up into the hands of sinners, and be crucified, and the third day rise again. And they remembered his words, And returned from the sepulchre, and told all these things unto the eleven, and to all the rest. Now it was Mary Magdalen, and Joanna, and Mary the mother of James, and the other women that were with them, who told these things to the apostles. And their words seemed to them as idle tales; and they believed them not. But Peter arose, and ran unto the sepulchre; and stooping down, he beheld the linen clothes laid by themselves, and departed, wondering in himself at that which had come to pass.

And, behold, two of the disciples went on that day to a village called Emmaus, which is distant from Jerusalem about sixty furlongs. And they conversed together of all those things which had happened. And it came to pass, that, while they conversed and reasoned, Jesus himself drew near, and went with them. But their eyes were so holden that they did not know him. And he said to them, What subjects are these about which ye converse with one another, as ye walk, and are dejected? And one of them, whose name was Cleopas, answered and said to him, Art thou the only sojourner in Jerusalem, that hast not known the things which are come to pass there in these days? And he said to them, What things? And they said to him, Concerning Jesus of Nazareth, who was a prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people: And how the chief priests and our rulers delivered him up to be condemned to death, and crucified him. But we trusted that it had been he who 21

5. Among the dead] That is, in a place where it was usual to lay the dead.

10. And Joanna] She was the wife of Chuza, Herod's steward, chap. viii. 3.

13. Two of the disciples] From verse 18th to 30th, it appears that Cleopas was one of the two; but neither he nor the other were apostles, as is manifest from verse 33.—Sixty furlongs] So Josephus also asserts. About seven of our miles.

16. Were so holden] See Mark xvi. 12, and note; from which place it is probable they did not know him, either because he appeared in a different dress, or because he assumed a different countenance.

20. And crucified him] The Jews are justly said to have done this, because they accused him falsely, and because Pilate delivered him up to their will, chap. xxiii. 25; Acts ii. 36; iv. 10.

21. Redeemed Israel] From the Roman yoke, and set up a temporal kingdom. Such were the hopes of our Lord's should have redeemed Israel: and besides all this, to-day is the third day since these things were done. Moreover, some women also of our company have astonished us, who were early at the sepulchre; And when they found not his body, they came, saying, that they had also seen a vision of angels, who said that he was alive. And some of those who were with us went to the sepulchre, and found it even so as the women had said: but him they saw not.

Then he said to them, O unwise, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken! Ought not the Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory? Then beginning at Moses and proceeding through all the prophets, he explained to them, in all the scriptures, the things concerning himself. And they drew near to the town, whither they were going: and he made a show as though he was going farther. But they urged him, saying, Abide with us; for it is towards evening, and the day is fast spent. And he went in to abide with them. And it came to pass, as he was at meat with them, that he took bread, and blessed, and broke it, and gave to them. And their eyes were opened, and they knew him; but he disappeared. Then they said one to another, Did not our heart burn within us, while he talked with us on the way, and while he explained to us the scriptures? And they rose up that very hour, and returned to Jerusalem, and found the eleven gathered together, and those that were with them, Saying, The Lord is risen indeed, and hath appeared to Simon.

And they told what things had happened on the way, and how he was known by them in the breaking of bread.

disciples: they dreamed of earthly things, until the Spirit corrected their mistakes, and taught them the spiritual nature of the gospel.

21. Some of those who] These were Peter and John. John xv. 2, &c.

25. Slow of heart] Or, with difficulty giving credit, being hard of belief in what all the prophets, &c.

26. Ought not the Christ] According to what the prophets had said of him, Is. liii. 1, &c.; Dan. ix. 26. It is also manifest that Moses had written things which referred to Messiah.

31. Their eyes were opened] That is, they then began to know him; they perceived, either from his voice or manner in blessing God and distributing the bread, that it was he.

32. Burn within us] With love and admiration of such a teacher: with hope and joy, when the resurrection and glory of Christ were thus forcibly represented.

34. Saying, The Lord] That is, the apostles said, 'The Lord hath risen indeed, and hath appeared to Simon.' Paul mentions this appearance to Peter, 1 Cor. xv. 5. The testimony of the two disciples would confirm the fact. To reconcile what is here said with Mark x. 13, we must suppose that 'the rest were some of the apostles and other disciples, whom the two, who had been to Emmaus, met and told what had occurred, but they did not believe. Some time after Jesus appeared to Simon, and all the apostles being together, he related to them this appearance; and the two disciples also repeated how Jesus had appeared to

And while they were thus speaking, 36 Jesus himself stood in the midst of them, and saith to them, Peace be unto you. But they were terrified and affrighted, and supposed that they beheld a spirit. And 38 he said to them, Why are ye troubled? and why do thoughts arise in your hearts? Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I 39 myself: handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye behold that I have. And when he had thus spoken, 40 he showed them his hands and his feet. And while they still believed not through 41 joy and wondered, he said to them, Have ye here any food? And they gave him a 42 piece of a broiled fish, and of an honey-comb. And he took it, and ate before them. 43 And he said to them, These are the words 44 which I spoke to you, while I was yet with you, that all things must be fulfilled, which were written in the law of Moses, and in the prophets, and in the psalms, concerning me. Then opened he their mind, 45 that they might understand the scriptures, And said to them, Thus it is written, and 46 thus the Christ ought to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day: And repen- 47 tance and remission of sins ought to be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem. Now ye are wit- 48 nesses of these things; And behold I 49 send you that which the Father hath promised: but abide ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high.

And he led them out as far as Bethany; 50 and he lifted up his hands, and blessed them. And it came to pass, while he 51 blessed them, he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven. And they 52 them, when all present were satisfied, and cordially believed.

36. Jesus himself] This was his first appearance to the disciples in a body, mentioned by John xx. 10, &c.

39. My hands and my feet] He referred to these as having still the print of the nails by which he had been fastened to the cross.

41. Have ye any food] Luke has only mentioned one appearance of our Lord to all his disciples, while John has related three. The circumstance here related, appears to be what John relates, xxi. 13, and to have occurred in Galilee.

44. These are the words] Compare ch. ix. 22, 44; xviii. 31—33.—Law of Moses] The law of Moses, the prophets, and the Psalms, contained the whole of the Old Testament, according to the Jewish way of speaking.

47. And repentance] Our Lord gives in his words the sense of some of the prophecies; and what he had frequently taught, during his ministry.—Beginning at Jerusalem] This is a remarkable circumstance, and shows the kindness of the risen Saviour, as well as tends to establish the truth of Christianity. In that city where he was crucified our Lord raised the first Christian church.

49. With power from] That is, with gifts of the Holy Spirit. See Acts i. 4.

50. He led them out] Nearly forty days had passed from the appearance mentioned, verse 36, before Jesus ascended, during which time the disciples had gone into Galilee ac-worshipped him, and returned to Jerusalem 53 with great joy : And were continually in the temple, praising and blessing God. Amen.

cording to his order, and he appeared to them there. Luke has given no account of these things.

32. And they worshipped] Now if Jesus had ascended before they rendered this act of homage, I conceive they must have intended it as an act of worship strictly so called ; for how they could do obeisance to one absent, without supposing him some way acquainted with what they did, or admitting him to be a divine person, is difficult to conceive. Nor can it be said that they paid this homage, 'while he was ascending;' for according to Acts i. 9, 10, they continued to look up towards heaven, until the angels addressed them. They must then have worshipped him after he had ascended.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO ST. JOHN.

INTRODUCTION.

THE Gospel by JOHN, according to all antiquity, was composed and published the last of the four ; and not long before the beginning of the war with the Romans, which terminated in the destruction of Jerusalem, and the dispersion of the Jews. John uniformly speaks of himself in the third person, or by a periphrasis. His style is simple, and abounds in a peculiar kind of antithesis. There can be little doubt but he had seen the other three gospels ; and for this reason he has omitted the facts and miracles which are there recorded. His Gospel may, therefore, be considered, not as a full history of all that Jesus said and did ; but as containing what the others had omitted ; and especially what occurred after his baptism by John, and the many interesting discourses which he delivered in answer to the objections of the Scribes and Pharisees. He has given to Jesus the peculiar title of 'The Logos, or Word,' and ascribes to him the creation of all things. From the manner in which he speaks of the Jews, it is evident that he wrote his Gospel not in Judea, and among his own people, but in some other country ; and the ancients inform us that he dwelt at Ephesus, and having lived to a great age, he died a natural death, and was buried there, in the reign of the Emperor Trajan.

CHAPTER I.

A. D. 30. The divinity, humanity and office of Christ ; the testimony of John ; the calling of Andrew, Peter and other disciples.

- 1 IN the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word
- 2 was God. He was in the beginning with
- 3 God. All things were made by him ; and without him was not any thing made that
- 4 was made. In him was life ; and the life
- 5 was the light of men. And the light shone in darkness ; but the darkness admitted it not.
- 6 There was a man sent from God, whose
- 7 name was John. He came for a testimony, to testify of the Light, so that through him all might believe. He was not that 8 Light, but was sent to testify of that Light. The true Light was that, which, coming 9 into the world, enlighteneth every man. He was in the world, and the world was 10 made by him, yet the world knew him not. He came to his own land, and his own 11 people received him not. But as many as 12 received him, to them he gave the right to become the children of God, even to those that believed on his name ; Who were born, 13 not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God.

And the Word became flesh, and dwelt 14 among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the CHAP. I. 1. The Word] John speaks of his Lord in language suitable to his dignity as a Divine person. It is probable he is thus called as being the person described, Prov. viii. &c. He was 'in the beginning.' He existed before any part of the universe, or from eternity. See Gen. i. 1.—And the Word was God] See Is. vii. 14 ; ix. 6 ; John x. 33—36 ; Rom. ix. 5 ; Phil. ii. 6.

2. He was in] This reflection, as Newcome observes, is very emphatical.—With God] John had affirmed he was God, and with God ; and he repeats the latter to impress the fact more strongly on the mind. He does not even attempt to explain how He is God and yet with God.

3. All things were made] The primary sense of ἐποίησε is, were, existed, became, &c. Now the first conveys the sense given. 'All things were, or existed by him,' &c. See verse 10, and Heb. xi. 3 ; James iii. 9.

4. In him was life] He, as God, possessed the power of bringing into existence, and giving life by creation.—And the life] Or he who had life, was the light of men. He became incarnate, and dwelt among men, to enlighten them and teach them the way of salvation.

5. In darkness] That is ascribed to darkness, which, properly speaking, belongeth to men whose understandings were dark ; as in the former verse that is said concerning life, which could only belong to him in whom this life was.

6—8. To testify of that Light] It was the office of John to preach and testify of Jesus the light ; and however useful his ministry might be, he assured them that he was not the light, but only as the morning star to usher it in.

9. Was that, which] The reason for thus construing the text may be seen in Campbell's note.—Enlighteneth every] Affords the means of being instructed, both to Jew and Gentile.

11. Own land] What is added in italic, the genders of the adnouns clearly signify. Judea is called Immanuel's land, Is. viii. 8, because he was to be born there ; and the Jews his people, because, as to his human nature, he was to be one of them.

13. Not of blood] Not by their natural birth or descent from Abraham.—Nor of the will of] These two clauses are nearly synonymous ; the first denoting the natural inclination to marry, and the second the will of man choosing and marrying.—But of God] By his Spirit and truth. See chap. iii. &c.

14. The Word became] That glorious person, called the Word, 'became incarnate,' and dwelt in our nature, as in 15 Father,) full of grace and truth. John testified of him, and cried, saying, This is he of whom I spoke, He that cometh after me is preferred to me: for he was before me.

 16 And of his fulness we all have received;
 17 and grace upon grace. For the law was given by Moses, but the grace and the 18 truth came by Jesus the Christ. No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him.
 19 Now this is the testimony of John, when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask him, Who art thou? And he confessed, and denied not; but confessed, 21 I am not the Christ. And they asked him, Who then? Art thou Elijah? And he saith, I am not. Art thou the prophet? And he 22 answered, No. Then said they to him, Who art thou? that we may give an answer to them that sent us. What sayest 23 thou of thyself? He said, I am the voice of one crying in the desert, Make straight the way of the Lord, as said the prophet 24 Isaiah. And those who had been sent were 25 of the Pharisees. Then they asked him, and said to him, Why baptizest thou then, if thou be not the Christ, nor Elijah, nor 26 the prophet? John answered them, saying, I baptize with water: but there standeth 27 one among you, whom ye know not; He it is, who cometh after me, [is preferred before me,] whose shoe I latchet I am not worthy to 28 unloose. These things passed in "Bethany" beyond the Jordan, where John was baptizing.
 29 The next day John seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, Behold the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sin of the world.
 30 This is he of whom I said, After me cometh

a man who is preferred to me: for he was before me. And I knew him not; but to 31 the end that he might be made manifest to Israel, therefore am I come baptizing with water. And John testified, saying, I saw 32 the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove; and it abode upon him. And I knew 33 him not; but he that sent me to baptize with water, had said to me, Upon whom thou shalt see the Spirit descending, and abiding upon him, this is he who baptizeth with the Holy Spirit. And I saw, and testify that this is the Son of God.

On the next day John was standing, and 35 two of his disciples; And looking upon 36 Jesus as he walked, he saith, Behold the Lamb of God. And the two disciples heard 37 him speak, and followed Jesus. Then 38 Jesus turned, and saw them following, and saith to them, What seek ye? They said to him, Rabbi, (which is, being interpreted, Teacher,) where dwellest thou? He saith 39 to them, Come and see. They went and saw where he dwelt, and abode with him that day: for it was about the tenth hour. One of the two who heard John speak, and 40 followed Jesus, was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother. The first he met was his own 41 brother Simon, and he said to him, We have found the Messiah, (which denoteth, the Christ.) And he brought him to Jesus. 42 And when Jesus beheld him, he said, Thou art Simon the son of Jonah; thou shalt be called Cephas, which is the same as Peter, [A STONE.]

The next day Jesus resolved to go into 43 Galilee, and meeting Philip, said to him, Follow me. Now Philip was of Bethsaida, 44 the city of Andrew and Peter. Philip meet- 45 eth Nathanael, and saith to him, We have a tent or tabernacle.—Beheld his glory] When he was transfigured, Matt. xvii. 1—5, and 2 Pet. i. 17. John only uses the term 'only begotten,' in reference to our Lord. The Sept. use it for יחיד Ps. xxii. 20; and often render the same word ἀγαπῶτος, 'beloved,' Gen. xxii. 1, 12, 16.—Full of grace] He was himself most kind and gracious, and made the most ample discoveries of pardon and grace to men.—He was before me] That is, existed before me; and as this was not true of Jesus as man (John being the elder) it must be regarded as the Baptist's testimony to his divinity.

16. Of his fulness] They had received the gifts of the Spirit—knowledge, wisdom, power, &c.—Upon grace] For this sense of αἰν see Pearce's note.

17. The grace and the truth] In the same manner as Moses had been the medium of communicating the law to the Israelites, so has Christ in communicating the doctrines of grace and truth to his people, Exod. xxxiii. 20.

18. No man hath seen] God is invisible to us; but Jesus has particularly revealed his character, purposes, &c. And he was well qualified to do it, as most intimately acquainted with all his designs. The allusion is to the most favoured guest, ch. xiii. 23; Luke xvi. 22, 23.

21. Art thou Elijah] The Jews, from what the prophet Malachi had said, expected Elijah literally to come again, and to their question in this sense John truly answers in the negative; for he was not the person of Elijah, but one sent in the power and spirit of that reformer, Matt. xi. 14.—The prophet] Beside Elijah, they had some expectation of another prophet arising among them, as appears from this verse, and from ch. vi. 40, 41. See Deuter. xviii. 15—19.

25. Why baptizest thou] They thought that his baptizing, without being the Christ, or Elijah, or the prophet, was assuming authority altogether unwarrantable.

28. Bethany] Griesbach hath adopted this reading. This Bethany is distinguished from that near Jerusalem, by the explanatory words, 'beyond or on the Jordan.' After his temptation Jesus had returned to the place where John was still baptizing beyond the Jordan, and John relates what occurred there.

29—34. The next day] After John had replied to the questions of the priests.—Knew him not] John might know Jesus as of the same family, as a holy man, and probably as a prophet, but not as the Christ, until his baptism, Matt. iii. 14.

36. Lamb of God] So called from his gentleness, but especially as appointed for sacrifice. As the lamb was the daily offering in the temple, this allusion might be easily understood.

40. Andrew, Simon] It is generally supposed that our Evangelist was the other disciple; but from modesty he does not mention himself.

45. Nathanael] See note, Luke vi. 14.—Moses in the law] According to the opinion of these plain and upright men, both Moses and the prophets had written of the Messiah, and that Jesus of Nazareth was he.

found him of whom Moses in the law, and the prophets also, wrote, Jesus of Nazareth, 46 the son of Joseph. Then Nathanael said to him, Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth? Philip saith to him, 47 Come and see. Jesus saw Nathanael coming to him, and saith of him, Behold an Israelite indeed, in whom is no guile! 48 Nathanael saith to him, Whence knowest thou me? Jesus answered and said to him, Before Philip called thee, when thou wast 49 under the fig-tree, I saw thee. Nathanael answered and said to him, Rabbi, thou art the Son of God; thou art the king of Is- 50 rael. Jesus answered and said to him, Because I said to thee, I saw thee under the fig-tree, believest thou? thou shalt see 51 greater things than these. Then he saith to him, Verily, verily, I say to you, Hereafter ye shall see heaven open, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of man.

CHAPTER II.

A. D. 30. Water turned into wine; Jesus goeth up to Jerusalem; and expels the buyers and sellers from the temple; foretells his own death, and works miracles.

1 AND the third day there was a marriage-feast in Cana of Galilee; and the mother 2 of Jesus was there: And Jesus, and his disciples were invited to the marriage-feast. 3 And when the wine failed, the mother of 4 Jesus saith to him, They have no wine. Jesus saith to her, Woman, what hast thou to do with me? My hour is not yet come. 5 His mother saith to the servants, Whatso- 6 ever he saith to you, do it. Now there were six waterpots of stone, containing two or three baths a piece, placed there for the purpose of cleansing, according to the rite 7 of the Jews. Jesus saith to them, Fill the waterpots with water. And they filled them up to the brim. Then he saith to 8 them, Draw out now, and carry unto the governor of the feast. And they carried it. When the governor of the feast had tasted 9 the water which had been made wine, and knew not whence it was: (but the servants who drew the water knew:) the governor of the feast called the bridegroom, And 10 saith to him, Every man at first setteth on good wine; and when men have drunk plentifully, then that which is worse; but thou hast kept the good wine until now. This beginning of miracles Jesus made in 11 Cana of Galilee, and manifested his glory: and his disciples believed on him.

After this he went down to Capernaum, 12 he, and his mother, and his brethren, and his disciples; but they did not remain there many days.

And the passover of the Jews was near; 13 and Jesus went up to Jerusalem, And found 14 in the temple those who sold oxen and sheep and doves, and the money-changers 15 sitting: And, when he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove all out of the temple, both the sheep and oxen; and poured out the money of the exchangers, and overturned the tables; And said to 16 those who sold doves, Take these things hence; make not my Father's house a house of merchandise. And his disciples 17 remembered that it was written, The zeal of thy house eateth me up.

Then the Jews spoke and said to him, 18 What sign showest thou unto us, since thou doest these things? Jesus answered and 19 said to them, Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up. Then said 20 the Jews, Forty-six years was this temple in building, and wilt thou raise it up in

46. Can there any good thing] It is the common opinion, that Nathanael reflects on Nazareth as a wicked and ungodly city.

48. Under the fig-tree] Where, most probably, Nathanael had been performing some private act of devotion.

49. Son of God] He was assured, by what Jesus said, that he possessed supernatural knowledge; knew both his character and private actions; and Philip might have communicated to him the Baptist's testimony, ver. 32—36.

50. Greater things] It was a great thing to know secret actions; but knowledge and miracles, far more wonderful, followed in the course of our Lord's ministry.

51. Heaven open] They should have proofs of an intercourse between him and heaven; and of the ministration of angels unto him, Matt. xvii. 5, &c.; John xii. 28. Some have thought that there is an allusion to the vision of Jacob, Gen. xxviii. 42, &c.

CHAP. II. 1. Cana of Galilee] See Josh. xix. 28. This belonged to Asher; and as there was another of that name in Cœlœsryia, according to Josephus, it is mentioned as being in Galilee for the sake of precision.—The mother of Jesus] It has been very probably supposed that this marriage was celebrated at the house of Cleopas or Alpheus, whose wife was sister, or rather cousin, to the mother of our Lord, John xix. 25. This opinion is strengthened by the 12th verse. Doddridge also supposes that, as Mary is spoken of alone, Joseph was now dead.

4. Woman, what hast] This was not considered disrespectful in ancient times, as we learn from Xenophon, Dion. Cass. &c. As for the idiomatical expression, see Sept. Josh. xxii. 24; Judg. xi. 12.—My hour is not come] By this reply, he assures her that he would not gratify curiosity, but at the proper time would do as he thought fit.

5—10. His mother saith] The failure of wine might occur from the unexpected number of guests; or from the advanced time of the feast, which probably lasted seven days, Gen. xxix. 27; Judg. xiv. 12. In either case, to supply the deficiency in no way derogates from the honour of our Lord.—Drunk plentifully] This remark of the governor of the feast only shows what was customary; but gives no countenance to intemperance.

11. His glory] That is, his power, which tended greatly to establish the faith of his disciples.

13—17. And the passover] This passover was the first Jesus attended after he had begun his public ministry; and his cleansing the temple different from that related by Matt. xxi. 12.

18. What sign showest] What evidence dost thou give of having a divine commission?

19 Destroy this temple] He probably pointed with his hand to his own body; but as many did not see this action, they understood him to speak of Herod's temple. The imperative form is used for the future, Ye will destroy, &c.

20. Forty-six years] Herod the Great began to rebuild

- 21 three days? But he spoke concerning the 22 temple of his body. When therefore he was risen from the dead, his disciples remembered that he had said this; and they believed the scripture, and the word which Jesus had spoken.
- 23 Now while he was in Jerusalem during the feast of the passover, many believed on his name, when they saw the miracles 24 which he did. But Jesus did not trust himself to them, because he knew all of 25 them; And needed not that any should give a character of any man: for he knew what was in man.

CHAPTER III.

A. D. 30. Nicodemus taught the nature and necessity of regeneration; of faith and unbelief; the baptism, witness, and doctrine of John concerning Christ.

- 1 Now there was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews:
 2 This man came to Jesus by night, and said to him, Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God: for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, unless 3 God be with him. Jesus answered and said to him, Verily, verily, I say to thee, Unless a man be born again, he cannot see 4 the kingdom of God. Nicodemus saith to him, How can a man be born when he is old? can he enter a second time into his 5 mother's womb, and be born? Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say to thee, Unless the chief parts of the temple in the 18th year of his reign; and though it was in a great measure completed in nine years, additions and improvements had been made up to this time, and were continued for nearly forty years more. See Josephus's Antiq. xv. 11, and xx. 8, &c.

22. Believed the scripture. They had not understood it before his resurrection; but by that event it was made plain, Psalm xvi. 10; Acts ii. 31.

23—25. The miracles. That miracles were now wrought we are not informed; but some were induced, in consequence of them, so to believe as to admit him at least to be a teacher sent from God.—Trust himself. So as to confide in the steadfastness of their conviction, and of their present favourable opinion of him.

CHAP. III. 1. A ruler of the Jews. A magistrate, and member of the great Sanhedrim, ch. vii. 50.

2. Came to Jesus by night. Before he returned from the feast, Nicodemus paid our Lord this 'visit by night,' probably for fear of his brethren, whose prejudices began already to be manifest.

3—5. Jesus answered. Nicodemus, as a Pharisee, was with the rest of that sect expecting a temporal kingdom to be set up when Messiah appeared; and our Lord informs him, that unless a man be born again, he the subject of a spiritual change, he cannot be a subject of Messiah's kingdom. Nicodemus, not perceiving the design of our Lord, says, 'How can a man,' &c. Our Lord corrects his misapprehension, and informs him that the new birth of which he was speaking, was of a spiritual nature.

6. Of the flesh is flesh. That flesh sometimes means man as mortal, is clear from many instances; but here it certainly signifies man as degenerate, and enslaved to animal appetites and passions. Compare Gen. vi. 3; Rom. viii. 8; Gal. v. 17—24.—Born of the Spirit. Through the agency of the Spirit, a change is effected in the mind, and a holy and spiritual bias is imparted to the heart. Spirit seems put for a spiritual man. 1 John iv. 1, 2.

8. The wind bloweth. Our Lord illustrates the subject, a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit. Wonder not that I said to thee, Ye must be born again. The wind bloweth where it will, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but knowest not whence it cometh, or whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit. Nicodemus answered and said to him, How can these things be? Jesus answered and said to him, Art thou a teacher of Israel, and knowest not these things? Verily, verily, I say to thee, We speak that which we know, and testify that which we have seen; yet ye receive not our testimony. If I have told you earthly things, and ye believe not, how will ye believe, if I tell you heavenly things? Now no man hath ascended up to heaven, unless he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man who is in heaven. And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the desert, even so must the Son of man be lifted up, That whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved. He who believeth in him shall not be condemned, but shows that it is attended with circumstances for which we cannot account. The wind bloweth in all directions as it happeneth; its sound is heard, and its effects are seen; but who can tell whence it arises, or where it dies away? So the effects of the Spirit are sensible, in the exercise of faith, love, &c., but its mode of operation is unknown, and the reason why he acts on one object and not another is to us inscrutable.

10. Art thou a teacher. With wonder he said, 'How can these things be?' Jesus asks, 'Art thou a teacher,' &c. The prophets had frequently spoken of the influences of the Spirit, Is. xlvii. 3—5; Jer. xxxi. 33, 34; Ezek. xxxvi. 22, 27.

11. Which we have seen. Jesus maintains this power of the Spirit in those already called and converted to him; such as Nathanael and others, chap. i. 37, &c.

12. If I have told you. Of things more easy and plain, and which are occurring to men on earth.—Heavenly things. High and mysterious things, such as his descent from heaven to instruct us—his divine nature as being in heaven—the design of his death that he might save us from our sins.

13. Now no man. No one hath gone there to search into the secret counsels of God, Deuter. xxx. 12; Rom. x. 6.—Unless he that came. The first clause is simply negative, that no man has ascended up to, &c. It refers to a real ascent, but denies that any man hath made it; and the second refers to a real descent, that of the Word, which became incarnate, and by reason of which, he who was the Son of man on earth, was also in heaven.

14, 15. As Moses lifted up. See Numb. xxi. 8, 9. That our Lord refers to his crucifixion is evident, from chap. viii. 28; xii. 32, 34; but the great point of similitude is in the manner of healing and saving, which in both instances is, by believing regards to something lifted up for that purpose by Divine appointment.

16—21. God so loved. Jesus urges the gift of himself as the greatest instance of God's kind regard to man-

demned; but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed on the name of the only begotten 19 Son of God. And this is the condemnation, that the light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than the light, 20 because their deeds were evil. For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, and cometh not to the light, lest his deeds
 21 should be discovered. But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest, that they are wrought in God.
 22 After these things Jesus and his disciples came into the land of Judea; and there he 23 tarried with them, and baptized. And John also was baptizing in Ænon, near Salim, because much water was there: and 24 they came, and were baptized. For John was not yet cast into prison.
 25 Then arose a question between some of John's disciples and a Jew, about purifying.
 26 And they came unto John, and said to him, Rabbi, he that was with thee beyond the Jordan, to whom thou borest testimony, behold, the same baptizeth, and all men 27 come to him. John answered and said, A man can receive nothing, unless it be 28 given him from heaven. Ye yourselves are witnesses for me that I said, I am not 29 the Christ, but am sent before him. The bridegroom is he who hath the bride; but the friend of the bridegroom, who standeth and heareth him, rejoiceth greatly because 30 of the bridegroom's voice: this my joy therefore is fulfilled. He must increase, 31 but I must decrease. He that cometh from above is above all: he who is from the earth is earthly, and speaketh as from the earth: he that cometh from heaven is above all. And what he hath seen and 32 heard, that he testifieth; and yet none receiveth his testimony. He that hath re-33 ceived his testimony hath set to his seal that God is true. For he whom God hath 34 sent speaketh the words of God; for God giveth not the Spirit by measure to him. The Father loveth the Son, and hath given 35 all things into his hand. He that believeth

 36 on the Son hath everlasting life: but he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him.

CHAPTER IV.

A. D. 30. Christ converseth with a woman of Samaria; the disciples wonder at this; he declareth his zeal for God's glory; many Samaritans believe; he departeth unto Galilee, and healeth the ruler's son.

WHEN therefore the Lord knew that the
 1 Pharisees had heard that he made and baptized more disciples than John, (Though 2 Jesus himself baptized not, but his disciples,) He left Judea, and went again into 3 Galilee. Now he must needs go through 4 Samaria. He therefore cometh to a city
 5 of Samaria, called Sychar, near to the portion of land which Jacob gave to his son Joseph. Now Jacob's well was there. So
 6 Jesus, being wearied with his journey, sat down by the well; and it was about the sixth hour. And a woman of Samaria 7 cometh to draw water. Jesus saith to her, Give me to drink. (For his disciples had 8 gone to the city to buy food.) Then the 9

kind, Rom. v. 8; Heb. ii. 9; and 1 John iii. 16; iv. 9, 10.—In God. By Divine aid, and are according to the will of God.

22. Came into the land. From Jerusalem to some part of the land of Judea, as then distinguished from Samaria, Galilee, and Peræa.—Baptized. Not personally, but by his disciples, chap. iv. 2.

23. Ænon, near Salim. According to Eusebius, Ænon was eight miles from Scythopolis, southward, near to Salim and the Jordan.—Much water. Or more literally, 'many streams.' The meaning of the term is unquestionably 'a fountain'; and this was divided, most probably, into many small streams, for the purpose of watering the contiguous grounds. Had John gone there for the purpose of immersion only, he might have performed the rite better in the Jordan, near to which Ænon (the fountain) was.

25. A Jew, about purifying. The best MSS. and some versions read in the singular. Kypke maintains some of John's followers had questioned the right and propriety of any other than he baptizing; and they came to John to receive his opinion, chap. i. 15—34.

29. The friend of the. The bridegroom is the principal person; but John, as his friend, could and would rejoice in hearing his voice, and witnessing his happiness.

31, 32. Cometh from above. If coming from above, or from heaven, meant only receive a Divine commission, then John came from above, or from heaven, as well as Jesus, chap. i. 6; and the evident contrast here intended is destroyed. The preeminence of Christ is stated as resting on this coming from above; on this account he is above all prophets and teachers, because he testifieth what he hath seen and heard.

33. He that hath received. When we consider this in connexion with the close of the last verse, we clearly see that such hyperboles as all for many, and none for a few, are common in the scriptures.

34. The Spirit by measure. Jesus, as man, possessed the powers and inspiration of the Spirit in the fullest degree, and at all times; while others in limited measure, and only at particular times. Hence all that he said must be regarded as Divine.

CHAP. IV. 1. The Lord knew. What had passed, chap. iii. 25, 26, having been related to him; and that the circumstance had been also related to the jealous Pharisees.

2. Himself baptized not. There was a dignity in this manner; and by this Jesus showed his superiority to John, who baptized in person. This baptism must consider the same as John's baptism, binding to repentance, and referring to the Messiah as about to be manifested.

3. He left Judea. After having abode there about eight months. This appears from verse 35. For harvest began soon after the passover, Levit. xxii. 10, 15; and now there were only four months to harvest.

4. Must needs go. Both because it was the nearest road to Galilee, and because he knew for what purpose he was about to visit that city.

5. Sychar. This was anciently called Shechem. See Gen. xxxiii. 18, 19; xxxv. 4; xlviii. 22; and from Judg. ix. 7, appears to have been situated at the foot of mount Gerizim. The Jews called it Sychar, the city of drunkards, by way of reproach.

6. Jacob's well. So called because he had made use of it. Maundrel says it is about three yards in diameter and thirty-five in depth, five of which were found full of water.

Samaritan woman saith to him, Why dost thou, being a Jew, ask drink of me, who am a Samaritan? for the Jews have no friendly dealings with the Samaritans.

10 Jesus answered and said to her, If thou knewest the gift of God, and who he is that saith to thee, Give me to drink; thou wouldst have asked of him, and he would

11 have given thee life-giving water. The woman saith to him, Sir, thou hast no vessel to draw with, and the well is deep: whence then canst thou have that life-

12 giving water? Art thou greater than our father Jacob, who gave us the well, and drank thereof himself, and his children, and his cattle? Jesus answered and said to her,

13 Whosoever drinketh of this water will thirst again: But whosoever shall drink of the water which I shall give him shall no more thirst; but the water which I will give him shall be in him a fountain of water springing up to everlasting life.

15 The woman saith to him, Sir, give me this water, that I thirst not, nor come hither to draw. Jesus saith to her, Go, call thy

16 husband, and come hither. The woman answered and said, I have no husband. Jesus saith to her, Thou hast rightly said,

18 I have no husband: For thou hast had five husbands; and he whom thou now hast is not thy husband: in this thou hast

19 spoken truly. The woman saith to him, Sir, I perceive that thou art a prophet.

20 Our fathers worshipped on this mountain; and ye say, that in Jerusalem is the place

21 where men ought to worship. Jesus saith to her, Woman, believe me, the hour cometh, when ye shall worship the Father neither on this mountain, nor yet at Je-

22 rusalem. Ye worship what ye know not: we worship what we know: for salvation is

23 from the Jews. But the hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for such are they whom the Father seeketh to worship him. God is a Spirit, and they 24 that worship him, must worship him in spirit and in truth. The woman saith to 25 him, I know that the Messiah cometh, (which signifieth the Christ:) when he is come, he will tell us all things. Jesus 26 saith to her, I who speak unto thee am he.

And upon this his disciples came, and 27 wondered that he talked with the woman: yet none said, What seekest thou? or, Why talkest thou with her? The woman 28 then left her waterpot, and went into the city, and saith to the men, Come, see a 29 man, who hath told me all things that ever I did: is not this the Christ? Then 30 they went out of the city, and came unto him.

In the mean time his disciples besought 31 him, saying, Master, eat. But he said to 32 them, I have food to eat which ye know not of. Then said the disciples one to an- 33 other, Hath any man brought him aught to eat? Jesus saith to them, My food is to 34 do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work. Say not ye, There are yet 35 four months, and then cometh harvest? behold, I say to you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields, for they are already white for harvest. And he who reapeth 36 receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit to everlasting life: that both he who soweth and he who reapeth may rejoice together. And herein is that saying true, One soweth, 37 and another reapeth. I send you to reap 38 that on which ye have bestowed no labour: other men have laboured, and ye have entered into their labours.

And many of the Samaritans of that 39 city believed on him for the saying of the —Sixth hour] Or noon. Jesus was wearied with his journey, and here rested, until his disciples returned from the town with provision.

9. No friendly dealings] This is clearly the sense; for in a way of trade it seems they had dealings, as the 8th verse proves.

10. The gift of God] The sense is, 'if thou knewest what God can bestow, and that I am the Christ, thou wouldst have asked of me to teach thee and save thee; to give thee the life-giving water of my Spirit and truth.'

11. No vessel to draw] Understanding Christ as speaking of spring-water, and perceiving he had no vessel to draw with, as travellers usually had, she asks, whence he could have this water.

14. A fountain of water] Divine grace and knowledge would assuage the restless desires of the mind, and be like an overflowing fountain of holy exercises and affections.

16. Call thy husband] Jesus finding the woman not capable of understanding his allusion, now touches on a subject, which made her sensible that he was a prophet.

18. Hast had five] The practice of divorcing wives was so common, and of others marrying them, that we need not wonder that this woman had been five times married. She was now living with a man as a wife, without having observed the usual form of marriage.

19, 20. I perceive that] She knew that he must be one, from the supernatural knowledge which he had discovered; and asked the question which divided so much the Jews and the Samaritans, which was the true place of worship, Samaria or Jerusalem.

21—24. The hour cometh] When neither Samaria nor Jerusalem shall have any preference.—Ye worship what] They rejected the writings of the prophets, and their knowledge was much inferior to that of the Jews.—Salvation is] The Saviour must spring from the tribe of Judah and the house of David.

25. Tell us all things] This shows that the Samaritans were expecting the Messiah would soon come, and that he would be a prophet.

27—33. And upon this] The woman, convinced of her own sin, and surprised at the discovery made, hastened to inform her friends and neighbours.

31—38. Master, eat] From this circumstance Jesus takes occasion to inform them that to teach and save sinners, yielded far more pleasure to his mind, than animal food did to his appetite.

39—42. And many of the] They acknowledge him to be indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world; an acknowledgment more full and clear than his own disciples had yet made.

CHAPTER V.

A. D. 31. Jesus on the sabbath cureth an infirm man; the Jews cavil and persecute him for it; he nobly vindicates himself by the testimony of the Father, of John, and by his own works.

woman, who testified, He told me all things 40 that ever I did. When therefore the Samaritans had come to him, they besought him that he would abide with them: and 41 he abode there two days. And many more 42 believed because of his own words; And they said to the woman, Now we believe not because of thy report only: for we have heard him ourselves, and know that this is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world.
43 Now after the two days he departed thence, and went into Galilee, but not to 44 Nazareth. For Jesus himself declared, that a prophet hath no honour in his own 45 country. So when he had come into Galilee, the Galileans received him, having seen all the things that he did in Jerusalem at the feast: for they also had gone to the 46 feast. So Jesus came again into Cana of Galilee, where he made the water wine. And there was one of the king's household, 47 whose son was sick at Capernaum. This man, when he heard that Jesus had come out of Judea into Galilee, went to him, and besought him that he would come down, and cure his son: for he was at the 48 point of death. Then said Jesus to him, Unless ye see signs and wonders, ye will 49 not believe. He of the king's household saith to him, Sir, come down ere my child 50 die. Jesus saith to him, Depart; thy son liveth. And the man believed the words which Jesus had spoken to him, and 51 departed. And as he was now going down, his servants met him, and told him, saying,
52 Thy son liveth. Then he inquired of them the hour when he began to amend. And they said to him, Yesterday at the seventh 53 hour, the fever left him. So the father knew that it was at the very hour, in which Jesus had said to him, Thy son liveth: and himself believed, and his whole house-54 hold. This second miracle Jesus did, after he had come out of Judea into Galilee.

AFTER these things there was a feast of 1 the Jews; and Jesus went up to Jerusalem. Now there is at Jerusalem, by the sheep 2 gate a pool, which is called in the Hebrew tongue Bethesda, having five porches. 3
In these lay a great multitude of infirm persons, of blind, lame, withered, [waiting for the moving of the water. For an angel 4 went down at a certain season into the pool, and troubled the water: whosoever therefore after the troubling of the water went in first was made well of whatsoever disease he had.] And a certain man was there, 5 who had had an infirmity thirty-eight years. When Jesus saw him lying, and knew that he had been now a long time afflicted, he saith to him, Dost thou desire to be made well? The infirm man answered him, Sir, 7
I have no man, when the water is troubled, to put me into the pool; but while I am coming, another goeth down before me. Jesus saith to him, Rise, take up thy couch, 8 and walk. And immediately the man was 9 made well, and took up his couch, and walked.

Now on that day was the sabbath. The 10
Jews therefore said to him that was healed, It is the sabbath: it is not lawful for thee to carry thy couch. He answered them, 11
He who made me well, himself said to me, Take up thy couch, and walk. Then they 12 asked him, What man is that who said to thee, Take up thy couch, and walk? But 13 he that was cured knew not who it was: for Jesus had conveyed himself away, a multitude being in that place. Jesus after- 14 ward meeteth him in the temple, and said to him, Behold, thou art made well: sin no more, lest some worse thing befall thee. The man departed, and told the Jews that 15 it was Jesus, who had made him well.

43. But not to Nazareth] This is added as necessary to elucidate the text.

46. One of the king's] A person of rank and dignity from his office. Herod, though only tetrarch, was honoured with the title of king. Matt. xiv. 19; Mark vi. 14.

48. Ye see signs] The Samaritans had received him on account of his doctrine, but you must be induced to believe by the sight of miracles, justly reflecting on their doubts and suspicions.

50. Depart, thy son liveth] With what kindness and authority did our Lord speak! and the father, believing what he said, tarried no longer, but hastened home to see and rejoice in the safety of his son.

54. After he had come] With others παλις is construed with the last verb. Our common version conveys a wrong sense.

CHAP. V. 1. A feast of the Jews] Pearce, and some other critics, contend that this was the feast of Pentecost; but it is far more probable that it was the Passover. See Doddridge's notes, and Luke vi. 1, and Middleton.

2. Sheep-gate] See Nehem. iii. 1, 32; xii. 39.—A pool] Jerome says, it is still there, nigh the place where the temple stood.—Bethesda] Or the house of mercy; the pool and building were thus called, as Jacob called the place where he slept, Bethel.

3, 4. Waiting for the] These words are inclosed in brackets, as being of doubtful authority. The learned reader may see Griesbach. Pearce supposes that these were mineral waters, and that it was usual for persons to bathe therein; that some unusual commotion had lately been observed at particular seasons, and some cures wrought on those who had first bathed, which, according to the opinion of the Jews, occurred through some divine agent.

5—9. Thirty-eight years] A long period of affliction which moved the compassion of Jesus to put the question: 'dost thou desire,' &c.; and even unsolicited he restore him.

11—16. He who made me well] This was his apology: yet he did not then know his benefactor. See Matt. xiv. 1—14.

16 And for this did the Jews persecute Jesus, [and sought to slay him.] because he had done these things on the sabbath.

17 But Jesus said to them, My Father

18 worketh hitherto: and I also work. Wherefore the Jews sought the more to kill him, because he not only had broken the sabbath, but said also that God was his own Father,

19 making himself equal with God. Then spoke Jesus and said to them, Verily, verily, I say to you, The Son can do nothing of himself, but as he seeth the Father do: for what things soever the Father doeth, those the Son also in like manner doeth.

20 For the Father loveth the Son, and sheweth him all things which he himself doeth; and greater works than these he will show

21 him, that ye may wonder. For as the Father raiseth up the dead, and giveth them life; even so the Son giveth life to

22 whom he will. For the Father judgeth no one, but hath committed the power of 23 judging wholly to the Son, That all should honour the Son, even as they honour the Father. He that honoureth not the Son, honoureth not the Father who hath sent 24 him. Verily, verily, I say to you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life; and he shall not come into condemnation, since he hath passed from death unto life.

25 Verily, verily, I say to you, The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and 26 they that hear shall live. For as the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son also to have life in himself;

27 And he hath given him authority to execute judgment also, because he is the Son of man. Wonder not at this: for the hour 28 is coming, in which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, And shall come 29 forth: they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of condemnation. Of myself I can do nothing: as I 30 hear, I judge: and my judgment is just: because I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father who hath sent me.

If I bear testimony concerning myself, 31 my testimony will not be regarded as true. There is another that beareth testimony 32 concerning me; and I know that the testimony which he beareth concerning me is true. Ye sent unto John, and he bore tes- 33 timony unto the truth. But I receive not 34 testimony from man only; but these things I say, that ye may be saved. He was a burn- 35 ing and a shining lamp; and ye were willing for a time to rejoice in his light. But 36 I have greater testimony than that of John; for the works which the Father hath given me to perform, these very works which I do, bear testimony for me, that the Father hath sent me. And the Father himself, 37 who sent me, hath borne testimony concerning me. Have ye not at any time heard his voice, or seen his form? And have ye 38 not his word abiding among you, that ye believe not on him whom he hath sent?

Ye search the scriptures, because in 39 them ye think ye have eternal life: and they also bear testimony concerning me. Yet ye will not come unto me, that ye may 40 have life. I do not desire honour from 41 men; But I know you that ye have not the 42 love of God in you. I am come in my 43 Father's name, and ye receive me not; if

17. Worketh hitherto] In preserving and governing all things, and conferring benefits without respect to days; and like him, I rest not on the sabbath from showing mercy, and doing acts of kindness.

18. His own father] As the Jews called God 'their father,' they could not surely blame him for speaking in this style, had they not perceived that he used the terms in a peculiar and distinguishing sense. In this peculiar sense 'the Son of God,' was understood to signify the Messiah; and as Jesus claimed this character, and his right to work from his Father working, they justly inferred that he made himself 'equal with God.'

19. The Son can do] Doddridge supposes that our Lord may refer to some peculiar influence on his mind, and which Jesus constantly followed.

20. Greater works] Direct him to do greater miracles than any which he has yet done.

21. Even so the Son] Jesus had not as yet raised the dead; but as it was allowed that the Father had and would raise the dead, Jesus declared that in like manner he would do it.

22. The power of judging] This is allowed to be the proper rendering of κρίνειν.

23. That all should] As the person possessing 'this power of judging,' and of executing his own decisions, whether they respect mercy or punishment.—Not the Father who] He came in his Father's name, and any disrespect to him was in effect disrespect to the Father.

25. The dead shall] Either those naturally or spiritually dead; for our Lord soon after called some to life who were dead, and he quickened many who were dead in sin.

26, 27. As the Father hath] Essentially and originally, so he hath given to the Son to have such life in himself, and to communicate to whom he will, 1 Cor. xv. 45. The 27th verse is a repetition of the sentiment contained in the 22nd, assigning a reason for the judicial authority being given unto him.

28—30. Wonder not at this] For to raise all mankind at the last day will be a proof of greater power than now raising a few; and my sentence at that day will be just, because I act in all things according to the Father's will.

31—35. Be regarded as true] The sense is given in preference to the idiom. John had given the most express testimony to Jesus as the Messiah.—He was a burning] John was now cast into prison; his ministry had ended, and Jesus gives us his eulogium. Lightfoot observes, that it was usual to call the Rabbies, the candle of the law, the lamp of light.

37, 38. Have ye not] As this version arises only from pointing differently, it is preferred as referring to the testimony which the Father had given to his Son, when baptized. See Luke iii. 22.

39. Ye search] The indicative is adopted as most suitable to the context.—Bear testimony] To these scriptures the evangelists and apostles make frequent appeals.

41—43. I do not desire] My aim is not to receive your applause. Our Lord refers to what did afterwards actually occur.

another shall come in his own name, him 44 ye will receive. How can ye believe, who receive honour from one another, and seek not the honour which cometh from God only? Think not that I will accuse you to the Father: there is one that accuseth 46 you, even Moses, in whom ye trust. For if ye had believed Moses, ye would have 47 believed me: for he wrote of me. But if ye believe not his writings, how shall ye believe my words?

CHAPTER VI.

A. D. 32. Christ feedeth five thousand; the people ready to make him a king; he withdraweth himself; the people follow him, whom he reproveth; declareth himself the bread of life, &c.

1 AFTER these things Jesus went along the lake of Galilee, which is also called the 2 lake of Tiberias. And a great multitude followed him, because they saw the miracles which he did on those who were dis-3 eased. And Jesus went up a mountain, 4 and sat there with his disciples. And the passover (a feast of the Jews) was near.
5 When Jesus then raised his eyes, and saw a great company was coming to him, he saith to Philip, Whence shall we buy 6 bread that these may eat? (Now he said this to try him: for he himself knew what 7 he was about to do.) Philip answered him, Two hundred denarii would not purchase bread sufficient, so that every one of 8 them may take a little. One of his disciples, Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, saith 9 to him, There is a boy here, who hath five barley loaves, and two small fishes: but 10 what are they among so many? And Jesus said, Make the men lie down. Now there was much grass in the place. So the men lay down, in number about five 11 thousand. And Jesus took the loaves; and when he had given thanks, he distributed to the disciples, and the disciples to those who had lain down; and in like manner the fishes, as much as they would.
12 And when they were filled, he said to his disciples, Gather the fragments which remain, that nothing be lost. Therefore they 13 gathered them, and filled twelve large baskets with the fragments of the five barley loaves, which remained after the people had eaten. Then those men, when they had 14 seen the miracle which Jesus did, said,

'This is in truth that prophet who was to come into the world.' When Jesus there- 15 fore perceived that they were about to come and take him by force, to make him a king, he again withdrew to a mountain himself alone.

And when evening came, his disciples 16 went down to the lake, And going into a 17 vessel, went along the lake towards Caper-naum. And it was now dark, and Jesus was not come to them. And the lake rose 18 because of a great wind which blew. So 19 when they had rowed about twenty-five or thirty furlongs, they see Jesus walking on the lake, and drawing near to the vessel:
and they were afraid. But he saith to them, 20
It is I; be not afraid. Then they gladly 21 received him into the vessel: and immediately the vessel was at the land whither they were going.

The day following, when the multitude 22 who stood on the other side of the lake having seen that there was no other boat there but one, and that Jesus went not with his disciples into the boat, but that his disciples had departed alone: (However 23 there came other boats from Tiberias near to the place where they ate bread, after that the Lord had given thanks:) When 24 the people therefore saw that Jesus was not there, nor his disciples, they also took vessels, and came to Capernaum, seeking Jesus. And when they had found him on 25
the other side of the lake, they said to him, Rabbi, when camest thou hither? Jesus 26 answered them and said, Verily, verily, I say to you, Ye seek me, not so much because ye saw the miracles, but because ye ate of the loaves, and were filled. Work 27

44. How can ye believe? My mission, or look for salvation to me, when ye are flattering one another with the most pompous titles, and expecting nothing but earthly things?

45—47. Think not! Moses, their lawgiver, had written of Messiah; and by their persecuting spirit, they showed that they were not governed by his testimony or law: and therefore he would become their accuser.

CHAP. VI. 1. Went along the lake] Compare Matthew xiv. 13, &c.; Mark vi. 30, &c.; Luke ix. 10, &c. It appears from the other Evangelists, that Jesus entered into a ship, with his disciples, and it is probable that he only coasted along the lake, as he only went into a desert belonging to the city of Bethsaida, on the same shore where he had been teaching.

5—15. And saw a great! He saw them resorting to him from all quarters; and having compassion, he wrought the miracle recorded. See Matt. xiv. 15, &c.; Mark vi. 35, &c. 'This miracle induced the people to declare that Jesus was 'the prophet who should come into the world;' and on this conviction they resolved immediately to make him their king, but he withdrew himself.

10. Now there was much grass] This remark, says Dr. Paley, must be made by one who was an eye-witness.

17. Went along] All our best maps represent Capernaum on the west side of the lake; and απέναντι must have the sense here attributed to it.

21. Gladly received] John has omitted many circumstances which the other Evangelists have related. See Matt. xiv. 24, &c.; Mark vi. 47, &c.

22—24. The day following] For the text see Griesbach and Campbell. There is reason to think it has suffered by the carelessness of transcribers.

26. Ye ate of the loaves] Our Lord knew what was in man, and that the motive of many that followed him was low and mercenary, desiring to live without labour.

27—29. Work not only for] This version shows the manner of our Lord, which, in this instance, can be happily preserved.—But for that food] Divine knowledge and instruction, which is the food of the soul.

not only for the food which perisheth, but for that food which endureth to everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give to you : for him hath the Father, that is God, sealed. Then said they to him, What shall we do, that we may work the works of God ? Jesus answered and said to them, This is the work of God, that ye believe in him whom he hath sent. Then they said to him, What miracle doest thou, that we may see it, and believe in thee ? what dost thou work ? Our fathers ate manna in the desert ; as it is written, He gave them bread from heaven to eat. Jesus then said to them, Verily, verily, I say to you, Moses gave you not that bread from heaven ; but my Father giveth you the true bread from heaven. For the bread of God is that which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life to the world. Then said they to him, Master, evermore give us this bread. And Jesus said to them, I am the bread of life : he that cometh to me shall not feel hunger ; and he that believeth in me shall no more thirst. But I have said to you, That ye have seen me, and yet believe not. All that the Father giveth me will come to me : and him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out. For I came down from heaven, not to do mine own will, but the will of him that sent me. And this is the will of him who sent me, that of all whom he hath given me I should lose none, but should raise them up at the last day. And this is the will of him who sent me, that every one who seeth the Son, and believeth in him, may have everlasting life : and him I will raise up at the last day. The Jews then murmured at him, because he said, I am the bread which came down from heaven. And they said, Is not this Jesus, the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know ? how therefore doth this man say, I came down from heaven ? Jesus answered and said to them, Murmur not among yourselves. No man can come to me, unless the Father who hath sent me, draw him : and him I will raise up at the last day. It is written in the prophets, And they shall be all taught of God. Every one that hath heard, and learned from the Father, cometh unto me. Not that any man hath seen the Father, but he who is from God ; he hath seen the Father. Verily, verily, I say to you, He that believeth in me hath everlasting life. I am the bread of life. Your fathers ate manna in the desert, and are dead. This is the bread which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die. I am the life-giving bread which came down from heaven : if any man eat of this bread he shall live for ever : and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world.

The Jews therefore contended among themselves, saying, How can this man give us his flesh to eat ? Then Jesus said to them, Verily, verily, I say to you, Unless ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you. Whosoever eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath everlasting life ; and him I will raise up at the last day. For my flesh is the true food, and my blood is the true drink. He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, abideth in me, and I in him. As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father ; so he likewise that eateth me, shall live by me. This is the bread which came down from heaven : not as your fathers ate manna, and died : he that eateth of this bread shall live for ever. These things he said in the synagogue, as he taught in Capernaum.

Many therefore of his disciples, when they had heard him, said, This is hard doctrine ; who can hear it ? When Jesus knew in himself that his disciples murmured at it, he said to them, Doth this offend you ? What then if ye shall see the Son of man

30—34. What miracle doest] He had lately fed a few thousands ; but, say they, this is nothing compared with the miracle which Moses wrought in confirmation of his mission, who gave our fathers manna from heaven, even for the space of forty years, Ps. lxxviii. 24, 25.

32. Moses gave] It is only in a subordinate sense that what dropped from the clouds and nourished the body, can be called the bread of heaven ; but in a higher and more noble one, it may be said, My Father now giveth you the true bread of heaven.

33. Is that which cometh] Our Lord evidently means himself ; but the people, from what follows, did not perceive it.

36. I have said] See verses 26—29. They had seen his miracles, yet did not believe in him, as their cavilling spirit proved.

37—40. Will come to me] Every one so disposed by the Father ; and as I have come to do the Father's will, I will not reject any that come to me.

41, 42. Murmured] They considered his being a man inconsistent with his assertion, that he was the bread which came down from heaven, and especially his descent from Joseph and Mary.

44, 45. Draw him] By the influence of his Spirit in the heart, exciting such thoughts and dispositions as will lead the man to regard and rely on his Son for salvation.—Every one that] See Isa. liv. 13 ; Jer. xxxi. 34.

46. Not that any] Jesus spoke of a secret influence on the mind, not of immediately seeing, hearing, and learning from the Father, whom no man had seen but himself.

49—51. Your fathers ate] But this did not preserve their natural life ; for they are long since dead ; but he that believeth in me shall have everlasting life in heaven.

52—59. His flesh to eat] Our Lord refers in these verses to himself as a sacrifice for sin, and intimates that unless they did, as it were, eat his flesh and drink his blood, or exercise a believing regard to his sacrifice, they could not enjoy a life of pardon and peace here, or eternal life hereafter.

60. Who can hear it] Who can understand it ; or who can hear it with patience ?

62. What then if] See chap. iiii. 13, and note. ' Were 63 ascend up where he was before? It is the spirit that giveth life; the flesh profiteth nothing: the words which 'I have spoken' 64 are spirit and life. But there are some of you that believe not. (For Jesus knew from the beginning who they were that believed not, and who would deliver him 65 up.) And he said, Therefore said I to you, that no man can come unto me, unless it be given unto him by my Father. 66 From that time many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him. 67 Then said Jesus to the twelve, Will ye also 68 go away? Then Simon Peter answered him, Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast 69 the words of everlasting life. And we believe and are sure that thou art the Christ, 70 the Son of the living God. Jesus answered them, Have not I chosen you twelve? and 71 yet one of you is an enemy. He spoke of Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon: for he was about to deliver him up, being one of the twelve.

1 After these things Jesus abode in Galilee: for he would not abide in Judea, because the Jews sought to kill him.

CHAPTER VII.

A. D. 32. Jesus reproveth the ambition of his kinsmen; goeth up to the feast of booths; teacheth in the temple; various opinions respecting him; officers sent to take him; Nicodemus vindicates him.

2 Now the Jewish feast of booths was near. His brethren therefore said to him, 3 Depart hence, and go into Judea, that thy disciples also may see the works which 4 thou doest. For no man doeth any thing in secret, and yet he himself seeketh to be known publicly. If thou do these things, 5 show thyself to the world. (For neither did his brethren believe in him.) Then 6 Jesus saith to them, My time is not yet come; but your time is always ready. The 7 world cannot hate you; but me it hateth, because I testify of it, that its works are evil. Go ye up to this feast: I go not up 8 yet to this feast; for my time is not yet fully come. When he had said these words 9 to them, he remained still in Galilee. But 10 when his brethren had gone up, then he also went up to the feast; not openly, but as it were in secret. Then the Jews sought 11 him at the feast, and said, Where is he? And there was much murmuring among 12 the multitudes concerning him: for some said, He is a good man: others said, No; but he deceiveth the people. However no 13 man spoke openly of him for fear of the Jews.

Now about the midst of the feast Jesus 14 went up to the temple, and taught. And 15 the Jews wondered, saying, How hath this man learning, having never been taught? Jesus answered them, and said, My doctrine is not mine, but his who sent me. If 17 any man desire to do his will, he shall know concerning the doctrine, whether it be from God, or I speak from myself. He that 18 speaketh from himself seeketh his own glory; but he that seeketh his glory who sent him, he is true, and unrighteousness is not in him. Did not Moses give you 19 the law? and yet none of you keepeth the law? Why do ye seek to kill me? The 20 people answered and said, Thou hast a demon; who seeketh to kill thee? Jesus 21 answered and said to them, I have done one work, and ye all wonder at it. Moses 22 gave you circumcision; (not that it is from you to see me go to heaven, whence I descended, would you not then perceive, how impossible it would be for you, literally, to eat my flesh and drink my blood?

63. It is the spirit] As in the human frame, it is the spirit which animates the whole, and the flesh, however organized, profits nothing; so my words are spirit, or to be understood in a spiritual sense, and then they will give life to the soul. The spirit is opposed to the letter, 2 Cor. iii. 6, in the same sense.—(v) Griesb.

66. Went back, and] Such as had only followed him for loaves and fishes, and as were for making him a king, because he could supply their temporal necessities by the exhibition of his miraculous power.

68. Lord, to whom] The twelve are mentioned, and Peter answers for the rest; and professes his own honest opinion both as to the doctrine and person of Christ. As to the former he had the words of everlasting life; and as to the latter, they were assured that he was the Christ, the Son of the living God.

70. Is an enemy] This sense of διδωλος is given in preference to the common version, which has something harsh and not agreeable to our Lord's mild and condescending manner. The Sept. use it in the sense given. See Biel. Campbell renders a spy.

CHAP. VII. 2. Feast of booths] This was kept in the latter end of summer and continued for eight days, Levit. xxiii. 39, 40; Numb. xxix. 12, &c.

2—5. His brethren] His near kinsmen, who are called his brethren. What is said must be understood with some limitation, for three of his brethren were apostles—Simon and Jude, and James the less. But there might be many others, more distantly related, who did not believe him to be the Messiah.

6—8. My time is not] He intimates that he was not to be directed by them; but when he saw it to be proper, he would go up to the feast.—The world cannot hate] This contains a severe reflection, intimating that they were of the world, and governed by worldly views.

9—13. Remained still in] That is, for a few days longer, and then went up unattended by his disciples. There was, doubtless, some good reason for this.—Where is he] He had excited general attention in Galilee and other parts.

15. Wondered, saying] He discovered such an acquaintance with the Holy Scriptures, and explained and applied them with such evidence and propriety, as excited the wonder of all, as they knew he had not been taught in any of their schools.

16. My doctrine is] I have not learned it from men, but have received it from the Father; and if any desire to do his will, &c.

19. To kill me] Some of the people, who knew nothing of the design of others, rudely said, 'Thou hast a demon,' &c.

21—24. Done one work] See chap. v. 8, 9.—Circumcision on the] Gen. xvii. 10. Lev. xii. 3. If the eighth day happened to be on the sabbath, this rite was not deferred; and in this case the law of circumcision vacated the law of the sabbath. The inference which our Lord draws from this is just and forcible.

Moses, but from the fathers;) and ye on 23 the sabbath circumcise a man. If a man should on the sabbath receive circumcision;
that the law of Moses may not be broken;
are ye angry with me, because I have made a man altogether well on the sabbath?
24 Judge not according to appearance, but 25 judge righteous judgment. Then some inhabitants of Jerusalem said, Is not this 26 he whom they seek to kill? But, lo, he speaketh boldly, and they say nothing to him. Do the rulers know indeed that this 27 is the Christ? However, we know whence this man is: but when the Christ cometh, 28 no man knoweth whence he is. Then cried Jesus in the temple as he taught, saying, Do ye both know me, and whence I am? and I am not come of myself, but he that sent me is true, whom ye know not.
29 But I know him: for I am from him, and 30 he hath sent me. Then the Jews sought to apprehend him; yet no man laid hands on him, because his hour was not yet come.
31 And many of the people believed in him, and said, When the Christ cometh, will he do more miracles than those which this man hath done?
32 The Pharisees heard the multitude murmuring such things concerning him; and the Pharisees and the chief priests sent 33 officers to apprehend him. Jesus therefore said, Yet a little while shall I be with you, and then I shall go to him who sent 34 me. Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am, thither ye cannot 35 come. Then said the Jews to one another, Whither will this man go, that we shall not find him? will he go to the dispersed among the Greeks, and teach the Greeks?
36 What words are those which he said, Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am, thither ye cannot come?
37 Now on the last day, that great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried, saying, If any man thirst, let him come to me, and drink. He who believeth in me, as the 38 scripture hath said, from within him shall flow rivers of living water. (Now he spoke 39 this of the Spirit, which those who believe in him were to receive: for the Holy Spirit was not yet given; because Jesus was not yet glorified.) Many of the mul- 40 titude, therefore, when they heard these words, said, In truth this is the Prophet.

Others said, This is the Christ. But some 41 said, Doth the Christ come out of Galilee?
Hath not the scripture said, That the Christ 42 will be of the offspring of David, and from the town of Bethlehem, where David was?
So there was a division among the mul- 43 titude because of him. And some of them 44 desired to apprehend him; but no man laid hands on him.

Then came the officers to the chief priests 45
and Pharisees; and they said to them, Why have ye not brought him? The offi- 46 cers answered, Never man spoke like this man. Then the Pharisees answered them, 47
Are ye also deceived? Hath any one of the 48 rulers or of the Pharisees believed in him?
But this multitude, who know not the law, 49 are accursed. Nicodemus saith to them, 50 (he that came to Jesus by night, being one of them,) Doth our law judge any man, 51 unless it first hear him, and know what he doeth? They answered and said to him, 52 Art thou also of Galilee? Search, and see, that out of Galilee ariseth no prophet.
And every man went to his own house: 53
But Jesus went to the mount of Olives. 1

CHAPTER VIII.

A. D. 32. Christ delivereth the woman taken in adultery; preacheth himself the light of the world, and vindicateth his doctrine; answereth the Jews, &c.

Now early in the morning Jesus came 2 again into the temple, and all the people came to him; and he sat down, and taught them. And the Scribes and Pharisees 3 brought unto him a woman taken in adultery; and when they had set her in the 25—27. They seek to kill] The design of the Jewish leaders was now well known at Jerusalem.—Hence he is] What is his origin and descent, Matt. xiii. 55; but the origin of the real Christ will be high and unsearchable. This opinion was founded on some of their traditions.

28—31. Do ye both know] They knew his earthly origin and manner of life; but they knew not him who had sent him, the true God, notwithstanding all their pretensions.

32—36. Pharisees heard] The favourable opinion of the multitude alarmed the jealous Pharisees, and they sent their officers to take Jesus.—35, The dispersed] To the Jews who lived among the Greeks, and spoke their language, and will he teach them, and even the Greeks too?—(v) Griesb.

37. Now on the last day] The eighth day was a day of solemn assembly, and called the great day of the feast. Lev. xxiii. 36. Numb. xxix. 33.—If any man thirst] For the blessings of salvation. Some tell us that the Jews on this day drew water from Siloam, repeating the 12th Chap. of Isaiah. Hence there is great pertinency in the images which our Lord employs.

39. As the scripture] See Is. lii. 15; lviii. 11. Joel ii. 28, &c.—From within him] The term denotes the heart and mind. The remark of the Evangelist in the next verse explains the sense of this.

40—44. In truth this is] The prophet whom some said should come. See Chap. i. 20, &c.—Of David] This was true; and had they inquired, they would have found Jesus was of the offspring of David, and born in Bethlehem.

46. Never man spoke] Our Lord's manner as well as his matter had disarmed those officers, and excited their wonder; so that they commend him as one of the greatest of teachers.

47—49. Are ye also] This shows the fear of those worthless men; and as they rejected him, they treated the multitude of their own nation as an ignorant and an accursed race. What pride, united with hardness of heart, do they discover!

50—53. Nicodemus saith] The question this individual put confounded these unjust rulers, and for the present prevented the accomplishment of their design.

CHAP. VIII. 1. Mount of Olives] Probably to the house of Lazarus at Bethany. Matt. xix. 17.

3—5. A woman taken in] See the law to which they refer, Deuter. xxii. 20—24.

4 midst, They say to him, Teacher, this woman was taken in the very act of adultery.
5 Now Moses in the law commanded us, that such should be stoned: but what sayest thou? Now this they said, tempting him, that they might have matter for accusing him; but Jesus stooped down, and wrote with his finger on the ground. So when they continued asking him, he raised himself, and said to them, Let him that is sinless among you, first cast a stone at her.
8 And again he stooped down, and wrote on the ground. But they, having heard this, being convicted by their own conscience, went out one by one, beginning at the eldest, unto the last: and Jesus was left alone, and the woman standing where she had been placed. When Jesus had raised himself, and saw none but the woman, he said to her, Woman, where are those thine accusers? hath no man condemned thee?
11 She said, No one, Sir. And Jesus said to her, Neither do I condemn thee: go, and sin no more.
12 Then Jesus spoke again to them, saying, I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life. The Pharisees therefore said to him, Thou testifiest of thyself; thy testimony is not true. Jesus answered and said to them, Though I testify of myself, yet my testimony is true: for I know whence I came, and whither I go: but ye know not whence I come, and whither I go. Ye judge according to the flesh; I judge no one. And yet if I judge, my judgment is true, for I am not alone, but I and the Father who sent me. It is written in your law also, that the testimony of two men is true. I am one that testifieth of myself, and the Father who sent me, is another who testifieth of me. Then said they to him, Where is thy Father? Jesus answered, Ye neither know me, nor my Father: if ye had known me, ye would have known my Father also. These words 20 Jesus spoke in the treasury, as he was teaching in the temple: and yet none laid hands on him; for his hour was not yet come. Then Jesus said to them again, I 21 am going away, and ye shall seek me, and shall die in your sin; whither I go, ye cannot come. Then said the Jews, Will 22 he kill himself? because he saith, Whither I go, ye cannot come. And he said to 23 them, Ye are from below; I am from above: ye are of this world; I am not of this world. I said therefore to you, that ye shall die in 24 your sins: for if ye believe not that I am he, ye shall die in your sins. Then they 25 said to him, Who art thou? And Jesus saith to them, Even the same that I told you at first. I have many things to say 26 concerning you and to condemn: but he who sent me is true; and I speak to the 27 world those things which I have heard from him. They understood not that he spoke 28 to them of the Father. Then Jesus said 29 to them, When ye have lifted up the Son of man, then shall ye know that I am he, and that I do nothing of myself; but I speak these things as my Father hath taught me. And he who sent me is with me: the Father 29 hath not left me alone; for I do always those things that please him.

As he spoke these words, many believed 30 in him. Then said Jesus to those Jews 31 who believed in him, If ye continue in my word, then are ye truly my disciples; And 32 ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free. Some answered him, We 33 are Abraham's off-spring, and were never in bondage to any man: how sayest thou, Ye shall be made free? Jesus answered them, 34 Verily, verily, I say to you, Whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin. Now 35 a servant abideth not in the house for ever: but the Son abideth for ever. If the Son 36

6. Matter for accusing him] They did this to see whether he would set aside the law on this point, as they supposed he had done in respect to the observance of the sabbath.

7—9. Sinless among you] Some suppose that they who brought this woman were themselves adulterers; and the text certainly favours their opinion, as they are said to be convicted by their own consciences, and from shame, probably imagining that Jesus would expose them, departed.

11. She said, No one, Sir] She had not been carried before the judges, nor had a legal sentence been pronounced against her; and Jesus would not arrogate to himself the office of condemning her; yet as a teacher, he would admonish her, to 'go, and sin no more,' but reform and repent.

12. To them, saying] Not to the Pharisees, who had gone out, but to the people who are said to come unto him: verse 2.—Light of the] See Ch. i. 4, 5. The 'light of life' means that light or spiritual knowledge which leads to eternal life.

13—18. Thou testifiest] The answer of Jesus is, That he knew whence he came, and while they judged of things according to outward appearance, he judged in conformity with the nature of things and the will of the Father.

22. Will he kill himself] And thus remove himself beyond all our attempts to injure him? Such a question shows the spirit of the people.

24. Ye shall die] He repeats the threatening of verse 21.

25. The same that] In the former verse he affirms in effect that he was the Messiah, and as such claims their confidence.

26. Sent me is true] I leave you to him, who judgeth in truth, and who will, ere long, show that I speak what is agreeable to his will.

28. Lifted up the Son] He refers to his crucifixion, and the proofs that would then be given of his being the Messiah.

32. Know the truth] The whole scheme of the gospel, by the gifts of the Holy Spirit.—Make you free] From the servitude and punishment of sin; and from the yoke of the ceremonial laws.

35. Now a servant] Such may be dismissed, as Hagar and Ishmael were, Gen. xxi. 10, or may go out at the sabbatical year. They are at the disposal of the master.

36. If the Son therefore] As the son and heir abideth for therefore shall make you free, ye shall be 37 free indeed. I know that ye are Abraham's offspring; yet ye seek to kill me, because 38 my word hath no place in you. I speak that which I have seen with my Father; and ye do that which ye have seen with 39 your father. They answered and said to him, Abraham is our father. Jesus saith to them, If ye were Abraham's children, ye 40 would do the works of Abraham. But now ye seek to kill me, a man that hath told you the truth, which I have heard from God:

 Abraham did not do thus. Ye do the deeds 41 of your father. Then they said to him,
 We are not born of fornication; we have 42 one Father, even God. Jesus saith to them, If God were your Father, ye would love me: for I proceeded and came from God; for I came not of myself, but he sent 43 me. Why do ye not understand my discourse? It is because ye cannot hearken to 44 my words. Ye are of your father the devil, and the desires of your father ye willingly do. He was a man-slayer from the beginning, and continued not in the truth; because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh from his own disposition: for he is a liar, and the father 45 of every liar. And because I speak the 46 truth, ye believe me not. Which of you convicteth me of sin? And if I speak the 47 truth, why do ye not believe me? He that is of God hearkeneth to God's words; ye therefore hearken not, because ye are not
 of God.
 48 Then answered the Jews, and said to him,

Say we not well that thou art a Samaritan, and hast a demon? Jesus answered, I 49 have not a demon; but I honour my Father, and ye dishonour me. But I seek not 50 mine own glory: there is one that seeketh it and judgeth. Verily, verily, I say to you, 51
 If a man keep my words, he shall not see death for ever. Then the Jews said to him,
 Now we know that thou hast a demon. 52
 Abraham is dead, and the prophets; yet thou sayest, If a man keep my words, he shall not taste of death for ever. Art thou 53 greater than our father Abraham, who is dead? The prophets also are dead: whom makest thou thyself? Jesus answered, If I 54 glorify myself, my glory is nothing: it is my Father who glorifieth me: of whom ye say, that he is your God: And yet ye know 55 him not; but I know him: and if I should say, I know him not, I should be a liar like unto you: but I know him, and keep his words. Your father Abraham earnestly 56 desired to see my day: and he saw it, and was glad. Then said the Jews to him, 57 Thou art not yet fifty years old, and hast thou seen Abraham? Jesus said to them, 58 Verily, verily, I say to you, Before Abraham was born, I am. Then they took up stones 59 to cast at him: but Jesus withdrew, and went out of the temple.*

CHAPTER IX.

A. D. 32. Sight restored to the man born blind; he is brought to the Pharisees, who are offended, and excommunicate him; Christ receiveth him, and he confesseth him to be Messiah.

AND as Jesus passed on, he saw a man 1 ever, so he has the right of giving freedom to slaves, and of advancing them as he pleases. Jesus intimates that he enjoyed this right; and happy are they who are made free by him.

38. Have seen] Our Lord perpetually adverts to his intimate relation to God, and his faithful declaration of his will; and charges home on his hearers their murderous intentions, which proved them child en of Satan.

39. Abraham's children] In a spiritual sense, ye would imitate his faith and obedience, and would honour me.

42. If God were your] If ye were what ye profess to be, his humble worshippers and servants, you would love me for revealing his will, and as the messenger of mercy to men.

43. It is because ye cannot] He assigns the reason of their not understanding, to be their own prejudices and sins, which prevented the application of their minds to his doctrine.

44. A man-slayer from] This gives the exact force of the Greek term, and directly refers to the success of his temptation, by which death came into the world. He did not regard truth, but boldly denied what God had said, Gen. iii. 5.—Speaketh from his own] As he might be expected to speak, suitably to his false and wicked character. —See Middleton.

46. Convicteth me of sin] Of any deviation from truth; of any thing sinful and improper. Such a challenge proves the consciousness of our Lord, both of the truth of his doctrine and the innocence of his life.

47. He that is of God] One devoted to him, one who loves and serves him, ver. 41.—Because ye are] Not his servants, but the servants of sin and Satan; and you prove it by not hearkening to his words.

49. Dishonour me] They could use no terms more reproachful than calling him a Samaritan, and one having a demon; and by such imputations they dishonoured the Saviour.

51. Not see death] He may see death as to the body, but this shall not be for ever. He shall enjoy endless life.

55. And yet ye know] Know him not aright, know not his real character.

56. Earnestly desired to see] The Syrian version and most modern translators give this sense to the term here, though not used in the same sense in any other passage.—He saw it] His faith in the promise made to him was equivalent to seeing, Heb. xi. 13. It is probable our Lord refers to some discovery which was made to Abraham, when he offered up Isaac, Gen. xxii. 12—18. In that transaction there was a lively type of what Jesus was to endure.

57. Hast thou seen] They either misunderstood our Lord, or designedly perverted his words; unless they supposed, that if Abraham 'had seen his day,' he must have seen Abraham.

58. Was born, I am] The term may be rendered thus, or 'I am he,' the Messiah, or the Christ; see verses 24, 28: but this latter turn does not contain an answer to the question, 'Hast thou seen Abraham?' To say, before Abraham was born, I was appointed to be the Messiah, is obviously irrelevant; nor could the Jews have been offended with this, as they admitted Messiah to be promised from the beginning. 'I am' denotes continued existence, as Campbell and others admit. See Heb. xiii. 8.

59. Withdrew] With Griesbach, the clause is omitted, 'Going through the midst of them, and so passed by.'

CHAP. IX. 1. And as Jesus] This appears to have occurred a very little time after what is related in the

- 2 who was blind from his birth. And his disciples asked him, saying, Rabbi, who sinned, this man, or his parents, that he was born
3 blind? Jesus answered, Neither this man, nor his parents sinned: but this hath occurred that the works of God might be manifested in him. I must work the works of him who sent me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work.
4 While I am in the world, I am the light of the world. When he had thus spoken, he spat on the ground, and made clay of the spittle, and he anointed the eyes of the 5 blind man with the clay. And he said to him, Go, wash in the pool of Siloam, (which is by interpretation, Sent.) He departed therefore, and washed, and came seeing.
6 The neighbours, therefore, and those who had seen him before, (for he had been 'a beggar,') said, Is not this he who sat and begged? Some said, This is he: others said, He is like him: but he said, I am he.
7 They therefore said to him, How were thine eyes opened? He answered and said, A man called Jesus, made clay, and anointed mine eyes, and said to me, Go to the pool of Siloam, and wash: and I went and washed, and I received sight. Then they said to him, Where is he? He said, I know not.
8 They brought him who before had been blind to the Pharisees. Now it was the sabbath when Jesus made the clay, and 9 opened his eyes. Then the Pharisees also asked him how he had received sight. He said to them, He put clay upon mine eyes, and I washed, and now see. Wherefore some of the Pharisees said, This man is not from God, because he keepeth not the sabbath. Others said, How can a sinner do such miracles? And there was a division 10 among them. They say to the blind man again, What sayest thou of him, since he foregoing chapter. The miracle was wrought in Jerusalem.

2. Who sinned, this man? Pearce contends that this question can have no reference to the opinion of the Pharisees, who held something like the Pythagorean doctrine of transmigration, as it respected the good only, but supposed the wicked did not enjoy this privilege, Matt. xvi. 14, &c. 'Who sinned? This man, that he hath become blind; or if he were born so, was it for the sin of his parents?'

3. Neither this man? Our Lord's answer shows that afflictions of this nature are not judicial for some particular crime; but permitted to occur in righteous sovereignty, and in this case to display the power of God.

6. He spat on the ground? See note, Mark vii. 33.—He anointed? That is, he spread the clay on his eyes.

7. Go, wash in the? This was enjoined as a trial of his faith and submission; and our Lord might have in view the cure of Naaman, 2 Kings v. 10.

8. Been a beggar? This reading is supported by the best MSS and many of the versions; and it is more suitable to what follows.

11. The pool of Siloam? This was without the walls of the city, at the bottom of Mount Moriah. See Reeland.

hath opened thine eyes? He said, He is a prophet. But the Jews did not believe 18 concerning him, that he had been blind, and received sight, until they had called the parents of him who had received sight. And they asked them, saying, Is this your 19 son, of whom ye say that he was born blind? how then doth he now see? His parents 20 answered them and said, We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind: But by what means he now seeth, we know 21 not; or who hath opened his eyes, we know not: he is of age; ask him: he will speak for himself. His parents spoke these 22 words, because they feared the Jews: for the Jews had already agreed, that if any man should confess that Jesus was the Christ, he should be put out of the synagogue. Therefore said his parents, He is 23 of age; ask him. A second time they 24 called the man that had been blind, and said to him, Give glory to God: we know that this man is a sinner. He answered 25 and said, Whether he be a sinner, I know not: one thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, I now see. Then said they to him 26 again, What did he to thee? how opened he thine eyes? He answered them, I have 27 told you already, and did ye not hear? wherefore would ye hear it again? will ye also be his disciples? Then they reviled 28 him, and said, Thou art his disciple; but we are disciples of Moses. We know that 29 God spoke to Moses: but we know not whence this man is. The man answered 30 and said to them, This is a wonderful thing, that ye know not whence he is, and yet he hath opened mine eyes. Now we know 31 that God heareth not sinners: but if any man be a worshipper of God, and do his will, him he heareth. Since the world be- 32 gan hath it not been heard that any man opened the eyes of one that was born blind. If this man were not of God, he could do 33

16. Keepeth not the sabbath? Such a remark, on such an occasion, is very singular, and what our Lord had often refuted. What others said, is far more pertinent. How could it be expected that God would enable a sinner to do such miracles?

17. He is a prophet? He thought he could be no less; and the miracle might remind him of what other prophets had done.

18—23. Did not believe? Their unbelief happily led to a minute examination respecting the miracle; and this ended in a manner most satisfactory.—Be put out? Be treated as an excommunicated person.

24. Give glory to God? By confessing the truth. They believed, or affected to believe, that he had told them lies; and they address him as Joshua did Achor, Josh. vii. 18, 19, and hoped to have made a similar discovery.

28. His disciple? They reproach him with this, and gloried that they were the disciples of Moses.

29. Whence this man is? Who hath sent him, whether he is not some impostor who is gaining disciples in order to realize his ambitious views.

30—33. This is a wonderful! The answer to their insinuation is just, and must have been galling to these proud

34 nothing. They answered and said to him, Thou wast altogether born in sins, and dost thou teach us? And they cast him out of their synagogues.

35 Jesus heard that they had cast him out; and when he met him, he said to him,

36 Dost thou believe in the Son of God? He answered and said, Who is he, Sir, that I

37 may believe in him? And Jesus said to him, Thou hast both seen him, and it is
